ONE OF THE DAY'S MOST SPECTACULAR VICTORIES WENT TO CAPT.WALKER M.MAURIN (927 WILDWOOD AVE) FORT WAYNE, IND., WHOSE THUNDERBOLT GUNS SHOT DOWN A FOCKE WULF-190 AS IT HOPPED ON THE FORTS NEAR PARIS FOR HIS THIRD ENEMY FIGHTER DOWNED IN AS MANY WEEKS.

WHILE SOME FORMATIONS ENCOUNTERED HEAVY FIGHTER OPPOSITION, OTHERS WERE VIRTUALLY FREE TO BOMB AT WILL, PARTICULARLY IN AN ATTACK ON THE LILLE-NORD AIRFIELD.

PILOT OF THE "MAJOR BALL," MAJ.ELZIA LEDOUX OF EUNICE, LA., SAID HE SAW ONLY ONE ENEMY FIGHTER DURING THE ENTIRE MISSION AND THAT WAS "A LONELY LITTLE GERMAN FIGHTER ABOUT 10,000 FEET BELOW US AND A HALF A MILE OFF ON ONE SIDE."

SGT.BASIL MAGINEAU OF DEARBORN, MICH., A WAIST-GUNNER, SAID HE HAD NOTHING TO DO SO HE HAD A REAL OPPORTUNITY TO OBSERVE THE BOMBING AT LILLE-VENDEVILLE.

"I PERSONALLY THINK THAT FIELD WILL NEVER BE USED BY ENEMY FIGHTERS AGAIN," HE COMMENTED.

THOMAS OF PENDLETON, ORE., RADIO OPERATOR ON THE "FRITZ BLITZ," WHO SAID "EVEN IF THE GERMANS BROKE THROUGH, THUNDERBOLTS WERE RIGHT ON THEM BEFORE THEY MADE A PASS." HIS FORMATION ATTACKED BEAUMONT.

LT.FRANK A.WISWALL OF BOONTON, N.J., BOMBARDIER ON THE "SHORT STRIDE, III," SAID HE THOUGHT HIS BOMBS HIT THE BEAUMONT TARGET, ADDING:

"THE DARNED GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE VERY EAGER--THEY CAME THROUGH THEIR OWN FLAK AND OUR P47 ESCORT IN AN EFFORT TO GET US, BUT TO NO AVAIL."

LT.HIRAM C.SKOGMO (3048 NORTH PROSPECT AVE) MILWAUKEE, WIS., PILOT OF THE "SIX NIGHTS IN TELEGMA" COMMENTED, "I'VE NEVER SEEN SO MANY FIGHTERS--ENEMY AS WELL AS OUR OWN. P47S WERE CHASING THEM ALL OVER THE SKY."

MAJ.CHARLES J.CHAMBERLAIN, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, GROUP OPERATIONS OFFICER, WHO FLEW AS A CO-PILOT ON THE RAID ON BEAUMONT SAID:

"I'D LIKE TO THROW A PARTY FOR ALL OF THOSE P47 PILOTS. THEY CAME RIGHT INTO THE FORMATION. THEY WEREN'T WORRYING ABOUT OUR BULLETS. THEY WERE AFTER FW109S. IT WAS THE MOST PERFECT COVER I EVER SAW."

OF A RAID ON BEAUVAIS, LT.WILLIAM O.HUBBA OF CRAWFORDSVILLE,

IND., A FORMER ACTOR FOR WARNER BROTHERS, REPORTED:

"OUR BOMBS LANDED ON FUEL OIL AND AMMUNITION DUMPS. THE SMOKE CAME UP ABOUT 5,000 FEET. I SAW ONE OF GOERINGS SQUADRONS APPROACHING OUR FORMATION, BUT THEY DOVE DOWN AND WENT AROUND AFTER THE P47S STARTED FOR THEM."

LT.ANTHONY C.GOSPODAR OF ELK RIVER, MINN., A NAVIGATOR, REMARKED "WE WALKED ACROSS THE COAST AND DROPPED BOMBS ON AN AIRFIELD.

CREWS OF MEDIUM BOMBERS, WHICH HIT BOULOGNE, SAID THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA WAS BLANKETED UNDER THE SMOKE OF HUNDREDS OF BOMBS.

"DENSE BLACK SMOKE ROSE LIKE A CLOUD," SAID STAFF SGT.MAURICE R.PAGE OF HILLSBORO, N.H., TAILGUNNER ON THE "BUFFALO GAL." HE ADDED:

"I THINK HITLER MUST HAVE HAD A BAD TASTE IN HIS MOUTH THIS MORNING."

A SOUTH BRITISH PORT, SEPT. 9-(AP)-ALLIED AIR AND SEA DOMINATION OF THE INVASION AVENUE TO WESTERN EUROPE WAS DRAMATICALLY ILLUSTRATED TODAY WHEN LARGE CONVOYS OF TRANSPORT-TYPE SHIPS PENETRATED DEEP INTO THE ENGLISH CHANNEL, WITHIN GUN-RANGE OF THE GERMANS' ATLANTIC WALL, WITHOUT CHALLENGE FROM THE NAZIS.

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER FOR TODAY'S INVASION DRESS-REHEARSAL, I WATCHED THE FIRST LARGE GROUP OF SEA GOING TRANSPORTS SAIL UNMOLESTED BEYOND ANY POINT REACHED BY SUCH HEAVY BRITISH MERCHANT SHIPS SINCE THE FALL OF FRANCE.

BRITISH SEAMEN MANNING THEIR GUNS ITCHED FOR A SHOT AT ENEMY SURFACE OR AERIAL CRAFT BUT THEY SAW ONLY SWARMS OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH PLANES SHUTTLING BACK AND FORTH ACROSS THE CHANNEL.

AFTER TURNING HOMEWARD, THESE WESTBOUND CONVOYS MINGLED WITH EASTBOUND CONVOYS IN SUCH PROFUSION THAT THE CHANNEL TRAFFIC WAS COMPARED BY ONE OBSERVER TO "THE STRAND (ENGLAND'S EQUIVALENT OF NEW YORK'S 42ND AND BROADWAY) AT RUSH HOUR."

MIXED WITH THE HEAVY MERCHANT SHIPS AND DESTROYERS WERE SCORES OF TANK-LANDING CRAFT AND OTHER INVASION-TYPE BARGES WHICH RODE THE CHOPPY CHANNEL IN BLAND DEFIANCE OF THE CROSS-CHANNEL ENEMY.

DESTROYER CREWS, WHO IN NIGHT PATROLS HAVE FOUND THE GERMANS RELUCTANT TO CLASH, NEVERTHELESS EXPRESSED GREAT PLEASURE TO FIND THE CHANNEL ALTOGETHER CLEAR OF NAZI PLANES. REPEATEDLY LOOKOUTS CALLED "PLANES APPROACHING" AND GUN CREWS STRIPPED FOR ACTION, ONLY TO HEAR THE ASSURANCE "THEY'RE MORE OF OURS."

CAPTURE OF STALINO AND THE DONETS BASIN, TRIUMPHANTLY ANNOUNCED IN MOSCOW BY THE THUNDER OF A 224-GUN SALUTE, RETURNED TO RUSSIA HER RICHEST INDUSTRIAL REGION. WIDESPREAD DESTRUCTION WAS ASSUMED TO HAVE BEEN INFLICTED ON THE BASIN DURING THE TWO YEARS OF NAZI OCCUPATION, THE BITTER SUMMER CAMPAIGN AND THE GERMAN RETREAT, BUT RESTORATION OF THEIR BADLY-NEEDED COAL DEPOSITS WAS WELCOMED BY THE RUSSIANS.

THE DONETS BASIN VICTORY ALSO BROUGHT FRESH FAME TO TWO OF PREMIER STALIN'S MOST BRILLIANT MILITARY COMMANDERS-GEN. GEODOR TOLBUKHIN, COMMANDING THE SOUTHERN ARMY, AND GEN. RODION Y. MALINOVSKY IN CHARGE OF THE SOUTHWESTERN ARMY. IT WAS TOLBUKHIN WHO CAPTURED TAGANROG, KEY PORT ON THE SEA OF AZOV, WHICH REALLY STARTED THE CLEANUP OF THE DONETS BASIN. TAGANROG WAS THE SOUTHERN ANCHOR OF THE MIUS RIVER LINE AND HAD BEEN A MAIN GERMA BASE SINCE 1941.

MALINOVSKY WAS CITED BY STALIN FOR HIS DEFEAT OF GERMAN GEN. VON MANNSTEIN'S EFFORTS TO RELIEVE THE GERMAN SIXTH ARMY DURING THE BATTLE OF STALINGRAD.

STALINO FELL AFTER FIERCE STREET FIGHTING, THE SOVIET WAR BULLETIN SAID, ALTHOUGH THE NAZIS HAD ANNOUNCED EARLIER THAT THEY HAD ABANDONED THE CITY AND DESTROYED ITS INSTALLATIONS. SOVIET FORCES REPORTED THE CAPTURE OF LARGE STORES OF AMMUNITION AND OTHER IMPORTANT WAR MATERIAL.

NORTH OF STALINO, RUSSIAN CLEANUP COLUMNS ROUTED THE GERMANS FROM KRASNOARMEISOKOYE IN SUCH A HURRY THAT THEY FOUND 19 GERMAN WARPLANES INTACT ON THE TOWN'S AIRPORT. SEVERAL FULLY-LOADED TROOP SUPPLY TRAINS WERE ALSO FOUND ABANDONED.

'DISAPPEAR' (450)

BY EDWIN SHANKE

SEP 10 1943

(ADVANCE)..STOCKHOLM--(AP)--FLYING FORTRESSES DESTROYED THE FOCKE-WULF AIRPLANE FACTORY AT WARNEMUENDE JULY 29 AND MADE THE GERMAN RESIDENTS REALIZE THE FUTILITY OF THEIR OWN DEFENSES, AN EYEWITNESS SAID ON ARRIVAL HERE.

HE TOLD OF TWO GERMAN "DISAPPEARING ACTS." THIS IS HIS ACCOUNT, ONE OF THE FIRST EYEWITNESS STORIES ON HOW THE GERMANS REACT WHEN THE FORTRESSES COME OVER IN DAYLIGHT:

"AIR RAID ALARMS AT WARNEMUENDE SCREECHED AT 9 A.M. ON JULY 29, BUT FEW PAID ANY ATTENTION. IT WAS THE FIRST DAYLIGHT ALARM IN THE BALTIC SEAPORT.

"SOME PAUSED, LOOKED INTO THE BRILLIANT SKY AND SAW NO DANGER. IT'S A SCOUT PLANE, PERHAPS, OUGHT. TT T "SOME PAUSED, LOOKED INTO THE BRILLIANT SKY AND SAW NO DANGER. IT'S A SCOUT PLANE, PERHAPS, THEY THOUGHT. THEN THE ACK-ACK FLASHED INTO ACTION. NONE COULD SEE ENEMY PLANES. THEN, BY WATCHING CLOSELY, TINY SPECKS COULD BE SPOTTED MOVING ACROSS THE SKY, BUT AT SUCH AN ALTITUDE THEY WERE ABOVE THE PUFFS OF THE EXPLODING ACK-ACK.

"THEN THERE WAS A CRASH AND THE EARTH TREMBLED. THE FLYING FORTRESSES HAD DROPPED A LOAD OF EXPLOSIVES. SLOWLY THEY TURNED. I COULD COUNT 17. ACROSS THE WAY I COULD SEE THE ARADO PLANT WHICH MAKES FOCKE-WULF PLANES. I KNEW THAT PLANT LIKE AN APPLE TREE IN MY OWN BACK YARD.

"THERE WAS ANOTHER CRASH. THE ARADO PLANT SIMPLY WASN'T THERE

30.24- 8245

ANY LONGER. IT HAD DISAPPEARED WITH THE EXCEPTION OF A SINGLE WORKSHOP. OTHER BOMBS SANK THREE SMALL SHIPS IN PORT AND A MINE LAYER LOADING MINES BLEW SKY HIGH. THE EFFECT ON THE PEOPLE WAS ASTONISHING. THEY DROPPED TENSED ARMS LIMPLY TO THEIR SIDES, SHOOK THEIR HEADS UNBELIEVINGLY AND DECLARED, 'IF THAT CAN HAPPEN IN BROAD DAYLIGHT, OUR SITUATION MUST REALLY BE BAD.'

"NO FIGHTERS COULD BE SEEN OVER WARNEMUENDE TO DRIVE OFF THE RAIDERS. THE GERMANS GENERALLY EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT 'THOSE AMERICAN PLANES MUST BE TOO HEAVILY ARMED FOR OUR FIGHTERS TO CHALLENGE.'

"THAT LESSON IN DEADLY ACCURATE BOMBING WAS WELL LEARNED BY THE GERMANS. THEY SCRAMBLE FOR SHELTERS NOW, SOMETHING THEY DIDN'T DO AT FIRST, AND IN THEIR HOMES SUIT CASES, LABELED WITH FAMILY NAMES AND CONTAINING ESSENTIALS, STAND READY TO BE SNATCHED UP FOR THE RACE TO SAFETY."

THIS SAME SOURCE TOLD OF ANOTHER TYPE OF DISAPPEARING ACT WHICH REFLECTS THE SQUEEZE FOR MANPOWER IN GERMANY AND THE LENGTHS TO WHICH THE GERMAN ARMY IS GOING IN ORDER TO KEEP ITS RANKS FILLED.

IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, THERE WAS ONE GERMAN ARMY GUARD FOR EVERY 10 PRISONERS OF WAR AT WORK. LATER THERE WAS ONE FOR 50, THEN ONE FOR 100.

AS HITLER'S NEED FOR CANNON FODDER GREW GREATER, THE PROGRESSION WAS STEPPED UP UNTIL TODAY THERE IS ONE GUARD FOR EVERY 200 PRISONERS OF WAR.

THE SAME TREND WAS NOTED IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF AN AIRFIELD AT WARNEMUENDE. SIXTY-FIVE PER CENT OF THE WORKERS THERE NOW ARE FOREIGNERS WHO HAVE TAKEN THE PLACE OF GERMANS, AND OF THE ORIGINAL SIX ENGINEERS AND 12 FOREMEN SUPERVISING THE JOB, THERE IS NOW ONE MILITARY ENGINEER AND ONE CIVILIAN TECHNICIAN.

IT IS TAKEN FOR GRANTED THAT THE SAME TREND OF REPLACING GERMANS WITH FOREIGNERS IS RATHER GENERAL THROUGHOUT GERMANY AS THE SHORTAGE OF MEN GROWS MORE AND MORE ACUTE.

INSTRUCTIONS, MEANTIME WERE ISSUED, TO GIVE RUSSIAN PRISONERS OF WAR WORKING IN GERMANY BETTER TREATMENT AND BETTER FOOD BECAUSE THEY HAVE BEEN FLEEING EAST, NOT ONLY CAUSING GAPS IN THE WORK RANKS, BUT ALSO ORGANIZING OR JOINING GUERRILLA BANDS PREYING ON GERMAN MILITARY UNITS ESPECIALLY IN POLAND.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, SEPT. 9-(AP)-THE BERN NEWSPAPER DER BUND SAID TODAY THE NAZI-SPONSORED "NATIONAL FASCIST GOVERNMENT" IN MUNICH WAS STRIVING TO PERSUADE 250,000 ITALIAN WORKERS IN GERMANY TO JOIN A BLACKSHIRT "ARMY OF LIBERATION" TO FIGHT ALONGSIDE THE GERMANS.

ROBERTO FARINACCI, FORMER FASCIST PARTY SECRETARY, WAS IDENTIFIED AS THE HEAD OF THIS VERSION OF THE GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE BY DER BUND'S DISPATCH, FROM THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER TOWN OF CHIASSO.

THERE WERE CONFLICTING REPORTS AT THE FRONTIER ON THE MILITARY SITUATION. SOME STATED THAT GENOA WAS FIRMLY IN GERMAN HANDS; OTHERS THAT THE ITALIANS WERE DISARMING THE GERMANS IN CENTRAL AND NORTHERN ITALY. MOST REPORTS AGREED THAT MILAN AND TURIN WERE FIRMLY HELD

BY THE ITALIANS, BUT ARMED CLASHES WERE EXPECTED.

THE MUNICH FASCIST "GOVERNMENT" WAS REPORTED SENDING AGENTS THROUGHOUT NORTHERN ITALY TO BRIBE AND THREATEN THE CIVILIAN POPULATION AND ITALIAN TROOPS IN AN ATTEMPT TO OBTAIN FORCES FOR A GERMAN-LED MARCH AGAINST THE ALLIES.

THE NATIONAL UNION OF ITALIAN WORKERS WAS REPORTED TO HAVE ISSUED A PROCLAMATION IN ITALY DECLARING THAT: "WITH THE CONCLUSION OF THE ARMISTICE OUR GREATEST CLAIM IS REALIZED. WE SHARE YOUR JOY. WORK MUST BE CONTINUED IN AN ORDERLY FASHION. WE UNITE AGAINST ALL WHO HAVE FOOLISH ILLUSIONS TO RESTORE THE IMPOSSIBLE."

(BERLIN RADIO, QUOTING A DISPATCH FROM BERN, SAID MORE THAN 2,000 TALIAN SOLDIERS HAD BEEN INTERNED IN SWITZERLAND AFTER FLEEING 'ROM ITALY.)

LISBON, SEPT. 9-(AP)-THE ROME RADIO SAID TODAY THAT REPRESENTATIVES OF SIX ITALIAN POLITICAL GROUPS, INCLUDING THE CATHOLIC ACTION AND THE COMMUNIST PARTIES, HAD ISSUED A MANIFESTO PROMISING TO DEFEND ITALY AND WORK FOR THE RE-CONQUEST OF FULL LIBERTY.

SEP 10 1943

THE REPORT SAID REPRESENTATIVES OF THE PARTIES IN ROME CALLED ON LOCAL AUTHORITIES AND THEN ANNOUNCED THAT THE ARMISTICE "WAS THE FIRST STEP TOWARDS RESTORATION OF THE MOTHER COUNTRY."

"ITALIANS, NOW SIDE BY SIDE WITH THEIR BROTHERS IN ARMS, WILL DEFEND THE MOTHER COUNTRY WITH DECISION AND ENTHUSIASM IN THE IDEAL OF LIBERTY," IT WAS SAID. "WE SHALL WORK TO RE-CONQUER FULL LIBERTY AND HELP SAVE THE WORLD."

SEP 10 1943

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS ORIGINATING FROM ITALIANS SAID ALLIED LANDINGS HAD BEEN MADE NOT ONLY AT NAPLES, BUT ALSO AT OSTIA, PORT OF ROME.

EYEWITNESS REPORTS FROM ITALY SAID THE ITALIAN ARMY, AFTER A SWIFT SERIES OF MEETINGS OF ITS LEADERS WITH POLITICAL AND LABOR LEADERS, WAS IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF BOTH TURIN AND MILAN, VITAL NORTHERN INDUSTRIAL CITIES, AND THEIR OUTLYING AIRPORTS.

TROOPS WERE RUSHED TO THE CHIEF AIRPORTS AROUND MILAN YESTERDAY TO PREVENT THEIR SEIZURE BY THE GERMANS.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS SAID BATTLES BETWEEN GERMANS AND ITALIANS TOOK PLACE THROUGHOUT THE PO REGION.

A STEFANI, ITALIAN NEWS AGENCY, REPORT SAID THE ITALIAN PRESS WAS UNANIMOUS IN URGING ITALIANS TO FOLLOW THE ORDERS OF PREMIER MARSHAL BADOGLIO TO CEASE RESISTANCE TO THE ALLIES.

BADOGLIO'S DECISION TO TAKE ITALY OUT OF THE WAR WAS SAID BY EYE-WITNESSES TO HAVE BEEN RECEIVED IN MILAN AND TURIN WITH WILD ENTHUSIASM

OTHER REPORTS ORIGINATING FROM ITALIANS SAID ADDITIONAL ALLIED LANDINGS HAD BEEN MADE IN SARDINIA, WHILE ITALIAN FORCES IN CORSICA WERE EXPECTING ALLIED PLANES TO MAKE AT LEAST TOKEN"

WERE EXPECTING ALLIED PLANES TO MAKE AT LEAST "TOKEN" LANDINGS AT THE AIRFIELDS THERE. THESE FIELDS WERE SAID TO BE COMPLETELY IN ITALIAN POSSESSION.

THE ITALIAN EMBASSY IN MADRID INDICATED CLEARLY THAT THE ROBERTO FARINACCI PUPPET REGIME SET UP BY GERMANY WOULD BE GIVEN LITTLE SUPPORT BY ITALIANS.

AN EMBASSY SPOKESMAN SAID THE EMBASSY HERE REMAINED UNDER ORDERS OF THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT AND HAD NO COMMUNICATION WITH FARINACCI.

ONE CURIOUS DEVELOPMENT WAS THE REACTION OF THE CROATS HERE. A CROAT DIPLOMAT TOLD A FRIEND THAT UNDER PRESENT CIRCUMSTANCES THE NAZI PUPPET REGIMES OF CROATIA AND YUGOSLAVIA WOULD "FALL TO PIECES AT THE FIRST NEWS OF AN ALLIED LANDING IN THE BALKANS."

ANTE PAVELIC, THE PUPPET PREMIER OF CROATIA, WAS REPORTED PACKING HIS BAGS READY TO LEAVE THE KINGLESS KINGDOM.

MEDICAL ORDERLIES WHO HAD REFUSED TO KEEP FORBES UNDER STRICT GUARD DESPITE GERMAN PROTESTS STOOD GLEEFULLY BY HIS SIDE TO SEE THE BIGGEST EVENT OF VIBO VALENTIA'S MODERN HISTORY.

"I AM LUCKY TO BE ALIVE," THE BLOND, BLUE-EYED FLIER SAID. "FIVE DAYS IN THE DRINK WAS AN AWFULLY LONG TIME. AND NOW I'M LUCKIER STILL TO BE AN EX-PRISONER OF WAR."

N FORBES SAID THAT SHELLS FROM THE GROUND BATTERIES HAD STRUCK HIS A-36 AS HE DIVED ON A RAILWAY TARGET NEAR CATANZARO AUG. 18.

"I NURSED THE OLD CRATE ALONG UNTIL WE GOT OFF THE WEST COAST ABOUT 10 MILES AND THEN I SIMPLY HAD TO BAIL OUT," HE RELATED. "I HAD A RUBBER DINGHY AND DRIFTED ABOUT IN IT ALL DAY AND ALL NIGHT, GETTING THIRSTIER AND HUNGRIER, FOR I HAD NO FOOD NOR WATER. I TRIED PADDLING IN THE DIRECTION OF LAND BUT COULDN'T MAKA ANY HEADWAY. THE CURRENT WAS QUITE SWIFT, GOING NORTH BY DAY AND SOUTH BY NIGHT--BUT NEVER TOWARDS SHORE.

"THE SECOND DAY, UNDER THE BOILING SUN, I THOUGHT I WOULD GO CRA FROM THIRST.

"I WAS GETTING NOWHERE IN THE DINGHY AND MY TONGUE WAS SWELLIN I DECIDED IT WAS BETTER TO LEAVE THE DINGHY AND FLOAT AROUND IN M 'MAE WEST' AND FIGURE ON ABSORBING ENOUGH WATER THROUGH MY SKIN TO KEEP ALIVE. IT WORKED. THE THIRD AND FOURTH DAYS WENT BY AND I I MY BRAIN GETTING HAZIER AND THE SORES FROM THE SUN AND SALT WATER MY BODY WERE EXTREMELY PAINFUL.

"I FINALLY GOT DELIRIOUS AND WASN'T SURE OF THE TIME, BUT I THINK IT WAS THE FIFTH DAY THAT I THREW AWAY THE 'MAE WEST' AND STARTED TO SWIM TOWARDS THE LAND THAT I COULDN'T REACH EITHER IN THE DINGHY OR THE BOBBING LIFE JACKET. I SWAM AND SWAM--THROUGH THE MORNING AND INTO LATE AFTERNOON AND I WAS AMAZED THAT I HAD ANY STRENGTH LEFT

IN MY ARMS. I WAS PRETTY NEAR SHORE--PERHAPS A QUARTER OF A MILE--AND ABOUT A GONER WHEN TWO OLD ITALIAN FISHERMEN PICKED ME UP IN THEIR ROWBOAT. I LOST CONSCIOUSNESS AND WOKE UP IN A NICE HOSPITAL HERE.

"THERE WAS NOTHING MUCH WRONG WITH ME EXCEPT EXHAUSTION AND THE SKIN SORES AND THE ITALIANS WERE KIND TO ME, AS IF I HAD BEEN THEIR BROTHER. THEY NEVER PUT A GUARD OVER ME AND AS SOON AS I COULD WALK ABOUT I COULD AMBLE ABOUT THE NEIGHBORHOOD AS MUCH AS I PLEASED. THE GERMANS HAD BEEN RETREATING THROUGH HERE EVER SINCE THE FIRST DAY OF TH INVASION BUT TODAY THEY REALLY PUT ON THE STEAM.

"LOTS OF ITALIANS TOLD ME THEY WANTED TO FIGHT ON MY SIDE AGAINST THE GERMANS. I AM SURE THEY MEANT IT, TOO. I HAVE BEEN VERY WELL TREATED. ABOUT THE ONLY THING I WOULD LIKE RIGHT NOW IS AN AMERICAN CIGARET."

FORBES' HOSPITAL MATES WERE TWO BRITISH PRISONERS--PARATROOPER ALAN SEIARMAN, 21, WHO WAS CAPTURED IN SICILY SEVEN WEEKS AGO; AND INFANTRYMAN EDWARD MCBRIDE, WHO WAS ALSO CAPTURED IN SICILY, DURING THE FIGHTING ON CATANIA PLAIN.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: EDWARD KENNEDY, WHO FILED THE FOLLOWING DESCRIPTIVE STORY ON NAPLES FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, WAS A MEMBER OF THE STAFF IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU IN ROME AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR.)

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT. 9-(AP)-THE NAPLES AREA, WHICH TODAY BECAME A NEW BATTLEFIELD ON THE ITALIAN PENINSULA, HAS ALREADY BEEN HARD HIT BY MANY AIR RAIDS WHICH HAVE LAID WASTE THE CITY'S WATERFRONT, RAZED COUNTLESS BUILDINGS AND SMASHED UP COMMUNICATIONS, ESPECIALLY RAILROAD INSTALLATIONS.

IN THE PAST TWO WEEKS ALONE THERE HAVE BEEN 54 RAIDS ON THE NAPLES REGION AS A SOFTENING-UP PROCESS FOR THE ALLIED LANDINGS. FLYING FORTRESSES AND AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS HAVE WROUGHT HAVOC BY DAY AND THE BRITISH WELLINGTONS HAVE ATTACKED BY NIGHT.

CIVILIANS NOT ENGAGED IN VITAL WORK WERE ORDERED TO ABANDON THE CITY WEEKS AGO AND A LARGE PART OF NAPLES' TEEMING POPULATION OF 1,000,000 HAS TAKEN TO THE HILLS OR GONE TO LIVE WITH RELATIVES IN SMALLER TOWNS.

NAPLES IS THE METROPOLIS OF SOUTH CENTRAL ITALY AND THE COUNTRY'S SECOND LARGEST PORT. ITS TONNAGE IN NORMAL TIMES IS EXCEEDED ONLY BY THAT OF GENOA, AND IT IS AN IMPORTANT RAILROAD CENTER.

WHILE ITS INDUSTRIES DO NOT COMPARE WITH THOSE OF MILAN AND TURIN, THERE HAS BEEN A STEADY INCREASE IN INDUSTRIALIZATION IN RECENT YEARS AND IT IS AN IMPORTANT CANNING CENTER.

THE PROVINCE OF NAPLES HAS OVER TWO MILLION POPULATION AND IS NORMALLY ONE OF THE MOST DENSELY POPULATED AREAS OF THE WORLD.

ON THE MAINLAND TO THE EAST OF THE CITY STANDS VESUVIUS, USUALLY EMITTING STEAM. THE PANORAMA CHANGES ALMOST WITH EVERY STEP TAKEN AS ONE WALKS ALONG THE NAPLES WATERFRONT.

AT THE WATER'S EDGE ARE MANY RESTAURANTS FAMOUS FOR BOTH SPAGHETTI AND MUSIC--AT LEAST THEY WERE IN PEACE TIME. THEY LOOK OUT ON THE CASTLE OF THE AGE-OLD FORTRESS BUILT ON A ROCK IN THE HARBOR.

RESIDENTS OF NAPLES ARE MOSTLY POOR PEOPLE AND LIVING STANDARDS ARE LOW, BUT THEY ARE CAREFREE AND HAPPY AND MUSICAL. NEAPOLITAN FOLK SONGS ARE KNOWN THE WORLD OVER. IN NORMAL TIMES ONE RARELY WALKED FAR IN NAPLES WITHOUT HEARING THE STRUMMING OF A MANDOLIN AND A BURST OF SONG. ITINERANT MUSICIANS WENT IN AND OUT OF RESTAURANTS PASSING THE HAT AFTER THEIR PERFORMANCES.

NAPLES NEVER TOOK TO FASCISM LIKE THE NORTHERN ITALIAN CITIES, BUT NEAPOLITANS LIKE CELEBRATIONS AND WHEN THE DUCE APPEARED--HE HAD A BALCONY IN NAPLES AS WELL AS ROME--THEY USUALLY GAVE HIM A NOISY WELCOME.

NEAPOLITANS ALSO LIKED FIREWORKS AND HAD PLENTY OF THEM ON THEIR FAVORITE SAINTS' DAYS AND ON OTHER FESTIVE OCCASIONS. AFTER THE BOMBING THEY HAVE RECEIVED THEY MAY HAVE LOST THEIR TASTE FOR THEM.

ALGIERS, SEPT.9-(AP)-THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION ODAY INFORMED WASHINGTON, LONDON AND MOSCOW IT WISHED TO PARTICIPATE N THE NEGOTIATIONS REGARDING THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE TO PROTECT THE ITAL INTERESTS OF FRANCE.

APPARENTLY SLIGHTED BY THE OFFICIAL STATEMENT WHICH SAID THE UNITED STATES, BRITISH AND RUSSIAN GOVERNMENTS HAD APPROVED GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER'S ARMISTICE TERMS, THE COMMITTEE SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT THE ARMIES OF FRANCE HAD "GLORIOUSLY CONTRIBUTED" TO THE CAPITULATION OF ITALY.

"THESE EFFORTS AND SACRIFICES WILL BE CONTINUED AND EXPANDED UNTIL TOTAL VICTORY IS ACHIEVED OVER ALL THE AXIS POWERS," THE COMMITTEE STATEMENT SAID. "THE COMMITTEE HAS ALREADY MADE KNOWN TO THE GOVERNMENTS OF LONDON, WASHINGTON AND MOSCOW THE POSITION OF FRANCE AS TO THE TERMS OF THE ARMISTICE WHILE IT WAS IN PREPARATION. IT HAS DECIDED TO MAKE CLEAR AGAIN TO THESE GOVERNMENTS AS WELL AS TO OTHER STATES AT WAR WITH ITALY THE INDISPENSABLE CONDITIONS REGARDING THE VITAL INTERESTS OF THE FRENCH HOMELAND AND EMPIRE INTERESTS WHICH IMPLY FRENCH PARTICIPATION IN ALL NEGOTIATIONS CONCERNING ITALY."

all told, four big waves of liberators dropped more than 100,000 pounds of bombs on japanese installations in rang on.

in a plane piloted by lt. james barton, 22, of binghamton, n.y., whose wife is a student at kent state university in ohio, i saw explosives aimed by bombardier lt. tanley hood, 23, of colville, wash., crash into and around a 400-foot freighter anchored in the rangoon river.

lt. hood, whose relatives live at seven, w. ~~##~~ 40th way, kansas city, scored two direct hits just aft of midship. i saw two great circular flashes ~~of~~ flame, and then angry black clouds of smoke swirled skyward as hood's bombs dug deeply into the vessel.

other planes in our wave led by lt. ~~##~~ gordon wilson, 26, of covington, ky., scored at least four more hits on the same vessel in addition to sinking another craft. another freighter cargo vessel was hit by other waves.

zeros jumped us right after we had made the bombing run. the next 50 minutes seemed like 50 years.

it was the first time in nine months of combat flying that i'd seen an enemy aircraft, and i hope i never see them again.

the horrible suspense while the japanese streaked at us with cannons and machineguns blazing turned to indescribable relief when the bullets missed us, and left me shaking like a leaf. the notes i wrote then were unreadable later.

the japanese came from all directions, sometimes two or three at a time. their aim was bad, otherwise i might not be writing this.

i was leaning over the shoulder of co-pilot, lt.-col. bertram harrison, 26, of lees burg, va., when a piece of ack shattered the windshield in front of our faces, showering us with glass. none of us was injured but all of us were unnerved.

"i thought they got me," col. harrison said. "that was too close for comfort."

it was the second raid in three days for harrison who has just arrived from the states. on his first raid over the andaman islands he had returned on three engines.

"i guess i must be bad luck," said harrison, a west pointer whose wife and year-old daughter are living at san angelo, tex.

the japanese made pass after pass until we were far out over the bay of bengal, but our gunners expertly kept them 75 or more yards away.

other crew members were lt. james alexander, 23, of austin tex., the navigator; sgt. william hays, 20, of bloomington, ind.; sgt. henry speik, 24, of faucett, mo.; sgt. chester perigo, 21, of sperry, okla; sgt. robert stantorf, 28, of conrad, mont.; and sgt. verl frost, 23, of wasco, calif.

after the battle we were ankle deep in shells and the plane was filled with acrid smoke.

barton pointed to a shot-up plane off our left wing piloted by lt. william larking, 22, of east rutherford, n.j.

"i guess we were pretty lucky, at that," barton said after we landed.

back at the base, alexander exclaimed:

"thank god we are able to put our feet on the ground." #

(WITH PACIFIC WAR)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SEPT.9-(AP)-REPORTS REACHING HEADQUARTERS FROM THE AREA WHERE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN PARATROOPERS LANDED IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY SEPTEMBER 5 REVEAL AMAZING FORTITUDE AMONG THE UNITED STATES WOUNDED AND ASTONISHING SPEED IN PLACING THE AUSTRALIAN ARTILLERY IN FIRE.

ALTHOUGH THE LANDING WAS UNOPPOSED, THERE WERE A FEW CASUALTIES. THESE WERE BROUGHT TO THE EVACUATION CENTER BY OLD, EXPERIENCED AUSTRALIANS OF THE NEW GUINEA GOVERNMENTAL FORCE KNOWN AS "THE AUSTRALIAN-NEW GUINEA ADMINISTRATIVE UNIT," COMMONLY CALLED THE "ANGAU."

THE AUSTRALIANS LANDED SUNDAY AND LESS THAN THREE HOURS LATER THEIR GUNS WERE READY TO FIRE. THE ARTILLERY WAS DISMANTLED IN PIECES WEIGHING FROM 130 TO 400 POUNDS AND SCATTERED OVER A MILE AREA IN DEEP GRASS.

THE AUSTRALIANS WERE HIGHLY PLEASED WITH THE TRANSPORT PILOTS' ACCURACY IN DROPPING AMMUNITION. THE SHELL CASES WERE PLACED WITHIN 50 YARDS OF THE GUN POSITIONS.

ON MONDAY, THE EXPERIENCED AUSTRALIANS SET OFF WITH 60 NATIVES TO FIND CASUALTIES REPORTED NEAR THE NADZAB-LAE ROAD.

THEY RETURNED LATE THAT NIGHT WITH SIX PARATROOPERS IN JUNGLE STRETCHERS CARRIED ON THE SHOULDERS OF NEW GUINEA NATIVES.

"I'M VERY PROUD TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH SUCH MEN -- THEY'RE REALLY SPLENDID BEYOND WORDS," WERE THE FIRST WORDS THE ANGAU SERGEANT SAID UPON ENTERING CAMP WITH THE WOUNDED.

"ALWAYS THEY WOULD GREET US WITH A SMILE. NEVER ONCE DID I HEAR A MOAN OR A WHISPER ALTHOUGH THEY'D BEEN LYING ALL ONE DAY AND ONE NIGHT IN THE JUNGLE."

HE EXPRESSED AMAZEMENT AT THE COURAGE OF ONE PARATROOPER. THE MAN HAD FALLEN AWKWARDLY AND HAD BADLY SPLINTERED THE BONE IN THE LOWER PART OF ONE LEG.

UNDATED INVASION

SEP 10 1943

AMERICAN TROOPS WERE FIGHTING THE GERMANS AGAIN ON THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE TODAY, JUST 25 YEARS AFTER THE BLOODILY DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT OF UNITED STATES AND GERMAN FORCES ON THE MEUSE-ARGONNE FRONT IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

THE BATTLES IN ITALY TODAY WERE PREPARED BY WEEKS AND MONTHS OF AERIAL BOMBARDMENT AND FIGHTING IN OUTPOSTS TO THE SOUTH. PERHAPS THESE FIGHTS WILL LEAD INTO FRANCE AND TO THE EVENTUAL LIBERATION OF THAT COUNTRY, AS THE BATTLES A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO DID.

IN THE BITTERLY-CONTESTED ENGAGEMENT WHICH ENDED WITH THE ARMISTICE OF NOV. 11, 1918, THE AMERICANS AND THEIR FRENCH ALLIES SWEPT OVER GERMAN DEFENSES ALONG THE MEUSE RIVER AND IN THE ARGONNE FOREST AND PUT 62 ENEMY DIVISIONS TO FLIGHT.

THE ACTUAL OPERATION WHICH ENDED THE FIGHTING WAS THE CROSSING OF THE MEUSE RIVER NEAR STENAY, IN HEAVILY WOODED AND RUGGED TERRAIN, TO HILL POSITIONS OVERLOOKING THE GERMAN SUPPLY LINE ON THE CHIERS RIVER BETWEEN SEDAN AND CARIGNAN.

THEN, THE GERMAN FIFTH ARMY WAS SAVED FROM DESTRUCTION ONLY BY THE ARMISTICE. AND THE AMERICANS DEMONSTRATED, UNDER GENERAL JOHN J. PERSHING'S LEADERSHIP, THAT THEIR THEORY OF OPEN WARFARE, WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON OFFENSIVE ACTION AND THE VALUE OF THE RIFLE AND THE BAYONET, WAS THE KEY TO VICTORY.

THE AMERICANS HAD BEEN IN OFFENSIVE ACTION ALMOST CONTINUOUSLY SINCE MAY 28, WHEN THE INFANTRY OF THE FIRST DIVISION BASED IN THE LITTLE VILLAGE OF CANTIGNY, NEAR MONTDIDIER, REDUCED A GERMAN SALIENT IN 45 MINUTES.

IN THE LAST DAYS OF MAY AND THE FIRST PART OF JUNE THE SECOND AND THIRD AMERICAN DIVISIONS SUCCESSFULLY BATTLED ALONGSIDE THE HARD-PRESSED FRENCH DEFENDERS AT CHATEAU THIERRY TO HALT THE GERMAN MARNE OFFENSIVE WHICH WAS THREATENING TO ROLL ON TOWARD PARIS AS FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL'S ARMORED FORCES ONCE ENDANGERED THE VALLEY OF THE NILE.

A UNITED STATES MACHINE-GUN BATTALION DEFENDED THE MARNE RIVER CROSSING WHILE, WEST OF THE TOWN, THE GERMAN ATTACK IN BELLEAU WOOD WAS ABSORBED BY THE AMERICAN SECOND DIVISION.

THE FINAL PHASE OF THE GREAT ALLIED OFFENSIVE BEGAN FOR THE AMERICANS AT DAWN ON SEPT. 18, 1918, WHEN THE FIRST, FOURTH AND FIFTH ARMY CORPS ATTACKED IN THE BATTLE OF ST.MIHIEL. IN TWO DAYS THE AMERICANS, TOGETHER WITH SEVERAL FRENCH DIVISIONS, OVERRAN MOST OF A SALIENT THE GERMANS HAD HELD FOR FOUR YEARS.

FROM THERE THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY MOVED TO THE MEUSE-ARGONNE SECTOR, WHERE THE BIGGEST AMERICAN OFFENSIVE WAS LAUNCHED ON SEPT. 26. LESS THAN SIX WEEKS LATER THE AMERICANS WERE AT SEDAN AND ASTRIDE OF THE MEUSE AND THE GERMANS HAD CAPITULATED.

IN WORLD WAR 1, THE ALLIES AND THE GERMANS WERE FIGHTING A WAR OF STRONGLY FORTIFIED POSITIONS, OF HEAVY ARTILLERY PREPARATION PRIOR TO MASS TROOP ATTACKS AND WITH LITTLE MECHANIZED EQUIPMENT AS COMPARED WITH PRESENT-DAY OPERATIONS.

ONCE-BEAUTIFUL, NOW BOMB-SCARRED NAPLES, INTO WHOSE ENVIRONS ALLIED FORCES HAVE LUNGED IN THEIR DRIVE TO ENSNARE THE GERMANS IN SOUTHERN ITALY, WAS ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST POPULAR VACATION RESORTS IN PEACETIME.

RISING LIKE A GREAT AMPHITHEATER AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF HILLS AND BRIGHTENED AT NIGHT BY THE GLOW OF VESUVIUS BEHIND IT, NAPLES HAD PRESENTED A SCENE OF UNFORGETTABLE BEAUTY--HEIGHTENED BY THE BLUE WATERS OF THE BAY OF NAPLES AND THE NEARBY ROMANTIC ISLE OF CAPRI.

WHEN WAR CAME, THE CITY'S STRATEGIC PLACE ON THE SHIN OF THE ITALIAN BOOT WAS REALIZED IMMEDIATELY, AND SOON THE PORT BECAME A MAJOR POINT OF DEPARTURE FOR GERMAN AND ITALIAN CONVOYS SAILING TO LIBYA.

NAPLES NORMALLY HANDLED MORE TONNAGE THAN ANY OTHER ITALIAN PORT. IT WAS VITAL TO ITALY AS A COMMUNICATIONS CENTER.

SITUATED ON THE NORTHERN SHORE OF THE BAY, THE CITY IS 135 MILES SOUTH OF ROME BY RAIL, 100 MILES BY AIR.

IN 1940, WHEN THE BRITISH BEGAN TO BOMB NAPLES, THE POPULATION WAS 875,000. WHEN THE BOMBS FELL, THE PEOPLE FOUND PROTECTION IN TUNNELS IN THE SURROUNDING HILLS. THERE ARE FEW UNDERGROUND TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES.

ONLY RECENTLY HAD THIS COMMERCIAL CENTER TURNED TO INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT, INDUSTRIES BEING ATTRACTED BY ITS ABUNDANCE OF WATER POWER. THE CITY HAD A MOTOR WORKS AND HAD PROCESSED FOOD PRODUCTS TO A LARGE EXTENT. ITS MAIN INDUSTRY, OF COURSE, HAD BEEN THE TOURIST TRADE.

NAPLES IS DIVIDED INTO TWO CRESCENTS BY A RIDGE RUNNING SOUTH. THE WESTERN CRESCENT FORMS THE FASHIONABLE DISTRICT. THE EASTERN CRESCENT IS THE LARGER AND OLDER PART.

THE 4,000-FOOT VESUVIUS RISES SOME 30 MILES EAST OF NAPLES. THE VOLCANO HAS NOT ERUPTED SINCE 1906. IN 79 A.D. IT HAD BURIED THE TOWNS OF POMPEII AND HERCULANEUM.

THE VOLCANO HAD PLAYED ITS PART IN THE WAR--ITS TIP SERVING AS A BEACON FOR ALLIED PILOTS COMING IN TO BOMB NAPLES. AND THE BOMBINGS HAVE BEEN FREQUENT--BOTH BY THE RAF AND U.S. WARPLANES.

Roosevelt and Churchill Call on Italy to Fight; Nazis Seize Rome, British Occupy Taranto

SEP 11 1943

'STRIKE HARD AND STRIKE HOME,' SAYS MESSAGE TO BADOGLIO AND HIS PEOPLE

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Saturday, Sept. 11 — President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill made a joint appeal to the Italian people tonight to "strike hard and strike home" at the Germans on Italian soil.

The appeal was addressed in a message to Marshal Pietro Badoglio and "to the people of Italy."

The two United Nations leaders said that "now is the time for every Italian to strike his blow. The liberating armies of the Western World are coming to your rescue."

Text Of Message

The text of the message released here by the White House:

"It has fallen to you in the hour of your country's agony to take the first decisive steps to win peace and freedom for the Italian people and to win back for Italy an honorable place in the civilization of Europe.

"You have already freed your country from Fascist servitude. There remains the even more important task of clearing the Italian soil from the German invaders.

"Hitler, through his accomplice, Mussolini, has brought Italy to the verge of ruin. He has driven the Italians into disastrous campaigns in the sands of Egypt and the snows of Russia. The Germans have always deserted the Italian troops on the battlefield, sacrificing them contemptuously in order to cover their own retreats. Now Hitler threatens to subject you to all the cruelties he is perpetrating in so many lands.

"Now Is The Time"

"Now is the time for every Italian to strike his blow. The liberating armies of the Western World are coming to your rescue. We have very strong forces and are entering at many points. The German terror in Italy will not last long. They will be extirpated from your land and you, by helping in this great surge of liberation, will place yourselves once more among the true and long-proved friends of your country from whom you have been so wrongfully estranged.

"Take every chance you can. Strike hard and strike home. Have faith in your future. All will come well. March forward with your American and British friends in the great world movement toward freedom, justice and peace."

British Reported At Ostia, Port City

Germans Also Bomb Capital Although Declared Open Area—Badoglio Said to Have Fled—Nazis Surround Several Cities in North—Asume Protection of Vatican.

By Edward D. Ball

LONDON, Sept. 10. (AP)—German troops shelled and seized Rome, its vital railway system and airfield belt today, the Berlin radio announced, in a frenzied effort to plug holes in an Axis rampart shattered by the Allied invasion of Italy.

Other important Italian cities, airfields, ports and warships were seized amid indications that the desperate enemy plans to install another puppet Fascist regime in that chaotic land.

Shelling Began Early In Morning

The Germans began shelling the southern outskirts of Rome at 6 a. m., Rome time, causing Romans to believe the liberating Allied armies were fighting the Germans. But Allied headquarter's dispatches said there was no indication of Allied moves in the Rome area.

A dispatch from the Swiss frontier to the Zurich newspaper Die Tat, said, however, that it had been learned from Rome that British troops had landed at Ostia, port for the city of Rome, and were now fighting German divisions before the Italian capital.

The Germans apparently first had bombed the capital, which Marshal Pietro Badoglio recently declared an open city, during the night. A Rome broadcast said unidentified planes caused damage and casualties in the San Lorenzo area—the same sector which the Allied previously had attacked.

Assume Protection Of Vatican

The Germans, under Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesserling, commander of "southern Italy," also have "assumed protection of Vatican City," said the Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

Berlin acknowledged that some Italian units "went over to the American troops which landed in the gulf of Salerno, and participated in the fighting against German formations" based in the Naples area 115 miles below Rome.

The Germans said the Italian commander in Rome capitulated during the afternoon, and before going off the air the Italian News Agency Stefani said the Germans had occupied strategic areas in and around Rome.

British Take Taranto

The great naval base of Taranto on the Italian heel was in British hands tonight after a bold oversea thrust by the Royal Navy, and the American Fifth Army was driving inland in a vast envelopment of the Naples area after loosening the German grip by shattering five strong counterattacks.

Marshal Badoglio, who had sought unsuccessfully to get the Germans to move their troops northward to the Po river, apparently fled Rome to escape capture. A Rome report said he was out of the city on a "military inspection."

Badoglio had incurred Germany's concentrated wrath when he announced Italy's unconditional surrender to the Allies Wednesday.

He left Marshal Pietro Caviglia in charge when he left the capital, and apparently it was Caviglia whom the Germans said was forced to capitulate this afternoon after the dawn attack.

Germans Claim Full Surrender

The Germans declared that all the Italian army had surrendered, then belied their own assertions with broadcasts in which it was said some Italian units had joined the Allies, while "isolated fighting" between Italians and Germans continued in various sectors of the country.

"Thus a treason greater and more cunning than any which can be found only with difficulty in history has reflected on the traitors themselves," Berlin said in announcing Rome's capitulation.

"The Italian armed forces exist no longer. But what will continue to exist for eternity will be the disdain of the world towards the traitors."

The whereabouts of King Vittorio Emanuele III and other members of the royal family was not learned immediately. German broadcasts insisted the king had abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Umberto, and other reports said some members of the family had fled to Switzerland.

But Stefani, in a broadcast made before the announced German capture of Rome, denied that the king had abdicated, adding that the king was "doing his utmost to save Italy from further suffering."

Reports from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Germans and their newly-fostered Fascist regime apparently would go through the motions of "deposing" the king, whom Berlin repeatedly has branded a "traitor" since Italy's surrender.

Allied headquarters reported clashes between Italians and Germans in many parts of Italy, especially in the north, where the Germans have taken over virtually the entire area.

Many Italians in the Calabrian areas occupied by the Allies in southern Italy now regard themselves as on the United Nations' side in the fight against Germany, said the dispatches from Allied headquarters.

Rommel In Command

Berlin identified Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, former African corps chieftain who was chased out of Africa, as commander of all German forces in northern Italy. It said Genoa, Trieste, Cremona, La Spezia, sections of the French Riviera, and Alpine passes on the German border formerly manned by Italians now were in German hands.

Airfields and ports on the Adriatic side also were in German hands, Berlin said, while in the Balkans the Italians had laid down their arms and in some cases put themselves under German orders. Field Marshal Maximilian von Weichs was said to be in charge of the Balkan areas.

"Italian warships and merchantmen in the Aegean Sea have been taken over be the German navy, and there are more and more cases of Italian detachments joining the German army everywhere in order to continue fighting," Berlin added.

Reports reaching neutral Switzerland and Allied headquarters in North Africa, however, said Italians still were resisting in northern Italy and others sectors. One dispach from Switzerland said the Italians still hold the industrial cities of Milan and Turin.

Vatican on Air

Stefani broadcasts over the Rome radio ceased at 7:55 p. m. (1:55 E. W. T.) after the Germans had announced Rome's fall. The Vatican radio continued its usual broadcasts, mainly religious talks, without reference to the situation either in Rome or in Vatican City.

(United States government monitors overseas reported that radio Palmero, an Allied station in Sicily, had appropriated the usual wave length on which the Rome radio broadcasts to Italian audiences, and already was giving news broadcasts to the Italian people.)

Before going off the air Stefani said an agreement had been reached with the Germans regarding Rome, Reuters reported.

This stipulated that German troops would occupy the German embassy, Italian broadcasting station, telephone exchange and other strategic points, keeping the majority of its troops outside the city limits.

Gen. Calvi Di Bergola was said to have been named commander of the Rome garrison, with an infantry division to maintain order.

A Berlin report received in Bern, Switzerland, tonight said all Rome was in German hands, and that "quiet and order reigns in the city."

The Associated Press heard a Rome wavelength broadcast late tonight by Gen. Vittorio Ruggiero, Milan commander, who declared the Nazis "have surrounded Milan" and forcibly occupied Pavia, Piacenza, Parma, Reggio, Cremona, Brescia, Bergamo and numerous other minor localities in northern Italy."

Many Reports

Amid a profusion of reports came these from Bern:

That Badoglio and the chief members of his government were en route to Sicily; that the Nazis might be trying to locate Mussolini to place him at the head of a new Fascist regime created by Germany; that Princess Yolande, daughter of the Italian king, had arrived in Lugano with her three children; that Allied troops had made landings at Spezia and Leghorn but later withdrew; and a German DNB report that the fourth Italian Army in France had capitulated to German forces.

The Italians apparently held some of the mountain passes between France and Italy, but it was doubtful whether they could hold out because they lacked heavy armament.

A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Vhiasso, near the Italian border, earlier had reported the Milan situation as feverish after a night of "violent" demonstrations by Italians against German business and private buildings in which German property and goods were destroyed.

"War between the Italians and Germans already has begun," said the dispatch.

Capua, North of Rome, Attacked by Allied Bomber Squadrons

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 10.—Medium and light bombers of the Northwest African Air Force yesterday attacked Capua, north of Rome, an Allied communique said today.

Enemy positions in the southern battle area were bombed and strafed in addition to blasting bridges and roads at Capua and Canchello.

Medium bombers hit railroad bridges and communication lines at Cosenzo and the landing ground at Canzano, the communique said.

Grossetto Rail Yards Attacked.

Formations of bombers also attacked roads leading to the beaches and other targets around them. Large numbers of motor vehicles were raked and the bombers continued their sweeps over Southern Sardinia.

Allied fighters, meanwhile, maintained continuous offensive patrols over both battle areas.

Night bombers attacked the railway yards at Grossetto last night, continuing the aerial drive to destroy enemy communications.

Eleven Axis planes were destroyed during the operations. Seven Allied aircraft were reported missing.

Free of Enemy Planes.

Thousands of Allied troops were put ashore in the Naples area shortly after dawn yesterday and swarms of landing craft were busy taking even greater forces to the beaches under cover of United States long-range fiihter and fighter-bomber aircraft, which kept the invasion area free of enemy planes.

Pilots of American A-36 Invader dive bombers were over the invasion beaches shortly after dawn, and in the words of group leader Lt. Col. Dorr E. Newton, jr., San Antonio, Tex., "From where we were sitting the invasion certainly looked good. The boys on the ground were going right to work. And in the air we haven't even seen an enemy aircraft yet."

ALLIES TAKE TARANTO BASE

-and On Adriatic Opposite Balkans—Fifth Army Encircling Naples

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 10—The great naval base of Taranto on the Italian heel was in British hands tonight after a bold oversea thrust by the Royal Navy, and the American Fifth Army was driving inland in a vast envelopment of the Naples area after loosening the German grip by shattering five strong counter-attacks.

Taranto lies on the inside of the Italian heel on the Gulf of Taranto, eighty miles from the tip of the Italian heel and 270 miles southeast of Rome. The speed with which the heavily fortified base capitulated indicated scant, if any, opposition. Landings started last night under the protection of British warships.

Third British Landing

"Further extension of the Allied offensive against German forces in Italy has taken place at Taranto where British forces started landing yesterday evening," a special announcement said.

It was the third successful Allied landing on the mainland of Europe and roughly 150 airline miles northeast of the Calabrian area where the British Eighth Army was swiftly subduing the Italian toe. In addition to being a major naval base and port through which heavy Allied reinforcements can funnel, Taranto is a key communications center with primary highways radiating north, east and west.

Long Move Toward Adriatic

It was a long leap-frog move toward the Adriatic Sea, which bathes the Italian east coast and separates the peninsula from the Balkans.

The fiercest fighting was in the Naples area, although General Montgomery's British Eighth Army had won control of much of the Calabrian peninsula—the Italian toe. He advanced up the west coast beyond Pizzo, which formed a junction with an amphibious force which established itself at Vibo Valentia. His troops captured Monasterace Marina in a parallel drive up the east coast in the direction of Taranto. About sixty miles of the Italian toe was in Allied hands.

Under Violent Attack

The Naples area was under violent American and British attack by land, sea and air. A tremendous Allied armada poured troops by the thousands and mountains of materiel onto the firmly established beachheads. Some landings actually were made on the shores of the Bay of Naples.

Offshore, twenty-five miles west of the second largest Italian port, the Allies seized Ventotene island, seventy miles south of beleaguered Rome. The Italian garrison promptly surrendered to the sea forces, commanded by Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, USN., who commands the fleets off Naples.

The contest for the Naples area developed into a grim race between Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army and its British units and the Germans, reported moving strong reinforcements down the peninsula to oppose the landing.

Would Cut Off South

Since Naples controls communications in southern Italy, its capture would virtually seal off all the south.

The focal point of battle appeared to be just outside Salerno, twenty miles south of Naples on the Gulf of Salerno. There the American-British force was reported in violent combat with the German Sixteenth Armored Division.

By crushing five German counter-attacks mounted in vain efforts to throw the Allies off balance, Clark had weathered the first test in the battle for Naples, which is expected within a few days to flare into the greatest fight yet waged on a Mediterranean battlefield.

The Germans struck before Clark's huge army had been unloaded completely, trying to shatter the beachheads before artillery and other heavy materiel could be established ashore.

Nazis Seize Genoa

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 10—An Allied broadcast today disclosed that the Germans have taken control of Genoa, important port on the northwestern coast of Italy.

(An Algiers broadcast recorded by the Associated Press in London, said bitter street fighting was raging at several keypoints on the railway linking Milan and Genoa. Presumably the fighting was taking place between Italians and Germans).

Sabotage Urged

The Allied broadcast, made from the United Nations radio at Algiers to urge Italians to sabotage all communications which aid the German armies massing in Italy to meet the Allied invasion, declared:

"The German invader is stunned—but only for the moment. If you give him time, he will recover and strike back with all his barbaric cruelty.

"Already he is in control of Genoa, but there is still time."

Massing In North

The broadcast declared further that the "Germans are massing their main forces in northern Italy and added:

"There they are preparing their main line of defense. There they are heaping up supplies for the German armies around Naples and in Calabria."

The Italians were urged to sever immediately every communication line between the Naples area, where the Allied forces landed, and northern Italy.

"Italians! The time is short. The next seven days will be decisive," said the broadcast, which was reprinted in pamphlets for distribution by plane over all of Italy.

"It is your task, the task of every railway worker and road worker, telegraph and telephone worker, and of every Italian of every class to be ready to give his all for his country—it is your task to sever lines of communication between the German armies of northern Italy and the German armies in Naples and Calabria," the broadcast said.

"The time is short. The next seven days will be decisive. If you cut these communication lines, then those seven days will shorten Italy's agony. If you fail, then the war in Italy will be long and destructive and bloody.

"No Longer Alone"

"Remember, you are no longer alone in your struggle. Our armies are with you at last. Our air forces are harassing daily the German communications and destroying railroad sidings, dumps, bridges and depots. Assist our air forces by striking at German communications yourselves."

The Italians were assured that "now during this crucial week, now when he (the German) has lost his arrogant self-confidence, now when he hears the news of his defeat in Russia, now when he is vulnerable, Italians strike!"

Concern Here Over Vatican In Nazi Hands

Officials Cautious in Their Estimates of Situation, However.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The German announcement that Hitler's armed forces would "assume protection" of Vatican City caused serious concern in official quarters here.

Has Ugly Sound

The phrase had an ugly sound to those who recalled previous German announcements to the effect that the Wehrmacht had taken over "protection" of Luxembourg or some other neutral state.

In the absence of direct advices from the American representative at the Vatican, however, officials were cautious in their estimates of the situation. It was pointed out that, theoretically at least, the Germans could control the Italian capital without interfering with the Vatican and its activities anymore than did Mussolini's government or its successor, the Badoglio regime.

A Rome radio broadcast explaining that the German military would remain outside the capital, except for detachments taking over radio, police, telegraph and telephone headquarters and the German embassy, seemed to indicate a Nazi desire to allay Vatican apprehensions. On the other hand it was noted that the German announcement contained no direct assurance that the neutrality of the Vatican state would be respected.

Nazis Are Enraged

The violence of Hitler's language against the "treacherous Italians" in his speech this afternoon was taken to mean the Nazis would not be overgentle in their handling of any situation on Italian soil from now on. It was assumed Marshal Badoglio would leave Rome if possible, but no official word of his departure had been received here.

It was conceded that German control of Rome might be short-lived if the Nazi-command decided to make its main stand against

3021-8263

Allied troops farther north. Should the Germans choose to hold the Rome area until they are blasted out, however, the Allies again would be confronted with the problem of how to strike at the enemy without making a battleground of the Vatican.

inside the Italian heel.

There seems to be no doubt that the Germans are trying desperately to take up the sudden slack in their Balkan defenses, which developed when Italy folded, but there is considerable doubt whether they would be able to do this effectively and quickly.

The German news agency DNB claimed that the Nazis had seized the Albania ports of Valona and Durazzo and the town of Elbason and the Yugoslav port of Ragusa and that the Italians had been disarmed up and down the entire Adriatic coast.

May Be Shot In Dark

The Swiss report, quite likely, was a shot in the dark, inspired by the German efforts to decide which way the pieces are falling, but then, there is no question that the whole Ionian and Adriatic shores were opened by the swift removal of the Italian fleet.

Chief fact supporting the speculations is the continuing lack of reports from the American Seventh Army, which participated in the invasion of Sicily, but may, however, show up farther north on the western side of the peninsula. The chief argument against it is the immense logistical task of keeping three or more offensives going at one time over such wide spread communication lines.

Albania, itself, is not particularly attractive as a target for an invader since of its four ports, Durazzo, Valona, San Giovanni and Porto Edda, only the first is well equipped. Communications generally are had in the country and in many places, where the mountains don't reach down to the shoreline, there are marshy malarial lowlands.

Yugoslavia, also, is rocky and not very inviting as an invasion point.

Nazis Take Brenner Pass, Report

Madrid, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Germans, it was learned here today, obtained control of the Brenner Pass line through the northern Julian Alps after severe fighting with the Italian garrisons in which there were a number of casualties.

(The Germans announced yesterday that Italian troops had occupied the Pass, important link between Italy and Germany, but did not indicate whether the Italians were friendly to them or hostile.)

NAZIS CLAIM CHIEF PORTS OF ALBANIA

Swiss Report At Same Time Says Allied Convoy Is On Way

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 10—The Germans hurriedly replaced Italian forces all along the Adriatic coast today and Swiss reports said that a huge Allied invasion armada was moving through the Ionian sea toward Albania.

There was nothing to confirm or deny the Swiss report and any force in the Ionian sea might just as well be going to Greece, Yugoslavia—or, with the Italian navy knocked out and the German air force hard-pressed from the west, could be moving through the Straits of Otranto for landings on the east coast of the boot.

Linked To Taranto Seizure

Such a move would be particularly inviting now that the Allies have seized the big base of Taranto.

Warship Escort Reported

The Swiss reports from Chiasso, on the Italian-Swiss border, said that the armada was escorted by a squadron of warships, under cover of "important" air forces. Reuters also reported a large Allied convoy under way in the Ionian. The Swiss report said an Allied landing was imminent.

Albania, which is rugged and mountainous, borders both Greece and Yugoslavia. It fell to Italian invasion forces in 1939 and King Zog was forced to flee his throne. He is now in England. The kingdom was annexed by Italy as a part of the Italian empire and the people has been held in by Italian occupation forces since the invasion.

Yesterday the Germans were reported to have moved into the Dalamatian area and to have begun disarming all Italian occupation forces at that gateway to the Balkans and in the Balkans themselves.

Major Battle For Albania Believed Near

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A major battle over tiny, Italian-held Albania—across the Adriatic Sea from the heel of the Italian boot—appeared an imminent possibility today. German troops were reported to have occupied the former kingdom, and a powerful Allied fleet was reported en route there.

Dispatches from Chiasso, on the Swiss-Italian border, said a great British-American convoy, escorted by a squadron of warships, had left an Ionian Sea port and had begun moving toward Albania under cover of "important" air forces. Reuters also reported a large Allied convoy under way in the Ionian Sea.

Previously, a Reuters dispatch quoting the Hungarian news agency, said German troops had already occupied Albania and the whole of the East Adriatic coast.

Both the Chiasso dispatch and the Swiss radio said an Allied landing was imminent.

Albania, a rugged, mountainous area bordering Greece and Yugoslavia, fell to Italian invasion forces in 1939 and King Zog was forced to flee his throne. He is now in England.

The kingdom was annexed by Italy as a part of the Italian empire and had been held in check by Italian occupation forces since the invasion.

German troops were reported yesterday to have moved into the Dalmatian area north of Albania and to have begun disarming all Italian occupation forces at that gateway to the Balkans and in the Balkans themselves.

Berlin Reports Sinking 2 Italian Warships at Sea

Battleship and Cruiser Are Listed; Six Italian Ships Said To Be at Gibraltar

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Berlin, in confusing successive broadcasts today, announced that an unspecified number of units of the Italian Navy had "joined the German Navy to continue the fight" on the German side, and that an Italian battleship and cruiser had been sunk by German bombers between Sardinia and Corsica.

Meanwhile from La Linea, Spain, near British Gibraltar, came a report that two light cruisers, two destroyers and two auxiliary aircraft carriers of the Italian Navy had entered Gibraltar and surrendered to the Allies at 11:45 a. m. today.

These reports, along with word that the Allies had seized the Italian naval base of Taranto, again emphasized the mystery of the Italian Navy's whereabouts.

The Germans' confusing picture included a report that Nazi bombers and dive-bombers had forced a number of Italian warships to return to the Greek harbor of Patras after they had attempted to escape yesterday. Another report said the Nazis had taken over the important Mediterranean naval base of Spezia, near Genoa, supposedly with most of the ships in the harbor.

Dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the brief announcement of the Allied landing at Taranto, inside the Italian heel, did not make any mention of naval units.

The German report of sinking an Italian battleship and a cruiser said they were part of a formation which escaped from Spezia and "on Anglo-American orders were attacking German shipping between Sardinia and Corsica."

The Germans added that the attack of the Nazi bombers "was so effective that another battleship, cruiser and destroyer were severely damaged by bomb hits."

"The battle with this naval formation is still in progress," the broadcast concluded.

London morning newspapers had said that three 35,000-ton Italian battleships were en route from Spezia to Allied ports with a flotilla of cruisers and destroyers.

All these events stirred high hopes in London that carefully worked-out plans were delivering the bulk of the fleet and a million tons of merchant shipping into Allied hands.

It was learned that in the formulation of the armistice orders were established for all Italian warship captains and scores of merchant ship masters, telling them how to escape and to what ports to go. These instructions were in ... those of Admiral Sir A... Browne Cunningham, A... al commander in the M... lean, and it seemed certain that the peace news was held up five days partly to enable the ships to slip away.

Some Credence for Reports

While not disposed to accept at their face value the Berlin report, one highly placed naval authority here said he was inclined to believe the attack on the Spezia formation occurred. He was more skeptical of the other reports, particularly since the Germans are known to have no surface navy in the Mediterranean with which to fight.

The immediate benefits from the removal of the Italian fleet to Allied control would be only negative in getting the ships away from the Germans. Later, it might be fitted into the Allied naval picture but this would take some time because of lack of personnel trained in the Italian vessels.

On the basis of an authoritative statement that Italy is not regarded as an ally, but as a conquered nation, it is assumed that there is no desire to have the Italian fight in their own ships along with American and British men-of-war. It is conceivable, however, that some units might be used to convoy Italian merchantmen, some of which would presumably be put into action quickly to help supply the Italian people as well as Allied armies.

Mediterranean Alive With Ship Movements —Nazis Broadcast Contradictory Reports On Italy's Fleet—Allied Balkans Attack Expected.

By William Smith White

LONDON, Sept. 10. (AP)—The Germans in Italy fought two wars tonight: Against Gen. Eisenhower's columns, everywhere advancing, and against their former Italian allies in several parts of the country, including Rome itself.

Alive With Ships

In addition, the Mediterranean was alive with ship movements and foreign reports said that Allied landings were imminent in Greece or Albania.

Hitler threshed about wildly to convince the Germans at home that he had settled with the Italians after attacking their capital. In his first speech in six months, the Nazi leader said Italy's actual capitulation was a secret from the Germans until the Allies announced it and he sought to bolster German morale by saying the surrender was of no importance and the homeland still was strong.

The Allied attacks from the sky will be broken, he promised, and retaliation will be made. But he failed to say how.

His propagandists claimed at the end of a long day of varying assertions that all Italian forces in the whole country had capitulated under German threat "after slight local resistance."

The Germans specifically asserted that the Rome commander had surrendered too.

The Germans went even further —indicating the state of their frantic efforts to assure the Nazi public that at least the German rear was no longer open to attack in Italy—to claim that the Italians also had surrendered to the Germans in "the mass of the Balkans" and in Athens.

They declared also that they had occupied Italian airfields and "the most important harbors on the whole Adriatic coast.

Rome Is Opened

The German assault on Rome presumably would have put it open to Allied counterattack, even though before the Badoglio capitulation it had been declared an open city, but the Italians News Agency announced that the Nazis had agreed not to occupy the city proper.

Hitler's march against Rome appeared to be his confession of defeat in his strange and twisted campaign to retain some shadow of Italian help.

His military defeat in all Italy south of the peninsula waist was clearly foreshadowed and near at hand with the consolidation of Allied Bridgeheads at Naples and the destruction of Nazi resistance there and the seizure of the great naval base of Taranto.

Be-devilled on a colossal scale by tremendous reverses in Russia, by loss of their best positions in lower Italy and the probable loss at any moment of one or more of their Balkan associates, the German home leaders seemed almost wholly to have lost their sense of direc-

...and to have filled the air with the most confused jumble of nonsense heard since the war began.

They looked fearfully in every direction but especially at the Adriatic and Ionian seas where reports by way of Switzerland told of the sighting of big Allied convoys and added:

"An Allied invasion of Albania is imminent."

Greece, as well as Albania, is washed by Ionian waters.

Right alongside this was a report from the Nazis that the German command had occupied virtually the entire Adriatic coast.

In all the series of the Nazis' fears, one of the greatest at the moment seemed to be the fear that the very considerable surviving Italian fleet would fall into Allied hands.

First they claimed to have brought over to their side certain "units" of the Italian navy, and then they implied that they were hunting down that fleet and claimed already to have sunk a battleship and damaged a cruiser.

Nazis Claim Spezia

Late in the day they asserted they had seized the Italian naval base of Spezia and also that they had "taken over protection of Genoa and the Riviera."

The Nazis' struggle with the Italians, while on a much smaller scale, was no less bitter than their struggle with advancing American and British troops. To cap half a dozen propaganda broadcasts claiming variously that the Italians are taking no hostile action or that such action had long since been put down, the German High Command itself conceded late in the day that German troops were still fighting "small" Italian detachments—this on the third day after the Italian surrender to Eisenhower. This fighting was going on at many points—one of them the naval base at Trieste.

In Rome, first attacked by German planes and then assaulted by German troops who a week ago had marched with the Italians, chaos was abroad.

Some of the Royal family had left the city and even the country. There was a denied but persistent report that King Vittorio Emmanuele III had abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Umberto.

It became increasingly evident why Eisenhower took five days to make his dispositions before disclosing Badoglio's capitulation. He wanted all to be in readiness for the quickest possible clean-up in Italy as the best available insurance against the anarchy now plainly not so far distant in that country.

There was every indication he would win his race. Naples was within his grasp. Although not yet actually under his total occupation, he had in Naples Italy's biggest port and one of its greatest communications centers.

Below Naples the Allies controlled many key communication points, giving them control of much of southern Italy.

And Hitler's assault on Rome was almost certain to bring down on him far larger and angrier and more determined Italian forces than were already harassing him.

Abdication of Victor Emmanuel Is Denied by Italian Radio

Stories of Monarch's 'Resignation' Come From Swiss and German Sources

SEP 11 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Rome radio today denied reports originating in Switzerland and broadcast by the Berlin radio that King Victor Emmanuel of Italy had abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Umberto.

"All these reports are untrue," declared Stefani, Italian news agency, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters.

Earlier Reuters had quoted Swiss reports saying the King had resigned and that Crown Princess Marie Jose, wife of Umberto, had arrived in Switzerland last night.

The Associated Press, meanwhile, intercepted a Berlin broadcast, which reported the King had "resigned."

This was not the first time in recent months that there had been talk of abdication by the Italian monarch. Last May the Morocco radio circulated reports that the King had abdicated or was about to do so.

Talk that Victor Emmanuel might surrender his throne was revived again when Premier Mussolini was ousted on July 25 and Marshal Badoglio took over his place, but eventually it died down.

Badoglio, on assuming office, had pledged his allegiance to the King and called on the Italian people for their support in his name.

The King, now 73 years old, never had been a dominating figure in the affairs of his nation. He once described himself as "permanent undersecretary to successive premiers" and throughout the reign of Mussolini he had been relegated to a position of insignificance in the government.

Prince Lukewarm to Fascism.

The Reuters dispatch reporting the arrival of Crown Princess Marie Jose in Switzerland said she was accompanied by her four children.

They were said to have reached Martigny in the canton of Valais by way of the great St. Bernard Pass and continued their journey in the direction of Lake Geneva after a brief rest.

(The Office of War Information quoted a Berlin broadcast as saying that the party of the Crown Princess traveled in "two big touring cars followed by a truck with gasoline."

("The Crown Princess was accompanied by a friend of the royal house," the broadcast added. "At the border the Princess was received by the military authorities.")

Prince Umberto, who is 39 years old and the only son of Victor Emmanuel, always had been considered lukewarm toward Fascism. At one time he was said to have headed a peace party of younger non-Fascists. He once refused an invitation to Berlin.

Princess Sister of Leopold.

In 1928 the Fascist Grand Council abolished automatic succession to the throne as a means of shelving the young Crown Prince, but his popularity nevertheless grew in the army and among the Italian people.

Umberto had held the rank of general in the Italian Army since 1941, and in April, 1942, he was placed in command of troops in Central and Southern Italy. Before that he was reported to have been appointed commander of Italian forces serving in Russia.

His wife is a sister of King Leopold of Belgium. They were married in 1930.

During the celebrations which followed the announcement of their engagement in 1929 an attempt was made on Umberto's life on Brussels. Two wild shots were fired at him by an Italian anti-Fascist while the crown prince was attending a ceremony at the tomb of Belgium's unknown soldier.

In 1939 there were reports that Umberto had been exiled by Mussolini because the prince was opposed to Fascism and particularly to the Duce's foreign policy.

Succeeded to Throne in 1900.

In August of the same year Mussolini issued a decree stripping Umberto of the title of prince and the right of succession to the throne. At the end of the month, however, when the army was reconstituted, Mussolini appointed Umberto as head of one of two army groups.

When Italy entered the war in 1940, it was rumored that the King had sent Umberto to reason with Mussolini, who, according to reports, lost his temper and shouted in a rage that he would "depose the royal house if it interferes in matters which concern me alone."

As the Italian armies suffered defeat after defeat reports came out of Italy of an impending revolt headed by Badoglio and Umberto against Mussolini.

Nothing ever came of this, but following Mussolini's ouster travelers reaching Switzerland from Italy told of crowds in Italian cities shouting for Badoglio's resignation and his replacement by Umberto.

Victor Emmanuel succeeded to the throne when his father, King Umberto, was assassinated on July 29, 1900.

Widespread Fighting By Italians and Nazis Reported in Madrid

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 10.—Reports of fighting between German and Italian soldiers and civilians covered such a wide area today that, if true, they indicated the whole region from Savoy in France down the entire length of the Po Valley has been the scene of scores of armed clashes.

There still was no evidence, however, of any methodical German occupation of the Po Valley or of strengthening of German forces already there.

Late last night reports from Italy said Milan and Turin were still held securely by Italian Army garrisons taking orders from Premier Pietro Badoglio. They were said to be prepared to resist any German attempts to occupy the city.

In Genoa, other reports said, Italian troops who had withdrawn into private homes and office buildings had helped civilians snipe at German soldiers as they sped through streets running between the dockyard section and industrial areas of the city.

Germans Occupy Genoa.

(An Allied broadcast from North Africa said Germans had occupied the big port of Genoa on the Italian northwest coast.)

Italian dispatches from Genoa said the port was being guarded, rather than occupied, by the Germans, who evidently have not yet tried to take over the whole city.

However, Italians in Madrid received reports that the Germans now control, wholly or in part, the northern Provinces of Friole, Liguria, Giulia and Tridentina, the latter including the outlet to the Brenner Pass and the Adige Valley, used as the German supply route for Italy.

Dispatches from Berlin to Madrid newspapers said that "in general" Italian troops in Northern Italy had surrendered their arms to the Germans "without incident." This report contradicted information from Italy which indicated Italian troops were resisting German attempts at domination.

Germans Claim Domination.

(A Berlin dispatch to Bern newspapers, passed by the German censor, said today that the Balkans were the "obvious" objective in the near future of the Allies, who "probably will not only reach the Po plains in a few weeks but even earlier will face the Balkans, whose long coastline is not less vulnerable to invasion than Italy."

(Contradicting Italian frontier reports that 40,000 German troops in the Brenner Pass had been ordered to return to Germany and that there was fighting in Verona and Genoa between Italians and German troops, Berlin dispatches claimed the Germans had the situation well in hand and that the most important communication lines of the railroad network of North as well as Central Italy were in their hands.)

Bombers Pound Roads, Bridges Near Naples

(By the Associated Press)

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 10—The Allied air force went out in force yesterday to bomb military objectives in Italy heavily despite the Italian armistice, in support of the army's campaign to drive the Germans from the peninsula. it was announced today.

Medium and light bombers concentrated on roads leading to the beaches in the Naples area to thwart German plans for moving strong forces there to repulse the invaders.

Rail Bridges Attacked

The air offensive against communications was pursued vigorously with heavy bombers attacking rail bridges at Capua and Cancello and medium bombers raiding bridges and communications at Potenza and a landing ground at Scanzano. The Grossetto railway yards north of Rome were attacked last night, the Allied announcement said.

The Italians have been repeatedly warned to keep away from military objectives and communication routes used by the Germans and every effort is being made by Allied airmen to spare the Italians.

But there is no letup in the onslaught from the air on the Germans or on installations used by them.

Eleven German planes were shot down in yesterday's operations to an Allied loss of seven.

Throughout the day, Allied tactical air formations of the Northwest African Air Force provided a powerful cover over the armies both in the Naples area and Calabria. About forty German planes were seen during the day and some of them succeeded in bombing the beaches.

Heaviest Allied air blows were dealt to German motor transport on which the enemy rely for reinforcements since the railroads are badly disorganized.

Little Anti-Aircraft Fire

Hardly any anti-aircraft fire was put up in the aerial warfare in the Naples area yesterday. Apparently the Italian ground defenses have folded up, leaving only isolated German anti-aircraft batteries.

American Warhawks swept over Sardinia, where the Germans are known to have troops, but no enemy planes were encountered.

American Marauders struck at the Scanzano landing ground on the Gulf of Taranto and also cut a railway line. No enemy aircraft appeared in this area.

German planes loosed flares over beaches in the Naples area in an effort to bomb the landing parties. Allied night fighters took advantage of the light to pick out the German craft and shot down three JU-88s.

Italians Wave Towels

Over Catanzaro, the pilots saw Italians waving towels in the streets as flags of surrender.

Among other enemy aircraft shot down over the Naples landing area was a Fieseler Storch reconnaissance plane which high German officers use to watch the progress of operations.

Staff Sergt. Joseph T. Covilello, of Boston, Mass., said the whole town of Avellino seemed to be burning as the planes left and on the trip home, fires could also be seen in Salerno.

San Nicola Airport Hit

American Liberator bombers, operating from Middle East bases, attacked the airport at San Nicola near Foggia, directly across the Italian peninsula from Naples, in daylight yesterday, a communique issued in Cairo announced today.

"The landing ground and dispersal area to the south were well covered with bomb bursts, while hits were also scored among repair shops, living quarters and administrative buildings."

Numerous fires were started and several aircraft on the ground were reported set ablaze. The raid was the same as announced yesterday by Allied headquarters in North Africa.

Attacked By Italian Planes

The Liberator crews said their planes were attacked by some forty fighters, including at least six Italian Macchis with swastikas painted on their wings.

It was impossible to determine the nationality of the Macchi pilots. The other attacking fighters, they said, were German Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs.

Nine of the attackers were shot down to no losses for the Liberators.

The Macchi "Saetta" fighter is a low-wing monoplane armed with four machine guns, having a top speed of about 305 miles an hour and a ceiling of 33,000 feet. A later model, the C.202, has a slightly higher speed and ceiling.

German Quarters Report Heavy Fighting on Both Land and Sea

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 10.—Swedish correspondents quoted authoritative German quarters in Berlin today as saying that a battle between American and German troops has been raging at Salerno Bay since yesterday. Salerno Bay is just south of the Bay of Naples.

Allied forces were reported by the German quarters to be landing at Salerno Bay behind a heavy smoke screen. Heavy fighting is occurring on both land and sea, these sources told the Swedish correspondents.

14 Warships Declared Hit.

The writers quoted these Berlin sources as declaring that Nazi bombers attacking an invasion fleet at Salerno sank or damaged 38 transports and hit 14 warships, including two heavy cruisers, one of which was sunk and the other damaged.

A spokesman added that it was difficult to state whether German troops would continue to fight in the toe of Italy or whether they would have a chance to retire.

A Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet quoted diplomatic quarters in the German capital as saying that an Italian military commission in Germany, numbering 100 officers, had been interned by the Nazis.

Military Mission of 100 Held, Stockholm Paper Reports

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 10 (AP)—A Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet today quoted diplomatic quarters in the German capital as saying that an Italian military mission in Germany, numbering 100 officers, had been interned by the Nazis.

The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper said the position of the Italian officers depended on their standpoint toward the puppet Fascist government. No official statement regarding the officers has been made, the dispatch said.

The status of Italian workers in Germany also depended on their attitude toward the Nazi-sponsored Fascist government, these sources were quoted as saying.

Aftonbladet said Berlin had announced that Italian workers in Bochum had wired their acceptance of the new government.

Jersey Pilot Tells of Fighter Umbrella at "Perfect" Naples Show

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 10 (AP).—Three layers of fighter planes gave "the most perfect air show of the war" in covering Allied landing forces in the Naples area yesterday, Lieutenant Michael P. Yannell, of 112 Orchard Street, Summit, N. J., an A-36 Invader pilot of the United States 12th Air Support Command, reported today.

"The air was full of planes all day long," he said. "Away up on top were American Spitfires. Below them in the middle were American P-38 Lightnings. On the bottom were A-36 American Invaders, and from time to time P-51 Mustangs slid in under us to make a reconnaissance of the ground activity."

Captives Like Their Lot

Italian Cooks for U. S. Air Unit Ignore Their Freedom

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 10 (AP).—Three Italian prisoners assigned to an American Mustang squadron in Sicily as assistant cooks listened excitedly to the announcement of the Italian capitulation with the regular members of the squadron.

"You can go now; you are no longer prisoners of war," one of the pilots said to them.

The prisoners excitedly insisted they had a right to stay until all prisoners were officially released, explaining they liked their job and and the food which goes with it.

Forts Felled 38 at Foggia

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 10 (AP).—United States Air Force Headquarters announced today that a recapitulation showed American Flying Fortresses shot down at least thirty-eight enemy fighters in their last big raid on the German air base at Foggia on Tuesday. The first report after the raid showed only eleven definite victories. The twenty-seven others were accounted for after intelligence officers passed two days checking and verifying gunners' reports.

First U. S. Flyers to Land

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 10 (AP).—The first American pilots to set planes down on the Italian mainland were Captain L. V. Gossick, of Meadville, Mo., and Lieutenant Bruce L. Morrison, of Aspinwall, Pa. They landed at the Reggio airfield in their Warhawks soon after it was occupied by the British, to inquire about a fellow pilot missing in an operation over that area.

Gen. Wilson Demands Italians in Greece Give Up

CAIRO, Sept. 10 (AP).—Italian troops in Greece and the Axis-dominated Balkan countries were warned today that unless they return home and surrender their arms to Allied soldiers they will receive no food or other supplies.

The warning was issued by Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British Middle East commander, after he had learned that Gen. Carlo Vecchiarelli, commanding Italian garrisons in Greece, had ordered his troops to "have no dealings with either the Germans, British or Americans."

Gen. Wilson told a press conference here last night:

"He'll get nowhere with that policy. If the Italians persist in that policy their food and all supplies can and will be shut off."

Gen. Wilson had asked Italian troops in the Balkans to make their way home as quickly as possible, give up their arms to the Allies and to take possession by force of all fronts occupied by the Germans in the Dodecanese Islands. Gen. Wilson broadcast his request from Cairo by radio Wednesday night. Gen. Vecchiarelli's instructions to his troops were the first reaction to his orders, Gen. Wilson said.

The British commander also disclosed that so far no Italian aircraft or ships had arrived in Allied territories in response to his orders, which were based on the armistice terms agreed to by Premier Pietro Badoglio.

Gen. Wilson said the Italian surrender, faithfully observed, would remove 65 divisions from the enemy ranks.

Liberators Raid Foggia

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 10 (AP)—American Liberator crews, returning yesterday from a raid on airdromes at the Italian rail junction of Foggia, said that their planes had been attacked by some forty fighters, including at least six Italian Macchis with swastikas painted on their wings.

It was impossible to determine the nationality of the Macchi pilots. The other attacking fighters, it was said, were German Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs. Nine of the attackers were shot down. None of the Liberators was lost.

A United States Headquarters communiqué announcing the results of the raid said today that administration buildings, repair shops and barracks had been hit and dispersal-areas and landing-grounds had been covered by bursts. Smoke was seen to rise from aircraft on the ground.

Middle East Bombers Attack Foggia Area

CAIRO, Sept. 10 (AP).—American Liberator bombs, operating from Middle East bases, attacked the airport at San Nicola near Foggia, directly across the Italian peninsula from Naples, in daylight yesterday, a communique announced today.

"The landing ground and dispersal area to the south were well covered with bomb bursts, while hits were also scored among repair shops, living quarters and administrative buildings."

Numerous fires were started and several aircraft on the ground were reported set ablaze.

The nearby landing ground at Tortotella also was attacked and fires were started there, the communique said.

Enemy fighters attempted to beat off the attack and nine were shot down while all the Allied raiders returned safely, the bulletin added.

Report Mussolini To Be Turned Over

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 11—(AP) (AP)—The London Daily Express said today that Benito Mussolini would be handed over to the Allies for trial as a war criminal, unless something happens to him in the meantime.

"It is now certain he is still in Italy," the newspaper said, "and that the Italian government will have to surrender him to us on demand. No formal court procedure to get him extradited will be necessary."

The newspaper declared that "when handed over, Mussolini will be interned as a prisoner of war in an Allied country, and will be kept under close guard while the case against him is prepared.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—(AP)—An immediate "drum head court martial" for Mussolini and other Italian fascist chiefs was advocated today by Representative Celler (D-N. Y.), a member of the House Judiciary committee.

"The criminal fascists now in our control must die with their boots on," he said.

Blaskowitz Reported Nazi Leader in Italy

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, known as one of Germany's ablest military men, is believed here to be in command of the Nazi land forces now facing Allied troops in Italy.

Gen. Blaskowitz played an important part in the speedy German conquest of Poland, but later was reported to have fallen into disfavor with Hitler because he disapproved of conduct of the Russian campaign.

Italians Free Gen. De Wiart

Is Most Important British Officer Released Since Italy's Surrender

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP).—Major General Adrian Carton De Wiart, veteran British officer captured by the Italians in North Africa in April, 1941, has arrived in London. The details of his release were not immediately given. He is the most important British personage whose freedom has been disclosed since the surrender of Italy.

Holder of the Victoria Cross and perhaps the most wounded man in the British Army, Carton De Wiart was taken prisoner when he swam ashore after his plane made a forced landing off Cyrenaica during a flight to the Middle East.

He lost his left eye and left hand in the first world war, and was wounded eight times in other engagements of that conflict and twice in the South African War.

Red Star Pleased At Italy's Fall

Moscow, Sept. 10 (AP)—Ilya Ehrenburg, commenting in the army newspaper Red Star on the Italian surrender, wrote today that "Italy is an attractive example. In all vassal countries the rehearsal of capitulation is being held."

"White flags are needed," the writer added.

"Who is going to be the first to follow Italy?"

Other Soviet newspapers published prominently reports of the Allied landings in the Naples area.

6 Italian Warships Arrive at Gibraltar And Give Up to Allies

LA LINEA, Spain, Sept. 10.—Two light cruisers, two destroyers and two auxiliary aircraft carriers of the Italian Navy arrived at Gibraltar today and surrendered to Allied forces.

Vatican Denies Phone Talk, Report

New York, Sept. 10—The Berlin radio broadcast today a Vatican City dispatch denying "reports of an alleged prolonged telephone conversation between Pope Pius and President Roosevelt."

The Stefani news agency published yesterday a dispatch from the Rome newspaper Il Popolo di Roma announcing the telephone conference between President Roosevelt and the Pope.

Today's broadcast was recorded here by the Associated Press.

Former London Bobby And Teacher Tell of Preceding Invasion

By the Associated Press.

ITALY, Sept. 7 (Delayed).—Two British soldiers, who landed in Italy six days ahead of the 8th Army and received the promise of Italian troops not to fire on the invasion forces, were liberated from prison today by civilian guards.

A former London "Bobby" and a former Yorkshire school teacher told this story of the virtual complete breakdown of the Italian army's will to resist.

"If the 8th Army's invasion had been delayed a couple of days longer we could have persuaded the Italians to surrender intact. As it was, any number of Italians wanted to cross the Messina Straits and give themselves up in Sicily. It seemed as if all of them were plotting to do that."

Spotted by Nazis.

The two former prisoners are Lance Corpl. Eric Hill of MacDuff, Banff, Scotland, who once patrolled a police beat near Buckingham Palace, and Gunner Harold Brook Hodgson of Bedford, Yorkshire.

They participated in a reconnaissance raid on the Southern Calabrian coast the night of August 28, running afoul of a German truck convoy of infantry that forced the raiders to fight a battle on the beach in darkness and then scatter into the hills.

"We lost our portable wireless set in the beach scramble at Bova Marina," they said, "and in the hills we played hide and seek for five days with German and Italian patrols.

Caught by Italians.

"At night we slipped down to the village wells to replenish our water, for the hills were bone dry. We must have been spotted by some shepherd, for on the afternoon of September 1, while both of us were asleep under bushes we suddenly were awakened by a voice, and a number of Italian hand grenades sailed over our heads. It was a typical bad aim, for all the grenades burst too high to do us any damage, but 15 Italian soldiers took us into custody."

They explained the British raiding expedition previously had broken up into groups of two or three men in order to avoid detection.

"We've no idea what happened to the others," they continued, "but we were taken to town and the Italian troops and civilians practically feted us. The soldiers said, 'You can be sure we won't fire on any Englishmen who land in Italy.' The civilians told us they detested the Germans, whom they accused of looting their homes."

London, Sept. 10 (AP)—British submarines sank thirteen enemy vessels, including a number of supply ships, during the concluding stages of the Mediterranean operations against Italy, the Admiralty announced today.

A number of vessels were damaged, among them an Italian destroyer, in the course of the operations, carried out mainly in the southern Adriatic, the announcement said.

Last 8th Army Attack Carried Out After Italian Surrender

By DANIEL DELUCE,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

SOUTH OF PIZZO, Italy, Sept. 8 (Delayed).—Landing from the sea in the half-moon Bay of Pizzo and fighting throughout the day to consolidate their beachhead 17 miles behind the Axis front, the British 8th Army carried out the last offensive operation against the Italian Army today not knowing the world was celebrating Italy's unconditional surrender.

While London and Washington were telling the world of the Italian capitulation, game companies of khaki-clad troops were having a hot fight against superior enemy forces and our dead lie now, in heroic sleep, beneath dusty blankets, for their comrades have not had time yet to dig their graves in alien soil.

Even now orange flashes stab the horizon where British warships are carrying bombardment of distant enemy coastal batteries.

Today's amphibious attack, which gained Capes Vaticano and Cozzo and the prosperous towns of Mileto and Vibo Valentia, may seem in historical perspective to have been of military irrevelancy but it lived up the the highest standards of commando courage.

Grenade Blasts Nazi Vehicle.

The desperate German rear-guard, fearful of being bottled up in the 17-mile stretch between Mesina and Angitola Rivers, nearly smashed the small Pizzo bridgehead before their counterattack was broken up.

Three German motorized units struck at the British flonk but a well-directed grenade exploded inside the lead vehicle, killing all the occupants. The other armored cars stopped, withdrew and the entire German force behind them turned and dashed toward the interior.

The British commandos continued inland but failed to contact the Germans again.

At one point 200 Italian officers and men, waving soiled white linen came out of a tunnel and surrendered.

Since the morning of the invasion of Italy, our party of four Allied war correspondents has tended to become rather blase about demonstrations of native good will, but this afternoon's greetings to our troops touched a new high in warmness.

Greeted Effusively.

Previously, we agreed on the formula taken by the Italian public in reaction to the occupation:

"The first day, vivas and free wine; the second day, demands for food; the third day, boredom and requests for chocolate."

As we drove into Vibo Valentia, we still didn't know the war was ended with the Italian government, but the effusive displays of relief and affection by the farmers and townsfolk in Mileto, San Costatino and other minor settlements convinced us of the rising tide of Italian friendship as never before.

These people didn't know any more than we did that Italy was formally out of the war, but obviously they felt this fact in their hearts.

Mothers with infants nursing at their breasts; white-haired toothless grand parents; young boys and girls seemed to go wild with joy at the sight of our troops.

Met by Banker's Nephew.

The commandos started with a well-dressed civilian youth appeared from a farmyard waving a small American flag. He said he was the nephew of Amadeo Giannini, a California banking magnate.

(Poor's register of directors and executives listed an Amadeo P. Giannini as chairman of the board and director of the Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association of San Francisco.)

"My two brothers live in San Francisco," the youth said. "I am an ally of America and Britain."

He insisted on accompanying a commando patrol which was placed on guard along the southern approaches to Pizzo and which mined the road—just in case.

Tries To Belittle Collapse

FINDS WAY TO STOP AIR WAR

Fails to Mention When And Neglects Russia—Says Thought He Can Be Overrun Error.

By W. W. Hercher

LONDON, Sept. 10. (AP)—Adolf Hitler broke a six-months silence tonight in an attempt to rally the German people from effects of Italy's desertion and, in a grim 16-minute radio speech, told them that that event was of slight importance and that the "ring of steel forged by the German home front will never break."

Will Guard Reich

Although German soldiers may be forced to make tactical retreats and "we may have to cede some territory," the Fuehrer declared the Wehrmacht would be able to guard the nation from all assaults except the British-American bombing attacks.

"But here, also," he assured his bomb-harrassed people, "technical and organizational means are growing which will not only break the enemy's air attacks forever but will retaliate with other and more effective means."

The Fuehrer did not say when or how this would be achieved.

Nor did he offer his people any solace for the great defeats being inflicted upon the German armies on the Russian front. He virtually ignored the Russian front in this, his first message to the nation, since March 21.

No Shouting, No Ranting

Hearers here noted that Hitler spoke in a grim, military manner, devoid of the shouting and ranting that characterized his previous, longer harangues. It was presumed he was reading from a manuscript in his headquarters, possibly Berchtesgaden.

While professing to have "good cause to believe in victory," Hitler grimly warned that "every German must know that the fate of many German generations depends on his present attitude." He exhorted the home front to bear Allied bombing attacks with "unwavering, heroic resistance."

Thus the whole tone of his address was regarded as typifying Germany's new defensive attitude in this fifth year of war when the ramparts of their "European fortress" are crumbling.

Although he sought to dismiss Italy's capitulation as of slight consequence militarily, Hitler grimly vowed that the "treachery" of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's government in deserting its Axis partner to make peace with the United States would be avenged by "hard measures." SEE COR

"I can justify it as necessity," Hitler said of Italy's surrender, "but I will find no excuse for the fact that Italy's ally was not notified beforehand."

He charged that on the day of Italys' capitulation, Badoglio had assured the German charge d'affaires in Rome Italy would stay in the war. The United Nations can not hope to find traitors "like those in Italy" among the Germans Hitler added.

As to the strength of his own position as head of the German nation, Hitler declared that those who believe he can be overthrown are deeply in error.

Command United As Never Before

"They do not understand," he said, "my personal position, nor the attitude of my political comrades in arms, my field marshals, admirals and generals. The German command is united as never before."

The "strength and unity" of National Socialism," Hitler declared, would never let Germany crack up.

The collapse of Italy, he said, "could be foreseen for a long time." This he attributed, not to lack of German aid—which he said had been generous—but to "lack of will."

Castigated along with Premier Badoglio, was the Italian king who, Hitler charged, was a partner in the deception and "treason" against Germany. The king also had given assurances of continued Italian participation in the war, he said.

In a recital of what Germany had done for Italy, Hitler recalled going to the aid of Benito Mussolini in the Balkans in 1941 and thus making "sacrifices at a moment when Germany had almost more than enough of her own worries to bear."

Praise for Mussolini

For his fallen Axis partner, Mussolini, the fuehrer had praise as "one of the most outstanding men of modern times."

"His (Mussolini's) fall and the disgraceful insults to which he was subjected will be felt with deepest shame by future generations of the Italian people," Hitler said.

Mussolini's last act, he said, was "a demand for increased powers for successful prosecution of the war, for stringent measures against open and concealed saboteurs of the war effort x x x to eliminate the cunning enemies of the Italian people in the life-or-death struggle and thereby secure Italy's future."

With an eye on the Balkans, where guerrillas are waiting to join Allied invaders, Hitler declared: "I am not forgetting the treachery of Yugoslavia, either."

Yugoslavians in the Spring of 1941 repudiated their government's signature of the tripartite pact, turned against the Germans and resisted invasion.

CORRECTION

In 10th paragraph of above read: "The Italian leaders can represent this as necessity," Hitler said, etc. (instead of "I can justify it as necessity".

Text of Hitler's Speech

LONDON, Sept. 10. (AP)—The text of Adolf Hitler's radio speech, as broadcast over the Berlin radio by the German news agency DNB and recorded here by the Associated Press follows: SEP 11 1943

My German 'Volksgenossen and Genosinen (men and women compatriots).

Freed From Burden

Freed from the heavy burden of expectation pressing us for along time, I now see that the moment has arrived to speak again to the German people without taking refuge in lies either to myself or to the public.

The collapse of Italy could be foreseen for a long time, not through lack of means on the Italian side for more efficient defense or by lack of German help, but by the failure or rather by the unwillingness of those elements who caused the capitulation as result of their painful sabotage.

What has been accomplished now is the outcome of what these men have been striving at for years—the surrender of the Italian state leadership from the German Reich. Allied with Italy, to their common enemies.

When England and France declared war on the German Reich in September, 1939, Italy would have been obliged by our treaties to declare her solidarity with Germany immediately. This solidarity was not only created by treaties, but also by fate assigned to both Germany and Italy by their enemies. It is known that Mussolini had the firm intention of ordering immediate mobilization in Italy in accordance with the treaties.

The same forces which now have brought about the capitulation succeeded in August, 1939, in preventing Italy from entering the war. As Fuehrer of German Reich I had to have an understanding for the extraordinary difficulties of Il Duce.

Therefore, I neither then nor later pressed Italy to observe her obligations.

On the contrary I completely left it to the Italian government either not to enter the war at all, or if so, at a moment most convenient to themselves, a moment which they should choose perfectly freely.

Mussolini in June, 1940, had succeeded in achieving the prerequisite at home to join Germany, although at that time the fight had already been decided in Poland, as well as in Norway and against France and her allied British armies on the continent.

Nevertheless, I had to thank Il Duce for his attitude which, as it was known to me, could be achieved only with extreme difficulties within—not against the Italian people, but against certain circles.

Since that time the Reich and Italy have fought together on many battlefields, have shed their blood in common.

Not for one second have Il Duce and I doubted that the issue of this war will decide the "being or not being" of our peoples.

Accordingly Germany, herself stricken in the heaviest battles, has helped her ally to the utmost possible limit.

Many offers of help have been entirely refused by the military rulers of Italy from the beginning, or were only accepted under chimerical conditions.

Evidence will be submitted to the public at the appropriate time proving what contributions Germany has made to her Ally in their common fateful struggle, and was still prepared to make.

The German soldier himself has taken an attitude on these common battlefronts which distinguishes him everywhere for without his intervention North Africa would have been lost for Italy as far back as in the Winter of 1940-1941.

The name of Marshall Rommel will be connected eternally with this German performance.

Decided to Help

The Reich in the Spring of 1941 decided to help Italy in the Balkans so as not to accomplish their own intentions but only to assist her Ally and to push aside the danger which had arisen by the Allies' action and which naturally also menaced Germany.

Germany made all these sacrifices at the same moment a large-scale Bolshevist offensive was expected hourly. She had more than enough to do with her own problems. The blood of numerous German soldiers sealed our brotherhood in arms. The German nation and I as its Fuehrer could take this attitude, knowing that at the head of the Italian nation there was one of the greatest men which this century had produced—the greatest son of Italy since collapse of the Roman empire.

His unconditional faith gave our alliance the basis for success. His fall and the offenses done to him will be felt with deepest shame by future Italian generations. The last little push for a coup d'etat which had been decided upon long ago, came upon the demand of the Duce for increased powers necessitated in the interest of conduct of the war. The strictest measures against open and hidden saboteurs of the Italian war effort, against the reactionary enemies of social justice and against the powers of resistance of the Italian nation were to serve their aim.

At the last minute Mussolini wanted to eliminate the sinister enemies of the Italian people in the battle of "to be or not to be" in order to guarantee the future of Italy. Great pain overcame me personally when I witnessed this injustice done to this man which is unique in history; when I saw the undignified treatment meted out to him. For twenty years he had only lived in permanent sorrow and preoccupation for the well-being of his people and they pushed him down to level of an ordinary criminal. I was and I am happy to have been allowed to call this great and faithful man my friend.

I have not learned to change my opinions according to current needs or to deny them. Though there are other opinons on this subject I believe that in the life of nations, just as well as in human society would not be stabilized and its organizations would crash sooner or later.

Nazis Do Their Duty

Even after this shameful event German troops in Sicily, German pilots, U-boats crews and other units on land, sea and air have done their duty to the fullest extent.

(Here a portion was omitted.)

Many things cannot be told today for reasons of tactical expedience but posterity will know that with the exception of a few courageous Italian troops there were mainly German troops from this time who defended with their life not only German Reich but also Italian soil.

1943

Now that the Italian government has decided to break off its alliance and pull out of the war and thus make Italy a battlefield more than before, it may justify it with whatever reasons it can muster.

It can justify it as necesstiy but it will find no excuse for the fact that Italy's ally was not notified beforehand.

Not only did Badoglio ask the German charge d'affairs in Rome to come to his office on the day of the signature of the armistice but he assured him that he, Marshal Badoglio, would never betray Germany: That we should have confidence in him and that he would prove it by his deeds: That he was worthy of this confidence and that above all Italy would never capitulate. On the day of Italian capitulation the king called the German charge d'affairs and also assured him especially that Italy would never capitulate but would continue on Germany's side in good and bad luck.

Indeed, only one hour after the announcement of the treason the chief of the Italian general staff, Roatta, declared to our military plenipotentiary that this was nothing else but a wretched lie and British propaganda.

At same moment a representative of the Italian foreign ministry gave the assurance that this information was a typical British swindle which he denied. Fifteen minutes later he admitted that the whole matter was true and that Italy had really gotten out of war.

In the eyes of democratic warmongers and in those of the present Italian government this behaviour may account for the brilliant example of tactical diplomacy.

History Will Judge

History will judge differently and future generations of Italy will feel ashamed that these tactics had been employed toward an Allied friend who had more than fulfilled his duties according to the letter of treaties with blood and sacrifices of all kind.

After I had a chance of observing the increasing influence of these reactionaries—also negative towards the social tasks of Italy—and the hostile circles towards Germany there was hardly any doubt left, since the fall of Mussolini, about the true intentions of this change of regime.

Therefore, I have ordered all measures in accordance with my duty which could be taken for this occasion in order to preserve the German Reich from the fate which Marshal Badoglio and his men have not only inflicted on the Duce and on the Italian people but into which they also want to draw Germany.

We all know that in this merciless struggle the defeated will be annihilated according to the wishes of our enemies. We are therefore willing always to take those measures with cold determination, mind-ful of details and of major issues which are liable to blot out the hopes of our adversaries. But also many honor-loving Italians have declared themselves to be firm allies fighting for both our peoples.

From the military point of view the loss of Italy means but little. The battle in this country for many months was supported and borne mainly by German troops. Now we can continue this fight free of all liabilities.

The attempt of international plutocracy to break the Germans' resistance like it did Italy's is childish. They confuse the German people with others. The hope of finding traitors like in Italy among Germans is based on complete ignorance of national socialism.

Their hope of bringing about a 25th of July in Germany is based on the deep error they have with regard to my personal position as well as to the attitude of my politictal collaborators, field marshals, admirals and generals. More than ever, German leadership will meet this intention. Every trial will only fortify our unity. Every personal life has long ceased to exist for myself personally. I work conscious of the fact that through my work I can secure the life of my people for many generations hence.

That I possess the right to believe in success unconditionally is not only based on my own lifework but on the successes of our people in 1939. We had to accept the declarations of war of our enemies alone and abandoned. We have acted according to the principles that heroic resistance under all circumstances is preferable to cowardly submission. Therefore, I declared on Sept. 1, 1939, that neither time nor the power of arms would ever force the German people to its knees. Since then, the enemy has been pushed from the German frontiers more than 1,000 miles through our own force alone. Only by air can the enemy terrorize the German Hinterland. But here also technical and organizational means are growing which will not only break his terror attacks forever but will retaliate with other and more effective means.

May Give Up Positions

Tactical necessities may force us during this tremendous fateful struggle sometimes to give up a position on one front or to evade special menaces. But the ring of steel forged by the German homefront will never break. This ring protects the Reich held by the heroism of our soldiers.

At this moment I expect that the nation with dogged pride will fulfill its duty in all spheres of this tremendous fight. There is every reason to have confidence in it.

The party must be model in every respect.

The homeland can proudly look upon its soldiers who have engaged in heavy bloody fighting again and again and are fulfilling their task under most difficult circumstances.

On the other hand the front, in its painful hours during which frequent superhuman demands are imposed on it throughout many weeks and many months, may remembers the homeland which today has also become a fighting front. The heroism of old people and of children, of mothers, women and girls is not surpassed. Therefore every soldier has the sacred duty to still preserve higher the steadfastness he has had so far and to do that which the fight demands from him.

The German people have never been so proud of themselves throughout the whole of their history as in this most gigantic struggle of all times.

All attempts to force the fate of an enslaved nation upon the German people will fail in the face of this will and this achievement. May every single German, regardless of his position or assignment, be conscious that the fate of our nation and the future of many generations depends on his effort, on his willingness to sacrifice. Therefore I cannot thank with words the German people, men and women of the home front and soldiers, for all they are doing for what they are suffering patiently and bearing readily. This tradition will be expressed by future generations who will know that their free and socially secure life is the fruit of the sacrifices of our time. I, for myself, am unspeakably proud to be fuehrer of this people and I thank God for every hour he gives me which enables me to turn the greatest struggle of our times into a successful one.

The measures taken in Italy for the safeguard of German interests are very hard. As far as they concern Italy they are already being carried out according to plan and are successful. The example of the treachery of Yugoslavia has given us a healthy knowledge beforehand. The fate of Italy may be a lesson for all of us never to forsake our national honor, not even in an hour of most bitter trial or utter darkness.

It will teach us to be faithful always to our allies and to fulfill our duty with faithful hearts.

To the people who have passed these trials of destiny the Lord in the end will present the laurels of victory and the price of life. This must and will be Germany.

Nazi Battleship Reported Used At Spitzbergen

Norway Believes the Tirpitz Saw Action, Also Luetzow, Scharnhorst and Scheer

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP).—The German Fleet, which the British and American Navies long have been trying to bring to blows, stormed into action in force against the tiny garrison of Spitzbergen Wednesday, the Norwegian high command reported tonight in a communique.

The official report did not make clear whether any Germans remained after the raid on the island, 600 miles east of Greenland. Neither did it say whether any of the small Norwegian force stationed there escaped.

Both the Norwegian report and a broadcast by the German news agency D. N. B. said the defenders put up stout resistance. The D. N. B. report said the attack was made to destroy the meteorological station which had been aiding Russian convoys, and seemed to indicate no Germans were left behind as a garrison. A German broadcast last night said Nazi naval units aided by marines had caused heavy casualties among the island's holding forces and taken prisoners.

An Allied force raided the island two years ago after the Germans had set a meteorological station there soon after the war started.

Official Norwegian sources here expressed the belief that the German capital ships included Germany's prize battleship, the 35,000-ton Tirpitz; the battle cruiser Scharnhorst and the pocket battleships Luetzow and Admiral Scheer.

A signal from the small Norwegian detachment of about 100 men, received at noon Wednesday, said a German squadron of large warships accompanied by seven destroyers steamed into Isfjorden on the west coast. It was the last heard from the polar island, Norwegian sources here said.

Spitzbergen lies almost due north from Norway and away from, rather than toward, the Atlantic shipping lanes.

The Moscow radio said Friday that three German destroyers had been sunk in Norway's Trondheim harbor by Norwegian patriots.

Soviet Delegate Is Silenced by British Union

Clash Is Averted as He Attempts to Reply to Criticism by A. F. of L.

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP).—A possible clash of Russian and American delegates to the annual conference of the British Trades Union Congress was averted today by a well established precedent which prohibits comment or criticism of speeches of fraternal delegates.

Isidore Nagler, fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labor, told the conference yesterday that while his organization favored co-operation with Russian unions, it felt that organic liaison with them was undesirable since the Soviet units were organs of the state.

Nicolai Shvernik, leader of the Russian delegation, rose today to reply, but the conference declined to hear his statement, citing the precedent, and a situation which some delegates felt might have led to serious repercussions was averted.

Danish Motorships Captured By British

LONDON, Sept. 10. (AP)—Loaded to the gunwales, six trim Danish motorships, caught fishing in the North Sea, have been brought to a British port, the Admiralty announced today.

The communique said repeated warnings have been given that vessels operating from enemy occupied territory would be seized, but despite this a number of Danish ships have continued to frequent the Dogger Bank area.

His permanent rank is that of captain, but he has been holding the temporary rank of vice-admiral.

Leaflets Demand Bulgaria Surrender

London, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Swiss radio said today that Allied planes had dropped leaflets over Bulgaria, demanding that the Balkan kingdom surrender.

Similar demands were broadcast to Italy before the Allies began their large-scale operations against that country.

DANES FINED IN REPRISAL

Nazis Impose Million-Crown Levy for Copenhagen Killing

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 10 (AP)—German occupation authorities have imposed a fine of a million crowns upon the city of Copenhagen, Denmark, in reprisal for the slaying of a German corporal the night of Sept. 7, Free Danes here said tonight. Payment was due at 5 P. M. today.

Free Danes gave this account of the slaying:

The soldier accosted a Danish woman and, when three Danes came to her assistance, the German drew his revolver. The Danes seized the weapon, shot him and escaped on bicycles.

Reds Split Nazi South And Central Sectors, Push Toward Dnieper

Troops Bludgeon Way To Within 80 Miles of Strong Defense Line

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—Triumphant Red Army troops, having virtually split the German southern and central defense sectors by the capture of Bakhmach, 18 miles southwest of Konotop on the road to Kiev, bludgeoned their way to within 80 miles of the Nazi's Dnieper River defense line today.

Far to the south, streaking across the Sea of Azov hinterland from the liberated Donets Basin, other Soviet forces were even closer to the German last-ditch defense system, front dispatches said. Here they were reported less than 60 miles from Dnieperopetrovsk, site of Russia's greatest power project, and within 35 miles of the junction of the Stalino-Dnieperopetrovsk and Kharkov-Zaporozhe railroads.

Crimean Position Threatened.

Capture of this vital rail center would further cut the German north-south communications and would jeopardize the whole German position in the Crimea, toward which other Russian spearheads are driving along the Sea of Azov.

(A German radio report, recorded in London by the Associated Press, told of still another threat to the hard-pressed Nazi forces in the south. The broadcast said that Soviet troops had made landings along the Sea of Azov coast south of Stalino near Mariupol. Berlin asserted, however, that the beach head had been "sealed off" and that the Russians were "facing annihilation." Moscow did not confirm this report.

The Red Army columns south of Stalino have already advanced more than 80 miles in the last three days and dispatches from the front indicated a decided weakening of German resistance in this sector. Yesterday they drove through Petrovka, 30 miles southwest of Stalino and 44 miles northwest of Mariupol, a Soviet communique reported.

and garnered an additional 180 populated places along the way in advances of from 3 to 10 miles.

Taken in Flanking Operation.

Bachmach was taken in a flanking operation, which involved crossing the Seim River and storming Borzna, 18 miles to the northwest. Possession of Bakhmach placed the Russians 113 miles northeast of Kiev on the Kursk-Kiev railway and latest dispatches indicated they were rapidly pushing on in the direction of that important Dnieper defense bastion. Advance guards were reported within 80 miles of Kiev on both sides of the railway.

Premier Joseph Stalin's order of the day to Gen Constantin Rokossovsky, announcing the capture of Bachmach, conferred the name of Konotop on three divisions which stormed that Nazi base on September 6, and the name of Bakhmach on three others which paved the way to yesterday's victory.

The guns of Moscow gave another of their almost nightly salutes to Red Army triumphs, 120 cannon firing 12 salvos at 8 p.m. last night, while red and green flares announced the new victory to Moscow crowds going home in the twilight.

Altogether, more than 300 towns and villages were reported captured and more than 4,100 Germans killed in the day's advances. Medrigailov, 20 miles east of Romni, in the Bachmach sector, and Lyudinova, 45 miles north of Bryansk, were among the important enemy strongholds which fell to the Soviet forces.

The Moscow war bulletin told of Red Army warplanes pounding German retreat routes unceasingly during the day. On one airdrome more than 20 Nazi planes were destroyed from the air, while 18 troop train locomotives and 60 trucks were put out of action by bombs. Railway bridges were also given a pounding.

Retreat So Rapid Large Stores Of Material Are Abandoned

SEP 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Sept. 11—Soviet columns raced through the Ukraine in pursuit of Germans retreating so rapidly along a 400-mile front that they abandoned huge stores of material, left 6,800 dead on the battlefields and lost more than 300 towns and villages, Moscow announced today.

The Russians stormed into Mariupol, Sea of Azov metallurgical center and port, with an air and sea surprise attack, captured Chaplino, sixty miles from the Dnieper river bend, and in the northern Ukraine pierced the important Desna river line near Novgorod Seversky.

Capture Food And Munitions

The German pace approached a rout as the pursuing Russians captured almost 1,000 freight cars and trucks, many loaded with food, fuel and munitions. At least sixty-two German tanks were captured, destroyed or put out of commission.

A German military commentator said in a Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the German withdrawal "was not likely to stop for some time."

In many sectors the Russians were cutting in behind the German lines, trapping the surprised Germans, killing those who resisted and taking the rest prisoners. In some areas the Russians were moving so fast they gave the Germans no time to intrench.

The enemy's flight also was in progress north of the Ukraine in the Bryansk area, where the Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Germans were retiring so rapidly they did not even take time to lay mine fields.

Find Mines In Stacks

North of Bryansk mines were captured in stacks on the roadside, the bulletin said.

The Desna river break through overran three towns on the west bank, and the Soviet forces were reported fighting for the town of Novgorod Seversky, one hundred miles from Gomel and a little more than one hundred miles from the middle Dnieper river to which the Germans appeared to be retreating.

Late last night the German high command acknowledged a "limited breach" in the Nazi lines south of Konotop—apparently in the area of Bakhmach captured Thursday. "Very grim fighting is in progress," the Germans said. This drive in the north Ukraine was aimed at Kiev, 110 miles to the west.

The Soviet communique told of fresh reserves coming into Nazi lines in the north Ukraine near Priluki to counter-attack time after time. They were not only checked but overwhelmed by the final Soviet thrust, it said.

Take 310 Towns And Villages

The communique said 310 towns and villages were captured in the day's fighting and reported an advance of twelve to twenty-five miles in the south where the victories brought a special order of the day from Marshal Stalin.

Soviet tanks and Cossack cavalry swept into Chaplino, while Russian naval forces and air-borne troops, in a spectacular surprise assault, landed on the Sea of Azov shores to capture Mariupol.

Barvenkova Also Taken

Stalin's announcement also told of the capture of Barvenkova midway between Stalino and Kharkov and of the taking of Volnovakha, a "most important railway junction on the Stalino-Mariupol railway about thirty-three miles north of Mariupol.

The capture of Chaplino posed the greatest peril to the retreating Nazis for it put the Soviet columns sixty miles from Zaporozhe, terminal railway station for the only rail retreat line of the Nazi Crimea garrison.

Stalin called Chaplino "a very important railway junction" and said that the day's successes were "achieved by a break-through into the enemy's rear."

This meant that the entire German southern front forces, badly mauled west of Taganrog and falling back to the Dnieper river, may be cut off before they reach the Dnieper crossings at Zaporozhe and Dnieperopetrovsk.

Generals Praised

Moscow's victory guns, which have become almost commonplace in recent weeks of success after success, were ordered to fire a 124-gun salute as Stalin heaped fresh praise upon Gen. Radiony Malinovsky, commander of the southwest army groups, and his subordinate, Col. Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin, whose use of tanks and Don Cossack horsemen had brought the Soviet advance eighty miles in two days.

Red Troops Praised

Five divisions and seven brigades were given the names of the towns they captured and Stalin specifically praised the cavalry, tank troops, airmen and seamen under Rear Admiral A. G. Gorshkov who made the amphibious attack upon Mariupol's rear.

The German High Command communique reported "embittered and fluctuating fighting" in South Russia and a German military correspondent, quoted by Berlin radio, spoke of "the detaching movement of German troops in this area.

"The extent of the yielded areas as well as the giving up of the not too important treasures of the earth are of negligible value when considering the entire situation," he explained.

Capture of the Donets Basin gave the Russians a wealth of coal and iron, vast fertile fields from which come wheat, barley and sunflower seeds and where normally many of the Soviet's heavy industry plants turn out pig iron, steel, tools and machinery for war and agriculture. Many of these, however, have been destroyed by the retreating Germans.

The South Russian advance was only part of the great Soviet drive along a 600-mile front from east of Smolensk to the Sea of Azov which appeared to gather power as it rolled on.

North of Bryansk Soviet troops advanced up to six miles and captured more than 80 towns and hamlets. Toward Priluki, en route to Kiev, the Red Army moved up to nine miles and captured another 80 settlements, the communique said.

Col. Alexander Andreyen, Soviet war observed, in a Moscow broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said that from July 5 to Sept. 5 the Red Army had:

Destroyed—5,729 German planes, 8,400 tanks, 5,192 guns.

Captured—1,041 tanks, 2,018 guns, 38,600 prisoners.

Disabled—1,500,000 Germans.

Yesterday's gains moving in on Bryansk from the north and south and sweeping toward Nezhin and Priluki, stepping stones to the Nazi Dnieper bastion of Kiev, brought new waves of Soviet optimism.

Red Fleet, Russian Navy newspaper, said "the Germans are now talking about the Dnieper line. But our divisions will reach the Dnieper and prove there as they proved on the Mius and Donets

JAPS' PLIGHT WORSE AT LAE

Australian Force Crosses Busu River Near Airport, MacArthur Reports

SEP 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Saturday, Sept. 11—The Japanese garrison's situation at Lae, New Guinea, now is desperate, General MacArthur's headquarters said today.

Above the air base, Australians have crossed the Busu river near the Malahang airdrome and their patrols have encountered enemy resistance. This is the force which landed from the sea September 4 and now has wheeled up 25-pounders to pour shells into Lae.

Tighten Salamaua Pressure

Eighteen miles below Lae other Allied troops enveloping the air base of Salamaua tightened their pressure.

More than one hundred miles above Lae at Madang, Mitchell medium bombers destroyed or damaged twenty-one of the supply barges on which the Japanese rely so heavily.

On the southern coast of Dutch New Guinea, not far from its boundary with the Papuan peninsula, sixteen Japanese bombers attacked Allied-held Merauke. Three of the raiders were listed as possibly destroyed.

"Closing On Main Citadel"

"Our forces from both sides are rapidly closing in on the main citadel of defenses" at Lae, today's communique said.

"The enemy's position now is desperate.

"Our Salamaua pressure still pins down his forces on the south."

The Australians crossed the Busu river, two miles from the Malahang field, in limited numbers. Rising waters hindered a major movement.

Advance Units 8 Miles Off

To the northwest of Lae, a rapidly growing force has advanced in strength to the vicinity of Narakopor in the Markham valley. That is twelve miles from Lae. Forward elements, however, have moved near Heath's Planatation, an enemy strong point only eight miles from the air base.

The Markham valley force has moved ahead from positions seized twenty miles from Lae by paratroopers September 5. Since then, big air transports have moved in reinforcements from Port Moresby in a steady stream.

In the air assault in the Madang area, the Mitchells also hit motor trucks at Alexishafen and exploded ammunition dumps near Saidor.

For the first time since the start of the battle for New Guinea, the Japanese defenders of Lae and Salamaua are facing an Allied force equal in strength to theirs.

Air Transport Fleets Reinforce Armies Closing In on Lae

Advancing Allied Troops Meet Little Opposition Near Jap Air Base

SEP 11 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 10.—Troops and guns sped hourly over the Owen Stanley Mountains today from Port Moresby, New Guinea, to reinforce Gen. Douglas MacArthur's armies moving virtually unopposed from two sides on Japan's bomb-smashed air base at Lae.

This swift massing of forces brought the zero hour near for Lae, with veteran Australian troops only 2 miles from an airdrome on its northeastern outskirts and forward elements of Americans and Australians less than 10 miles away to the northwest.

(Field dispatches said Allied artillery already has opened fire on Japanese forces at Lae. Australian 25-pounders were reported by Associated Press War Correspondent Olen Clements to have laid down a barrage on the base while some attacking Australian units crossed a river outside the Lae defense perimeter and expected enemy action at any time.)

Air Power Strikes Swiftly.

Activity at airdromes around Port Moresby, 200 miles south of Lae, makes New York's La Guardia Field look like an emergency landing strip. From the moment after dawn when the cloud masses lift from the Owen Stanleys until they close down again in the afternoon over the 10,000-to-12,000-foot ranges, there is rarely a minute when a formation of transports is not in the air over the Moresby fields.

The Olive-drab-painted transports lumber on and off the main runways, nose to tail, like elephants in a circus ring. Fleets of jeeps and trucks, helping load, stir clouds of dust which cake the sweat-soaked Australians and Americans, making them almost indistinguishable from the dusky-skinned fuzzy wuzzie stevedores.

The transports land behind Lae in the Markham Valley on the Nadzab airstrip, seized Sunday by paratroopers. Gen MacArthur is using air power to strike swiftly and destructively at the enemy.

Little Japanese Opposition.

Neither the Markham Valley forces nor the Australians who went ashore last Saturday above Lae have as yet run up against sizable opposition—nothing larger than the 100 Japanese the African-seasoned Australians easily whipped at Singaua Plantation. Clouds of black dust, rather than the Japanese, have slowed up the valley troops. And the Australians above Lae, now laboring to wheel artillery into position, have encountered most of their trouble from swamp and jungle.

Inside Lae, if the Japanese choose to fight, they must do so from fortifications virtually in ruins from the 500 tons of bombs which Liberators and Mitchells have dropped on them within a week.

"Artillery has been demolished, installations destroyed or disrupted and troops heavily punished," today's communique said.

In addition to disclosing the latest advances and the dropping of 73 more tons of bombs on Lae defenses, headquarters reported that naval units have strafed the Finschhafen coastal area 60 miles above Lae and shelled the water front at Salamaua, 18 miles below it.

Within the encircled Lae-Salamaua area, which has three good airdromes, a Japanese army now is trapped. Some estimates place its size at 20,000 men.

3 SENATORS INSPECT BUNA

Fly Over Owen Stanley Range to Visit Battle Scene

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 10 (AP)—Three members of the United States Senate's five-man committee touring American battlefronts flew across the Owen Stanley Mountain range today to view last December's battle grounds at Buna.

Senators Ralph C. Brewster, Republican of Maine; James M. Mead, Democrat of New York, and Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican of Massachusetts, spent the morning driving in jeeps past airdromes and installations at a forward base to view Buna village and government station.

Lieut. Gen. Edmund Herring, Australian commander of Allied ground forces during the Buna campaign, escorted the Congressmen and explained the actions that led to the expulsion of the Japanese from Papua early this year.

The party paused at a cemetery near Buna where 400 trim white crosses mark the graves of American dead.

Senator Albert B. Chandler, Democrat of Kentucky, visited hospitals and military installations in the Port Moresby area. The fifth committee member, Senator Richard R. Russell, Democrat of Galveston, spent the morning abed due to a slight illness.

uman Group Members Favor Aleutians Bases

By the Associated Press.

KISKA ISLAND, Sept. 6 (Delayed).—Members of the Truman Committee came to this distant Aleutian island today, three weeks behind the United States and Canadian reoccupation forces, and expressed the belief that Kiska and Attu should be developed into major bases.

The visitors were Senators Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan and Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia. Traveling by airplane, they also visited Attu Island, 150 miles farther west.

The Senators and their party visited the Massacre Valley and Chichagof battlegrounds at Attu, but stopped only briefly on Kiska, still littered with the weapons and castoff equipment of the fleeing Japanese.

The Senators declared the Aleutians form a natural short route to Japan and that Kiska and Attu should be developed fully.

They returned to the Alaska mainland September 8.

Two Miles From Vila Airdrome

Guadalcanal, Sept. 7 (Delayed, A.P.)—American ground forces occupied Bomboe village in the extreme north of Arundel Island in the New Georgia group today and were only two miles across Blackett Strait from Japanese-held Vila airdrome on Kolombangara Island.

[Although the occupation of Arundel Island was announced in an Allied headquarters communique August 30, it was acknowledged September 9 that some Japanese still were resisting in the north.]

AIR AWARDS GIVEN TO NEW YORK MEN

Courage of Late Brooklyn Flier in Southwest Pacific Brings a Second Decoration

FAR EAST HEROES HONORED

Two From This Area Are Cited for Exploits in Operations From India and China

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 2 (Delayed) (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, announced today awards to six airmen from New York State.

Lieut. Hamilton H. Salmon 3d of 111 Hilton Avenue, Garden City, and Second Lieut. Richard J. Polhamus Jr. of 81 Grandview Avenue, Dobbs Ferry, received the Air Medal for participating in twenty-five operational flights "during which hostile contact was probable and expected. These operations included escorting bombers and transport aircraft, interception and attack missions and patrol and reconnaissance flights. In the course of these operations strafing and bombing attacks were made from dangerously low altitudes, destroying and damaging enemy installations and equipment."

The courage and determination which led to four direct hits on an enemy cargo ship during an attack on a Japanese convoy near Rabaul, New Britain, last Dec. 26, were recognized in the posthumous award of an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of the second award of the Air Medal to Second Lieut. Howard F. Schertzer of 611 Argyle Road, Brooklyn.

Capt. Roberts S. Holt of 24 State Street, New York City, received the Distinguished Flying Cross for personal bravery when, as a member of a B-24 crew, he assisted in shooting down six Zeros when intercepted by twelve enemy fighters after bombing the airdrome at Lae, New Guinea, Jan. 8.

Lieuts. Walter M. Markey Jr. of 450 City Island Avenue, City Island, and John G. O'Neill of Gasport, also received the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Their citation was for "extraordinary achievement while participating in fifty operation flight missions in the southwest Pacific area, during which hostile contact was probable and expected. These operations included escorting bomber and transport aircraft, interception and attack missions and patrol and reconnaissance flights. In the course of these operations strafing and bombing attacks were made from dangerously low altitudes, destroying and damaging enemy installations and equipment."

Second Lieut. Richard E. Clements of 22 Althea Lane, Larchmont, N. Y.; Technical Sgt. Frank L. Gunio Jr. of North Andover, Mass.; Staff Sgt. Henry W. Ley of New Haven, Conn., and Staff Sgt. Ralph R. Perrone of 346 East 105th Street, New York City.

Air Medals were awarded to these members of a bombardment group for participating in combat, missions totaling more than 100 hours:

Second Lieut. Kenneth B. Kinney of Gouverneur, N. Y., and Second Lieut. Arthur G. Lynch of 39 Main Street, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Legion of Merit for Tarrant

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Vice Admiral William T. Tarrant (retired) received the Legion of Merit from Secretary Knox today for service in the First Naval District, Boston, in directing anti-submarine operations.

The Secretary also presented to Commander Bartholomew W. Hogan of the Medical Corps a Silver Star Medal for his heroic care of wounded men on the sinking aircraft carrier Wasp last Sept. 15. The officer, now on duty at the Navy Department here, lives in West Newton, Mass.

Wounded Americans Amaze 'Aussies' by Display of Courage

By DEAN SCHEDLER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 10.—Reports reaching headquarters from the area where American and Australian paratroopers landed in the Markham Valley September 5 reveal amazing fortitude among the United States wounded and astonishing speed in placing the Australian artillery in fire.

Although the landing was unopposed, there were a few casualties. These were brought to the evacuation center by old, experienced Australians of the New Guinea governmental force known as "the Australian-New Guinea Administrative Unit," commonly called the "ANGAU."

The Australians landed Sunday and less than three hours later their guns were ready to fire. The artillery was dismantled in pieces weighing from 130 to 400 pounds and scattered over a mile area in deep grass.

Munitions Dropped Accurately.

The Australians were highly pleased with the transport pilots' accuracy in dropping ammunition. The shell cases were placed within 50 yards of the gun positions.

On Monday, the experienced Australians set off with 60 natives to find casualties reported near the Nadzab-Lae road.

They returned late that night with six paratroopers in jungle stretchers carried on the shoulders of New Guinea natives.

"I'm very proud to be associated with such men—they're really splendid beyond words," were the first words the ANGAU sergeant said upon entering camp with the wounded.

"Always they would greet us with a smile. Never once did I hear a moan or a whisper although they'd been lying all one day and one night in the jungle."

Amazed at Courage.

He expressed amazement at the courage of one paratrooper. The man had fallen awkwardly and had badly splintered the bone in the lower part of one leg.

The ANGAU sergeant said that in his position, many New Guinea bushman would have done just one thing—put a bullet through his head. Here's what that American did, according to the sergeant:

"He took his long jungle knife and, with adhesive tape from his medical kit, made a splint. It was wonderful the way he had fashioned that splint. Then he began to crawl. He didn't crawl the normal way—he couldn't. He crept with his face to the sky, edging along on his back. He'd gone a mile when we got to him. He looked up and just grinned."

Asked why he didn't use the morphine in his jungle medical kit as he must have been in great agony, the man replied that it might give him a headache afterward.

Among the Americans who made the leap was the oldest paratrooper in the United States Army—First Sergt. Lonzie Sweatmon, Augusta, Ga., redheaded, blue-eyed and 41, with a 17-year Army record.

Allied Big Guns Open Fire On Japs At Lae

SEP 11 1943

By Olen Clements
[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the Australians Outside Lae, Sept. 10—Allied field artillery today began pounding the Japanese who are entrenched in their northeastern New Guinea base at Lae.

Attacking Australian units crossed a swift and wide river outside the Lae defense perimeter into high kunai grass and swamps where they expected to make contact with the enemy momentarily.

Lay Down Barrage

Anzac 25-pounders which dealt Germans and Italians so much in desert battles of the Middle East were used to lay down a barrage upon the enemy. The Australians were eager for close action and say that the Japanese who were dug in at Lae have dug their own graves.

(Today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the northeastern arm of a pincers on Lae had reached the Busu river, within two miles by air of Malahang airdrome and that artillery was being brought up to develop attack positions.)

Drive On Airdrome

Australian infantrymen were moving in toward Japanese-held Malahang airdrome, just outside Lae.

Little contact with the enemy has been made since a patrol group of one hundred was surprised on Singaua plantation six miles from Lae.

Thirty Japanese were killed there in a battle before retreating. On the banks of the Bunga river back toward Lae a small patrol of Australians again attacked the retreating enemy patrol and killed eight more.

Shelled By Fleet

A few hours after the brush with the enemy patrol, Allied naval forces slipped into Huon Gulf under the cover of darkness and subjected the Japanese to heavy shelling.

The American air force has been pouring tons of bombs on Lae.

The Japanese air force has been able to stage a few raids on Allied supply lines and the beachhead east of Lae.

There have been a few casualties on the beach and a few at sea when a transport was hit, but Allied leaders say the cost of the operation has been surprisingly small.

Says Japs Fold Up

Men who have met the Germans, Italians and the Japanese put the Japanese just a notch ahead of the Italians as fighting men.

"You watch," grinned an Australian sergeant. "When we get in close to the Jap, he'll turn tail or fold up."

CHINESE SEE WAR'S END

Sun Fo and Army Spokesman Predict German Collapse in '44

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 10 (AP)—A prediction that Germany will collapse within a year was made today by Sun Fo, President of the Chinese legislative Yuan and son of Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Republic.

The Chinese Army spokesman, Major Gen. Pao Kai, went even further at a press conference, predicting that the war would end by autumn of next year at the latest.

Sun Fo, a former Cabinet Minister, expressed the belief that Italy's unconditional surrender "will release a mighty Allied battle fleet which will soon be employed to crush the enemy in the Pacific."

Argentine Interior Minister Given Admiral Storni's Post

SEP 11 1943

Gilbert Named Acting Chief Of Foreign Office—Two Other Officials Relieved Of Positions

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10—Minister of the Interior Alberto Gilbert today was named acting Foreign Minister to succeed Vice-Admiral Segundo Storni who resigned yesterday. Gilbert will continue his duties as head of the Interior Department until a permanent successor to Storni is named, an announcement said.

Storni's resignation followed the refusal of the United States Government to lend-lease military equipment to Argentina and a rebuke by Secretary of State Hull to to the Argentine Government for continued relations with the Axis.

A police guard has been assigned to the United States Embassy to prevent any possible public demonstrations.

It was announced also that Roberto Gache, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and Ricardo Bunge, and head of the division of political affairs, had been relieved of th[illegible]sts. Oscar Ybarra Garcia was named as under secretary. Ybarra [illegible]ia has been liaison officer between the foreign office and the war and navy ministries.

Earlier in the day it was disclosed that two Americans, David Matson, of Roanoke, Va., and Charles Batchelder weer among six officers of the American-controlled Argentina del Norte Electric Company and the Tacuman Hydro-Electric Company were notified yesterday by the police that they were free from the surveillance by the police.

The six, who also included two British subjects and two Argentinians, had been under "house restraint" since arrest last Saturday in connection with an investigation of the firms with which they were connected.

In the meantime, the United States Embassy was still awaiting a reply from the Argentine foreign office to three requests for an explanation of the detentions.

Argentina Releases Utility Officers From Surveillance

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 10.—Six officers of the American-controlled Argentina del Norte Electric Co. and the Tucuman Hydroelectric Co. were notified by police yesterday that they were free from the surveillance to which they had been subjected since their arrest last Saturday in connection with an investigation of the firms.

The officers include two Americans, David Matson of Roanoke, Va., and Charles Batchelder; two British subjects and two Argentines. All had been under house restaint since they were permitted to leave police headquarters several hours after they were detained at the requst of the federal interventor of Tucuman Province.

Meanwhile, the American Embassy was awaiting a reply from the Argentine Foreign Office to three requests for an explanation of the detentions.

U. S. Embassy Guarded

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10—A police guard was assigned to the United States Embassy today to prevent any possible public demonstrations there resulting from the resignation of Foreign Minister Segundo Storni.

Storni resigned last night following the failure of his bid for lend-lease aid from the United States.

Although there have been no incidents, uniformed police circulated in the downtown building where the United States Embassy maintains its offices, and mounted police patrolled the streets.

Storni Criticized

Storni submitted his resignation last night to President Pedro Ramirez under a barrage of criticism from the Nationalist press, which took the view that he had exposed Argentina to an open rebuke from the United States.

The Foreign Minister had been under fire since Secretary of State Hull rejected his request for lend-lease on the ground that Argentine had failed to do her share in protecting the Western Hemisphere.

Claimed Ramirez Backing

Although Storni declared in his letter to Hull appealing for lend-lease that he was acting with the authorization of President Ramirez, some Cabinet members apparently regarded the note as ill advised and ineptly phrased.

The pro-Axis newspaper Pampero went so far as to assert that it was evident the Government contained a representative who failed to express Argentina's sentiments.

Favored Break From Axis

Since taking office, Storni had made it evident that he personally believed Argentina's place was at the side of the other American republics and that severance of relations with the Axis would be a normal development.

There seemed reason to believe however, that he was disappointed in his inability to develop Argentine foreign policy along the lines he had conceived.

Approved Editorial Criticism

Storni gave a hint of this Wednesday when he voiced approval of an editorial in the Buenos Aires newspaper Noticias Graficas, which said that "the Argentine Government, created June 4, has not followed the feelings and hopes of the country in the matter of international policy."

The paper subsequently was suspended for an indefinite period.

Argentina's Future Uncertain Following Storni Resignation

By the Associated Press.

Argentina's prestige as a major Latin American power was at stake today following the resignation of Foreign Minister Segundo Storni in the wake of Secretary of State Hull's refusal of lease-lend aid.

There apparently was no immediate out for the only country in the Western Hemisphere continuing to maintain diplomatic relations with the Axis, but it was conceded generally that Argentina faced at least an uncertain future.

Storni was regarded in official quarters here as the most pro-United States member of the Argentine government, which unseated by revolution the conservative regime in June, and one authoritative source went so far as to say the former foreign minister was being made the "goat" for a government which professed to be pro-Allied.

Might Unseat Government.

Two moves were considered as possible: A surge of the populace to unseat the government, or action by dissatisfied military leaders to demand a change in an effort to get sorely needed material.

Storni had suggested to Secretary Hull that the United States might make a gesture of "genuine friendship" by providing urgently needed armaments and equipment.

An early diplomatic break between Argentina and the Axis was regarded as unlikely in authoritative circles, especially so in view of Italy's capitulation. Argentina, one source said, would not wish to be in the position of Italy when that European nation joined the Axis, when the Allied cause looked worst.

In his resignation to President Ramirez last night, Storni said he had tried "to collaborate in the best manner possible" and that he was "moved only by patriotic interest."

Brazil was regarded as the nation that would emerge as the leader in Latin America, outstripping Argentina as an industrial country.

No Official News of Resignation.

The State Department still had no official news of Storni's resignation. One question raised was whether the remainder of the cabinet would follow.

A high authoritative source said Storni had no choice but to resign and that "some one had to be the victim."

Stress was placed, however, on Storni's successor—will it be some one sharing Storni's views toward the United States, or some one cool toward this Nation?

Secretary Hull, rejecting Argentina's bid for lease-lend on Tuesday, charged "it is notorious that Axis agents in Argentina have been and are engaging in systematic espionage against the United Nations" and "vicious propaganda against the United Nations is published in Argentina."

He added that "failure of the Argentine government to comply with its inter-American commitments has not only resulted in the non-participation of Argentina in defense of the continent in a most critical period, it is also depriving Argentina of participation in the studies, discussions, meetings and arrangements designed to solve the postwar problems."

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10 (AP)—Two bottles containing inflammable liquid were hurled through the office windows of the pro-Fascist Italian language newspaper, Il Mattino D'Italia, tonight, but did little damage aside from glass breakage.

Police chased two persons sighted in the street at the time, arresting one of them.

PUERTO RICO LOSING RUM

Tugwell Acts to Keep Enough Molasses to Save Industry

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 10 (AP)—Extinction of the Puerto Rican rum industry for the duration with "grave results" to the insular Government's budget was indicated today by Gov. Rexford Tugwell, when he said that the purchase of the entire molasses supply of the island by "a certain governmental agency" was imminent.

He announced the appointment of Teodoro Moscoso, head of the Puerto Rican Development Company, as a special representative of the insular Government and said that Mr. Moscoso would go to Washington, probably next week, in an effort to keep enough molasses in the island to continue the rum industry.

The Government has received $18,000,000, one-third of the general fund revenues, from rum taxes.

Puerto Rican To Trinidad

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 10 (AP)—Trinidad is being garrisoned by troops from Puerto Rico, United States possession in the West Indies. The first detachment arrived here recently to take its place beside British, American and other United Nations forces.

Maj. Gen. Joseph D. Patch, commanding officer in the Trinidad sector, wrote an official welcome to the troops in the TNT (the Trinidad News Tips), organ of the United States Army in this area.

Freight Handlers In Canada Strike

MONTREAL, Sept. 10 (AP)—A strike of 1,800 Canada Steamship Lines freight handlers along the St. Lawrence waterways was announced today by F. H. Hall, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL).

Hall said that "within the next 24 hours the movement of freight by water on C. S. L. ships from Quebec to Lakehead will be at a standstill."

He said the strike was "in protest over the delay on the part of the Canadian War Labor Board in dealing with a requested wage increase, application for which was submitted to the board June 22."

Canadian Steel Workers Granted Pay Increases

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—The National War Labor Board announced yesterday it had granted a general wage increase of 6½ cents an hour to employes of the Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. at Sydney, Nova Scotia, who were receiving more than the base rate of 43½ cents an hour last March 23.

Workers at the Algoma Steel Corp. plant at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, who were receiving more than the base rate of 45½ cents March 23, were granted a general increase of 4½ cents an hour.

The board turned down an application by United Steelworkers of America for an increase in the basic rate from 50 cents an hour to 55 cents.

The judgment said, the workers may apply to the regional boards of Ontario and Nova Scotia, despite the national board's refusal to grant the increase.

Many Problems Raised By Service-Ballot Law

SEP 11 1943

By James Marlow and George Zielke
[Associated Press Correspondents]

Washington, Sept. 10 — The prickly question of soldier voting will get an ironing October 19-21, when the National Association of Secretaries of State meets in St. Louis.

The War, Navy and Justice departments are expected to have representatives there to help the secretaries smooth out the burrs.

Willing To Help Voters

Leo Seybold, director of the Washington office of the Council of State Governments, said State secretaries had expressed a willingness to help men and women in the armed services vote in 1944's Presidential election.

But the voting requirements of the various States differ and some attorneys general have given their State secretaries varying opinions on the law passed last September.

Vote For Federal Officials

That law would permit men and women of the armed services—within the United States and overseas—to vote in elections for President, Vice-President and Congressmen.

Bottlenecks already have bobbed up in the law and its authors, Democratic Senators Lucas, of Illinois, and Green, of Rhode Island, now have in Congress a bill to amend it.

Further Changes Likely

Even that bill may undergo further tailoring but it is likely that Congress will withhold action until after the St. Louis meeting.

A political commentator recently raised questions about soldier voting. One is a stickler and some of the others are answered in the law or bill. But if he was puzzled, perhaps others are, too.

Here are some questions and answers:

Questions And Answers

Q. Is every man in uniform to be allowed to vote or only those over 21 years old?

A. The law and amending bill say any service man—or woman—is entitled to vote in the national elections if he is or was eligible to register for and is qualified to vote at any election under the law of the State of his residence.

Georgia alone has reduced the voting age from 21 to 18. But since that is State law, then presumably any Georgia man or woman in or out of service would come within the provisions of the law and bill.

Q. Will the ballots be sent to the Secretaries of State in the various States and by them to the precinct election boards?

A. That's correct.

Q. Who will count the ballots?

A. Presumably the precinct election boards, since no other provision is made for counting them. The amending bill merely provides for returning the ballots from overseas by V mail.

Red Cross Staff Excluded

Q. Is the vote to be extended to the thousands of women in uniform, Red Cross workers and army nurses?

A. Voting by army nurses and all members of the armed services' auxiliaries is provided for in the law, but not the Red Cross. However, the amending bill would allow all civilians abroad to vote.

Q. Will those qualified by age to vote be required to meet the other qualifications of the States from which they come?

A. This probably is the toughest of all questions in the problem. The law and amending bill say:

"In time of war, notwithstanding any provisions of State law relating to the registration of qualified voters, every individual absent from the place of his residence and serving in the land or naval forces of the United States . . . is entitled to . . . vote" if he is or was eligible to register for and is qualified to vote in any election under the law of his State of residence.

This seemingly leaves wide open the whole problem of qualification.

While a person who might be qualified to vote in his State doesn't have to register to vote, yet the bill does not determine who is qualified and who is not. That is still a State's job and would have to be handled on an individual basis. Some job!

Allies Seek To Block Premature Explosion

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 10—The Balkan powder keg appears perilously close to explosion today and the main concern of Allied strategists is that he blowup should not occur prematurely.

The possibility reported from London of Allied invasion of Albania, which German troops may already have occupied, serves to emphasize further the explosive forces generated in Europe's unhappy southeastern corner by the surrender of Italy.

Possible Complication

At the same time this possibility complicated the problem of timing any great outburst of pro-Allied activity in the Balkans to coincide with the blows struck against Axis forces from the outside.

It was by no means certain that an Albanian thrust, if one develops, would commit Allied armies to deeper Balkan inroads at this time. The aim could be to gain control of the eastern shores of the Adriatic entrance and to rest content with the beachhead.

Any real Balkan invasion in the Adriatic probably would come farther north, where terrain is more suitable for military operations and major objectives—the oil fields in Yugoslavia and Rumania—are nearer landing points.

Might Accompany Drive

A blow at Albania might accompany or closely precede the start of a drive into Yugoslavia. Or it might be dilvered sometime in advance of such a drive to secure the sea routes over which the invasion forces would eventually move.

Any military activity, limited or otherwise, in the Balkans area is bound to intensify, however, the explosive tensions of peoples and governments. Already there have been reports of hastily summoned war councils in the German satellite nations.

These are taken here as only the outward signs of alarm in high quarters and strong unrest among the populations.

Poses Delicate Problem

It may be expected, therefore, that some of the next major developments in Europe may come in some of those nations—Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria—or in the two conquered countries of Yugoslavia and Greece, where it is assumed that the spirit of rebellion against Nazi domination is strengthened by belief that the day for action is fast approaching.

For the Allies this poses a delicate problem of timing and control.

The first sign of an attempt at solution came in a broadcast message by General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Middle East, to Yugoslavia and Greece. He told the two countries to "await our signal for a general uprising."

Might Be Embarrassing

Because of the problem of getting troops into the Balkans an offer of surrender at present or in the immediate future might be somewhat embarrassing to the Allied commanders in the Mediterranean theaters.

If troops could not be dispatched in force Germany might take advantage of any such situation to take over the surrendering country with her own armies.

The Allied commitments in Italy have gone too far now to permit diversion of forces before the length of the boot is brought under control, offensive air bases are established and order restored generally.

The best estimate here is that it may be weeks before the British Eighth Army and the Allied army under American Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark have driven the enemy rear guards into northern Italy and come to grips with the main German force south of the Brenner Pass.

Hull Welcomes Iran Into Allied Ranks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull, receiving official word that Iran (Persia) has declared war on Germany, welcomed the country tonight into the ranks of the United Nations.

Acknowledging a notification of Iran's decision and its adherence to the Atlantic charter, Hull sent a note to Iranian Minister Mohammed Shayester saying:

"This action of the government of Iran is a new manifestation of the determination of Iran to contribute to the cause of the freedom loving nations in their struggle for victory over Hitlerism."

Iran was occupied by British and Russian troops in 1941, with assurances that the troops would be withdrawn after the termination of hostilities. It has since become a great supply base for the forwarding of aid to Russia.

LANDIS QUITS OCD TO TAKE CAIRO POST

Named Director Of Economic Operations In Middle East

Appointment By Roosevelt Carries Personal Rank Of Minister

By JOSEPH H. SHORT

[Washington Bureau of The Sun]

Washington, Sept. 10—James M. Landis, Harvard Law School dean, relinquished the directorship of civilian defense today to become director of economic operations in the Middle East with the personal rank of Minister.

The White House, in announcing the appointment by President Roosevelt, said that Mr. Landis would be the principal American civilian representative at the Middle East supply center and also would act as special assistant to the United States Minister at Cairo, Alexander C. Kirk.

The naming of Mr. Landis to the Cairo post was the second major civilian appointment in the Mediterranean war area within a week. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, designated C. B. Baldwin, former Farm Security Administrator, to be area director for Italy, in charge of coordinating all economic operations there when that country physically is conquered by the Allies.

Landis Successor Unnamed

No announcement was made as to Mr. Landis' successor as civilian defense director. Mr. Landis is on leave of absence from his job at Harvard.

The Middle East director took over the Office of Civilian Defense from Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York last year at a time when the OCD was under severe criticism in Congress. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant to Mr. LaGuardia and one of the principal objects of attack was Mayris Chaney, a dancer and close friend of the First Lady.

Mr. Landis said, in his letter of resignation to the President, that he thought he had now contributed to OCD "as much as I can give and that someone else can better further the interests of civilian defense for the months that lie ahead."

"Fine Job," Says Roosevelt

The President, in his reply, said Mr. Landis had done "a fine job" and that civilian defense "already had more than justified itself."

Mr. Roosevelt agreed with Mr. Landis that "at home, as abroad, we dare not let down in this effort to enable everyone to play his part, large or small, in the waging of this war."

"The role of civilian defense in mobilizing our American communities to this end cannot be overestimated," the Chief Executive continued, "for it affords the means for welding our people into one army that will continue to do battle in the many ways that war demands on every front that they can find.

Military Significance Hinted

"That battle can never be over here at home until victory abroad is assured."

Hinting that Mr. Landis' new duties, which have not been detailed, would have military significance, the President's letter added:

"I hope that in your new work you will find the joy that these days can be found only in working as part of a nation determined to win against forces that otherwise would destroy everything that we have ever cherished."

MORE U-BOATS ARE SUNK THAN CARGO CRAFT

OWI Reports Successful Battle Against Submarines In August

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 10—The Office of War Information reported tonight that August was "another successful month in U-boat warfare" and that more U-boats were sunk than merchant ships.

Despite a search by Allied surface and air forces, OWI said, opportunities for attacking submarines were comparatively few because the enemy made virtually no attempt to attack North Atlantic shipping.

Joint Announcement

The announcement was issued through a joint arrangement with the British Ministry of Information after consultation with the British Admiralty, United States Navy and Canadian Department of National Defense for Naval Services.

"We are ready to attack the enemy with utmost vigor should he provide the opportunity by resuming a general attack on our shipping with the very large number of U-boats at his disposal," the announcement concluded.

It was the first report on the Battle of the Atlantic since President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill disclosed that ninety U-boats had been destroyed in the months of May, June and July—a record of almost one a day.

Text Of Announcement

The text of the announcement:

"1. August has been another successful month in U-boat warfare. Owing perhaps to rearmament and other causes, there appear to have been fewer U-boats at sea than in recent months, and shipping losses have continued to decrease.

"2. It is significant that the enemy made virtually no attempt to attack North Atlantic shipping and opportunities for attacking the U-boats have been relatively few. Nevertheless U-boats have been hunted relentlessly on all stations wherever they have appeared and a heavy toll has been taken of the enemy. In fact, more U-boats have been sunk than merchant ships.

Two Forces Share Honor

"3. Surface and air forces have both contributed to this month's work by the efficiency of their escorts, patrols, and offensive operations. Shore-based aircraft have often had to face powerful enemy air opposition and carrier-borne aircraft have played a most important part.

"4. We are ready to attack the enemy with utmost vigor should he provide the opportunity by resuming a general attack on our shipping with the very large number of U-boats at his disposal."

Emmons Replaces DeWitt In Western Defense Post

Latter to Step Down Sept. 15, Gets Capital Assignment

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10 (AP).—Lieutenant General John L. DeWitt, commander of the Western theater of operations since Dec. 11, 1941, will be relieved, effective on or about Sept. 15.

He will be succeeded by Lieutenant General Delos Emmons until recently chief of the Hawaiian Department.

General DeWitt, the office of the Western Defense Command reported, has been assigned as commandant of the Army and Navy Staff College in Washington.

Under General DeWitt's direction all persons of Japanese ancestry were removed to the interior from the coastal areas of the western states. He directed operations in the reconquest of the Aleutians from the Japanese, and last week received the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Distinguished Service Medal "for outstanding leadership" in expelling "the invading Japanese from American soil."

years old, the son of an Army officer, served in the office of the chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Force, with the 42d Division, and with the 8th French Army, in the World War.

General Emmons was assigned to the Hawaiian Command ten days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, succeeding Major General Walter C. Short. The War Department announced on June 1 that Lieutenant General Robert C. Richardson had been named to replace General Emmons.

WANTS F. D. R. AT PEACE TABLE

SEP 11 1943

Wallace Suggests President Be Made Permanent Chairman

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 10—Declaring that the Roosevelt name is "the magic name all over the world," Vice-President Wallace today suggested that the President should preside at the peace table.

He told a press conference that "it is unthinkable, to my notion, that Roosevelt should not be at the peace table," and added that the President not only should be there, but ought to be "permanent chairman."

Wallace said President Roosevelt should preside over the peacemakers because of his numerous political contacts, his excellent knowledge of geography and because "we as a nation have less territorial ambition than any other nation."

Wallace's "Four W's"

Peace decisions should be made, the Vice-President emphasized, to establish a "workable world without worry—the four W's," which he termed a rephrasing of the four freedoms.

Wallace had completed an extensive tour of his home State, Iowa, and was in Chicago preparing to speak tomorrow night at a win-the-peace rally before returning to Washington.

The surrender of the Italian Government, Wallace said, indicated "peace is closer than most of us thought some months ago," but he expressed the hope the American public would not "let down" in its efforts to turn out heavy production of weapons, food and machinery.

Finds Farmers Weary

During talks among many Iowa farmers Wallace said he had detected a general feeling of weariness and of "bearing too much of the burden."

"They are feeling abused," he said, "because they work hard all week, then they go into town and run into the rationing program, and they hear a lot of critical comment about the Government."

"I understand how they feel," Wallace continued, "but I think if the farmer lived under the conditions a lot of war workers do he might find he was much happier at home on the farm where he always has plenty of food."

He said the farmer, when asking for higher prices for corn, should think about teachers, ministers and other professional workers who have had no increase in income but pay higher prices.

Battleship, Once Held Outmoded, Plays Big Role

SEP 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 10—Big ships in this war are not just sitting ducks for modern military aviation, naval experts believe.

As proof, they point to thirteen verified capital ship losses by all belligerents since the war began four years ago, compared with twenty-seven between 1914 and 1918.

Possibly six other heavyweights, four French and two Italian, have been so badly damaged in the present war as to be useless for fighting purposes.

Once Called Outmoded

Scarcely more than a year ago critics wrote off as outmoded the battleship and the battle cruiser, costing anywhere from twenty to one hundred million dollars each and years of effort to build.

However, the big gunned, heavily armored battleships, given air support and an adequate covering force of cruisers and destroyers, assumed traditional tactical roles against enemy installations in Sicily, North Africa and the Pacific.

Spearheaded Invasion

A week ago the British battleships Nelson and Rodney spearheaded an attack that poured 1,500 tons of shell into Italian coastal defenses to pave the way for invasion.

The dreadnaught had its worst inning shortly after Japan entered the war.

Jap planes destroyed the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse, the American battleship Arizona and training ship Utah, a former dreadnaugh.

Yanks Take Toll Of Japs

American air forces retaliated by destroying a 29,330-ton Jap ship of the Haruna class and, in combination with surface forces a year later, sank two other Nipponese battlewagons.

Other forms of attack took their toll of capital ships.

Torpedoes from U-boats, crashing into unarmored bottoms, destroyed the British battleships Barham and Royal Oak.

Scuttling wrecked the German pocket battleship Graf Spee and also a number of French capital ships, some of which had been badly damaged by British air and naval attacks in North African waters.

Hood-Bismarck Battle

The British battle cruiser Hood was the victim of an old-fashioned slugging match between surface forces, being blown up and sunk by the German battleship Bismarck in a great sea fight near Iceland and Greenland.

The Bismarck, although hit, managed to escape, only to be tracked down and sunk by a combined air and naval attack. Torpedo attacks by naval aircraft and a destroyer attack wrecked her steering apparatus and slowed her down. She was then blasted by British warships and sunk by torpedoes launched by HMS Dorsetshire.

Five Die In Crash Of Bomber At Norfolk

Norfolk, Sept. 10 (AP)—Five crew members of a medium army bomber were killed this afternoon when their plane broke into pieces and crashed a few hundred feet north of the municipal airport after it was reported in collision in the air with another bombing plane.

The Eastern Defense Command said the second bomber was able to reach Langley Field safely.

The bodies of four of the crash victims were taken from the wreckage of the plane, and dragging operations were conducted tonight for the fifth man, whose body fell into a branch of Little creek.

British Official Terms Yanks Goodwill Envoys

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Sir Donald Bradley Somervell, attorney general of Great Britain, last night termed American soldiers "a great army of ambassadors" and said the comradeship growing between British and American fighters would be "of great importance" in postwar co-operation between the countries.

"On the battle field, in our towns and villages, Britons and Americans are meeting, liking and learning to understand each other," he told the New York Bar Association.

Hitler's Acts Regarding Pope Are Awaited

SEP 11 1943

Germans' Announcement They Are 'Protectors' Of Vatican Arouses Speculation.

By The Associated Press

The Germans' announcement that they have become "protectors" of the Vatican raises the question whether Hitler intends to make Pope Pius II a virtual prisoner, or whether he will be deterred by the moral reaction such a step would undoubtedly arouse in neutral as well as warring countries.

Like Napoleon

If he chooses the first course, it will mark another striking parellel between the Nazi Fuehrer's career and that of Napoleon.

Pope Pius VI died a prisoner of the little Corsican.

And as it is Hitler's greed which has brought so much woe to the world, so it was Napoleon's greed which brought him into conflict with the Holy See.

In 1791 the French national assembly announced the union of Avignon and Venaissin, Papa states, with France. In the treaty of Tolentino, 1797, Pius VI was forced to recognize their union with France and also to relinquish Ferrara, Bologna and Romagna, other Papal territories, to the Cisalpine republic.

In 1798, Napoleon sent General Berthier to Rome to organize the remainder of the church states into the Roman republic. The Pope, because he would not renounce his claims, was taken away as a captive and confined in Valence, where death brought him release.

In the long history of the Roman Catholic church its head has often found his person threatened.

During the Italian revolutionist movement of 1848 Pope Pius IX was besieged in the Quirinal but escaped in disguise to Gaeta and the protection of Neapolitan King Ferdinand II. Louis Napoleon sent troops against the revolutionists and a French garrison reestablished and maintained the Papal sovereignty in Rome.

Garibaldi's Action

In 1870, however, Garibaldi brought Rome by force of arms under the kingdom of Italy, and the Papal states were seized. Pius IX shut himself up in the Vatican, a self-pronounced prisoner. The Popes remained in that status until 1929, when the Vatican treaty with Mussolini was signed. This recognized the Pope as a temporal as well as spiritual ruler.

Throughout the Middle Ages, marked by conflicts between princelings and contending nobles, the history of the Papacy is spotted with incidents of violence.

Pope John I died in 526 from the incarceration to which he was subjected by Theodoric the Ostrogoth. In 754, Stephen II was besieged by Aristulf the Lombard but was saved by King Pepin of the Franks. The Saracens threatened Leo IV in 849, but were driven off by troops he blessed.

Pope John VIII was forced to flee to France because of the plottings of feudal lords and Stephen VI was almost the perpetual prisoner of Lambert, Duke of Spoleto, who forced him to sit in judgment on and disavow the devisions of Pope Formosus.

Formosus' corpse was brought to a hearing and punished by amputation of fingers.

Benedict V also was forced into exile in the 10th century and Benedict VI was imprisoned and murdered by hostile nobles in 974. Leo IX was captured by the Normans in 1053, and Gregory VII was imprisoned by Henry IV in 1084. Clement VII was held captive for months in 1527 by Charles V.

Radio in Vatican Hits Nazi Tactics

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Vatican radio broadcast a statement from German Catholic bishops tonight asserting that the Nazi government was attempting to "de-Christianize the German people and that "church services are being made more difficult and are still being obstructed in many places."

The broadcast was reported by the Office of War Information.

The statement, which was a portion of a pastoral letter composed at the recent bishop's conference at Fulda said in part:

"We would rejoice, were it true, that in our fatherland's present dangerous and sacrificial situation everything endangering and hindering unity and peace were absent or overcome. But ufortunately we must state with deep regret that the fight against the Christian faith and the Church of Jesus Christ is still being carried on and that instruction and schooling are being used extensively to de-Christianize our people, particularly the youth; that children who were deported to the country, who are sheltered in camps, home schools and boarding schools, are being refused religious teaching, and their attendance at religious services and participating in the sacraments are in many cases made difficult, if not entirely impossible."

Brenner Pass Tunnel Damaged By Blast

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The London radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by CBS that "one of the Brenner Pass tunnels on the Austrian-Italian frontier has been damaged by an explosion."

No further details were given. The Allies have appealed to Italians to do all possible damage to German-held communication lines in Italy.

Says Norwegian Patriots Sank 3 Nazi Destroyers

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that three German destroyers had been sunk in Norway's Trondheim harbor by Norwegian patriots.

"A big fire broke out on the embankment," said the broadcast, recorded by United States Government monitors. "That is the Norwegian patriots' reply to the Germans' new, even more vicious measures in Norway."

Nazis, Japs Reach New "Complete Agreement"

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Berlin radio said tonight that the German Ambassador to Japan, Heinrich Stahmer, and the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, had reached "complete agreement with regard to the continued and further intensified collaboration between Germany and Japan."

The German broadcast, recorded by CBS, added that "today's Japanese morning press attaches special significance to the meeting," but did not explain that "significance."

Nazi Occupation 'Calamitous'

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—German claims that they had entered Rome and had assumed protection of Vatican City are viewed as calamitou by Catholic in general, the Rev. John L. Farge, S. J., executive editor of America, national Catholic weekly publication of the Jesuit order, said today.

"I feel the general Catholic sentiment will be one of extreme regret because of the faithlessness and irreligious character of the Nazis," he declared

"It's a great calamity. We view it with serious apprehension. We view it with great alarm, and it must be extremely unpleasant to the Holy See." Father La Forge said, adding that the past record of German guarantees proved them to be worthless.

LONDON, SEPT 10-(AP)-THE GREAT ALLIED EIGHT-DAY, NON-STOP AERIAL ASSAULT AGAINST THE CONTINENT--A SAMPLE OF THE MIGHTY BLOWS THAT WILL LEAD TO THE FINAL, DECISIVE DRIVE UPON GERMANY--APPARENTLY IS OVER, BUT THE MOMENTARY LULL ONLY SIGNIFIES THE BEGINNING OF A NEW PHASE OF THE WAR.

THE ROUND-THE-CLOCK AERIAL BARRAGE AND RECORD JOINT U.S.-RAF OPERATIONS DEMONSTRATED IMPRESSIVELY THE ALLIED AIR SUPERIORITY IN THIS THEATER.

NOW ALL THAT REMAINS IS THE BUILDING UP OF THIS SUPERIORITY TO THE POINT OF COMPLETE AERIAL DOMINANCE AND A REPETITION OF WHAT HAPPENED IN NORTH AFRICA AND SICILY.

THE FINAL DAY OF THE DRIVE YESTERDAY BROUGHT THE AMERICAN EIGHTH AIRFORCE TO THE PEAK OF ITS ACTIVITY.

MORE THAN 1,000 SORTIES--INDIVIDUAL PLANE FLIGHTS--WERE FLOWN BY FLYING FORTRESSES, LIBERATORS, MARAUDERS AND THUNDERBOLTS IN THE JOINT NON-STOP BOMBING OF NAZI AIRFIELDS IN FRANCE AND CHANNEL EMPLACEMENTS AND IN COLLABORATION WITH THE UNPRECEDENTED DRESS REHEARSAL OF A CROSS-CHANNEL INVASION.

THE RAF FIGHTER COMMAND ALONE FLEW MORE THAN 1,500 SORTIES YESTERDAY

INCLUDED IN THE DAYLIGHT ATTACKS BY THE AMERICAN FORMATIONS WERE THOSE AGAINST A PARIS AIRCRAFT FACTORY AND NINE NAZI AIRBASES IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

RAF MEDIUM AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS ADDED ANOTHER FIVE AIR FIELDS TO THE DAY'S TOLL.

ILLUSTRATING THE INTENSITY OF THE ASSAULT AND THE TIGHT DOVE-TAILING OF BRITISH AND AMERICAN OPERATIONS, THE IMPORTANT FRENCH CHANNEL PORT OF BOULOGNE WAS HIT BY AMERICAN MARAUDERS TWICE AND BY RAF MITCHELLS, TYPHOONS, VENTURAS AND WHIRLWINDS WITHIN 18 HOURS.

THE ST.OMER AREA WAS BOMBED SUCCESSIVELY BY AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORMATIONS. AIRFIELDS AT LILLE-NORD AND LILLE-VENDEVILLE WERE HIT FOR THE THIRD TIME WITHIN A WEEK.

THESE BLOWS AT NAZI AIR FACILITIES OBVIOUSLY MEAN THAT THERE WILL BE MUCH LESS OPPOSITION TO ALLIED ATTACKS ON GERMAN INDUSTR AND FURTHER BLOWS AGAINST THE GERMAN AIRFORCE, AND FINALLY TO AN INVASION ITSELF.

THE FLYING FORTRESS ASSAULT ON AN AIRPLANE ENGINE FACTORY IN THE PARIS AREA WAS THE FIFTH OPERATION BY THE BIG FOUR-ENGINED BOMBERS IN EIGHT DAYS--A MARK TOPPED ONLY BY THEIR SIX RAIDS IN SEVEN DAYS IN JULY.

AMERICAN MEDIUM MARAUDER BOMBERS, CRITICIZED WHEN THEY FIRST WENT INTO ACTION AS UNDULY DIFFICULT AND DANGEROUS, WERE THE HEROES OF THE EIGHT-DAY CAMPAIGN.

THEY WERE OUT EVERY DAY, BOMBING SOME 20 TARGETS INCLUDING AIRFIELDS AND RAILWAY YARDS, WITH THE LOSS OF LESS THAN HALF A DOZEN PLANES.

BERN, SEPT 10-(AP)-UNCONFIRMED REPORTS FROM ITALY TODAY SAID MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO MIGHT RETIRE AND BE REPLACED BY MARSHAL PIETRO CAVIGLIA, SAID TO BE NEGOTIATING WITH THE GERMANS FOR THEIR MOVEMENT NORTH FROM ROME.

MARSHAL CAVIGLIA RETIRED AFTER THE LAST WAR, IN WHICH HE LED THE ITALIAN TROOPS IN THEIR FIGHT ALONGSIDE THE ALLIES BUT PLAYED AN IMPORTANT BEHIND-THE-SCENES PART IN THE DOWNFALL OF FASCISM. HE IS NOTED AS AN ITALIAN LEFTIST.

IN ROME, THE STEFANI NEWS AGENCY EXPLAINED THAT CAVIGLIA, AS THE OFFICER OF THE HIGHEST RANK, HAD TEMPORARILY ASSUMED THE POWERS AND FUNCTIONS OF THE MILITARY COORDINATION IN THE CAPITAL ONLY IN THE ABSENCE OF BADOGLIO WHO IS ON A MILITARY INSPECTION TOUR OUTSIDE OF ROME.

SHORTLY AFTER CAVIGLIA ANNOUNCED THE NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE WITHDRAWAL FROM ROME, REPORTS FROM THE ITALIAN BORDER SAID THEY HAD BROKEN DOWN.

IN OTHER PARTS OF THE PENINSULA, SWISS PRESS DISPATCHES SAID THE SITUATION WAS FEVERISH.

A SWISS TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY MESSAGE FROM CHIASSO ON THE ITALIAN FRONTIER SAID ITALIAN INHABITANTS OF MILAN SPENT LAST NIGHT DEMONSTRATING AGAINST GERMAN BUSINESS AND PRIVATE BUILDINGS. PROPERTY AND GOODS OF THE FORMER ITALIAN ALLY WERE DESTROYED, IT ADDED.

"WAR BETWEEN THE ITALIANS AND GERMANS ALREADY HAS BEGUN," THE DISPATCH SAID.

IT ADDED THAT ACCORDING TO THE LATEST INFORMATION GERMAN TROOPS HAD NOT YET OCCUPIED THE CITY BUT WERE AROUND IT. ITALIAN TROOPS ARE STATIONED IN ITS PERIPHERY AND IT IS FEARED THAT AT ANY MOMENT THE TWO FORCES WILL CLASH, THE DISPATCH SAID.

UNTIL NOW THERE IS NO NEWS OF THE ARRIVAL OF ALLIED TROOPS IN NORTHERN ITALY WHERE "ITALIAN TROOPS FREQUENTLY FIND THEMSELVES IN A DIFFICULT SITUATION," THE AGENCY SAID.

FEAR OF A BREAK IN RAILROAD TRAFFIC WITH THE REST OF ITALY WAS INCREASED WITH THE FAILURE OF MANY TRAINS TO ARRIVE IN MILAN DURING THE NIGHT.

AT COMO, ON THE BORDER NORTH OF MILAN, NO GERMAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN SEEN BUT IT IS KNOWN THAT THERE ARE MANY GARRISONS IN NEARBY VILLAGES.

LAST NIGHT A FORMER SOCIALIST DEPUTY ADDRESSED A VAST THRONG AMID

3024-8277

CHEERS AND TOLD THEM THAT A CRISIS WITH GERMANY ALREADY HAD OCCURRED. HE URGED THE POPULACE TO BE FAITHFUL TO THE ORDERS OF PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO AND "CHASE THE GERMANS FROM ITALIAN TERRITORY."

"THE ITALIAN PEOPLE," THE DISPATCH SAID, "KNOW THAT THEIR COUNTRY IS DESTINED TO BECOME A BATTLEFIELD."

THE RETURN OF EVACUEES TO INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF THE NORTH HAS BEEN HALTED FOR FEAR THE ZONE WILL BECOME A BATTLEGROUND.

ORDER CONTINUED AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER WHERE ITALIAN OFFICIALS MAINTAINED SERVICES. ALONG THE ISOLATED POINT MANY PERSONS WERE ATTEMPTING TO CROSS TO SWITZERLAND.

A ROME DISPATCH SAID MARSHAL PIETRO CAVIGLIA (CORRECT) HAD ISSUED A COMMUNIQUE SAYING THAT ROME WAS ENTIRELY TRANQUIL AND THAT LIFE THERE WAS NORMAL.

"NEGOTIATIONS ARE IN PROGRESS WITH THE COMMANDER OF GERMAN TROOPS IN THE AREA FOR THEIR MOVEMENT NORTH," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

MADRID, SEPT 10-(AP)-PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO ISSUED A COMMUNIQUE TO THE ITALIAN NATION TODAY ANNOUNCING THAT ROME WAS QUIET AND NORMAL AND THAT "NEGOTIATIONS ARE UNDER WAY WITH THE COMMANDER OF THE GERMAN TROOPS IN THE ROME ZONE TO MOVE THESE TROOPS TOWARD THE NORTH."

SEP 11 1943

THE COMMUNIQUE WAS BROADCAST BY THE ROME RADIO. #

NORTH AFRICA ADD

FOR THE FIRST TIME, IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT THE NAVAL FORCES IMMEDIATELY ENGAGED IN THE LANDING OPERATIONS AT NAPLES ARE UNDER THE COMMAND OF VICE ADMIRAL HENRY HEWITT OF THE UNITED STATES NAVY. BOTH AMERICAN AND BRITISH FLEET UNITS ARE INCLUDED.

BEFORE THE THOUSANDS OF ASSAULT TROOPS SWARMED ASHORE, MINESWEEPERS PASSED BACK AND FORTH ALONG THE COAST CLEARING OUT MINES LAID OFF THE BEACHES.

THE WORK UN LOADING SHIPS AND OTHER NAVAL CRAFT HAS CONTINUED "WITHOUT INTERMISSION" EVER SINCE THE FIRST LANDING FORCES HIT THE BEACH AT 4 A.M. YESTERDAY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED.

SEP 11 1943

"THE FIRST GROUPS OF THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY HAVE SUCCESSFULLY

1943

ESTABLISHED THEIR BRIDGEHEADS IN THE NAPLES AREA IN SPITE OF STRONG GERMAN RESISTANCE," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

ALTHOUGH IT HAD BEEN ANNOUNCED THAT LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK WAS IN COMMAND OF THE ASSAULT, THIS WAS THE FIRST OFFICIAL DISCLOSURE HERE THAT THE FIFTH ARMY, TRAINING IN NORTH AFRICA FOR MONTHS, HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO UNDERGO ITS BAPTISM OF FIRE IN THIS NEW ALLIED MOVE TO CARVE A EUROPEAN LAND ROUTE TO BERLIN.

SEP 11 1943

VENTOTENE ISLAND, ABOUT TWO MILES LONG BY A MILE WIDE, WAS TAKEN IN THE EARLY HOURS OF YESTERDAY MORNING BY A DIVISIONAL FORCE THAT LANDED THERE AT ABOUT THE SAME TIME AS THE FIRST SHOCK TROOPS WERE GOING ASHORE IN THE NAPLES AREA.

THE ITALIAN GARRISON ON THE ISLAND SURRENDERED, THE WAR BULLETIN SAID.

DESPITE GERMAN RESISTANCE, BOTH FLANKS OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN THE CALABRIAN PENINSULA ON ITALY'S TOE ADVANCED ALONG THE EASTERN AND WESTERN COASTAL ROADS. HEAVY DEMOLITIONS SLOWED UP THE ADVANCES TO SOME EXTENT.

IN TAKING PIZZO, THE BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES IN THE SOUTH AGAIN RESORTED TO THE "LEAP-FROGGING" TACTICS THAT HAVE ACCOUNTED FOR SO MANY ALLIED ADVANCES ALONG THE SHORES OF BOTH SICILY AND ITALY.

"THIS TOWN WAS CAPTURED AS THE RESULT OF A SUCCESSFUL SEABORNE ASSAULT," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

YESTERDAY HEADQUARTERS TOLD OF A SIMILAR LANDING DOWN THE COAST AT VIBO VALENTIA.

MORE THAN KEEPING PACE WITH THE WEST COAST DRIVE, THE EIGHTH ARMY COLUMN ON THE EAST COAST HAS SMASHED NORTHWARD TO MONASTERACE, EASTERN TERMINUS OF THE TRANS-PENINSULAR HIGHWAY FROM PIZZO.

THIS REPRESENTS AN EAST COAST ADVANCE OF ABOUT 20 MILES SINCE THE PREVIOUS DAY.

ARRAYED AGAINST THE INVADING ALLIED TROOPS, LED BY AMERICAN LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK, WERE SIZABLE GERMAN FORCES, EQUIPPED POSSIBLY WITH HEAVY ARMOR AND IN A POSITION TO SHIFT QUICKLY TO POINTS MOST SERIOUSLY THREATENED.

GERMAN RESISTANCE PRESUMABLY IS STIFFENING AGAINST ALL ELEMENTS OF THE ALLIED MEDITERRANEAN FORCES NOW OPERATING IN ITALY UNDER THE OVER-ALL COMMAND OF BRITISH GEN.SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER, GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER'S DEPUTY COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

YESTERDAY'S HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID GEN.SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY, WITH THE CANADIAN FIRST DIVISION ATTACHED, HAD ENCOUNTERED GERMAN TROOPS FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE INITIAL LANDING ON ITALIAN SOIL A WEEK AGO TODAY.

MONTGOMERY'S FORCES WERE DECLARED OFFICIALLY TO BE IN FULL CONTROL OF ALL THE CALABRIAN PENINSULA SOUTH OF THE HIGHWAY LINKING GIOIA ON THE WEST COAST AND LOCRI, ON THE EASTERN SHORE 25 MILES ABOVE THE TIP OF THE TOE.

A BRITISH SEA-BORNE FORCE THAT SWEPT AROUND ENEMY LAND DEMOLITIONS ALONG THE WESTERN COASTAL HIGHWAY AND LANDED EARLY WEDNESDAY AT VIBO VALENTIA ON THE GULF OF EUFEMIA, 24 MILES ABOVE GIOIA, QUICKLY CONSOLIDATED ITS POSITION AND MOVED TOWARD PIZZO, FOUR MILES STILL FARTHER UP THE COAST.

(ALTHOUGH OFFICIAL QUARTERS HAVE CONFIRMED THAT ALLIED FORCES ARE IN OPERATION IN ITALY ONLY IN THE NAPLES AREA AND ON THE CALABRIAN PENINSULA, A WELTER OF REPORTS FROM NEUTRAL AND GERMAN SOURCES HAVE TALKED OF LANDINGS ELSEWHERE ALONG 500 MILES OF ITALY'S WESTERN COASTLINE, AS WELL AS ON SARDINIA AND CORSICA.

(FROM MADRID TODAY CAME A DISPATCH RELAYING UNCONFIRMED REPORTS RECEIVED FROM SWITZERLAND THAT BRITISH TROOPS, UNDER THE PROTECTION OF U.S.NAVAL FORCES, HAD LANDED AT LA SPEZIA, SITE OF AN IMPORTANT ITALIAN NAVAL BASE 75 MILES SOUTHEAST OF GENOA.

(QUOTING THE ROME RADIO, LONDON MORNING NEWSPAPERS SAID ITALY'S MOST POWERFUL WARSHIPS--THREE 35,000-TON BATTLESHIPS, THE LITTORIO, VITTORIO VENETO, AND IMPERO--HAD ESCAPED FROM LA SPEZIA WITH A FLOTILLA OF CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS. THE DAILY MAIL SAID THERE WERE INDICATIONS BRITISH WARSHIPS WERE PROVIDING PROTECTION AS THE ITALIANS STEAMED FOR ALLIED PORTS.)

EVEN THOUGH ITALY HAS BEEN TAKEN OUT OF THE WAR THROUGH UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER, A MIGHTY ALLIED AIR ARMADA STILL IS SMACKING REPEATEDLY AT VARIOUS AXIS POINTS THROUGHOUT THE LENGTH OF THE PENINSULA.

(EVEN THOUGH OCCUPATION OF AIR BASES ON THE PLAINS OF LOMBARDY ABOVE THE PO RIVER IN NORTHERN ITALY NEXT DOOR TO BOMBING TARGETS IN THE REICH IS ONE OF THE GOALS OF THE ALLIED ITALIAN CAMPAIGN, NEW LANDING FIELDS IN THE CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN SECTIONS OF THE PENINSULA WOULD BRING THE ALLIED BOMBERS THAT MUCH CLOSER TO GERMAN INDUSTRIAL CITIES.

(THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS, QUOTING SWISS FRONTIER REPORTS, REPORTED TODAY THAT BERLIN, POSSIBLY WITH THAT EVENTUALITY IN VIEW, HAD ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THAT SUCH SOUTHERN GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN CITIES AS VIENNA, MUNICH, AUGSBURG, GRAZ AND STUTTGART WOULD BE EMPTIED OF THEIR NON-ESSENTIAL POPULATION AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE.

(UNEXPLAINED AIR ACTIVITY OVER ROME LWUT NIGHT WAS REPORTED BY THE ITALIAN RADIO IN A BROADCAST HEARD IN LONDON BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION.

(THE BROADCAST SAID BOMBS DROPPED BY PLANES " OF UNKNOWN NATIONALITY" CAUSED BOTH CASUALTIES AND DAMAGE, ONE EXPLOSIVE HITTING WORKERS' QUARTERS IN THE DISTRICT OF SAN LORENZO AND ANOTHER DAMAGING AN ARCH OF THE CITY WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM.

(THE ROME BROADCAST ADDED THAT "FOR ALMOST AN HOUR THIS MORNING THE PEOPLE OF ROME HEARD THE ECHO OF A VIOLENT GUN BARRAGE SOUTH OF THE CITY.")

"ITALIAN WARSHIPS AND MERCHANT MEN IN THE AEGEAN SEA HAVE BEEN TAKEN OVER BY THE GERMAN NAVY.

"ITALIAN AIRFIELDS AND THE MOST IMPORTANT HARBORS OF THE ADRIATIC COAST HAVE BEEN OCCUPIED. ONLY VERY ISOLATED FIGHTING IS STILL IN PROGRESS.

"THERE ARE MORE AND MORE CASES OF ITALIAN DETACHMENTS JOINING THE GERMAN ARMY EVERYWHERE IN ORDER TO CONTINUE THE FIGHTING.

"THUS A TREASON GREATER AND MORE CUNNING THAN ANY WHICH CAN BE FOUND ONLY WITH DIFFICULTY IN HISTORY HAS REFLECTED ON THE TRAITORS THEMSELVES.

"THE ITALIAN ARMED FORCES EXIST NO LONGER. BUT WHAT WILL CONTINUE TO EXIST FOR ETERNITY WILL BE THE DISDAIN OF THE WORLD TOWARDS THE TRAITORS."

A SOLDIER'S MEDAL WAS AWARDED TO S/SGT. GEORGE B. CRANDALL OF (144 YALE AVENUE) SALT LAKE CITY, FOR HEROISM HE DISPLAYED WHEN A MEDIUM BOMBER CAUGHT FIRE DIRECTLY BENEATH THE WING TANKS DUE TO A SHORT CIRCUIT.

"AS THE BRAKES WERE SET," THE GENERAL ORDER READ, "THE CREW WAS UNABLE TO TOW THE AIRCRAFT FROM THE REVETMENT INTO THE OPEN IN ORDER TO FACILITATE EXTINGUISHING THE BLAZE. THIS BLAZE WAS CENTERED IN THE LEFT NACELLE DIRECTLY BENEATH THE WING TANK WHICH WAS PARTIALLY FILLED WITH GASOLINE. FULLY REALIZING THE DANGERS INVOLVED, SERGEANT CRANDALL ENTERED THE PLANE AND RELEASED THE BRAVES, THUS ALLOWING IT TO BE TOWED INTO THE OPEN WHERE THE BLAZE COULD BE EXTINGUISHED. THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF THIS ACT, WHICH RESULTED IN THE SAVING OF THE AIRPLANE, REFLECTS MUCH CREDIT UPON SERGEANT CRANDALL AND THE MILITARY SERVICE."

LT. EDWARD L. RATHBUN OF (4348 BROADWAY) OAKLAND, CALIF., WAS AWARDED A PURPLE HEART FOR A WOUND HE RECEIVED WHILE PARTICIPATING IN AERIAL COMBAT OVER UPPER ASSAM, INDIA.

"AS A MEMBER OF THIS COMMAND," THE GENERAL ORDER SAID, "HE HAS GIVEN FAITHFUL AND MERITORIOUS SERVICE IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC,SEPT. 11-(SATURDAY)-(AP)-FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE START OF THE BATTLE FOR NEW GUINEA THE JAPANESE DEFENDERS OF THE LAE AND SALAMAUA AIRBASES ARE FACING AN ALLIED FORCE EQUAL IN STRENGTH TO THEIRS.

ONLY AT GUADALCANAL HAVE THE TWO SIDES COME TOGETHER IN EQUAL FORCE PREVIOUSLY, AND THERE THE JAPANESE WERE ROUTED COMPLETELY.

AND THE POWER OF THE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN UNITS IS BRINGING THE FALL OF THOSE AIRDROMES CLOSER BY THE HOUR.

AUSTRALIAN VETERANS OF AFRICAN FIGHTING, WHO WERE LANDED ON HUON GULF EAST OF LAE JUST A WEEK AGO BY AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS UNITS, NOW ARE TWO MILES FROM AN AIRFIELD ON THE NORTHEASTERN OUTSKIRTS OF LAE AFTER ADVANCING SEVERAL MILES THROUGH JUNGLES.

SOUTHWEST OF LAE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIANS PARATROOPERS WERE TEN MILES FROM THE AIR BASE AND WERE CLOSING IN FROM THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION OF THE OTHER FORCE. THE PARATROOPERS HAVE MOVED FORWARD ABOUT TEN MILES SINCE THEY WERE DROPPED FROM PLANES IN MARKHAM VALLEY LAST SUNDAY.

NEITHER OF THE TWO ATTACK FORCES HAS MET SERIOUS OPPOSITION YET, THE FRIDAY ALLIED HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT DAY. HOWEVER, THE MAIN POWER OF THE JAPANESE IS BELIEVED CONCENTRATED FOR THE CLOSE DEFENSE OF LAE AND SALAMAUA.

ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS ARE BEING FLOWN IN LARGE NUMBERS OVER THE OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS FROM PORT MORESBY, NEW GUINEA, TO THE AIRDROME IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY, WHICH WAS OCCUPIED BY THE PARATROOPERS

ARTILLERY HAS BEEN MOVED UP BY THE AUSTRALIANS AND THE SHELLING OF LAE ALREADY HAS STARTED. IN ADDITION, 73 MORE TONS OF BOMBS WERE DROPPED BY THE AIR FORCE UPON DEFENSES THERE TO BRING THE TOTAL TO ABOUT 500 TONS DURING ONE WEEK.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS SAID THE FORTIFICATIONS OF THE TOWN WERE VIRTUALLY IN RUINS FROM THE HEAVY BOMBINGS.

NAVAL UNITS MADE ANOTHER FORAY INTO HUON GULF AND SHELLED THE WATERFRONT AT SALAMAUA. THE FINSCHHAFEN COASTAL AREA, 80 MILES NORTH OF LAE, ALSO WAS STRAFED BY THE NAVY AND TWO BARGES GROUNDED. THE ONLY DEVELOPMENTS REPORTED IN THE SOLOMONS WERE SMALL ATTACKS ON JAPANESE BARGE AND SUPPLY BASES.

WITH THE AUSTRALIANS OUTSIDE LAE, SEPT.10--ALLIED FIELD ARTILLERY TODAY BEGAN POUNDING THE JAPANESE WHO ARE ENTRENCHED IN THEIR NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA BASE AT LAE.

ATTACKING AUSTRALIAN UNITS CROSSED A SWIFT AND WIDE RIVER OUTSIDE THE LAE DEFENSE PERIMETER INTO HIGH KUNAI GRASS AND SWAMPS WHERE THEY EXPECTED TO MAKE CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY MOMENTARILY.

ANZAC 25-POUNDERS WHICH DEALT GERMANS AND ITALIANS SO MUCH IN DESERT BATTLES OF THE MIDDLE EAST WERE USED TO LAY DOWN A BARRAGE UPON THE ENEMY. THE AUSTRALIANS WERE EAGER FOR CLOSE ACTION AND SAY THAT THE JAPANESE WHO WERE DUG IN AT LAE HAVE DUG THEIR OWN GRAVES.

(TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE FROM GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS SAID THE NORTHEASTERN ARM OF A PINCERS ON LAE HAD REACHED THE BUSU RIVER, WITHIN TWO MILES BY AIR OF MALAHANG AIRDROME AND THAT ARTILLERY WAS BEING BROUGHT UP TO DEVELOP ATTACK POSITIONS.)

ADAK ISLAND, THE ALEUTIANS, SEPT.10-(AP)-DESPITE COLD WINDS AND PENETRATING FOGS, THE HEALTH OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AT ALEUTIAN BASES, INCLUDING THE RECOVERED ISLAND OF ATTU AND KISKA, WAS REPORTED TODAY TO BE GOOD.

REAR ADMIRAL W.L.MANN, JR., NAVY SENIOR MEDICAL OFFICER, MADE THE REPORT AFTER AN INSPECTION TRIP ALONG THE ENTIRE ALEUTIAN CHAIN.

HOSPITAL FACILITIES ALREADY ARE WELL ESTABLISHED AT ATTU, WHICH WAS RETAKEN FROM THE JAPANESE IN MAY, AND ON KISKA, BLOODLESSLY REOCCUPIED IN MID-AUGUST.

THE RATE OF ILLNESS AMONG NAVY PERSONNEL IN THE ALASKA AREA, AS SHOWN BY SICK BAY RECORDS, HAS BEEN ONE-THIRD OF ONE PER CENT, THE ADMIRAL REPORTED, COMPARED WITH THE 2 1/2 TO 3 PER CENT NAVY AVERAGE. HE SAID HE UNDERSTOOD THAT ARMY RECORDS ALSO SHOWED THE NORTH PACIFIC WAR AREA HEALTHFUL, DESPITE THE WEATHER.

THE MOST COMMON AILMENTS LISTED WERE INFECTIONS OF THE UPPER RESPIRATORY TRACT IN WINTER.

ADMIRAL MANN SAID THE FUNGUS INFECTION KNOWN AS ATHLETE'S FOOT WAS THE ONLY AILMENT HE FOUND APPARENTLY MORE PREVALENT THAN IN OTHER AREAS. HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION IT PROBABLY WAS DUE TO HEAVY LEATHER AND RUBBER BOOTS IN WHICH THE FUNGUS FLOURISHED.

OTTAWA, SEPT 10-(AP)-THE DOMINION BUREAU OF STATISTICS TODAY ESTIMATED THE 1943 WHEAT CROP AT 296,259,000 BUSHELS--ONLY HALF THE YIELD FROM THE BUMPER 1942 HARVEST BUT STILL LARGER THAN ANY HARVEST DURING THE LEAN YEARS OF 1933-37.

ESTIMATED PRODUCTION COMPARES WITH 592,684,000 FOR 1942. THE 1943 YIELD PER ACRE OF 16.9 BUSHELS IS SLIGHTLY ABOVE THE LONG-TIME AVERAGE BUT IS ABOUT 10.5 BUSHELS AN ACRE LESS WHEN COMPARED WITH 1942. THE CROP CAME FROM 17,487,700 ACRES, SMALLEST AREA SEEDED TO WHEAT SINCE 1918.

LARGER ACREAGE SOWN TO OATS AND BARLEY OFFSET TO SOME EXTENT LOWER PER-ACRE YIELDS OF THESE VITAL FEED CROPS THIS YEAR.

OATS PRODUCTION FOR 1943 WAS ESTIMATED AT 499,609,000 BUSHELS, A REDUCTION OF ABOUT 152,000,000 BUSHELS FROM THE 1942 HARVEST.

THE BARLEY CROP WAS PLACED AT 222,655,000 BUSHELS, SOME 36,500,000 BUSHELS LESS THAN A YEAR AGO.

RYE PRODUCTION WAS ESTIMATED AT 5,478,000 BUSHELS, ABOUT ONE-THIRD OF THE 1942 HARVEST. THIS REDUCTION WAS DUE MORE TO THE SHARP CURTAILMENT OF ACREAGE THAN TO LOWER YIELD PER ACRE.

FLAXSEED PRODUCTION WAS ESTIMATED AT 17,659,000 BUSHELS COMPARED WITH 14,994,000 IN 1942, BUT THIS INCREASE WAS DUE ENTIRELY TO EXPANSION OF ACREAGE. YIELD PER ACRE WAS PLACED AT 6.3 BUSHELS AGAINST 10 IN 1942.

GERMAN ARMY LEADERS PREDICT THAT WAR DEVELOPMENTS WILL REACH A CLIMAX WITHIN THE NEXT FOUR WEEKS.

IF WE WANTED TO BE ARGUMENTATIVE WE SHOULD, OF COURSE, POINT OUT THAT THE CONFLICT ALREADY HAS TURNED THE CORNER AND THAT HERR HITLER IS DEFINITELY ON THE WAY OUT. MAYBE THE NAZIS WOULD CONCEDE THAT IN THEIR HEARTS, FOR FROM STOCKHOLM COMES THIS AMAZING DESPATCH:

BERLIN HAS NOTIFIED THE SWEDISH STONE INDUSTRY TO HALT QUARRYING GRANITE WHICH HAD BEEN ORDERED FOR POST-WAR CONSTRUCTION OF VICTORY MONUMENTS AND OFFICIAL BUILDINGS. AN ENORMOUS CONTRACT FOR THE STONE WAS MADE AT THE START OF THE BLITZKRIEG, WHICH LONG AGO HAD THE BLITZ KNOCKED OUT OF IT.

ANYWAY, IT WOULD BE EASY TO AGREE WITH THE HITLERITE CAPTAINS THAT ANOTHER MONTH OR SO MAY PRODUCE A SITUATION WHICH WILL ENABLE US TO SEE THE END OF THE EUROPEAN STRUGGLE MUCH MORE CLEARLY. THAT LENGTH OF TIME SHOULD CLARIFY A NUMBER OF POINTS THAT WILL DETERMINE THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE FINISH WILL COME. FOR INSTANCE:

WE MUST KNOW HOW LONG IT'S GOING TO TAKE TO BREAK GERMAN RESISTANCE IN ITALY. THE NAZIS ARE SHOWING GRIM SIGNS OF FIGHT, AND IF THEY STICK TO THEIR GUNS THEY CAN CAUSE THE ALLIES A LOT OF TROUBLE AND DELAY. HOWEVER, INDICATIONS ARE THAT WE'RE NOT SENDING A BOY TO DO

A MAN'S WORK, BUT WILL CONTINUE TO LAND TROOPS UNTIL WE CAN ANNIHILATE THE ENEMY. THERE'S NO PRESENT CAUSE FOR ANXIETY.

ANOTHER MONTH OR SIX WEEKS PROBABLY WILL TELL US WHAT FURTHER INVASIONS WE ARE TO GET THIS YEAR. WE SHOULD KNOW IN THAT TIME WHETHER THE PRESENT INVASION-TYPE OF BOMBING WHICH THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AIR FLEETS ARE DOING ALONG THE FRENCH AND BELGIAN COASTS, AND THE FULL-DRESS INVASION REHEARSAL JUST HELD, ARE FORERUNNERS OF AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS AGAINST WESTERN EUROPE OR ARE MERELY PART OF THE WAR OF NERVES AND AN ATTEMPT TO DRAW GERMAN FORCES FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

WE SHOULD KNOW, TOO, WHETHER BALKANS ARE TO BE INVADED, AND JUST HOW FAR THE REBELLIOUS LITTLE AXIS SATELLITES ARE PREPARED TO GO IN REVOLT AGAINST THE MASTER GANGSTER. THINGS LOOK BLACK FOR HIM IN THE BALKANS, AND THE STORM MIGHT BREAK AT ANY TIME, QUITE APART FROM ALLIED INVASION.

IN THIS CONNECTION THE DAY IS RAPIDLY APPROACHING WHEN WE SHALL HAVE AN ANSWER TO THE WAR-LONG QUESTION OF WHETHER TURKEY WILL SEND HER BIG ARMY TO THE AID OF THE ALLIES. THE TURKS HAVE BEEN LEANING THAT WAY, AND THEY ARE AMONG THE WORLD'S FIERCEST FIGHTERS.

ANOTHER MONTH OR LESS SHOULD GIVE US THE DENOUEMENT OF THE UNBELIEVABLE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE WHICH CONTINUES TO SWEEP THE GERMANS BACK WITH A SPEED THAT THREATENS TO PRODUCE A ROUT IF THE AUTUMN RAINS DON'T ARRIVE TO SAVE THE INVADERS. TODAY AS THE NAZIS PULLED BACK TOWARDS THE PROTECTION OF THE GREAT DNIEPER RIVER DEFENSES, THE RED ARMIES WERE WITHIN EIGHTY MILES OF THAT LINE ON THE ROAD TO KIEV AND ONLY SIXTY MILES AWAY FROM THE BIG BEND NEAR THE [illegible] END OF THE R[illegible]

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT POINTS UPON WHICH WE WANT FURTHER LIGHT IS HOW THE GERMAN PUBLIC IS TAKING THE SURRENDER OF ITALY, COMING AS IT DOES ON TOP OF THE AWFUL BOMBING THEY ARE ENDURING AND THE FRIGHTFUL SACRIFICE OF BLOOD WHICH HITLER IS POURING OUT ON THE ALTAR OF HIS EVIL AMBITIONS. WE KNOW ALREADY THAT GLOOM STALKS THE FATHERLAND.

ON THIS ISSUE IT'S INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT THE ITALIAN PEOPLE HAD SICKENED OF MUSSOLINI AND FASCISM AND WAR LONG BEFORE THE HISTORIC SURRENDER.

EVEN MORE IMPORTANT IS LIKELY TO BE THE STRIKING FACT THAT ITALIANS HAVE TRUSTED THE ALLIES--INDEED WELCOMED THEM BOTH IN SICILY AND ON THE MAINLAND--AND THAT THIS TRUST IS MEETING ITS REWARD IN KINDLY TREATMENT. THAT'S GOING TO REGISTER HEAVILY IN THE MINDS OF THE GERMAN PUBLIC AND THE PEOPLES OF THE SATELLITE BALKAN STATES.

THE DEMONSTRATION THAT THE ALLIES HAVE NO HIMMLER THE HANGMAN WILL WIN A LOT OF VOTES FOR OUR SIDE.

VATICAN INTERPRETIVE

By John Evans

New York, Sept. 10-(AP)- German "protection" of Vatican City would seem to be a political gesture designed to reassure the one-third of a billion catholics of theworld.

The City of The Vatican,as it is called officially,is the world's smallest independent state. It is within the city limits of Rome,close to the bend of the Tiber river on thewestern side of the city. It is the official residence of the Pope and about 1000 persons live within the walls enclosing the 108.6 acres of ground.

Under the Lateran Treaty made by Pope Pius XI and Mussolini,Italy pledged herself to respect papal sovereignty,to treat the little state as a separate,independent country. The Pope pledged the City be be neutral in international disputes and to abstain from international settlements unless invited to be a mediator.

Since Italy is a catholic country,the German promise to "protect" the Vatican obviously is intended to quiet any fears that the Germans might seize the church state.Such fears are kept alive by Hitler's racial and religious persecutions and by theoutspoken criticisms of the Nazis frequently voiced by bishops in Germany.

The situation of Vatican City is such that heavy fighting might damage it. German headquarters were at Frascati,to the east,and the German forces probably are mainly in that area. To avoid involving Vatican city any allied attack upon the Germans wouldhave to be made from thenorth or south. United States and British forces already are at Naples and probably are moving northward.

The Germans announce an intention to occupy only certain points within Rome but if they should try to hold the city, certain to cause damage to church property. Aside from Vatican City,there are thirteen papal institutions scattered about Rome,all of them regarded as part of the littlestate and all accorded extraterritorial rights,as an embassy is in any country. In shelling thecity or bombing it there would be difficulty in sparing these church properties. Also,there are about 400 churches in Rome.

BULK OE WARSHIPS DROP ITALIAN FLAG IN ALLIED PORTS

NORGAARD

17 Sail Into Malta After Spectacular Fight with Nazi Bombers.

SEVEN CRUISERS SAFE

Other Italian Vessels Halt in Balearic Islands to Leave Roma Survivors.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 11 — (AP) The backbone of the Italian fleet —four battleships, seven cruisers and six destroyers—sailed into Allied hands at Malta today after a spectacular running battle with the German Air force which sent one battleship to the bottom.

The battleship which went down under the German attack was the 35,000-ton Roma, one of Italy's newest ships, and those arriving safely at Malta were the battleships Italia, formerly the Littorio, the Vittorio Veneto, both 35,000 tons, the Andrea Doria and the Caio Duilio, both 24,000 tons.

The cruisers included the Luigi di Savoia, Duca degli Abruzzi, the Giuseppe Garibaldi, the Eugenio di Savola, the Emanuele Filiberto Duca D'Aosta, the Raimondo Montecuccoli and the Luigi Cadorna, all 8,000 tons (the seventh cruiser was not immediately identified.

Seven Stop in Balearics

(A dispatch from Palma de Mallorca said that seven additional Italian warships stopped in ports of Spain's Balearic islands to drop wounded survivors of the Roma, most of whose 1,600 man crew was reported lost. The ships, reported en route to surrender at Gibraltar, were given 24 hours to leave. They may, however, request an extension to make repairs. The ships were not identified.

Additional Italian fleet units were expected to reach Malta shortly, marking a major bloodless victory for the Allies as land forces raced with Germany to partition the remaining assets of bankrupt Italy, which had fallen into chaos.

The major event in the Mediterranean today was the dramatic dash of Italy's fleet from the German grasp in its greatest show of spunk during the entire war, in which it has been largely inactive.

The battleships, cruisers and destroyers steamed into port under friendly escort by British warships after a half-hour battle with German bombers which attacked them off Corsica and split in two the Roma.

(La Linea dispatches corrected previous reports by saying that no Italian ships were visible at Gibraltar from the Spanish town across the frontier. They had said Friday that six Italian ships found haven there.

Many Subs Awaited

(At least five and possibly six of Italy's seven battleships have now been accounted for, and seven of its ten cruisers definitely located. Twelve of its 25 destroyers were in Allied hands or interned by the Spaniards. Fifty to 60 submarines are still unaccounted for.)

In addition to the Italian warships, there were indications that the United Nations would gain some portion of Italy's merchant fleet, although many were at northern ports now in German hands.

The 17 ships which arrived in Malta late last night and early this morning came in two flotillas from Taranto, now in Allied hands, and La Spezia, south of Genoa.

Almost from the moment they left port they were under observation of Allied reconnaissance planes which were helpless to aid them until they came within the range of Allied fighter protection.

The Germans found them near the Straits of Bonifacio between Corsica and Sardinia and a crack British reconnaissance pilot, in the rare position of an observer with a perfect, if dangerous, front seat gave a graphic account of the spectacular fight.

Describes Battle

Wing Commander H. Law-Wright told this story:

"The first sign of the attack we saw was when the ships opened fire. For a moment we thought they were firing at us and we took violent evasive action. They we saw flak bursts far above us, obviously aimed at the high-flying attack."

Commander Law-Wright piloted his Marauder out of range to give the ships' gunners free hand and the German bombers pressed the attack for a half hour.

"We saw enormous explosions on one of the battleships. Then creamy white smoke went up about three or four thousand feet. We saw a stick of four bombs aimed at a destroyer but they missed. The smoke on the battleship subsided and it looked as if it was getting under way again.

Accurate Resistance

"Throughout the attack the ships had taken excellent evasive action and their anti-aircraft fire was accurate.

"We flew over the ships and took a look at the damaged one. We arrived just as it was sinking. Under a big column of smoke we saw the stern under water and the bow sticking up. The ship appeared to break in two and folded up with the control tower and keel forming a V as the ship slowly disappeared.

"We watched the rescue operations for five minutes then turned away towards the rest of the fleet which was regaining formation. At this point we encoun ed a Junkers 88 reconnaissance aircraft. We got in a good burst at the Hun and our fire persuaded him to head for home."

The Marauder again returned to the scene of the sinking and saw a Reggio class cruiser and six destroyers steaming around a large patch of oil looking for survivors. Going back to the fleet, Commander Law-Wright saw two German planes attacking from seven to 10,000 feet.

"Every ship was putting up accurate anti-aircraft fire," he said. "It seemed impossible for any aircraft to live through it. One of the Huns dove at a steep angle, apparently out of control."

Before leaving the vessels, the wing commander signaled "au revoir" which the Italians acknowledged.

Once the ships arrived within fighter range they were covered for the remainder of the trip and one R.A.F. pilot arranged for a British warship escort.

Found Escort Vessels

He was a Squadron Leader R. H. Plumb who first saw two Italian destroyers which had become separated from the main part oof the fleet. He then found the other vessels which signalled to him they wanted a pilot to escort them to port.

Plumb flew his Baltimore in search of British vessels which he found 50 miles away. He then returned to the Italian ships and told them the British were coming.

It was not long before the two fleets met and at the same time the two straggling Italian destroyers rejoined the main body.

"The Italians vessels began to put up large clouds of white steam which I presume was the equivalent of a white flag," Plumb said. "The ships, flying the huge Italian ensigns of red, white and green, reduced their speed to almost a standstill and one British battleship began sending out signals by lamp. After receiving the acknowledgment from the Italians, the ships swung around. The Italian ships took up stations and the British battleships and destroyers sailed in a 'Vic' formation by the head. They presented a majestic spectacle as they sailed east," Plumb said.

Five Battleships Reported Safe in Allied Hands, Accounting for All But One.

KENNED

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Battleships, cruisers and other ships, forming an important part of the Italian fleet have reached Malta safely, Allied Headquarters announced today, but after escaping from German-dominated North Italian ports, one flotilla was attacked by German bombers off Corsica, a sea-and-air battle of half an hour's duration followed, and an Italian battleship was sunk.

An eyewitness account of the battle was brought in by a Royal Air Force pilot, Wing Commander H. Law-Wright, who said that the battleship was split wide open by bombs, broke in two and, assuming the shape of a V, settled below the waters.

[In a broadcast from Algiers today, NBC reported that the flotilla cleared the great naval base at Spezia twelve hours before the surrender of Italy, ostensibly for maneuvers, then fled for sanctuary at Malta.]

Battleships at Malta.

Headquarters did not specify the number of ships reaching Malta, but it was learned here that they included four battleships, seven cruisers, and six destroyers. Among the battleships were the Andrea Doria and the Guilio Cesare, both of 23,622 tons, reconditioned and modernized in 1937.

[The British radio late this afternoon said that another Italian battleship, the fifth to reach Allied hands, had arrived at Malta. In a broadcast picked up at New York by NBC, London quoted a Reuters dispatch identifying the new arrival as the 35,000-ton Vittorio Veneto. Associated Press dispatches had said earlier that with the arrival of the 35,000-ton Roma at the neutral Spanish island of Palma de Mallorca—after she had been attacked by German bombs—six of Italy's seven battleships had been accounted for. Tonight Madrid reported that it was the Roma that was sunk off Corsica. Both London and Berne had it, however, that the Roma came into Palma with many of her men wounded.]

Witness Battle From Air.

The escaping flotilla from the north of Italy was attacked in the Strait of Bonifacio while the warships were far beyond the range of protection by Allied fighter planes. Commander Law-Wright was piloting a Marauder on reconnaissance and keeping the flotilla in sight as it steamed southward.

"The first sign of attack we saw was when the ships opened fire," he said. "For a moment we thought they were firing at us, and we took violent evasive action. Then we saw flak burst far above us, obviously aimed at a high-flying attack."

The marauder flew out of range so the Italian naval gunners could have a free hand. Then, Commander Law-Wright continued: "We saw an enormous explosion on one of the battleships. Creamy white smoke went up about 3,000 or 4,000 feet."

The battleship sunk was of the largest Italian class.

Commander Law-Wright said that his crew saw four bombs aimed at a destroyer, but they missed. He continued:

"The smoke on the battleship subsided and it looked as if she were getting under way again. Throughout the attack, the ships had taken excellent evasive action and their anti-aircraft fire was accurate.

Watch Rescue Operations.

"We flew over the ships and took a look at the damaged one. We arrived just as she was sinking. Under a big column of smoke we saw the stern under water and the bow sticking up. The ship appeared to break in two and folded up with the control tower and keel forming a 'V' as the ship slowly disappeared.

"We watched rescue operations for five minutes and then turned away toward the rest of the fleet, which was regaining formation. At this point we countered a Junkers 88 reconnaissance aircraft. We got in a good burst and our fire persuaded him to head for home."

Returning to the scene of the sinking, the Marauders saw a cruiser of the Reggio class and six destroyers steaming around a large patch of oil looking for survivors. Two German planes renewed the attack from between 7,000 and 10,000 feet.

German Shot Down.

"Every ship was putting up accurate anti-aircraft fire," he said. "It seemed impossible for any aircraft to live through it. One of the Germans dived at a steep angle apparently out of control."

Before leaving the vessels, Commander Law-Wright signalled "Au revoir," which the Italians acknowledged.

On the basis of Allied pilots' reports, all ships in the fleet except one battleship, got safely to Allied ports, although the Germans also claimed the sinking of a cruiser. The ships were under constant Allied reconnaissance all the way from the Italian to Allied ports. British warships later met and escorted the Italian fleet into port.

In addition to the sunken battleship, the flotilla consisted of several warships, including cruisers and destroyers, all of which made Malta safely.

Six Accounted For.

London, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Six of fallen Italy's seven battleships had been accounted for today, and four of them were safe in Allied hands at Malta. Another, the modern 35,000 - ton Roma, was reported to have reached neutral sanctuary at the Spanish island of Palma de Mallorca in the Balearics, while one was sunk by German bombers in a fierce thirty - minute air-sea battle off the island of Corsica.

Associated Press dispatches disclosed that four battleships, nine cruisers, six destroyers and numerous smaller units had safely run the German gantlet.

Two Italian cruisers, two destroyers and two smaller units were reported to have reached the British base at Gibraltar yesterday, while a dispatch today from the neutral Spanish port of Palma de Mallorca in the Balearics told of the arrival there of twelve units of the Italian fleet.

The Associated Press dispatch from La Linea, Spain, today cast doubt, however, on the reported arrivals at Gibraltar. Eyewitnesses said there were no Italian vessels in Gibraltar Bay today.

The German radio, however, mentioned only seven ships as reaching Palma and identified the vessels as an Italian cruiser and six destroyers, and said they were interned by the Spanish authorities.

An Associated Press dispatch from Berne also said that seven Italian warships, including the 35,000-ton battleship Roma, had reached the Balearics. Wounded men from the Roma were reported to have been taken to Palma hospitals, indicating that the ship had met opposition from the Germans in her flight. The Roma is one of the most modern of Italian fighting ships, having been commissioned only in 1940. Carries nine fifteen-inch rifles.

All but one of the seven battleships believed in Italian hands when the armistice was announced were thus accounted for. It was not known whether the remaining battleship was in condition to sail from Italy as several had been damaged at various times.

Accompanying the battleships Guilio Cesare and Andrea Doria to Malta from the Italian base at Taranto were the cruisers Cadorna, 5,800 tons, and the Pompeo and the Magno, each 3,362 tons. From the Spezia base today came two unidentified battleships, six cruisers and five destroyers.

Information in London showed that the Italians had had only two heavy and nine light cruisers available at the time of the armistice, and that was exactly the number reported to be in Allied hands today.

Despite severe losses the latest accounts indicated that in addition to her battleships and cruisers Italy had three aircraft carriers, twenty-five destroyers, fifty to sixty submarines and a large number of smaller craft.

The immediate benefit of its capital ships to the Allied sea war is problematical but there were long range possibilities. It will take time to re-equip them with new guns of Allied caliber and there is also the question of manning them. It was considered that they would be useful for patrol work and hunting sea raiders but of little use in any coordinated battle action.

Airman Hovers Above as Italy's Navy Gives Up

Watches Warships Emit Clouds of White Steam as British Lead Them Off

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 11 (AP).—A majestic spectacle as Italian warships, sending up clouds of white steam, surrendered at sea to British warships forming a "V" to escort them to Malta was described today by a Royal Air Force squadron leader who arranged the rendezvous.

The airman, R. H. Plumb, of Birmingham, England, gave a dramatic eye-witness account of the surrender.

He first sighted two Italian destroyers which had become separated from the main part of the fleet during or after the battle in which German bombers sank a battleship, the Roma.

Then he found other vessels which signaled to him that they wanted a pilot to escort them to port. Plumb flew his Baltimore plane in search of British vessels, finding them fifty miles away. He returned to the Italian ships and told them the British were coming.

"It was not long before the two fleets met," he related. "At the same time two straggling Italian destroyers rejoined the main body.

"The Italian vessels began to put up large clouds of white steam, which I presume was the equivalent of the white flag.

"The ships were flying huge Italian ensigns, red, white and green. Their speed was reduced almost to a standstill, and one of the British battleships began to send out signals by lamp.

"After receiving acknowledgement from the Italian ships, the British swung around.

"The Italians took up their stations and the British battleships and destroyers sailed in a 'V' formation by the head.

ALLIES GIVEN USE OF CARGO SHIPS TO PROSECUTE WAR

Italy Promises to Prevent Nazis from Using Facilities.

FREE USE OF AIRBASES

Badoglio Agrees to Employ Troops to Enforce Armistice Terms.

KING ISSUES APPEAL

Defend Nation Against German Aggression, He Urges on Radio.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 11—(AP) Italy has agreed to surrender immediately French Corsica, transfer its naval and air units to Allied territory, hand over all United Nations' prisoners, and allow its merchantmen to be used in the war against Germany under the terms of the armistice, disclosed here tonight.

The armistice, signed by representatives of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Marshal Pietro Badoglio on Sept. 3 and announced Sept. 8, provides:

1. Immediate cessation of all hostile activity by Italian armed forces.

2. Italy will use its best endeavors to deny to the Germans facilities that might be used against the United Nations.

3. All prisoners or internees of the United Nations immediately to be turned over to the Allied commander-in-chief and none of these may nor or at any time be evacuated to Germany.

4. Immediate transfer of the Italian fleet and Italian aircraft to such points as may be designated by the Allied commander-in-chief, with details of disarmament to be prescribed by him.

May Take Over Cargo Ships

5. Italian merchant shipping may be requisitioned by the Allied commander-in-chief to meet the need of a military-naval program.

6. Immediate surrender of Corsica and all Italian territory, both islands and the mainland, to the Allies, for such use as operational bases and other purposes as the Allies may see fit.

7. Immediate guarantee of free use by the Allies of all air fields and naval ports in Italian territory, regardless of the rate of evacuation of Italian territory by the German armed forces. These ports and fields are to be protected by Italian armed forces until this function is taken over by the Allies.

8. Immediate withdrawal to Italy of Italian armed forces from all participation in the current war from whatever area wherein they may now be engaged.

9. A guarantee by the Italian government that if necessary it will employ all available armed forces to insure the prompt and exact compliance with all provisions of this armistice.

10. The commander in chief of the Allied forces reserves to himself the right to take any gesture which in his opinion may be necessary for the protection of interests of the Allied forces for prosecution of the war, and the Italian government binds itself to take such administrative or other agencies as the commander-in-chief may require. In particular, the commander-in-chief will establish an Allied military government over such parts of Italian territory as he may deem necessary in the military interests of the Allied nations.

Full Control of Disarmament

11. The commander-in-chief of the Allied forces will have the full right to impose means for disarmament, demobilization, and demilitarization.

12. Other conditions of a political, economic and financial nature with which Italy will be bound to comply will be transmitted at a later date.

13. The conditions of the present armistice will not be made public without prior approval of the Allied commander-in-chief. The English will be considered the official text.

Of necessity many provisions of the Armistice must await the driving of the Germans from the Italian peninsula.

But already the Allies have realized some benefits. Few Italian soldiers opposed Allied landings on the Italian mainland after the armistice was announced, and already have turned against Germans in various parts of Italy, as directed by Marshal Badoglio.

Nazis May Seize Prisoners

The armistice said Italy was to turn over immediately all United Nations' prisoners in her hands, but many of them are likely to fall into German hands if they are in areas controlled by the Nazis.

The armistice was purely a military affair. No mention was made of the political or financial measures which one of the provisions said the Allies might impose later.

Although Corsica under the armistice is to be turned over to the Allies, they probably will have to capture it since it is believed there [illegible] rman troops there.

How Italian Battle Squadron Steamed Into Hands of Allies

Britain's Warspite and Valiant, Which Drove Foe to Cover 3 Years Ago, Led Ships to Port After Review by Eisenhower and Cunningham

By Clark Lee

For the Combined American Press. Distributed by The Associated Press.

ABOARD THE BRITISH DESTROYER HAMBLETON IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Sept. 11.—The main force of Italy's modern, powerful battle fleet is in Allied hands, intact and ready to be turned against Escaping fr[illegible] ports despite German vigilance and—with the exception of one capital ship which was sunk—eluding attack by Nazi planes, the Italian vessels surrendered to British naval units on the high sea in the Mediterranean and were escorted today into Malta and other ports.

The high point of this dramatic and unprecedented ending of a four-year fight for control of the Mediterranean came yesterday afternoon aboard this ship when Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, who commanded the British fleet throughout the long and costly struggle, watched as a strong battle unit of the Italian Navy steamed by in review formation. At his side on the destroyer's bridge were General Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief in this area, and the admiral's chief of staff, Commodore R. M. Dick.

Both Admiral Cunningham ar[illegible] General Eisenhower were elate[illegible] this tremendous addition [illegible] Allied fleet, which [illegible] pletely cleared th[illegible] of hostile forces whole course of the global balance of sea power by freeing British and American ships to fight Japan.

Their mighty guns silenced by orders of their commanders, and flying from their highest masts a black triangular pennant, which was the agreed sign of surrender, two Italian battleships, five cruisers and four destroyers slid by in the wake of British escort vessels.

A third capital ship (the 35,000-ton battleship Roma, one of Italy's newest and largest battleships, was bombed, set afire and sent to the bottom near Sardinia Thursday afternoon by German bombers which attacked the fleet as it sped southward after escaping.

Leading the Italian ships as they passed were the British battleships Warspite and Valiant, which three years ago drove the Italian vessels into ports from where they had seldom dared to venture afterward.

On a smaller scale, this scene was repeated in several parts of the Mediterranean yesterday as Italian ships which escaped from Taranto, Naples and other ports turned up. Admiral Cunningham said Italian submarines were "popping up all over the place to surrender."

Admiral Cunningham later issued the following message:

"The Italian battle fleet is now anchored under the guns of Malta."

General Eisenhower, after giving the admiral a hearty handshake, sent the formal message:

"My congratulations to you and all the forces under your command on the happy and conclusive ending of your four-year campaign against the Italian Navy."

There was a majestic and triumphant and yet somber quality about the scene, which was unequaled since the German fleet was surrendered at Scapa Flow in 1919, but was even more portentous.

Scapa Flow came at the end of one war. The Italian surrender ends only one battle, but it signals the beginning of a new phase in the Pacific war where these same ships undoubtedly will play key roles.

One gathered that Cunningham would have admired the Italians a lot more if the navy had fought it out instead of surrendering, but he made no attempt to hide his joy as he said:

"This is a great day for us. This cleans up the Mediterranean. The Italian ships are in good order, absolutely first class, especially the battleships and new cruisers."

"Can you use them, admiral?" I asked.

"You bet we can," General Eisenhower put in, and Admiral Cunningham added:

"The armistice provides we can do what we like with them."

"Will this enable our heavy ships to turn their attention to Japan?" he was asked.

"Definitely, yes," he replied.

Before boarding the Hambleton I flew twenty miles to seaward and we circled the approaching ships, which were in two groups with the British ahead, the entire powerful battle fleet alignment in three long columns.

Later, we sped from port to board the Hambleton, quickly met the British ships and captive vessels and, with the wind behind us, raced past them at twenty-four knots while they were making eighteen knots in the opposite direction.

There was little excitement on the Hambleton's bridge, where British officers and ratings peered through glasses and quietly remarked:

"That's a pretty sight," or, "it has taken us a long time to get them this close."

A signalman flashed a message from Admiral Cunningham giving the Italian officers news of the others which had surrendered.

Pointing to the Warspite and Valiant, Admiral Cunningham said:

"I am particularly glad they are there. It was the Warspite which put one in the Italian flagship's stomach at a range of 25,000 yards at Taranto and chased them home."

I asked Cunningham if he wasn't afraid the Italians might make a break and start shooting.

"I have one captain aboard the lead cruiser to see that they don't take a wrong turn," he replied.

Another officer said:

"There is nothing those boys on the Valiant and Warspite would like better than to have them do it."

As we sped along, Admiral Cunningham recalled the ups and downs of the four-year fight wherein the fortunes of the British fleet varied in direct relationship of Axis or British control of airfields along the Mediterranean.

"After the Italian declaration of war in 1940 the Mediterranean was black with their ships," he said.

Then came the battle of Matapan, the torpedo attack at Taranto and other successful actions which threatened to chase the Italians off the sea until the German air force came to their rescue.

Followed the dark days of the Greek and Crete evacuations and desert defeats until finally the British held only Malta, and it had to be supplied at terrific cost from Axis air attacks. The final turning point—the Africa landings—came last November, and since then it has been downhill work.

Looking back, Admiral Cunningham said: "It wasn't so tough. Not so tough at all."

Malta Welcomes Italian Ships

By James Wellard

MALTA, Sept. 11.—I have just flown over the vast array of Italian warships at Malta. They lay quietly at anchor in the calm blue sea below, without flags and with their guns covered.

This war for those seventeen ships—the pride of the Italian Navy—is over. They lie now under the protection of Allied warships, Allied coastal batteries and Allied planes.

The whole gigantic transfer of the world's fourth most powerful navy from the side of the Axis to the side of the Allies was performed quietly, with dignity and with all the traditions of the sea.

The British, who were awaiting the Italia[illegible] their old enemies graciously. They sent out squadrons of Spitfires to cover the Italian ships and lead them safely in. The pilots flying those Spitfires were men who fought in the Battle of Malta ten months ago.

Yet there was no rancor on either side. To the contrary, the Spitfires dipped their wings in salute and the leading Italian warship "dressed ship" in honor of the British planes.

The same spirit of friendliness has been shown in port. Few visitors have yet been allowed to board the Italian ships. British naval officers are even now making official calls. They are being well received.

Said a British naval engineer just back from one of the ships:

"The crew lined the decks as we approached and piped us aboard. We were welcomed like friends."

While the Allied world rejoices over this tremendous even which makes Allied sea power unchallengeable in the Mediterranean and eventually in the other oceans, the loyal Maltese people are standing in small groups outside their burned homes, smiling and shaking hands and even weeping in their emotion.

Salerno Is Captured by Allies

KENNEDY

American Troops Take City South of Naples and Repel More Nazi Attacks.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The American Fifth Army has seized the port of Salerno and thrown back several more German armored attacks to deepen its wedge in the Naples area, Allied headquarters announced today, while chaos reigned throughout Italy and Berlin reported pitched battles between Germans and Italians in the north.

Smashing aerial assaults have prevented the enemy from getting reinforcements over badly battered highways and railroads to the Naples sector.

Crack Nazi armored units lunged in several fierce counter-assaults against Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British invaders at Salerno Friday, but these were broken and the Allies drove inland.

Several Hundred Nazis Taken.

Several pockets of enemy resistance have been wiped out, and prisoners now total several hundred, all Germans. There are no Italians reported fighting in this area. Salerno (population 50,000) is one of the larger provincial cities of southern Italy.

[The Germans declared in a communique broadcast from Berlin today tha the Italian naval base of Pola on the Yugoslav side of the Adriatic and the Island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese had surrendered to the Nazis. The Gerhman news agency Transocean in a broadcast added that "the major part of the Italian peninsula is under the control of German armed forces. Our troops have marched into Milan, Turin and Padua," the communique said.]

Allied Flyers Attack Convoy.

Besides knocking out Nazi reinforcement lines in a sixty-mile arc around Naples, headquarters aerial reports said, Allied planes attacked German convoys moving northward toward the Naples - Salerno districts, indicating a German withdrawal from areas farther south to escape possible entrapment and throw greater weight against the Fifth Army bridgehead.

United States units of the Fifth Army bore the brunt of the German resistance during landings at Salerno, and stiff fighting raged on the beaches. Five Nazi counter - blows were blunted on Thursday.

[A DNB broadcast from Berlin today said American troops had made a new landing on the Sorrento peninsula south of Naples.]

British units encountered comparatively little resistance in their landings some distance away, but later were attacked by German tanks which they repulsed. Steady progress has been made by the invaders since the start of the campaign, it was announced.

Navy Guns Support Troops.

Naval guns supported ground troops at Salerno. The bridgehead is now firmly established, headquarters declared.

Meanwhile, in the south the British Eighth Army met little opposition and despite demolitions went ahead more rapidly, now holding practically all the territory south of the bottleneck formed by the Gulf of Squillace and the Gulf of Sant' Eufemia. This forms practically all the toe of Italy.

[NBC correspondent Merrill Mueller in a broadcast said the Eighth Army had advanced thirty - five miles northward at such a pace that it is beginning to overtake the retreating Germans.]

The British force at Taranto completed occupation of that naval base and town. Most of the Germans were reported to have evacuated the city before the landing, and the population was said to have cheered the British.

[Radio France at Algiers said the British were fanning out in three directions from Taranto.]

Italians did not oppose a small Allied force landing on the island of Ventotene off Naples, but the Germans there surrendered only after a fierce fight, and ninety-one were captured.

Nazis Rush In Planes.

Headquarters said the Germans had many natural advantages over the attackers in the Naples area landings, and were prepared to meet the invasion which they had fully anticipated. The Germans were throwing more aviation into the battle of Italy, and attempted to bomb the Fifth Army troops.

Flyers Are Active.

For the second straight day, American Liberator bombers from the Middle East returned to the Foggia area, across the Italian peninsula opposite Naples and attacked the satellite landing ground at Palmori, a Cairo communique said.

The bombers shot down one of several attacking enemy fighters, the announcement said. Bursts were observed in the airport dispersal area.

Allied air forces of the North African command kept up a continual pounding of railway and road junctions, bridges and airfields in the Naples area. Fighter-bombers attacked and destroyed a large number of vehicles on the road north of Lagonegro in the south.

In the air offensive the score stood eighteen Nazi planes shot down to ten Allied. It was also announced today that in the Foggia raid September 7 an additional twenty-seven enemy planes were shot down.

SALERNO FALLS BEFORE DRIVE OF FIFTH ARMY

Clark's Forces Push Inland Widening Wedge In Naples Area

KENNEDY

Crack Nazi Armored Units Counter-Attack, But Are Repulsed

(By the Associated Press)

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 11—American Fifth Army forces, hurling back German armored units to expand their holdings around Naples in the heightening battle of Italy, have captured the port of Salerno, Allied headquarters announced today.

Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British assault troops drove steadily inland to widen the Naples wedge, and headquarters declared that the bridgehead was firmly established, with "steady progress" ever since the start of the campaign.

Crack Panzer Units Attack

Crack German armored units made several more fierce counter-attacks against General Clark's troops at Salerno, but these were beaten back by the Allies, who pushed inland with the assistance of aerial fleets and naval guns.

[A Berlin broadcast recorded in London said American troops had made a new landing on the Sorrento peninsula, south of Naples, which separates Salerno Bay from the Bay of Naples. Another German broadcast admitted the capture of Salerno and said the Americans landed north of Paestum, twenty-three miles below Salerno.]

Headquarters said several pockets of enemy resistance had been wiped out around Salerno, and that prisoners taken, all Germans, now total several hundred.

Americans Bear Brunt

American Fifth Army units were said officially to have borne the brunt of German resistance during the Salerno landings. British units, which landed with little opposition some distance away, were attacked later by German tanks, but these enemy forces were repulsed.

Official reports said the Allied aerial assaults have prevented "the enemy from getting reinforcements over badly battered highways and railroads" to the Naples area.

In addition to knocking out German reinforcement lines in a sixty-mile arc around Naples, the Allied air forces attacked Nazi land convoys moving northward toward the Naples-Salerno area, headquarters said. This would indicate that the Germans may be withdrawing from areas farther south.

Eighth Army Pace Speedy

The British Eighth Army in the south met scant opposition and plunged forward at a faster pace in spite of demolitions. General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces now hold virtually all the territory south of the bottleneck formed by the Gulf of Squillace and the Gulf of Sant' Eufemia—the entire lower section of the Italian toe.

In this area they reached a line through the town of Maida, seventy miles from Italy's southern tip and only about fifteen miles from the rail and road center of Catanzaro.

Nazi troops between this invasion area and Naples suffered very heavy losses under attacks by American dive bombers whose repeated bombing and strafing assaults pinned long motor convoys, northbound, to a virtual standstill throughout yesterday.

[An NBC correspondent said in a broadcast from North Africa that the Eighth Army had advanced thirty-five miles northward so fast that it was beginning to overtake the retreating Germans.]

Complete Occupying Toranto

At Taranto, inside the heel, British troops completed their occupation of the town and naval base.

A small Allied force landed on the island of Ventotene, off Naples, where the Germans surrendered after a stiff fight. Ninety-one Germans were captured. The Italians offered no opposition.

The air warfare continued over central and southern Italy, with the enemy offering little opposition to the Allied formations attacking communications routes and air fields. Much of the German air strength, however, was reported switching to offensive tactics, especially in the Naples area, where German planes attempted to bomb Fifth Army troops.

Dive Bombers Destroy Trucks

American Invader dive bombers attacking northbound enemy land convoys were credited officially with destroying at least 100 trucks and damaging 200 more on the road between Lagonegro and Auletta, north of Sapri.

Allied planes of the North African air forces downed a total of eighteen enemy planes in twenty-four hours against a loss of ten of their own.

American Liberators from Middle East bases struck for the second consecutive day at satellite airdromes at Foggia, a Cairo communique disclosed. They shot down one fighter and all returned safely to their base.

Fortresses Vary Targets

American Flying Fortresses from North Africa, splitting into small formations, pounded a dozen key road and rail centers near the Naples-Salerno battlefields and blasted the Ariano region astride the main rail line connecting two principal coastal systems fifty miles above Naples.

The Fortress crews reported that they encountered no enemy fighter opposition and little anti-aircraft fire.

The only Allied planes to run into enemy resistance were Mitchell medium bombers which were attacked by ten to twelve Messerschmitt 109s while bombing a truck convoy near Casanuova. The Mitchell gunners shot down five and the others fled.

Over the Salerno battle area, however, Allied pilots counted 127 enemy planes, only a small number of which gave fight. Allied Spitfires shot down eight of these.

Germans Put Up Stiff Air Battle In Salerno Gulf

Attacked Allied Convoys in Great Waves, but Failed to Inflict Severe Damage

By Paul Kern Lee
ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER

IN THE GULF OF SALERNO Sept. 9 (Delayed) (AP).—Against determined German opposition, strong British and American forces landed on the Italian mainland just south of Naples today.

German forces manned Italian coastal batteries with stubborn and accurate fire and German planes subjected the convoys and warships to continual attack.

The German troops put up a stern fight for the beachheads in several sectors, although in the main the Allies won the first footholds easily along a chosen front.

British and American naval and Army air forces were closely combined in this great landing operation aimed at driving the Nazis from Italy.

The great convoys had been at sea for twenty-four hours and more when the electrifying news came yesterday that Italy had accepted unconditional surrender and had been granted an armistice.

Tanker Blaze Light Sea

Before any relaxation was possible, however, Captain William Wellclose Davis, of Whitby, Yorkshire, made a general announcement to the ship's company, warning that Germans remained in Italy and a difficult struggle might be expected.

The warning was well put, for one of the convoys already had been under German attack periodically during the afternoon and at 8:15 p.m. we saw a gigantic fire on the horizon. The flames rose and fell, and then spread over more than a mile of sea. An Allied tanker was ablaze, apparently a submarine victim since no aircraft was about at the time.

At 9:09 this ship and the convoy she was helping to guard were subjected to a German air onslaught. The attack lasted for forty-eight minutes. The Germans used vast numbers of flares, lighting the sea and sky for miles, but the ships put up a deafening barrage and the Germans finally broke off the engagement.

Without further incident we moved into Salerno Gulf. On our left was the famed Isle of Capri and a little ahead was the mainland where we could make out the red rim of Mt. Vesuvius.

Finally, the moon set and the Commandos and Rangers led the way toward the beaches at 2 a. m., followed by 5th Army troops at 3:30 a. m.

Nazi Raiders Open Up

There was scarcely a sound as the landing craft went in. Naval forces including a Greek destroyer, Dutch gunboats, American destroyers and British and American cruisers, gunboats and monitors kept a close guard offshore.

At 4:06 a. m. the first troops signaled successful, unopposed landings, and similar reports followed quickly from other outfits.

At 5 o'clock, however, German planes roared in to the attack. Aircraft buzzed all around, scattering big and small bombs, but apparently hit nothing in the sharp, fifteen-minute raid.

By 6 o'clock the warships were well inshore and some coastal guns had opened up. Destroyers and landing craft answered and flashes lit the misty, mountainous shores. This conflict has been going on steadily ever since.

At 7:11 and 7:35 we were again subjected to German air attacks. Big bombs dropped fairly near some ships and our cruiser was ringed with smaller ones. None of the bombs found its mark, however.

Great numbers of fighters appeared overhead and have been maintaining a cover that has dampened the German Air Force's enthusiasm.

head onto which are pouring more troops, guns and armor from mighty Allied armada.

Although the message fror Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cur ningham, Commander in Chief o the Allied Mediterranean fleet saying the armistice with Ital had been declared, was receive shortly before midnight, fightin is bitter and destroyers are en gaging the coastal batteries. S either the Italians in this secto have not been advised of th armistice or else the guns ar manned by the Germans.

The storm broke shortly be fore midnight, after the invasio convoys had steamed across th placid sea with little to remin the troops and sailors that the were participating in a grea Allied amphibious invasion t crack Hitler's European fortress

Enemy planes dived in to drop bombs near our ship and ack-ack brought three of them plunging into the sea. The bombs fell harmlessly into the water and our great fleet steamed slowly into the Gulf of Salerno with the dark shadow of the Isle of Capri on our left.

Enemy Fights Back.

When we received the electrifying news of the armistice with Italy, there was speculation that perhaps the troops might get ashore without having to fight. Many officers aboard our ship foresaw the possibility of the Germans having to retreat quickly to northern Italy, with the Italians out of the war. Then there were three flashes from the shore and shells whined across the ship. Two more passed over and fell astern.

"Order the destroyers to return the fire," snapped the Rear Admiral in command of our force.

Our ship came to a halt and then began to lay a smoke screen. A great fire blazed up ahead and there were explosions in the city of Salerno. Our guns had not fired, so obviously the enemy was carrying out demolitions.

Flares Lit the Sky.

Flashes of gunfire rippled along the coast and sounds of explosions and gunfire rolled across the water. Our destroyers moved into position and began hammering the coastal batteries. A British monitor moved in and hurled steel at the enemy as red, green and white flares looped across the sky.

At 2:17 the rear admiral ordered his assault boats to go ahead with the landings as planned, and signal lamps flashed the word to the troop-carrying vessels.

Then the barrage on the beaches opened up.

Never have I witnessed anything like it either in Tunisia or on Sicily. And none of the British officers or American naval men on board had ever seen anything equal to the eruption of explosives on the beaches ahead. Rocket shells fell by the hundreds.

Landing Barrage at Salerno Shook Ships 5 Miles at Sea

British and American Naval Men Said That Bombardment Was the Most Severe They Had Ever Witnessed.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

With the United States Navy Invasion Task Force, Sept. 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—American and British troops fought their way onto the mainland of Italy south of Salerno before dawn today behind a barrage so heavy that ships five miles back at sea trembled and shook with the concussions.

As I write this in the first light of [illegible] the guns are still thundering [illegible] troops hold the bridgehead onto which are pouring more troops, guns and armor from mighty Allied armada.

Landing at Salerno Dwarfs Previous Amphibious Thrusts

How Intricate Operation Is Planned Is Explained by Marine Officer.

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. NAVY OFF SALERNO, Italy, Sept. 9—(Delayed)—(AP) The invasion of Italy is one of the most brilliant triumphs in the history of the United States Navy.

Putting troops, guns, tanks, and supplies ashore on the beaches at the Gulf of Salerno climaxed perhaps the most intricate, complex, and delicate naval operation ever carried out by any naval power.

The massive scale of this amphibious landing—dwarfing anything yet attempted by the Allies—was enough alone to place a terrific responsibility on the Navy. It involved detailed planning, timing and teamwork of almost unbelievable proportions.

But besides transporting an army from North Africa and setting it ashore ready to do battle, the Navy also protected the cargo enroute to Italy and then helped it launch the invasion with support from guns of cruisers and destroyers.

Intricate Planning

The story of the Navy's part in the invasion of Italy is one principally of behind-the-scenes toil of officers and men working day and night, planning and executing thousands upon thousands of minute details leading to the spectacular job of getting an army across the Mediterranean onto enemy soil.

An army doesn't just march aboard transports and set sail for an objective. Actually, amphibious invasion begins on the enemy beach and works back to the point where the army loaded into ships for the move.

This is not the anachronism it sounds. The reason is simple:

First the army must decide where it wants to go, on what beach the troops are to be landed, and what objectives must be taken.

It must decide which troops are needed ashore first and what equipment is necessary for them to do the job. It must decide when guns, tanks, trucks and supplies are needed and where.

If the Army wants infantry assault waves to be followed by artillery, tanks, and trucks in that order, then the Navy organizes loading schedules to conform to beach needs. Thus, landing plans work back from the beach to the loading points.

There is a reason for every soldier, every gun, every box of ammunition, every tank being aboard a certain ship in a certain place. For beach landings are made on railroad time schedules even in face of heavy enemy fire. Once the operation begins, it must go on.

The beachmaster is the Navy's equivalent of the train master in a busy railway terminal, except the train master doesn't have people shooting at him as he handles traffic. There is a beachmaster for each of the beaches on which troops are landing.

Going ashore with the assault troops, naval beach parties set up shore-to-ship communications, make a quick hydrographic survey to determine the best landing points, set up navigation lights to mark the landing points, control beach traffic, assist in evacuating the wounded, and work with Army engineers.

Handling beach traffic is one of the most vital phases of the landing operations, for the beaches must not become clogged with ships and supplies, and at the same time the Navy must see that the Army gets what is needed at the proper time. Any serious breakdown on the beach could imperil the entire operation.

Lt.-Col. James H. Brower, Rochester, N. Y., Marine officer and liaison between the Army and Navy, was one of those who helped draft the Navy's loading plans.

Sicily Taught Much

"We learned one hell of a lot in the Sicilian operation," Colonel Brower said. "This time I think we've made a great many improvements."

One improvement Colonel Brower devised was a logistic chart for each vessel with a deck diagram on the reverse side showing the exact location and name of equipment and materiel with which the vessel was loaded.

With a copy of this chart, the beachmaster is able to tell at a glance what a ship is carrying, where it should be unloaded, and how.

In the ward room aboard the flagship, Colonel Brower has a large wall chart listing each vessel and its contents. He can tell at once which ships are unloading and what army has gone ashore. If there is an emergency call for any particular type of equipment or supplies he can select the proper ship and order it to the beach by radio.

But it took weeks of planning and long hours of work to solve the problems.

"We found the only solution was in daily conferences between Army and Navy men," Colonel Brower said. "You cannot do it by letters or telephone. You've got to sit down in the same room and talk things out. You cannot work any other way on amphibious operations."

For example, one of the many problems was the amount of water to be carried by each vessel. It was carefully estimated how much was needed for drinking purposes aboard ship, how much for bathing with enough left to give the men full canteens when they left for shore. And so it was with thousands of individual supplies.

After these many things finally had been agreed upon, it was relatively simple to carry out the loadings and assemble the great convoys for invasion.

Nazi Lines Consolidated In North Italy, Balkans

O'QUINN SEP 11 1943

Berlin Also Claims Position Secure in Southern France.

LONDON, Sept. 11 — (AP) The Germans claimed today to have consolidated their position in upper Italy, the Balkans and southern France, and they asserted that more than 200,000 men of the Italian army already had surrendered their arms to Nazi troops.

In official and special communiques datelined from Hitler's headquarters and subsequent broadcasts from the Berlin radio, the Germans admitted that they encountered resistance at some points from their erstwhile Italian allies but declared that Nazi troops are proceeding "in an energetic manner" to put down this opposition where it still is being offered. The German Transocean news agency claimed "the major part of the Italian peninsula" was under German control.

The Berlin broadcast fixing the number of Italians the Germans said they disarmed said the figure of 200,000 "does not, however, include garrisons at Rome and Milan, which, as previously reported, also capitulated."

In the face of the surrender of the bulk of the Italian fleet to the Allies and their own admission of resistance from some Italian army units, the Germans shrilly declared that since Italy's unconditional surrender there has been a daily increase in the number of Italian units which have "declared their readiness to continue the struggle within the ranks of the German armed forces."

Leaders in Sicily

The Germans reported that King Vittorio Emanuele, Premier Pietro Badoglio and Crown Prince Umberto had fled from captured Rome into Allied-held Sicily. The broadcast was worded in a way, however, to indicate the Germans were not positive where the three men were. It credited the report that the crown prince was in Sicily to Allied sources.

Dispatches from Allied headquarters, however, said that the Italian King still was in Rome and still was reigning.

Italy's King and Queen fled from Rome Wednesday by motor car, said a Berlin broadcast of a dispatch by the German news agency Transocean. The broadcast added that their flight came "shortly after the King had assured German charge d'affaires of Italy's loyalty towards his German ally."

Without further explanation the broadcast declared that "it is as yet uncertain" whether the King, Queen and Crown Prince "were able to save their lives."

Fascists in Italy, the broadcast asserted, "are in opposition not only to the King but also to the Crown Prince owing to the attitude adopted by the Royal house towards Mussolini and the Fascist party."

Duke Is Favored

Declaring that Fascist sympathies now are centered on the Duke of Spoleto, a cousin of King Vittorio Emanuele, the broadcast said that the Duke of Spoleto's designation as puppet king of Croatia was cancelled Thursday.

The special German communique credited forces under command of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel with having consolidated the German positions in upper Italy "after a short struggle."

The Nazis said that they took undestroyed railway lines and roads leading from Carinthia and Tyrol to upper Italy, occupied the Ligurian coast froom Genoa to La Spezia, cleared the Etch valley and towns in the area of Bologna, Verona and Cremona and took Trieste after a short struggle. They claimed to have disarmed more than 90,000 Italians in the latter city alone.

Industrial Cities Seized

Nazi troops also stormed into Milan, Turin and Padua, northern Italian industrial cities, a Berlin broadcast said, but added that at divisions had been forced to fight "rioting by Communists."

The United Nations radio at Algiers declared that reports from all over Italy told of civilian resistance against the Germans.

Before the Germans captured Turin, the Algiers broadcast said, four companies of German shock troops were wiped out inside the city and civilians were said to have destroyed seven German planes. The radio reported in Italian that Italian troops continue to fight in the Turin district.

Referring to the situation in southern France, the German special communique said the Italian Fourth army had surrendered its weapons without incident to Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt. The Germans occupied the coast from Toulon to Menton, they said.

In the Balkans, the communique said, most of the Italian units in Athens and in the Albanian city of Tirana had put down their arms. It declared further that "Italian warships and merchantmen in the Aegean have been taken over by the German Navy" and that German units had occupied former Italian airfields and the most important harbors on the Adriatic coast.

Naval Base Seized

Consolidating their positions in the face of the southern invasion of the Allies, German troops were reported in a communique to have captured the Italian naval base of Pola on the Yugoslav side of the Adriatic and the island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese group.

In an obvious attempt to fix a behavior pattern on the German home front, the news agency DNB in a Berlin broadcast declared that the city, the Madrid dispatches said.

"the German people never wavered in their determination to stand up to this unheard of ordeal under all circumstances and at any price."

The Germans said that Gen. Calvi di Bergolo, King Emmanuel's son-in-law, had been named Italian commander of Rome with a single division of Italian troops placed at his disposal to maintain order.

Nazis Stayed Out of City.

Swiss dispatches reported most of the German troops remained outside the city but had taken control of key radio and telephone centers.

[A broadcast by the Italian news agency Stefani, whose transmitter is believed to be in German hands, quoted a di Bergolo proclamation indicating the Germans were attempting to classify the capital as an open city. The broadcast recorded by OWI, quoted him as saying: "Troops of the garrison and police forces at my disposal for the protection of the open city of Rome will establish posts along the line of demarcation of the open city of Rome."]

Swiss reports said that German troops had occupied all principal posts along the Swiss-French frontier and that all railroad traffic had been suspended.

All Lombardy in Nazi Hands.

A Swiss dispatch from the Italian frontier said that all of Lombardy, in northern Italy, was in German hands except the cities of Varese and Como.

Another Berlin broadcast said that the number of Italians who have laid down their arms in Italy had risen to 200,000.

Stefani, the Italian news agency, in a broadcast heard in London by the Ministry of Information, declared lively engagements took place Friday afternoon on the outskirts of Rome and in several streets of the city between Italian and German troops.

Artillery Firing Heard.

The broadcast reported that intense artillery exchanges continued for several hours, and added:

"The artillery exchanges and engagements ceased at the announcement of the agreement concluded between the German and military authorities, according to which the German troops were to stop at the limits of the open town."

Nazis Say King and Prince Have Also Fled to Allied Base.

PALERMO SEEN NEW CAPITAL

Abdication of Victor Emmanuel in Favor of Humbert Reported in Berlin Broadcast.

London, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said today that King Victor Emmanuel, Premier Pietro Badoglio and Crown Prince Humbert had escaped from captured Rome into Allied-held Sicily.

The broadcast quoted Foreign Office spokesmen as saying that the King, the head of the Italian Government and the heir to the throne, had fled Rome, presumably before the city capitulated to German forces yesterday.

The Swiss dispatch quoted unconfirmed reports that the King and Premier Badoglio had escaped to a southern Italian village held by the Allies.

Stockholm dispatches quoted the Svenska Dagbladet as also reporting that Badoglio was in Sicily and that Palermo would be the seat of the Italian Government, following Rome's capitulation to the Germans.

Berlin broadcasts insisted that Victor Emmanuel had abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Humbert. The Berlin correspondent of the Zurich newspaper Die Tat quoted Berlin officials as saying that not a single member of the Badoglio government or of the royal house were still in Rome.

May Name Duce's Son.

In Madrid, Italian travelers said it was likely that Hitler would get Vittorio Mussolini, son of Benito, to head their proposed puppet Italian fascist regime if they are unable to obtain the release of his father, reported to be a prisoner in Italian hands. In his speech yesterday Hitler professed undying admiration and affection for the fallen duce.

London, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Dispatches from Madrid said today that Italian troops had fought the Germans in the suburbs of Rome for several hours yesterday before an agreement was reached whereby Nazi troops were to occupy the German embassy, the Rome radio station and the telephone exchange.

Nazis May Recapture Allies Freed by Italy

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 11 (AP).—Dispatches from Chiasso, at the Italian frontier, said today that several thousand British, French and Greek prisoners who were released from an Italian concentration camp at Bergamo were in danger of being captured by the Germans.

The dispatch said the prisoners had arrived by every means possible at Como, not far from Milan, and that German forces were expected there shortly.

[A Swiss broadcast from Schwarzenburg recorded by monitors said that the Italians still hold Como and "thousands of British, French and Greek prisoners are in the streets."]

Desperate Nazi Moves Fail to Stem Disaster

Allies Press Relentless Campaign in Italy, Civilians Assist.

SEP 11 1943

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

LONDON, Sept. 11—(AP) The balance of the war in the Mediterranean was turning sharply against the Germans tonight at the end of a week of Allied victories just as it already had turned against them in the far, bleak reaches of Russia.

Adolf Hitler's most desperate improvisations—such as the attack on Rome and his claim to have forced the capitulation of almost the whole of Italy's land force at home and in the Balkans and France—had failed to put a better face on these days of his disaster.

One—Italy's greatest single weapon, her fleet, was beyond the possibility of doubt in Allied hands. The bulk of it—four battleships and seven cruisers—have arrived safely at British Malta.

Two—Italian troops are fighting a shooting war with the Nazis in various parts of Italy notwithstanding all Hitler's stories of Italian surrender. The German command had to admit this fact in a communique saying "wherever resistance still is offered locally our troops are taking vigorous steps." Even civilians, by the Germans' own account, were rioting in such cities as Turin and Milan.

Shabby Victory at Rome

Three—Hitler's shabby "victory" at Rome—he had sought by the ugly drama of that assault to soften in German and satellite minds the realization of the terrors of his position—was the emptiest of his career. His troops stood idly around the outskirts of the city that had no great military value in the first place and assessments after the event made to appear more and more that the force was really made up of not much beyond a division of men ringing a broken and spiritless Rome—a far cry from a panoplied and triumphant army he had sought to suggest.

Four—While Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's forces marched onward toward inevitable reduction of the whole of southern Italy — seizing Salerno in the most important of their unbroken advances and making a fresh American landing on the Sorrento peninsula south of Naples, according to the Germans themselves — the Nazis were about to write off everything below Rome and more probably everything below Leghorn. The inference that Hitler previously had left in some minds—that he was going to try to throw a line across Italy in the Rome area from Ostia on the Mediterranean to Pescara on the Adriatic—was seen here as invalid.

Delaying Action in Alps

Such a holding action, it was estimated, would require 15 well-formed and well supplied divisions in a relatively thick part of the Italian leg and could have been feasibly undertaken only farther south in Italy, where it patently now has been made impossible by the power and pace of Gen. Eisenhower's push. Some commentators here held that about the most the Nazis could attempt in the way of prolonged resistance would be to try to hold on to the passes and crags of the Alps, carrying on there such darting and harrassing thrusts as could be devised.

The German command itself strongly suggested some such intention in its communique stressing the occupation of the main points on a line stretching across the whole broad base of northern Italy from Turin on the west through Milan to Padua on the east.

The end of the week brought no easing, but rather a great resharpening of German fears of Allied invasions to overshadow the current Italian campaign.

Hitler was making the most urgent efforts to strengthen himself in the Balkans and particularly along his Adriatic flank. The Allied fleet had reportedly appeared in the Ionian sea off Greece and in Albanian waters and the Germans have been crying alarm about the report since yesterday.

Nazis Shuffle Forces

A great shifting and marshalling of German forces was going on in the Balkans, and Berlin military commentators, in interviews with neutral correspondents, declared they anticipated much bigger Allied offensives. They spoke of the Balkans, but spoke too of western France.

Reassignment of Nazi field leaders accompanied all this. The German radio announced that Field Marshal Gen. Baron Maximilian von Weichs, who "proved his extraordinary capabilities in the Serbian campaign," had been made commander in chief for the Balkans. "In the west," Field Marshal Gen. Karl von Runstedt had "taken over command." Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in north Italy was under Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's command.

SEES FIGHT AHEAD

London, Sept. 11 (A. P.) Britons were warned by the London Times today not to underrate the force of Adolf Hitler's appeal yesterday to the German soldiers and people.

The newspaper declared that the German leader's address, his first in six months, left no doubt that the Germans intend to fight strongly to maintain their hold on Italy and that the capture of Rome suggests they plan a defense line in that area.

"It was the most direct of Hitler's speeches," a correspondent wrote. "He lied about the origins of the war, but even then he did not indulge in spasms of self-pity. Almost his only promise was his assertion that Germany would be avenged for the air raid."

GREEKS AIDED ARMISTICE

LONDON, Sept. 11—(AP) Prime Minister Emmanuel Tsouderos of the Greek government-in-exile said today that his government was consulted on terms for Italy's surrender and was represented at the signing of the pact. "Greek interests are protected," he said in a broadcast to Greece.

Samos Reported in Greek Hands

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Aegean island of Samos, occupied exclusively by the Italians since the first part of the Italian-Greek war, has been returned to Greek sovereignty, according to reports reaching maritime circles in Istanbul today. The report said the Italians voluntarily turned the administration of the island over to

...rities.

[Italian pilots from the air base on Samos have flown their planes to join the British on Cyprus, said a Reuter dispatch from Istanbul.]

There were reports that the Italian forces stranded in Yugoslavia were in a tight spot. The Zagreb radio said that Croat Nazi puppet troops were fighting hard against Italians on the Dalmatian coast from Sibenik, a Yugoslav seacoast city across the Adriatic from the Italian port of Ancona, to Kotor, thirty-five miles north of the Yugoslav-Albanian border.

German and Croat troops occupied Split and the Italian garrison at Zara capitulated, the Zagreb radio added.

Reutef quoted a German transocean dispatch as declaring that Albania and Montenegro had proclaimed their "independence" from Italy.

Berlin Analyst Thinks Allies' Tactics Changed

SEP 1 1943

London, Sept. 11 (AP)—Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, Transocean's military correspondent, said in a dispatch broadcast tonight by the Berlin radio that the "impression is growing" in Germany that the Allies have decided to drop their tactics of keeping forces in reserve and now are landing as many men in southern Italy as possible.

He declared that so far "only a fraction of the German forces available in Italy have contacted the Anglo-Saxons while the bulk of Kesselring's and Rommel's armies, for the time being, were busy disarming Italian forces."

Polish Mosquito Unit Downs Five Germans Over Bay of Biscay Without a Loss

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—American Marauders and Royal Air Force medium bombers and fighter-bombers attacked targets in northern France today, a joint British and American communiqué said in addition to the RAF's night attack.

The Nazis' fighter airfield at Beaumont-le-Roger was bombed anew by a formation of the United States Eighth Air Force's Marauders and Mitchells of a Royal Netherland Squadron with the RAF. Another formation of Marauders bombed the shipbuilding yards at Le Trait.

RAF, Dominion and Allied Spitfires, which escorted and covered the bombing operations, had several combats with Nazi fighters, nine of which were destroyed.

Typhoon fighter-bombers, escorted by Typhoon fighters, bombed an airfield near Beauvais.

Reports showed the bombing results to be good on all targets. Four of the Allied fighters failed to return, the communiqué said.

Earlier, Spitfire and Typhoon planes attacked German vessels off the French coast, damaging one and setting fire to another.

Mosquito planes from a Polish squadron of the RAF Fighter Command shot down five enemy planes over the Bay of Biscay without a loss, the British Air Ministry said. It added that "further enemy airplanes were downed by Typhoons over France."

EIGHT-DAY BLITZ IS GREATEST IN AERIAL WARFARE

SEP 1 1943

Attacks Show Allies Posses Requisites for Victory in Britain.

...LL
(AP) The greatest demonstration of air power in history — a drive aimed to culminate in the collapse of Germany — was brought suddenly and unexpectedly closer by the swift succession of remarkable developments of the week now ending.

Chief among the developments from the standpoint of air warfare were the successful staging from British bases through eight solid days and nights the Allies' most intensive air drive yet, the capitulation of Italy, and indications of the establishment in England of an American key tactical air force for the final campaign.

The eight-day air blitz, which included the U. S. Eighth Air force's biggest day of operations, showed for the first time that on Britain, "the world's greatest aircraft carrier," the closest base for an air drive against the heart of Germany, the Allies had the planes, the facilities and the men to execute the protracted non-stop round-the-clock assault necessary to pave the way for and to support an invasion drive.

By comparison, all previous raids from Britain, while part of a long-range plan, have been only sporadic jabs, proving only that the Allied Air forces in the "big league" theater are capable of sporadic jabs. This eight-day assault was the real thing, proving they are capable of the real thing.

As impressive as the Allied Air force's performance were evidences of the German air force's weakness. In the R.A.F.'s three big night raids of the drive, on Berlin, Mannheim and Munich—on top of two other big ones in the preceding four days—the losses remained, as far as determinable, "normal," and the Germans apparently were floundering for an effective defense.

On the final night and day of the drive, Wednesday and Thursday, only negligible opposition met attacks on a score of targets in Nazi-held France and Belgium.

The capitulation of Italy strategically provided the Allies with another air front on which to assail Germany, and conversely it gave the Germans a third front to defend with a resultant thinning of her already-taxed air resources.

Many New Airfields

Tactically, it opened up a whole new set of air fields and advanced the Allies by 500 miles or more beyond their best previous bases in that direction.

It opened up great new possibilities for shuttle-bombing from England. American fliers on the recent England-Africa shuttle raid almost unanimously commented: "If we only had had some of those bases in northern Italy it would have been easy."

But the most important implication of the Italian development was that it opened the way for joining the Mediterranean and northern air operations into one integrated campaign instead of two independent ones, with corresponding ominous implications for the enemy.

The main base of the victory air drive probably will remain in England, because it would be a hundred miles closer to the heart of Germany and it would take a long time to establish operational facilities in northern Italy to compare with what has been built here in four years of development.

Pincers of Great Value

But establishment of a secondary base for an integrated drive only 800 miles away—a short flight for a heavy bomber—means that, instead of two separate spearheads pointing at the enemy, we now have pincers with a tremendous advantage in leverage.

One of the week's inconspicuous but significant developments was the appointment of Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, one of the Air force's top men, as chief of the Eighth Air force fighter command, superseding a one-star general, Brig. Gen. Frank Hunter, on the heels of Gen. H. H. Arnold's disclosure that a tactical air force such as led the North African and Sicilian victories was in development here to repeat the Mediterranean process.

A fighter command would be the logical nucleus of such a force as was the case in North Africa, and General Kepner's qualifications—he is a World War cavalry and infantry hero, an Air force veteran and former chief of the West coast air defenses — pointed to him as likely leader.

Since the end of the Allied concentrated air attack Thursday evening there has been a lull in air activity from Britain—probably due considerably to two nights of bad weather—but increasingly frequent large-scale attacks and harassment of enemy transport and communications and air resources will resume immediately.

Pattern Evident

The pattern is clear. Top officials make no secret of it. It is to hammer enemy war industry, transport and economic structure; to make increasing inroads on his air resources to make the hammering easier; to shatter civilian morale.

The aim is to do this until all three trends culminate in the collapse of the enemy and surrender before the guns of an invading army.

NAZIS REPORT BIG RED DRIVE IN CAUCASUS

An Attempted Large-scale Landing at Novorossisk Admitted by Enemy.

LONG

RETREAT TO DNIEPER A ROUT

Battered Germans Are Driven to Within 45 Miles of Their River Defense Line.

London, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The German High Command in a broadcast communique said today that the Red Army had made a large-scale landing attempt in the Novorossisk area where the Germans still hold a small bridgehead in the Caucasus and that fighting still was going on as German forces attempted to wipe out the landing parties.

The announcement admitted the loss of Mariupol, the port on the northern shore of the Sea of Azov which the Russians announced last night had fallen to their swiftly advancing southern army.

Intimating that the Russians may be preparing still another offensive—on the northern front in the Leningrad sector—another German broadcast said that shock troop and reconnaissance activity was on the increase there.

German Forces in Caucasus, Crimea Seek to Flee Trap,

NAVY BASE THREATENED

Russian Force Land Near Novorossisk on Black Sea, Says Berlin.

LONG

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 12 — (AP) The Red army, pursuing German troops "retreating in disorder" in southern Russia, overran nearly 200 villages yesterday and cut down 4,000 of the enemy in smashing gains that threatened to trap hundreds of thousands of Axis troops, including those in the Caucasus and Crimea, a Moscow communique disclosed early today.

The bulletin announced a 7 1-2 mile plunge toward Pavlograd, important junction on the Kharkov-Crimea railway, in the race for the Dnieper river, and said Soviet forces attacking on a 600-mile front were inflicting "decisive blows" on the enemy.

"The Hitlerites are retreating in disorder," the bulletin said of the German flight out of the Donets basin.

New advances also were curled around Bryansk on the north and south, and a six-mile gain carried the Russians within striking distance of Nezhin, only 72 miles from the Ukraine capital at Kiev, the communique revealed.

Reds Land Near Seaport

Berlin added to the gloomy tidings for the German homeland by announcing a Russian sea-borne attack on Novorossisk in the western Caucasus.

The converging blows on Pavlograd on the last trunk railway east of the Dnieper river bend, and a powerful renewed drive southwest of Kharkov toward Poltava in which 14 German counter-attacks were beaten down threatened the early collapse of enemy resistance east of the Dnieper and the possible entrapment of huge enemy forces.

Hundreds of guns and tanks and other German equipment was either destroyed or captured in the Russian sweep. The communique said it...at one point 1,000 railway freight cars were seized, so swift was the advance.

Striking for the mile-wide Dnieper river the Red army entered the third month of its great summer offensive which already has gained from 80 to 150 miles along the 600-mile front and knocked out of action perhaps 2,000,000 German and Axis satellite troops.

It was apparent from the quickening Russian strides that the Red army already was benefitting by Italy's surrender and related American-British threats to the Germans in the Balkans and France.

May Yield Certain Points

The precipitate German withdrawal, now more and more acknowledged officially by Moscow, and indirectly by Berlin, suggested that the Germans might not even attempt to hold all points along the curving Dnieper once it is reached.

Reports reaching London said German generals were convinced that a retreat clear to the Dnieper river would be the best strategy in southern Russia because of Allied threats in the west and south even though this meant giving up a huge territory won at such frightful cost in men and equipment.

The tireless Russians, including Don Cossack cavalrymen who aided in overpowering Mariupol on the Sea of Azov, were reported within 25 miles of Pavlograd, which is only 35 miles from the Dnieper bend.

Berlin Hints Evacuation

Berlin apparently was preparing the homeland for another great reverse—the evacuation of the western Caucasus. A broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Russian amphibious forces had stormed ashore "in the port of Novorossisk" on the Black sea coast of the western Caucasus where thousands of isolated German troops hold a 45-mile-wide fringe of the Taman peninsula east of the Crimea.

Russian front dispatches told of a virtual collapse of German resistance in southern Russia, indicating that the enemy had abandoned all hope of a stand short of the Dnieper river—and possibly would be able only to muster a delaying action at some points along that natural defense line.

The swift pace of the multiple Russian columns converging on the Kharkov-Crimea railway suggested that unless the Germans plan to evacuate the Caucasus and Crimea by sea, they are probably too late to succeed in doing so by land. Even a sea escape is questionable now because of the Soviet Black sea fleet surface and air forces waiting to pounce on the Germans.

The Moscow daily communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, did not even mention the Caucasian theater where Berlin said strong Russian forces had landed Friday "in the port." The Soviet marines were "smashed up to a large extent" and 11 landing boats and a Soviet gunboat were sunk or set afire off shore, the Germans said, then added ominously: "Fighting is now going on with the rest of the enemy forces which landed."

Under Steady Pressure

Germany's western Caucasus troops, thousands of them, must be fed and supplied across the Kerch strait above Novorossick, and they are under constant pressure by Soviet forces attacking frontally as well as along the coast.

Across the Sea of Azov the Russians are chasing other battered German divisions westward toward Melitopol, 100 miles beyond captured Mariupol, leaving the Axis Caucasian group in growing isolation as they cling to the swamps of the Taman peninsula and the hills around Novorossick.

The thousands of Germans in the Crimea and south of Kharkov also are imperiled by the westward Soviet sweep toward Pavlograd, Lozovaya, and Sinelnikovo on the Kharkov-Crimea railway. The cutting of that railway, now an early possibility, might trap huge segments of Germans in both areas.

110 Areas Overrun

The Russians took Petropavlovka yesterday and raced on toward Pavlograd, 25 miles away. More than 110 localities were overrun during the day by the powerful mobile forces that already have liberated the Donets basin. Gains ranged from six to nine miles.

Southwest of Kharkov in the drive on Poltava the Russians swept ahead five more miles with the usual tactics of cutting behind the enemy.

In the northern Ukraine in the race for the great prize of Kiev, the Russians were reported about 20 miles from Nezhin, junction on the last railway connecting the German central and southern fronts east of the middle Dnieper.

Nezhin is a junction on the Gomel-Odessa and Kursk-Kiev railways, and plunging toward it the Russians overran twenty localities in gains of four to six miles.

North of Bryansk, the Russians said, their troops advanced three to six miles, beating down enemy opposition and capturing more than sixty villages. Several villages south of that formidable bastion also were captured.

The Russians apparently intend to flank Bryansk on both sides, because the Desna River line southwest of the city already has been broken and the Russians are storming Novgorod-Severski on the west bank.

On the central front above Bryansk, where the Russians last were reported within forty miles of Smolensk, the communiqué said the Red Army still was attacking in an effort to improve its positions.

On Friday, the Russians said, they knocked out forty-six German tanks on all fronts and shot down forty-nine planes.

American Fortress Crews Fraternity of Gallantry

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND—(AP) This is a plain report on a fraternity of gallantry—on the American youngsters who are going out in our Flying Fortresses over Europe in daylight into a core of fire that burns redder for them than for any other group of Allied airmen in the world.

It is intended to tell their story as it is told on their flying fields and in their briefing rooms and barracks.

This is really big league action, especially over such valleys of violence as the Ruhr, or Happy Valley, as some of them call it. The story was collected in a trip around our bomber bases over there.

It divides itself roughly into the three phases of crisis in which these men live always—the period of the alert, the hours of waiting while nothing much is doing, and the hours just after the return from action.

Rank Makes No Difference

It is told without the use of names (but it gives what they actually said) for these words were not spoken for interview purposes. They came from officers and men alike—pilots, navigators, bombardiers, gunners—but the matter of rank makes no difference to this account anyhow.

Here it is, and perhaps it will suggest the simple heroism of a class of men that will make many people at home very proud.

1. The alert: The combat crews have been told to be ready for a certain hour; and the ground people are doing most of the sweating as often they do. The combat crews are the youngsters. They are sitting or lounging on bunks in barracks, a group of curiously still men, talking quietly and very little and doing a great deal of letter writing by the yellow little lights. While I am here nothing directly is said for a long time about what is going to happen tomorrow morning (that is when they are flying out), but a gunner of about 19 indirectly approaches the subject and says to a major of about 24:

"Sir, it looks to me like we get gypped plenty of times on these confirmeds (the official determination as to how many enemy planes one of our crews has shot down.) You can see them going down, a lot more than we get credit for."

The major was a big, rawboned fellow in a sweatshirt; he had just been playing softball and complaining that if it hadn't been for that one bad inning. . . .

He turned to the boy and said earnestly:

"Johnnie, the thing to do is to tell those intelligence officers when you get back from a mission everything that happened. Don't be holding back; they want to know. Keep throwing it at them until you've told them everything. You see, now, what has been happening is that you haven't been throwing it at them."

Said a young lieutenant from the depths of his bunk:

"You ain't wolfin' (kidding), major."

I had been asking the major about a captain recently lost and he returned to that as though there was nothing else at all to think about—for example nothing to think about in connection with tomorrow.

He explained carefully and at length that the captain probably had got down all right, although in German territory, and for the firts time mentioned what was being planned for the next few hours.

"I hope it isn't scrubbed (called off)," he said. "I'd like for you to see it while you are here."

"Well. . . ." it seemed hardly decent to cheerfully assent, for I wasn't going to the raid; the major was.

"No, no," he went on. "That's the only way we'll beat them—keep going at them. What we don't get tomorrow we've got to get another day."

A ground officer was sitting around with us and said with a rather bleak smile: "Oh, it's awful tough on me. All you Joes have to do is fly them." He was of course deprecating himself in the only way he knew, trying to say that he understood what they had to do and appreciated it, but they howled him down with some rich—and affectionate—stuff. One of them, a navigator, bellowed:

"What the hell! You know what the French call a pilot? A shofer, eh kid? shofer; truck driver."

The pilot: "What's a navigator? A lousy knob-turner. How's in command of the ship? Tell him that."

We left the barracks in the half-light of these late English dusks and the major, turning into his office for some night paper work, raised his hand and called out: Tomorrow—early."

2. The time of inaction and waiting: This time we are in an officers' club, in a minor choas of table tennis, conversation, cribbage and even a couple of chess players gamely and grimly going through with it amid the noise.

A thin younster is talking fast and almost endlessly, laughing and throwing his arms about, and a husky chaplain is denouncing the youngster's home town, Philadelphia as it happened.

"Padre," says the boy, "don't say that: don't say that. Philadelphia is a real city. In New York it's just a vertical place, going one way—up and down."

"Philadelphia," the chaplain persists solemnly, "is the place where nothing is always happening." He is insisting on this old and amiable libel as another lad breaks in:

"Padre, this guy does nothing but sleep, anyhow, so maybe you're rightabout Philadelphia."

"That's all right," the chaplain smiles, "That is, all right for every morning but Sunday."

I found out later that the thin boy was part of a crew that had been grounded for a while because their pilot, for whom they held an admiration and affection of astonishing depth, had been killed. What was happening here, in all this casual and seemingly purposeless banter, was an illustration of one of the jobs of a chaplain:

To help combat men—to help the flight surgeons in that connection—keep their nerves and emotions as level as possible after such a tragedy as had happened here.

3. The return from action:

We enter—a couple of correspondents—a very silent barracks where a crew is resting after an unusually bitter attack over the Ruhr. They are in all sorts of clothing, some with big, furry flying boots but no shirts entering this place and talking there was, I believe, one of the hardest jobs I'll ever have. These men were back from a place where German flak had made the sky a skeptical hell and, moreover, this particular crew had had the misfortune not to be able to drop bombs on the target.

They were all sorts of men in build and characteristics, but every one had a white look of utter fatigue and what seemed like an unbelievable air of relaxation, until the faces merged into something like one of those composite photographs where one man's eyes, another man's nose, and so forth, are put together to make a common face.

They met us with much ribbing—"comb your hair for the press. . . have you got any connections in Indianapolis . . don't forget the Sacramento paper; that's me." Then they fell to accusing each other as publicity hunters.

Soon they were working around to the raid itself, needling each other about the thing from which they had just returned: "I had to grab old Joe by the seat of the pants nine times to keep him from leaving that plane. . . 40 below up there and that so-and-so leaves his gloves on the ground . . . anyhow (this from the pilot) I told you and told you there must be easier ways of making a living."

We let all this run out, going along with it as carefully as we could, and suddenly they began to tell us calmly—and a little bitterly, for their own part of this action was not fully successful—of what had happened.

As always, there was a rush to cover against taking any personal credit: the pilot had never seen such work as the navigator did; the navigator was terrible, so he himself insisted; but boy, that Les, the bombardier. The bombardier wtih calm determination called to mind, many times and in detail, the excellence of the gunners, although as it happened they didn't get a chance to really show what they could do this time because it was mostly flak and not fighters against them.

Their report of the raid ran out as quickly as it had begun and restlessly and with sarcasm they fell to complaining about the mess situation.

"We burn thousands of gallons of gas up there," said one, "and what happens? We get back down and they won't let us go to mess in a jeep.

"You could take above 35 men to mess" — and here he reached down and produced the pencilled sheet on which he had been working — "for, I figure, half a gallon. Where's the economy in that?"

The talk turned at last, and again without preamble, to "back home" and the questions were now coming at us. They asked about the steak situation and was ice water still plentiful back there.

"How are the bands going?" one of them asked me.

"Well, is the music better or worse?"

I told him I was sorry but he had a bad source for that subject I had to confess, and for the first time I was sincerely sorry for my ignorance in the matter, that I had scarcely been able to tell one tune from another in the last ten years.

He sighed, and tried once more:

"Well, are they getting big crowds — lots of dancing?"

"Yes, yes, you bet," hurriedly.

"What you think of the chances of getting into the advertising business after the war?"

"I'm sorry, I don't know much . . .sure, I see no reason why not."

"What's the best thing in that lineup?"

"Well, I've always heard the account executives do all right."

"Ah," he stretched and yawned — and Cologne was just two hours behind him — "that's dough; that's for me."

NEW U-BOAT DRIVE MAPPED BY NAZIS

COLOGNE

Extensive Maneuvers, Using Secret Devices, Reported in Baltic.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11 — (AP) Germany was believed tonight to be preparing for a vigorous renewal

her U-boat campaign and competent naval authorities here expressed the opinion a strong portion of her battle fleet lies in northern Norway fjords ready for action in defense of northern Europe against an Allied invasion.

In the Baltic sea there have been extensive German naval training activities all summer at the ports of Danzig and Gdynia with new submarine crews being trained. As the nights grow longer, naval men believe, submarine activity will be intensified.

What success the Germans have had developing new weapons to combat Allied anti-submarine devices, which drove the U-boats from the Atlantic in June, are still military secrets, but there are indications new devices have been perfected — such as new methods of spotting Allied planes before they see the U-boat, and improvements on the electrically driven torpedo.

Mighty Warships Hidden

Skilfully camouflaged and heavily protected against both air and sea attack, Hitler's mightiest warships, the 35,000-ton Tirpitz and the battleship Scharnhorst, are reported to be hidden in the Alt fjord, which is sheltered by a series of heavily fortified islands at the northern tip of Norway. The Germans also have numerous destroyers and other warships in this area. Norwegian reports yesterday said some of this flotilla participated in the raid Wednesday on the polar island of Spitzbergen.

The narrow fjords in which the ships are anchored make it almost impossible for torpedo bombers to come in from more than one direction. The rugged coastal hills in the vicinity are dotted with heavy concentrations of anti-aircraft guns which could lay a blanket of fire across any approach by either carrier based torpedo or dive bombers. Elaborate anti-submarine nets blockade all inlets to the fjords.

The concentration of the German fleet in northern waters ties up a large part of the British Home fleet at Scapa Flow. Any move by the Tirpitz and her satellites will bring British battleships steaming into the North sea to give battle in an effort to remove the trump card which the Germans still hold from the sea against any northern invasion.

Advantage in Carriers

The British would have the advantage of numerous aircraft carriers as the Germans are known to have only one—the new Graf Zeppelin, which is reported to have been on trial cruises in the Baltic recently. With the Graf Zeppelin in the Baltic are three of Germany's first line cruisers—the Prince Eugen, the Admiral Scheer and the Koeln.

Surrender of much of the Italian fleet to the Allies removed further Axis threats from the Mediterranean and was expected to eliminate all necessity for using the Murmansk route to supply Russia.

Much of the Nazi submarine fleet, which naval observers here agree is still formidable, is expected to be used close to the European coast as an anti-invasion weapon for attacking landing fleets. The German battle fleet naval experts say, will be thrown into the fight only when the all-out invasion starts.

Reports here say German military authorities insist they anticipate soon a bigger Allied offensive than the Italian campaign. Swedish correspondents reporting from Berlin say the Germans view western France, which has been under a ceaseless Allied bombing, as the most likely invasion point, but they say the Germans declare they are prepared there and in the Balkans.

GERMANS EXPECT GREAT INVASION

COLBURN

Stockholm, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—New Allied offensives overshadowing the Italian invasion in scope are expected by German military experts to be launched soon, dispatches from Berlin said today. They view western France, target of ceaseless Allied aerial softening-up blows, as the most likely point for the next Allied blow, but said they are prepared there as well as in the Balkans for any attack.

Nazi military commentators declared that their forces control most of middle and northern Italy, but admitted that Italian troops continued to offer resistance in some of those areas yesterday.

Italian resistance also was encountered by the German forces which regained control of the Brenner Pass, the dispatches reported, and added that opposition also had to be overcome at Trieste, Bolzano, Verona, Cremona, Parma, Modena, Bologna, Mantua and Reggio Emilia.

TIRPITZ IN FJORD

Stockholm, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The German battleships Tirpitz and Scharnhorst are reported here to be at anchor far above the Arctic Circle in the heavily fortified Alt Fjord near the Norwegian town of Hammerfest.

Except for one short excursion to the island of Bjornoeya, neither of the ships was believed to have been outside the Norwegian coast waters since being moved from Trondheim Fjord six months ago.

Three crack German cruisers, the Prinz Eugen, Admiral Scheer and Koeln, were reported recently in the Baltic Sea.

Nazi-Bulgarian Deal Reported

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 11 (AP)—Germany has offered Albania to Bulgaria in exchange for fuller collaboration and the services of the Bulgarian Army in the Balkans and Bulgarian troops are already crossing the Albanian border, a Sofia dispatch to the Gazette de Lausanne said today.

[Bulgarian troops were also moving into central and southern Yugoslavia to replace Italians as Axis garrison forces, said a British broadcast reported by the Columbia Broadcasting System.]

German troops were reported fighting and disarming Italian garrisons in Albania, which Italy seized in 1939.

The Sofia dispatch said that Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff's announcement of the Nazi offer to the National Assembly on Thursday provoked a stormy session in which the opposition accused Philoff's party of ignoring the wishes of the people.

A Budapest dispatch to the Neue Zuercher Zeitung said that Croatia was drawing closer to Germany.

Rightist Chetniks in Northern Dalmatia as well as leftist Partisans, who always were anti-Italian, participated in action in the Yugoslavian coastal areas against the Italians, the Budapest report said. About 7,000 Italian troops in and near Karlovac were disarmed. A Zagreb a Croatian legion was being formed to try to seize the Croatians' Dalmatian area formerly held by Italy.

Italians Release Allied Prisoners

Italian Frontier, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The Italians have released British and American prisoners from Camp Erba near Milan, it was reported today. Sixty prisoners were said to have crossed Ponte Chiasso at the Swiss frontier, and many others were reported moving toward the border at various points.

Report Sardinia Landings.

Madrid, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Italian sources in Madrid reported today that additional Allied landings have been made on the island of Sardinia. These sources said also that Italian forces on Corsica were expecting Allied planes to make at least "token" landings on the island's airfields, which are said to be in complete possession of the Italians.

AXIS LAND CONVOYS BLASTED IN ITALY

Allied Airmen Meet Little Opposition, Smash 100 Trucks.

SEP 11 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 11—(AP) Allied air formations continued to attack communication routes and air fields in central and southern Italy, with little opposition from the enemy, Allied headquarters said today.

American A-36 dive bombers attacking north-bound enemy land convoys yesterday were officially credited with destroying at least 100 trucks and damaging more than 200 more on the highway between Lagonegro and Auletta, north of Sapri.

Allied planes from the North African Air force downed a total of 18 enemy planes in 24 hours against a loss of ten of their own.

American Liberators from the Middle East command struck for the second consecutive day at Satellite airdromes at Foggia, across the Italian peninsula from Naples, a Cairo communique said. The four-engined bombers shot down one of several enemy fighters which attacked them and all returned to their base safely.

American Flying Fortresses from North Arfica pounded a dozen key roads and rail centers near the Naples-Salerno battlefields and blasted the Ariano region astride the main rail line connecting two principal coastal systems 50 miles above Naples.

Other Fortresses blasted highways in the area east of Benevento, Rochetta San Antonio, Montelcone di Puglia and between Grottaminardo and Ariano Irpino. Hits also were scored on a railway bridge near Concello and on bridges at Boiano and one over the Tiber. At Isernia, 55 miles north of Naples, important railways and roads were destroyed.

Italian Troops Transported

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 11 (AP)—A broadcast German press dispatch intercepted here today indicated that the Germans not only were disarming Italian soldiers, but were transporting them to Germany, presumably for forced labor.

The dispatch, from a correspondent of the German Transocean Agency in the Brenner Pass area between Italy and Germany, said he saw "long columns of disarmed Italian soldiers marching northward toward Germany.

Official information was lacking here on conditions in all parts of Italy outside of those occupied by the Allies. Broadcasts from Germany and other points in Europe, however, pictured the country as in utter confusion.

According to these accounts the Nazis held control of northern and central Italy, with Rome and Milan having been surrendered to them after bitter battles with Italian troops. In Turin, according to latest reports, the Italians still were resisting the Nazis after having wiped out four companies of German shock troops.

NAZIS IN GREECE SUPPRESS ITALIANS

Take Over Country, Disarming Former Allies—Use Bombers to Seize Rhodes

BATTLES IN YUGOSLAVIA

Patriots Join With Italians in Fighting Germans and Croat Puppet Forces, Reports Say

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 11 (AP)—German troops have taken over all of Greece including zones formerly occupied by Italian forces, the Hellenic news agency reported today.

The agency, quoting what it said were secret sources in Greece, said the German military governor of Athens had issued a proclamation assuming command for the Germans after his return to Athens from conferences with Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel at Salonika.

Italian troops were ordered to gather in coastal towns and await orders, the agency said. Their heavy equipment was taken from them by force.

The Greek population was warned that violation of the Nazi military governor's orders would result in severe penalties.

Actually, the Germans began disarming Italian soldiers Tuesday, the day before Italy's surrender was announced, the news agency reported. It said that the German military commander asked Italian General Areana what attitude he would take in the event of a surrender by Italy.

"I can promise nothing," the Italian is reported to have replied.

A German guard was then thrown about Italian barracks.

NAZIS CLEVER FOE, SAYS ALLIED ACE

Severe Fighting in Italy Forecast by General Montgomery.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 11—(AP) Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth army, in an interview today warned that the Germans must not be underestimated and said that it was a great mistake for anyone to do so.

Gen. Montgomery, whose Eighth army marched approximately 100 miles in the first seven days of the invasion of Italy, cautioned against attaching decisive importance to the Italian armistice in considering the factors in the present Allied campaign on this peninsula.

"The Italians ceased to be a fighting factor by the end of July when we were still engaged in Sicily," he said.

Gen. Montgomery said the Germans are conducting a skilful withdrawal from the southern extremity of Italy, making continual use of demolitions and mines, and that the Eighth army had been hiking on foot in pursuit.

Experienced Foe

"The Germans facing the Eighth army are experienced, well-trained troops and have been conducting a fighting retreat. The German can't be underestimated. It's a great mistake to do so," he declared.

Gen. Montgomery paid hearty tribute to the Canadian and American forces for their roles in the Sicilian victory.

"I'm sorry the Australians, who played a great part in knocking Italy out of the war when Africa was the battlefield, aren't here to see its final phases. But the Canadians are with me now and they're first class—excellent."

The British commander, who stopped German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Egypt, said "the Americans were a great help when I was hard-pressed on the Catania (Sicily) plain."

Severe Fighting Ahead

Gen. Montgomery indicated there would be much hard fighting before the German forces are expelled from Italy.

"But well-trained British, American and Canadian troops can fight under any conditions—desert or mountains, plains or swamps—for they readily adapt themselves. Training is very important. Even troops who have been in action must train while they are resting," he added.

Get Twenty-four Hours to Leave

LA PALMA DE MALLORCA Balearic Islands, Sept. 11 (AP).—Seven Italian warships which put into Balearic ports en route to surrender at Gibraltar were given twenty-four hours to leave the island harbor by Spanish authorities today.

The ships, which stopped to land wounded survivors from the battleship Roma, sunk by Germar air raiders off Corsica, may request an extension of time to remain in ports for necessary repairs or may submit to internment.

Some units of the same squadron, which sailed from La Spezia, were reported to have continued toward Gibraltar but this could not be confirmed.

Many of the wounded were treated at the naval hospital here and it was reported that a majority of the Roma's crew was lost. She carried a complement of 1,600 men.

[The dispatch did not name the vessels or give their types. The 35,000-ton Impero and the 24,000-ton Giulio Cesare have not yet been reported.]

Italians Return Aegean Island To Greek Rule

Yield Samos Voluntarily; Nazis Take Over Greece, Seize Albania Garrisons

ISTANBUL, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Aegean island of Samos, occupied by the Italians during the first part of their war on Greece, was returned to Greek sovereignty yesterday, it was reported here yesterday. The island, forty-two miles southwest of the Turkish city of Izmir (Smyrna), was returned voluntarily, following the Italian armistice, the report said.

Dispatches reaching here from the Balkans yesterday said the Germans are carrying out plans made in advance for capturing Italian garrisons in Albania and Greece.

The Germans were said to have thrown a guard around the Italian barracks at Athens a few hours before the armistice. Anti-Fascist officials in Albania were said to have been arrested.

[A German communique recorded by The Associated Press said that most of the Italian units in the Albanian city of Tirana had put down their arms. It declared further that "Italian warships and merchantmen in the Aegean had been taken over by the German navy" and that German units had occupied former Italian airfields and the most important harbors on the Adriatic coast.

[Consolidating thir positions in the face of the southern invasion of the Allies, German troops were reported in a communique to have captured the Italian naval base of Pola on the Yugoslav side of the Adriatic and the Island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese group.]

Down To Earth In Iran

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

KARAJ, Iran — Surja Dawa, the Nono or Tibetan prince, and Dr. Walter N. Koelz, the eminent Michigan-born naturalist, were on their knees weeding onions when I first saw them —not just ordinary onions, but rare Asiatic strains.

They were both barefooted. The Nono had a sun helmet but the scientist wore only a knotted white handkerchief to shield his scholarly pate from the beating sun.

I had come to Karaj looking for Koelz, and wondering at the stories I had heard of his way of life. When I left, I was still wondering, but I was convinced that I had met one of the world's happiest men.

Koelz, 48, one-time professor at the University of Michigan, and naturalist with the first Byrd-MacMillan Arctic expedition, has been roving the Asiatic hinterland almost continuously for the past 13 years, shunning the foreign colonies, living a humble life among the people. He had been working as agricultural explorer, employed by the United States Department of Agriculture until after the outbreak of war.

The war, somewhat against the doctor's wishes, has planted him at Karaj, village site of the Iranian Agricultural College, 30 miles west of Teheran. The college has given Koelz and the Nono quarters, and a plot of experimental earth to do with as they wish.

Koelz and I sat in the shade of a little mulberry tree, and talked about such things as Afghan eggplant, wild Iranian potatoes, a Kurdish strain of sugar peas, and of an ugly duckling sort of Indian muskmelon which once saved the Imperial valley's melon industry. It seems that the seeds from this melon, furnished by Koelz, provided a strain of resistance to a disease which was threatening to bankrupt the California growers.

Somehow, the talk got around to animal life in general and a wild boar named Piggy in particular. Piggy, as a piglet, had been given to Koelz by a farmer when the doctor was camping out two years ago in the mountains of Louristan province.

"Piggy grew up to be 300 pounds," Koelz said. "He was like a puppy, always following me about, the smartest beast I have ever known. But other wild boars would smell him and come rooting into camp at night. Finally, we had to shoot him, poor thing."

Allied Fliers Raid Burma

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 11 (AP) —American fighters and medium bombers dealt a series of punishing blows to Japanese installations in northern Burma Wednesday and Thursday, a Tenth United States Air Force communiqué said today. Not a plane was lost in the widespread operations.

Mitchell mediums opened the two-day assault when they attacked enemy barracks and other buildings at Lashio and Shwebo, leaving several big fires burning.

P-40 fighters hit a Japanese supply base at Taringga with fragmentation bombs the next day, while Mitchells dumped high explosives on Kamaing in the same area, demolishing three barracks and leaving fires that rose to 600 feet, the communiqué said.

Royal Air Force bombers and fighting planes, taking advantage of a lull in the heavy rains, blasted river shipping and port installations in the Akyab region of Burma yesterday, a British communiqué said.

Vengeance dive bombers escorted by fighters bombed and machine-gunned an oil jetty at Satyogya Creek, near Akyab. Bomb hits were scored on buildings south of the jetty and the target area was strafed. Ten large motor boats, a heavily laden cargo boat and three loaded sampans were put out of commission.

On an offensive patrol along the Arakan coast, Beaufighters damaged a number of sampans near Ramree. Others making a run along the Irrawaddy River scored hits on two oil tanks, an oil barge, various river craft and a pipe line.

Hurricanes swept up behind the Beaufighters to blast a convoy of 100 sampans heading north at Yenangyuang, and they also scored hits on four barges and a double-decked river steamer.

Despite heavy rains and cloud formations on the previous three days, RAF planes attacked enemy troop positions near Maungdaw, putting several gun posts out of action. On the lower Chindwin River the British planes sighted a group of sampans and more than thirty of these were sunk or damaged.

One British aircraft was listed as missing.

Reds Batter Fleeing Nazis.

Moscow, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Battering the fleeing German legions along a 400-mile front from the Sea of Azov to Bryansk at the northern end of the Ukraine, Red Army troops have imperiled the entire Nazi defense system east of the Dnieper River and are threatening the sole remaining escape corridor of the Crimean garrisons.

Russian blows reported today turned the German retreat in many places into a rout.

[The British radio said today that dispatches from Moscow report fighting only forty-five miles east of the Dnieper. Nazi abandonment of Pavlograd, forty miles from the vitally important industrial center of Dniepropetrovsk was announced. CBS picked up the broadcast.]

Volnovakha, on the Stalino-Mariupol railway and Barvenkovo, midway between Stalino and Kharkov, also were captured in the day's advance. Fall of Chaplino posed an immediate threat to Zaporzhe, capture of which would in turn endanger the whole German southern line.

TURKISH NEUTRALITY HIT IN SOVIET PRESS

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—(AP) The government newspaper Izvestia today published a denunciation of Turkish neutrality as "aid to Germany."

Izvestia's article was a reprint of one which had appeared in the magazine "War and the Working Class," which declared that the "Turkish policy of neutrality from the very beginning was advantageous to Germany" in covering the German flank in the Balkans.

The Soviet Union was said to be watching Turkey's policy closely for determination of its own attitude [illegible] the Turks raids Thursday against Japanese objectives in Canton and other points, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

P-38 Lightnings dive-bombed wharves and near-by warehouse areas in Canton, starting fires visible fifty miles away.

Railroad installations and shipping near the Yangtze port of Kiukiang also were attacked. All American planes returned to their bases.

[A Japanese broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said United States bombers and fighters attacked in two waves at Hankow today and yesterday but announced negligible damage. It is said two American planes were downed.]

The Chinese High Command communiqué today reported that a Japanese motor column had been ambushed and repelled in northern Kiangsu Province.

General Stilwell's communiqué said B-25 Mitchells escorted by P-40 Warhawks attacked the White Cloud airdrome near Canton Thursday, scoring direct hits on hangars, shops and fuel dumps and setting huge fires. Five Zeros and probably four more were shot down.

Boats, a bridge and radio stations were the targets in sweeps over western Hupeh Province.

Meanwhile, a Chinese witness reported that vital military establishments were wrecked and hundreds of Japanese military personnel killed in the Fourteenth Air Force's raid on Hankow Aug. 24. Some 300 enemy marines were killed around a customs house on the waterfront, he said.

Flying Cross Awarded To Gen. Chennault

Kunming, Sept. 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—In recognition of his services as commander of the former Flying Tigers and as commander of the 14th United States Air Force in China, Major-Gen. Claire L. Chennault was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross today.

The medal, "for extraordinary achievement in aerial flight," was pinned on the 53-year-old air tactician by Major-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of American Air Forces in India and Burma.

CAPTURE OF LAE EXPECTED SOON

Jap Position Desperate as Allies Close In.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The imminent fall of the Japanese air base of Lae, New Guinea, into Allied hands was indicated strongly today by a communique which said the enemy's position now is desperate.

Whether the Japanese, who have held the Huon Gulf town since January 25, 1942, propose to make a fight of it should become apparent soon. So far, only minor skirmishes have been reported by two Allied forces pinching in on Lae from the northeast and northwest.

From the northeast, Australians, who have battled the Germans in North Africa and are openly contemptuous of their present foe's abilit yto fight, have crossed the Busu River only two miles from the Malahang airdrome on Lae's outskirts.

These Australians, slowed up principally by swamp and jungle, now have 25-pounders shelling Lae.

Up the Markham Valley to the northwest of Lae, a large force of Americans and Australians, which has been flown in by air transports, has reached Narakapor, twelve miles from the enemy base.

"Our forces from both sides are rapidly closing in on the main citadel of defenses," today's communique said.

JAPS FLEE RIDGES NEAR SALAMAUA

Panicky Foe Races Toward Lae as Allied Troops Break Lines.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Sept. 12—(AP) American and Australian jungle fighters, covered by a heavy artillery barrage, drove the Japanese from ridge positions along the coast below Salamaua, New Guinea, into panicky flight Saturday, bringing close the fateful hour for an enemy army trapped there and at Lae.

The Salamaua Japanese, who broke so abruptly from defenses southeast of the Francisco river that they left behind artillery and hundreds of dead, can retreat north along a trail to Lae. But Lae's peril appears ever greater with Australians throwing back Japanese counter-attacks at a newly-won river bridgehead only two miles from an airdrome on its northeastern outskirts and another Allied force surging down the Markham valley from the northwest.

Early Capture Seen

The breaking of the Japanese lines below Salamaua apparently augurs early capture of the large airdrome which is between the Francisco river and the town, built out on an isthmus in the Huon gulf.

The Allies are bidding for two other airdromes at Lae. Near the Malahang airdrome, Australians who crossed the rainswollen Busu river for the first time came under the fire of medium Japanese artillery Saturday. The Australians have the support of 25-pounders wheeled into action with great difficulty over jungle and swamp.

Advanced guards of the Australians inflicted losses on the enemy which tried to dislodge the bridgehead yesterday.

A few soldiers of the encircled Lae-Salamaua army, which some estimates have placed as high as 20,000, may be able to run the Allied sea and air gauntlet by sneaking from Lae in barges. But the greater portion appears doomed.

The other force moving on Lae from the Markham valley is growing by the hour as more men and equipment are flown in by big air transports.

Allied Losses Low

Allied losses around Salamaua, in yesterday's line-smashing attack and throughout previous operations have been only a fraction of those inflicted on the Japanese, headquarters said.

Americans and Australians have been within firing range of the airdrome for many weeks, one group even advancing to the field's southwestern edge.

While other forces have been closing in fast on Lae, 18 miles northwest of Salamaua, the reports from Salamaua heretofore have been briefly to the effect that pressure was being increased there.

The plight of the Japanese at Lae has been described as desperate.

In the Solomons sector, American bombers have made a new violent raid on the isolated Japanese garrison of Vila, on Kolombangara island.

Today's communique said the paratroop-led forces which are moving down the Markham valley behind Lae and the seaborne forces which landed above it now are developing contact with main enemy defense positions. Previously, the reports have made only scant mention of opposition.

Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive bombers, escorted by fighters, delivered two heavy attacks on supplies and defenses at Vila in the Solomons.

Three Japanese coastal guns were destroyed and many of the gun crews killed. Heavy damage was caused to Vila's airdrome, one of five still in Japanese hands in the Solomons.

At the biggest enemy airdrome in that section, Kahili on Bougainville, today's communiqué reported that four-engined bombers set fuel dumps ablaze and started fires among grounded aircraft, while escorting fighters drove off thirty intercepting Japanese planes. Three of the interceptors were shot down, and the Americans also lost three, but two pilots were saved.

Below Vila, within artillery range of that enemy garrison, the Japanese tried to check American occupation of Arundel Island by landing a force from barges at night, but they were driven off.

Bayonne Flyer Honored

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific Area, Sept. 2 (Delayed) (AP).—An Air Medal has been presented to Staff Sergeant John K. Flockhard, of Bayonne, N. J., for meritorious achievement while participating in 100 hours of operational flights.

Yanks Play Football On Bloody Beach

With Allied Troops Outside Lae, New Guinea, Sept. 9 (Delayed, AP)—Now that the football season is starting in the States, here is the way a couple of Yanks are playing the game on Bloody Beach, where American and Australian troops have been landing since last Saturday:

Sergt. C. S. Dodson, of Texas, and a private they call "Mary" station themselves near the spot where the incoming troops land. Now and then during a Jap air raid, a frightened soldier jumps to his feet and starts to run for cover. If there is only one of them, Dodson makes a flying tackle and sits on him until the raid is over. If there are two of them, "Mary" tackles the second one and sits on him.

They have been doing this for days now, and apparently they like it.

PRACTICE INVASION THRILLS FIRST LADY

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 11.—(AP) Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt watched practice landing operations today as American soldiers put on the final touches in the art of killing Japanese.

Grim-faced youngsters from Iowa, Minnesota and other states drove onto the beach in waves from box-like landing boats and raced past the wife of their Commander-in-Chief.

Some carried rifles and bayonets, others were dragging steel wire matting for roadways, and still others were splashing through the water in jeeps and bulldozers. There also were the ever-present litters.

Mrs. Roosevelt was so interested she asked to see the actual positions as ultimately established by the men who raced inland from the beach.

The First Lady's itinerary included visits to practically every building bearing hospital or Red Cross signs.

FIRST LADY IS NEAR NEW GUINEA FRONT

Cairns, Queensland, Australia, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arrived in this North Australia seacoast town today, and now is a few hours by air from the fighting front in New Guinea.

Although this settlement never has been bombed, Japanese Mitsubishis have passed over on their way to attack Townsville, 175 miles to the south.

The First Lady began the ninth day of her Australian tour by flying here from Rockhampton, where she addressed 2,500 women at a town hall meeting last night. Before leaving Rockhampton today Mrs. Roosevelt called at three hospital wards to visit sick or wounded American soldiers, many of whom have seen action in New Guinea.

She also talked with Army nurses and posed for amateur photographers around the camp hospital. Those who talked with Mrs. Roosevelt included Second Lieuts. Kay Cosgrove of Maroneck, N. Y. ,and Ruby Bartholomew of 710 West 173d street, New York.

News of Italy's Surrender Is Sped to Pacific Troops

Parachutists Dropped Near Lae Get Word by Radio

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 11 (AP).—Airplanes, radios and telephones were used in getting the news of Italy's surrender to the fighting men on the battle fronts of New Guinea.

The news was radioed to American and Australian parachutists who were recently dropped in the Markham Valley northwest of Lae, and to Australians in the Huon Gulf area.

Copies of "Guinea Gold," the Australian front-line Army newspaper, were dropped over the battlefronts from planes, after army trucks had brought the papers to various airfields.

Another Ragged Japanese Is Captured on Attu

U. S. Soldiers Chase Starving Survivor Into Foxhole

ATTU ISLAND, The Aleutians, Sept. 8 (Delayed) (AP).—Another ragged and almost starved survivor of Japan's Aleutian invading force fell into the hands of United States Army troops today on this farthermost Pacific outpost of North America.

The prisoner, the first taken since Aug 24, surrendered after soldiers had chased him into a foxhole. He had been living like an animal in the rugged, treeless hills for more than three months.

All but a handful of the Attu Japanese were destroyed by the American amphibious force which regained the island in May.

Hunted Ex-Deputy Reported Safe

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 11 (AP)—Foreign Office reports said today that the former Argentine Deputy Raul Damonte Taborda had taken refuge in the Uruguayan Embassy at Buenos Aires after police were ordered to arrest him.

Señor Damonte was the first chairman of the Congressional committee investigating anti-Argentine activities.

ACTING MINISTER REPLACES STORNI

Buenos Aires, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Minister of the Interior Alberto Gilbert has been assigned to the post of Acting Foreign Minister in place of Admiral Segundo Storni, who resigned after his failure to obtain lease-lend aid from the United States, it was announced last night.

It was indicated, however, that Gilbert's assignment was temporary and that he also would continue his duties as head of the Interior Department until a permanent Foreign Minister is chosen.

Admiral Storni's resignation was followed by the removal of Roberto Gache, Under-Secretary, and Richardo Bunge, head of the Division of Political Affairs. This action caused considerable surprise in diplomatic circles, since both were career men.

The decrees removing them did not give any reasons, but it seemed likely that, as the Foreign Minister's principal advisers, they were considered to share the responsibility for the difficulties with the United States State Department.

A semi-official hint said that the Military Cabinet would meet in extraordinary session today.

MEXICO PREPARED TO PAY ITS DEBTS

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—(AP) Payments on Mexico's foreign debt are not likely to be jeopardized by any post-war deflation or money stringency because the annual payments are well within the capacity of the country's normal budget, according to Eduardo Villasenor, head of the government's own bank of Mexico.

The chief government banker pointed out that payments on the foreign debt, under a 1942 agreement providing for scaling it down, amounted to only about $2,000,000 a year. On the other hand, he said, Mexico's normal budget runs better than $100,000,000 a year, so that only 2 per cent or less of the country's income is pledged to paying off back debts.

PANAMA'S INDIANS OPEN WAR ON AXIS

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 11—(AP) Panama's most remote tribe of Indians—the fierce Cunas—has declared war against the Axis and gone to work for Uncle Sam.

In the uncharted mountain fastness of the Bayano region, hundreds of able-bodied bucks are at the vital task of producing rubber from a heretofore virgin source.

They are doing it without outside aid because they want no white men in their domain.

It all came about at a pow-wow held recently in the small village of Chepo, where white men met with the Indian leaders to discuss conditions under which the Indians would permit the exploitation of an unknown but potentially great source of rubber. One immediate result of the conference was a declaration of war by the Indians on the Axis, including Japan.

Chief from four villages, headed by the big chief, came down the Bayano river in their long dug-outs to attend the pow-wow. One of them was the first member of his clan to visit a civilized town.

For many weeks Panamanian authorities cooperating with representatives in Panama of Chicle Development Co., Inc., of New York, had been trying to make arrangements to tap the rubber sources in the Bayano area. But they ran against the determined opposition of the Indians, who wanted no white man's invasion of their lands. They were willing to have the rubber be tapped and hauled out to the nearest civilized point but, they said, they feared any white penetration would be permanent.

To iron out the differences, the conference was called.

Great Neck Man Killed In Canadian Air Force

Ottawa, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The name of one American, killed on active service, appeared in the Royal Canadian Air Force's casualty list issued today. He was Pilot Officer William Ivan St. Johns of 5 Spruce street, Great Neck, L. I.

Virile Decisions Urged by Badoglio

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 — (AP) In a gesture possibly foreshadowing an Italian declaration of war upon Germany, Premier Pietro Badoglio and King Vitiorio Emanuele tonight called upon the Italian people to abide by the terms of the armistice and not to resist United Nations' forces but to defend the nation against "German aggression."

"The armed forces of the government should not carry out any hostile act against the Anglo-American troops," said Premier Badoglio's proclamation, "but they should be ready to act against attacks from any other direction.

"The German armed forces immediately after the armistice x x x carried out acts of aggression against us. Italians! The moment is very grave and only virile decisions can save Italy."

The twin appeals were made in proclamations, dated today, read over an unidentified radio station, and reported by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service.

They indicated that the Monarch and the Premier, whose whereabouts were unknown since announcement of Italy's capitulation made a battleground of the country, had reached an Allied haven.

King's Proclamation

The King's proclamation was as follows:

"Italians! For the supreme good of the fatherland, which always was my first thought and the aim of my life, with the intention to avoid even graver suffering and greater sacrifices, I authorized the request for the armistice.

"For the safety of the capital, so as fully to be able to do my duties as King, I have moved with the government and high military authorities to another point of the national territory.

"Italians I am counting on you in all circumstances just as you can count on the utmost sacrifice by your King. May God help Italy in this grave hour of her history."

JAP EARTHQUAKE MINIMIZED ON AIR

Early Reports of 1,400 Killed Contradicted by Tokyo Radio.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 — (AP) The Tokyo radio in a broadcast heard tonight by N.B.C. described the earthquake in the city of Tottori in southwestern Japan last night as having caused "slight" damage and "minor casualties."

This latest account was in direct conflict with an earlier report by the Domei news agency which said that 1,400 persons were killed or seriously injured at Tottori by Japan's most severe earthquake in 10 years. The Domei broadcast was heard in London and recorded by N.B.C. from a British radio report.

Tottori, the capital of Inaba province, is nearly 400 miles west of Tokyo. It had a population in 1930

The city experienced five separate shocks, Domei said, adding that the seismic center of the disturbance was believed to be in the Tottori prefecture. Many houses collapsed and rescue parties were digging into the ruins of the demolished homes for possible victims, Domei reported.

An earlier Tokyo broadcast said that houses were rocked on their foundations in the cities of Kobe, Osaka, and Hiroshima and people fled into the open. There was little damage in these three cities, Tokyo reported.

ALLIES CAN USE ITALY'S WARSHIPS

SEP 1 1943

'You Bet We Can,' Says Gen. Eisenhower; Ships in Good Shape.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean, disclosed yesterday that under the terms of the Italian armistice the Allies may use the surrendered Italian naval vessels.

"You bet we can," General Eisenhower replied to a question by Clark Lee, writing for the combined American press, as to whether the Allies could use the Italian ships.

Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, head of the Mediterranean fleet, also told Mr. Lee that "the Italian ships are in good order, absolutely first class, especially the battleships and new cruisers."

However, James Wellard, also representing the combined American press, said without amplification, in a dispatch from Malta, that "this war for those 17 (surrendered) ships—the pride of the Italian Navy—is over."

Admiral Cunningham told Mr. Lee that acquisition of the Italian Navy would allow the Allies to turn a large portion of their heavy ships against the Japanese.

Admiral Cunningham also disclosed that in addition to surface craft Italian submarines were "popping up all over the place to surrender."

Argentina Revolt Reports Denied in Buenos Aires

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Buenos Aires radio denied tonight reports "circulating abroad" that the regime of Gen. Pedro Ramirez was threatened by a military coup. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

The Federal Communications commission, apparently reporting the same broadcast, quoted Lt. Col. Alvo Castro, press spokesman for President Ramirez, as saying that there was no truth to the report but on the contrary the Argentine armed forces "have reiterated of their own free will their absolute solidarity with the national government."

Radio Agricultura at Santiago, Chile, said tonight in a domestic broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications commission that "the best sources of information in Santiago report that there is a new military revolutionary movement in Argentina."

The broadcast said that Gen. Arturo Rawson "has dismissed" Gen. Pedro Ramirez, head of the military regime established after the overthrow of President Ramon Castillo's government last June 4. Gen. Rawson had aided President Ramirez in that coup d'etat.

Chile's radio quoted a Buenos Aires report via Montevideo that Gen. Edelmiro Farrell, Argentine minister of war, had been named vice-president.

Telephone communication between Santiago and Buenos Aires was reported normal, but when efforts were made to get information about the political situation "the censor interrupted, cutting the communications," the broadcast said.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP) The London radio reported tonight that 53 Italian warships now are in Allied Mediterranean ports—"the greater part of Italy's battle fleet," CBS recorded the broadcast.

Berlin Says Allied Raids Killed 200 More French

The Berlin radio said today that more than 200 civilians were killed Thursday during the heavy American and British bomber raids on an airplane engine factory at Paris and on Boulogne. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said that 900 persons were injured seriously.

THAILAND HOLDS ITALIANS

All Italians in Japanese-dominated Thailand have been placed under protective arrest in their homes and their telephones and radio sets confiscated, the Berlin radio said today quoting a dispatch from Bangkok. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

What Do Soldiers Want for Christmas?
AP Survey Shows Some Unusual Requests

SEP 1 1943

Cigarette Lighters Rank High with Boys—Soldiers in India Want Blonde Date—All Want Letters, One Will Even Accept Old Bills.

(The Associated Press asked its foreign correspondents to learn what the soldiers and sailors, the nurses and WACS, want from home for Christmas. They kid a lot about whiskey and women, but there are some things really needed).

By SIGRID ARNE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP) There are 35 Jersey boys in India who want the mayor of Bayonne to send them a keg of beer for Christmas. It's hot out there.

They would also appreciate a five-foot-two blonde.—Others throughout the world want brunettes and redheads. There's more than a little indication that just any white girls would get a big reception.

In Australia an army MP just said wearily he wants some fur-lined house slippers and permission to sit down for two solid months.

In the Solomons Sgt. William A. Chester, of Cincinnati, must be in small troubles. He wants a book on how to play poker.

It's still some four months to the sleigh bell season, but, what with mailing troubles, it's time to think of the soldiers and sailors' Christmas. They have been polled in the various theaters of war by Associated Press men on what they'd like to find in theid holiday box.

Their wishes show up some pretty general needs that we've evidently failed to imagine when we sent off gift boxes.

For instance: There must be plenty of spots where you can't reach up for the kitchen matches. The boys want cigarette lighters (the kind with wind shields) in India, through North Africa and England, and back out to the Solomons. About that, a lad told me yesterday that when you move up front, matches don't follow.

The South Pacific contingent has a specific need that's easy to understand. They want hunting knives, eight inches long with a good handle.

Curiously, from North Africa, come the most requests for magazines, newspapers and serious books. The lad with whom I talked yesterday told me there were times in North Africa when they had no idea how the Pacific war was progressing.

The Navy lads, East or West, turn thumbs down on serious reading. They want thrillers and westerns. They have to pick it up and lay it down too often to concentrate.

Girls Want Stockings

The nurses, WACS, etc? Easy Same old thing. Something that smells pretty (perfume, soap, powder, lipstick, rouge) and unmentionables. Also, stockings and more stockings.

Here are special requests from the different war theaters—in each case, requests which were repeated by many lads.

Take Africa and Sicily first.

They really want chocolate. They dream of chocolate cakes. And chocolate bars. Too many is no enough.

They very blank well don't want anything that will add weight to their knapsacks, because they're on the move. Except the cigaretti lighter and pictures of the family and the girl.

Thumbs are down on "goodies" that don't stand the trip. Don't send anything wearable either, except pajamas.

And here's something to tuc away with "I love him"—from a over the world the boys have wished they could have just one gallon of good old American milk.

One lad who brought me a chuckle was Sgt. Bert Duchau, of Rochester, N. Y. He wants chocolate bars, chocolate creams, chocolate cake, and pictures of everyone. In other words, he'd like chocolate.

There are several in the African theater who want razor blades.

The AP man caught up with several sailors there. They all said "beer." It's hot there, and besides, parson, they may suspect bugs in the water.

In the European theater, which means England at this writing, there are differences.

The soldiers want watches, cigarette lighters (again) some cigarettes and some clothing.

The sailors want watches, fruit juice and camera film, if they have cameras.

The girls want make-up, stockings, unmentionables.

Watches High on List

Watches are tremendously expensive in England, and somehow, it would be nice to know the exact hour when they shove off.

Also the men there aren't getting enough lightweight khaki shirts, some say.

Please don't send reading matter to England. Remember England? Dickens, Shakespeare, and all that? It's still like that.

Some lads would like "pin up girls." Mom, ask sis about that. They want plenty of fruit juice, but tomato juice will do.

Sgt. John Astyk, of Waterbury, Conn., confused me with a non sequitur. He wants a nice American blonde and a pair of swimming trunks.

Helen Donley, of Pine Bluff, Ark., posed a nice shipping problem when she announced, as though we're stupid, that "of course, what we want is coconut cream pie."

And don't send writing paper to the European continent.

New Delhi seems to be something else again. Think about India. Brunettes and a-plenty out there.

—And a Blonde Date

This is what Preston Grover, the AP chief there, found out. The boys want, he says, "wrist watch, white Christmas, a blonde date, beer, a blonde date, cigarette lighters, a blonde date, American candy bars, a blonde date, mystery stories, and a blonde date."

He says the lads need no sweaters. It's 90 in the shade. But they do want lots of light underwear. They don't get enough for the temperature.

He ran across a surprising soldier, Ira J. Beeson, of Buckhannon, W. Va., who wants a book, "Stalin, Man of Steel." And Sgt. Robert Lond, of Arlington, Mass., who'd like a coca-cola machine and stuff to put in it.

The Spokane folks will have to figure out Sgt. Gordon Steidle's request. It is, so help me, "go home, have WAC camp, Spokane, for convenience."

Sgt. Richard Kelley, Hartford, Mich., produces a plaintive note. All he wants, in India, is snow and a quick cure for diarrhea.

The men in the south Pacific have requests that vary with their assignments.

They all want those hunting knives. In addition, white cotton socks, cigars (but the good ones, 25 cents and up), the home town newspaper, shaving lotion and brushes.

They do not want candy, cigarettes, packaged fruits, razors, tooth paste, soap or highbrow books.

There are plenty of thoughtful men who tug at the heart strings. Like Lieut. Commander Lloyd S. Hindman, of Washington, Pa., who, when asked what he wanted from Santa Claus, said "just Christmas dinner with my wife, Bertha."

Lieut. Cliff Binder, a ship's doctor, told Burgess he wants books, detective stories preferred, for the ship's ward rooms.

The Marines at Guadalcanal are special, and who wants to argue? First, if their wives send pictures, please pose in bathing suits, say the marines. And, certainly, why not be the lad's pin-up girl?

They want watches so badly they'll take the dollar kind. Also razor blades, razors (sounds like a clean army) wallets, knives and magazines. There's one fabulous Marine, Sgt. Johnny Moody, of Paducah, Ky., (it must be the Irvin Cobb in him) who wants a dictionary—at Guadalcanal!

At another Pacific base Pvt. Jack Roberts, of Camp Wood, Tex., says he wants mail so badly, please forward old bills.

AP-er Burgess listed these requests formally, and then just broke down in a note to the New York desk with this addenda, "if you really want to be frank the boys want nothing more than (1) leave home, (2) white women and (3) whiskey."

He says don't send cigarettes or candy to the south Pacific. There's plenty.

What's Behind The War News

By JOHN H. WIGGINS

Despite Adolf Hitler's declamation that "the ring of steel forged by the German home front will never break," the Fuehrer must know with certainty now that the events of the last few days have hastened immeasurably the complete corrosion of Axis metal.

Within the week, Allied forces have knocked out one of his partners, taken over a major portion of Italy's fleet and presently are menacing his bomb-battered European fortress from the Italian peninsula, Russia and across the channel in Britain.

To the south, British and American forces are swarming up Italy's mainland.

To the north, triumphant Russian armies finished cleansing the rich Donets basin of Nazi troops and are sweeping on after fleeing German legions to threaten the whole German defense line east of the Dnieper river.

In the South Pacific, Americans and Australians virtually assured the fall of the Japanese air base of Lae, New Guinea, which the now wavering Nipponese have held since January, 1942.

And in western and central Europe, Allied planes continued throughout most of the week their furious bombing to impair Nazi war production further, ruin military targets and bring near the hour when Hitler's inner fortress is invaded.

This week just starting perhaps will show up Herr Hitler's evaluation of Italy's surrender as being only of slight importance.

As British forces climb the southern part of the peninsula to contact German troops, a major battle is shaping up near Naples where the American Fifth army is progressively strengthening its grip.

The fall of Italy brought the major portion of the Italian war fleet into Allied hands—an event that undoubtedly will have repercussions on both Hitler and Tojo.

Escape of most of the Italian ships from Nazi-dominated ports and their safe arrival in Malta greatly enhances the probability of additional Allied naval strength being diverted to the South Pacific war theater.

Nazi Strength Strained

Russian forces, meanwhile, have occasion for plenty of optimism because German military strength appears to be severely strained.

For one thing, Allied offensives in Italy forced German military leaders to rush reinforcements not only to the peninsula but into the neighboring Balkans to be ready for an Allied invasion there and to forestall eruption in the satellite states.

Continuing an amazing sweep along a 400-mile front, the Red troops threatened to slam shut the only door of escape for Germany's Crimean garrisons. The broad Russian action from the Azov sea to the northern end of the Ukraine is turning the German retreat into something resembling a rout in many sectors.

Perhaps Hitler also may regard the Russian front as of slight importance—he failed to mention it in his "victory" broadcast to the German people.

ALLIED CHIEFS URGE ITALIANS TO FIGHT NAZIS

SEP 11 1943

Roosevelt and Churchill Issue a Joint Message Ignoring Monarch.

PEOPLE ADDRESSED DIRECTLY

Pledge Is Made That Germans Will Be Extirpated by Allied Liberating Armies.

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—The Allies pledged today to oust Germans from Italian soil and, by directing that promise to Marshal Pietro Badoglio and the Italian people, immediately raised the question of what was to happen to the ancient House of Savoy.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, in a joint statement, urged every Italian "to strike his blow" now and demonstrate that, rid of Mussolini and Fascism, he desires next to be rid of Hitler and Nazis.

They addressed the message to Marshal Badoglio, who succeeded Mussolini, and to the people, utterly ignoring King Victor Emmanuel III, head of Italy's ruling dynasty.

Rome radio has denied persistent reports that the King has abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Humbert, represented as opposed to Mussolini's Fascism.

The ignoring of the King was pointed, to say the least. The statements of the President and the Prime Minister never have been hasty, nor anything but well thought out."

Broadcast to Italy.

Whether it could be concluded that the United Nations intend to deal only with Marshal Badoglio, on the day of Italy's liberation, was pure conjecture, however.

The message was more than a mere statement—it was beamed by short wave radio directly to the Italian mainland where the British - American forces are at grips with the Germans. Following is the text:

"It has fallen to you in the hour of your country's agony to take the first decisive steps to win peace and freedom for the Italian people and to win back for Italy an honorable place in the civilization of Europe.

"You have already freed your country from Fascist servitude. There remains the even more important task of clearing the Italian soil from the Germans invaders. Hitler, through his accomplice, Mussolini, has brought Italy to the verge of ruin. He has driven the Italians into disastrous campaigns in the sands of Egypt and the snows of Russia. The Germans have always deserted the Italian troops on the battlefield, sacrificing them contemptuously in order to cover their own retreats. Now Hitler threatens to subject you to all the cruelties he is perpetrating in so many lands.

Time to Strike.

"Now is the time for every Italian to strike his blow. The liberating armies of the western world are coming to your rescue. We have very strong forces and are entering at many points. The German terror in Italy will not last long. They will be extirpated from your land and you, by helping in this great surge of liberation, will place yourselves once more among the true and long-proved friends of your country from whom you have been so wrongfully estranged.

"Take every chance you can. Strike hard and strike home. Have faith in your future. All will come well. March forward with your American and British friends in the great world movement towards freedom, justice and peace."

HULL TO TALK ON U. S. POLICY

Will Discuss Framework Of Our Interests In Broadcast Tonight

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 11—Secretary of State Hull, whose formal speeches are few and far between, will broadcast tomorrow night a foreign policy address which the State Department describes as "very important."

The guardian of the nation's interests abroad, under recent fire by critics recently bot as to foreign policy and internal administration of his department, will speak at 9 P. M. over the NBC network. His subject will be "Our Foreign Policy in the Framework of Our National Interests."

The department let it be known that he would review the foreign situation, past and present, and would speak particularly on present and post-war objectives.

Once Since Pearl Harbor

Secretary Hull has made but one major broadcast since Pearl Harbor, when, on July 23, 1942, he spoke on "The War and Human Freedom."

Prior to that he had gone on the air in April, 1941, to discuss "The United States and World Situation" and in October, 1940, in a broadcast address before the National Press Club.

On both occasions he called the attention of the American people to the seriousness of the international situation.

May Reply To Charges

It is expected that his thirty-minute speech tomorrow would:

Reply to charges that the department has exercised little or no foreign policy in recent decades.

Explain present policy in the light of our national interests in the world today.

In so far as it can be provided at this time, submit an answer to the question "What are we fighting for?" in a possible outline of war and post-war objectives, the implementation of which the State Department naturally will have a large share in planning.

It is hardly expected that Secretary Hull will elaborate on alleged internal policy differences with which his department has recently been charged.

Differences Never Admitted

The State Department has never admitted that such existed.

Nor is it thought that he will refer openly to the reported resignation of Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, after talk of sharp disagreement with Mr. Hull. Welles is a Presidential appointee, and any change in his status presumably would be announced by the White House.

STATE OFFICIALS MEET OCT. 19 ON SOLDIER VOTING

SEP 11 1943

Session of Secretaries of State to Throw Light on Problems for '44.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP) The prickly question of soldier voting will get an ironing out Oct. 19-21 when the National Association of Secretaries of State meet in St. Louis.

The war, Navy and Justice departments are expected to have representatives there to help the secretaries smooth out the burrs.

Leo Seybold, director of the Washington office of the Council of State Governments, said state secretaries have expressed willingness to help men and women in the armed services vote in 1944's Presidential election.

But the voting requirements of the various states differ and some attorneys general have given their state secretaries varying opinions on the law passed last September.

That law would permit men and women of the armed services—within the United States and overseas—to vote in elections for President, vise president and United States senators and representatives.

Bottlenecks already have bobbed up in the law and its authors, Democratic Senators Lucas of Illinois and Green of Rhode Island, now have in Congress a bill to amend it.

Further Action Likely

Even that bill may undergo further tailoring but it is likely Congress will withhold action until after the St. Louis meeting.

A political commentator recently raised questions about soldier voting. One is a stickler and some of the others are answered in the law or bill. But if he was puzzled, perhaps others are, too. Here are some questions and answers:

Q. Is every man in uniform to be allowed to vote or only those over 21 years old?

A. The law and amending bill say any service man—or woman—is entitled to vote in the national elections if he or she is or was eligible to register for and is qualified to vote at any election under the law of the state of his residence.

Georgia alone among the states has reduced the voting age from 21 to 18. But since that is state law then presumably any Georgia man or woman in or out of service would come within the provisions of the law and bill.

Q. Will the ballots be sent to the secretaries of state in the various states and by them to the precinct election boards?

A. That's correct.

Q. Who will count the ballots?

A. Presumably the precinct election boards since no other provision is made for counting them. The amending bill merely provides for returning the ballots from overseas by V-mail.

Q. Is the vote to be extended to the thousands of women in uniform, Red Cross workers and Army nurses.

Red Cross Workers Out

A. Voting by Army nurses and all members of the armed services auxiliaries is provided for in the law but not the Red Cross. However the amending bill would allow all civilians abroad to vote.

Q. Will those qualified by age to vote be required to meet the other qualifications of the states from which they come?

A. This probably is the toughest of all questions in the problem. The law and amending bill say:

"In time of war, notwithstanding any provisions of state law relating to the registration of qualified voters, every individual absent from the place of his residence and serving in the land or naval forces of the United States is entitled to vote" if he is or was elibible to register for and is qualified to vote in any election under the law of his state of residence.

This seemingly leaves wide open the whole problem of equalification.

While a person who might be qualified to vote in his state doesn't have to register to vote, yet the bill does not determine who is qualified and who is not. That is still a state's job and would have to be handled on an individual basis. Some job.

ROME PILLAGED TWICE IN PAST

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—There has been no indication yet of what fate Rome will suffer in the hands of the Germans, but twice before invaders from the north sacked or looted it.

Alaric the Visigoth, chief of a Germanic tribe, captured Rome in 410 A. D.

In 452 Attilla, King of the Huns, an Asiatic tribe, drove into northern Italy, but was dissuaded by Pope Leo I from leading his hordes into Rome. Three years later, however, Gaiseric's vandals came in from the northwest and sacked the city.

SHIPPING IMMUNE DURING AUGUST

SEP 11 1943

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Germany's battered U-boat fleet made virtually no effort to attack Allied shipping in the North Atlantic during August. Moreover, more U-boats have been sunk than merchant ships.

This report by the joint British-American-Canadian sea command was made public last night by the OWI, which rated August as another successful month in the anti-submarine campaign.

Opportunities were relatively few for attacking U-boats, the OWI said, perhaps because many were recalled for rearmament.

"A heavy toll has been taken of the enemy," the announcement added, without giving any figures. In May, June and July, ninety U-boats were destroyed in the battle of the Atlantic.

SHIPS BOOTY HERE TO SPUR BOND SALE

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower advised Secretary Morgenthau today that he has shipped 13,000 tons of equipment captured in Sicily to this country for display during the $15,000,000,000 third war loan.

Addressed to War Bonds, U. S. A., the booty will be exhibited in a number of cities, as yet undesignated, to give Americans an idea of the kind of Axis weapons their money is helping destroy.

VICTORY IN SIX MONTHS SEEN BY SEN. M'KELLAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP) Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) said today he wouldn't be surprised to see the European fighting end within six months, "because when one side begins to crack up it isn't long before it bursts wide open."

The Tennessean, now in his 27th year of continuous service in the Senate, returned from a visit home optimistic both for the success of American arms and for democratic victory in next year's Presidential election—"provided Mr. Roosevelt decides to be a candidate."

Also returning to the capital today, Senator Wiley (R-Wis.), declared that "dunderheads" and "ill-advised ignoramuses" are behind charges that the Midwest is complacent about the war.

Reporting he had seen 80-year-old men working alongside boys of eight in the fields, Sen. Wiley said Midwesterners are willing to make any sacrifice necessary for victory.

Puerto Rico Won't Close Rum Industry

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Everett B. Wilson, director of the Puerto Rican Trade Council, said today that Government plans to purchase Puerto Rican molasses would not mean closing down the island's rum industry.

The Defense Supplies Corporation is planning the molasses purchase, he said, to relieve a storage situation in Puerto Rico, where most of its molasses tanks are filled and should be emptied to provide space needed for the new sugar crop.

RADIO EXPERT ARRIVES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP) Sir Edward Appleton, British authority on the application of radio to warfare, has arrived for what the British Information service calls "a discussion of scientific matters affecting the war."

PATMAN DRAFTS BILL FOR AID TO VETERANS

Wants War Material Given to Them as One Phase

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Chairman Patman of the House Small Business Committee wants veterans of this war to have first chance to obtain surplus war materials to set them up in business.

The Texas Democrat, who was author of the First World War Veteran's Bonus Bill, which was passed over President Roosevelt's veto, said today that the idea of distributing war material is incorporated in legislation which he plans to introduce when Congress reconvenes Tuesday.

The primary idea, Mr. Patman said, is "to help discharged servicemen get back on their feet and into business in their own communities." Here are some of the provisions which he will put in the bill:

Following their discharge, veterans would receive three months' full pay, including allotments and allowances for dependents, regardless of whether they returned immediately to private employment.

At the end of the three months a veteran would be entitled to unemployment insurance for twenty-six weeks, based on annual earnings of $1,700 for the time he was in service; if unemployed at the end of the twenty-six weeks, he would receive unemployment compensation.

All employers with 100 or more employes would be required to employ disabled veterans to the extent of 1 per cent of their total personnel.

Surplus war property would be disposed of in accordance with recommendations of the Smaller War Plants Corporation with a view to encouraging the establishment of small business enterprises by veterans.

To encourage the acquisition of small farms by veterans, $100,000,000 annually would be appropriated until the end of the war and $1,000,000,000 annually thereafter for five years, for loans to veterans under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act.

War bonds bought by members of the armed forces would be increased in redemption value by 10 per cent when used to buy farm lands.

Fathers Draft Is Supported by Mrs. Caraway

Senator With Two Sons in Army Sees No Reason for Congress to Protest

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP).—A Senator first—a mother second—Mrs. Hattie Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, spoke out today against efforts of some Congress members to restrict or prohibit drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

"I think if the Army and Navy needs fathers, there's nothing to do but take them," said the only woman member of the United States Senate. She has two sons in the armed forces and contended that her constituents in Arkansas feel about the father draft as she does.

"I've talked a good deal about it with the people down home and they all seem to feel that Congress shouldn't interefere," Mrs. Caraway added. "I can't see how Congress can permit sending eighteen and nineteen-year-olds into the services and not allow fathers to go."

Mrs. Caraway told an interviewer she anticipates considerable debate on the question of sending fathers to the battlefronts. As for her, she has faith in the judgment of Army and Navy officials about the required size of the armed forces, now estimated at around 10,000,000, and said she would not question their views.

Her sons are lieutenant colonels in the infantry, Paul Caraway being stationed here and Forrest at Camp Pickett, Va.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, has a bill pending to postpone the drafting of fathers until Jan. 1, and Chairman Andrew J. May, Democrat, of Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, said that when Congress reconvenes Tuesday he will introduce legislation to bar such inductions entirely.

Home Front Issues, Draft And Taxes Claim Attention

Development of Post-War Policies Expected with '44 Election Approaching.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP) Its confidence in complete victory strengthened by Italy's capitulation, the 78th Congress will return on Tuesday with the difficult and double task of helping blueprint a future peace in the midst of war while guiding domestic economy with a national election impending.

From the deliberations and actions of the nation's lawmakers in the months ahead may come the pattern of American post-war policy abroad and of the dominant governmental philosophy at home; from their controversies probably will come the issues of the 1944 presidential campaign.

The "Victory Congress"—so dubbed by Speaker Sam Rayburn—will resume its work after the first long legislative holiday since 1939 with a record of unity in mustering the country's resources for war, but one of hectic conflict with the administration on domestic affairs.

There was no advance indication of a change in the double-role attitude of Congress. Returning congressmen, fresh from cracker barrel and back porch conferences with their constituents, spoke as one in saying "the people" will back at nothing necessary to win the war—and as soon as possible.

At that point their unanimity ended.

Draft Controversy Likely

Even in advance of the opening session, their reports set the stage for hot controversies over the move to draft fathers after Oct. 1, the necessity for new taxes, the wisdom of some Office of Price Administration ration rulings, the continuing price vs. cost tug of war between producer and consumer.

Unconditional surrender of Italy's army and approach of the Oct. 1 deadline focused immediate congressional attention on the issue of drafting fathers, with a strong possibility that the lawmakers may countermand an important decision of the nation's military bosses for the first time since Pearl Harbor.

A quick test of strength on the question seemed certain. Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) has said he would seek immediate action on his stop-gap bill to defer the father draft until Jan. 1. Meanwhile, Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House Military committee was rushing work on legislation to exempt fathers permanently.

The outcome apparently will rest on the effect the Italian developments have on the military's manpower requirements and upon the ability of army chiefs to furnish bedrock proof that they need—and can supply and train—more men than they now have.

Manpower Issues

Wrapped up closely with that issue is the whole subject of available manpower and womanpower for civilian and war production. That, in turn, brings in the question of supplies on hand and materials for more supplies.

There has been talk already on Capitol Hill of ordering a general congressional study of the manpower-production-materials problem. Upon this may depend the question of whether a move for national service legislation will be revived.

The House Ways and Means committee has turned from the subject of pay-as-you-go taxation, with which it wrestled for months earlier in the year, to the task of determining the possibility of finding $12,000,000,000 in new revenue sought by the administration.

Hot as was the now historic fight over tax "forgiveness," the committee's quest for fresh revenue sources was expected to precipitate just as tense a struggle, with some observers predicting it would end in a deadlock—and no new taxes.

Study Tax Sources

In coming weeks, the committee still lacking recommendations from the Treasury—will study such possible sources of revenue as a general sales tax, a manufacturers' sales tax, increased corporate and individual levies, compulsory savings, a national lottery, and a spending tax.

But—as Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), the Republican's tax strategist, put it—the committee "will take some convincing." It expects, before recommending new levies, to determine how much of the billions appropriated thus far by Congress remains unspent; where economies can be made within the government.

The problem of planning for peace poses for Congress numerous other issues to be threshed out in committee rooms and on the floor of the House and Senate.

They constitute long range, policy-making legislation—for example, a stand on post-war collaboration with other nations to enforce world peace. Congressional action now on that question may provide a clue to what this nation's position will be at the peace table.

One subject sure to command increasing attention is that of broadening and liberalizing veterans' benefits. Both President Roosevelt and influential congressional leaders want to lay down a concrete program before demobilization.

Preliminary discussion has produced proposals for gradual demobilization, mustering-out pay to tide soldiers over until they can find employment, opportunities for education or trade training at government expense, unemployment and special social security benefits, higher pensions for disabled veterans and liberalized hospitalization.

Business Problems Ahead

War's impact on the nation's business, both large and small, was reported by the returning lawmakers to be one of the chief subjects under discussion in their home districts. Several brought back suggestions for economic aid.

These range from plans to permit industries to set up post-war reconversion funds out of their wartime earnings, to proposals for government guarantees of private banking loans to revive business casualties of the war and to encourage development of new industries.

YANKS USE GAS MASKS FOR SHALLOW DIVING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP) The ingenuity of American fighting men turned gas masks into diving masks in distant areas of the Pacific when regulation shallow water diving outfits proved unavailable.

The Navy reported this unusual use of its regular face mask for protection against gas today and said that word of the application had been sent throughout the service so that those who had not discovered it for themselves could make use of it in future.

AWARDS TO NAVY MEN

Washington, Sept. 11 (A. P.).—For his outstanding success in training the American airmen who bombed Tokio in April of last year, Lieut.-Commander Henry Louis Miller has been awarded the Legion of Merit by President Roosevelt.

The Navy officer now has his home in Fairbanks, Alaska, but his wife, Mrs. Lucille D. Miller, lives at Opp, Ala.

The citation did not say what particular training Lieut.-Commander Miller gave the Tokio flyers, but one of their tasks was to master the technic of taking off their big twin-engine bombers from the flight deck of a Navy aircraft carrier.

Vice Admiral Charles S. Freeman, retired, also was awarded the Legion of Merit by the President. He was cited for exceptionally meritorious duty as commander of the northwest sea frontier, including Alaska, during the period from soon after the war began until December 1, 1942. Admiral Freeman was retired and placed on inactive status after reaching the service age limit of 64 on December 1. He lives at 1 Hanson Place, Brooklyn.

MORE EFFICIENT OUTPUT NEEDED, SAYS BARUCH

SEP 11 1943

Alternative Is to Cut Back War Production, Manpower Report Says.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. — (AP) Bernard M. Baruch has prepared an analysis of the manpower situation, concluding that the nation must produce more efficiently or else cut back war production and trim still further the output of non-essential civilian goods.

As one step toward more efficient use of manpower, he suggests in a memorandum disclosed today, that farm draft deferments be reviewed regularly, to assure that farms are not becoming havens for draft dodgers. This brought a prompt reaction from Capitol Hill.

Chairman Fulmer (D-S.C.) of the House Agriculture committee heatedly declared that the Federal government "is sheltering twice as many draft dodgers as the farms."

Found None in Survey

If there are any draft dodgers or surplus workers on the farms, Rep. Fulmer told reporters, he was unable to find them during a recent survey in the South.

"Crops are lying unharvested in the fields because there aren't enough men to gather them in," he declared, "and from what I hear that situation prevails throughout the land."

Mr. Baruch did not spare the government in his memorandum which was prepared for War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes to whom the financier and war production head in 1917-18 is an advisor.

The government ought to set an example for private industry, he said, by "cleaning out unnecessary employes."

Inferentially, the report backs up the decision to draft fathers by saying that Selective Service should give more regard to occupation and less to dependency in granting deferments from the draft.

Oversupply of Some Goods

Among other of Mr. Baruch's conclusions:

1. There are indications that an over-supply of some types of war materials is being built up.

2. The practice of ordering war goods on a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis should be discontinued in favor of fixed price contracting. Cost-plus-fixed-fee encourages labor hoarding, he said, since the manufacturer knows the government will foot the bill no matter how many employes he keeps on his payroll whereas fixed-price contracting rewards the more efficient producer.

3. The recent labor program worked out for the West coast should be made the pattern for controls in other areas whenever manpower troubles arise. The West coast program provides for interagency committees to determine labor priorities, and when necessary to withdraw war contracts and curtail civilian output to align the demand for labor more closely with the supply.

Offer Post-War Inducement

4. Employers should promise first chance on the post-war choice jobs to workers who stick to their jobs.

The country was described in the memorandum as suffering from an attack of "peace jitters" arising from optimistic war news. To counteract post-war thinking by management, it said that efficient employers should be assured post war priorities on conversion materials and tools.

Mr. Byrnes' office said that since the memorandum was prepared only for guidance, it would not be made public.

AUGUST LABOR FORCE 88,000 BELOW JULY

SEP 11 1943

Miss Perkins Reports Total Has About Reached Wartime Peak

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Employment has just about reached a wartime peak, Secretary Perkins said today in reporting that the total of non-farm workers in August was 38,295,000 a drop of 88,000 from July.

The labor force may increase another million or two, she said, but she also expressed the opinion that during the next few months new workers would no more than replace the number of men and women going into the armed services and their auxiliaries. This does not mean, the Secretary explained, that employment on war production cannot be increased since many workers can yet be shifted from non-essential civilian services.

Among the industries in which employment declined in August was shipbuilding. It was the first month since the wartime shipbuilding program was started that employment in this field has declined.

The drop of 88,000 in total employment was due chiefly to declines on construction and in service industries. The number of workers in manufacturing increased by 20,000 with an increase of 29,000 in the durable goods group—war production—offsetting a decline of 9,000 in the non-durable group.

In the Labor Department's monthly report on employment, shipbuilding and aircraft construction are classified together with railroad equipment construction. For this entire group there was an August increase of 9,000 which Miss Perkins said was due to "a considerable expansion" in the aircraft industry. There was also an increase of 24,000 in the automobile industry.

The report showed a drop of 57,000 in the number of soft coal miners during the year ending Aug. 30, with the total now standing at 378,000. Miss Perkins said the decrease was due in part to mechanization and migration to other work, but chiefly to miners entering the armed services.

100 Millions Homeless Through Axis Invasions

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—(AP) Invading armies have driven almost 100,000,000 United Nations people from their homes, and 68,000,000 of them "are dependent upon outside aid for their very existence," the New York committee of the National War Fund said today in a statement.

The committee said reports received by war fund member agencies from representatives on the scene in the various countries showed that 50,000,000 Chinese were homeless and that 38,000,000 Russians had been "driven from one part of the country to another as the invaders advanced."

Poland was estimated to have 8,000,000 homeless; Czechoslovakia, 775,000; Yugoslavia, 600,000; Belgium, 450,000; Holland, 400,000; Greece, 150,000, and Luxembourg, 40,000.

"These millions of people include both civilians who were ousted from their homes and those who were removed to other places and forced to work in German war industries," the committee statement said.

Pilot Of Willkie Plane Is Awarded Air Medal

SEP 11

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—Technical Sergeant Victor P. Minkoff, 23, of the Air Transport Command, who was flight engineer on Wendell Willkie's 28,000-mile world flight last year and Russian interpreter for Willkie and the crew, was decorated with an air medal today at ceremonies at the Academy of Aeronautics at LaGuardia field.

Willkie, present for the ceremony, said of Minkoff:

"We were over some dangerous territory on that flight and this Sergeant Minkoff is really good. He acted as my interpreter and did a good job all around."

The medal was presented by Col. Harold R. Harris, commander of the domestic transportation division of the Air Transport Command.

Ask Roosevelt Aid for Jews

FERNDALE, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP). —Members of Agudas Israel of America appealed tonight to President Roosevelt for vigorous action against abandonment of the Jews in Nazi-occupied Europe. The resolution was adopted at the fourth annual convention after Max Stein, of Brooklyn, chairman, said underground reports to Agudas Israel revealed three widely known leaders of Polish orthodox Jewry recently were murdered by the Gstapo.

Four Warships Are Launched In New England

Liberty Ship, Destroyer, Two Destroyer Escorts Built at Four Yards

BOSTON, Sept. 11 (AP). — Four warships — a Liberty vessel, a destroyer and two destroyer escorts, one for British registry — were launched today at New England shipyards.

The vessels, named for American and British naval heroes and a Colonial statesman, were the destroyer Mertz, the destroyer escorts Loeser and H. M. S. Cubitt, and the Liberty ship Tobias Lear.

Mrs. Selma M. Allen, of Hillside Road, Greenwich, Conn., sponsored the destroyer, launched at the Bath Iron Works Corporation, Bath, Me., in honor of her father, the late Rear Admiral Albert Mertz, former commandant of the naval station at Cavite and Olongapo, Philippine Islands, and onetime governor of the Naval Home in Philadelphia.

The destroyer escort Loeser launched at the Fore River shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was named by Mrs. Major Loeser, of Bath, Me., widow of Lieutenant Commander Alexander Edward Loeser, U. S. N., who was killed in the battle of Guadalcanal Nov. 13, 1942.

The second destroyer escort H. M. S. Cubitt, named for a British naval hero and built for the British under the Lend-Lease program at the Bethlehem-Hingham Shipyard, was sponsored by Mrs. Henry Burris, wife of Commander Burris, U. S. N., of Washington.

Mrs. Joseph L. Veniza, of Portland, Me., wife of a plate shop employee at the New England Shipbuilding Yard in South Portland, Me., sponsored the Liberty ship Tobias Lear, at that yard. The vessel was named for the Colonial statesman who was George Washington's secretary and who also served as consul to Santo Domingo and Consul General to Algiers.

Mother of Flyers Is Sponsor

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Hugh Gallagher, mother of two Army airmen who gave their lives for their nation, launched the 303-foot frigate U. S. S. Bayonne at the American Shipbuilding Company yards here today.

Smashing the champagne bottle on her second attempt, the Bayonne, N. J., resident whispered "May God bless her, the U. S. S. Bayonne, and bring her always safely back to port."

Her son, Lieutenant John Vincent Gallagher, was killed in a Wyoming plane crash, while Lieutenant Bernard Francis Gallagher met death in a Texas crack-up. Their father, and Bayonne's Deputy Mayor, Edward F. Green, and its Public Works Commissioner, Edward F. Clark, also attended the launching.

The steam-driven Bayonne will be used in convoy and patrol duty. Its armament and speed are secret. The ship will be sent to sea via the Illinois waterway.

200th Bethlehem Launching

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP).—Bethlehem-Fairfield's 200th Liberty ship—the S. S. Hawkins Fudske—was launched today to mark a milestone in the shipyard's production schedule.

J. M. Willis, vice-president and general manager of the yard, said the launching was "the high point in a steady climb in the output of ships in this yard."

Amid cheers from enthusiastic workers and 200 merchant seaman trainees, the widow of the Norwegian-born seaman who lost his life on a torpedoed tanker cracked the champagne bottle against the bow of the vessel named for her husband.

The S. S. Hawkins Fudske had scarcely been launched when Bethlehem-Fairfield officials announced plans for the launching tomorrow of the 201st Liberty ship, the S. S. Arthur P. Gorman.

Pittsburgh Launches D-E Boat

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Navy's first destroyer-escort vessel to be launched at this inland "seaport," the U. S. S. Jenks, slid down the ways into the Ohio River today.

Thousands lined the banks at the Dravo shipyard near here while Mrs. Maurice L. Jenks christened the vessel, named for her son, Lieutenant Henry Pease Jenks, of White Plains, N. Y., who died aboard the cruiser Atlanta when it was sunk in the battle of the Solomons in 1942.

After being outfitted, the small ship will make the 2,000-mile journey down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to the sea.

Jersey Reformatory Inmates Win Pennant

Rahway, N. J., Sept. 11 (A. P.).—A national service pennant, awarded for eighteen months of war effort, was the possession today of 635 inmates of the New Jersey State Reformatory for boys. The pennant was presented yesterday by Thomas B. Bergan, first assistant of the Department of Correction of the State of New York.

Clothing, stretchers and splints have been made by the boys for the armed forces, said William E. Kulp, superintendent, and 100 first aid kits were manufactured for Rahway first aid units. He said they "responded to all requests from the Red Cross for blood donations" and that some of the inmates tested Atabrine for malaria and made tests for a cure for encephalitis.

War Will Take More Doctors From Hospitals

50,000 in Armed Forces; 35,000 More Nurses Are Needed by July, 1944

BUFFALO, Sept. 11 (AP).—Civilian hospitals must give up more doctors and nurses to the armed forces, Commander Maxwell E. Lapham, representing the War Man-Power Commission, told the American Protestant Hospital Association today.

Commander Lapham, executive officer of the procurement and assignment service of the W. M. C., addressing the association's twenty-third annual convention, said plans are being made to distribute interns and resident doctors in civilian hospitals as equitably as possible in accord with patient-loads.

"The Army and Navy have approved a plan to defer a limited number of interns who are commissioned in the Medical Corps to serve as residents in civilian hospitals," he said. "It will, however, be necessary for hospitals to use physically disqualified interns to maintain minimum adequate resident staffs.

"Since nurses are so badly needed for the armed forces, plans are under way to allocate them as well as possible to civilian hospitals, but hospitals will have to meet the situation by using nurses only for professional work and not for work that aids can do."

Nearly 50,000 doctors have gone into the armed forces, representing about one-third of those in full-time active practice, he said. With about 35,000 nurses in service the Army and Navy will need as many more by July, 1944, he added.

The Protestant hospital officials and the American College of Hospital Administrators met in advance of the war-time conference of the American Hospital Association, which will start Monday.

The hospital administrators received a report on a five-year study on educational possibilities for administrators. It said that in general administrators need more formal training and proposed that colleges and universities be encouraged to establish undergraduate courses and short-term institutes for administrators.

6 WAR CONTRACTORS SUED

Government Wants the Amounts It Says It Lost in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Federal Government filed civil suits in Federal District Court today against six war contractors who were indicted by a Federal grand jury Wednesday on charges of fraud through bribery of six civilian employes of the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot.

The suits are to recover the amounts of which the Government asserts it was defrauded, although the amounts were not specified.

Nathan Zuckerman and Max Newmark, partners in a New York concern, were named in one suit. Other suits named Harry Hanchrow of New York, Harry Milberg of Asbury Park, Samuel Weiner of Littlestown, Pa., and Sidney L. Quitman of Philadelphia.

The Government seeks a penalty of $2,000 from each of the defendants for "acts and transactions which constituted fraud," plus the amount the Government says it lost in the transactions.

The contractors, in the indictments returned Wednesday, were charged with paying the civilian employes for "using their influence" and their official positions in obtaining contracts for Army material.

Gets Induction Notice at 60.

Lebanon, Pa., Sept. 11 (A. P.).—Celebrating his 60th birthday anniversary, William Deitz, a railroad brakeman, received a notice from his draft board to report for induction. A second letter asked him to return the notice, which was meant for a nephew of the same name.

SUPPORT OF ZIONISTS PROMISED BY F.D.R.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 11 — (AP) President Roosevelt told the Zionist Organization of America today that "all feasible measures" were being adopted to lessen the sufferings of the persecuted Jews of Europe.

In a message to the organization's 46th annual convention, Mr. Roosevelt said, "I cannot but express my horror at the cruelties visited upon innocent peoples by the Axis authorities in the territories they occupy."

"The attitude of this government in regard to these atrocities was ably expressed by the Secretary of State in the statement he issued on Oct. 30, 1942," the message continued, "and I wish to emphasize that all feasible measures are being adopted to lessen the sufferings of the persecuted Jews of Europe.

"I am confident that the helpful contribution made by American citizens toward the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine will be continued."

WILLKIE ASKED WORLD VIEWS

Missouri GOP Wants Specific Ideas On Nine Post-War Problems

[By the Associated Press]

St. Louis, Sept. 11—Nine questions, asking Wendell Willkie for his specific views of post-war problems, have been addressed to the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee in a letter signed by Missouri State and national party officers, and Willkie promised to give his answers "off the record" before the end of the month.

Grover Dalton, chairman of the State committee, said Willkie promised in a telephone conversation to meet the group in St. Louis some time in September to answer the nine questions and any others on international or domestic issues.

The letter recalled that the Missouri delegation gave Willkie a large vote for nomination at the 1940 convention and declared, "We are not unfriendly now."

For "Best Interest"

"We are unanimously of the opinion that in the post-war world America should seek whatever arrangement of world affairs are in the best interest of America," the letter said.

"We seek enlightenment on method. We should like to have your considered views about this world when it is again at rest."

The questions:

1. Do you believe that the United States should become a member of a world supernational state? Would it place United States armed forces under control of the world state?

2. If you favor a world state, what would you do about nations that refuse to come in? Would you force them in by military means?

3. Do you believe in absolute freedom of international trade without restrictions to protect American standards of living?

4. Do you believe a world monetary system should be established, and if so, what relationship would it have to the American dollar?

5. Do you believe in the free and unrestricted movement of peoples? If so, how do you propose to prevent peoples from Asia . . . overrunning the United States?

What About Aliens?

6. Do you believe that it is desirable for America to permit flooding our country with alien individuals and alien ideas?

7. In what other respect do you envision the political and economic organization of "one world"?

8. Newspapers report you to have said that if the Republicans adopt a liberal platform they can win. What do you mean by a "liberal platform"? Be specific, please.

9. If you are not the Presidential nominee of the Republican party in 1944, will you actively support the nominee chosen by the Republican convention?

In New York, Willkie said that "most of the questions bear no relationship to reality but I'd be delighted to sit down with Chairman Dalton and his group to discuss them. My views on some of the questions are already very widely known."

'Democracy First' As Slogan Is Recommended By Wallace

Vice-President, Backing Ball Resolution, Expands Roosevelt's "Four Freedoms" Into Seven

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 11—Vice-President Wallace submitted to the nation tonight the slogan, "Democracy First" in the peace to come.

"The battle cry, 'America First,' means that sooner or later we shall find ourselves alone, encircled and fighting against a hostile combination," he said.

"But the slogan 'Democracy First', intelligently followed up and vigorously applied, can lead to peace. As a matter of fact, it is only by applying the principlees of 'Democracy First' that we can have any change of lasting peace."

Rally For Ball Resolution

The Vice-President's speech was prepared for a Chicago Stadium rally sponsored by the Chicago United Nations Committee to Win the Peace, supporting the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill Senate Resolution for international post-war collaboration to preserve the peace.

He asserted that "freedom from want"—President Roosevelt enunciated four freedoms, of speech, of religion, from fear and from want—"must be the essence of the new declaration of freedom."

Wallace, however, expanded "freedom from want" into seven freedoms and said the first step toward getting them was for the Senate to pass the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution.

"Doesn't Go Far Enough"

"I am for the resolution (for a board to hear international disputes, a military force to prevent military aggression and other machinery) as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough," he said.

"There should be provision for joint action on the problem of unemployment and over-production due to international causes. There must be power to deal with those international cartels which are strangling production, competing unfairly or using methods which lead to war."

The Vice-President asserted that "isolationism is the screen behind which special privilege seeks to entrench its control," devoted a considerable part of his address to a denunciation of "monopolistic cartels" and said that "a people's peace is the gateway on the path to the century of the common man."

Wallace's "Seven Freedoms"

Wallace said he would "spell out" freedom from want this way:

1. Freedom from worry about a job.

2. Freedom from worry about a dependent and poverty-pinched old age.

3. Freedom from unnecessary worry about sickness and hunger.

4. Freedom from strife between workers and businessmen, between farmers and businessmen, and between workers and farmers.

5. Freedom from strife between the races and creeds.

6. Freedom from fear of bankruptcy caused by over-production of necessary materials.

7. Freedom for venture capital and for inventors of new ideas to expand production of needed goods without fear of repressive cartels, excessive taxation or excessive Government regulation.

"Above everything, we are fighting for peace," he said. "But the peace will not last long if it doesn't bring to the common man everywhere these seven freedoms."

"Common Man's" Objectives

The Vice-President listed "the immediate objectives of the common man" as follows:

"Hitler, Mussolini, and what they stand for must be wiped out as soon as possible. The time to dictate peace terms is when our armies are in Berlin and Tokyo.

"The international monopolists should be conspicuous by their absence at the peace table.

"The air space above this earth must be used to serve the needs of trade and travel for the common man.

". . . International organization can build permanent peace only by serving continually the needs of the common man everywhere for jobs, opportunity, health and security.

"Isolationism whether it be by stifled patents, cartel understandings. high tariffs, or any other method of restrictive greed, must continually be fought.

For "More Free Moving"

"Arrangements made by international cartels should be publicly recorded. . . . Free enterprise demands freer travel between the nations and less passport visa and custom foolishness. We need more free moving, enterprising businessmen and fewer secret agents and monopolists. Backward peoples everywhere must be educated by example for full production. . . ."

Wallace concluded with: "May wisdom and understanding guide our President and the ninety-six Senators as they try to make the dream of universal peace a reality."

Sidney Hillman's Proposal

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and chairman of the CIO committee on political action, declared only an economy of abundance "available to all men everywhere" can guarantee permanent peace.

He proposed that each free people must be permitted to fashion the form of government and economy best suited to its needs, and said there must be close and continued collaboration among the United Nations after victory.

America must oppose at home various grandiose plans for a new American imperialism, Hillman emphasized.

In an address prepared for the same rally, Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) said the United States "cannot afford another world war," declaring the nation's vital natural resources are beginning to run out and "there won't be enough left for another great war."

Text of Mr. Wallace's Main Points

SEP 11 1943

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (AP)—An abbreviated text of Vice President Wallace's address before a meeting under the auspices of the Chicago United Nations Committee to Win the Peace follows:

Those of you who must read the McCormick press know the inevitable conflict is here. Now—not tomorrow. We shall soon know whether the common man shall have "democracy first," or whether under the smooth phrase "America first," the common man shall be robbed. Beautiful advertisements and slick editorials say "Let our soldiers come home to America as it used to be." What they are really saying is "Let us go back to normalcy, depressions, cartels and a war every twenty-five years."

In World War One, we fought to make the world safe for democracy. We failed, Hitler rose, and the Second World War came on because we were not sufficiently concerned with the plight of the common man the world over. We did not realize that economic democracy must be combined with political democracy or political democracy would die. Hitler exploited our failure to establish an economic democracy by starting World War Two. If we are to prevent a second Hitler and World War Three, we must be more daring than we were twenty-five years ago. We must fight not merely to make the world safe for democracy but to give democracy first place in the world. Some people say "America first." Under that slogan we can have only war, because under it envious, hungry peoples, the have-not nations with per capita resources less than one-fifth our own, will inevitably rise up to tear us down. The battle cry, "America first," means that sooner or later we shall find ourselves alone, encircled by and fighting against a hostile combination. But the slogan "democracy first," intelligently followed up and vigorously applied, can lead to peace. As a matter of fact, it is only by applying the principles of "democracy first" that we can have any chance of lasting peace.

Defines the Slogan

The slogan "democracy first" means the supremacy of freedom in both the economic and the political world. Freedom means respect for the dignity of the individual. No man should be free to take another man's freedom away from him. God gave every one of us certain rights. He gave all of us a world rich in soil and minerals. And to many of us he gave such scientific understanding that we know it is now possible to build health, comfort and happiness for everyone. If we plan right, there can be freedom from hunger and freedom from the fear of a poverty-stricken old age. The farmer can be free of his fear of impossibly low prices for what he sells and outrageously high prices for what he buys. The businessman can be free from the fear of those monopolies and international cartels which use unfair practices in buying from him, selling to him or competing with him.

In the world of modern technology the possibilities of abundant production are so great that it is only a question of time until we can bring the blessing of freedom from want to every one. Two hundred years ago freedom of discussion and freedom of religion meant more to people than freedom from want. Those were the days when men on the farm and in the workshop were only about one-tenth as efficient as they are today. There was little talk about freedom from want in those days because nearly every one thought scarcity was the will of God. Therefore, attention was centered on political freedom, on freedom of expression and freedom of religion, on the right to be secure in one's own home. With the old line Tories having things their own way in England and France, it was necessary to have a people's revolution to launch the idea of political freedom. We in the United States told the world what we were fighting for in the Declaration of Independence. Our first action after adopting the Constitution was to improve that Constitution by adding to it the Bill of Rights so as to make it certain that political democracy would always be the fundamental law of the United States. We shall never give up the freedom embodied in the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. But that freedom is not enough. Each age demands a new freedom. The time has come for a new declaration of freedom which adds to, and makes secure, in an age of airplanes, radio and abundance, the freedoms for which our fathers fought. Our new declaration must go on to cover freedoms we haven't got now but which we must have.

Seven Parts to Fourth Freedom

Three of the President's famous Four Freedoms deal with freedoms which we in the United States have long enjoyed. The Fourth Freedom which must be the essence of the new declaration of freedom is freedom from want, which I would spell out as follows:

1. Freedom from worry about a job.
2. Freedom from worry about a dependent and poverty-pinched old age.
3. Freedom from unnecessary worry about sickness and hunger.
4. Freedom from strife between workers and business men, between farmers and business men, and between workers and farmers.
5. Freedom from strife between the races and creeds.
6. Freedom from fear of bankruptcy caused by overproduction of necessary materials.
7. Freedom for venture capital and for inventors of new ideas to expand production of needed goods without fear of repressive cartels, excessive taxation or excessive Government regulation.

The first step toward getting the seven new freedoms is to pass through the Senate of the United States some such resolution as No. 114, which provides for the United States taking the initiative in calling meetings of the United Nations. This resolution looks toward a court or board to listen to international disputes, a military force to prevent military aggression, and the gradual addition of such other machinery as may be necessary. I am for the resolution as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. There should be provision for joint action on the problem of unemployment and overproduction due to international causes. There must be power to deal with those international cartels which are strangling production, competing unfairly or using methods which lead to war.

During the past two months Senators and Congressmen speaking on behalf of Resolution 114 have received a marvelous reception wherever they have gone. Next Tuesday Congress again takes up its duties. Ninety-six Senators and our President will determine what we are going to do about peace. Their action will largely depend on what they think you and millions like you are willing to do to get peace.

Timing Called Important

There is no time to be lost. Now is the time to strike while the war irons are hot. The war is costing us ten times what it should because the democracies were not prepared. The peace also will cost us ten times what it should if we do not begin preparing now. We can arrive at understandings now which we can't get next year. The memory of the airplanes, tanks, food and men from the United States is so recent and means so much to England, Russia and China that they can't help being grateful. In like manner we are impressed today by the skill of the British airmen, the tremendous drive of the Russian armies and the patience of the Chinese after six years of fighting a treacherous foe. Today we all face reality and are grateful for the help of friends. But tomorrow millions of us may forget, and curse Europe and Asia as the cause of our woes. All nations tomorrow will too easily slump back into the selfishness which makes peace merely an interlude to war.

Isolationism is the screen behind which special privilege seeks to entrench its control. When I say this, I am not talking about people who honestly believe the United States could isolate itself from the problems of the rest of the world. Certain of the people whom I have known personally have devoted their lives to the elimination of special privilege. Senator Norris, who fought more vigorously against special privilege than any man of his generation, was at one time an isolationist. But men of Senator Norris' insight and motivation sooner or later realize that not only are isolationism and special privilege theoretically the same thing but that the men who back isolationism in the economic world have a very keen interest in special privilege. Isolationism and special privilege spoke with equal force to produce the peace of Munich. Wherever isolationism is being pushed most vigorously, there in the background can usually be found, furnishing money and power, monopolistic cartels. These cartels are customarily seeking tariffs, quotas, subsidies or other governmental favors which are the breeding ground of isolationism.

Senator Ball, who is with me on this program here tonight, and who, as far as I am able to discover, has the same ideas on international monopoly as I, is a Republican. The difference between us is that he thinks the forces of monopoly are more likely to dominate the Democratic party, and I am sure that the same evil forces are in much greater danger of dominating the Republican party. Wherever these forces are found, our job is to fight them. Those groups which rule over economic empires have usurped the sovereignty of the people in international relations. We talk about a foreign policy based on reciprocal trade treaties and on open covenants openly arrived at with the advice of the Senate responsible to the people. This is good as far as it goes but the facts have not squared with the principle.

Tells of World "Freebooters"

In reality, much of our economic relationship with the rest of the world has been governed by a small group seeking to parcel out the resources and markets of the world so as to control production, prices, distribution and the very life blood of world industry. These cliques have their own international government by which they arrive at private quotas. Their emissaries are found in the foreign offices of many of the important nations of the world. They create their own system of tariffs and determine who will be given permission to produce, to buy and to sell. When I attack these monopolists, these creators of secret, super-government, I am not attacking business. I am speaking for business because the overwhelming majority of businessmen as well as practically all consumers are forced to pay tribute to these international freebooters. They talk about freer trade, but by dividing up world markets, restricting production, stifling investment, playing one nation against another, they have unwittingly fostered world depression and maintained economic feudalism. By eliminating competition, they have replaced true capitalism with the dead hand of monopoly. Pope Pius XI, thirteen years ago, spoke truly about these men when he said: "This concentration of power has led to a threefold struggle for domination. First, there is the struggle for dictatorship in the economic sphere itself; then, the fierce battle to acquire control of the State, so that its resources and authority may be abused in the economic struggles; finally, the clash between States themselves."

Let us not be deceived into thinking that attacks on cartels are attacks on American business. On the contrary, cartels are the greatest menace to the American business principles of free private enterprise and equal opportunity. Ask the American businessman who has felt the weight of monopoly, patent control and cartel oppression.

This whole matter takes on great practical importance as we consider the terms under which monopolists will obtain United States Government constructed war plants. These plants can be used to produce post-war abundance for the common man. The problem is whether the small businessmen are going to be elbowed to one side—whether free enterprise is to be smothered by monopolistic controls worked out by big businessmen holding Government ringside seats. Planning to give small business its full, practicable post-war share of war plant facilities and equal access to raw materials must begin at once. Otherwise there can be neither free enterprise nor full employment in the peace to come.

Common Man's Objectives

And now let us focus on the immediate objectives of the common man:

1. Hitler, Mussolini, and what they stand for, must be wiped out as soon as possible.
2. The time to dictate peace terms is when our armies are in Berlin and Tokyo.
3. The international monopolists should be conspicuous by their absence at the peace table.
4. The air space above this earth must be used to serve the needs of trade and travel for the common man. A proper degree of competition will insure the best service at the lowest cost. Government subsidies, if any, must be used to promote the common man's interest in trade and peace and not to preserve monopolies or to promote destructive international rivalries. If the airplane is to be an instrument of peace rather than an endless threat of war, there must be international cooperation.
5. International organization can build permanent peace only by serving continually the needs of the common man everywhere for jobs, opportunity, health and security.
6. Isolationism, whether it be by stifled patents, cartel understandings, high tariffs, or any other method of restrictive greed, must continually be fought.
7. Arrangements made by international cartels should be publicly recorded. The Department of State and Justice and the Patent Office must be continually alert to the possibility of secret agreements in addition to the written ones which should be on file.
8. Free enterprise demands freer travel between the nations and less passport, visa, and custom foolishness. We need more free moving, enterprising business men and fewer secret agents and monopolists.
9. Backward peoples everywhere must be educated by examples for full production. Free enterprise thoughtfully planned will result in power projects on the Danube, irrigation works in India, flood control in China, and as a result of it all, the common man in every country will prosper, jobs will be created in Chicago and Detroit, and there will be a better market for the Iowa farmer right here at home. Such self-liquidating projects will not be gifts of the United States, but we can furnish engineering services and finance sales of machinery.

Senate Resolution 114 is a step toward a people's peace. A people's peace is the gateway on the path to the century of the common man. In the century of the common man Rule No. 1 is the full use of all natural resources on a sustained basis. Rule No. 2 is full use of all technologies. Rule No. 3 is to use these resources and technologies so that everyone working in hope can come every night to a peaceful rest in the expectation of another day of hopeful work tomorrow.

How to Keep Standard of Living

The common man will not let the Governments, corporations and cartels of the world rest until these three rules are fulfilled. America cannot do this job by herself, because in such case her standard of living, so far above the rest of the world, may bring on envy and finally war. America's only safety and guarantee of high living standards is in world-wide full use of natural resources, and a world-wide rise in living standards as rapid as her own.

There is certain to be revolution until the seven freedoms are obtained and the three rules are fulfilled. The only question is the speed of the revolution and whether it will be peaceful or violent. The returning soldiers and war workers will not tolerate bread lines, closed factories and bursting grain elevators after the style of 1930-32. Leadership will arise. If it be of the thoughtless or demagogic Nazi type, there are troubled days ahead. Monopolies which finance demagogues to cut the throat of progress and to despoil labor are playing with a fire which will burn down their own houses.

And so I ask all the potential leaders of agriculture, business and labor to take counsel with themselves and with the politicians. Time will not wait. The breath of the future is on us as it has never been before. We cannot escape. The day about which the prophets and seers of many nations have dreamed for 3,000 years is rapidly approaching. May wisdom and understanding guide our President and the ninety-six Senators as they try to make the dream of universal peace a reality.

PRESS CUTS WORDS TO SAVE NEWSPRINT

Dwight Perrin Tells of Wide Reduction in Use of Comics,

Society and Financial News

PRICE HAILS NEWSPAPERS

SEP 11 1943

He Tells The Associated Press Group Present Voluntary Code Has Proved 'Virile'

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (AP)—Methods used by many newspapers to save newsprint paper were detailed today at the wartime conference of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

Dwight Perrin of The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin reported that there had been widespread reductions in the space or wordage given comic strips and society, financial and sports news.

There had been a "firm pruning" of the news report, he added, but "a commendable effort has been made everywhere to save the important general news and local space at the expense of somewhat less necessary departments." He also stated that "every paper seems wide open to generous treatment" of news concerning men and women in the armed services.

Mr. Perrin's report was based on information he received from managing editors of thirty-nine newspapers of more than 50,000 circulation.

Arthur Moore of the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph told of similar changes disclosed in questionnaires filled out by executives of sixty newspapers of less than 50,000 circulation.

He reported that the majority had reduced space accorded to church news, "handouts" from Government agencies, and general suburban and county news, while fourteen were stressing sharp editing and terse writing.

He also related that many had reduced society, sports and market stories and had cut or eliminated such features as menus and serial fiction and such specialized copy as radio logs and automobile and real estate sections. He said forty-five papers had reduced the size of their comic strips.

The space saving steps were taken after the Government cut down the supply of newsprint to the newspapers.

George W. Healy Jr., of The New Orleans Times-Picayune, was elected chairman of The Associated Press Managing Editor's Association succeeding Basil Walters of The Minneapolis Star-Journal and Tribue. W. R. Arnold of The Milwaukee Journal was chosen vice-chairman. The association, at its closing session, also adopted by a rising unanimous vote a resolution which said:

a resolution which said:

"The Associated Press Managing Editors' Association hereby resolves that Associated Press staff men overseas have done a magnificent job in giving newspapers the finest news coverage of any war in history, exemplifying the highest quality of initiative, courage and devotion."

Message to War Writers

The resolution asked that the management forward a message of appreciation, admiration and best wishes to the war correspondents.

Elected members of the association's executive committee were Messrs. Healy and Arnold, Russ Stewart of The Chicago Times; W. T. Christian of The Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, Ben Reese of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Edward Lindsay of The Decatur (Ill.) Herald-Review, H. D. Paulson of The Fargo (N. D.) Forum, John O'Connell Jr. of The Bangor (Me.) Daily News, C. Walter McCarty of The Indianapolis News, R. H. McCaw of THE NEW YORK TIMES, R. W. Simpson of The Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, Stanley P. Barnett of The Cleveland Plain Dealer, Paul S. Walcott of The Greenfield (Mass.) Recorder-Gazette, John H. Carter of The Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, L. D. Hotchkiss of The Los Angeles Times, B. M. McKelway of The Washington Star, William Steven of The Tulsa Tribune, Fred Gaertner Jr. of The Detroit News, Charles B. Welch of The Tacoma News-Tribune, J. P. Miller of The Savannah (Ga.) News and Press, and A. Y. Aronson of The Louisville Times.

Price Addresses Editors

Meanwhile, Byron Price, director of censorhsip, expressed to the managing editors' meeting today "the appreciation and commendation of the Government for this great service" which they had rendered in voluntary cooperation under the wartime censorship code.

"As for the future," he said, "I cannot help feeling that your patriotic solicitude will continue to safeguard voluntary censorship.

"By carrying to a conclusion what you have so well begun, you will hasten the day when all censorship will come to its unlamented end."

"Of the many conflicts of interest which arise inevitably in wartime," Mr. Price went on, "one of the most troublesome is in the field of public information. On the one hand is the military, schooled in the strategic value of secrecy and inclined to subordinate all else to the prosecution of armed combat. On the other hand are those agencies, including the press, which are dedicated to the preservation of certain civil rights, among them the right of free citizens to be informed.

"It is not difficult to justify either of these positions, when they are considered separately. The military has, in a certain sense, a directive which supersedes all other directives, namely, to win the war and preserve the life of the nation. The press, on its part, has a traditional obligation to keep national life on a plane which will make it worth preserving.

"Thus sound public policy, in wartime, cannot escape certain major readjustments which will bring together, under a working arrangement, conflicting viewpoints."

The voluntary censorship code represented such an adjustment, Mr. Price said, and as such was a "virile, aggressive force for victory."

NEW HAVEN SOLDIER KILLED

SEP 11 1943

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 11—(AP) Pvt. Ralph S. Nargi of 44 Olive street, New Haven, Conn., was injured fatally yesterday at Ft. Knox, the public relations officer announced, in a collision of a half track and an Army truck. The accident occurred during routine training maneuvers.

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 11 —(AP) Twenty-two members of the crews of two Flying Fortresses from the Alexandria air base, which crashed over the Gulf of Mexico late yesterday, are presumed lost, the base public relations officer said today.

The two giant planes plunged into the gulf about 40 miles southeast of Galveston, Tex., after colliding in the air, the announcement said. Navy craft and Army planes searching the area failed to find any survivors.

Yank Fiddles as Rome Burns

OMAHA, Sept. 11 (AP).—One Yank really fiddled while Rome burned during the first bombing assault on the Italian capital, Captain Harry R. Burrell, of Omaha, pilot of a bomber in the raid, wrote his parents. "After bombs were on their way down into Rome, one of the boys left his waist gun long enough to pick up a violin he had borrowed from the Red Cross and offered a rendition of 'Yankee Doodle.' So history repeated itself —and he fiddled while Rome burned," Captain Burrell said.

Archbishop Deplores Nazi Power In Rome

San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 11 (AP). The news that German armed forces have occupied Rome and taken the Vatican "under their 'protection' fills every honest citizen with a sense of fear and foreboding," the Most Reverend Robert E. Lucey, Archbishop of the San Antonio archdiocese, said today.

"Neither neutrality nor religion means anything to Nazi leaders," he said. "The fate of the Vatican and of the world rests as never before on the courage and strength of our armed forces. May God be with us."

HAMILTON FIELD, Calif., Sept. 11.—(AP) Capt James F. The twin-engined plane plunged to earth after striking a sleeve target cable attached to another plane.

HITLER TOLD THE GERMAN NATION THAT THE ITALIAN SURRENDER WAS OF SLIGHT IMPORTANCE AND THAT THE "RING OF STEEL FORGED BY THE GERMAN HOME FRONT WILL NEVER BREAK."

"WE MAY HAVE TO CEDE SOME TERRITORY," HITLER CONCEDED, THEN DECLARED THE GERMAN ARMY WOULD BE ABLE TO GUARD THE NATION FROM ALL ASSAULTS EXCEPT THE BRITISH-AMERICAN BOMBING ATTACKS.

"BUT," HE SAID, "TECHNICAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL MEANS ARE GROWING WHICH WILL NOT ONLY BREAK THE ENEMY'S AIR ATTACKS FOREVER, BUT WILL RETALIATE WITH OTHER AND MORE EFFECTIVE MEANS."

HITLER SWORE THAT THE "TREACHERY" OF PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO'S GOVERNMENT IN DESERTING ITS AXIS PARTNER TO MAKE PEACE WITH THE ALLIES WOULD BE AVENGED BY "HARD MEASURES", AND HE DENOUNCED PREMIER BADOGLIO AND KING VITTORIO EMANUEL EQUALLY FOR THEIR ACTION. UP UNTIL A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE ARMISTICE WAS SIGNED, BOTH HAD GIVEN ASSURANCES OF CONTINUED ITALIAN PARTICIPATION IN THE WAR, HE INSISTED. SEP 11 1943

WHEREABOUTS OF BADOGLIO AND THE KING WERE A MYSTERY TODAY. STOCKHOLM DISPATCHES QUOTED THE SVENSKA DAGBLADET AS REPORTING THAT BADOGLIO WAS IN SICILY AND THAT PALERMO WOULD BE THE SEAT OF THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT, FOLLOWING ROME'S CAPITULATION TO THE GERMANS.

BERLIN BROADCASTS INSISTED THAT VITTORIO HAD ABDICATED IN FAVOR OF CROWN PRINCE UMBERTO. THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE ZURICH NEWSPAPER DIE TAT QUOTED BERLIN OFFICIALS AS SAYING THAT NOT A SINGLE MEMBER OF THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT OR OF THE ROYAL HOUSE WERE STILL IN ROME.

IN MADRID, ITALIAN TRAVELERS SAID IT WAS LIKELY THAT HITLER WOULD GET VITTORIO MUSSOLINI, SON OF BENITO, TO HEAD THEIR PROPOSED PUPPET ITALIAN FASCIST REGIME IF THEY ARE UNABLE TO OBTAIN THE RELEASE OF HIS FATHER, REPORTED TO BE A PRISONER IN ITALIAN HANDS. IN HIS SPEECH YESTERDAY HITLER PROFESSED UNDYING ADMIRATION AND AFFECTION FOR THE FALLEN DUCE.

IN SEIZING ROME, THE GERMANS, ACCORDING TO A BERLIN BROADCAST, ALSO HAVE "ASSUMED PROTECTION OF VATICAN CITY."

(APPARENTLY THE GERMANS HAD NOT INTERFERED WITH THE VATICAN RADIO STATION, AS IT BROADCAST A STATEMENT LAST NIGHT IN WHICH GERMAN CATHOLIC BISHOPS ASSERTED THAT THE NAZI GOVERNMENT WAS ATTEMPTING TO "DE-CHRISTIANIZE" THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND THAT "CHURCH SERVICES ARE BEING MADE MORE DIFFICULT AND ARE STILL BEING OBSTRUCTED IN MANY PLACES.")

A REPORT REACHING ISTANBUL INDICATED THAT THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE DID NOT CATCH GERMAN TROOPS IN THE BALKANS COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE. A NEUTRAL SOURCE THERE SAID THAT THE GERMANS THREW A GUARD AROUND THE ITALIAN BARRACKS AT ATHENS A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE ARMISTICE WAS ANNOUNCED.

GEN.CALVI DI BERGOLO, THE ITALIAN KING'S SON-IN-LAW, HAS BEEN NAMED ITALIAN COMMANDER OF ROME WITH A SINGLE DIVISION OF ITALIAN TROOPS PLACED AT HIS DISPOSAL TO MAINTAIN ORDER, THE GERMANS SAID.

RADIO FRANCE IN ALGIERS SAID THE ALLIED FLEET HAD APPEARED IN THE IONIAN SEA. MADRID DISPATCHES REPORTED ADDITIONAL ALLIED LANDINGS IN SARDINIA AND SAID CORSICA, NOW IN ITALIAN HANDS, IS WAITING FOR THE ALLIES TO COME.

BY TONIGHT NOT A SINGLE LINE OF NOTABLE COMMENT ON HITLER'S 16-MINUTE, HASTILY-SPOKEN DENUNCIATION OF CAPITULATED ITALY'S "TREACHERY" HAD REACHED LONDON FROM THE CONTINENT. THERE WAS NO POLITE APPLAUSE FROM SPAIN; NO CAREFULLY NEUTRAL ANALYSIS FROM SWITZERLAND; NO QUAVERINGS FROM ANY QUARTERS--AS IN THE PAST.

THE BUDAPEST ANNOUNCER, READING QUICKLY, SAID, "HUNGARIAN PUBLIC OPINION RECEIVED THE FUEHRER'S SPEECH WITH RESPECT AND ADMIRED ITS INTERESTING PARTS. HUNGARY VIEWS THE EVENTS CALMLY AND PURSUES HER NATIONAL POLICY."

PREMIER NICHOLAS KALLAY HAS OUTLINED THAT POLICY AS NON-BELLIGERENCY. THE HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT, FURTHERMORE, HAS FOR A LONG TIME WORKED TO KEEP THE BEST OF RELATIONS WITH THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

BRITISH COMMENTATORS, EXCEPT FOR THE TIMES MADE THEIR REMARKS BRIEF AND CONTEMPTUOUSLY TO THE POINT.

"TIRED, HELPLESS, EXHAUSTED," WAS THE WAY THE LONDON SKETCH DESCRIBED HITLER. "THE BITTEREST SPEECH OF HIS CAREER," SAID THE DAILY EXPRESS. "I WAS TRICKED," THE LONDON TELEGRAPH PARAPHRASED HITLER AS SAYING.

THE TIMES, IN AN EDITORIAL, DECLARED THE GERMAN LEADER'S ADDRESS HIS FIRST IN SIX MONTHS, LEFT NO DOUBT THAT THE GERMANS INTEND TO FIGHT STRONGLY TO MAINTAIN THEIR HOLD ON ITALY AND THAT THE CAPTURE OF ROME SUGGESTS THEY PLAN A DEFENSE IN THAT AREA.

"IT WAS THE MOST DIRECT OF HITLER'S SPEECHES," THE TIMES WROTE. "HE LIED ABOUT THE ORIGINS OF THE WAR, BUT EVEN THEN HE DID NOT INDULGE IN SPASMS OF SELF-PITY XXX ALMOST HIS ONLY PROMISE WAS HIS ASSERTION THAT GERMANY WOULD BE AVENGED FOR THE AIR RAIDS XXX. WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY ASHORE NEAR SALERNO (NO DATE GIVEN) --BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES BELONGING TO GENERAL MARK W. CLARK'S FIFTH ARMY WERE DIGGING IN TONIGHT WITH THE SITUATION WELL IN CONTROL AFTER A RATHER ROUGH LANDING IN THE EARLY MORNING.

THE DISEMBARKING PARTIES FOUND GERMANS AWAITING THEM IN THE ITALIAN POSITIONS TO WHICH THE NAZIS HAD MOVED FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT THAT PREMIER BADOGLIO HAD SURRENDERED.

THE ITALIANS HAVE ALREADY STARTED FIGHTING THE GERMANS IN SOME

30.24-8319

SECTORS AND THE GERMANS HAVE TAKEN A NUMBER OF ITALIAN PRISONERS.

I ARRIVED ON THE BEACH THIS MORNING AND SAW HOW WELL THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES HAD FOUGHT AND PUSHED INWARD.

I CAME ASHORE WITH MEMBERS OF THE LIASON MISSION OF GENERAL CLARK'S HEADQUARTERS AND WITH THEM TOURED MANY BEACHES AND WENT AS FAR INLAND AS POSSIBLE.

WHEN I ARRIVED AT THE BEACHES I FOUND ROADS HAD BEEN ESTABLISHED THROUGH THE SANDS WITH THE AID OF CHICKEN-COOP LIKE WIRE AND BURLAP BAG MATERIAL. THE BEACHES WERE FILLED WITH SOLDIERS WORKING WAIST DEEP IN WATERS OF THE BAY UNLOADING SUPPLIES AND WAR EQUIPMENT.

THROUGHOUT THE AFTERNOON THE NAVY CONTINUED TO GIVE THE LAND FORCES GOOD ARTILLERY SUPPORT AND LOBBED SHELLS OVER OUR HEAD AGAINST THE NEW GERMAN POSITIONS BACK IN THE HILLS.

I SAW SOLDIERS DIGGING IN WITH EVERY CONCEIVABLE IMPLEMENT FROM SHOVELS AND STICKS TO THEIR OWN HELMETS.

THE GERMANS TRIED THROUGHOUT THE DAY TO SLIP THROUGH AN EFFECTIVE ALLIED AIR UMBRELLA AND SEVERAL TIMES DIVEBOMBED OUR POSITIONS ON THE BEACHES BUT ALWAYS WERE SOON DRIVEN OFF.

MANY AMERICANS ARE CAMPING TONIGHT IN TOMATO PATCHES WHERE THEY HAVE MADE FOXHOLES WITH THEIR OWN HELMETS.

BEACHES ARE PILED WITH LIFE PRESERVERS WHICH THE SOLDIERS TOOK OFF AS THEY LEAPED ASHORE.

NOTHING COULD HAVE LIVED THROUGH THAT BARRAGE AND AT 3:40 A.M., THE FIRST WAVE OF BRITISH TROOPS LANDED ON THE NORTHERNMOST BEACH AND WAVES PILED INTO OTHER BARGES TO THE SOUTH.

THE ENEMY HAD LEFT ANTI-PERSONNEL MINES ON SOME OF THE BEACHES, AND MACHINEGUNS AND BATTERIES NOT CAUGHT IN THE BARRAGE ALSO OPENED FIRE.

BRITISH COMMANDOS AND AMERICAN RANGERS UNDER LIEUT.-COL.BILL DARBY OF FORT SMITH, ARK., SWARMED ASHORE AND FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO THEIR OBJECTIVES.

WITH U.S. NAVY INVASION TASK FORCE, SEPT 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-BRITISH-AMERICAN MILITARY COOPERATION TO SMASH THE AXIS REACHED ITS HIGHEST DEVELOPMENT TODAY WHEN AN ALLIED ARMY SWEPT OUT OF THE SEA BEFORE DAWN AND DISGORGED TROOPS, GUNS AND ARMOR ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND TO HAMMER ANOTHER WEDGE INTO THE WALL OF HITLER'S EUROPEAN FORTRESS.

THE COMMANDING GENERAL IS TALL, HAWKFACED LT. GEN. MARK WAYNE CLARK. AND THE TROOPS IN HIS FIFTH ARMY ARE A BALANCED ANGLO-AMERICAN COMBINATION.

UNLIKE THE SICILIAN INVASION, WHERE AMERICANS AND BRITISH OPERATED UNDER SEPARATE COMMANDS ON CLEARLY DEFINED FRONTS, CLARK'S ARMY IS POURING ASHORE ALONG THE SAME BEACHHEAD FROM WHICH THE BATTLE IS DEVELOPING TO DRIVE THE NAZIS OUT OF ITALY.

IN THE SICILIAN CONQUEST, LT. GEN. GEORGE S.PATTON, JR.'S SEVENTH ARMY HIT THE ISLAND'S SOUTHERN BEACHES IN A MOVE TIMED WITH GEN. BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY'S LANDINGS ON THE SOUTHEAST CORNER.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE MOVE BEGAN DAYS BEFORE AMERICAN TROOPS DROVE THE LAST GERMANS OUT OF SICILY.

FRESH, NEWLY-EQUIPPED DIVISIONS WITH COMBAT EXPERIENCE AND FURTHER TRAINING IN NORTH AFRICA WERE RESTED AND READY. GREAT STORES OF FOOD, AMMUNITION, GASOLINE, OIL AND OTHER SUPPLIES WERE RUSHED TO LOADING POINTS.

THE PORT FROM WHICH OUR CONVOY SAILED LITERALLY BULGED WITH SHIPS LOADING BOTH AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS AND SUPPLIES. CREWS TOILED DAY AND NIGHT. LIGHTS BURNED IN OFFICES ALL NIGHT LONG AS PLANS MESHED.

SWEATING, SWEARING, OVER-WORKED, NAVY MEN SOMEHOW MANAGED TO BRING ORDER OUT OF SEEMING CHAOS. TRUCK CONVOYS ROLLED UP IN STREAMS AND CARGOES DISAPPEARED INTO THE BELLIES OF THE SHIPS. TANKS, TRUCKS AND GUNS RUMBLED ABOARD AND TROOPS MARCHED INTO THE HOT HOLDS. AS THE LAST TRUCK ROLLED INTO A LANDING BOAT, CAPT. WAYNE E.DAVIS, ADA, OKLA., COMMANDING A DESTROYER COMPANY,

MAJ. WALTER E.TARDY OF WICHITA FALLS, TEX., CHECKED OFF THE LAST PIECE OF EQUIPMENT AND WENT UP TO THE SHIP'S WARDROOM TO RELAX WITH CAPT. WALTER WARDWELL OF GREENWOOD, MASS., 2ND LT. W.W.EMERSON OF O'BRIEN, TEX., AND ENSIGN LOWELL WHITEMAN, HAYDEN, COLO.

"WE FOUGHT THROUGH THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN AND GOT IN THE BIG SCRAP AT EL GUETAR," TARDY SAID. "WE KNOCKED OUT 30 TANKS IN THAT FIGHT AND WE ONLY HAD 75 MILLIMETER GUNS ON THREE HALF-TRACKS. NOW WE ARE RE-EQUIPPED WITH BETTER GUNS AND THE MORALE OF THE BATTALION HAS GONE UP 100 PERCENT.

"I HAVE A GREAT OUTFIT AND THEY ARE ALL READY."

ON THE DOCK, THE LAST OF THE TROOPS WERE FILING ABOARD GETTING A SEND-OFF FROM TWO PETTY RED CROSS DOUGHNUT GIRLS, MIMI SCOTT OF 2601 31ST ST., N.W., WASHINGTON, D.C., AND MARY T.COOK, PRINCETON, N.J. THEY WERE GIVING THE SOLDIERS DOUGHNUTS AND LEMONADE AND BANTERING GOOD-NATUREDLY WITH THEM.

"OKAY, SOLDIER, YOU CAN TAKE ONE MORE," MISS SCOTT LAUGHED, HOLDING OUT A BOX OF WARM, FRESH DOUGHNUTS TO SGT. MELVIN PEGORS, ROCHESTER, MINN.

"AT LEAST IT MAKES THE BOYS FEEL A LITTLE NEARER HOME TO GET DOUGHNUTS AND LEMONADE EVEN IF THEY ARE IN AFRICA," MARY SAID.

THAT EVENING ON OUR SHIP, THE CREW PREPARED TO GET UNDERWAY NEXT DAY. THEY WERE IN HIGH SPIRITS, MOST OF THEM LIKE SHIPFITTER FIRST CLASS RUSSELL BARRINGER OF SEYMOUR, TEX., AND MACHINIST MATE 2ND CLASS KENNETH LANDER, 1 HORNWAY APARTMENT, 275 JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS., WHO HAD EXPERIENCE IN THE NORTH AFRICAN AND SICILIAN INVASIONS.

BARRINGER AND LANDER BOTH ARE MEMBERS OF A FIRE AND RESCUE PARTY WHICH RECEIVED A CITATION FROM THEIR CAPTAIN FOR BRAVERY IN BOARDING A BURNING SHIP AT LICATA O SVE WO WOUND

WHICH RECEIVED A CITATION FROM THEIR CAPTAIN FOR BRAVERY IN BOARDING A BURNING SHIP AT LICATA TO SAVE TWO WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

BARRINGER WENT ABOARD WHILE SHELLS WERE EXPLODING ALL AROUND HIM, AND RETURNED WITH OTHERS LATER TO TRY TO PUT IT OUT WHEN DIESEL OIL EXPLODED.

"IT SOUNDED LIKE A BIG ANIMAL TAKING A DEEP BREATH WHEN THE OIL WENT UP," BARRINGER SAID. "THEN THERE WAS A TERRIFIC BANG AND BLACK SMOKE BOILED UP. THAT'S WHEN WE HAD TO SCRAM OFF THAT SHIP."

WITHOUT THE AMERICAN FLAG, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN DIFFICULT TO TELL WHETHER OUR SHIP BELONGED TO THE U.S. NAVY OR BRITISH NAVY, FOR ONE HEARD AN ENGLISH MIDLANDS ACCENT AS OFTEN AS AN AMERICAN VOICE. AMONG THE RANKING OFFICERS THERE WERE AN AMERICAN REAR ADMIRAL AND CAPTAIN AND A BRITISH COMMODORE AND GENERAL.

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER PATROLLING THE NAPLES AND SALERNO GULFS, SEPT. 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE GERMANS ARE PUTTING UP A RUTHLESS BATTLE TO MAINTAIN A HOLD IN ITALY AS LONG AS POSSIBLE EVEN THOUGH THEY MUST REALIZE THEY CAN ONLY DELAY THEIR FINAL DEFEAT.

THE NAZIS ARE MAKING ONE OF THE HOTTEST FIGHTS IMAGINABLE FOR THE SALERNO AND NAPLES AREA, BUT THE ALLIES ARE DRIVING INLAND NEVERTHELESS.

SEP 11 1943

(SINCE THIS WAS WRITTEN THE CAPTURE OF SALERNO WAS ANNOUNCED BY GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS.)

DESPITE RESISTANCE THE ALLIES ARE CONTINUING TO PUT TROOPS, WEAPONS AND SUPPLIES ASHORE STEADILY WHILE FIGHTING OFF AIR ATTACKS, ANSWERING SHORE GUNS SHOT FOR SHOT AND FIGHTING CLOSELY ON THE BEACHES AND HILLS.

THE ITALIANS, HAVING SURRENDERED TO THE ALLIES, APPARENTLY ARE ENDEAVORING TO LIVE UP TO THE ARMISTICE TERMS. ON ONE OF THE AIRFIELDS I SAW A SCORE OR MORE OF ITALIAN PLANES LINED UP IN NEAT ROWS AS IF THE AIRMEN HAD NO INTENTION OF USING THEM AGAIN.

I SAW NO SIGNS OF ITALIANS PARTICIPATING IN THE WAR IN ANY MANNER.

BEFORE GOING ON NIGHT PATROL OUTSIDE THE HARBOR THIS CRUISER MAINTAINED A CLOSE INSHORE SUPPORT OF THE ALLIED LANDINGS AS DID OTHER BRITISH DESTROYERS AND CRUISERS WHILE THE AMERICAN NAVY DID THE SAME A LITTLE DISTANCE AWAY FOR UNITED STATES TROOPS.

HERE ARE SOME SAMPLES OF A HOT AND BUSY DAY;

WE REPEATEDLY FOUGHT OFF GERMAN HIT-AND-SKIP BOMBING ATTACKS WITH WELCOME ASSISTANCE FROM AMERICAN AND BRITISH FIGHTERS WHICH MAINTAINED CONSTANT PATROLS. A BRITISH CRUISER ENGAGED GERMAN TANKS NEAR THE BEACHES AND REPORTED GOOD SUCCESS. A DESTROYER DID CLOSE IN-SHORE SHELLING, DESTROYING GERMAN 88-MM.GUN BATTERIES WHICH WERE ATTACKING ALLIED LANDING CRAFT.

ANOTHER DESTROYER SHELLED AND SMASHED A FACTORY IN WHICH GERMAN TROOPS WERE CONCEALED. TWO DESTROYERS WENT ALMOST ONTO SAND TO SWAP SHOTS WITH GERMAN TANKS. THAT WAS ONE OF THE DAY'S HOTTEST SINGLE ENCOUNTERS, WITH THE DESTROYERS SETTING SOME LARGE FIRES AMONG GERMAN EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING AN AMMUNITION DUMP CONCEALED IN A FIELD, WHILE GERMAN SHELLS SCREECHED OVERHEAD TO LAND IN THE WATER BETWEEN THE DESTROYERS AND THIS CRUISER.

BRITISH DESTROYERS HAD ANOTHER GO DURING THE AFTERNOON AT A PERSISTENT AND DANGEROUS EIGHT-INCH BATTERY WHICH KEPT PLANTING SHELLS AMONG SUPPLY SHIPS FAR OUT IN THE GULF. THE ENEMY WAS WELL HIDDEN. FROM ANOTHER ANGLE, A CONSIDERABLE DISTANCE AWAY, TWO UNIDENTIFIED AMERICAN CRUISERS HURLED BIGGER EXPLOSIVES AT THE SAME TARGET OR A SIMILAR ONE NEARBY.

TWO "TRIBAL" CLASS DESTROYERS RANGED THE BAY, SHELLING A WIDE VARIETY OF ENEMY POSITIONS. THE CAPTAIN OF ONE, DE HOLLAND MARTIN, RECENTLY WON THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER FOR EXCELLENT WORK AGAINST ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE SICILIAN NARROWS DURING THE CLOSING PHASES OF THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN.

THIS CRUISER DEVOTED ITSELF PRIMARILY TO KEEPING EVERYTHING IN SMOOTH-RUNNING ORDER, BUT GOT A CHANCE TO DO ITS STUFF DURING THE AFTERNOON. A BATTERY OF FOUR 88-MM.GUNS STARTED PLOPPING SHELLS INTO A DENSE CONCENTRATION OF FREIGHTERS AND LANDING CRAFT ON THE SEA-SIDE OF US. THESE SHELLS, FOUR AT A TIME, WENT OVER OUR HEADS TO PLUNK INTO THE SEA AND SEND SHOWERS ONTO THE DECKS OF THEIR TARGETS.

THE BATTERY WAS EXTREMELY DIFFICULT TO LOCATE EVEN APPROXIMATELY,

BUT THE ADMIRAL, WHIPPING GLASSES TO HIS EYES, CAUGHT A BRIEF FLASH AMONG THE FOLIAGE WELL BACK FROM THE BEACH.

NAVIGATING OFFICER LIEUT.COMMANDER PETER CHARLES OSWALK MOSELY, WHO WON THE DSC FOR HIS DUNKERQUE WORK AND FOR HELPING EVACUATE PRINCESS JULIANA OF NETHERLANDS, QUICKLY SWUNG THE SHIP INTO THE PROPER FIRING POSITION.

THIS WAS THE CHANCE THAT GUNNERY OFFICER LIEUT.COMMANDER L.P.J.THOMAS HAD BEEN AWAITING. HE GOT OFF 25 ROUNDS OF SIX-INCH SHELLS SO QUICKLY THAT NOBODY HAD TIME TO PLUG THEIR EARS. MUCH MORE SMOKE THAN OUR SHELLS WOULD HAVE RAISED PLUMED UP FROM THE SPOT THE ADMIRAL HAD INDICATED.

THE FOUR GERMAN GUNS DID NOT FIRE ANY MORE.

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN AIR BASE IN SICILY SEPT 11-(AP)-USING WITH BRILLIANT SUCCESS THE TACTICS PERFECTED DURING THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN, AMERICAN FIGHTER-BOMBERS YESTERDAY DEALT A TELLING BLOW TO THE GERMAN EFFORT TO SWITCH REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES FROM THE EIGHTH ARMY FRONT IN ITALY TO WHERE THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IS PUSHING INLAND AT NAPLES.

DURING THE DAY A GREAT CONVOY OF 200 TO 250 VEHICLES OF ALL TYPES, ESCORTED BY TANKS AND MOBILE ANTIAIRCRAFT BATTERIES, WAS LITERALLY CUT IN HALF AS IT CRAWLED 50 PAINFUL MILES ALONG THE VALLEY OF THE TANAGRO RIVER SOUTHEAST OF NAPLES.

TRUCKS AND ARMORED CARS WERE ATTACKED DURING THE MORNING BY AMERICAN AIRMEN IN THE VICINITY OF LAGONEGRO, 10 MILES INLAND FROM THE COASTAL CITY OF SAPRI. AT DUSK THE REMNANTS WERE NO FARTHER NORTHWARD THAN AULETTA, NORMALLY A TWO-HOUR DRIVE DOWN THE VALLEY.

SO PERSISTENT WERE THE ATTACKERS THAT VEHICLES FREQUENTLY CONVERTED THEMSELVES INTO VERITABLE FORTRESSES AND ATTEMPTED TO AMBUSH STRAFING

PLANES. WHEN THEY DID THIS THEY BROKE UP INTO GROUPS INTERSPERSED WITH TANKS AND ANTIAIRCRAFT BATTERIES POISED FOR THE KILL. THEY WAITED IN SUCH FORMATIONS UNTIL THE COAST SEEMED CLEAR. THEN THEY STARTED UP AGAIN. IN ALMOST EVERY CASE, THEY HARDLY HAD GOTTEN UNDER WAY BEFORE THE YANK AIRMEN SWOOPED IN, AGAIN EXECUTING LIGHTNING HIT-RUN ASSAULTS.

THE BRUNT OF THIS DARING ACTION WAS CARRIED BY P-38S, A-36S AND SPITFIRE GROUPS PATROLLING THE ALLIES' BEACHHEADS AT LOW, MEDIUM AND HIGH ALTITUDES TO SAFEGUARD THE LANDING OF ADDITIONAL MEN AND MATERIAL AGAINST GERMAN PLANES. THEY WERE IN CONSTANT RADIO COMMUNICATION WITH THE CONTROL CENTER WHICH WAS ABLE TO SWITCH THEM IN A FEW SECONDS AGAINST ENEMY TARGETS.

A GROUP OF 12 LIGHTNINGS DIVED ON A CONVOY WITHIN FIVE MINUTES AFTER IT GOT ORDERS TO ATTACK.

A DESCRIPTION OF ONE ASSAULT WAS GIVEN BY CAPT.DONALD L.PERRY, HAWTHORNE, CALIF., A GREAT-GREAT GRANDSON OF ADMIRAL OLIVER H.PERRY AND AN EXPERIENCED PILOT WHO TURNED DOWN AN APPOINTMENT TO ANNAPOLIS SEVERAL YEARS AGO TO JOIN THE ARMY AIR FORCES.

HE WAS IN A FORMATION OF 12 LIGHTNINGS WHICH CAUGHT A COLUMN STRUNG OUT SOUTH OF SALA CONSILINA SHORTLY BEFORE NOON.

"WE GOT THEM BY SURPRISE," THE 22-YEAR OLD AIRMAN SAID, "AND IT LOOKED LIKE EVERY PLANE HIT WHERE IT WAS AIMING. I GOT TWO HALF-TON TRUCKS AND COULD SEE MEN SCRAMBLING OUT. WE ALSO SHOT UP AN ARMORED TRUCK AND A RECONNAISSANCE CAR BEFORE WE FINISHED. I LOOKED BACK AND SAW A LARGE NUMBER BURNING. WE WERE VERY WELL SATISFIED WITH THE DAY'S WORK."

OTHER EFFECTIVE RAIDS WERE MADE ON A COLUMN IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF BRIENZA AND AULETTA WHERE RUGGED TERRAIN, INTENSE MACHINE GUN AND SMALL ARMS FIRE MADE OPERATION UNUSUALLY DANGEROUS. AT THE DAY'S END, A COMPILATION OF REPORTS INDICATED THAT AT LEAST 100 VEHICLES HAD BEEN DEMOLISHED--A LOSS OF ALMOST 50 PER CENT.

(ADVANCE) AN ALLIED TROOP ASSEMBLY AREA IN SICILY, SEPT 4-(AP)-(DELAYED)-THESE BRITISH ARE THE SINGINGEST SOLDIERS.

AFTER FOUR SOLID YEARS OF WAR THEY CAN GET MORE FUN OUT OF AN EVENING'S SONGFEST THAN THEY COULD FROM A KEG OF BEER, ALTHOUGH YOU COULD NEVER GET A LIMEY LAD TO SAY SO.

BEFORE THE EMBARKING OF TROOPS ON INVASION SHIPS FOR ITALY I STAYED WITH A GROUP OF AMERICAN AIR GROUND FORCE WORKERS WITH WHOM I WAS TO LAND. THEY ARE THE BOYS WHO BRING UP THE GAS AND BAGS OF BULLETS WITH WHICH THE OTHER FELLOW MAKES THE HEADLINES, THEY ARE THE BOYS YOU REARELY HEAR OF IN COMBAT, BUT IF THEY FLOPPED IN THEIR JOBS THE BOYS IN THE BATTLE AHEAD WOULD BE PARALYZED IN THEIR POSITIONS.

OUR ASSEMBLY AREA WAS A DUSTY, STRAW LITTERED LITTLE OLIVE GROVE THROUGH WHOSE THIN LEAVES THE HOT SUN LEAPS BRIGHTLY. BESIDE IT STRETCH ACRES OF VINEYARDS. A MONTH AGO GERMAN TROOPS WERE IN THIS SAME AREA WATCHING THE TREASURED GRAPES RIPENING-BUT NOT RIPENING FOR THEM.

ACROSS A LITTLE DIRT ROAD FROM THE AMERICAN TROOPS WERE THE RAF GROUND SERVICE UNITS, BOTH WERE TO GO ON THE ITALIAN ADVENTURE IN THE SAME SHIP. AFTER THE EVENING MEAL TWO OF THE BRITISH BOYS PULLED OUT ACCORDIANS AND BEGAN WORKING OVER THE KEYS, THEY WERE GOOD, THEY SQUEEZED THEM OUT WITH RYTHM, THE GROUP ROUND HEM GRADUALLY GREW AND SO

THEY SQUEEZED THEM OUT WITH RYTHM, THE GROUP AROUND THEM GRADUALLY GREW AND SOON THE VOICES BEGAN TO SLIP IN ON THE CHORUS-HALF A DOZEN EMPIRE ACCENTS, IT WAS ALL CASUALLY DONE, WITH NONE OF THE PROFESSIONAL TOUCH. THESE BRITISH BOYS SANG BECAUSE THEY LIKE TO, AND BECAUSE THEIR WORK WAS DONE FOR THE DAY AND THEIR BELLIES WERE PLEASANTLY PACKED WITH FOOD.

SEP 11 1943

ACROSS THE WAY THE AMERICAN BOYS BEGAN TO TURN OFF THEIR RADIOS TO LISTEN, THEN THEY BEGAN TO GET UP AND SAUNTER OVER. DURING A PAUSE A SLIM LITTLE BRITISH SOLDIER WITH A HEAD OF HAIR LIKE A KANSAS WHEAT FIELD LET GO WITH "WHEN IRISH EYES ARE SMILING." HIS TENOR MELTED THE

30.24 - 8325

TWO ARMIES INTO ONE, AND LISTENING IN THE DARKNESS YOU FELT THAT THEIR COMMON MUSIC WAS AS DEEP AND STRONG A BOMD BETWEEN THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN PEOPLES AS THEIR COMMON LANGUAGE.

THE IRISH TUNES, ALL THE WAY FROM "DANNY BOY" TO "MOTHER MACHREE LASTED FOR HALF AN HOUR, AND ENDED WITH A HUNDRED BRITISH AND AMERICA VOICES KICKING THE PETALS OFF "THE ROSE OF TRALEE."

"ARE THERE NO SCOTS, MEN?" A VOICE BURRED OUT IN THE DARK, EVERYONE LAUGHED, AND THE ACCORDION FLOWED INTO "LOCH LOMOND." WHEN THE SCOTCH TUNES RAN OUT THE BOYS TRADED THEIR ARMY SONGS BACK AND FORTH, AND ALL HANDS RANG IN OOGETHER IN THE SITRRING "MARINE HYMN."

"FROM THE HALLS OF MONTEZUMA TO THE SHORES OF TRIPOLI, WE WILL FIGHT OUR COUNTRY'S BATTLES ON THE LAND AND ON THE SEA."

THEY CHANTED IT IN THE NIGHT, IN THEIR DEEP THROATED VOICES UNDER THE OLIVE TREES, AS REVERENT AS IF IN CHURCH. SOLDIERS ARE USUALLY SELF-CONSCIOUS ABOUT SINGING PATRIOTIC AIRS. THEIR PATRIOTISM IS MANIFESTED IN DEEDS RATHER THAN MUSIC, BUT THEY SANG THIS SONG AT EASE, AND THE RING IN THEIR VOICES TOLD HOW THEY LOVED IT.

THAT OPENED A FLOOD OF POPULAR AND SENTIMENTAL SONGS FROM "YOURS" TO ZALEXANDERS RAGTIME BAND."

"WHAT ABOUT SOME OF THAT HILL BILLY MUSIC, YOU YANKEES?" A BRITISH SOLDIER CALLED OUT.

CAPT. ROBERT R.PIARCE, OF COLUMBIA, S.C., WHOSE FAMILY HAS OPERATED A PRODUCE BUSINESS IN THE CAROLINAS FOR THREE GENERATIONS, STEPPED OUT AND SAN "THE WRECK OF THE OLD 97." AFTER EXPLAINING THE HISTORY BEHIND THE OLD SONG HE MADE THE HIT OF THE EVENING, AND LIEUTENANT LOUIS C.HARRIS, A PONTIAC, MICH., NEWSPAPERMAN WHOSE VOICE BETRAYS HIS MONTGOMERY, ALA., ORIGIN, SCORED AGAIN WITH "DOWN BY THE OLD MILL STREAM.

THE BRITISH BOYS LIKED THEIR SOUTHERN DRAWL, SO FOR 15 MINUTES THE TWO AMERICAN OFFICERS PUT ON AN IMPROMPTU VAUDEVILLE ACT, TELLING JOKES ON EACH OTHER.

"YOU HAVE TO KNOW A LOT OF JOKES IN THE PRODUCE BUSINESS," PIARCE SAID.

THE BRITISH TOLD A FEW TOO, AND BOTH SIDES TOOK TURNS A FEW EARTHY SONGS OF THE TYPE SOLDIERS HAVE ALWAYS LIKED AND WHICH ONCE USED TO TICKLE ABRAHAM LINCOLN, WHO HAD A SUBSTANTIAL REPERTOIRE IN THAT BRANCH OF HUMOR HIMSELF.

IT CAME TIME TO BREAK UP AT 11 P.M. NO ONE SUGGESTED IT, BUT SUDDENLY EVERYONE WAS SINGING AULD LANG SYNE, AND IN THE NIGHT THE TENOR PRIVATE DIDN'T KNOW WHETHER THE BASS WAS THE CORPORAL OR A COLONEL, AND NOBODY CARED.

THE SONGFEST WAS OVER. LEAVING THE BRITISH AREA, LT.HARRIS REMARKED "YOU KNOW, THIS IS THE FOURTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE DAY THEY WENT INTO THE WAR."

"PAUL," SAID ANOTHER OFFICER, "THOSE GUYS WILL STILL BE ABLE TO SING IF THE WAR LASTS ANOTHER FOUR YEARS AND FOUR MORE AFTER THAT."

FAR OFF FLASHES LIT THE BLACK SKY. FROM THIS DISTANCE THE SOUNDS OF GUNS COULD NOT BE HEARD. THE FLASHES SIGNALLED THE MARCH OF THE BRITISH 8TH ARMY UP THE ITALIAN MAINLAND.

THE HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCEMENT SAID:

"THE BATTLESHIPS, SOME CRUISERS AND CERTAIN OTHER UNITS OF THE ITALIAN FLEET ARRIVED AT MALTA."

AFTER THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE, THE NAVAL VESSELS PUT TO SEA AND STEAMED SOUTHWARD AS THE ONLY MEANS OF PREVENTING SEIZURE BY THE GERMANS.

THE ESCAPE WAS NOT EASY, FOR THE GERMANS APPARENTLY WERE DETERMINED EITHER TO GET POSSESSION OF THE SHIPS OR DESTROY THEM.

A DISPATCH FROM LA LINEA, SPAIN, YESTERDAY SAID TWO ITALIAN LIGHT CRUISERS, TWO DESTROYERS AND TWO AUXILIARY CARRIERS HAD ENTERED GIBRALTER AND HAD SURRENDERED.

(THE GERMANS, IN A BROADCAST HEARD YESTERDAY IN LONDON, SAID AN ITALIAN BATTLESHIP HAD BEEN SUNK AND A CRUISER DAMAGED BY NAZI BOMBERS BETWEEN SARDINIA AND CORSICA. THE GERMANS ALSO SAID THAT OTHER PLANES HAD FORCED AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF OTHER ITALIAN SHIPS TO RETURN TO THE GREEK HARBOR OF PATRAS AFTER THEY HAD ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE.

(LONDON PAPERS SAID YESTERDAY THAT THREE 35,000 TON ITALIAN BATTLESHIPS AND A FLOTILLA OF CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS HAD FLED FROM LA SPEZIA, THE BIG ITALIAN NAVAL BASE ON THE LIGURIAN SEA BETWEEN GENOA AND LEGHORN.)

LOSSES TO THE ITALIAN FLEET DURING THE WAR INCLUDE FIVE HEAVY AND SEVEN LIGHT CRUISERS, 35 DESTROYERS AND LARGE TORPEDO BOATS, A LARGE NUMBER OF SUBMARINES AND LIGHT CRAFT.

ON ENTERING THE WAR, ITALY HAD A MERCHANT NAVY EXCEEDING TWO MILLION TONS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. ACQUISITIONS FROM THE FRENCH AND NEW CONSTRUCTION ADDED A MILLION TONS TO THIS.

FERRY SERVICE TO AFRICA, HOWEVER, WAS HARD HIT BY ALLIED NAVAL AND AIR ATTACKS AND ABOUT HALF OF THE TOTAL IS BELIEVED TO BE AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

ITALY AT THE PRESENT TIME IS BELIEVED TO HAVE ABOUT 370 MERCHANT SHIPS OF 1,500,000 TOTAL GROSS TONNAGE, INCLUDING 60 PASSENGER VESSELS, 250 FREIGHTERS AND 60 TANKERS.

FIERCE FIGHTING WAS TAKING PLACE BETWEEN AMERICAN AND GERMAN FORCES IN THE NAPLES AREA BUT ADDITIONAL TROOPS AND SUPPLIES WERE BEING LANDED ALTHOUGH EARLIER THE GERMANS HAD BOMBED AND SHELLED THE INVASION BRIDGEHEADS.

FROM TARANTO, THE ITALIAN NAVAL BASE AT THE HEEL OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA, CAME WORD THAT ITALIAN UNITS STATIONED THERE HAD OVERPOWERED GERMAN TROOPS PRIOR TO THE LANDING BY THE BRITISH NAVY EARLY THURSDAY.

IN THE CALABRIA AREA THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WAS REPORTED TO BE PUSHING STEADILY AHEAD.

(IN A BROADCAST HEARD IN LONDON BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, THE UNITED NATIONS RADIO AT ALGIERS REPORTED ITALIAN TROOPS CONTINUE TO FIGHT IN THE TURIN DISTRICT. NUMEROUS ACTS OF SABOTAGE WERE REPORTED FROM ALL PARTS OF ITALY.)

FROM TARANTO, FROM THE NAPLES AREA A THIRD OF THE WAY UP THE WEST COAST, AND FROM THE CALABRIAN TOE IN THE EXTREME SOUTH ALLIED FORCES NOW POINT INWARD TO THE HEART OF ITALY.

(IN ADDITION, A FRONTIER DISPATCH TO DIE TAT IN ZURICH, SWITZERLAND, SAID BRITISH TROOPS HAD LANDED AT OSTIA, SEAPORT FOR THE CITY OF ROME AT THE MOUTH OF THE TIBER, AND WAS FIGHTING GERMAN DIVISIONS NEAR THE CAPITAL. ALLIED SOURCES HAVE MADE NO MENTION OF SUCH AN ACTION, HOWEVER.)

THE STRONG GERMAN OCCUPYING FORCES MADE THEIR BOLDEST BLOW OF THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN YESTERDAY BY ATTACKING ROME, AND IN THE NORTH WERE SAID TO HAVE TAKEN OVER GENOA AND POSSIBLY OTHER MAJOR CITIES. BERLIN CLAIMED ROME HAD CAPITULATED.

(THE LONDON RADIO SAID LAST NIGHT THAT ONE OF THE TUNNELS AT THE BRENNER PASS BETWEEN GERMANY AND ITALY HAD BEEN DAMAGED BY AN EXPLOSION. NO FURTHER DETAILS WERE GIVEN.

(A DISPATCH FROM BERN SAID ITALIAN RESISTANCE IN LOMBARDY IN NORTHERN ITALY HAD CEASED. IT REPORTED THAT AN ITALIAN RADIO BROADCAST BY GEN.VITTORIO RUGGIERO, COMMANDER AT MILAN, ANNOUNCED SURRENDER OF THE CITY TO FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL, COMMANDER OF GERMAN FORCES IN THE NORTH AND ONE TIME LEADER OF THE AFRIKA CORPS WHICH WAS CHASED OUT OF NORTH AFRICA.)

AT NAPLES, 135 MILES BY RAIL FROM ROME, THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY UNDER LIEUT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK WAS MEETING STIFF GERMAN RESISTANCE, BUT THREW BACK FIVE NAZI COUNTERATTACKS AND WAS MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS TOWARD ENVELOPMENT OF THE CITY. ADDITIONAL MEN AND MATERIALS WERE POURING IN TO MEET GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS WHICH WERE BELIEVED TO BE SPEEDING DOWN FROM THE NORTH OF ITALY.

THERE WAS EVERY SIGN THAT THE GERMANS INTENDED TO WAGE A MAJOR BATTLE AT THIS POINT.

AT SALERNO, 20 MILES SOUTH OF NAPLES, A BITTER BATTLE DEVELOPED WITH THE GERMANS THROWING THE CRACK 16TH ARMORED DIVISION INTO THE FIGHT.

TO THE EXTREME SOUTH OF ITALY IN THE CALABRIAN TOE, THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY MOVED ALONG RAPIDLY UP BOTH THE WEST AND EAST COASTS.

ALLIED AIRFORCES CONTINUED TO HARASS THE NAZI WAR MACHINES AT

WIDELY SCATTERED POINTS. THE DAY'S BAG OF NAZI PLANES REPORTED YESTERDAY TOTALLED 20, 11 OF WHICH WERE SHOT DOWN BY NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIRFORCE PLANES AND NINE BY MIDDLE EAST LIBERATORS ATTACKING FOGGIA.

ITALIAN NAVAL STRENGTH AT THE TIME OF THE ARMISTICE INCLUDED SEVEN BATTLESHIPS. FOUR OF THESE WERE 35,000-TON MODERN SHIPS THE ITALIA (FORMERLY THE LITTORIO) AND THE VITTORIO VENETO, NOW IN MALTA, THE ROMA, SUNK BY GERMAN AIR ATTACK, AND THE IMPERO, WHICH IS STILL UNACCOUNTED FOR.

THE OTHER THREE, PRE-WORLD WAR I SHIPS WHICH WERE RECONSTRUCTED BEFORE 1940, ARE THE CAIO DUILIO AND THE ANDREA DORIA, NOW IN MALTA, AND THE GIULIO CESARE, STILL UNACCOUNTED FOR.

WHEN THIS WAR STARTED ITALY HAD THREE 10,000-TON HEAVY CRUISERS, ONE OF WHICH WAS REPORTED TORPEDOED BY A BRITISH SUBMARINE IN SEPTEMBER, 1941. THEY WERE THE BOLZANO, TRENTO AND TRIESTE, AND THERE HAS BEEN NO REPORT OF ANY OF THEM.

SHE HAD TEN LIGHT CRUISERS OF 8,000 TONS INCLUDING THE GIUSEPPE GARIBALDI, THE LUIGI DI SAVOIA DUCA DEGLI ABRUZZI, THE EUGENIO DI SAVOIA, THE EMANUELE FILIBERTO DUCA D'AOSTA, THE RAIMONDO MONTECUCCOLI AND THE LUIGI CADORNA--ALL NOW AT MALTA.

THE OTHERS, ONE OF WHICH MAY MAKE THE SEVENTH AT MALTA, ARE THE MUZIO ATTENDOLO, THE GIOVANNI DELLE BANDE NERE, THE ALBERTO DI GIUSSANO AND THE ALBERICO DE BARBIANO.

ITALY ALSO HAD UNDER CONSTRUCTION THREE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND TWO LIGHT CRUISERS OF 8,000 TONS, THE AMMIRAGLIO COSTANZO CIANO AND THE VENEZIA, ALONG WITH 12 OTHER CRUISERS OF ABOUT 5,400 TONS. THESE LATTER INCLUDED THE ATTILIO REGOLO, THE SCIPIONE AFRICANO, THE CAIO MARIO, THE CLAUDIO TIBERIO, THE PAOLO EMILIO, THE CORNELIO SILLA, THE OTTAVIANO AUGUSTO, THE POMPEO MAGNO, THE ULPIO TRAIANO, THE VIPSANIO AGRIPPA, THE CLAUDIO DRUSO AND THE GIULIO GERMANICO.

ITALY ALSO HAD ABOUT 25 DESTROYERS, ABOUT 60 SUBMARINES AND MANY SMALLER BOATS OF THE MOTOR TORPEDO BOAT CLASS WHICH SHE USED EXTENSIVELY.

DURING THE WAR SHE LOST AN ESTIMATED FIVE HEAVY AND SEVEN LIGHT CRUISERS, 35 DESTROYERS AND LARGE TORPEDO BOATS AND A LARGE NUMBER OF SUBMARINES AND LIGHT CRAFT.

UPON ENTERING THE WAR ITALY HAD A MERCHANT NAVY EXCEEDING 2,000,000 TONS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. ACQUISITIONS FROM THE FRENCH AND NEW CONSTRUCTION ADDED 1,000,000 TONS TO THIS TOTAL. THE FERRY SERVICE TO AFRICA, HOWEVER, WAS HARD HIT BY ALLIED NAVAL AND AIR ATTACKS AND ABOUT HALF OF THE SUM TOTAL IS BELIEVED AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY

(ADVANCE)...MOSCOW, SEPT 10-(AP)-THE RED ARMY, IN AN ASTOUNDINGLY SUCCESSFUL SUMMER OFFENSIVE, HAS SHOWN ITSELF PROBABLY THE FINEST ALL AROUND FIGHTING FORCE EVER DEVELOPED.

WITHOUT THE BENEFIT OF NEW WEAPONS OR TACTICS, BUT WITH COMPLETE COOPERATION OF ALL ARMS, THIS FORCE HAS SHATTERED THE SOUTHERN HALF OF THE GERMANS' TWO-YEAR-OLD TAGANROG-LENINGRAD LINE, CAPTURED ITS MAIN BASTIONS, OREL AND KHARKOV, AND THROWN THE ENEMY IN FULL RETREAT TOWARD THE DNIEPER AND THE DESNA RIVERS.

HOW FAR THE RED ARMY CAN OR WILL GO REMAINS TO BE SEEN, BUT ONE POINT ALREADY IS CLEAR: IT HAS ESTABLISHED CLEARCUT, GENERAL SUPERIORITY OVER THE WEHRMACHT, WHICH UNTIL THIS SUMMER WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN THE WORLD'S GREATEST MILITARY MACHINE.

I JUST HAD A CHANCE TO SEE SOMETHING OF THE 1943 MODEL OF THE RED ARMY IN TRIPS TO THE BRYANSK AND STEPPE FRONTS AND VISITS TO OREL AND KHARKOV.

THERE IS NOTHING RADICAL OR PARTICULARLY NEW ABOUT IT. IN FACT SOME OF IT LOOKS OLD FASHIONED AND MUCH OF IT RESEMBLES CLOSELY THE 1941 MODEL WHICH I SAW BEFORE AND DURING THE BATTLE OF MOSCOW.

IT REACHED ITS PEAK BY EXPANDING AND DEVELOPING EVERY BRANCH OF THE SERVICE TO THE UTMOST AND THROWING THEM ALL INTO ACTION IN A CLOSELY KNIT BODY.

THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE GERMAN AND RUSSIAN TACTICS WHICH TURNED THE SCALES IN FAVOR OF THE RED ARMY. THE GERMANS ATTEMPTED TO BREAK THE RED ARMY LINE WITH TANKS, BUT PLANES VIRTUALLY FAILED TO SUPPORT THEIR OLD PANZER TEAM. THE RUSSIANS BROKE THE WEHRMACHT LINE WITH AN ALL-OUT BLAST OF TANKS, PLANES, ARTILLERY

AND INFANTRY.

THERE IS ANOTHER IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE. THE GERMANS CONCENTRATED TREMENDOUS FORCE ON THE NARROW SECTOR OF THEIR SUMMER PUSH, THROWING 33 DIVISIONS AGAINST THE SOUTHERN SIDE OF THE RED ARMY'F KURSK SALIENT AND A SLIGHTLY SMALLER FORCE AGAINST THE NORTHERN SIDE. THE RUSSIANS KEPT THEIR RESERVES SPREAD OVER A WIDE FRONT, RETAINING THE ABILITY TO MANEUVER.

THE RED AIR FORCE COOPERATED WITH THE GROUND TROOPS BY BOMBING BOTH THE FRONT LINE AND THE ENEMY REAR, IN CONTRAST TO THE LUFTWAFFE WHICH CONCENTRATED ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT INNOVATIONS OF THIS SUMMER'S CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN THE DAILY COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING RAIDS ON RAILROAD STATIONS AND HIGHWAY JUNCTIONS BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES.

THE UNITED STATES LEND LEASE PROGRAM HAS BEEN RESPONSIBLE TO SOME EXTENT FOR THE EXPANSION OF THE RED AIR FORCE. B-25 MITCHELL BOMBERS ARE BEING USED TO RAID THE GERMAN REAR. P-39 AIRCOBRAS, P-40 KITTYHAWKS AND TOMAHAWKS ARE FLYING WITH SOVIET YAK MIG LAGG FIGHTERS.

AMERICAN M-3 GRANT AND M-4 SHERMAN MEDIUM TANKS AND BRITISH MATHILDAS AND CHURCHILLS ARE BEING EMPLOYED, BUT ONLY IN COOPERATION WITH THE INFANTRY, NOT IN ENTIRE TANK DIVISIONS AND TANK ARMIES WHICH ARE EQUIPPED EXCUSLIVELY WITH SOVIET MACHINES.

THE ALLIES' GREATEST CONTRIBUTION WAS MADE IN THE TRANSPORT JEEP, WHICH IS KNOWN TO EVERY RED ARMY MAN AS "VEELY" AND IS SEEN ON NEARLY EVERY ROAD. MANY AMERICAN TRUCKS ALSO ARE IN EVIDENCE.

AMERICAN FOOD OCCASIONALLY IS SERVED AT RED ARMY MESSES, ESPECIALLY MEAT AND SUGAR. CANNED MEAT USUALLY IS RESERVED FOR FRONT LINE TROOPS, WHILE MEN IN THE REAR GET FRESH MEAT, WHICH SEEMS PLENTIFUL.

RED ARMY MEN PRONOUNCE THEIR FEEDING "ABSOLUTELY FIRST CLASS." THEIR BREAD RATION IS TWO POUNDS DAILY, TWICE THAT RECEIVED BY THE AVERAGE WHITE COLLAR WORKER.

AT THE HEAD OF THESE ARMIES IN THE FIELD ARE COMPARATIVELY YOUNG GENERALS WHO ARE ALREADY OLD IN EXPERIENCE.

SEVEN ARMY GENERALS ARE LEADING SEPARATE RED ARMY FRONTS OR ARMY GROUPS IN ACTION AGAINST THE GERMANS FROM SMOLENSK TO THE SEA OF AZOV. BEARING TREMENDOUS RESPONSIBILITIES AND AN IMMENSE BURDEN OF WORK, THEY ARE ALMOST AS INACCESSIBLE AS STALIN. EACH ONE REFERS TO THE ZONE UNDER HIS COMMAND AS "MY TERRITORY," AND CONTROLS IT SUBJECT ONLY TO ORDERS OF THE SUPREME COMMAND.

I MET PERSONALLY ONLY ONE GENERAL, ASSILY SOKOLOVSKY, A CLEAN SHAVEN, COMPETENT LOOKING MAN OF 45, WHO WAS COMMANDING THE DRIVE IN SMOLENSK. HE HAD BEEN ON THAT FRONT SINCE 1941, FIRST UNDER SEMEON K.TIMOSHENKO AND GREGORY K.ZHUKOV AND NOW HIS OWN BOSS, AND HE KNOWS THE GROUND LIKE THE INSIDE OF HIS POCKET.

AT THE OTHER END OF THE ACTIVE FRONT IS GENERAL FEODOR TOLBUKHIN, COMMANDING THE SOUTHERN FRONT, WHO TOOK TAGANROG. HE IS A SHORT, STOUT MAN OF THE SAME AGE AS SOKOLOVSKY, BUT THE POSSESSOR OF SEEMINGLY UNLIMITED ENERGY. DURING THE BATTLE OF TAGANROG, HE WENT FOUR DAYS AND NIGHTS WITHOUT SLEEP, BUT AFTER THE VICTORY HE STILL WAS WIDE AWAKE ENOUGH TO TELEPHONE HIS WIFE AT TIFLIS TO TELL HER ABOUT IT.

BETWEEN THEM ARE RODION MALINOVSKY, SOUTHWESTERN FRONT; IVAN KONEV, STEPPE FRONT; NIKOLAI VATUTIN, VORONEZH FRONT. AND KONSTANTIN

ROKOSSOVSKY, CENTRAL FRONT, VETERANS OF THE BATTLE OF MOSCOW OR STALINGRAD.

THEIR NAMES APPEAR IN BLACK LETTERS AT THE TOP OF ORDERS OF THE DAY BY STALIN ANNOUNCING THEIR VICTORIES. THEIR FAME IS ASSURED.

FOURTEENTH U.S.A.A.F. HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, SEPT 10-(DELAYED)--(AP)--THE BUSY WHAMPOA DOCKS AND THE WHITECLOUD AIRPORT IN THE CANTON AREA WERE PLASTERED WITH BOMBS THURSDAY AND THE FOURTEENTH AIR FORCE CONTINUED ITS DESTRUCTIVE ATTACKS ON JAPANESE RIVER AND RAIL SHIPPING IN THE VICINITY OF HANKOW.

SEP 11 1943

FIVE JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN AND FOUR OTHERS WERE PROBABLY DESTROYED. ALL AMERICAN AIRCRAFT RETURNED SAFELY.

A FLIGHT OF LIGHTNINGS LED BY CAPT. LEWDEN ENSLEN OF SPRINGFIELD, MO., DIVE-BOMBED THE WHAMPOA DOCKS AND WAREHOUSES. THE FLIERS SAID DEBRIS WAS FLUNG 500 FEET IN THE AIR AND ONE HUGE FIRE BROKE OUT. TWELVE ZEROS WAITING ABOVE TRIED TO INTERCEPT BUT THE LIGHTNINGS OUTDIVED AND OUTRAN THEM. ONE JAPANESE PLANE WAS SHOT DOWN.

MITCHELL BOMBERS WITH A WARHAWK ESCORT ATTACKED WHITECLOUD AIRDROME, THE HANGAR AND WORKSHOP AREA AND STARTED FIRES IN THE FUEL DUMPS WHICH WERE VISIBLE 50 MILES AWAY.

THE FORMATION WAS JUMPED BY 20 JAPANESE FIGHTERS. FIGHTER PILOT CAPT. JOHN MORRISON OF BEAUFORT, N.C., SHOT DOWN TWO ENEMY PLANES AND LIEUT. LYNN JONES OF MERCEDES, TEX., AND GUNNER SGTS. KARL MAY OF YAKIMA, WASH., AND LOREN MORRIS OF OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., EACH GOT ONE.

WITH THE AUSTRALIANS OUTSIDE LAE, NEW GUINEA, SEPT 9 (DELAYED)-(AP)-THEY CALL IT BLOODY BEACH, PARTLY BECAUSE BLOODY IS A FAVORITE BY-WORD OF THE AUSTRALIANS AND PARTLY BECAUSE, WELL--

BLOODY BEACH WAS JUST LIKE ANY OTHER BEACH IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC UNTIL LAST SATURDAY MORNING WHEN THE AUSTRALIANS AND AMERICANS CAME ASHORE. SINCE THEN IT HAS BEEN A MINOR PROVINCE OF HELL.

IT IS THE EASTERN BASE OF THE ALLIED TROOPS ATTACKING THE ENEMY DEFENDERS OF LAE'S TWO AIRFIELDS. AUSTRALIANS MOVING FROM HERE ARE LESS THAN TWO MILES FROM ONE AIRDROME.

(ANOTHER FORCE IS CLOSING IN ON LAE FROM THE SOUTHWEST AND GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S SATURDAY COMMUNIQUE DESCRIBED THE POSITION OF THE JAPANESE THERE AS "DESPERATE.")

THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE HAS HIT THIS BEACH WITH EVERYTHING IT HAS. ITS SANDS ARE POCK MARKED BY CRATERS AND ACK ACK GUN EMPLACEMENTS. THE SHORELINE IS DOTTED WITH WRECKAGE AND DEBRIS.

BLOODY BEACH HAS MANY HEROES--MEN WHO HAVE STUCK BY THEIR POSTS WHEN THE ATMOSPHERE WAS FULL OF STEEL. THERE ARE MEN LIKE LT.WILLIAM DIBBLE, ORANGE BAY, S.C., AND A BOY THEY CALL MARY BECAUSE SOME OF HIS COMPANIONS IMAGINED HE LOOKED EFFEMINATE.

SEP 11 1943

THEY HAVEN'T MISSED A RAID AND NONE HAS BEEN INJURED.

"THE ODDEST THING HAPPENED," DRAWLED DIBBLE, THE CAROLIAN. "IT WAS THE SECOND DAY WE WERE HERE. THE JAPANESE BOMBERS CAME TEARING OVER THE MOUNTAIN POPPING BOMBS RIGHT AND LEFT.

"A CAPTAIN AND A LIEUTENANT JUMPED IN MY FOXHOLE AND I HAD TO BEAT IT DOWN THE BEACH AND FIND ANOTHER. THEY HAD JUST JUMPED IN IT WHEN DOWN TUMBLED A BOMB ON TOP OF THEM. IT BLEW THEM 12 FEET IN THE AIR AND THEY LANDED BACK WHERE THE FOX HOLE WAS. IT HAD BECOME A BOMB CRATER BY THEN. NEITHER OF THEM GOT A SCRATCH."

THEN THERE WAS CORP.DONALD W.SMITH OF WEST FAIRVIEW, PA., ACK ACK GUNNER ON THE BEACH. HE WAS BLAZING AWAY AT A JAPANESE DIVE BOMBER WHICH NOSED OVER IN HIS DIRECTION. THE CORPORAL STOOD BY HIS GUN AND THE JAPANESE LET GO AT 300 FEET. THE BOMB HIT SIX FEET FROM SMITH AND COVERED HIM WITH SAND BUT HE WAS UNHARMED.

PERHAPS THE REAL HEROES OF THE BEACH ARE SGT.C.S.DODSON OF DANGERFIELD, TEX., AND THE BOY THEY CALL MARY. THE TWO STATIONED THEMSELVES NEAR THE SPOT WERE THE INCOMING TROOPS LAND. NOW AND THEN DURING A RAID, A FRIGHTENED SOLDIER JUMPS TO HIS FEET AND STARTS TO RUN FOR COVER. IF THERE IS ONLY ONE OF THEM, DODSON MAKE A FLYING TACKLE AND SITS ON HIM UNTIL THE RAID IS OVER. IF THERE ARE TWO OF THEM, THE BOY THEY CALL MARY TACKLES THE SECOND ONE AND SITS ON HIM.

THEY HAVE BEEN DOING THIS FOR DAYS NOW AND APPARENTLY THEY LIKE IT.

ATTU ISLAND, THE ALEUTIANS, SEPT. 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS FAR PACIFIC OUTPOST OF NORTH AMERICA IS BEING BUILT UP FOR A JUMP-OFF BASE FOR ATTACKS ON JAPAN PROPER. RAIDS ON THE KURILE ISLANDS ALREADY HAVE BEEN LAUNCHED.

COMFORTABLE QUONSET HUTS, OTHER LIVING AND OFFICE QUARTERS ARE BEING SET UP.

A KEY POINT IN THE CHICAGOF HARBOR AREA HAS BEEN NAMED JURMIN PASS, AFTER CAPT.JOHN JURMIN OF LINCOLN, NEB., WHO IS CREDITED WITH BEING THE FIRST MEMBER OF THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE TO JUMP ASHORE FROM LANDING CRAFT AT MASSACRE BAY. HE WAS LATER KILLED DURING THE FIGHTING AND IS BURIED WITH OTHER AMERICAN SOLDIERS AND SAILORS WHOSE GRAVES AT "LITTLE FALLS" ARE MARKED BY ROWS OF NEAT WHITE CROSSES. NOT FAR AWAY A LARGE WHITE SIGN READS "JAPANESE CEMETERY." SOME OF THE ENEMY DEAD ARE BURIED THERE.

BOMB CRATERS AND FOXHOLES STILL SCAR THE GREEN-TUNDRA SLOPES. IN ONE OF FOXHOLES JUST BEYOND JURMIN PASS FROM MASSACRE BAY I CAME UPON A DEAD JAPANESE SOLDIER. HIS HEAD WAS THROWN BACK AS IF FROM A BLOW AND ONE HAND WAS STIFFENED IN A CLAW-LIKE CLUTCH--A GRUESOME REMINDER OF THE BATTLING OVER THAT BITTERLY CONTESTED PASS.

OFFICERS SAID EFFORTS HAD BEEN MADE TO BURY ALL OF THE ENEMY DEAD IN GRAVES OR IN THE FOXHOLES WHERE THEY FELL.

ATTU'S PEAKS STREAKED WITH SNOW PATCHES AND VOLCANIC DUST ARE HIGH AND SHARP AND OFTEN BURIED IN CLOUDS. THE LONG SLOPES LEADING TO THE SEA BEACHES AND CLIFFS ARE GREEN AND WOODLESS, NOT UNLIKE THE COUNTRYSIDE OF SAN FRANCISCO'S GOLDEN GATE.

BUENOS AIRES, SUNDAY, SEPT. 12. (BY TELEPHONE TO NEW YORK)-(AP)-REPORTS EMANATING FROM THIS AND OTHER SOUTH AMERICAN CAPITALS THAT A CABINET RESHUFFLE FOLLOWING THE RESIGNATION OF FOREIGN MINISTER SEGUNDO R.STORNI HAS RESULTED IN AN INTERNAL REVOLT IN ARGENTINA WERE PATENTLY WITHOUT FOUNDATION EARLY TODAY.

THERE HAVE BEEN NO OUTWARD SIGNS OF ANYTHING RESEMBLING GOVERNMENTAL DISORDER IN THE CAPITAL UP TO THE EARLY HOURS OF THIS MORNING, NOR HAS THERE BEEN EVIDENCE OF A POLITICAL NATURE THAT

30.24 8333

WOULD LEND CREDENCE TO THE MANY REPORTS THAT THIS COUNTRY IS IN MILITARY REVOLT. WORD THAT A CABINET RESHUFFLE OF MAJOR POOPORTIONS IS PENDING LIKEWISE IS WITHOUT FOUNDATION FROM GOVERNMENT SOURCES HERE.

SEP 11 1943

THESE OPINIONS ARE THE RESULT OF PERSONAL OBSERVATION AND ARE FURTHER BORNE OUT BY A 15-MINUTE CONVERSATION I HAD LATE YESTERDAY WITH LT. COL. HECTOR LADVOCAT, CHIEF OF PRESIDENT PEDRO RAMIREZ' PRESS OFFICE WHO HAS AUTHORIZED ME TO SAY THAT "ON MY WORD AS AN OFFICER OF THE ARGENTINE ARMY, THERE IS NO MILITARY MOVEMENT OR ANY OTHER ACTIVITY AFFECTING THE TRANQUILITY OF MY COUNTRY."

A CABINET MEETING WAS CALLED BY PRESIDENT RAMIREZ FOLLOWING STORNI'S RESIGNATION. IT MET YESTERDAY FOR NO MORE IMPORTANT REASON THAN TO DECIDE WHO WILL FILL THAT VACANCY, NOW TEMPORARILY OCCUPIED BY MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, ALBERTO GILBERT. TO THIS HOUR A SUCCESSOR TO STORNI HAS NOT BEEN NAMED, BUT ACCORDING TO INFORMED GOVERNMENTAL SOURCES, A DECISION ON THIS POINT WILL BE REACHED MONDAY WHEN THE CABINET RECONVENES.

ANOTHER CONVERSATION LATE YESTERDAY WITH THE CHILEAN AMBASSADOR TO ARGENTINA, CONRADO RIOS GALLARDO, FROM WHOSE COUNTRY MANY OF THE REPORTS OF MILITARY TROUBLE IN ARGENTINA HAVE EMANATED, FURTHER SUBSTANTIATED THE FACT THAT THERE IS NO INTERNAL TROUBLE THREATENING THE REGIME OF GENERAL RAMIREZ. RIOS GALLARDO PROFESSED COMPLETE SURPRISE AT THE REPORTS OF POLITICAL DISTURBANCES PROCEEDING FROM SANTIAGO. HE SAID, "MY GOVERNMENT HAS NOT ASKED ME ABOUT THEM."

THERE IS NO QUESTION THAT STORNI'S RESIGNATION HAS CAUSED A SENSATION THROUGHOUT ARGENTINA. BUT THERE IS EVERY INDICATION THAT ALTHOUGH THERE MAY BE OTHER, LESSER CHANGES IN THE CABINET BEYOND NAMING A PERMANENT SUCCESSOR TO THE FORMER FOREIGN MINISTER, THE CABINET IN BULK IS HERE TO STAY.

STORNI SAID LAST NIGHT THAT HE ASSUMED FULL RESPONSIBILITY FOR A LETTER TO SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL, ASKING LEASE LEND AID FROM THE UNITED STATES, WHICH DREW FROM HULL A REBUKE AND PRECIPITATED THE CABINET CRISIS.

STORNI SAID HE HAD ACCEPTED RESPONSIBILITY IN A LETTER ADDRESSED TO GEN. PEDRO RAMIREZ, CHIEF OF THE GOVERNMENT.

HE SAID THAT THE "WIDE REPERCUSSIONS" OF HIS LETTER TO HULL HAD MOTIVATED HIS RESIGNATION EARLIER THIS WEEK, WHICH FOLLOWED CLOSELY UPON PUBLICATION OF HULL'S SHARPLY-WORDED REJECTION OF THE REQUEST FOR LEASE-LEND. STORNI SAID HIS LETTER TO HULL HAD BEEN "CONFIDENTIAL" AND THAT HE DID NOT EXPECT IT WOULD BE GIVEN PUBLICITY."

"I WROTE MY LETTER (TO HULL) IN GOOD FAITH AND ACCORDING TO MY MODEST KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING," SAID STORNI. "I HAD HOPED FOR A BETTER RECEPTION."

THE "REPERCUSSIONS" TO WHICH STORNI REFERRED WRE A CABINET RESHUFFLE FORCED BY RENEWED ATTACKS BY PRO-ALLIED ELEMENTS ON THE RAMIREZ GOVERNMENT'S NEUTRALITY POLICY.

(UNCONFIRMED RADIO REPORTS FROM CHILE SAID THE CABINET CRISIS HAD EXPLODED INTO AN INTERNAL REVOLT, WITH RAMIREZ OUSTED BY A MILITARY JUNTA.)

SEP 11 1943

GEN. RAMIREZ ISSUED A PROCLAMATION TONIGHT SAYING THAT HIS GOVERNMENT'S LINE OF CONDUCT WOULD BE MAINTAINED "WITH A FIRMNESS WHICH CORRESPONDS TO THE DIGNITY OF THE ARGENTINE NATION."

1943

THIS PROCLAMATION FOLLOWED 48 HOURS OF RUMORS CONCERNING THE STABILITY OF THE GOVERNMENT, AND A SHARP ATTACK ON STORNI BY THE PRO-AXIS MORNING PAPER CABILDO.

ALTHOUGH STORNI'S LETTER TO SECRETARY HULL HAD STATED HE WAS ACTING WITH AUTHORIZATION TO REPRESENT GE.RAMIREZ, IT WAS BELIEVED HE DID NOT EXPECT THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO GIVE PUBLICITY TO ARGENTINA'S REQUEST FOR AID.

MRAMIREZ ALSO HAD CONFERRED WITH 300 HIGH-RANKING ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS WHO CALLED UPON HIM, AND WERE SAID TO HAVE EXPRESSED THEIR CONFIDENCE IN HIS ADMINISTRATION.

(SANTIAGO REPORTS SAID THE RECEPTION OF THE MILITARY OFFICERS INDICATED THAT RAMIREZ'S ADMINISTRATION MIGHT BE IN DANGER OF BEING OVERTHROWN).

SEP 11 1943

RAMIREZ'S PROCLAMATION SAID THAT ARGENTINA'S HISTORIC TRADITIONS OF PEACE, WORK, AND JUSTICE "CANNOT BE DISPARAGED NOR TARNISHED BY CONFIDENTIAL EXPRESSIONS OF ANY OFFICIAL.

"TO THINK THE CONTRARY," HE SAID, "IS TO OVERLOOK THE PERMANENT VALUES FOR THE TRANSITORY ONES.

"THE SENTIMENTS OF AMERICAN SOLIDARITY ARE MORE THAN SUFFICIENT TO DISSIPATE WHATEVER DOUBT WHICH MIGHT TARNISH THOSE SACRED SENTIMENTS."

RAMIREZ SAID THAT OTHER AMERICAN NATIONS "SHOULD HAVE THE CERTAINTY" OF KNOWING "THAT OUR NATION IS FIRMLY UNITED IN THEIR DESTINIES."

THANKING THE OFFICERS FOR THE DEMONSTRATION OF LOYALTY, RAMIREZ SAID HIS GOVERNMENT WOULD "CONTINUE CARRYING OUT ITS TASKS WITH A FIRM HAND." HE ADDED THAT "MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT ARE IN COMPLETE HARMONY AND UNDISTURBED BY RUMORS BY WHICH CERTAIN INTERESTED PARTIES ATTEMPT TO DISTURB ITS PROGRESS."

AFTER ITS TWO-HOUR SESSION THE CABINET ISSUED A BRIEF COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID THAT "PROBLEMS OF THE MOMENT WERE STUDIED AND THE STUDY WILL CONTINUE MONDAY."

TROUBLES FOR PRESIDENT RAMIREZ' CABINET OVER NEUTRALITY BROKE EARLIER IN THE WEEK WITH THE RESIGNATION OF ADMIRAL SEGUNDO STORNI AS FOREIGN MINISTER AFTER HIS FAILURE TO OBTAIN LEASE-LEND AID FROM THE UNITED STATES.

THE REJECTION OF THE BID FOR AID WAS BASED BY U.S.SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL ON THE GROUNDS THAT ARGENTINA WAS NOT DOING ITS SHARE IN THE PROTECTION OF THE AMERICAS AND THAT IT HAD FAILED TO LIVE UP TO COMMITMENTS TO BREAK RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS.

STORNI WAS REPLACED YESTECDAY BY MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR ALBERTO GILBERT, WHO WILL SERVE AS ACTING FOREIGN MINISTER.

KK4EZ817PEW

A DISPATCH FILED AT 8:20 P.M., SATURDAY NIGHT FROM BUENOS AIRES, REPORTED THAT RAMIREZ HAD ISSUED A PROCLAMATION SAYING THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY WOULD BE MAINTAINED "WITH A FIRMNESS WHICH CORRESPONDS TO THE DIGNITY OF THE ARGENTINE NATION."

THIS DISPATCH INDICATED RAMIREZ STILL WAS IN POWER, AND GAVE NO CLUE OF ANY FURTHER CHANGE IN THE GOVERNMENT.

STORNI ALSO WAS SAID TO HAVE WRITTEN RAMIREZ A LETTER ASSUMING RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE NOTE TO SECRETARY HULL AND SAYING THAT THE NOTE WAS "CONFIDENTIAL." HE ADMITTED THAT THE REPERCUSSIONS CAUSED BY HULL'S BRUSQUE REPLY HAD MOTIVATED HIS RESIGNATION.

"I WROTE THE LETTER (TO HULL) IN GOOD FAITH ACCORDING TO MY MODEST KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING," HE TOLD RAMIREZ. "I HAD HOPED FOR A BETTER RECEPTION."

SEP 11 1943

SECRETARY HULL BLUNTLY TURNED DOWN THE APPEAL OF ARGENTINA FOR LEASE-LEND MATERIAL DECLARING:

"IT IS NOTORIOUS THAT AXIS AGENTS IN ARGENTINA HAVE BEEN AND ARE ENGAGING IN SYSTEMATIC ESPIONAGE WHICH HAS COST THE UNITED NATIONS SHIPS AND LIVES. VICIOUS PROPAGANDA AIMED AT THE UNITED NATIONS APPEARS IN PUBLICATIONS WHICH ARE SUPPORTED BY SUBSIDIES FROM AXIS SOURCES."

HULL POINTED OUT TO STORNI THAT ARGENTINA HAD FAILED TO CARRY OUT A PLEDGE SUBSCRIBED TO AT RIO DE JANEIRO IN 1942 WHICH CALLED FOR THE SEVERANCE OF FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS.

THE AMERICAN SECRETARY OF STATE ALSO RECALLED THE MEETING OF FOREIGN MINISTERS AT HAVANA IN 1940 WHICH ADOPTED A RESOLUTION WHICH SPECIFIED THAT ANY ATTEMPT BY A NON-AMERICAN STATE AGAINST THE INTEGRITY OR TERRITORIAL INVIOLABILITY OF ANY AMERICAN NATION SHOULD BE CONSIDERED AN ACT OF AGGRESSION AGAINST ALL SIGNING NATIONS.

"THE ACT OF AGGRESSION CONTEMPLATED IN THIS DECLARATION TOOK PLACE ON DECEMBER 7, 1941," HE WROTE.

THE JAPANESE ATTACKED PEARL HARBOR ON THAT DATE.

HULL'S REPLY TO STORNI'S REQUEST WAS MADE AUG.30 BUT THE EXCHANGE OF LETTERS WAS NOT MADE PUBLIC UNTIL SEPT.7.

STORNI IN HIS REQUEST PATENTLY TRIED TO JUSTIFY THE GENERAL FOREIGN POLICY OF HIS GOVERNMENT AND IN PARTICULAR THE FAILURE OF ARGENTINA TO BREAK RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS GOVERNMENTS. ARGENTINA IS THE ONLY AMERICAN NATION MAINTAINING DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH

THE AXIS BUT SUCH A BREAK HAD BEEN EXPECTED WHEN RAMIREZ TOOK OVER AFTER THE MILITARY COUP ON JUNE 4.

STORNI CALLED THE ARGENTINE NEUTRALITY "EVIDENTLY BENEVOLENT" ASSERTING THAT THE NATION'S EXPORTS WERE DEVOTED ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY TO THE ALLIES AND AMERICAN NATIONS, "MANY TIMES DEPRIVING OUR COUNTRY OF ARTICLES NECESSARY FOR ITS OWN DEFENSE."

STORNI HAD APPEALED ESPECIALLY FOR AIRPLANES, SPARE PARTS, ARMAMENTS AND MACHINERY TO HELP "RESTORE ARGENTINA TO THE POSITION OF EQUILIBRIUM TO WHICH IT IS ENTITLED WITH RESPECT TO OTHER SOUTH AMERICAN NATIONS."

CHICAGO,SEPT 11-(AP)-GETTING THE NEWS IN THE JUNGLES OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ENTAILS MANY HARDSHIPS AND DANGERS--BUT NEWSMEN ASSIGNED TO THE WAR ZONE HAVE A CHANCE TO REPORT O ASSIGNED TO THAT WAR ZONE HAVE A CHANCE TO REPORT ON "THE GREATEST STORY THE WORLD EVER HAS KNOWN," SAYS AN ASSOCIATED PRESS AAR CORRESPONDENT.

MURLIN SPENCER, RECENTLY RETURNED FROM THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WHERE HE WAS ON THE FRONT LINES AS AN AP CORRESPONDENT FOR MORE THAN A YEAR, LAST NIGHT TOLD THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MANAGING EDITORS' ASSOCIATION OF

SOME OF HIS EXPERIENCES.

"THERE IS NEWS IN THE JUNGLE, MORE THAN YOU CAN HANDLE," SPENCER SAID, "IT IS NO PLACE FOR CORRESPONDENTS WHO WATCH ACTION THROUGH FIELD GLASSES FROM A HILL. WE HAVE TO GO TO INTO THE JUNGLE AND TAKE OUR CHANCES. IT MAY BE AT SOME ADVANCED AIRFIELD, AT SOME BATTLE FIELD OR AT SOME PT BOAT HIDEOUT ALONG THE COAST. BUT WHILE THERE IS NEWS THERE, THE JUNGLE IS AWFUL."

SPENCER ASSERTED THAT BRIG.GEN.HANFORD MACNIDER, STATIONED IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, DESCRIBED JUNGLE WARFARE AS "LIKE FIGHTING INSIDE A MATTTRESS EXCEPT THAT ONE CAN'T SEE SO FAR. AND I DON'T MEAN A NICE, DECENT DRY AND UNINHABITED MATTRESS. I MEAN THE KIND YOU'VE SEEN HALF AFLOAT IN A PUDDLE BY THE CITY DUMP WHERE THE SLANT-EYED VERMIN LIKE TO PLAY."

"BUT THE CORRESPONDENT WHO WOULD WRITE OF JUNGLE WARFARE MUST GO TO THE FRONT, WATCH THE BOYS FIGHT, SHARE THEIR HARDSHIPS AND DANGERS," SAID SPENCER, WHO MADE 21 TRIPS TO THE FRONT IN THE FINAL 28 DAYS OF THE BUNA CAMPAIGN.

"MY FIRST, AND MOST TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE, CAME ON A SMALL COASTAL BOAT IN WHICH MACNIDER AND HIS STAFF AND CORRESPONDENTS WERE MOVING UP TOWARE BUNA.

"WE WERE NEARING OUR OBJECTIVE WHEN A ZERO SUDDENLY APPEARED FROM NEAR AHEAD. THERE IS SOMETHING TERRIFYING ABOUT BEING ON A SMALL BOAT WHEN PLANES APPROACH. THERE IS NO PLACE TO HIDE ABOARD THE BOAT. GENERALLY IT IS VIRTUALLY UNARMED. THE SEA IS NO REFUGE BECAUSE THERE ARE SHARKS THERE. YOU HAVE TO STAY AND TAKE IT.

"BUT SUDDENLY THE ZERO VEERED AWAY AND WITHOUT MAKING A PASS, AND WE LOOKED UP TO SEE A FLIGHT OF MITCHELL BOMBERS COME FROM THE SOUTH. THEY WERE ON A RAID AGAINST BUNA. THEN CAME THE MOST HORRIBLE SIGHT I HAVE SEEN.

"AS THE BOMBERS STARTED THEIR RUN, ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS AT BUNA BLAZED AWAY FRANTICALLY. THEN ONE OF THEM SCORED. A SHELL CAUGHT THE CENTER BOMBER DIRECTLY IN ITS BOMB BAY AND IT EXPLODED IN ONE BURST OF FLAME. A WING FELL OFF, AND THE BLAZING WRECKAGE FELL TO THE GROUND."

THE AP CORRESPONDENT TOLD THE EDITORS THAT "IT ISN'T PLEASANT TO SEE MEN DIE IN WAR. THERE ARE NO BANDS PLAYING, NO FLAGS WAVING. MANY TIMES THERE ISN'T EVEN ANY ONE AROUND TO TELL HIM GOODBYE. THERE MAY BE A SURPRISED LOOK IN HIS EYES AS THOUGH HE CAN'T QUITE UNDERSTAND WHAT POWER SENT HIM INTO THE JUNGLE TO DIE FROM THE BULLET OF SOME JAP FLAGPOLE SITTER OR AT THE END OF AN ENEMY BAYONET."

HE ALSO SAID IT WAS IMPORTANT THAT "WE DO NOT FORGET THAT THE JAP IS A FIGHTER, A SPECIALIST IN MURDER. I THINK WE'RE GOING TO BEAT HIM."

SPENCER CONTINUED HE HAD THE "UTMOST CONFIDENCE" IN GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, WHO, HE SAID, "KNOWS THE JAP BETTER, PROBABLY, THAN ANY OTHER OF OUR MILITARY LEADERS."

HE ASSERTED THAT "WE CAN'T WHIP THE JAPS IF WE REGARD THE AMERICAN-JAPANESE CONFLICT AS A 'ONE HAND' FIGHT--WHEREBY WE DEVOTE ONLY A PART OF OUR ENERGY TO THE PACIFIC WAR.

"I THINK THE PACIFIC WAR, IF FOUGHT TO ITS LOGICAL CONCLUSION, WILL BE A TRUE 'WAR TO END WAR' FOR SOME TINE AT LEAST. I THINK WE WILL HAVE TO FIGHT TO THE POINT THAT THE NATION THAT LOSES WILL NOT BE ABLE TO RISE AND FIGHT AGAIN FOR A LONG TIME."

WORLD'S GENERAL PUBLIC BEEN CONFRONTED WITH SUCH CONFUSION OF REPORTS AS ARE SURROUNDING THE ITALIAN SITUATION--AND NO SMALL PART OF THIS IS AN ARTIFICIAL FOG WHICH IS BEING DELIBERATELY CREATED BY THE DESPERATE GERMANS.

SEP 11 1943

THE SITUATION ON THE ITALIAN PENINSULA IS OF COURSE SERIOUS, BUT WE SHOULDN'T LET THE CONFUSION RAISE ANY DOUBTS IN OUR MINDS, FOR WE MAY BE SURE THAT THERE IS NONE IN THE MINDS OF OUR HIGH COMMAND. WE CAN "KEEP HER STEADY AS SHE GOES" WITH FULL CONFIDENCE THAT WE ARE HEADED STRAIGHT FOR PORT. THERE ARE TWO POINTS TO KEEP WELL IN MIND DURING THESE HECTIC DAYS:

1. THE GERMANS ARE MAKING FRANTIC ATTEMPTS TO SHORE UP THE COLLAPSING HOUSE THAT HITLER BUILT. PART OF THEIR EFFORT REPRESENTS A REAL AND GRIM FIGHT WITH ARMS TO DELAY THE ALLIED OCCUPATION OF ITALY AND ALSO TO SAVE THE BALKANS. PART OF IT IS PROPAGANDA AND FALSE REPORTS WHICH ARE BEING SPREAD BY NAZI AGENTS FROM MANY POINTS OF EUROPE IN AN EFFORT TO BEWILDER THE ITALIANS AND OTHER AXIS PEOPLES AS WELL AS THE ENEMY.

2. THE ALLIES ARE DOING BETTER THAN ALL RIGHT. THERE'S NO OCCASION FOR ALARM OVER THE ITALIAN POSITION, ALTHOUGH WE MUST BE PREPARED FOR BITTER FIGHTING, AS WELL AS SOME HEAVY COMPLICATIONS SUCH AS GROW OUT OF THE PRESENCE OF GERMAN TROOPS IN ROME AND THEIR ANNOUNCED ASSUMPTION OF "PROTECTION" OF THE VATICAN.

IT SEEMS OBVIOUS THAT GENERAL EISENHOWER AND HIS STAFF OF BRILLIANT OFFICERS FULLY ANTICIPATED GERMAN REPRISALS AGAINST THE ITALIANS AND SOME SMART MOVES SUCH AS THE "OCCUPATION" OF ROME. THE ALLIED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF'S ACTION IN KEEPING THE ARMISTICE SECRET FOR FIVE DAYS SPEAKS FOR ITSELF. HE FORESAW THE COMPLICATIONS WHICH NOW HAVE COME TO PASS.

DESPITE BERLIN'S EFFORTS YESTERDAY TO CREATE THE IMPRESSION THAT THE ITALIAN NAVY WAS IN GERMAN HANDS, WE HAVE THE FINE NEWS TODAY THAT A LARGE PART OF THE FLEET HAS ARRIVED AT THE BIG BRITISH BASE OF MALTA IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND GIVEN ITSELF UP TO THE ALLIES. WHETHER SOME SHIPS HAVE BEEN LOST REMAINS TO BE SEEN.

BITTER FIGHTING IS PROCEEDING IN THE NAPLES AREA BETWEEN AMERICAN AND GERMAN FORCES, BUT WE ARE LANDING MORE TROOPS AND SUPPLIES. IN THE EXTREME SOUTH GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S FAMOUS EIGHTH ARMY IS SLOGGING STEADILY NORTHWARD.

AN IMPORTANT POINT IS HOW FAR THE ITALIANS WILL MAKE GOOD PREMIER BADOGLIO'S ORDER TO RESIST ANY ATTACK BY THE GERMANS. IT IS REPORTED FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA THAT CONDITIONS IN ITALY ARE CHAOTIC, WITH ITALIAN TROOPS IN MOST CASES LAYING DOWN THEIR ARMS RATHER THAN FIGHT THE HITLERITES.

STILL, THERE HAS BEEN MUCH FIGHTING BETWEEN ITALIAN AND NAZI FORCES IN VARIOUS PLACES. IT MAY BE THAT AS THE COUNTRY STEADIES DOWN AFTER THE FIRST SHOCK, THE PEOPLE WILL RESPOND TO THE APPEAL BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PREMIER CHURCHILL TO "STRIKE HARD AND STRIKE HOME" AT THE GERMANS ON ITALIAN SOIL.

PERHAPS THE KNOTTIEST PROBLEM WHICH THE ALLIES HAVE TO SOLVE IS THE PRESENCE OF GERMAN TROOPS IN ROME. THAT'S A SHREWD MOVE ON THE PART OF THE NAZIS, BECAUSE THEIR EVICTION MAY INVOLVE MILITARY OPERAT-

IONS WHICH THE ALLIES WILL HATE TO APPLY TO THE ETERNAL CITY. THIS ESPECIALLY TRUE BECAUSE VATICAN CITY IS INVOLVED.

NATURALLY THE THOUGHT UPPERMOST IN MOST MINDS IS THAT THE UNSCRUPULOUS HITLER IN HIS DESPERATION INTENDS TO TRY TO HOLD THE POPE AS A "HOSTAGE" IF HIS HOLINESS IS STILL IN ROME. THAT UNDOUBT IS THE SUGGESTION HE TRIES TO CONVEY TO THE ALLIED WORLD IN ANNOUNC THAT HIS FORCES HAVE ASSUMED "PROTECTION" OF VATICAN CITY.

HOWEVER, WHILE THE FUEHRER HAS WALLOWED IN EVERY IMAGINABLE SORT OF CRIME, IT SEEMS INCONCEIVABLE THAT HE WOULD DARE CHALLENGE THE WORLD BY HARMING THE V

OF CRIME, IT SEEMS INCONCEIVABLE THAT HE WOULD DARE CHALLENGE THE WORLD BY HARMING THE POPE. WHAT THE NAZI CHIEF MAY BE ABLE TO DO IS TO EXPLOIT THIS SITUATION SO AS TO HAMPER THE ALLIED OPERATIONS TO SOME DEGREE.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 13 (Monday).—The Salamaua Airfield is in Allied hands, and with its fall, the whole Japanese position on the northeastern coast of New Guinea tottered today.

"At Salamaua our southern forces are now in possession of the airdrome," a communique announced here without amplification.

A headquarters spokesman, however disclosed that the field was taken by Australian soldiers who swam the Francisco River, directly to the south, to make their surprise attack. After the airdrome itself had been seized the Australians pushed on a mile and a half north, where they last were reported engaged with the enemy on the spur of a ridge.

Behind the capture of the strategic airfield, however, lay months of careful planning by General Douglas MacArthur and his staff and weeks of slow but steady advance by plodding ground troops northward along the coast and eastward in an ever-tightening vice from positions inland.

Close In on Lae

Beyond lay probable seizure of Lae, eighteen miles to the north, where Allied forces already are closing in from two directions.

Today's communique reported new successes for each of these two units, the Australian troops who were landed on the shore of the Huon Gulf east of Lae Sept. 4, and the joint Australian-American force for whom paratroopers the following day seized a long-unused airfield in the Markham River valley northwest of Lae.

The first group, having reached the Busu River and established itself on the western bank, four miles from the heart of Lae, was challenged yesterday by Japanese patrols.

"A weak enemy counter-attack on our lower bridgehead across the river was easily repulsed," the communique said, and the advance continued.

Northwest Force Advances

Simultaneously, the Allied force on the northwest, constantly strengthened by airborne reserves, reached a point along the Markham River eight miles from Lae in its closest approach yet to that Japanese base. Here, too, there was skirmishing with the Japanese defenders.

"Our western forces have developed contact with enemy outpost positions in the vicinity of Heath's (plantation)," the communique said.

On guard against any attempt by the enemy to reinforce his beleaguered garrisons by sea, Allied light naval craft—possibly torpedo boats—caught four barges off Blucher Point, some seventy-five miles east of Lae. Three were sunk and the other damaged. Japanese bombers and shore guns tried to break up the attack, the communique said, but without effect.

The offensive against the Salamaua airfield, now successfully concluded, followed the same pattern of closely linked ground and air effort which has marked most of the Allied victories in the south and southwest Pacific.

Airfield Bombed

While General MacArthur's jungle fighters inched their way through a rugged wilderness toward the prize objective Allied airmen poured hundreds of tons of bombs and thousands of rounds of machine-gun and cannon fire on the airfield and its defenses.

The direct assault began with the landing of American troops at Nassau Bay, ten miles to the south, June 30. The enemy's outlying bastions were reduced one by one until Allied troops rimmed the southern approaches of the airdrome itself.

Even then progress continued at a snail's pace, and another three weeks passed before the enemy was permanently dislodged.

That was Saturday. The Japanese were driven from their final ridge positions guarding the field and they retreated in panic.

Yesterday the Allies took possession.

In the Solomon Islands theater, to the east, planes of Admiral William F. Halsey jr.'s South Pacific command attacked three Japanese cargo ships off Buka, at the extreme northwestern end of the island chain, the communique said.

Off Cape St. George, at the southern extremity of New Ireland, a Catalina Patrol Bomber on reconnaissance set fire to a 3,000-ton enemy freighter and another smaller merchant ship.

In another air action long-range Allied fighters struck in daylight 300 miles northward across the Timor Sea from Darwin, Australia, to attack the airfield and surrounding villages on Selaru Island in the Tanimbar group. Numerous fires were started among vehicles, supplies and troop centers, the communique said, and an enemy coastal vessel was sunk.

Lieutenant General George C. Kenney's air forces also bombed and machine-gunned bivouac areas on Garove Island, off the north coast of New Britain, bombed the Cape Gloucester airdrome on New Britain itself and sank or damaged four enemy barges near by and raided a convoy of three Japanese cargo ships off Wewak, northern New Guinea. The results of the last attack, the communique said, were not observed.

American air power in the Solomons continued its steady pounding of enemy supply lines and troop concentrations. Besides the attack on the merchant vessels off Buka, which the communique said resulted in explosions and fires, raids were made by patrol planes—fighter-escorted medium and dive-bombers—along the coast of Vella Lavella and Kolombangara Islands, to the southeast.

The patrol units sank nine of twelve enemy barges encountered and damaged the others.

The bombers, in addition to bombing and strafing barge hideouts near Dulo Cover, Kolombangara, also attacked Japanese bivouacs in the same area, "causing explosions and fires."

ALLIES NOW HOLD ENTIRE ITALY TOE, HEEL SEALED OFF

Port Facilities at Strategic Adriatic Harbor Are Found Undamaged.

U.S. TROOPS PASS CRISIS

Beachheads Firmly Established, Reserves Speeded, Says Fifth Army.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 12—(AP) Swift-striking British troops have seized the strategic Adriatic port of Brindisi and also captured Catanzaro to over-run all the Italian toe, while the Allied Fifth army has punched into the Naples-Salerno area in grim, bloody battle against Nazi armor, it was announced today.

Fall of Brindisi on the east coast in a quick, 40-mile overland smash from Taranto sealed off the Italian heel and apparently put at least 10 vital airfields in Allied hands. Virtually the whole "boot" was in Allied control.

(Radio France at Algiers said Bari, 65 miles above Brindisi also had been occupied. These two ports were Italian springboards for the 1939 invasion of Albania, and the Allied capture of Brindisi placed Allied forces in a position for a possible invasion of the Balkans.)

Allied Crisis Past

Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army of U. S. and British troops drove deeper inland in the Salerno area despite fierce German opposition, headquarters declared, and cautious officers indicated the greatest crisis of this daring landing was past, with beachheads now "firmly established."

Fifth army reinforcements are coming ashore "ahead of schedule," headquarters said.

British units also were fanning out north and northeast of Taranto, meeting elements of the German First parachute division.

British-Canadians of the Eighth army surged steadily northward on the toe along a 30-mile front to seize both the communications center of Catanzaro, 80 miles northeast of Reggio Calabria, and Lamezia. At last reports they held a line from a point immediately north of Lamezia on the west coastal highway due east passing just north of Catanzaro to the east coast road.

Abundant evidence indicated the Germans had abandoned hope of holding any ground in extreme southern Italy, and were rushing troops in that sector northward and westward to the all-important battle of the Salerno-Naples area.

Allied airmen reported heavy troop and vehicle movements from Corleto, coming presumably from the Taranto area where the Nazis had armored units, and northward from other points.

(The Morocco radio said the Eighth army was chalking up daily gains of 24 miles.)

Mines Only Hindrance

Mines and demolitions were the only real hindrance to the British advance.

Evidently staking everything on preventing expansion of the Fifth army zone in the Naples-Salerno region, the Germans threw in large forces of bombers and fighters.

Allied pilots met as many as 120 enemy planes and bitter dogfights swirled overhead, with nine Germans knocked down there and seven others destroyed elsewhere during the day against total Allied loss of seven planes.

Heavy aerial assaults to isolate German armored forces opposing the Fifth army continued with day-long bombing of rail lines and highways, and attacks on enemy motor convoys.

Italian sabotage, unrest and passive opposition doubtless tied up a large portion of Hitler's army in Italy that otherwise could be thrown against the Allies near Naples.

The punishing Allied air assault battered the Frosinone airdrome 48 miles southeast of Rome last night and hit targets near and below Naples, and Liberators from the Middle East bombed road junctions and rail yards at Potenza 55 miles east of Salerno Friday night.

Beaufighters of the Middle East pounded the Maritza airdrome on German-occupied Rhodes Saturday, and Wellingtons followed up last night blasting the airfields at Calatto on the same strategic island in the Dodecanese off Turkey.

Enemy radio reports told of German railroad workers pouring through the Brenner pass to take over operation of Italian railroads—a sign that transportation in the Reich itself would be further strained in order to rush troops into Italy.

Docks Undamaged

Brindisi's excellent dock facilities were found undamaged, it was announced. British and American warships steaming into Taranto also found that naval base in full working order.

Meanwhile, more Italian warships and merchant vessels continued to reach Allied Mediterranean ports. In addition to four battleships, and six cruisers finding haven at Malta, naval authorities announced arrival there of at least eight destroyers and at least 14 submarines, with many more possibly enroute.

Groups of Italian merchant ships have been shepherded to safety, and authorities expressed satisfaction with Italian seamen's efforts to comply with armistice terms and keep the vessels from the Germans.

A considerable portion of Italy's merchant fleet, however, including the Rex, Conte di Savoia and other big liners, is usually berthed at Genoa, now in German hands.

The drive from Taranto to Brindisi presumably took the British through Grottaglie, one of the most important airfields of southern Italy some nine miles from Taranto. The field is 1,700 by 1,000 feet.

Valuable for Foggia Raids

This and several other airfields in the Taranto area could give Allied airmen bases for attacks upon Foggia only 100 miles away, where a system of 12 satellite fields serves as a vital German warplane operational center.

At least nine other good airfields apparently were brought within the area of Allied control. At Gioia 30 miles northwest of Taranto is a vital airbase used by the Italians for long-range and torpedo bombers.

Vibo Valentia, within the area seized by the Eighth army march, also has an excellent airfield.

An Allied statement noted the importance of Monte Corvino airfield nine miles southeast of Allied-held Salerno. There is another airdrome at Battipaglia also about nine miles from Salerno. The most important airbases in the Naples area, however, are north of that city and so well out of immediate range of the invasion forces.

German Version

A Berlin broadcast said the situation was "stationary" near Salerno, with strong British armored attacks north and west of the town repulsed.

South of Salerno, German formations are "engaged in hard defense struggles against American landing troops which were considerably reinforced during the first two nights," it added.

The German communique said Nazi planes had destroyed a cruiser and two transports near Salerno, and hit a large warship and eighteen merchantmen.

Berlin Hints Mussolini Will Lead Fascists-in-Exile Government.

SUPPORT IS SOUGHT

Nazi Radio Appeals to Italian Troops to Join Forces with Germans.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(AP) Adolf Hitler's headquarters declared tonight that a daring raid by German parachute troopers, Security Service agents and armed members of the S.S., had freed Benito Mussolini from Italian guards and that the ex-premier of Italy was "now at liberty."

A communique broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press told of the delivery, but gave no indication of where Mussolini now was or where he had been found.

"German parachute troops and men of the Security Service and of the armed S.S. carried out an operation Sunday for the liberation of the Duce, who has been held prisoner by the traitor clique," it said. 'The Duce is now at liberty. His surrender to the Anglo-Americans, agreed upon by the Badoglio government, thus has been frustrated."

The announcement came two days after Adolf Hitler, in his first speech in six months, highly praised Mussolini and condemned as traitors the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio which signed an armistice with the Allies without notifying Germany.

Mussolini has been reported held in many parts of Italy and a Reuters dispatch Thursday said he had been taken to North Africa for delivery to the Allies. None of these advices and rumors was officially confirmed.

The Germans have recently announced the formation of a kind of government-in-exile in Germany called the "National Fascist government", headed by Roberto Farinacci, a former Fascist party secretary who escaped to Germany after the fall of Mussolini, July 25.

Mussolini is among the war criminals which Allied leaders have promised will be brought to trial.

Armistice Ignored Duce

Terms of the armistice, made public by Allied headquarters last night, made no mention of handing over Mussolini. It was said that political terms would be presented to the Italians later.

Germany, meanwhile, was raising cries of Italian treachery as the terms of the armistice were announced and the bulk of the Italian fleet slipped from German hands.

In London it was generally conceded that the seizure of Mussolini was a daring accomplishment without historic parallel.

After broadcast of the communique the German radio fell silent, which occasioned some wonder here as it was expected Nazi propaganda would make immediate use of the coup.

The German radio said last week that Mussolini had been kidnaped by Italian Carabinieri at the Italian Royal palace after his final talk with the King in July and was taken to their barracks in an ambulance.

Hitler's communique was broadcast in Italy by the Nazi-controlled Rome radio.

Like Victory Claim

Trumpet fanfares such as the Germans usually reserve for claims of military victories accompanied the initial broadcast.

The German-controlled Paris radio commented:

"Mussolini is now free to take Italy in hand again and lead her along the road from which Badoglio tried to make her swerve, free to take vengeance for insults which have soiled the Italian fleet, free at last to take a stand again with his army on the European side. Italy has again found her leader."

Nazis Decry Surrender Terms

LONDON, Sept. 12 (AP).—Referring to terms of the Italian armistice, made public last night, the German radio cried today that "the treachery is now complete."

Quoting an article headlined by the Berlin "Montagspost" as "the thirteen points of shame," it said Badoglio's fate was "a telling example of what a treacherous nation has to expect.

"These thirteen points go much farther than warranted by mere capitulation," it continued. "They are nothing but a program of complete annilation, unique in the history of the world."

ITALY'S TRUCE PLEAS BEGAN LAST MONTH

Actual Terms Laid Down At Secret Lisbon Parley, London Discloses

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 12—Italian diplomats petitioned British representatives in two neutral countries for an armistice in the first week of August, and the actual terms were laid down in Lisbon conferences, according to an authoritative account today of secret negotiations leading to Italy's surrender.

The Lisbon conferences were presided over by Sir Ronald Hugh Campbell, British Ambassador to Portugal, the account stated. It added that the armistice itself was signed by the American Maj. Gen. Bedell Smith, for the Allies and General Castellano for the Italians in the presence of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and General Sir Harold Alexander.

Russia Kept Informed

The Soviet and Dominion governments were kept informed of the proceedings from the beginning, the account made public here related.

It gave this picture of events leading to the Italian capitulation:

The story began when unnamed Italian emissaries, declaring they were sent by Marshal Pietro Badoglio to discuss terms of a possible armistice, consulted British representatives in two unnamed countries.

Both pictured the situation in Italy as desperate, but they were informed that the only acceptable terms were unconditional surrender.

General Reaches Lisbon

In the middle of August an unnamed Italian general—traveling to Portugal ostensibly on another mission, presented himself to the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald, at Lisbon the next day.

This Italian said he had full authority from the Badoglio Government to state that when the Allies landed in Italy the Italians would join with them.

This was reported to the British Government, which informed the United States Government. General Eisenhower said the Soviet Government was advised at the same time.

Americans Arrive

High officers of General Eisenhowers' staff went to Lisbon where meetings took place attended also by the American charge d'affaires. The Italian general returned to Rome shortly afterward, bearing the Allied conditions, which were confined to military terms only, with a final clause stating that political, economic and financial terms were to be communicated later.

The Italian officer, presumably owing to the secret nature of his journey, took considerable time on the return trip. The Italian Government, concerned over his delay, sent another general, also unidentified, who arrived in Lisbon on the day which, it was subsequently learned, coincided with the arrival of the first general in Rome.

Evidence Of Sincerity

As evidence of their sincerity, the Italians sent with this second general the British General Carton De Wiart, who had been an Italian prisoner of war, but was released for this purpose.

De Wiart, under no obligation to return to Italy, was instructed by the British Government to go to England, where his arrival was kept secret until after the armistice was proclaimed, lest the Germans learn of the negotiations.

Noting that Count Dino Grandi, former Italian Ambassador to Britain, arrived apparently by coincidence in Lisbon while the negotiations were in progress, the account stated emphatically that at no time did any Allied authority have contact with Grandi, whose journey to the neutral country was made solely on his own initiative. It was not stated whether Grandi's present whereabouts were known.

Allies Prove Superior As Luftwaffe Throws In New Strength

SEP 1 - 1943 EDKENNEDY

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 12—Fierce battles raged in the skies over the Naples area yesterday as the Luftwaffe apparently drew on its home forces to throw greatly increased air strength into an effort to hold back the Allied drive.

The Allied forces still remained superior, however, shooting down nine enemy fighters and downing some German flying boats to bring the day's bag to sixteen against seven Allied planes reported missing.

Air Bases On Rhodes Bombed

An Allied Middle East communique announced that German air facilities on the island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese were blasted in two attacks yesterday. The Maritza airdrome was bombed in daylight, the communique reported, and a second attack on air facilities at Calatto was carried out at night.

About 120 enemy fighters were thrown into combat over Salerno, flying in waves of from six to sixteen in attempts to harass the ground troops. Several battles took place in the sight of soldiers who cheered the British and American airmen as an enemy plane plunged in flames.

A formation of twelve American Lightnings intercepted twice that number of Messerschmitts over the invasion beaches at Salerno and in a ten to fifteen-minute dogfight five of the German planes were destroyed without loss to the Americans.

Flew In Tight Circle

"We just flew in a tight circle and the Messerschmitts attacked us in pairs," said Lieut. Gerald L. Rounds, of Fenton, Mich., who commanded the Americans and bagged his fifth Messerschmitt.

"We just kept knocking them down and finally they quit."

It was Rounds' seventy-second mission. He declined a chance to go home after having completed his fiftieth.

At the close of the day, Vice-Admiral H. K. Hewitt, Allied naval commander in the area, sent this message: "Well done, fighters."

The Lightning alone flew over 300 sorties.

Shoot Up Enemy Trucks

British and American fighters shot up one hundred enemy trucks during the day and strafed enemy planes on the ground, destroying six at one airfield. Spitfires, Warhawks, Kittyhawks and Lightnings furnished a protective umbrella for the strafing fighters which sped along to the targets at low altitude.

Heavy and medium bombers of the strategic air force were concentrated on targets within fifty miles of the Salerno battle area, cutting communications to hold up enemy supplies.

American and British South African tactical bombers continued hammering the roads leading to the battle area with heavy attacks on Corleto, Auletta and Potenza.

Corleto, forty miles from the Gulf of Taranto and twenty-three miles southeast of Potenza, lies on a junction of roads feeding the main arterial highway across the Italian boot from the west to Bari and northwest to Naples.

Town Seemed To Crumble

"We saw enemy vehicles streaming out of Corleto as we neared the target. After we bombed, the town seemed to crumble and debris completely blocked the road," said Technical Sergeant D. Prillo, of Milford, Mass., who flew with the Mitchells which dropped thirty-eight tons of bombs on the place.

Auletta, thirty-six miles south of Salerno, is a vital link in communications between Salerno and Bari.

Allied air activity also extended out over Sardinia and Corsica. A Liberator on coast patrol off Corsica destroyed three Dornier flying boats, while American Warhawks made a fighter sweep over southern Sardinia without incident.

British and Canadian Wellingtons paid a night visit to the Frosinone airfield between Rome and Naples.

Panzer Tactics Inept, Yanks At Salerno Find

Nazis Thought Americans Would Break, Or They Were "Just Plain Greenhorns," U. S. Officer Says

By RELMAN MORIN

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Assault Forces, Sept. 9 (Delayed)—American troops collided head-on with a German armored division when they landed near Salerno today but the Yanks fought off and beat the Nazis.

The German division was fully equipped with Mark-4 and Mark-6 tanks and supported by a powerful concentration of artillery concealed in the foothills and high ground overlooking the shore where the landing was made.

Before 10 o'clock this morning, however, some of the German tanks already had been knocked out of action. Some of them dotted the Italian tomato fields with flames still licking their broken skeletons.

Nazi Dead Lie About

German dead, horribly burned, were lying all about the twisted and blackened hulks.

The remainder of the Germans fell back into the foothills with the Yanks in close pursuit.

American experts who witnessed the battle between the Yank anti-tank crews and the on-rushing Nazi tanks expressed surprise over the inept and almost amateurish tactics the Germans employed.

They approached in an orthodox manner, using a grove for cover, but then charged straight across an open field toward the American gunners.

"Just Plain Greenhorns"

"The range was very short and they may have thought our men would break," an officer said. "Either that, or they are just plain greenhorns."

Most of the Nazi prisoners taken were hardly more than boys, but a few were tough, hard and battle-wise veterans.

All were silent and unfriendly, with what Americans would describe as a "nuts-to-everything" attitude.

The American troops who landed in strength in the Salerno area had heard only a few hours before of the Italian armistice.

Assault A Bloody One

It was a bloody and bitterly contested assault. We headed for shore during the last hour of morning darkness. The first wave landed (C[illegible]r scattered fire from shore batteries and German 88s, but encountered no great beach resistance.

The second and third assault waves, however, ran into a withering fire from machine guns and mortars that shelled the assault barges over the last 1,000 yards of water. Meanwhile, the first wave had been pinned down on the beach.

There absolutely was no surprise.

Warships Open Up

The warships, which had held their fire through the hours of darkness, opened up and a roaring artillery duel developed. The German infantry fell back.

With daylight, however, the real ordeal for the American troops began. German 88s began shelling the beaches from foothills overlooking the shore, and they held their positions despite a murderous barrage from the warships.

Doughboys stormed well-constructed, pattern-fire trenches. Diaries taken from German dead showed they had occupied these positions September 6, two days before the Italian armistice was announced. The Germans had replaced Italians in key positions.

Unloading Retarded

The unloading of artillery, tanks and supplies was greatly retarded by the German shell fire. I was huddled in a fox hole for two hours while German shells pounded up and down the beaches. Messerschmitts penetrated the anti-aircraft fire once, bombing the ships and strafing the beaches.

Meanwhile, a large-scale tank battle began developing within a mile of the beach. The Americans, by a lucky accident, were just bringing the anti-tank guns up the road near Paestrum when Lieut. Col. Robert M. Ives, of Houston, Texas, spotted a German tank brigade approaching.

Colonel Gives Alarm

Ives, who had advanced well ahead of our troops, gave the alarm. At almost point-bank range the doughboy gunners and German tank men shot it out. The Americans knocked out most of a group of ten tanks and dispersed thirteen more in a second assault. They account-e for some more tanks during the day.

American artillery, at a late hour today, still was shelling the Germans, who have retired into the mountains. The Nazis still were replying occasionally and Messerschmitts still were coming over the beaches.

The Americans suffered casualties, but these were not considered excessive in view of the size of the operation and the serious character of the opposition.

Nazis Massing Tanks and Men Near Salerno

May Be Mounting Heavy Attack or Trying to Aid Escape of Force in South

By Relman Morin

For the Combined American Press

Distributed by The United Press

WITH AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCES IN ITALY, Sept. 11 (Delayed). — American forces have rolled back the Germans along the whole front south and west of the Gulf of Salerno, slowly increasing their bridgehead to nearly double its depth within the last twenty-four hours.

The Germans are moving large forces into an area west of the main American position, probably presaging a concerted counter-attack.

German tanks, artillery and mechanized infantry are entering the area, but it is not clear whether the Germans intend merely to hold a strong line there in order to permit their forces farther south to escape from the 8th Army front or whether they are preparing a big push against the Americans.

The main highway between the southern extremity of the Gulf of Salerno as far as the Sele River, which enters the sea about eighteen miles south of Salerno, now is completely under American control. One bridge was knocked out, but not too seriously to prevent an infantry crossing, and engineers are rapidly restoring it.

Between there and Salerno, German 88's still are shelling the highway.

Battipaglia (twelve miles southeast of Salerno) has changed hands several times since the British first stormed inside the city late yesterday, and the situation is fluid around the town. Heavily armed American combat teams are moving into the area in support of the British. Salerno still is solidly in British hands.

Supplies Pour Ashore

Meanwhile, an enormous volume of American tanks, guns and transports of all types is still pouring ashore from a huge supply armada, and there is general confidence in our ability to withstand the expected counter-attack.

German fighter bombers still are raiding the area heavily, particularly at night.

32 OF ITALIAN SHIPS AT PORT

Allied Officers Believe Others Are On Way To Surrender

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 12—At least eight Italian destroyers and fourteen submarines have arrived at Malta to increase the number of Italian warships now in Allied hands to thirty-two, naval authorities announced today, and other units of Italy's war and merchant fleets were expected momentarily at Allied Mediterranean ports.

Groups of Italian merchant ships already have been shepherded into Allied ports and naval authorities at Allied headquarters expressed satisfaction with the efforts of Italian sailors and seamen to comply with the terms of the armistice and keep the vessels from falling into German hands.

Big Liners Usually At Genoa

A considerable portion of Italy's still extensive merchant fleet, however, including the Rex, the Conte di Savoia and other big liners, usually is berthed at Genoa which already is under German control.

Units of the surrendered Italian battle fleet anchored safely off the British island of Malta and waiting to be turned against the enemy now includes four battleships, six cruisers, at least eight destroyers and at least fourteen submarines.

Others were believed to be fleeing from their Italian bases, running the gantlet of German bombers which already have sunk the 35,000-ton Roma.

[Dispatches from Valletta, said Admiral Badliria, commander of the Italian fleet, went down with the Roma, his flagship.]

Don't Know How Many More

"We don't know exactly how many more may be showing up safely," said one naval source here. "The Italian fleet today is like a dog's breakfast—scattered everywhere in bits and pieces."

[Swiss dispatches quoted a private report from Spain as saying that two of the seven Italian warships which yesterday reached the Balearic Islands departed last night. A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted that two of three Italian torpedo boats in a flotilla arriving at the Balearic ports had been scuttled.]

The whereabouts of most of Italy's submarine fleet, believed to number fifty to sixty, remined a mystery. Some Italian submarines had been operating in the Atlantic but it was not known here whether they are still there.

(Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of the Allied fleet in the Mediterranean, told Clark Lee, correspondent representing the combined American press, that the Italian ships which arrived at Malta Saturday "are in good order, absolutely first class, especially the battleships and new cruisers."

(James Wellard, another correspondent representing the combined American press, wrote Sunday that none of the first 17 Italian warships to reach Malta was damaged in any way by the Nazi bombing which sank the Roma. "All the ships are in excellent condition and are ready for immediate battle service," Mr. Wellard wrote.)

Leaves Allied Fleet Free

The surrender of the major portion of the Italian fleet, whose officers and men from the start of the war were even more lukewarm to the Germans than the Italian army and seldom allowed German officers aboard their warships, leaves Allied naval forces completely to themselves in carrying on vital transport for the war in Italy.

They still could be attacked by German air power or occasional submarines that might slip past the Gibraltar nets but on the surface Italy's Mare Nostrum was an Allied lake.

11 Warships Of Italian Fleet 'Lost' From British Escort For Half Hour

Craft "Zigged" When They Should Have "Zagged," According To American Witness Of Surrender

By CLARK LEE

[American War Correspondent]

With the British Mediterranean Fleet, Sept. 11 (Delayed) (AP)—Eleven Italian warships were "lost" for a half-hour while en route to Malta under British escort, it was disclosed today by the only American witness to the historic surrender of the main Italian battle force in the Mediterranean.

Following in the wake of the British force, two Italian battleships, the Vittorio Veneto and Italia, and five cruisers and four destroyers "zigged" at 3 A. M. Friday morning when they should have "zagged," and lost sight of the guardian British ships.

Temporary Consternation

Their disappearance caused temporary consternation aboard the Italian ships, but they were not lost so far as their Royal Navy escort was concerned.

The speedier Italians could have run away if they desired, but a half-hour later the Italians found their escort and followed the British into Valletta harbor in Malta where tney anchored today with other ships which arrived from Taranto.

En route to Malta are the Oreone, Libra, Porta Mahon, Mitragliere and Regolo. This latter group sailed from La Spezia with the others, but put into Mallorca to land wounded survivors of the battleship Roma, sunk by German bombers off Sardinia by an explosion in her magazine.

Surrender Off Cape Bon

The Italia was damaged in the same attack but reached Malta drawing thirty-seven feet of water.

Surrender of the main Italian force from La Spezia took place at 8.35 A. M. Friday, off Cape Bon, where a British battle unit commanded by a rear admiral aboard the Warspite awaited the Italians in accordance with armistice arrangements. On the Warspite's bridge was Commander Harry C. Butcher, USN, of Washington, former vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System and aide to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, whom he was representing.

The Warspite, the Valiant and five British destroyers had been escorting a carrier, whose planes assisted in covering our landing near Naples when they received word Thursday afternoon to proceed on a secret mission, whose nature only Butcher knew until the British admiral received a message from Admiral Sir Arthur Browne Cunningham to proceed to the appointed spot.

Late Thursday the news of the Italian surrender was heard below decks on the Warspite, and a sailor ran to the bridge, shouting to the admiral:

"The Eyeties 'ave chucked their 'and in, sir!"

Admiral Informs Crew

Thereafter, the Admiral informed the crew of the Warspite's mission over an American public address system installed at Bremerton Navy Yard where the Warspite was repaired after being heavily damaged by German bombs in the battle of Crete.

Throughout the trip to meet the Italians, the crew of the Warspite insisted on pointing out to Butcher the American parts of their ship, including deck planking and furniture in the warrant officers' mess, saying, "the Yanks are in on this party, too, because this is partly an American ship."

Two Submarines Surface

En route to their appointment, the Warspite's officers received word that two Italian submarines had surfaced within sixteen miles of them, and quickly flashed word not to bomb the vessels, which were surrendering.

Few slept aboard the Warspite Thursday night as the British force sped toward the rendezvous. The crew passed the time recalling high points in the battles in the Mediterranean, remembering friends and relatives killed, and eagerly anticipating the meeting wondering whether the Italians would try any tricks.

The crew discussed the results of the Italian surrender, anticipating getting a crack at the Japanese in the near future, or being assigned to slug it out with the German warships Tirpitz and Scharnhorst.

The following morning, lookouts spotted the Italian vessels, minus the Roma, and glasses picked up the black surrender flag. The admiral sent the entire crew to battle stations, and trained his guns on the Italians, but contrary to custom allowed the crews to man the guns in tropical white shorts instead of flash suits usually donned before going into action.

Butcher said: "The admiral let the Italians come ahead to within two or three miles of the North African coast. It was a tense moment with our guns trained on the ships which the British had waited so long to see, and everybody wondering what they would do.

British Are Calm

"There was no ceremony and no greetings except the hoisting of signal flags instructing the Italians to line up behind us. The admiral debated whether to place some ships behind the Italians to keep them from escaping, but decided not to do so, inasmuch as they had kept their agreement.

"It would have been against British tradition to show emotion, and nobody did except to remark in low voices, 'Jolly good show. Pretty sight, that'.

"The admiral's reaction was to ask me to mail a letter for him, saying, 'I want my wife and four daughters to know about this'."

Two British officers, Captain T. M. Brownrigg and Lieutenant Seth Smith, boarded a launch and headed for the cruiser Savoia, flagship of Admiral Romulo Olivia, senior officer with the Italians after the death of the commander of the entire fleet aboard the Roma.

Brownrigg and Smith were greeted with the utmost formal courtesy, and learned that the Italians had put out from La Spezia at exactly 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, the hour the armistice was announced, and succeeded in sailing under the noses of the surprised Germans.

The Italians apologized for the lack of fresh fruit aboard, but gave Brownrigg and Smith the best meal they had had in many months, including rare roast beef and three other courses served by a waiter in a wing collar in the admiral's luxurious dining room. The English officers' quarters included tiled bathrooms to each cabin.

The dinner conversation centered on out-of-the-way places such as China naval stations, scrupulously avoiding the war or the future, except for expressions of hatred for the Germans, especially for the sinking of the Roma.

But one Italian officer couldn't resist remarking: "The Germans make big mistakes. The Italians make little ones, but lots of them. We are not very good at anything."

Junior Officers In Charge

The English officers understood what he meant when after dinner the admiral, his chief of staff and the ship's captain all went off to their cabins to sleep, leaving the bridge in command of junior officers although it was one of the most important nights of their lives.

Brownrigg and Smith took turns on the bridge during the night. The Italians' discipline was apparently perfect, they said.

Arriving at St. Paul's harbor in Malta at 9 A. M. Saturday, following the "lost fleet" incident, the Admiral signaled the battleships Vittorio Veneto and Italia and the cruiser Savoia to steam past the British ships. Boatswains sounded pipes and the crew of the Warspite stood at attention while the Italians returned the courtesy, their blue uniforms and red life-jackets making a sprightly picture.

Tied Up Without Guards

"And their boatswains pipes," Butcher reported, "had trills in 'em."

Afterward the ships proceeded to Valletta and tied up without guards, except for their own sentries, but the crews were denied shore leave because of possible incidents with Malta citizens angered over months of Italian air raids.

In the afternoon, the senior Italian admiral was brought ashore at the custom house and driven through the bomb-ruined streets to Admiral Cunningham's headquarters.

OUR FORCES SEE THE FRAY

Lt. Rounds, Who Won Rating of Ace, Forced to Crash His Crippled Craft

AN ADVANCED FIGHTER BASE IN SICILY, Sept. 11 (Delayed) (AP)—Playing to a full house, the entire United States invasion fleet in the Gulf of Salerno, ten tight-lipped American youths flying P-38 Lightnings demonstrated today their supremacy over the German Air Force and their plane's superiority over Germany's best fighter, the Messerschmitt 109.

They slugged it out with more than twice their number, choosing to fight when there was ample time to flee. Out of the resulting maelstrom of planes, which kept ground troops goggle-eyed and seamen breathless for twelve minutes, five fell to earth, all German. Not a single P-38 was lost.

Except for a 24-to-10 edge in strength, the battle was waged on even terms. The planes met at the same altitude, each seeking the other. Performance, fire power, tactics and men dictated the result. The test was one of the best and the victory was one of the most clean-cut of the war.

Lieut. Gerald Rounds of Fenton, Mich., flying his seventy-second consecutive mission over enemy territory without taking time out for a trip home, which is permitted pilots who complete fifty missions, led the formation and bagged one plane, his fifth. In so doing he became an ace.

Others Who Downed Planes

Others who sent Messerschmitts crashing to earth were Lieut. Clarence O. Seltez of Gladwin, Mich., Lieut. William A. Clark of St. Louis, Lieut. Sam McGuffin of Manhattan Beach, Calif., and Flight Officer Vele M. Tilley of Spencer, S. D.

All belong to the Timber Wolves, a hard-hitting squadron in a P-38 group commanded by Lieut. Col. George L. Macnicol of Memphis, Tenn., who was the leader of the recent strafing raid on massed enemy planes at the Foggia airports in Southeastern Italy.

Today's battle took place over a coastal strip thirty-five miles southeast of Naples in full view of scores of American invasion craft. After it was over the ground controller relayed to the pilots a radio message from the naval commander in charge.

"Well done," it said simply.

The P-38s had been completing a patrol over one section of the beach when they were warned of the superior force of oncoming German fighters. The Yankee fliers immediately started in search of them.

Lieutenant Rounds, describing the resulting action, said the Lightnings pulled into "a very tight Lufberry," a defensive circle in which the planes, banking almost vertically, supported each other while whirling around, some one way and some the other.

"The Germans attacked in pairs," the new ace continued, "and some of us would peel off for a minute, fire a few bursts and get back in the Lufberry. They were trying to break us up and every time they came near we really worked them over. We had to stay there and fight but we weren't worrying about it because we had full gas tanks, more than they had. Our belly tanks, used while on patrol, were dropped the minute we started off to attack.

"They dropped off, one by one, and after about ten minutes, when they had lost five, they decided they had enough and started for home. We let them go."

Rounds Forced to Crash

The hydraulic system for the landing gear was shot out of his plane so Lieutenant Rounds slid to a perfect crash landing on reaching the home field. A mechanic in the ground crew, telling of the crash landing, said:

"He just called down and said, 'I sure hate to do this.' Then he peeled off as if nothing was wrong and came in. The plane stopped in 100 yards. Besides bent propellors it doesn't seem to be damaged at all."

The nine other airmen in the fight felt that it demonstrated conclusively that a P-38's ability to turn inside a German opponent and better gun mounts and fire power made it a markedly superior plane.

"Initially the Messerschmitt is faster and more maneuverable," Lieutenant Clark said. "But other things are more important. Today's results show how much."

Hard Fight Won U. S. Foothold In Naples Area

O'Reilly Tells How 5th Army Found Nazis Waiting, but Blasted Its Way Inland

WITH ALLIED INVASION FORCES IN ITALY, Sept. 9 (Delayed).— The first American troops to land on the European mainland established a beachhead in the Naples area simultaneously with the British this morning and fought their way a few miles inland, despite the fact that the Germans were waiting for them with all the forces they could muster.

The Americans stormed the beach at 3:30 o'clock to find that the Germans had moved in the day before, built machine-gun emplacements along the beaches, placed artillery at the foot of the hills and moved up tanks. All the opposition was German. The Germans had removed the Italians from the area the day before.

Despite the delays caused by mines placed offshore, the Americans swarmed ashore over a smooth sea and mopped up the machine guns on the beach. The landing was slowed by German 88-millimeter guns, which shelled the beach.

This correspondent, accompanying the assault troops, watched them dig into the sand dunes and then gradually move forward, cleaning out German positions as they went.

The Americans then moved inland. Fanning northward, the Americans got their artillery in position just in time to repulse a German tank attack at 11:20 a. m., knocking out a few tanks. A second tank attack was thrown back at 1 p. m.

Tanks also were attacking the American southern flank, but at nightfall all the tanks had withdrawn for the time being. About thirty-five tanks were met in these attacks, and the Americans destroyed several.

Battles against tanks are continuing as the Americans steadily increase their bridgehead.

Aboard the ship which brought this cocrrespondent all the troops were informed the night before the landing of the Italian surrender, but were warned that it was impossible to tell what effect it would have, that the Germans were there in force and that the invasion would be carried out according to plan.

Nevertheless, the news was so startling to the soldiers, already keyed up, that many felt the attack would be easy. Some thought the news took the edge off the honor of being the first American troops to land in Europe in this war.

Whatever feelings some might have had along this line were corrected by the hail of machine-gun bullets and artillery fire directed at them on their way to the beach.

The sea was almost a flat calm and the pre-dawn air was cool as the waves of invasion craft left their mother ships and headed toward the beach. The troops dashed across the beach and knocked out German machine-gun emplacements built of sandbags and logs. New sandbags and freshly cut camouflage indicated the emplacements had been built the day before. This was later verified by Italian civilians.

Once across the beach, the soldiers scooped holes in the sand dunes. Each time they moved forward they had to dig more foxholes.

Dawn revealed a flat, cultivated plain cut by irrigation canals and leading to a village of stone houses. A massive stone wall encircled the town, with a few houses outside the wall.

On the way across this plain the Americans had to crawl through muddy ditches and otherwise take cover from the German 88 shells falling among us.

The Germans were driven out, but still the Nazi artillery dominated the area from the high hills beyond. American artillery dueled with the Nazi guns as the troops moved inland and began the task of driving the Germans out of their artillery emplacements on the slopes.

The Americans had no sooner got their artillery and guns astride the road to the north when a force of ten German tanks moved in on them. For some reason they deployed into an orchard and stopped. In a short, brisk battle some were knocked out and the rest retreated northward. Two tanks were knocked out in the second attack and more in the attack on the flank.

American casualties in seizing the beachhead were not large considering the opposition.

The scene at dawn was a perfect view of amphibious warfare at that crucial moment when a beachhead is being seized. The great fleet was barely visible through the haze. Wave after wave of small landing craft churned the blue water into white foam. Bursting enemy shells sent up geysers of sand or water. An Allied fighter plane crashed on the beach. A Warhawk pilot bailed out and his smoking plane crashed into the sea.

An irrigation ditch with two feet of water was full of creeping soldiers seeking the protection of its banks. At one point a group of soldiers were persuading a young private who had lost his gun in the landing to use the rifle of a friend of his who had just been killed.

High above, patrolling Allied fighter planes crisscrossed the area. Stretcher bearers crouched as they carried the wounded back to the beach and put them aboard returning assault boats. The driver of an amphibious truck struggled desperately to move his vehicle stuck atop a sand dune.

All this took place among green fields and orchards along little winding roads and among the ruined houses of the village.

Bitter Struggle For Italy Seen By Eisenhower

Groundwork for Ejection of Nazis Helped by Fleet's Surrender, He Asserts

By Clark Lee

WITH GENERAL EISENHOWER AT ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 11 (Delayed).—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief in this war theater, stated today that the Allies face "a bitter battle" to drive the Germans out of Italy even after the unconditional surrender of the Rome government.

"Developments of the past few weeks have placed the United Nations in a more favorable position from which to begin the bitter battle for Italy," he said, referring to the armistice, the surrender of the Italian fleet and Allied landings in Italy.

The battle is progressing about as expected, he added. The Allies are working feverishly to pour additional men and ammunition into the Italian beachheads and to place in operation the captured airfields.

It is obvious that, because the Germans now hold Rome and other key cities, many of the armistice terms cannot be enforced by Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, whose whereabouts have not been announced.

However, the most important military objective of the Italian armistice has already been accomplished—the surrender of the Italian fleet, which releases tremendous Allied sea power for action in other parts of the world.

General Eisenhower disclosed that he, Robert D. Murray, American Minister in North Africa, and Harold Macmillan, British Minister in North Africa, witnessed the signing of the armistice.

The Italian air force, or such of it as remains in operation, is unable to escape to Sicily or other Allied-held territory, because airfields in Italy either were held or controlled by the Germans, who took the precaution of splitting the Italians into small units and allowing them only small stocks of gasoline.

Passive Resistance Seen

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 12 (AP)—German and Italian broadcasts heard here today said that reports from Italian areas under occupation indicated that, while the Italians were offering little open military opposition to the Germans, passive resistance was widespread.

A German broadcast admitted that Italian workmen were refusing German demands that they repair bomb-damaged railways. The Germans apparently plan to use all Italians in their possession as laborers, either in the part of Italy they hold or in Germany. Most of the Italians show no signs of being willing laborers.

Although most Italian radio stations now in German hands are silent, one station calling itself Radio Libertà is transmitting clandestinely from northeast Italy. It called on the Italians to reject German demands that the Italians aid them against the Allies. Unrest, passive opposition and sabotage are undoubtedly tying up a large part of the German Army that could otherwise be thrown against the Allies in the Naples area.

MEDICAL MEN LAND AMONG FIRST TROOPS

U. S. Army Hospitals on Italian Soil Are Quickly Ready

WITH UNITED STATES ASSAULT FORCES IN ITALY, Sept. 12—A precision-trained team of American Army doctors and nurses followed only a few minutes behind the first assault waves that landed in Italy and had two fully equipped evacuation hospitals in operation almost before the first wounded were brought back.

It was the first time in the history of any army that the Medical Corps landed with the invasion force.

Surgeons, physicians, medical administrators, X-ray technicians and laboratory administrators, plus hospital-trained enlisted men who acted as nurses during the first day, were sent ashore before dawn.

The landing craft bringing their supplies and equipment took precedence in some instances over guns and ammunition.

Forty women nurses who accompanied the invasion force were scheduled to come ashore in the second wave.

As soon as the beachhead was established, landing craft began unloading the Medical Corps' supplies at a designated point. From there they were taken a short distance inland. The first rays of the sun showed the two clusters of tents rising, one capable of accommodating 800 beds and the other 400.

"There won't be a single American soldier without medical attention except during the time it takes to find him and bring him in," said Lieut. Col. Paul K. Sauer, commanding officre of one of the evacuation hospitals.

ITALIAN SURRENDER CHEERED IN MALTA

Population Parades to Celebrate Capitulation and Transfer of Country's Fleet

SHIPS DUE TO LEAVE SOON

Anti-Aircraft Guns Are Kept Manned as Former Enemy Vessels Lie in Valletta Port

By JAMES WELLARD

For the Combined United States Press

VALLETTA, Malta, Sept. 12—Malta held a victory celebration this morning at which the capitulation of Italy and the surrender of the Italian Fleet were marked.

The parade was headed by a statue of Our Lady of Victory, carried by four Maltese in white. Bands and a long procession of citizens followed with banners and flags.

An American flag was carried proudly by one of the island's oldest inhabitants, 76-year-old Joseph Galea, a dusky-skinned, white-haired veteran born in Khartum, in the Egyptian Sudan. He came to Malta sixty-six years ago, but spent three years in the United States, from 1924 to 1927, working in an automobile plant at Detroit.

"I am proud to be carrying the Stars and Stripes on this great day," he said, "because the British Empire and the United States are now traveling hand-in-hand. That's what I've always wanted to see."

The procession wound through the narrow, bomb-torn streets up to the government square, where the citizens waited outside Government House for Field Marshal Lord Gort, Commander in Chief of Malta, to make his victory speech.

Italian Ships Expected to Leave

The bulk of the Italian Fleet, which put in here yesterday, is expected to leave Malta shortly. Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Commander in Chief of the Allied Mediterranean Fleet, left last night by plane.

This morning three Italian destroyers steamed into the grand harbor, the first enemy ships to enter for three and a half years. The destroyers are of the latest and fastest type, and British navy men were astonished at their clean, yacht-like lines. They were flying the Cross of St. John from the mainmast, but the Italian flag still fluttered astern.

Italian Admiral Dzara was driven to Admiral Cunningham's office yesterday after the Italian Fleet had arrived. There was nothing stiff or formal in the meeting of the two officers. Salutes were quickly followed by warm handshakes and greetings and the men retired with their aides to the office.

Ship's A. A. Guns Manned

I visited the cruiser Eugenio di Savoia in the harbor. The sleek, clean-cut ship still had steam up and her green, white and red national flag was flying from her mainmast. The crew wore everything from white dress uniforms to shorts, but I noticed that the anti-aircraft guns were manned.

We threw cigarettes to the sailors lining the rail and asked them about Benito Mussolini. They made a significant gesture of cutting a throat. Asked whether they were willing to fight the Germans now, some said that they were but others merely regarded us with a blank stare.

The chaplain, who spoke excellent English, explained that the men were very impolite about the Germans. They had every reason to be, for their vessel was alongside the battleship Roma, which was sunk by the Germans.

There are three things that I shall always remember about that trip to the cruiser. The first was the half grim, half sad look of many of the sailors, who still could not have realized just what had happened to them, to their ship and to their country.

The second was the chaplain's last words. They represented a sad little gesture. As we were pulling away, he leaned over the rail, smiled and said: "Behave yourselves."

The last was the spectacle of a British sailor—one of three who had been put aboard to live among several hundred of their former enemies—standing with his arm about the shoulders of an Italian sailor, taking a puff of his cigarette and then handing it over to the Italian.

British Craft Signals 'Follow Me,' and They Do

Rommel Strengthens Defense

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 12 (AP).—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of German forces in northern Italy, was reported in Berlin dispatches today to have taken urgent steps to strengthen his defenses from the Riviera to the Adriatic following a swift inspection tour.

Trains were declared to be rolling into northern Italy "without interruption" loaded with elite German troops, Black Shirt units and equipment from the Russian front.

Another Berlin dispatch said that German officers from the stalemated Leningrad sector of the far-northern Russian front were being rushed southward.

A Nazi authority said that the situation was "quite serious" for Nazi troops immediately after the Italian capitulation, but declared they had now established control.

Berlin reported "Communistic" disturbances at Milan and Turin, but said that both German and Italian troops had fought the uprising.

...E, Switzerland, Sept. 12 ...man troops were reported ...to be spreading out around ...nodossola, a frontier post ...arding the Italian approach to the Simplon Tunnel, to expand their defensive control in northern Italy.

A German announcement that the Reich's troops had occupied northern points apparently confirmed that they sought to establish a main front along a triangular line extending from Genoa to Trieste with Bologna as the advance post. The German effort to extend control over northern Italy was reported, however, to be developing Italian hatred, especially in Turin. There resistance was said to have taken proportions serious enough to worry Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel, despite the superiority of his forces.

Roman Editorials Shift With Military Situation

By The Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 12—Romans have been reading their newspapers with considerable bewilderment. Before July 25 editorials were pro-Fascist and pro-German. After July 25 they were anti-Fascist but pro-German. After Sept. 8 they were anti-German and pro-United Nations.

Today the newspaper Piccolo said:

"German soldiers appreciate the conditions that forced Italy —her strength of resistance exhausted and in great part destroyed—to abandon the struggle, and will recognize the unhappy necessity of the armistice."

Whether this meant the Germans would find that Italy could not be held against the Allies, or whether they would understand why the Romans wanted peace, was not clear.

NAZI-ITALIAN FIGHTING REPORTED ON RHODES

ISTANBUL, Sept. 12.—(AP) German and Italian troops on the Italian island of Rhodes and in the Greek capital of Athens fought bitterly three days this week after the Italian surrender, an informed neutral said today.

The Italians on Rhodes tried to hold beach and airport positions pending the arrival of Allied naval units but gave in Saturday when aid failed to arrive, he said. The Germans on the island, off the southwest coast of Turkey, were said to number 6,000 and the Italians 20,000.

The result of the reported battle of Athens was not ascertained here, but reports said street fighting between units of the Italian 11th army and the Germans was still in progress Saturday. The fight was said to have begun after the Germans ordered the Italians either to disarm or pledge allegiance to the new German-sponsored Fascist government.

German Appeal To Italians

SEP 11 1943

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—The Germans have appealed to Italian soldiers to join their "German comrades" in the fight against the Allies, promising them they will be "well armed and well paid," the Berlin radio said tonight.

A proclamation, issued by the German high command and broadcast by the Rome radio, was quoted by Berlin as follows:

"Italians! After the war which has lasted more than three years, and in which Italy and Germany have fought shoulder to shoulder, your Government scandalously betrayed the German ally.

"While your comrades fought bravely and your brethren shed their blood in Sicily and Calabria, the Government (of Marshal Badoglio) was already negotiating with the enemy.

No Obligation To Traitors

"This betrayal reached its climax when this Government called the enemy into the country. The enemy will not halt before your most sacred treasures, your families and women. Comrades! It is clear which way you must go. You have no more obligations toward the superiors and toward the government of traitors and toward the oath given to the government of traitors.

"Comrades! Honor compels you that you join us. Go everywhere over to the German troops. Under German command, you will be equipped with the best weapons in the world and will continue to defend your country against the merciless enemy, and to fight for your free and beautiful Italy.

"You will be well armed and well paid. For all Italians there is only one keyword: Depart from the traitors. Come to the German comrades."

Allies Using Cavalry In Italy, Says Berlin

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Without specifying whether it referred to horse or mechanized units, the German high command reported yesterday that Allied troops were using cavalry in the invasion of Italy.

Hard-charging boots-and-saddles detachments have figured largely in Russian campaigning, but have not been disclosed in action on other Allied fronts.

The Sunday German communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said the cavalry was thrown into battle in the "central sector" in Italy. Allied "cavalry and tank forces which had broken through" in strong local attacks "were cut off from their communications," it said.

The communique did not state what the Germans mean by the "central sector." It might be the Salerno-Naples area, where the Fifth army of American and British troops landed, or farther south where the British and Canadians are pushing up the Italian toe and heel.

BRYANSK NOW IMPERILED BY RED ARTILLERY

SEP 11 1943

Advance Puts Soviet Guns Within 12 Miles Of City On East

Swift Gains Made On Other Fronts; 3,700 Nazis Killed

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Sept. 13—Russian troops imperiling Bryansk smashed to within artillery range of that great German base yesterday when they captured the rail station of Belye Berega, only twelve miles to the east, Moscow announced early today.

Soviet big guns now are in a position to shatter the last major hinge connecting the enemy's sagging central and southern fronts.

Calls Resistance Strong

"The Germans put up strong resistance," the communique said of the three-sided attack on Bryansk, "but under the blows of our troops were forced to abandon one position after another."

The Germans lost more than 600 men in one futile counter-attack, it added.

The Red army also was reported to have made swift gains in many other sectors of the long front, killing a total of 3,700 Germans during the day, liberating 4,000 Russian civilians the Germans were herding westward with them, and capturing or destroying 67 tanks, 210 trucks, 62 guns and great stocks of other equipment.

Still slashing westward under skies dominated by the Red Air Force, the Soviet troops were declared to have gained up to eighteen and one half miles and swept up more than 240 villages and rail stations in pursuit of Germans falling back toward the Dnieper river.

Also Menace Roslavl

Roslavl, midway between Bryansk and Smolensk on the central front, also was menaced by a new Soviet drive, the communique disclosed.

Other Russian armies farther south were closing in on Nezhin, only seventy-two miles northeast of Kiev, the Ukraine capital. Moscow dispatches said that Soviet troops already had entered Poltava province just east of the Dnieper river bend after cracking the finest German legions mustered against them between the Psel and Vorskla rivers, north of the city of Poltava.

Red army men pursuing broken German divisions fleeing out of the Donets basin, the communique said, had made the eighteen and a half mile advance the greatest gain of the day, capturing more than fifty localities, including the district center of Stary-Kermenchik, fifty miles southwest of Stalino.

Race To Cut Rail Link

The Donets basin armies were racing for the Kharkov-Crimea railway in an effort to cut that last trunk line east of the Dnieper and trap thousands of German troops anchored in the Crimea and western Caucasus.

The communique recorded by the Soviet monitor said the fresh lunge toward Bryansk gained from three to four miles and resulted in the capture of forty localities.

The units on the north were within forty miles of Bryansk after capturing Bitosh to cut the railway to Vyazma; on the south they were within thirty miles after taking Navlya on lines leading to Konotop and Kharkov.

Two railways remained open to the German garrison at Bryansk, and both were menaced by Russian units converging on the city. The new drive on Roslavl, eighty miles northwest of Bryansk, was aimed at cutting one railway. The other road, runing southwest to Gomel, also was within striking range of the Russians.

Gains Up To Five Miles

The communique said gains up to five miles were made toward Roslavl and sixty towns were captured, but it did not disclose how near the Rusians were to their goal.

In the Ukraine the Russians advanced up to seven miles toward Nezhin and captured more than twenty villages in the push toward Kiev. The Russians apparently were only fifteen miles from Nezhin, whose capture would cut the last railway in that area east of the Dnieper.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star said the Germans were trying to make a last stand before Nezhin, a big farming community, by using a considerable number of tanks, artillery and mortars based along the highways and railways leading into the city, but the Russians were said to have kept hurling back the enemy.

Southwest of Kharkov in the drive on Poltava, the communique reported only a two-mile advance, but front dispatches to the Red Star said the Russians had smashed repeated counter-attacks by German's crack reserves and now were plunging into Poltava province.

15 Miles Beyond Mariupol

On the southern end of the long front the Russian advance toward the Kharkov-Crimea railway and the mouth of the Dnieper river continued after the Red army had solidified its flank on the Sea of Azov at Mariupol.

Although some scattered German units still were reported being mopped up in the cellars and attics of the brick houses in Mariupol, the Red army already was fifteen miles west of the city in its march toward Melitopol, eighty-five miles farther.

MOSCOW, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow formally assumed the post of Patriach of All Russia today in a ceremony at the Moscow Cathedral carried out with the ancient rites and traditions of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Sergei, who has been acting head of the church, was elected patriarch last Thursday by a church congress held with the sanction of the Soviet government.

Members of the congress, headed by the Metropolitan Nikolai of Kiev and the Metropolitan Alexei of Leningrad, received Sergei at the cathedral, divested him of the black monk's robe and clad him in the rich, golden vestments of patriach after reading aloud notice of his election.

SPITSBERGEN'S FATE IS STILL A MYSTERY

1943

Hardships Of Norwegian Garrison Are Told For First Time

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 12—The Norwegian Government in London still waited today for some clue to the fate of the tiny garrison on the Spitsbergen archipelago which was attacked Wednesday by a large German fleet.

Breaking a two-year silence on the garrison manning the islands only 500 miles below the North Pole, the Government revealed that the detachment had signaled the German fleet's approach early Wednesday before lasping into silence.

The Berlin radio, which first announced the attack, said that Nazi forces had wrecked munitions and fuel supplies, inflicted casualties and captured prisoners.

Evacuated In 1941

The Spitsbergen group, safeguard to the northern route to Russia and vital as a source of far-northern weather data, first broke prominently into the war news in September, 1941, when an Allied landing force, spearheaded by Canadians, evacuated the Norwegian and Russian inhabitants.

Acting on reports that Germany planned to occupy the coal-rich Norwegian-owned group, the Allied troops destroyed mines and installations and removed about 1,000 Norwegians and their families and about 2,000 Russian miners.

Then the icy wastes and wartime secrecy clamped a tight censorship about the outpost whose shores are icebound for seven months of the year.

Struggle Related

Only today was the long struggle by the Norwegian garrison to hold the vital weather station revealed.

A month after the Allied landing in 1941, the Germans did move in and established a garrison and constructed an air base on the barren shores.

The following May, an icebreaker and a fishing vessel carried eighty-two Norwegians into Groenn fjord toward Barentsburg to resume the work of building an Allied weather station.

Nazi planes sighted the vessels in the fjord, however, and, attacking at 10 P. M. in the light of the midnight sun, four-motored Condor bombers sank one of the vessels, set the other afire and killed twelve men.

Jumped Into Water

The vessels had little more than a mile of ice to cut through at the time of the attack.

The temperature was under 10 degrees above zero and the survivors jumped into the water and clambered upon the ice as the bombers kept up cannon and machine-gun attacks for an hour.

Carrying its wounded over the ice into Barentsburg, the little group found shelter in the houses formerly occupied by the Russians and found bandages in the deserted Russian hospital. A few rifles, fifteen pair of skis and a broken signaling lamp were salvaged from the ships.

Stores of food were later found on the island and the long-empty pig sties yielded the carcasses of hogs killed at the time of the evacuation but preserved under the ice and snow.

Attacked During May

German planes attacked the group daily until May 31, but on May 26 a British Coastal Command Catalina on a long-range sortie appeared and the men signaled the plane.

Early in June a Catalina landed and took off seven of the badly wounded, and on July 2 a British naval force arrived.

While still beleaguered, the little force of Norwegians had located the German base at Longyear City, about thirty-seven miles from Barentsburg.

Lacking sufficient weapons they were unable to attack, but by night they marked up the area with numerous ski trails, leading the German garrison to believe a large force had landed. The Nazis remained indoors, even halting their air reconnaissance.

On July 14 the reinforced Norwegians closed in on the German base and found it deserted.

The Norwegians maintained only about one hundred men on the archipelago after that, but the German announcement of their Wednesday raid intimated that the Allies had constructed a large base there.

British Naval Units 'Dispersed,' Nazis Say

London, Sept. 12 (AP)—A German broadcast said today that coastal batteries had "dispersed a flotilla of small British naval units lying in ambush in the waters to the north of Cherbourg" off the French coast early this morning.

The Nazi communique said two British speedboats were sunk in action with German sea patrols.

VICTORY BY CHRISTMAS PREDICTED IN EUROPE

SEP 1 1 1943

SOUTHPORT, England, Sept. 12 (AP) Commander Edgar P. Young of the Royal Navy said in a speech here today that "victory in Europe can be won by Christmas," provided a land front in western Europe was opened immediately.

"Behind the thinly manned fortifications on the other side are waiting 40,000,000 French patriots to help us on to Berlin," he said.

De Valera Says Eire Is Facing Draft Call

Dublin, Sept. 12 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera said tonight that compulsory military service would be necessary in Eire unless enough volunteers came forward for defense forces.

Addressing a parade of emergency services at Dundalk, the Prime Minister said there was bound to be a long, disturbed period after the war in which small nations would have to exert their full strength to survive.

CIVIL WAR NEARS AS CHAOS GROWS THROUGH ITALY

FRANK BRUTTO

Fascist Militia Rising to Fight Against Allies, Swiss Report.

BERN, Sept. 12 — (AP) Advices from the Italian-Swiss frontier said that chaos in war-torn Italy had increased tonight with the German announcement of the liberation of Benito Mussolini, deposed Fascist leader, and there were indications the country was approaching a state of civil war.

No details were received concerning Mussolini's release but it was believed here that he would, with the aid of the Nazis, establish another Fascist government and repudiate the armistice of the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio. There were reports that the Fascist militia was rising to fight with the Nazis against the Allies.

The Germans, meanwhile, were said to be solidifying their hold on northern Italy. Nazi troops were reported to be spreading out around Domodossola, frontier post guarding the Italian approach to the Simplon tunnel. A German announcement that Nazi troops had occupied northern points apparently confirmed that they sought to establish a main front along a triangular Po line extending from Genoa to Trieste with Bologna as the advance post.

King, Premier Safe

Premier Badoglio and King Vittorio Emmanuele were reported safe in an Allied occupied city in southern Italy.

A Chiasso dispatch to the Swiss Telegraphic agency said that it appeared that the "extreme confusion" into which the Italian people had fallen could be clarified only by coming military events destined to convert the country into a battlefield.

Frontier reports telling of the rising of the Fascist militia also said that in German-occupied Italian cities the former Fascist chiefs had been liberated. These Fascists are starting to hunt the democratic and liberal elements which came out into the open with the Badoglio government.

Anti-Fascist chiefs, who since the fall of Fascism had been shouting for the complete liquidation of the Fascist party, were reported in many instances to have fled.

An eye-witness of the Nazi occupation of the Milan railway station Friday told of fighting between youths and a unit of Nazi soldiers.

Hatred Develops

The Nazi effort to extend control over northern Italy was reported however, to be developing Italian hatred, especially in Turin where resistance was said to have taken proportions serious enough to worry Field Marshal Erwin Rommel despite the superiority of the Nazi commander's forces.

The Italians still controlled the Swiss-Italian frontier and Como and Varese had not yet been occupied by Marshal Rommel's forces tonight.

Barring large scale Allied landings in the next few days, there seemed little doubt that the Germans could consolidate their domination of the northland, but whether they then could defend the territory was another question.

The reports of fierce Italian resistance in some northern cities vied meanwhile with other accounts of demoralization and chaos.

Food, Ammunition Lacking

Isolated Italian garrisons, without communications with their superiors and almost without food and ammunition, were reported to be disintegrating.

A traveler reaching Switzerland said the food problem in many northern cities was expected to become drastic soon. He related that the Italians who fought the Germans at Bergamo had only 25 cartridges and two grenades each and that workers who volunteered to fight were told by the military commander that only a few outmoded rifles were available.

Italian roads were said to be choked with thousands of Italian soldiers, Allied prisoners and refugees seeking to reach their homes, trying to escape the country, or to regain the Allied lines.

British, American, French, Greek, South African and even Sengalese soldiers fled the prison camps with Italian aid in an effort to escape the Germans.

BULGAR TROOPS SEIZE STRIP OF MACEDONIA

SEP 1 1 1943

BERN, Sept. 12—(AP) Bulgarian troops have crossed the Vardar river and begun the occupation of a strip of Macedonia, former Yugoslav territory annexed by Albania after 1941, the Budapest radio said tonight.

A Sofia dispatch to the Gazette de Lausanne yesterday said that Germany had offered the territory to Bulgaria in exchange for fuller collaboration. This report had said the Bulgarian army was already crossing the Albanian borders.

German troops were reported disarming the Italian garrisons in Albania.

Danish Auto Factory Is Damaged By Bomb

Stockholm, Sept. 12 (AP)—The Citroen automobile assembly plant in Copenhagen was heavily damaged by a bomb last night as Danes continued their sabotage of the German war effort, it was reported here today. A crane in the Copenhagen freight yards also was destroyed by a bomb.

Newspaper dispatches said 400 Danes were arrested by the Germans the night the Italian surrender became known.

Germans 50 To 60 Called Into Army

Stockholm, Sept. 12 (AP) — The Germans today called up men 50 to 60 years old for military service—a drastic step which apparently is a consequence of Italy's surrender.

The German press carried the announcement that all men born in the period from 1884 to 1893 must report to their district police stations for enlistment during the latter half of September.

Hitler has to find replacements for Italian units stationed in the Balkans and France.

The callup represents the most extreme combing of the manpower of Germany to keep the ranks of the army filled and all posts in the Germans' so-called "European Fortress" manned.

JAP TROOPS HIT IN BURMA RAIDS

SEP 1 1 1943

Railroad Yards, Oil Dumps Are Blasted by U.S. Airmen.

NEW DELHI, Sept. 12 — (AP) British and American bombers continued to blast Japanese troop positions and communications in Burma yesterday, Allied communiques announced today.

B-25 medium bombers of the Tenth U. S. Air force attacked the railroad yards at Sagaing and bombs also were dropped on the railroad siding at Ngapayin, 25 miles north of Monywa.

Beaufighters struck at the railways south of Prome in offensive patrol along the Irrawaddy, destroying an oil tank near Padigen and damaging two factories and railway equipment.

Direct hits were scored by a formation of Vengeances which dive-bombed army huts in Arakan southwest of Buthidaung. Other army huts were hit on Ramree island as were the jetty at Kyaukpyu and a number of sampans in the vicinity. Hurricanes sank or damaged ten river craft and four barges along the Mayu and Kaladin rivers.

The American communique reported that 12 tons of high explosive bombs were dropped by B-24 bombers on oil installations at Chauk Friday and two large fires were left burning. Medium bombers bombed the important Gokteik viaduct for the third time in four days Friday, while a large formation of B-25s blasted the railway yards at Naba junction. The airmen encountered extremely bad weather and two American planes failed to return. All R.A.F. aircraft returned safely.

14 JAP PLANES DOWNED BY U.S. FLIERS IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, Sept. 12—(AP) U. S. 14th Air force planes attacked Japanese-held cotton mills, warehouses, docks, boats and barracks and shot down 14 Japanese fighters during Friday and Saturday in assaults on widespread points, including Canton and the twin Yangtze river cities of Hankow and Wuchang, a communique announced today.

The bulletin from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said one American plane was lost, but that its pilot was safe.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sees Men Leave For Battle Area

Walks Along Line of Trucks in Australia to Tell Them Good By and Good Luck

TOWNSVILLE, Australia, Sept. 12 (AP).—American fighting men leaving for battle areas received an unexpected sendoff today from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived here this morning from Cairns, Queensland, by plane and was immediately whisked away to visit American soldiers just returning to northern Australia posts from the New Guinea fighting or just leaving for the fronts.

In one area Mrs. Roosevelt was shown Army trucks loaded with troops headed for the battle zones, and she insisted on walking down the road to tell them good by and good luck.

She trudged down the rough road, her shoes dusty and scarred by rocks, pausing by each truck long enough to speak to eager-faced soldiers in full battle dress. At one point her voice quavered, but she quickly recovered and continued along the line. She insisted on coming back on the other side of the line to wave to those she had missed.

Mrs. Roosevelt also visited wounded men recovering in a hospital and told them she hoped they would return home soon for a welcome due them in America. She visited an Army Air Forces depot, where she saw bombers being fitted for action.

Athlones at Alaskan Highway

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 12 (AP)—The Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, arrived today on an inspection trip of the new Alaskan Highway.

WORLD STRUCTURE TO UPHOLD PEACE SOUGHT BY HULL

SEP 1 1 1943

Use of Force to Prevent War Urged in Talk on Foreign Policy.

FULL U.S. AID FAVORED

International Court of Justice Proposed; Lauds 'Heroic' Reds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 — (AP) A post-war world in which nations will get along like good and self-respecting friends, ready to crack down with joint force any attempt of the criminal element to start up "the monstrous specter" of war, was set forth tonight by Secretary of State Hull as the No. 1 aim of American foreign policy.

"Readiness to use force, if necessary, for the maintenance of peace is indispensable," the Secretary emphasized in calling also for "an international court of justice" to handle international disputes of a legal sort.

In a broad outline of foreign policy, his first major speech in more than a year, Mr. Hull said over and over again that the nations which now stand together for peace and security must stay together.

And, possibly in reply to charges he has previously denied—that he has looked with a cold eye on Russia—he declared:

"To the Soviet Union, whose heroic armies and civilian population have earned everlasting renown through their magnificent feats of courage and sacrifice, we have been glad to render all possible aid.

Collaboration After War

"It is our desire and our settled policy that collaboration and cooperation between our two countries shall steadily increase during and following the war."

His outline amounted in many ways to an extension of the Western Hemisphere good neighbor policy to a co-operative world association of independent nations, and Mr. Hull found time in a 30-minute address to outline only the bare framework and principles of organization.

The flesh and blood of detail he left to the future.

The Secretary of State spoke on the topic "Our Foreign Policy in the Framework of Our National Interests" over a nation-wide radio hookup.

The speech came on the eve of the reconvening of Congress, which expects to give immediate consideration to the problem of determining America's role in obtaining a lasting peace.

Mr. Hull declared that "as I read our history and the temper of our people today, our nation intends to do its part."

The needs of the nations of the world after the war is over, he said, will include security for all and a better chance for each nation to develop and progress in ways of its own choosing toward political stability and economic, social and cultural welfare. He drew no distinction here between nations now fighting on the two sides of the war.

Other Allies Lauded

In addition to his tribute to Russia, Mr. Hull praised the contributions of the Chinese, the French, "invincible Britain" and our other Allies of the United Nations in waging the war, he said is now characterized by "heartening victories" in contrast to the last time he spoke to the nation over the air in July, 1942.

"With all but one of the nations of the Western hemisphere," said Mr. Hull, in an apparent reference to Argentina, "we have today the closest ties of solidarity and association——the fruit of ten years of unremitting labor on the part of all these nations to build in this hemisphere a fraternity of good neighbors."

"Here we have, in peace and in war, a highly successful example of co-operation between sovereign nations."

Mr. Hull said that the victories of the United Nations have been the direct result of closely co-ordinated military, economic and diplomatic action — "both within each of the nations and among all of them."

For example, he said, "our protracted diplomatic effort to achieve a fair and peaceful solution of difficulties in the Far East afforded our military authorities and those of other countries many months of precious time" to strengthen their defense before the Japanese struck.

Cites Basic U. S. Ideas

Mr. Hull said that traditional elements of American political thought could be applied internationally.

He listed them:

(1) All peoples capable of discharging the responsibilities of liberty are entitled to it.

(2) Each sovereign nation, large and small is in law and under law the equal of every other nation.

(3) All nations which respect the rights of others are entitled to freedom from outside interference in their internal affairs.

(4) The basis of order among nations is a willingness to accept international law to settle international disputes.

(5) Non-discrimination in economic opportunity and treatment is essential to the maintenance and promotion of sound international relations.

(6) Cooperation between nations in the spirit of good neighbors, founded on the principles of liberty, equality, justice, morality and law, is the most effective method of safeguarding and promoting the well being of all.

Vigorous Participation Urged

"Vigorous participation in efforts to establish a system of international conditions based on these rules of conduct, and thus to create conditions in which war may be effectively banished is and must be a fundamental feature of our foreign policy," Mr. Hull asserted.

"It is abundantly clear that a system of organized international cooperation for the maintenance of peace must be based upon the willingness of the cooperating nations to use force, if necessary, to keep the peace," he continued.

Independent nations, he said, have a further responsibility toward dependent peoples who aspire to liberty, and should help them attain it. A good example of what can be done along this line, we noted, is in our record in the Philippines.

In conclusion, Mr. Hull voiced a hope of discussing the problems in greater detail "in the early future." He added that their "supreme importance" should lift them far above the realm of partisan consideration of party politics."

Text of Hull's

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 (AP).—The text of the speech by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, tonight on "Our Foreign Policy in the Framework of our National Interests" follows:

SEP 14 1943

I

In July of last year, in an address over these networks, I outlined, as definitely as was possible at that time, the chief problems and conditions confronting us in the field of foreign relations and sought to indicate some of the policies necessary for meeting these problems. I pointed out that in the present conflict each of the United Nations is fighting for the preservation of its freedom, its homes, its very existence; and that only through united effort to defeat our enemies can freedom or the opportunity for freedom be preserved—for all countries and all peoples. I spoke of the need to chart for the future a course based on enduring spiritual values which would bring our nation and all nations greater hope for enduring peace and greater measure of human welfare. To this end I urged intensive study, hard thinking, broad vision, and leadership by all those, within each nation, who provide spiritual, moral and intellectual guidance.

At that time the military picture was still dark. The United Nations were still fighting a desperate war of defense against better prepared foes. We had suffered a succession of grim defeats.

Since then the military picture has greatly changed.

We are now winning heartening victories, in the air, at sea, and on land. Our counter-blows are steadily increasing in power and effectiveness. They are stepping stones to our final triumph over the forces of conquest and savagery.

Attainment of complete victory, although now certain, is still a formidable task. Our lesser enemies are fast losing heart and strength. Italy has already surrendered. But our principal enemies, Germany and Japan though shaken, still possess great resources and enormous strength. They still control vast portions of Europe and of Asia. To defeat them completely the United Nations need to make, on the battle front and at home, efforts even greater than those thus far made.

In making these more intensified efforts, it is more important than ever for all concerned to have a clear understanding of what is at stake, now and in the future.

"Full Perspective" Required

During recent months public discussion and debate on a high plane have revealed the profound concern of our people with the issues of the country's foreign relations. These issues need to be seen in their full perspective. Unless our people so see them and unless our people are willing to translate their understanding of them into action, the well-being of the nation—and even its very life—may be gravely menaced.

The foreign policy of any country must be expressive of that country's fundamental national interests. No country can keep faith with itself unless that is so.

In determining our foreign policy we must first see clearly what our true national interests are. We must also bear in mind that other countries, with which we deal in the conduct of foreign relations, have their national interests, which, of course, determine their policies.

Obviously there are, even between friendly nations, differences as regards their respective aims and purposes and as regards the means of attaining them. But there are also immense areas of common interest. By co-operating within those areas the nations not only can advance more effectively the aims and purposes which they have in common, but can also find increased opportunity to reconcile, by peaceful means and to mutual advantage, such differences as may exist among them.

II

At the present time the paramount aim of our foreign policy, and the paramount aim of the foreign policy of each of the other United Nations, is to defeat our enemies as quickly as possible. Here we have a vast area of common interest and a broad basis of co-operative action in the service of that interest.

Every weapon of our military and economic activity and every instrumentality of our diplomacy have been and are directed toward the strengthening of the combined war effort. All these necessarily go together.

The land, air and sea forces of the United States are fighting, with surpassing skill and heroism, in the Mediterranean, over the Nazi-held fortress of Europe, in the far reaches of the Pacific and of Asia. In each of the theaters of war, they are operating shoulder to shoulder, in a spirit of superb comradship, with the gallant forces of one or more of our allies.

The resolute will and devoted effort of our people have brought about the greatest miracle of production and delivery in all history. Our war supplies are flowing outward in a constant and ever-increasing stream, not alone to those areas in which our own forces are engaged, but to every point on the globe at which the armed forces of the United Nations are fighting.

We are in continuous consultation with our allies on various phases of military, economic and political activity—as required by the exigencies of a constantly changing situation.

Our co-operation with our allies has long since reached the state where contingents of the forces of various allies are serving, side by side, under unified command. We have developed this type of co-operation with invincible Britain, with intrepid and resolute Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, with valiant and determined China, and with the forces of other allies. It is being rapidly extended as the military operations progress.

To the Soviet Union, whose heroic armies and civilian population have earned everlasting renown through their magnificent feats of courage and sacrifice, we have been glad to render all possible aid. It is our desire and our settled policy that collaboration and co-operation between our two countries shall steadily increase during and following the war.

With the re-emerging military power of France we have been and are developing a heartening degree of co-ordinated effort. We look forward to the day when reborn France will again take her rightful place in the family of free nations.

With governments which the Axis powers have driven from their invaded and brutally oppressed but unconquerable countries we have the most friendly relations. These relations reflect our profound and active sympathy for the suffering of their peoples and our determination that the victory of the United Nations shall restore their nations to freedom.

With all but one of the nations of the Western Hemisphere we have today the closest ties of solidarity and association—the fruit of ten years of unremitting labor on the part of all of these nations to build in this hemisphere a fraternity of good neighbors. Each of our American associates is making a magnificent contribution to the war effort. Here we have, in peace and in war a highly successful example of co-operation between sovereign nations.

The victories of the United Nations have been the direct result, not of separate and uncoordinated military, economic and diplomatic action, but of close co-ordination of all three types of action, both within each of the nations and among all of them. It is well to recall some outstanding examples.

Far Eastern Diplomacy

Our protracted diplomatic effort to achieve a fair and peaceful solution of difficulties in the Far East afforded our military authorities and those of other countries now in the ranks of the United Nations many months of precious time for strengthening defenses against the combined Axis threats in the Atlantic and in the Pacific, in case Japan should reject a peaceful settlement, as she eventually did.

The drawing together of the American republics to assure their common defense made it possible to establish a line of communications through the Caribbean, Brazil and the South Atlantic. That line proved to be of invaluable importance alike in transporting equipment to the British forces at El Alamein; in supplying our own expedition to North Africa; and, at a desperate hour, in putting our war planes into the air over the Pacific islands and in China.

Diplomatic foresight and patient and vigorous activity by the agencies of our foreign policy played an indispensable part in preparing the way by which the huge strategic North African area was brought without heavy losses into the sphere of the United Nations, and the French fleet was kept out of German hands. Had Vichy felt it feasible to ignore our diplomatic pressure directed toward preventing the surrender of the North and West African areas to the Nazis and the delivery of the French fleet to Hitler, as Laval had planned; or had Spain entered the war on the side of the Axis, as Hitler had hoped, control of the Mediterranean would have early fallen into the hands of our enemies. Instead, the Allied forces converged, with a skill and precision unequaled in military annals, upon this gateway through which we are now invading the European continent.

The Mediterranean operations weakened the the German air force available on the Soviet front; just as the Russian resistance, by holding the German armies on the eastern battle line, prevented Hitler from parrying our thrusts toward his southern flank. Meanwhile, our constant military pressure against Japan had its inevitable effect in deterring Japan from aggession against the Soviet Union.

Our diplomatic agreements with fearless Danish officials on free soil and with the government of Iceland made it possible to guard the great North Atlantic passage as a precious route for our supplies and troops and as defense against attack from the north.

Perseverance of China

The perseverance of China, the first victim of the movement of aggression, in resistance to Japan has been aided in no small measure by the faith of her leaders in us, based on their knowledge of our history and policy and on their observation, as time went on, of our efforts to achieve a fair and peaceful settlement in the Far East, our economic support, and, more recently, our military assistance. China's resistance has held enmeshed on her front substantial Japanese forces which might otherwise have been loosed against us and other of the United Nations in the Pacific; and China is playing an important part in the United Nations' program for the winning of the war and achievement of a stable peace.

The agencies of our foreign policy are at all times at work as instruments of national defense. Since the attack upon us, they have been intensively at work in assisting our armed forces to achieve the victories which are now fast increasing in numbers and significance.

III

Beyond final victory, our fundamental national interests are —as they always have been— the assuring of our national security and the fostering of the economic and social well-being of our people. To maintain these interests, our foreign policy must necessarily deal with current conditions and must plan for the future in the light of the concepts and beliefs which we, as a nation, accept for ourselves as the guiding lines of our International behavior.

Throughout our national history, our basic policy in dealing with foreign nations has rested upon certain beliefs which are widely and deeply rooted in the minds of our people. Outstanding among these are:

1. All peoples who, with a "decent respect to the opinions of mankind," have qualified themselves to assume and to discharge the responsibilities of liberty are entitled to its enjoyment.

2. Each sovereign nation, large or small, is in law and under law the equal of every other nation.

3. All nations, large and small, which respect the rights of others, are entitled to freedom from outside interference in their internal affairs.

4. Willingness to settle international disputes by peaceful means, acceptance of international law and observance of its principles are the bases of order among nations and of mankind's continuing search of enduring peace.

5. Non-discrimination in economic opportunity and treatment is essential to the maintenance and promotion of sound international relations.

6. Co-operation between nations in the spirit of good neighbors, founded on the principles of liberty, equality, justice, morality and law, is the most effective method of safeguarding and promoting the political, the economic, the social and the cultural well-being of our nation and of all nations.

"Universal Application"

These beliefs are among the most important tenets of our national faith. They are capable of universal application as rules of national and international conduct. In their application by other nations and in willingness and preparedness on the part of all peacefully inclined nations to join together to make them effective lies the greatest hope of security, happiness and progress for this country and for all countries.

Vigorous participation in efforts to establish a system of international relations based on these rules of conduct, and thus to create conditions in which war may be effectively banished, is and must be a fundamental feature of our foreign policy—second only to our present overriding preoccupation with the winning of complete military victory. Here, too, our nation and other peacefully inclined nations have a vast and crucial area of common interest.

In the Atlantic Charter and in the declaration by United Nations the nations now associated in this war for self-preservation have clearly expressed their recognition of the existence of this area of common interest. Our task and that of our associates is to utilize this common interest to create an effective system of international co-operation for the maintenance of peace.

As I read our history and the temper of our people today our nation intends to do its part, jointly with the other peace-seeking nations, in helping the war-torn world to heal its wounds. I am sure also that our nation and each of the nations associated today in the greatest co-operative enterprise in history—the winning of this war—intends to do its part, after the victory of the United Nations, in meeting the immense needs of the post-war period. Those needs will embrace the task of taking practical steps to create conditions in which there will be security for every nation; in which each nation will have enhanced opportunities to develop and progress in ways of its own choosing; in which there will be, for each nation, improved facilities to attain, by its own effort and in co-operation with others, an increasing measure of political stability and of economic, social and cultural welfare.

If our nation and like-minded nations fail in this task the way will be open for a new rise of international anarchy, for new and even more destructive wars, for an unprecedented material and spiritual impoverishment of mankind. Many times in the course of history nations have drifted into catastrophe through failure, until too late, to recognize the dangers which confronted them and to take the measures necessary to ward off those dangers. Post-war co-operation to maintain the peace is for each peace-seeking nation scarcely less essential for its self-preservation than is the present co-operative effort to win the war.

IV

If there is anything on which all right-thinking people are agreed, it is the proposition that the monstrous specter of a world war shall not again show its head. The people of this and other lands voice this demand insistently. There is danger in complacency and wishful thinking. The nations that stand for peace and security must now make up their minds and act together—or there will be neither peace nor security.

It is abundantly clear that a system of organized international co-operation for the maintenance of peace must be based upon the willingness of the co-operating nations to use force, if necessary, to keep the peace. There must be certainty that adequate and appropriate means are available and will be used for this purpose. Readiness to use force, if necessary, for the maintenance of peace is indispensable if effective substitutes for war are to be found.

Differences between nations which lead toward armed conflict may be those of a non-legal character, commonly referred to as political, and those capable of being resolved by applying rules of law, commonly referred to as justifiable. Another cause of armed conflict is aggression by nations whose only motive is conquest and self-aggrandizement. We must, therefore, provide for differences of a political character, for those of a legal nature and for cases where there is plain and unadulterated aggression.

Political differences which present a threat to the peace of the world should be submitted to agencies which would use the remedies of discussion, negotiation, conciliation and good offices.

Disputes of a legal character which present a threat to the peace of the world should be adjudicated by an international court of justice whose decisions would be based upon application of principles of law.

Restraining Aggressors

But to assure peace there must also be means for restraining aggressors and nations that seek to resort to force for the accomplishment of purposes of their own. The peacefully inclined nations must, in the interest of general peace and security, be willing to accept responsibility for this task in accordance with their respective capacities.

The success of an organized system of international co-operation with the maintenance of peace as its paramount objective depends, to an important degree upon what happens within as well as among nations. We know that political controversies and economic strife among nations are fruitful causes of hostility and conflict. But we also know that economic stagnation and distress, cultural backwardness, and social unrest within nations, wherever they exist, undermine all efforts for stable peace.

The primary responsibility for dealing with these conditions rests on each and every nation concerned. But each nation will be greatly helped in this task by the establishment of sound trade and other economic relations with other nations, based on a comprehensive system of mutually beneficial international co-operation not alone in these respects, but also in furthering educational advancement and in promoting observance of basic human rights.

There rests upon the independent nations a responsibility in relation to dependent peoples who aspire to liberty. It should be the duty of nations having political ties with such peoples, of mandatories, of trustees, or of other agencies, as the case may be, to help the aspiring peoples to develop materially and educationally, to prepare themselves for the duties and responsibilities of self-government, and to attain liberty. An excellent example of what can be achieved is afforded in the record of our relationship with the Philippines.

Fundamental Propositions

Organized international co-operation can be successful only to the extent to which the nations of the world are willing to accept certain fundamental propositions.

First, each nation should maintain a stable government. Each nation should be free to decide for itself the forms and details of its governmental organization—so long as it conducts its affairs in such a way as not to menace the peace and security of other nations.

Second, each nation should conduct its economic affairs in such a way as to promote the most effective utilization of its human and material resources and the greatest practicable measure of economic welfare and social security for all of its citizens. Each nation should be free to decide for itself the forms of its internal economic and social organization—but it should conduct its affairs in such a way as to respect the rights of others and to play its necessary part in a system of sound international economic relations.

Third, each nation should be willing to submit differences arising between it and other nations to processes of peaceful settlement, and should be prepared to carry out other obligations that may devolve upon it in an effective system of organized peace.

All of this calls for the creation of a system of international relations based on rules of morality, law and justice as distinguished from the anarchy of unbridled and discordant nationalisms, economic and political. The outstanding characteristic of such a system is liberty under law for nations as well as individuals. Its method is peaceful co-operation.

The form and functions of the international agencies of the future, the extent to which the existing Court of International Justice may or may not need to be remodeled, the scope and character of the means for making international action effective in the maintenance of peace, the nature of international economic institutions and arrangements that may be desired and feasible—all these are among the problems which are receiving attention and which will need to be determined by agreement among governments, subject, of course, to approval by their respective peoples. They are being studied intensively by this government and by other governments. They are gradually being made subjects of consultation between and among governments. They are being studied and discussed by the people of this country and the peoples of other countries. In the final analysis, it is the will of the peoples of the world that decides the all-embracing issues of peace and of human welfare.

The outbreak of war made it clear that problems of crucial importance in the field of foreign relations would confront this country as well as other countries upon the termination of hostilities. It became the obvious duty of the Department of State to give special attention to the study of conditions and developments relating to such problems. As the war spread over the earth, the scope of these studies was extended and work upon them was steadily increased, in so far as was compatible with the fullest possible prosecution of the war.

By direction of the President and with his active interest in the work, the Department of State undertook, through special groups organized for the purpose, to examine the various matters affecting the conclusion of the war, the making of the peace and preparation for dealing with post-war problems. In doing this work we had collaboration of representatives of other interested agencies of the government and of many national leaders, without regard to their political affiliation, and the assistance of a specially constituted and highly qualified research staff. We have been aided greatly by public discussion of the problems involved on the part of responsible private individuals and groups, and by the numerous suggestions and expressions of opinion which we received from all parts of the country. In proceeding with this work we envisage the fullest co-operation between the executive and the legislative branches of the government.

We have now reached a stage at which it becomes possible to discuss in greater detail some of the basic problems outlined in this address and in my previous statements. I hope to be able to undertake this from time to time in the early future.

The supreme importance of these problems should lift them far above the realm of partisan considerations of party politics. It is gratifying that both in the Congress and elsewhere great numbers of thoughtful men have so approached them. A heavy responsibility rest upon all of us to consider these all-important post-war problems and to contribute to their solution in a wholly non-partisan spirit.

Studying U. S. Peace Role First Matter for Congress

Action on Drafting of Fathers Occupies High Place on Docket.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—(AP) Congress' first major task when it reconvenes Tuesday likely will be House consideration of America's role in obtaining "a just and lasting peace."

Leaders were reported today to have agreed to act first on a resolution on this subject in preference over domestic issues, including the controversial fathers' draft.

The resolution, offered by Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark.) and approved by the House Foreign Affairs committee, would put Congress on record as favoring American participation in "the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace."

While the Senate usually has claimed the prerogative of dealing first with foreign policy questions, Speaker Rayburn is reported to have informed his House lieutenants here that he would like action on the Fulbright measure in the first week of the resumed session.

Approval Foreseen

Indications are that the House may approve the resolution, possibly with some changes. Most legislators think, however, the Senate Foreign Relations committee, headed by Senator Connally (D-Tex.), will want to write its own version and that debate can not begin on the Senate floor until mid-October at the earliest.

Meanwhile, the Senate is expected to receive a demand from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) for action on his bill, approved by the Military committee, to postpone until after Jan. 1 the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

At the same time, Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military committee, who has urged that inductions be halted until Selective Service needs can be reassessed, expects to introduce a broad bill dealing with the father draft question and begin hearings on it Wednesday.

Subsidies to Come Up

The draft issue may crowd into the background for the time being the troublesome question of food price subsidies but it likely will come before Congress this month with some specific Administration recommendations.

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes has been conferring with legislators and is believed about ready to propose a comprehensive support price program with emphasis on increasing production as a means of reducing food costs.

Republican support may be forthcoming if such a program is proposed in lieu of a general roll back subsidy plan which Congress previously refused to approve, but which the Administration has been applying to meat and butter.

There were indications, also, that the Republicans are closer together on post-war foreign policy, although the internationalist wing represented by such senators as Ball of Minnesota and Burton of Ohio are reported as feeling that the recent Mackinac Island declaration of the party's advisory council did not go far enough.

Majority Agreed

On the other hand, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who headed the committee which drafted the declaration, said he thought it has brought most Republicans under one foreign policy roof for the first time and ought to facilitate passage by Congress of some statement on the issue.

The resolution put the party on record as favoring "responsible participation" by the United States in a cooperative organization of sovereign nations to put down future aggression. It specified, however, that American action must be guided by the traditional Constitutional forms and advocated the maintenance of strong armed forces by this country after the war's end.

STUDYING NEW STATUS OF INTERNED ITALIANS

Government Weighs Armistice Effect—1,162 in Camps

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 (AP)—A review is being made of the cases of all Italians interned in this country to determine their future status.

This action, announced today by Charles Fahy, Acting Attorney General, follows the signing of a military armistice with the Italian Government.

As of Wednesday, 1,162 Italians were held in internment camps. Of these, all but 178 were seamen from Italian vessels.

In general, Italians in this country have not been subject to enemy alien regulations since Oct. 16, 1942, when Attorney General Biddle, in recognition of "their outstanding loyalty to the United States," exempted them from regulations governing travel, place of residence, possession of cameras, radios, firearms, etc. This, however, did not apply to Italians whose "lack of loyalty" has resulted in their internment, or to seamen.

Mr. Fahy explained that the armistice had no direct effect on the status of Italians who had been interned as "dangerous." Their release can be effected in one of two ways: issuance of a Presidential proclamation removing Italians from the enemy alien classification, or the individual release, on orders of the Attorney General, of aliens who, in his opinion, no longer constitute a threat to national security.

Bill Green Seems Cinch to Head AFL Again, Lewis Still Outside the Fold

Never Has Announced That He Would Seek Reelection to Office.

JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP) William Green, who passed his three score and 10 last March, looks like a cinch for re-election as president of the American Federation of Labor (AFL) for another year—his twentieth in office.

The annual convention of the federation, in Boston this year, is less than a month away—Oct. 4—but Green as usual says nothing.

"I don't have any statement right now," he replied quietly when asked whether he would be a candidate again. This was typical of him. Nobody recalls whether he ever announced he would seek the office. His re-election just happened annually, it seemed.

In recent years, though, about this time, there has been talk that Green was about to retire. He never inspired these forecasts himself, never felt obliged to fulfill them.

Labor leaders, friend and foe, know of no present retirement plans.

To Doorstep But Not In

Speculation had Green on the uneasy seat earlier this year when John L. Lewis led his United Mine Workers back to the AFL doorstep. Many thought Lewis' readmittance was cut and dried. His inside backers were confident. There is a suspicion that Lewis himself was cocksure. It isn't like him to take shots in the dark.

Back in the Federation, Lewis would be gunning first for Green, so the story went. Lewis had boosted Green into the presidency although Samuel Gompers was reputed to have bequeathed it to another when he died in 1924.

Year after year Lewis renominated friend Green, the Ohio miner and onetime secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers. But they broke in 1935 when Lewis organized the CIO and Green stuck to the conservative guns of the AFL. Lewis had him ousted from the Miners' Union he had joined in his early teens. He has been calling him names ever since.

On the May day that Green announced to a press conference that Lewis had applied for reaffiliation, a reporter asked: "Will you be a candidate for president again this year, Mr. Green?"

"Oh," said Green blankly, pretending it was an irrelevant question, "I don't know. I might be dead then."

Lewis has not advanced past the AFL doorstep.

In Good Health

Green is in apparent good health. He still makes frequent, vigorous speeches, works hard at his job. His correspondence is enormous, but he replies to all mail himself, dictating to a battery of stenographers.

He has a faculty of being able to relax almost at will. He can board a day train for his home in Coshocton, O., throw his head back on the seat and go to sleep, arriving at his destination rested.

Green always is in demand as a speaker. The bids come not only from labor unions but from service and fraternal clubs, industrial bodies and ministerial societies. In white tie and tails, or in business suit with piping on the vest, plus pince-nez and a diamond ring, Green suggests a banker or professor rather than a labor leader.

When in Washington he lives at a downtown hotel. Frequently he can be found taking lunch in a basement sandwich joint near his office.

Green has absorbed as such personal criticism as any labor leader, more than most, but still holds the reputation of "diplomat of the labor movement."

Could Have Broken Tie

When Lewis' application was before the AFL executive council in Chicago last month, a motion to make Lewis a counter-offer lost on a tie vote. Green could have broken the tie and perhaps expedited Lewis' return. He refrained from doing so. But his friends say vengeance was not the motive. However ironical, they declare, it was typical of Green not to cast the deciding vote in a hot controversy.

As matters stand now, Lewis personally will cut no figure in the 1943 AFL convention, and no opposition to Green has raised its head.

'Seawolf' Without Match Anywhere, Says Admiral Davison.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12—(AP) The Navy has a brand new torpedo plane, the "Seawolf," in its arsenal of weapons for smashing Japanese seapower.

This was disclosed here today by Rear Admiral Ralph Davison, assistant chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, in a speech dedicating the new Convair airport adjoining a plant of the Consolidated-Vultee company where the new planes are to be manufactured in quantity.

Admiral Davison described the "Seawolf" as an eight-ton fighting machine which is "the last word" in its line.

"Eight tons of fighting power is a lot of power when it's used intelligently," he said. "And you can believe me when I tell you that we have the best trained and most intelligent pilots in the world.

"Carrying a crew of three-pilot, gunner, radio-man-bomber—the Seawolf incorporates everything we have learned about planes of this type.

Powerful Armament

"It is powerfully armed with guns to defend itself. It is well armored. And it carries the deadly tin fish, which the Japs make futile effort not to catch, or a load of bombs which makes them equally unhappy.

"The performance of the Seawolf—its speed, range and ability to climb to operating altitudes—I can not of course discuss in detail. Suffice it to say there is no other torpedo plane in the world today to match it."

The present standard Navy torpedo plane is the powerful Grumman "Avenger" which first saw action at the battle of Midway in June, last year. The Avenger is a midwing monoplane with 1,700 horsepower engine, a speed of better than 250 miles per hour and a range of over 1,600 miles.

The Japanese got their first acknowledge of the existence of the Avenger when it went into action at Midway. Its performance so surprised the enemy that it was able to inflict an extraordinarily large amount of damage on the Japanese armada there.

Flyer Hits Bay Bridge

Killed While Practicing Carrier Landings on Alameda Field

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12 (AP).—A naval plane crashed into a vertical cable on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge today, severing the cable and killing the pilot, only occupant of the ship.

The Navy reported the pilot, from the Alameda Naval Air Station, was practicing carrier landings on the station field and evidently misjudged his distance in the fog.

Debris from the plane fell on the bridge, but traffic was not interrupted. The name of the flyer was withheld.

Richard duPont Killed as Glider Cuts Its Tow, Falls 3,000 Feet

By The Associated Press

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Sept. 12.—Richard Chichester du Pont, special assistant to General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, in the air forces glider program, was one of four men killed yesterday in the crash of a glider near here on an experimental flight, March Field authorities announced today.

The commercial - type glider, which was being test-flown for possible use by the Army, went into a spin at 3,000 feet soon after cutting loose from the tow plane, and crashed in a plowed field a mile southeast of this Army air base.

Others killed were Colonel P. Ernest Gabel, of Washington, deputy director of the air forces glider program, and two test pilots, C. C. Chandler, of Tarzana, Calif., and Howard L. Morrison, of San Fernando, Calif.

Mr. du Pont jumped from the falling glider, but his parachute failed to open and he was killed instantly. Two other civilians in the crew, Paul G. Wells and Harry M. Pearl, parachuted to safety.

Major L. J. Doyle, March Field public-relations officer, said who was piloting the glider and the cause of the crash have not yet been established.

Took up Gliding at 16

Tall, blond Richard du Pont was thirty-two years old, the son of A. Felix du Pont, a director of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. He built his first model airplane as a child, took up gliding at sixteen and later learned from his brother Felix how to fly a power plane.

He formed a glider club at the University of Virginia, but before completing his university studies flew his own plane to Glendale, Calif., to study aeronautical engineering at Curtiss-Wright Technical Institute.

Returning East in the Summer of 1933, he entered the national gliding and soaring meet at Elmira, N. Y. There, with his father as passenger, he took off one afternoon from a mountain top. A wind shift overturned the craft, smashing a wing, but both occupants escaped injury.

The next day in another glider the son made the two longest hops achieved in the contest.

He set a new American distance mark in 1933 by soaring 122.5 miles from Rockfish, Va., to Frederick, Md.

In the following year's national meet he established a new international distance record, winging 158.3 miles from Elmira to Somerset, N. J. Crossing mountains, he also established a new American sailplane altitude mark of 6,233 feet. In 1938 he reached 6,700 feet.

He was president of the Soaring Society of America for several years.

In 1938 the Post Office Department advertised for bids on two experimental aerial pickup routes. Mr. du Pont, who had met the inventor of a grappling-hook device enabling a plane to pick up specially designed mail pouches from pole supports, formed All-American Aviation, Inc.

Recognized as an expert on glider construction, he was appointed last April as an assistant to General Arnold to expedite the Army's glider program. Recently he was sent to Sicily, where he observed glider operations and the movement of air-borne troops.

Surviving are his father, who lives at Rehoboth Beach, Del.; his mother, of Wilmington; his wife, the former Helena Allaire Crozier, of Philadelphia; a son, Richard C. du Pont jr.; a daughter, Helena Allaire du Pont; a brother, A. Felix du Pont jr., also an aviator, and two sisters, Miss Lydia du Pont, of Wilmington, and Mrs. James P. Mills, of New York.

GEN. WAINWRIGHT CITED BY LEGION OF VALOR

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 12 — (AP) The Army and Navy Legion of Valor, its rolls limited to fighting men who have been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross or the Navy Cross, bestowed a life membership at its annual convention here today on Lieutenant General Jonathan B. Wainwright, the Bataan hero.

Governor Raymond E. Baldwin accepted the membership as proxy for General Wainwright who is a prisoner of the Japanese.

The convention, attended by more than 200 members, elected Major A. Allen Johnson of this city national commander.

Other national officers chosen were: senior vice-commander, Earl T. Norton of New York city; junior vice-commander, Leon T. Dombrowski of Buffalo, N. Y.; chaplain, the Rev. Thomas Taylor of Columbus, O.; and adjutant, Benjamin Prager of Pittsburg.

Strategic Air Power Key To Victory, Says Gen. Arnold

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 — (AP) General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air forces, said today that strategic air power, "a war-winning weapon in its own right," was the cheapest type of warfare and by far the greatest economizer in human lives."

Air power, he wrote in the October issue of Flying magazine, has outmoded the "mile by mile, village classical warfare which has always proved so costly in a war of position." This was demonstrated most clearly, he said, in the Tunisian campaign where air power saved "thousand of lives and weeks of time."

"By this action," he continued, "we again proved the sky road to Berlin and Tokyo can be utilized to the full to blast the heart out of the citadel before our combined operations take over for the final drive."

The Liberator raid on Rumanian oil fields at Ploesti he said was "the most important single air blow of the war to date" while two other air engagements which "will have an important place in the history of warfare" were the Bismarck sea victory, demonstrating the "effectiveness of minimum altitude bombing," and the capture of Pantelleria.

The latter victory, he continued, was "a symbol of the ability of air power to capture any citadel once its own supremacy in the skies is established, and provided a sufficiently sustained and powerful air assault can be brought to bear against it."

"It is simply a matter of mathematics or physics," he said. "While air assault is not without cost, this type of warfare is actually cheapest on all counts, and is by far the greatest economizer in human lives."

What's Behind the War News

SEP 11 1943

By ELTON C. FAY

The United Nations now will find out how much help their armed forces may expect from the little people of Axis-dominated lands in answer to an official call for organized uprising.

The Allied governments, in domicile and in exile, have been at great pains to tell the people of Axis-dominated lands that they would be informed when the time came for each of them to rise and strike at their enslavers. That time had to be synchronized with military operations or both effort and life would be wasted.

The time for the Italian people is here and they have received their call from the highest possible sources — President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The President and Prime Minister embodied it in their recent joint message to Marshal Badoglio and the Italian people. Now is the time, they announced, "for every Italian to strike his blow . . . take every chance you can . . . strike and strike hard."

General Eisenhower put the call into the terms of the armistice signed with Italy on Sept. 3 and made public Saturday night. The second of the 13 clauses in the armistice says that "Italy will use its best endeavors to deny the Germans facilities that might be used against the United Nations."

Next to the "best endeavors" of the Italian armed forces to keep facilities from the hands of the Germans (and the terms of the armistice lay primarily responsibility on the armed forces) must be the efforts of the Italian people behind the lines of the German army and in areas not controlled by the Italian army.

The word is sabotage. Its proper application produces dynamited bridges, destroyed war plants and ruined railroads. Beyond that method there is guerrilla warfare—extermination by ambush. To do that you take every chance you can and strike hard.

Difficulties Foreseen

There is a disposition in Allied capitals to recognize the difficulties that the Italians will face in carrying out all of the purely military aspects of the armistice. The armistice requires Italy to turn over "all" prisoners or internees of the United Nations to General Eisenhower immediately and forbids their transfer to Germany. Certainly some and possibly a majority of the prison camps are well north of the area now either in the hands of the Anglo-American forces or under control of Premier Badoglio's men.

Other terms of the armistice, however, are easier of fulfillment, such as the clause guaranteeing Allied use of all air fields and naval ports in Italian territory. These facilities, vital to the further prosecution of air and surface war upon Germany, "are to be protected by Italian armed forces until this function is taken over by the Allies," the signed document says. It is to be presumed that in many instances Italian garrisons are in position to hold the facilities they guard until the Allied army reaches them.

To make sure, the armistice demands "a guarantee by the Italian government that if necessary it will employ all available armed forces to insure the prompt and exact compliance with all provisions of this armistice."

Disarmament Power

The armistice itself indicates that while for the present the United Nations look to Italian arms to aid them in ousting the Germans from Italy, this condition can or perhaps even will change. "The commander-in-chief of the Allied forces will have the full right to impose means for disarmament, demobilization and demilitarization," the agreement says.

Future developments of a political character could determine the extent of or necessity for disarmament. Indeed, the next clause of the armistice notes that conditions of a political, economic and financial nature with which Italy must comply will be set forth later.

Some of the provisions of the armistice already are being carried out in a manner highly satisfactory to the Allied leaders running the war in the Mediterranean.

The bulk of the Italian fighting fleet is in Allied hands, a truly great negative advantage for now there is no worry about a German-directed naval effort in the Mediterranean.

On the positive side, such Italian warships as are serviceable (and there always is the problem of repairing and munitions foreign ships with material of different sizes and caliber) can be used for Mediterranean patrol and support of future landing operations. That means that more Allied fighting craft can be diverted to the Pacific where already a great fleet is gathering to sink the Japanese navy.

LORD KEYNES IS THE AUTHOR OF A BRITISH PLAN WHICH PROPOSES TO STABILIZE CURRENCIES THROUGH AN INTERNATIONAL CLEARING UNION WHICH WOULD HAVE NO ASSETS BUT WOULD PERMIT ANTICIPATION ON THE BASIS OF EACH NATION'S WORLD TRADE.

THE U-BOAT AND THE SUNDERLAND LIE AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA, BUT THE DESTROYERS WERE CHEATED OUT OF A FIGHT.

LT.COMM.JOHN HODGES, CAPTAIN OF THE ORWELL, EXPLAINED THAT THE SUNDERLAND HAD SIGHTED THE SUBMARINE AND PROMPTLY ATTACKED WITH DEPTH CHARGES.

"IN SPITE OF THE DAMAGE, THE ENEMY ENGAGED AND SHOT DOWN THE SUNDERLAND," HE SAID.

"OUR FIRST INTIMATION CAME WHEN WE SIGHTED A PALL OF SMOKE ON THE HORIZON FROM THE CRASHED PLANE. WE APPROACHED AT FULL SPEED AND SAW TWO HEAVY EXPLOSIONS AS THE U-BOAT BLEW UP."

ARRIVING AT THE SCENE, THE ORWELL FOUND TWO LARGE RUBBER RAFTS WITH ABOUT THIRTY MEN HANGING ON EACH OF THEM.

"WE PICKED UP ONE RAFT LOAD," HODGES REPORTED. "ANOTHER DESTROYER CAME ALONG AND PICKED UP THE SECOND, AND A THIRD DESTROYER RESCUED THE SIX MEMBERS OF THE SUNDERLAND CREW."

THE U-BOAT CREW WAS INTACT. THE GERMANS, HODGES SAID, BEHAVED WELL AND SALUTED PROPERLY AS THEY BOARDED THE DESTROYER.

FIVE MEMBERS OF THE SUNDERLAND'S CREW WERE CANADIANS.

THE CAPTAIN WAS FLIGHT OFFICER ALBERT ALTON BISHOP OF ERSKINE, ALTA. LICENSEES WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO CLAIM RAW MATERIALS TO REPLACE GOODS EXPORTED.

A NEW SERIES OF FABRIC EXPORT ALLOCATIONS IS EXPECTED TO BE ISSUED SOON.

HOWEVER, WOOLEN SPINNERS AND MANUFACTURERS WERE MORE CONCERNED OVER PRODUCTION THAN NEW BUSINESS. THEY SAID IF THREATENED WITHDRAWAL OF MORE WOMEN INTO GOVERNMENT LABOR OR THE ARMED FORCES MATERIALIZES, AN APPRECIABLE REDUCTION IN OUTPUT OF MOST MILLS IS INEVITABLE.

YARN TRANSACTIONS CONTINUED DULL. A MODERATE AMOUNT OF NEW HOME BUSINESS ON OFFER IS IN NON-UTILITY CLOTHS.

IN THE COTTON MARKET, CLOTHS FOR THE UTILITY TRADE IN APPAREL AND YARNS FOR WEAVING THEM REMAINED THE MOST ACTIVE CLASSES OF BUSINESS.

A THIN TRICKLE OF NEW BUSINESS WAS CONCLUDED IN HEAVY PLAIN CLOTHS AND SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS FOR THE DOMINIONS AS WELL AS HIGH-PRIORITY CUSTOMERS AT HOME. THERE WAS SOME INTEREST IN DENIMS AND CANVAS, MAINLY FOR GOVERNMENT USE, AND MILD DEMAND FOR "BREAD AND BUTTER" CLOTHS FOR ESSENTIAL USES IN SOUTH AFRICA AND AUSTRALA.

WITH BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCED FORCES NEAR CATANZARO ITALY, SEPT. 11-(DELAYED)--THIS CAMPAIGN IS UNIQUE.

ENEMY TERRITORY IS SIMULTANEOUSLY FRIENDLY TERRITORY, AND THE GERMANS IN ITALY ARE BOARDING STRICTLY ON A DUE BILL. SOMETIMES, WHEN THEY POINT A GUN, THEY GET SERVICE. WHEN THE GUN IS TURNED

1943

AWAY, THE SERVICE GOES TO THE ALLIES.

A SYMPTOM OF GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S RAPID ADVANCE IS THE NUMBER OF ITALIAN GENERALS WHO CHECK IN, VOLUNTARILY OR OTHERWISE. OWING TO MILITARY TRADITION AND REGULATION, A GENERAL IS A LITTLE MORE RELUCTANT THAN THE AVERAGE CIVILIAN TO ACCEPT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER IN A GOOD CAUSE, BUT FIVE OF THEM WERE TAKEN TODAY AS WE CRUISED FRONT-LINE ROADS IN OUR JEEP.

FIRST THE BRITISH GOT ONE. HE WAS CAPTURED SITTING IN HIS CAR BY THE EDGE OF A DRY RIVER BED BY CAPT.JACK BAKER, ASSISTANT PROVOST MARSHAL, WHO WAS RIDING A MOTORCYCLE. THE GENERAL, WHOSE NAME WAS MEDORI, HAD LITTLE TO SAY, BUT HIS DRIVER, A SICILIAN, STATED THAT ITALIAN POLITICS WERE IN GREAT CONFUSION, THAT SICILY SHOULD BE INDEPENDENT, AND THAT HE WONDERED WHAT AMERICAN MOVIE STARS, WHOM HE ADMIRED, WERE DURING IN THIS WAR.

"THEY ARE WORKING HARD," SAID THIS CORRESPONDENT.

"GOOD," SAID THE DRIVER.

CANADIANS OF THE EIGHTH ARMY EVENED THE SCORE A COPULE OF HOURS LATER WITH A GENERAL OF THEIR OWN. STUNG BY THIS DEVELOPMENT, THE BRITISH LAUNCHED A RALLY AND CAPTURED THREE MORE GENERALS BEFORE NIGHTFALL. THE FINAL SCORE FOR THE DAY STOOD AT FOUR TO ONE FOR THE BRITISH.

WITH THE INVADING AMERICAN ARMY IN ITALY SEPT 10-(DELAYED)-THIS IS THE STORY OF FORCES WHICH BACKSTOPPED THE LANDING IN SALERNO BAY AND WE ARE STILL POISED, LIKE SITTING DUCKS, ON THIS SECOND DAY OF THE INVASION, AWAITING ORDERS TO REINFORCE SOME WEAK SPOTS OR--BEST OF ALL--TO BREAK THROUGH.

THIS IS TOUGH BUSINESS--NOT SO EASY AS SICILY PROVED TO BE--BUT IT IS GOING WELL AND ON THE HEADQUARTERS SHIP OF LT.GEN.ARK W.CLARK, WHERE THIS IS BEING WRITTEN, THERE IS A PROPER SORT OF OPTIMISM. THE ENEMY IS NOT UNDERRATED, BUT WE KNOW WE HAVE ENOUGH STUFF TO DO THE TRICK.

THE LUCK OF THE DRAW PLACED ME WITH A HARD-FIGHTING, FAST-TRAVELING DIVISION WHICH ALREADY HAS MADE A BIG NAME FOR ITSELF AND IN THIS SHOW HAS BEEN GIVEN THE TICKLISH JOB OF GOING WHERE TROOPS WILL BE MOST NEEDED. OUR REGIMENT LOADED INTO ONE OF THE FIRST OF THE PRICELESS CRAFT WHICH HAVE REVOLUTIONIZED THE TACTICS OF LANDING ON HOSTILE SHORES.

WE KNEW THIS INVASION WASN'T GOING TO BE EASY AS EARLY AS 4 P.M. SEPT.8, WHEN TWO GERMAN FIGHTER BOMBERS ON RECONNAISSANCE CAME OVER.

SO WE JOINED ANOTHER GREAT CONVOY, AS IMPOSING A LANDING FLEET AS MUCH-INVADED ITALY EVER SAW. THE GOOD NEWS OF ITALY'S CAPITULATION CAME BY RADIO, BUT IT WAS REALIZED THAT WOULDN'T MAKE MUCH DIFFERENCE INSOFAR AS THE LANDING WAS CONCERNED.

FROM MY POST I COULD SEE THE SHIPS POURING ON THE BEACH UNDER FIRE, BUT OUR ORDERS WERE JUST TO CRUISE AROUND UNTIL NEEDED.

ONE COMPANY, HOWEVER, WAS DETACHED TO HELP A NAVAL PARTY CAPTURE THE ISLAND OF VENTOTENE, OFF THE BAY OF NAPLES, WHERE A HUNDRED GERMANS HAD BARRICADED THEMSELVES. ITALIAN OFFICERS THERE SAID MUSSOLINI REALLY HAS THE NAPOLEONIC AMBITION OF STAGING A COMEBACK AND GOING DOWN FIGHTING AS HE ALWAYS FIGURED TO DO.

THE IRONY OF FATE BROUGHT AMERICAN INVADING FORCES RIGHT WHERE MANY THOUSANDS OF TOURISTS BEFORE THEM HAD PAID LOTS OF MONEY TO GO--WHERE ARE TO BE SEEN THE FINEST REMNANTS OF GREEK TEMPLES IN ITALY. FROM WHAT THIS CORRESPONDENT COULD SEE THROUGH POWERFUL GLASSES THEY REMAIN UNDAMAGED. THERE WAS SOME SHARP FIGHTING AROUND THEM WHEN THE TROOPS FIRST LANDED AT 3:30 SEPT.9, BUT THE SCENE OF ACTION SOON SHIFTED BACK TO THE HILLS AND THE CHIEF DANGER WAS FROM SHELLS AND BOMBS. HISTORY ISN'T FREAKISH AND THE GREEKS BUILT A GREAT CITY HERE BECAUSE IT IS A GEOGRAPHICALLY GOOD SPOT FOR A LANDING AND FOR DEFENSE.

REPORTS REACHING THIS HEADQUARTERS SHIP TELL OF GOOD PROGRESS, BUT OF THE GERMANS MASSING THEIR FORCES FOR WHAT MAY WELL TURN INTO SHARP COUNTER-ATTACKS. IN LANDINGS LIKE THIS THE CRITICAL PERIOD DOESN'T COME IN THE FIRST FEW DAYS BUT ONLY WHEN THE ENEMY IS SURE YOU HAVE COMMITTED YOUR MAIN FORCES AND HE CAN GO ALL OUT AGAINST YOU.

MEANWHILE EVERY HOUR WAS BEING USED TO ADVANTAGE. SALERNO BAY HAS A FLAT, SANDY BEACH OF 30 OR 40 YARDS IN DEPTH TURNING INTO ROUGH GRASS AND SHRUBS, OUR LANDING SHIPS AND CRAFT CAN GO STRAIGHT ONTO THE BEACH. SOME USED PONTOONS TO HELP THEM OVER THE LAST GAP AND IN ONE CASE I SAW A LINE OF MEN STANDING UP TO THEIR WAISTS IN WATER FORMING A HUMAN CHAIN TO PASS BOXES OF AMMUNITION ON TO THE LAND. THE BEACH WAS PILED HIGH WITH MATERIAL OF ALL KINDS. TRUCKS WERE DASHING UP TO TAKE THEM INLAND WHILE THE "DUCKS," THOSE AMPHIBIOUS TRUCKS, ROLL IN AND OUT OF WATER AT WILL, PLAYING THE SAME REMARKABLE ROLE THEY DID IN SICILY.

EVERYWHERE THERE IS EVIDENCE OF ALLIED POWER. THE GERMANS HAVE NOT SHOWN THEIR FULL STRENGTH YET, BUT NEITHER HAVE WE.

THIS IS AN ARMY THAT LIKES TO GO PLACES AND DO THINGS. WHEN WORD WENT AROUND OUR BIVOUAC THAT THE DIVISION WAS TO MOVE THE NEXT DAY THERE WAS THAT SORT OF JOY WHICH SHOWS HIGH MORALE. IT WAS THE REAL JOY OF BATTLE AFTER ONLY A FEW WEEKS OF IDLENESS.

THE MEN CAME UP TO ME AND TOLD ME I WAS LUCKY TO BE WITH THEIR REGIMENT BECAUSE THIS WAS THE "BEST," "FASTEST" OUTFIT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. THAT IS THE WAY SOLDIERS SHOULD FEEL, AND THEY HAVE GOT A COMMANDER THEY WILL FOLLOW ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

THE BAND WAS COMPOSED OF SOME 24 SOLDIERS WHO RANGED IN EXPERIENCE ALL THE WAY FROM PROFESSIONAL MUSICIANS TO TOOTLERS WHO LAST SAW A TRUMPET IN THE HIGH SCHOOL BAND. THEY HAD VERY LITTLE SHEET MUSIC AND USED MACHINE-GUN OIL TO LUBRICATE THEIR INSTRUMENTS. THEY HAD CUT UP PLASTIC PLAYING CARDS TO REPLACE WORN OUT REEDS.

BUT NO BAND EVER HAD A MORE ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE WHEN IT SWUNG INTO "WASHINGTON POST," AND "TENTING ON THE OLD CAMP GROUND," WHILE THE DOUGHBOYS WERE GETTING READY FOR THEIR PLUNGE INTO THE DARKNESS.

THEY HAD PLAYED ON A BEACH NEAR LICATA IN SICILY AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF POUNDING ARTILLERY.

IN ACTUAL LANDING OPERATIONS THE MUSICIANS STOW AWAY THEIR INSTRUMENTS AND TAKE UP TASKS OF MORE IMMEDIATE URGENCY. HALF OF THEM CARRY STRETCHERS AND THE OTHER 12 ACT AS COURIERS.

WITH GENERAL EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED COMMAND POST, SEPT. 12--GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, ALLIED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, IN ANNOUNCING THE TERMS OF THE ARMISTICE GRANTED TO THE ITALIANS, SAID THAT EVEN IF THEY GAVE THE ALLIES NO MATERIAL AID BEYOND THE POSSESSION OF THE ITALIAN FLEET THAT IN ITSELF MADE IT WHOLLY WORTHWHILE.

GENERAL EISENHOWER SAID THAT THE TERMS WERE DRAWN UP BEFORE THE GERMAN FORCES IN ITALY HAD BEEN STRENGTHENED SUFFICIENTLY TO MAKE ITALY AN OCCUPIED COUNTRY.

THE ARMISTICE DOCUMENT INCLUDES 12 CLAUSES DESIGNED TO TAKE ITALY OUT OF THE WAR AND CONVERT HER MILITARY POTENTIAL AS FULLY AS POSSIBLE TO THE USE OF THE ALLIES.

THE CLAUSE PROVIDING FOR TURNING OVER OF ALLIED PRISONERS AND INTERNEES, TRANSFER OF ITALIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING AND AIRCRAFT, THE SURRENDER OF CORSICA, GUARANTEED USE OF AIRFIELDS AND PORTS HAVE BEEN RENDERED INAPPLICABLE IN PORTIONS OF ITALY WHERE THE GERMAN ARMED FORCES HAVE TAKEN CONTROL.

MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO'S GOVERNMENT AT ABOUT THE TIME THE TERMS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT 12-(AP)-A NOTED UNITED STATES SPITFIRE FIGHTER GROUP WHICH RACKED UP ITS FIRST VICTORY OVER THE GERMAN AIR FORCE DURING THE DIEPPE RAID IN AUGUST, 1942, BROUGHT ITS TOTAL SCORE OF VICTIMS TO 100 WHILE COVERING THE FIFTH ARMY LANDINGS IN THE SALERNO AREA OF ITALY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE 99TH AND 100TH TRIUMPHS CAME WHEN 12 SPITFIRES OF THE GROUP INTERCEPTED 36 BOMB-CARRYING GERMAN FIGHTERS EN ROUTE TO ATTACK ALLIED TROOPS ON THE SALERNO BEACHES. THE SPITFIRES SHOT DOWN A MESSERSCHMITT-109 AND A FOCKE WULF-190 AND FORCED THE OTHERS TO JETTISON THEIR BOMBS AND FLEE.

CAPT.DALE E.SHAFTER, JR., 25, OF ROUTE 2, WAYNESVILLE, OHIO, WAS THE HERO OF THE ENGAGEMENT. WHILE HIS SQUADRON MATES TACKLED 20 ME-109S IN ONE FLIGHT HE ALONE WADED INTO 16 FOCKE WULFS APPROACHING IN A SECOND WAVE. HE BAGGED ONE AND THE OTHERS WENT HOME AT ONCE.

"I HARDLY SAW THE MESSERSCHMITTS I WENT THROUGH THEM SO FAST ON MY WAY AFTER THE FOCKE WULFS," SHAFTER SAID LATER. "I REMEMBER I HUNCHED WAY DOWN IN MY COCKPIT FOR FEAR THE MESSERSCHMITTS WOULD LET ME HAVE IT."

THIS SPITFIRE GROUP WAS LED BY COL.JOHN R.HAWKINS OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., WHEN IT FOUGHT AT DIEPPE. WHEN HAWKINS TOOK ANOTHER COMMAND THE GROUP WAS LED BY COL.FRED O.DEAN OF ST.PETERSBURG, FLA. DEAN WAS THE LEADER WHEN THE OUTFIT FLEW INTO THE ORAN-AREA ON THE DAY THE ALLIED FORCES LANDED IN NORTH AFRICA LAST NOVEMBER.

DEAN RECENTLY RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES AND THE COMMAND OF THE GROUP PASSED FIRST TO LT.COL.FRANK A.HILL OF HILLSDALE, N.J., AND THEN TO THE PRESENT COMMANDER, COL.C.N.MCCORKLE, 28-YEAR-OLD WEST POINTER FROM NEWTON, N.C., WHO PREVIOUSLY SERVED WITH A FIGHTER UNIT IN ALASKA.

AT THE TIME OF HER CAPITULATION, ITALY'S WAR FLEET WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE INCLUDED SEVEN BATTLESHIPS. THOSE AT MALTA ARE THE 35,000-TON ITALIA AND VITTORIO VENETO AND THE 24,000-TON ANDREA DORIA AND CAIO DUILIO. THE ROMA IS KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN SUNK BUT THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE OTHERS IS UNKNOWN.

ONLY LAST NOVEMBER THE PICTURE WAS FAR DIFFERENT FOR THE ALLIES. THEN THE FRENCH NAVY, ANCHORED AT TOULON, WAS A FORMIDABLE FLEET OF 60 VESSELS INCLUDING THREE BATTLESHIPS, SEVEN CRUISERS AND 25 DESTROYERS. IT WAS OUT OF THE WAR BUT READY FOR ACTION AND A TEMPTING PRIZE FOR SOME NAZI COUP.

ITALY WITH A FLEET OF SEVEN BATTLESHIPS, THREE HEAVY CRUISERS, NINE LIGHT CRUISERS, 25 DESTROYERS AND 60 SUBMARINES WAS IN THE WAR BUT HARDLY MORE EFFECTIVE THAN THE FRENCH. MOST OF THESE SHIPS REMAINED AT THEIR BASES, UNABLE OR UNWILLING TO MEET ALLIED FORCES.

ON NOV.27, THE FRENCH NAVY IN A DRAMATIC SUICIDE SCUTTLED ITSELF AS THE GERMANS OCCUPIED TOULON AFTER THE ALLIED LANDINGS IN NORTH AFRICA.

BY FLEEING TO SURRENDER TO THE ALLIES, THE ITALIAN NAVY ESCAPED A SIMILAR FATE.

THEN THE ITALIANS TOLD THEM OF THE ARMISTICE, AND THAT THE DESTROYER WAS BOUND FOR AN ALLIED PORT AS RAPIDLY AS IT COULD GET THERE.

THE AIRMEN, FORCED DOWN OFF SARDINIA, WERE DRIFTING IN A RUBBER DINGHY. WHEN THEY SAW ITALIAN WARSHIPS APPROACH, THE PLANE'S CAPTAIN, FLIGHT SGT.D.WATSON OF VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, TOLD HIS MEN TO LIE LOW SO THEY WOULDN'T BE SEEN.

BUT WHEN IT SEEMED THE DINGHY MIGHT BE PLOWED UNDER BY A DESTROYER HEADING STRAIGHT FOR IT, THEY SIGNALLED TO BE RESCUED. GERMAN PLANES MEANWHILE WERE BOMBING THE FLEET, BUT THE DINGHY PASSENGERS WERE NOT INJURED.

WHEN THE AIRMEN CLIMBED UP A ROPE LADDER, THE DESTROYER'S CREW CHEERED THEM AND THE CAPTAIN SHOOK EACH MAN BY HAND AS HE REACHED THE DECK.

ITALIAN OFFICERS GAVE THEM FRESH CLOTHES AND GAVE UP THEIR OWN BERTHS FOR THEM.

"IT WAS A BIG RELIEF," SAID WATSON, WHO SUFFERED CUTS ON THE FACE AND LEGS. THE RADIO OPERATOR ALSO HAD MINOR WOUNDS.

SERGT.R.R.HARDWICKE SIGNALLED FROM THE DESTROYER IN ENGLISH TO A MAURAUDER RECONNAISSANCE PLANE FOR THE PILOT TO LEAD THE ITALIAN FLEET TO PORT.

FROM A WIDE CHOICE OF SOUVENIRS IN THE DESTROYER CAPTAIN'S CABIN, WATSON CHOSE A COPY OF SHAKESPEARE'S "AS YOU LIKE IT" IN ENGLISH AND ITALIAN. THE CAPTAIN INSCRIBED IT: "IN REMEMBRANCE OF ONE NIGHT AT SEA, AND ONE NIGHT WITH US."

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN AIRBASE IN SICILY, SEPT.12-(AP)-FLYING HIS 50TH MISSION-- THE ONE THAT WINS A FURLOUGH BACK HOME--1ST LT. RODNEY FISHER OF 1318 SWANSON DRIVE, SACRAMENTO, CALIF., SHOT DOWN THREE GERMAN PLANES OVER ITALY YESTERDAY AND BECAME AN ACE.

THE 20-YEAR-OLD, BLOND MUSTACHED AIRMAN WAS ONE OF A GROUP OF 11 P-38 PILOTS PATROLLING THE BEACH SOUTH OF NAPLES WHERE AMERICAN REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES WERE BEING UNLOADED. THEY WERE SENT BY A GROUND CONTROLLER TO ATTACK 12 TO 15 BOMB-CARRYING MESSERSCHMITTS AND FOCKE-WULFS APPARENTLY SEEKING TO STRIKE THE BEACH PARTIES AND LANDING CRAFT.

THE ONLY MEMBER OF HIS FORMATION TO SHOOT DOWN AN ENEMY PLANE, FISHER PLAYED A VITAL ROLE IN BREAKING UP THE PLANNED ASSAULT. TWO OF HIS VICTIMS WERE ME 109'S, THE THIRD A FOCKE-WULF.

"IT WASN'T ANYTHING SPECIAL," HE TOLD HIS COMMANDING OFFICER ON RETURNING AFTER DARK. "FOR ONCE WE WERE ABOVE THEM AND HAD THE EDGE. I DON'T KNOW WHAT THE FOCKE-WULF THOUGHT HE WAS DOING,

BUT HE PULLED UP EXPOSING HIS BELLY AND I BLEW HIM UP WITH THE VERY FIRST BURST.

I FOLLOWED HIM LONG ENOUGH TO HIT HIM A COUPLE TIMES MORE, AND THEN WATCHED HIM LEVEL OFF AND CRASH INTO A MOUNTAINSIDE. THE THIRD PLANE BROKE OFF FROM ONE OF SEVERAL SPITFIRES WHICH MEANWHILE HAD COME UP TO JOIN THE FUN, AND I MANAGED TO PARK ON HIS TAIL. WE WERE OVER THE WATER WHEN I FINALLY HIT HIM AND HE WENT STRAIGHT DOWN."

FISHER, WHO JOINED THE ARMY DEC.19, 1941, GOT ANOTHER ME-109 LAST MAY 25, ON "MY SISTER'S BIRTHDAY." THE OTHER IN HIS BAG OF FIVE WAS AN ITALIAN REGGIANI HE ENCOUNTERED SEVERAL DAYS AGO NEAR NAPLES.

SAUER WHO IS FROM 162 EAST 80TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY, LED THE 38 MEDICAL OFFICERS AND 40 MALE NURSES ASHORE TO ESTABLISH THE SMALLER OF THE EVACUATION UNITS.

SEP 11 1943

HIS CHIEF ASSISTANTS WERE MAJ.HOWARD PATTERSON, CHIEF SURGEON, OF 137 EAST 80TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY; LT.COL.JOHN G.BAXTER OF PHOENIXVILLE, PA., CHIEF OF MEDICINE, AND CAPT.GEORGE TRUMAN OF MESA, ARIZ., CHIEF X-RAY TECHNICIAN.

BOTH HOSPITALS WERE UNDER THE DIRECTION OF LT.COL.HUBERT L.BINKLEY OF DENVER, COLO.

THE MEDICAL CORPS DISCLOSED THAT IT WAS BEATING ITS OWN FAST RECORD ESTABLISHED DURING THE SICILIAN INVASION BY SEVERAL DAYS WITH THIS NEW PLAN. HERETOFORE WOUNDED TROOPS COULD BE GIVEN ONLY FIRST AID AND KEPT AS COMFORTABLE AS POSSIBLE THROUGHOUT THE FIRST TWO OR THREE DAYS AFTER THE INITIAL LANDINGS. IT TOOK THAT LONG TO GET THE HOSPITAL SHIPS OR EMPTY TRANSPORTS INTO THE INVASION AREA.

IN PART THE NEW RECORD OF MEDICAL AID WAS MADE POSSIBLE BY THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMPLETE X-RAY APPARATUS COMPACT ENOUGH TO BE CARRIED IN THREE SMALL TRUNKS. THE TRUNKS HOLD NOT ONLY THE CAMERAS BUT ALSO THE EQUIPMENT FOR DEVELOPING THE PICTURES ON THE SPOT.

OTHER EQUIPMENT OF THE HOSPITALS INCLUDED MOBILE OPERATING TABLES, SPECIAL GENERATORS FOR PRODUCING ELECTRICITY FOR LIGHTS AND X-RAYS, GASOLINE HEATERS FOR STERILIZING INSTRUMENTS, AS WELL AS TENTS, COTS, BLANKETS AND A MOUNTAIN OF BANDAGING.

THE MEDICAL CORPS HAD ITS OWN TRANSPORT, MAINLY A LARGE TRUCK AND TRAILER EACH CARRYING TWO WARD TENTS AND EQUIPMENT.

THE MALE NURSES WERE TRAINED TO DO THE HEAVY WORK OF ESTABLISHING THE HOSPITALS, BY UNLOADING THE TENTS AND SUPPLIES AND SETTING UP THE TENTS WITH THE SPEED AND PRECISION OF VETERAN CIRCUS TEAMS. THEY HAD THE FIRST UNITS OF THE TWO HOSPITALS READY WITHIN FOUR HOURS AFTER THEY WENT ASHORE.

"THE WHOLE TRICK IN SAVING THE LIVES OF MEN WOUNDED IN COMBAT IS TO GET THEM INTO THE HANDS OF A DOCTOR RIGHT AWAY," SAUER SAID. "WE'RE GOING TO DO IN MINUTES WHAT USED TO TAKE HOURS OR EVEN DAYS."

VALLETTA, MALTA, SEPT 12--NO SMALL BOY IN A CHRISTMAS TOYLAND WAS EVER MORE WIDE-EYED WITH PLEASURE THAN THE BRITISH SEAMEN WHO TOOK ME ON A CRUISE TODAY AMONG THE SHIPS OF THE ITALIAN FLEET.

THEY THINK IT'S A "BLOODY BEAUTIFUL" FLEET, AND I GUESS IT IS.

NAVAL MEN HERE SAY THE SHIPS HAVE A CLEAN DESIGN, ARE STRONGLY BUILT, WELL-PROTECTED, AND WELL-ARMORED. AND THEY'RE MODERN.

IN OUR DIRTY OLD TUG WE MOVED COCKILY AMONG THEM THIS AFTERNOON AS THEY LAY OUTSIDE VALLETTA HARBOR. WE LOOKED THEM UP AND DOWN WITH A HAPPY EYE.

WE PASSED THE VITTORIO VENETO AND THE ITALIA, THE BEST OF THE BATTLESHIPS, AND JIM BAXTER, OUR COXSWAIN, A LINCOLNSHIREMAN WHO HAS BEEN AT SEA ALL HIS LIFE, SAID:

"THE BATTLESHIPS, YES. THEY LOOK SOLID AND THEY'RE PRETTY WELL-PROPORTIONED. THEY HAVE A GRIM LOOK ABOUT THEM, DON'T THEY? I THINK WE'LL FIND THEM ALL RIGHT. THEY LOOK DIFFERENT THAN OURS. BUT THEY LOOK PRETTY GOOD."

THESE TWO PRIZES OF 35,000 TONS ARE CONSIDERED BY EXPERTS TO BE TOP-CLASS SLUGGERS OF ANY NAVY IS PROPERLY MANNED.

WE PASSED THE CRUISERS CADORNA AND MAGNO, (MAGNO IS UNLISTED IN "JANES' FIGHTING SHIPS") AND SEAMAN ROBERT HASST, A YORKSHIREMAN, SAID "THE LOOK BLOODY GOOD TO ME. PLENTY OF STUFF ABOUT THEM. PRETTY MODERN. AND JUST THINK. WE GOT THEM WITHOUT A SHOT FIRED."

THEY LAY OFF MALTA, A LOVELY SIGHT, SCATTERED ACROSS THOUSANDS OF YARDS OF SEA, THE CREAM OF THE FOURTH LARGEST NAVY IN THE WORLD--BATTLESHIPS, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS.

IT WAS IRONICAL TO SEE THEM HERE. THREE YEARS AGO WHEN I WAS IN ITALY THE FASCIST GOVERNMENT TOOK CORRESPONDENTS ON A VISIT TO THE FLEET TO REFUTE RUMORS THAT THE SHIPS HAD BEEN BADLY DAMAGED IN AN ENGAGEMENT WITH THE BRITISH. AND TODAY THE BRITISH HAD US ON AN INSPECTION OF THE SAME FLEET TO SEE WHAT DAMAGE HAD BEEN DONE TO THEM BY THE GERMANS.

THE ADMIRAL WELCOMED THE OFFICERS ON THE BRIDGE IN FAULTLESS ENGLISH AND DINED THEM IN HIS PALE GREEN SUITE.

THE FLEET THEN MOVED INTO THE HARBOR WITH BRITISH WARSHIPS PIPING IT IN AND THE ADMIRAL WENT ASHORE. HE WAS MET BY ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM, SUPREME ALLIED NAVAL COMMANDER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, WHO SAID: "GOOD AFTERNOON, ADMIRAL. HOW DO YOU DO. SIT DOWN."

AMERICAN TROOPS.

THE LANDING IN ITALY WILL BE THE THIRD MAJOR AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION FOR MOST OF THEM AND THEY KNOW HOW TO DO IT NOW WITH A MINIMUM OF FUSS AND FLURRY.

THE AIR SERVICE COMMAND BOYS I AM GOING TO LAND WITH KNOW WHAT LIES AHEAD AND THEY'VE TAKEN ALL THE PRECAUTIONS POSSIBLE TO GUARD AGAINST THE ACCIDENTS AND MIS-CHANCES THAT MAY BEFALL AN INVASION LANDING, THE TOUGHEST OF ALL MILITARY TASKS.

THEY WORRY MORE ABOUT THE WEATHER THAN THEY DO ABOUT ENEMY BULLETS. THE SOFT DAYS OF SUMMER ARE DRAWING TO A CLOSE AND EVEN ALONG THE MILD COASTS OF SICILY THERE IS A HINT OF AUTUMN IN THE AIR. SUNTAN UNIFORMS HAVE BEEN DISCARDED FOR THE MORE SERVICABLE OLIVE DRAB WOOL GARB WHICH HELPS PREVENT COLDS AND PNEUMONIA AMONG THE TROOPS.

ALREADY WHILE WAITING TO BOARD SHIP IN THE GREAT EXPEDITION AGAINST ITALY THE SOLDIERS HAVE HAD TO SLEEP THROUGH HALF A NIGHT OF SOAKING RAIN THAT DRENCHED THEM AND THEIR BEDCLOTHING. THE THIN LEAVED OLIVE TREES UNDER WHICH WE ARE BIVOUACKED JUST BROKE UP THE SIZE OF THE DROPS. SINCE THE BOYS HAD PACKED MOST OF THEIR EQUIPMENT ON THE TRUCKS, ALL THEY COULD DO WAS CRAWL UNDER THE VEHICLES OR LIE THERE AND TAKE IT. BUT THE BOYS TOOK THE WHOLE THING IN GOOD SPIRITS, LAUGHING AND JOKING THROUGH THE NIGHT.

"IT IS FUNNY NOW BUT MAN, THINK WHAT IT'LL BE LIKE IN A COUPLE OF MONTHS WHEN THE RAIN TURNS TO ICICLES," CALLED FIRST SGT. PHIL DAGOSTINO, OF ALBION, N.Y.

-DASH-

ONE OF THE MOST NECESSARY TASKS TO PROTECT VENICLES FROM SALT WATER CORROSION IN THE LANDING IS TO WATERPROOF THE BATTERIES, SPARKPLUGS AND OTHER EXPOSED PARTS WITH A NEW COMPOUND WHICH HAS AN ASBESTOS AND CRUDE OIL BASE. IT FEELS LIKE A MIXTURE OF PARAFFIN AND MODELING CLAY, AND PROVED VERY SUCCESSFUL DURING THE SICILIAN INVASION. IT MUST BE REMOVED AFTER THE LANDING BEFORE THE CARS CAN BE DRIVEN ANY DISTANCE. THE SPARKPLUGS, FOR ONE THING, WOULD HEAT UP TOO MUCH IF THE COMPOUND WERE LEFT ON.

THE JEEP LOANED ME BY LIEUT. COL. L.C.HOWELL, OF NEWARK, N.J., WAS WATERPROOFED BY PVT. ELMER V.CHASE, A YOUNG SOLDIER FROM BOISE, IDAHO, AND CORP. JOSEPH D.LEAHY, A STOCKY BLOND DRIVER FROM GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., WHO USED TO BE ONE OF THE NATION'S BEST KNOWN AMATEUR BIKE RIDERS. LEAHY COMPETED AT PARIS IN THE 1928 OLYMPICS AND PLACED 10TH IN THE 20 MILE RACE. IT WAS A SLOW, WET TRACK, HE EXPLAINED. IN THE ARMY LEAHY HAS SWITCHED FROM HANDLEBARS TO THE WHEEL OF TWO AND A HALF TONS. HE FINDS IT A LITTLE HARDER TO STEER BUT EASIER ON THE LEGS.

AFTER ALL VEHICLES HAVE BEEN WATERPROOFED, ALL GEAR LOADED AND THE TRUCKS AND JEEPS NUMBERED IN THE ORDER THEY ARE TO DRIVE TO THE PIERS, THE ASSEMBLY AREA MUST BE POLICED. ALL REFUSE IS BURIED AND EVERY SCRAP OF PAPER PICKED UP.

"OTHER UNITS MAY WANT TO USE THIS AREA AFTER WE LEAVE AND I WANT THEM TO FIND IT CLEAN," SAID LT. COL. WILBUR A.SPEIR, OF MOLINE, ILL. "IN THE ARMY THERE IS ONLY ONE KIND OF CLEAN. THAT'S ALL THE WAY CLEAN."

-DASH-

THEN COMES THE MOST TEDIOUS PART OF ALL AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS, THE WAIT FOR HOURS TO BOARD THE VESSEL.

THE CREWS LOOKED LONGINGLY AT THE MEDITERRANEAN, BUT THERE WAS NO CHANCE TO LEAVE THEIR VEHICLES TO TAKE A SWIM BECAUSE OF THE POSSIBILITY A MOVE-UP ORDER MIGHT COME AT ANY MOMENT. SOME OF THE BOYS THREW THEMSELVES ON THE GROUND AND DOZED. SOME PLAYED DESULTORY BLACKJACK FOR LOW STAKES TO KILL TIME. PVT. HARRY THORP OF (106 SOUTH CLEVELAND AVE.) WILMINGTON, DEL., PULLED UP A WOODEN K RATION BOX AND PLAYED SOLITAIRE CONTENTEDLY.

SICILIANS JOIN CELEBRATION OF ITALY INVASION

:R PRACTICALLY GONE FROM OLD
LAND CITIES (750)

BY HAL BOYLE

(ADVANCE)..WITH THE AEF IN SICILY, (AP)--LEAVES FROM A WAR REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK:

SICILIANS TOOK THE INVASION OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND QUITE CALMLY. SOME OPENLY ENJOYED IT. MANY HAVE LONGHATED ITALY BECAUSE, UNDER MUSSOLINI, THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT HAD TAXED THEM HEAVILY AND OPPRESSED THEM IN OTHER WAYS.

LIKE MOST ISLANDERS, THEY DON'T WANT OUTSIDERS BOSSING THEM OR MIXING IN THEIR PRIVATE FEUDS. THEY WOULD RATHER FIGHT AMONG THEMSELVES IN PEACE.

A FEW HOURS AFTER THE INVASION OF ITALY BEGAN I WAS STANDING IN A BOOKSTORE IN CATANIA WHEN THE PROPRIETOR CAME UP.

HE "DID YOU KNOW THE BRITISHLA

"DID YOU KNOW THE BRITISH LANDED IN ITALY THIS MORNING?" HE ASKED IN A LOW VOICE.

"YES, I JUST HEARD IT OVER THE RADIO."

"YOU WILL HAVE ALL ITALY," HE SAID, RUBBING HIS HANDS WITH SATISFACTION.

"DOES THAT PLEASE YOU?" I ASKED CURIOUSLY.

"WHY NOT?" HE ANSWERED, "IT IS ITALY'S TURN. IT WILL BE A GOOD THING. LOOK WHAT THEY DID TO US."

HIS REACTION WAS TYPICAL. NO ONE IN THE STREETS WAS SURPRISED. EVER SINCE THE FALL OF MESSINA THEY HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR THE ALLIES TO BRING THE END OF THE WAR NEARER BY THIS HISTORIC STEP. THERE WILL BE FEW IN SICILY TO WEEP ITALY'S FALL.

AIRPORT LOOKED SERENE AND PEACEFUL IN THE HOUR OF TWILIGHT WHEN WE LANDED.

"WONDER IF THE GERMANS EVER PAY A VISIT HERE SINCE WE DROVE THEM OFF," I ASKED LT. COL. JOSEPH PHILLIPS, FORMER MANAGING EDITOR OF NEWSWEEK MAGAZINE AND NOW PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SICILY. JUST THEN THREE MESSERSCHMITTS WHEELED OUT OF THE LOW OVERHANGING CLOUDS IN A WHINING DIVE.

"THERES YOUR ANSWER," PHILLIPS SAID AS WE JOINED OTHER PASSENGERS IN SPRINTING FOR COVER. AS WE TURNED THE CORNER OF A

HANGER A SERIES OF CANNON SHELLS FROM ONE NAZI FIGHTER BURST BY OUR PLANE LESS THAN 50 YARDS AWAY. THE FRAGMENTS PUNCTURED ONE TIRE AND SLIGHTLY INJURED A BRITISH RAF GROUND WORKER. THEN THE ACK ACK FIRE STRUCK HOME.

ONE NAZI FIGHTER SPIRALED SLOWLY, THEN CRASHED. THE OTHER TWO FLEW AWAY WITH SWIFT SPITFIRES IN PURSUIT. THE SOUND OF OVERTAXED MOTORS DIED TO A DRONING.

THE SMUDGES OF WAR ARE BEING RUBBED OUT OF PALERMO AS IF BY A GIANT ERASER. EACH DAY SEES MORE OF THE BOMB DEBRIS REMOVED, AND EXCEPT FOR AN OCCASIONAL SORTIE BY AIR RAIDERS IT WEARS AGAIN THE LOOK OF PEACE. WHEN AMERICAN TROOPS MARCHED IN ON JULY 22 ONLY A FEW RESIDENTS STOOD ALONG THE STREET TO CHEER THEM. NOW THE POPULACE HAS FLOWED BACK FROM NEARBY TOWNS AND THE STORES ARE OPEN. THE BIGGEST SURPRISE TO THE SOLDIERS WERE SILK STOCKINGS OFFERED AT TWO DOLLARS A PAIR. THEY WERE QUICKLY BOUGHT UP BY BOYS HOPING TO MAKE A HIT WITH THE GIRL FRIENDS BACK HOME.

THE POSTCARD DEALERS ARE USED TO HIGH-PRESSURING TOURISTS IN PEACE TIME. WHEN YOU GO FOR A WALK THE ONLY WAY TO KEEP THEM FROM STUFFING YOUR POCKETS WITH POSTCARD PICTURES OF CATHEDRALS, BEACHES NUDE LADY STATUES AND FAT MEN ON HORSEBACK IS TO TAKE ALONG A TOMMY GUN AND BRASS KNUCKLES.

THERE IS NO DEFENSE AGAINST THE SHRILL VOICED URCHINS WHO SELL ALMONDS ON EVERY OTHER SQUARE FOOT OF PALERMO. THE ONLY WAY TO COMBAT THIS PLAGUE IS TO BUY TWO FIVE LIRE SACKS HOLD ONE IN EACH HAND AND STICK AN ALMOND NUT PROMINENTLY IN YOUR FRONT TEETH. THIS WILL LEAD THE OTHER YOUNG SALES MEN TO SUSPECT YOU DO NOT WISH ANY MORE ALMONDS AND THEY WILL TIPTOE AWAY AND LET YOU ALONE.

BACK HOME IN COLUMBUS, OHIO, BEFORE THE WAR PRIVATE FORREST FRIEND, 21, (OF 279 SOUTH DAKOTA AVENUE) USED TO DRIVE OUT TO THE LOCAL AIRPORT JUST TO WATCH THE PLANES COME AND GO. HE WAS CRAZY OVER AIRPORTS. THEN THIS BIG GOOD NATURED KID, WHO HAD PLAYED TACKLE FOR CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL IN COLUMBUS, LINED UP ACROSS OVER HERE IN A BIGGER GAME. HE THOUGHT HE WAS THROUGH WITH AIRPLANES, BUT NOW HE IS STATIONED ON AN ALLIED FIELD WHERE HE WORKS ON THE TRANSPORTATION STAFF. HE IS ON DUTY ON THE FIELD TEN HOURS A DAY AND ON CALL THE REST OF THE 24. HE SLEEPS ON THE FIELD. HE IS ALMOST NEVER OUT OF THE SOUND OF AIRPLANE ENGINES. "I STILL LIKE AIRPORTS AS MUCH AS EVER" HE SAID.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS GET ALONG WITH EACH OTHER MUCH BETTER THAN THEY DO WITH EACH OTHER'S RATIONS. THE YANKEE BOYS PARTICULARLY DISLIKE THE BRITISH TEA. THEY MISS THEIR COFFEE.

THE FIRST THING ONE SOLDIER DID UPON RETURNING TO HIS OWN MESS AFTER EATING FOR TWO DAYS WITH A BRITISH UNIT WAS TO GULP DOWN THREE CANTEEN CUPS OF LEMONADE.

"I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE A LEMONADE FAN," SAID THE MESS SERGEANT.

"I AINT," SAID THE SOLDIER," I JUST LIKE IT TODAY BECAUSE ITS WET AND IT AINT TEA."

WHEN IT LANDED, PETTY OFFICER JOHN T.DUFFY OF CLEVELAND, O., FORMER MEMBER OF THE OHIO LEGISLATURE, RAN OUT TO GREET THE SAILORS.

AT THE LANDINGS, YOUNG SEAMEN POURED OUT ON THE BEACH AS EXCITED AS IF THEY HAD JUST WON A FOOTBALL GAME. THEY LOVED IT. WORK OF EXPERTS (650)

(EDITOR'S NOTE--ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT OLEN CLEMENTS, WHO ACCOMPANIED AMPHIBIOUS FORCES ON THEIR LANDINGS SEPT. 4 EAST OF LAE, NEW GUINEA, IN THE FOLLOWING STORY TELLS HOW AMPHIBIOUS FORCES ARE "DOING THE JOB AND DOING IT WELL.")

BY OLEN CLEMENTS

(ADVANCE) SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-ALONG WITH THE NAVY'S SILENT SUBMARINE SERVICE, YOU CAN PUT DOWN ITS PACIFIC AMPHIBIOUS FORCE AS AN OUTFIT THAT REALLY IS GETTING ITS JOB DONE.

VIRTUALLY UNSUNG, IT IS LITTLE KNOWN OUTSIDE OF ITS OWN CLOSELY-KNIT CIRCLE, BUT IT BOASTS SOME REAL FIGHTING MEN--MOSTLY MEN SNATCHED FROM COMPARATIVELY RECENT CIVILIAN LIFE.

THEIR JOB IS TO GET FIGHTING MEN TO A PLACE TO FIGHT, AND, MOREOVER, GET THEM THERE SAFELY. THEY ARE DOING THAT JOB AND DOING IT WELL.

AMPHIBIOUS WORK IS A JOB FOR YOUNG MEN, SUCH AS LT.HOWARD M.GRAHAM OF (1545 PHILLIPS ST.) NEW ORLEANS, LA., LT. (JG) KEMBER GOFFIGON OF CAPE CHARLES, VA., AND LT. (JG) WILLIAM M. CAMPBELL OF (816 BURDETTE ST.) NEW ORLEANS--ALL CAPTAINS OF AMPHIBIOUS CRAFT IN THE PACIFIC.

THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE IS REQUIRED TO INVADE ENEMY WATERS, TRICKY CHANNELS, AND FIGHT OFF ANY OPPOSITION WHILE THE INVADING FORCE LANDS AND GETS SET TO FIGHT ON ITS OWN.

THE AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN LANDING EAST OF LAE WAS A PERFECT EXAMPLE OF HOW AN AMPHIBIOUS FORCE WORKS.

FIRST, SUFFICIENT SHIPPING TO MOVE A LARGE FORCE HAD TO BE ASSEMBLED SECRETLY. THEN LANDING TROOPS HAD TO BE REHEARSED SECRETLY, ALONG WITH THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE CREW. THE OPPORTUNITY FOR A LANDING CAME WHEN THE ALLIED AIR FORCE SUDDENLY GOT THE UPPER HAND OVER THE JAPANESE IN NEW GUINEA.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS GAVE THE WORD AND THE INVASION FORCE ASSEMBLED IN A HIDDEN BAY FAR FROM THE SCENE OF THE PROPOSED LANDING. ENOUGH FOOD WAS PUT ABOARD THE LANDING CRAFT FOR SEVERAL DAYS. AMMUNITION, CLOTHING, AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES WERE PILED ON.

THEN THE FLEET SAILED.

NONE BUT HIGH-RANKING OFFICERS KNEW ITS DESTINATION. THE WORK-DAY OF CREWS LENGTHENED TO 20 AND 24 HOURS, AND SOME OF THE MEN WOULD LITERALLY DROP IN THEIR TRACKS FOR A 10-MINUTE SLEEP WHENEVER SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY CAME.

IN THE WORDS OF YEOMAN JOHN F.RUVA OF (107 NORTH WILLIAMS)

JOLIET, ILL., THEY WORKED 25 HOURS ON SEPTEMBER 4--"I LIVED AN EXTRA HOUR DURING THE FIRST MINUTE OF OUR FIRST AIR RAID."

CORRESPONDENTS ACCOMPANYING THE LANDING FORCE WERE ABOARD THE FLAGSHIP. ITS CREW STOOD REGULAR SEA WATCHES IN THE ENGINE ROOM, ON DECK, IN THE SCULLERY, AND EVERYWHERE ABOARD. THEN THEY TOOK TURNS AT THE GUNS.

THE SHIP'S COOK, TIM KEZIAH OF MINERAL SPRINGS, N.C., SAID HE SLEPT BUT FIVE HOURS OF 65 IN THE OPERATION. IN ADDITION TO REGULAR COOKING DUTIES, WHICH HE SHARES WITH KENNETH DALY OF BRUSH PRAIRIE, WASH., KEZIAH STOOD LONG GUN WATCHES WHILE THE CONVOY MOVED TO ITS DESTINATION.

THE NIGHT BEFORE THE LANDING HE SPENT COOKING STEAKS FOR AUSTRALIAN ENLISTED MEN AND THEN HELPED SERVE THEM IN THE DARKNESS BEFORE DONNING A HELMET AND TAKING A POSITION AT AN ACK-ACK GUN. DALY, A BIG SCANDINAVIAN, DID THE SAME THING BUT INSTEAD OF CATCHING A CAT-NAP WHEN POSSIBLE HE WALKED THE DECK URGING THE MEN TO EAT.

BUT MOST OF THEM WERE TOO TIRED TO EAT. THEY JUST SLEPT.

FOURTEEN HOURS AFTER THE LANDING OFF LAE, DALY SAID "NOW LEAVE US ALONE, FOR WE'VE GOT TO SWEEP OUT THE KITCHEN AND THEN BAKE SOME APPLE PIES BEFORE WE GO TO BED."

PERHAPS THE MOST WEARY MEN ON THE OPERATION WERE SHIPS' OFFICERS WHO STOOD STRAIGHT 48-HOUR WATCHES. AMONG THESE WERE LT. (JG) WALTER THYGESON OF (57 MAPLE HILL DR.) LARCHMONT, N.Y., SHIP'S NAVIGATOR. HIS OTHER DUTIES INCLUDED THOSE OF EXECUTIVE OFFICER.

THYGESON WENT TO BED THE 49TH HOUR. HE HAD SCARCELY HIT THE BED WHEN AN AUSTRALIAN MAJOR CAME TO COMPLAIN THAT HE'D LOST HIS BINOCULARS AROUND THE WARDROOM.

BEHIND THE MAJOR CAME AN AUSTRALIAN LIEUTENANT TO SAY HE'D LOST HIS UNDERWEAR IN THE SHOWER.

THYGESON THREW UP HIS HANDS, GOT OUT OF BED, GRINNED, AND SAID: "JUST MOTHER'S LITTLE HELPER, THAT'S ME."

ENSIGN LOUIS CURRA OF SMITHTON, PA., TACKLE ON THE WESTERN RESERVES SUNBOWL FOOTBALL TEAM IN 1941, WORKED 56 STRAIGHT HOURS.

THROUGH IT ALL, THE FLOTILLA UNDERWENT MANY AIR RAIDS AND SUBMARINE SCARES. THEY REACHED THE BEACH WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A MAN.

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, SEPT 12-(AP)-REPERCUSSIONS STILL ROCK THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT, IT WAS LEARNED HERE TODAY, FROM REFUSAL BY SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL OF ARGENTINA'S REQUEST FOR LEASE-LEND AID.

SEP 11 1943

THE RESIGNATION OF ARGENTINE FOREIGN MINISTER VICE ADMIRAL SEGUNDO STORNI THURSDAY REMAINED THE MOST SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENT.

ADVICES FROM ACROSS THE FRONTIER INDICATED THAT THE STRESS WAS PROVOKED BY THE CLASH OF OPPOSING FORCES WITHIN THE MILITARY REGIME OF GEN.PEDRO RAMIREZ AND WAS BY NO MEANS REMOVED BY STORNI'S RESIGNATION AND THE ELIMINATION OF TWO FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIALS KNOWN FOR THEIR DEMOCRATIC SENTIMENTS, ROBERTO GACHE AND RICARDO BUNGE.

DISAPPOINTMENT AND DISILLUSIONMENT APPEARED TO BE SPREADING EVEN AMONG THOSE WHO AT THE BEGINNING STOOD IN THE FOREFRONT OF THE REVOLUTION WHICH UPSET THE GOVERNMENT OF PRESIDENT RAMON S. CASTILLO. INFILTRATION BY NATIONALISTS WAS INDICATED.

CASTILLO WAS REPORTED WATCHING EVENTS WITH A SARDONIC EYE AND WAS OBSERVING THAT "TO ENTER GOVERNMENT HOUSE IS QUITE EASY; TO STAY THERE IS A LITTLE HARDER."

AN INFORMED SOURCE ASSERTED THERE WAS NO QUESTION THAT DURING THE FIRST MONTH OF THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT'S LIFE ITS LEADERS HAD THE FIRM INTENTION OF FULFILLING THEIR INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS IN ACCORDANCE WITH ANTI-AXIS DECISIONS TAKEN BY ALL AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS.

SUBSEQUENTLY THE SITUATION CHANGED. THE BEST EXPLANATION IS THE ON OFFERED BY THE NEWSPAPER NOTICIAS GRAFICAS, WHICH COMMENTED SO FRANKLY ON THE EXCHANGE OF NOTES THAT IT WAS SUSPENDED. IT SAID THAT STRANGE BEDFELLOWS HAD CREPT INTO THE NEW GOVERNMENT'S BED AND WERE TAKING UP MOST OF THE SPACE.

RETURNED CORRESPONDENT

SAYS WAR AGAINST JAPS

SO FAR ONLY 'PRELUDE' (650)

1943

HIS INTERVIEWER, JOHN A.MOROSO, 3D., RECENTLY RETURNED FROM COVERING THE WAR ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD, IN AFRICA AND SICILY AS ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET.)

BY JOHN A.MOROSO, 3D.

(WX)-NEW YORK, SEPT 9-(AP)-"DON'T START SELLING YOUR WAR BONDS. THE WAR IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC TO DATE IS ONLY THE PRELUDE TO THE FIGHT THAT IS TO COME. WE WILL LOSE THOUSANDS OF MEN, SCORES OF SHIPS, HUNDREDS OF PLANES AND TONS OF SUPPLIES BEFORE WE EVEN MAKE A DENT IN THE BARON TANAKA 'EMPIRE'."

THAT ADVICE WAS GIVEN TODAY BY J.NORMAN LODGE, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, WHO POLPED INTO NEW YORK AFTER A 14,000-MILE PLANE RIDE THAT BEGAN IN VELLA LAVELLA, THE UPPER SOLOMONS--A LITTLE ISLAND CAPTURED BY AMERICAN FORCES ON FRIDAY,AUGUST 13.

BARON TANAA WAS THE ORIGINATOR OF THE JAPANESE PLAN OF CONQUEST DESIGNED TO GIVE JAPAN HER "GREATER ASIATIC CO-PROSPERITY SPHERE."

LODGE, TANNED AND LEAN FROM GRUELING EXPERIENCES IN THE FOXHOLES OF GUADALCANAL, RENDOVA, NEW GEORGIA AND VELLA LAVELLA, HAD THIS TO SAY ABOUT THE WAR SITUATION IN THE PACIFIC:

"EXCEPTING FOR A FEW SMALL ISLANDS WHICH ARE AVAILABLE FOR ADVANCE ECHELONS AND BADLY NEEDED AIRFIELDS OUR CONQUESTS TO DATE CONSIST OF:

"MUCH-NEEDED JUNGLE TRAINING FOR TROOPS WHO HAD NEVER BEFORE BEEN UNDER COMBAT FIRE OR CONDITIONS SUCH AS THEY MET IN THE SOUTH SEAS.

"DOUBLE LOSS OF FACE TO THE JAPANESE IN THE TAKING OF GUADALCANAL AND NEW GEORGIA.

"THE AMERICAN ABILITY TO OVERCOME LOGISTICAL BLUNDERS AND TO SUPPLY ADVANCE TROOPS WITH A MUCH SMALLER AMOUNT OF SHIPPING BOTTOMS THAN WOULD HAVE BEEN CONSIDERED FEASIBLE A YEAR AGO.

"AND THE UNEARTHING OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST FIGHTER AND BOMBER PILOTS, IN MANY CASES HANDLING AIRCRAFT INFERIOR IN MANEUVER-ABILITY--BECAUSE OF ADDED INSTRUMENTS AND PILOT ARMOR--TO THAT OF THE ENEMY.

"ON THE DEBIT SIDE, THE FEW SMALL ISLANDS WE HAVE TAKEN WE NOW HAVE TO SUPPLY. THAT IN ITSELF IS NO SMALL FEAT, FOR EVERY CONVOY THAT 'RUNS THE SLOT' IS UNDER CONSTANT BOMBING IN WATERS AS YET UNCHARTED.

"THE VETERANS OF THESE CAMPAIGNS WHO ARE NOW JUNGLE-WISE MUST NOW BE DISPERSED AMONG GREEN DIVISIONS TO GIVE UNTRIED TROOPS THE BENEFIT OF THEIR EXPERIENCE--AN EXPERIENCE WHICH CAN NOT BE GAINED BY TEXTBOOK OR BY THEORIZING.

"THE LOSS OF FACE WHICH THE JAPS HAVE SUFFERED MAY BACKFIRE IN THE RESPECT THAT A JAP WOULD RATHER LOSE HIS LIFE MANY TIMES OVER THAN LOSE FACE.

"WHILE LOGISTICAL BLUNDERS ARE BOUND TO OCCUR, WE HAVE HAD NO FUR COATS, WINTER UNIFORMS OR OTHER 'CARTOON BLUNDERS' BUT WE HAVE TAKEN HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF VALUABLE MECHANIZED CANNON WITHOUT ALWAYS DELIVERING THE AMMUNITION TO SUPPLY THEM.

"FOR INSTANCE, IN RENDOVA WE WERE ABLE TO FIRE OUR LONG-RANGE RIFLES ONLY A FEW TIMES BECAUSE THE AMMUNITION PECULIAR TO THIS CERTAIN GUN WAS NOT AVAILABLE.

"SHIPPING NECESSARY TO NEGOTIATE WATERS SUCH AS ARE ENCOUNTERED

30.24 8371

IN GIZO STRAIT MUST BE OF SHALLOW DRAFT. SUCH VESSELS, MOSTLY LST'S (LANDING SHIP TANKS), ARE SLOW, VULNERABLE TO AIR ATTACK AND OF THEMSELVES INADEQUATELY ARMED. THE BOYS WHO MANNED THEM NEVER COMPLAINED AND THEY ARE AMONG THE FOREMOST HEROES OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

"IT IS NO SECRET THAT THERE HAS BEEN NO FIGHTER PLANE IN THE WORLD AS MANEUVERABLE AS THE JAPANESE ZERO. TO OFFSET THE ZERO WE HAVE BEEN FORCED TO RELY UPON THE HUMAN QUOTIENT. IT HAS BEEN A CASE OF 'GUTS AGAINST GUNS.' TO DATE GUTS HAVE WON OUT."

(LODGE SAID THAT THIS CRITICISM DID NOT APPLY TO NEW AND STILL SECRET TYPES OF AMERICAN PLANES WHICH HE HAD NOT SEEN IN ACTION.)

"IN BEHALF OF THE AMERICAN BOYS, MANY OF THEM CIVILIANS A YEAR AGO, I WANT TO TELL THEIR FOLKS THAT POUND FOR POUND, GUN FOR GUN, KNIFE FOR KNIFE, AND VICIOUSNESS FOR VICIOUSNESS, THEY CAN SPOT THE JAP 'CARDS, SPADES AND BIG CASINO' AND COME OUT BEST EVERY TIME.

"FOR INSTANCE, ON BIBILIO HILL, FOREMOST STUMBLING BLOCK ON THE MARCH TO APTURE MUNDA AIRFIELD, ONE AMERICAN UNIT WITH AN OFFICER LEADING THEM--A FORMER FLORIST--TOOK ON THE BEST THE JAPS HAD--THE EMPEROR'S OWN 13TH SHOCK TROOPS, AND WITH FIXED BAYONETS MET THEIR CHARGE, TURNED THEM BACK AND THOSE THEY DIDN'T STICK IN THE BACK THEY BLEW OUT OF SEEMINGLY IMPOSSIBLE DEFENSES WITH HAND GRENADES. THAT TOOK WHAT THE AMERICANS HAVE THE MOST OF--GUTS."

LODGE, FATHER OF TWO CHILDREN AND A VETERAN OF TWO WARS AS A SOLDIER--THE MEXICAN AND FIRST WORLD WAR--HAS COVERED THIS WAR FROM NARVIK, IN NORWAY, THROUGH THE LONDON BLITZ TO THE FURTHEST REACHES OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC. HE HAS BEEN UNDER NAVAL GUNFIRE AND HE HAS GONE ALONG IN DIVE BOMBERS AND B-17'S THAT POUNDED THE JAPANESE.

AFTER 10 CONSECUTIVE MONTHS OF WATCHING THE BATTLE AGAINST THE JAPANESE, HE HAS RETURNED FOR A MONTH'S VACATION BEFORE RESUMING HIS PLACE ON THE FIGHTING FRONT.

(ADVANCE FOR MONDAY AMS, SEPT. 13)

UNDATED PACIFIC

SEP 11 1943

BY HAROLD STREETER

ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER

(ADVANCE) (FX) THE FACT THAT JAPAN IS ON THE DEFENSIVE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, AND HAS BEEN FOR SOME TIME, DRAWS INTO SHARPER FOCUS A GROWING PREDICAMENT OF THE ENEMY--SHRINKAGE OF HIS SUPPLY OF FIGHTER PLANES AND FIGHTER PLANE BASES.

SEPTEMBER USHERED IN TWO DARING OPERATIONS AGAINST THE JAPANESE, EITHER OF WHICH LOGICALLY WOULD BE RESISTED IN PART BY FIGHTER PLANES.

ONE WAS THE DESTRUCTIVE RAID SEPT. 1 ON MARCUS ISLAND, 1,200 STATUTE MILES SOUTHEAST OF TOKYO, BY THE BIGGEST AIRCRAFT CARRIER TASK FORCE EVER SENT OUT ON A SINGLE MISSION IN THE PACIFIC.

THE OTHER WAS THE LANDING OF HUNDREDS OF PARATROOPS SEPT. 5 IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY BEHIND LAE, NEW GUINEA, FROM BIG TRANSPORT PLANES WHILE GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AND JUST ABOUT ALL THE TOP RANK GENERALS IN THAT WAR THEATER WATCHED FROM SOME OF THE ACCOMPANYING BOMBERS.

NOT A JAPANESE FIGHTER PLANE RESISTED EITHER OPERATION. THE NEW GRUMMAN HELLCATS, DESIGNED SPECIFICALLY TO MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE PACIFIC WAR, SEARCHED IN VAIN OVER MARCUS FOR EVEN THE SIGHT OF AN ENEMY FIGHTER ON THAT ISLAND'S TWO LANDING STRIPS.

ON THE SAME DAY THAT REAR ADMIRAL CHARLES A. POWNALL'S TASK FORCE WAS WIPING OUT 80 PER CENT OF THE INSTALLATIONS ON MARCUS, GENERAL MACARTHUR WAS DISCLOSING THAT THE JAPANESE HAD BEEN COMPELLED TO SEND FIGHTER PLANES FROM OTHER BASES SUCH AS THE PHILIPPINES AND FORMOSA TO REPLENISH HEAVY LOSSES AT WEWAK, NEW GUINEA.

THE ZERO AND ITS SUCCESSOR, "TYPE 3," WHICH ONLY RECENTLY MADE A SOMEWHAT UNIMPRESSIVE DEBUT IN THE SOLOMONS, HAVE PLAYED A DIMINISHING ROLE IN THE DRAMA UNFOLDED BY RECENT COMMUNIQUES OF GENERAL MACARTHUR.

DAILY, MITCHELLS AND BEAUFIGHTERS OF LT.GEN.GEORGE C.KENNEY'S FIFTH AIRFORCE PULL THE STRANGULATION NOOSE TIGHTER ON THE JAPANESE IN NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA BY ROAMING THE HUON PENINSULA COASTLINE AND THE SOUTHERN COAST OF NEARBY NEW BRITAIN, BLOWING UP THE SEA BARGES LADEN WITH FOOD AND SUPPLIES. ALMOST NEVER IS THERE MENTION OF ANY INTERFERENCE BY JAPANESE FIGHTERS, ALTHOUGH AIRFIELDS AT CAPE GLOUCESTER AND GASMATA ARE NO FARTHER THAN 165 MILES AWAY AND AS NEAR AS 75 MILES.

ONLY IN THE SOLOMONS AT JAPAN'S KAHILI AIRDROME NEAR BUIN, BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND, IS THERE FREQUENT MENTION OF ENEMY FIGHTERS. DESPITE THEIR PRESENCE, THE RAIDING AVENGERS AND DAUNTLESSES, ALWAYS ESCORTED BY CORSAIRS, USUALLY MANAGE TO GET TO THE GROUNDED BOMBERS, SET THEM AFIRE AND GET AWAY.

ON BOTH THE SOLOMONS AND NEW GUINEA, JAPAN'S SUPPLY OF FIGHTER BASES IS SHRINKING. IN THE SOLOMONS, THE VILA AIRDROME ON KOLOMBANGARA IS OF NO USE TO JAPANESE PLANES, BEING WITHIN ARTILLERY RANGE OF AMERICAN FORCES ON ARUNDEL. AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF NEW GEORGIA OUTFLANKED SANTA ISABEL ISLAND TO THE NORTHEAST SO THE JAPANESE PULLED OUT OF THEIR REKATA BAY BASE FOR FLOAT PLANES -- FIGHTERS FITTED WITH PONTOONS.

THAT LEAVES THE JAPANESE ONLY FOUR AIR BASES IN THE SOLOMONS, ALL ON OR NEAR BOUGAINVILLE.

IN THE NEW GUINEA AREA, THE AIRDROME AT SALAMAUA AND THE TWO AT LAE ARE ON THE POINT OF BEING CAPTURED.

FOR 350 MILES ABOVE THEM -- AT ALEXISHAFEN, MADANG AND WEWAK -- JAPANESE BASES HAVE BEEN RENDERED VIRTUALLY UNUSEABLE; ONLY ANTI-AIRCRAFT OPPOSITION IS ENCOUNTERED BY RAIDERS; AND THE JAPANESE HAVE PULLED THEIR BASES BACK TO HOLLANDIA, DUTCH NEW GUINEA, 550 MILES UP THE COAST FROM LAE. THE SAME POUNDINGS HAVE BEEN GIVEN THE AIRDROMES AT CAPE GLOUCESTER AND GASMATA ON NEW BRITAIN.

LAST WEEK, WAR CORRESPONDENTS WERE PERMITTED TO FILE DISPATCHES PICTURING IN FRANK DETAIL THE ACTIVITY OF BIG SKY TRANSPORTS ON AIRDROMES AROUND PORT MORESBY, NEW GUINEA -- HOW JEEPS AND TRUCKS SCURRY ABOUT LOADING THEM FOR HOURLY FLIGHTS ACROSS THE OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS TO THE LAE BATTLEFRONT.

THAT, AS MUCH AS ANYTHING, CONVEYS THE IDEA OF HOW FAR THE ALLIES HAVE GONE TOWARD WINNING AIR SUPREMACY OVER NEW GUINEA. IT IS SO DEFINITE, THAT NEWS OF WHAT IS GOING ON AT PORT MORESBY --

5th Army Advances Several Miles Near Salerno, Holds Lines Against Tank and Artillery Attacks; Reds Smash Into Bryansk, Nazi Bastion Since '41

British Meeting Little Resistance in Drive From South---Flyers Pound Foe on Roads.

Allied Headuarters in North Africa, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—A bitter and bloody battle raged into its fifth consecutive day around the American Fifth Army's Salerno bridgehead today with growing German forces resisting desperately the determined penetration into their hill positions girding the plain and protecting the broad port of Naples.

The British Eighth Army, speeding steadily northward from the Italian toe against little or no enemy opposition, captured the port of Crotone, 110 miles from the southern tip of the peninsula, and found that harbor in good condition for Allied use, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

The British force which landed at Taranto—the eastern leg of the Allied invasion which had been thrown across the saddle of the Appenines—swiftly extended its hold on the entrance to the Adriatic after the capture of Brindisi. While reinforcements poured ashore to strengthen this right wing of the Allied assault, small German forces left in the vicinity were being pushed back rapidly.

[British forces, advancing from Taranto in southern Italy, are reported to have reached Bari, fifty miles up the east coast, BBC said today in a broadcast recorded by NBC. Earlier, BBC reported British troops had taken Altamura, twenty-five miles west of Bari, and in a later broadcast added, "One report says we are already in Bari itself."]

Previously elements of the first German parachute division had been encountered in the push up the Adriatic shore, but whether these were the forces remaining to oppose the advance was not stated.

The main bodies of enemy troops in southern Italy were still converging toward the big Naples-Salerno battle, however, and it was there that the crucial action was being fought.

"Very heavy fighting continues in the area of the Fifth Army at Salerno," said the communique. "The Germans are resisting desperately our determined thrusts to break through their positions."

Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's Chief of Staff in this critical battle, Allied headquarters disclosed, is 44-year-old Major-Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther of Platte, Neb., rated among the United States Army's smartest tacticians and organizers.

[Also indicating fierce fighting in the Salerno area, the German communique said Nazi troops were throwing hard punches of their own in the northern part of the battle area and threw back Allied forces "to the town and coastal strip" — presumably Salerno. It was conceded, however, that the Allied forces southeast of Salerno were making strong thrusts "to break through mountain positions east of the coastal plain."]

Enemy troop movements on the highways toward Salerno were heavily attacked all day yesterday by Allied dive bombers and strafers which raked convoys ranging up to 200 vehicles streaming northward toward the fight.

The importance the Nazi command attached to preventing a further enlargement of Gen. Clark's foothold immediately south of Naples also was shown by the continued presence over the battle area of large numbers of enemy bombers and fighters both day and night. Enemy broadcasts, too, said the defending forces were well intrenched on higher ground and conceded that the fighting was grim.

The Allied war bulletin said the British Eighth Army on the Calabrian toe continued its rapid advance against little or no enemy resistance, although extensive demolitions are causing some delay.

Airmen Pound Foe.

An air communique said that Allied aircraft continued night and day attacks on enemy concentrations streaming north out of the southern sections of Italy, presumably headed for the main battleground in the Salerno-Naples district. At Salerno, fighters also intercepted enemy aircraft and shot down four, the announcement said. Four more were knocked down elsewhere. Two Allied planes are missing.

Heavy bombers again attacked the German-occupied airfield at Frosinone, southeast of Rome. Roads and enemy transports were attacked at Corleto, Auletta and Sapri areas, and at Castelnuovo, northeast of Battipaglia.

Allied aircraft returned again yesterday to the Italian island of Rhodes, in the Dodecanese group off Turkey, a Middle East air communique said. American Liberators attacked airdromes at Maritza and Calato, both hit on the previous day by other bombers. Runways were reported damaged and at least six grounded aircraft set afire.

The South African Air Force also was credited by the Cairo announcement with setting an enemy cargo vessel afire at Gavdos Island south of Crete Saturday.

Gen. Clark's Fifth Army of United States and British troops was said to have smashed farther inland and officers said the Naples-Salerno bridgehead was now firmly established. The Germans are moving large forces of tanks, artillery and mechanized infantry up against Gen. Clark's forces, and Gen. Eisenhower declared the Allies face a bitter battle to drive them out of Italy. Gen. Eisenhower added, however, that the battle is progressing about as expected.

Relman Morin, Associated Press war correspondent with United States assault forces, reported in a dispatch last night that the Americans had rolled back the Germans Saturday along the whole front south and west of the Gulf of Salerno and nearly doubled their beachhead in depth within twenty-four hours.

Fierce Fight in Battipaglia.

Mr. Morin said British elements of the Army commanded by Gen. Clark stormed into Battipaglia, important airport center a dozen miles southeast of captured Salerno, late Friday and that the city had changed hands several times since then. The situation around the town was described as still fluid on Saturday, but American combat teams were reported moving into the area to support the British.

For the first time dispatches last night gave an idea of the extent of the Allied landings last Thursday morning on the west coast of Italy, officially described at the time only as in the Naples area. Action along about thirty miles of the coast line was reported.

Mr. Morin said the main highway between the southern part of the Gulf of Salerno and the Sele River was under full American control, but that from the Sele to captured Salerno, eighteen miles to the northeast, German 88-millimeter guns prohibited use of the road. Salerno itself, he wrote, "still is solidly in British hands."

BRITISH TAKE CROTONE

Eighth Army Sweeps Northward in Effort to Relieve Americans.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13.—(AP) The most violent battle of the whole Mediterranean campaign raged tonight around the American bridgehead at Salerno within 15 miles of Mount Vesuvius, while in extreme southern Italy the British captured Crotone after a 30-mile advance and beat up the Adriatic coast from Brindisi toward Bari.

In a dispatch filed at 6 p. m., (12 noon Eastern War Time) Reynolds Packard, representing the combined United States press, said that the American Fifth Army had pushed forward several miles on the southern sector of the Salerno front and parried a German counter-attack at the center in which the Nazis suffered the heaviest losses they had yet sustained in Italy.

Allies Consolidate Flanks

"The Allies also consolidated both their northern and southern flanks," the dispatch said,

The Germans were credited with temporarily regaining a portion of the Salerno gulf highway which had changed hands several times, but only at heavy cost. Allied planes and naval guns backed the ground troops.

Both sides were throwing tanks and reinforcements prodigally into the crucial Salerno combat, described in latest frontline dispatches as hotter than any fought in the African or Sicilian campaigns. The combat rounded out its fifth day and both sides had suffered heavy casualties.

Nazis Hold High Ground

The Germans were ensconced in high ground commanding the whole Allied bridgehead with their artillery.

"Very heavy fighting continues in the area of the Fifth Army at Salerno," Gen. Eisenhower's communique said before noon. "The Germans are resisting desperately our determined thrusts to break through their positions."

The Americans with their British units not only held doggedly to their hard-won bridgehead 20 airline miles below the great metropolis of Naples, but managed to push into the mountains. Much fighting was 4,000 feet above the sea. The enemy was pushing reserves toward the battle area despite day and night pummeling from sky-ruling Allied air fleets, which were challenged by large German plane formations. Despite the mounting fury of the fight, its climax was not in sight.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's men encountered stiff tank opposition. The ferocity of the German defense attested to the importance the enemy attached to the battle and suggested that the Nazis were trying to hold open at all costs an escape route for their scattered forces in the southern third of Italy which Gen. Montgomery's army was herding northward at an accelerated pace.

British 140 Miles Away

Gen. Montgomery's closest elements were 140 miles below Salerno and were racing ahead without even making contact with the enemy. The British appeared intent upon reaching the Salerno area at the earliest possible moment to shut the jaws of a trap clutching at enemy forces between them and the American bridgehead.

At last reports, the Eighth was [illegible] tleneck on the [illegible] expedition which Eure[illegible] Squillace on the west coast.

Another arm swiftly negotiated the 30 miles between Catanzaro and Crotone on the east coast of the toe and captured the fairly important harbor at Crotone intact. Crotone, a town of about 10,000, has chemical works and is an important railway junction. It is 110 miles from the extreme tip of Italy.

Italian Heel Cleared

At headquarters, it was learned that all enemy troops in the Italian heel south of the Taranto-Brindisi road had been cleared out. Possession of the heel gave the Allies many first-class airdromes within short range of the Salerno area. These likewise provided potential bases from which Flying Fortresses could easily pound all of Italy to the Brenner pass, the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania and scores of other inviting targets.

The British moving up the Adriatic coast from Brindisi encountered small German forces including elements of the First Parachute division. Reinforcements Italian toe between the Gulfs of was "continuing to enlarge their bridgehead," the communique said. A headquarters dispatch said the Italian military and civilian population both were cooperating heartily with the invasion forces striking up from the conquered heel.

(The British radio said Altamura, 22 miles west of Bari and 44 miles inland from Taranto, had been captured. There was no confirmation of an Algiers radio report that Bari had been entered.)

Attack Dodecanese

While the bulk of Allied air forces were in tactical support of the armies around Salerno and in the south, Liberators from the Middle East command and the R.A.F. started softening up the Dodecanese islands of Italy which lie in the eastern Aegean sea just off the Turkish coast. Rhodes, the largest island and kingpin of the archipelago, was the main target.

Beaufighters attacked the Maritza airdrome Saturday and Wellington bombers hit the Calato airdrome that night. The American bombers attacked both targets. All Allied planes returned safely, encountering neither ground nor air opposition.

(Turkish reports told of severe fighting between Italian and German garrisons in the Dodecanese islands and said some hard-pressed Italian units were yearning for Allied landings.)

The Germans, possibly drawing on their home reserves, threw 90 to 100 fighters against the Allies in the Salerno area, but their efforts against the beaches and shipping were described as weak. The Allies shot down 13 planes and lost two.

American and Allied pilots were pre-occupied with roads leading to the Salerno bridgehead, intent upon blocking passage of German units streaming toward the crucible of battle. Highways and enemy transports were attacked at Corleto, Auletta, Sapri and Castelnuovo. Heavy bombers again pounded the German airfilled at Frosinone, southeast of Rome.

Roads Attacked from Air

Nearly every road and rail junction in the Naples area was under attack around the clock. Enemy troop movements from north and south of Salerno, some with as many as 200 vehicles, were strafed and bombed.

German broadcasts as well as official Allied reports said the fighting at Salerno was grim.

Salerno, port city of 67,000, was declared firmly in Allied hands and Salerno is the hub of communications leading up the Italian west coast into the Naples area.

The battle has been at white heat since the initial landings.

It was learned that before the battle was joined, the Germans were expecting a landing somewhere in that area and had prepared strong defensive positions extending from the beaches into the nearby hills.

Despite murderous fire, United States and British troops stormed the beaches and swept on to capture the city.

Now they are battling against Germans who have advantageous hill positions overlooking all the approaches.

Elements of the resurrected German 16th tank division are in the thick of the fighting. Other Nazi units also are known to have been mased hurriedly and tossed into the desperate German gamble of preventing an expansion of Gen. Clark's bridgehead.

In the incessant attacks and counter-attacks, some small pieces of ground have changed hands a number of times.

In addition to bringing ashore tanks, the Allied forces also were supplied with ant-tank guns to beat off enemy armor. The Allies, however, still are under a great disadvantage because enemy's 88's in the hills command the entire bridgehead.

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD

[American War Correspondent]

With the American Fifth Army near Salerno, 6 P. M., Sept. 13 (AP). Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army pushed forward in the southern sector several miles today despite tough resistance by the Germans, who unleashed a strong counter-attack in the central area where there has been fierce fighting the past several days.

The Allies also consolidated both their northern and southern flanks.

The Germans' thrust today gives them a temporarily stronger bite into a portion of the highway which they presently hold after it had changed hands several times.

Americans Sidestep

The thrust in the central sector didn't catch the Americans napping. They had expected it for some time and parried its full force with a quick side-stepping movement, pumping rifle fire and artillery shells into the enemy and dealing the Germans the heaviest losses they have yet received.

The thrust apparently was a suicidal attempt to try to break through to the beaches, therefore proving most costly to the Germans.

The United States Navy also was supporting the Americans, lobbing shells from the Salerno Gulf overhead all day right smack into the German troops.

U. S. Fighter Command In Salerno Area Shifted

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Command of a United States Spitfire fighter group covering the Fifth Army landings in the Salerno area of Italy, has passed from Lieut.-Col. Frank A. Hill of Hillsdale, N. J., to Col. C. M. McCorkle of Newton, N. C.

Youngest Major General Heads 5th Army Staff Under Clark

A. M. Gruenther, 44, Is Bridge Expert; Wife Lives in D. C.

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13.—An official announcement revealed today that the youngest major general in the American Army, 44-year-old Alfred M. Gruenther of Platte, Nebr., is chief of staff for the United States 5th Army now invading Italy.

A bridge expert of international renown, Gen. Gruenther served as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy chief of staff in the original North African landings. He has one of the coolest mathematical minds in the American Army. His wife lives in Washington, D. C.

When the 5th Army was formed, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark chose him as chief of staff and the two went to sandy desert land near the Spanish Moroccan border this spring to plan for the American and British attack on Salerno.

In relinquishing Gen. Gruenther to Gen. Clark, Gen. Eisenhower said at the time, "I feel like I am losing my right hand."

Gen. Gruenther is the son of a small-town newspaper proprietor. He was born in Platte, March 3, 1899. He had a brilliant career at West Point and was graduated fourth in a class of 277 10 days before the armistice in the World War.

He held many Army posts at home and abroad and for a long period was a professor at West Point. While teaching there he used to take his recreation by driving to New York to direct international bridge tournaments. He slept in the back seat of his car while being driven back to the Academy before dawn for morning classes.

His book, "Duplicate Contract Bridge," is considered a guide for bridge tournament directors.

As soon as Gen. Eisenhower was called on to launch the North African campaign, he asked that Gen. Gruenther be sent to London to help in the planning. For this work he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Gen. Gruenther's wife, the former Miss Grace Crum of Jeffersonville, Ind., lives at 2745 Twenty-ninth street N.W. They have been married since 1923. Two sons, Donald, 20, and Dick, 18, are cadets at West Point.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE LEFT BANK OF RIVER OPPOSITE BRYANSK

Several Railway Stations Taken in Drive to Edge of Vital Nazi Base.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The Russian Army in a new plunge forward has driven to the edge of the prize Axis bastion of Bryansk, Moscow announced tonight, while other Russian successes were scored all along the great front stretching southward to the Sea of Azov.

A gain of from six to nine miles carried the Russians through several of Bryansk's railway stations and junctions on the left bank of the Desna River. The city itself lies on a high bluff on the right, or western, bank opposite the advancing Russians.

"Thus our troops have come right up to the town of Bryansk," said the official communique, which was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

Meanwhile, it was added, other Russian forces had driven to a point only eighty-four miles from the Ukrainian capital of Kiev and had taken more than ninety villages in gains of up to nine miles in the sweep westward from the Donets Basin.

BRYANSK CITADEL BESIEGED BY REDS

Four Rail Lines Into City Cut by Drive of Russian Troops.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 14 — (AP) The Red army has laid siege to the ancient citadel of Bryansk on the west bank of the Desna river after plunging over the bodies of 2,000 Germans to reach the east bank and cut four of the five trunk railways feeding that Axis stronghold, Moscow disclosed early today.

A Soviet communique telling of the smash through the mine-filled forests east of Bryansk foreshadowed the early capture of that pivot of the Axis central and southern fronts.

"Our troops have come right up to the town of Bryansk," said the communique recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Rail Network Seized

The bulletin added that Gen. M. M. Popov's troops had overrun the vital railway network on the eastern side of the Desna moat, seizing prisoners and equipment the Germans were unable to take with them in their flight to the high west bank.

While Popov's troops were storming through Bryansk's outskirts, the communique said, other Russian armies still were racing through the Ukraine toward Kiev and the Dnieper river.

The advance was so swift that at the rail station of Kruti, a few miles east of Nezhin in the northern Ukraine, a whole trainload of German reserves going to the front was caught.

"The blow delivered by our troops was so powerful that German reinforcements arriving at this station did not even have time to get out of their train," the communique said. "The majority of Germans on the train were wiped out and the rest were taken prisoner."

Four Divisions Wiped Out

South of Bakhmach in the Ukraine the remnants of four German divisions, originally approximately 60,000 men, were declared wiped out in another Soviet encirclement.

Aside from the heavy German reverses south of Bakhmach and before Bryansk, the Russians said their troops overhauled and cut down 1,500 of the enemy soldiers fleeing from the Donets basin west of Stalino, and killed hundreds more in other sectors.

But the frontal assault on Bryansk, pivot of Germany's battered central and southern fronts, was the high point of the Russian communique. The successful lunge made it likely that Bryansk would be the scene of the next great Russian victory to keep Moscow's batteries booming their triumphal salutes.

One Rail Line Open

The hard-pressed Germans already are nearly encircled, and have only one railway artery to depend upon. That is the line leading northwest to Smolensk, and Russian troops probably will snap it shortly. One Russian unit is only a few miles from that line.

Spurring the Bryansk attackers onward is the realization of the part Bryansk played in the Russian Revolution, and the certainty that Marshal Stalin will honor the first divisions to break into the city just as he did those that toppled Orel, Kharkov, Stalino, and other Axis bastions captured in Russia's first big summer offensive.

While the Bryansk army held the main spotlight, other Russian armies rapidly clipped their way toward Kiev, Ukraine capital on the middle Dnieper, and Zaporazhe and Dnieperopetrovsk, on the lower end of the river, to add to a total bag of nearly 350 villages freed during the day.

Two Cities Menaced

Nezhin and Chernigov, big rail cities on the Gomel-Odessa line just below White Russia, were threatened by Soviet units fanning out through the northern Ukraine. One Russian unit was reported only 30 miles from Chernigov another was within artillery range of Nezhin after capturing Kruti, 12 miles to the east.

Nezhin's seizure, now an imminent possibility, would put Russian troops only 72 miles from Kiev, and cut the last north-south railway available to the Germans east of the middle Dnieper.

In the central Ukraine another Red army driving on Kiev cut the Romney-Poltava railway at a point 42 miles east of Priluki and 124 miles from Kiev, overrunning more than 140 localities.

Racing toward the Zaporozhe-Dnieperopetrovsk escape bridges across the lower Dnieper river, the Soviet forces pounding westward from the liberated Donets basin captured 90 more villages in the pursuit of the battered Germans.

Nazis Make Stand

Only in the Poltava-Lozovaya-Dnieperopetrovsk triangle southwest of Kharkov did the Germans appear to be making a firm stand. This defense undoubtedly was to protect the withdrawal of the Germans from the Donets basin, but the Soviet pincers below and above this triangle made its early evaporation likely.

Bryansk, where Russian peasants joined the city's workers to hold up the White Russian Marshal Denikin during the Soviet Revolution, had a peacetime population of nearly 70,000 persons working in its locomotive, steel mills, cement plants and engineering works.

Many ancient ramparts remain in the city which the Germans captured October 13, 1941, and which had not been seriously menaced by the Russians until the breakthrough at Orel this summer.

Pile Up Other Gains.

Moscow, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The Red Army advance brought Bryansk within gun range today.

Sweeping across the Ukraine, the Russians won new gains after crossing the Psel River at Gadyach and further increased the peril of the German forces in the Poltava-Priluki sectors. The general drive toward the Dnieper River continued, meanwhile, along the entire front from the mouth of the river to Kiev.

The greatest German effort to hold back the powerful Russian drive was exerted along the southernmost sector of the front where enemy tanks and infantry were desperately striving to keep the Russians away from the narrow land outlets. The Germans here were reported to have attempted to stem the Russians along previously prepared defense positions, but the Red Army broke through at several places. The Nazis launched numerous futile counter-attacks.

Even night attacks which are rare for the Germans were being launched, the party newspaper Pravda reported, but the Russians beat them off, inflicted heavy losses and the Soviet advance continued.

Germans Say Mussolini's Whole Family Was Released.

SEP 13 1943

TWO MEN MAY HAVE MET

London Hears Fuehrer and Duce Got Together—Denies Latter Was Ever in Allied Hands.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The German radio, expanding bit by bit in its gleeful reporting of the release of Benito Mussolini, declared today that the former Italian Premier's family also had been freed from internment by "SS (Elite Guard) commandos," and that one of Mussolini's first acts upon his liberation had been to talk by telephone with the German Fuehrer.

[The British radio reported in a broadcast picked up at New York today by NBC that Mussolini had already had a meeting with Hitler. Quoting a German broadcast, London added that no other details were given.]

"It is difficult to express in words the feelings which animated Hitler and Il Duce during this historic conversation," Berlin asserted, quoting DNB, the German official news agency.

Twelve hours after the former Duce's release had been announced by Berlin, broadcasts recorded here by the Associated Press began a full-blast exploitation of the incident, hailing it as a master stroke and an audacious venture.

Berlin said that the rescue was hailed in Axis controlled capitals, declaring that in Oslo the "local public is completely under the spell of the special communique" and that "from the military viewpoint this is said to be one of the most daring coups de main in world history and, politically, one of the greatest failures ever suffered by Britain and the United States."

Never in Allied Hands.

The British Foreign Office declared, on the other hand, that it had no information on the whereabouts of Mussolini but that at no time had he ever been in British or American hands. Because of this, officials here discounted that report that he had been taken by German parachute troopers in Sicily.

[At Washington today the Office of War Information pointed out that while the Nazis were boasting of Mussolini's alleged capture, they had not seen fit to have him broadcast, and were not even quoting him today.]

Tokio Also Waxes Lyrical.

The Tokio radio was also quoted by Berlin.

"Not only Mussolini's personal friends, but the whole Japanese nation were overwhelmed with joy by Il Duce's liberation," the chief of the Japanese Information Bureau told a press conference, Berlin declared. "This feat was one of the most dramatic events of this war and Japan unreservedly admires the determination and loyalty of Der Fuehrer to liberate his friend who was doomed to death."

The Nazi propagandist gave this "reaction" in other Axis-dominated capitals:

Brussels: "News of Mussolini's liberation is the sensation of the day here. The Belgian public was deeply impressed."

Bucharest: "The news aroused the greatest enthusiasm and satisfaction also in the Rumanian capital, especially among those Italians who are loyal to their Fascist tradition. The admiration of the man in the street is particularly great, and everywhere in the streets the event is the topic of conversations."

Play for Mystery.

The German broadcasts attempted to spread intriguing mystery over the incident by declaring that official spokesmen were tight-lipped over the whole occurrence. The German official news agency, DNB, was quoted as saying: "Competent informants in Berlin state that other Fascist leaders were freed with Mussolini."

The German-controlled Netherlands radio said that Victor Mussolini, eldest son of the deposed Duce, had arrived in Germany, but it did not indicate whether he was one of those whom the Germans claim to have freed.

What use the Germans intended to make of Mussolini after his forty-nine days' exile from his balcony at the Palazzo Venezia remained to be seen, but it was thought likely that he may be restored as a puppet dictator in the Nazi-controlled territory in northern Italy. A Berlin communique last night said only that he had been freed by parachute troops, security service men and armed members of the S. S.

Value Is Discounted.

Some British officials tended to discount the value of his reported release, arguing that if Mussolini did set up a puppet Fascist regime the Italian people, thoroughly sick of war and Fascism, would pay little attention to it.

Unofficially the German claim apparently was accepted here, for the British Broadcasting Corporation, in a radio news bulletin to the Italian people, said that Mussolini had been released by the Germans and added that Premier Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel are safe at an undisclosed place on Italian soil.

Mussolini's whereabouts have been more or less of a mystery since his sudden fall, but it is believed in London that he has been held a prisoner in the Pontine Islands off the west coast of Italy.

Nazis Enlarge on Report On Mussolini's Release

Duce Rushed to Berlin, by Plane, Says German Radio.

SEP 1 1943

LONDON, Sept. 13—(AP) The serio-comic thriller—"the rescue and liberation of Benito Mussolini"—was told, retold and heavily embroidered today by the German radio which turned with delight to this new subject after weeks of labored explanations of Nazi defeats in Tunisia, Russia, Sicily and Italy.

The Berlin radio said Mussolini had been secure since Sunday in a "big city," which was not identified, but might be Berlin. The broadcast said that Mussolini, "by the orders of Marshal Badoglio, had been refused newspapers and other news sources" and, after sleeping uninterruptedly for many hours, began to brush up on the news today.

"The liberators took Il Duce to the nearest German airfield," it was said, and moved him to the city.

To Form New Government

The broadcast reported that, after preliminaries, Mussolini would form a new Fascist government in Germany.

(The Tokyo radio, somewhat ahead of Berlin, said in a broadcast recorded by NBC that "Benito Mussolini has assumed the position of premier of the Fascist national government of Italy.")

With glee the Berlin script writers told how daredevil German parachute troopers and elite guards had scooped the Duce out from under the noses of his captors, saved him from being a lowly "pawn" of the British, Americans and Badoglio government and set him on the road again to lead his nation back to Axis loyalty.

Planned By Hitler

But the crowning feature of the story, as contrived in Berlin was that the kidnaping was made possible through the personal friendship and Fascist brotherhood of Adolf Hitler, who waxed heavily sentimental over the former Duce in his speech last Friday. The German propagandists said it was understood that "Hitler himself prepared the plan for freeing his friend," and gave the orders for carrying it out.

[illegible] acts of Mussolini, [illegible] s to telephone the fuehrer, and they added, "It is difficult to express in words the feelings which animated Hitler and Il Duce during this historic conversation."

Duce's Family Freed

The Berlin radio said Mussolini's family also had been freed from internment by "SS (elite guard) commandos," that some of his top henchmen had been rescued, and that Vittorio Mussolini, eldest son of the Italian dictator, was among those arriving in Germany.

Niggardly of details, presumably to give the proper spice of suspense, Berlin broadcasts added only that Mussolini's guards had orders to shoot him if an attempt were made to free him, but that he got away without a scratch.

This whole story was treated here with the utmost calm.

The British Foreign office said authoritatively, with dry emphasis, that it knew nothing about where Mussolini was and added that he never had been in British-American hands.

Although it apparently was Hitler's intention to set up a dutiful Mussolini as a sort of expatriate Italian Laval—Radio Atlantic, a Nazi-dominated station, said Mussolini was en route to Berchtesgaden—it was felt here that any government he set up was not likely to draw much attention from the Italian people already caught in one of the harshest dilemmas of history.

For one thing Axis sources permitted themselves a reference to Mussolini's health for the first time, one Berlin broadcast stating that he had been suffering from gastric ulcers for many years and that the illness had grown worse in the last few months.

In this connection it was noted that the Germans said Mussolini's original captors had "strapped him in an ambulance"—a possible indication of distraught nerves.

This did not prevent the Germans from describing the exploit as a very big action, however, and the Swiss Telegraph agency, in a dispatch from unstated sources, even reported that the liberation had taken place near Palermo in Sicily.

And it did not prevent the Germans from expanding on the themes of "Adolf Hitler kept his word" and "a heroic German act of loyalty."

The German High Command devoted a passage in its communique to observe that "Il Duce's extradition to the Anglo-Americans, which had been agreed upon with the Badoglio government, has been foiled."

From Oslo, Brussels, Bucharest, Rome, Milan, and even Tokyo, the German radio reported "reaction" to the news.

Japs Overjoyed, Says Tokyo

"The whole Japanese nation was overwhelmed with joy," the chief of the Japanese Information bureau was quoted as saying. Norwegians were declared "completely under the spell" of "one of the most daring coups de main in world history."

Dispatches from the Swiss border reported a more serious angle, saying that Fascist uprisings and parades had taken place in some cities in the north held by Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces.

The Germans said that the news was announced in Rome by loudspeaker trucks which moved through the streets in the dead of night, and that soon people gathered in front of Mussolini's old balcony at the Piazza Venezia where "the old fighting slogan 'Il Duce, Il Duce' was shouted by thousands."

"Fascist fighting groups" assembled in the Piazza del Dumono in Milan, sang their anthem "Giovinezza" and raised the Fascist flag, one Berlin account said.

The Swiss gazette de Lausanne said it was possible that Mussolini would be moved to Rome and "even make another balcony appearance to harangue a crowd of German brown shirts ordered by Hitler to acclaim him."

A frontier dispatch to Zurich's Die Tat said that governments under Fascist control had been re-established in Milan, Genoa, Turin and other northern Italian cities.

The German news agency Transocean in a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said that the Badoglio government had sent Mussolini to a new place of detainment every two or three days and had changed his strong military guard at regular intervals.

Declaring that Mussolini was held in barracks, on islands and on warships, the broadcast said the Germans only lately discovered his latest place of imprisonment—in an isolated mountain range. The broadcast added that "he was held prisoner under the most trying circumstances" and said that his guards had been reinforced. The broadcast added that the Germans who took part in the raid to free Mussolini were "awarded high distinctions" by Hitler.

NAVAL FORCE SAFE AT MALTA

Battleship Giulio Cesare Heads Surrendering Detachment.

FIVE CAPITAL SHIPS NOW IN Plane Carrier, Four Destroyers and Several Submarines Are Among Today's Arrivals.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Another Italian naval force today arrived at Valletta, Malta, including the 23,000-ton battleship Giulio Cesare, the 5,000-ton seaplane carrier Guiseppe Miraglia, four destroyers and a number of submarines. The arrivals brought to at least thirty-eight the number of Italian warships known to be in Allied hands, and the naval authorities here waited for word of other arrivals from a score of Mediterranean bases.

At the Eastern end of the Mediterranean another warship, her size undisclosed, put in tonight with the black pennant of surrender flapping from her mast.

Six of the seven battleships Italy was believed to have had are now accounted for. Five are in Allied hands and the Roma was sunk by German planes. The seventh was believed to be either the Impero, scheduled for completion in 1942 but believed by London authorities to be at Trieste or Pola, possibly not yet completed, or the Cavour, torpedoed by the British at Taranto in 1940. The Cavour was later reported to have been refloated, but was regarded by the British as a total loss for war purposes.

The 35,000-ton battleships Italia and Vittorio Veneto and the 24,000-ton battleships Andrea Doria and Dulio, as well as six cruisers, eight destroyers and fourteen submarines arrived at Malta late last week, shortly after the armistice.

A dispatch from Madrid, however, said that one Italian cruiser and four other warships, destroyers and gunboats, had been interned at Port Mahon, in the Balearics, for overstaying the twenty-four-hour leave as provided by international law. Two other Italian destroyers, the dispatch said, left last night left Pollensa, Mallorca, one of the Balearic islands, after landing twenty-five wounded men.

Seven Cruisers Come In.

Seven of Italy's ten known cruisers have joined the Allies, and the seven Italian warships reported to have put in previously at the Balearics, before heading for an Allied port, may have included others.

Meanwhile tonight the Berlin radio said that three Italian torpedo boats had been sunk while attacking a German convoy near the island of Elba. Several other attacking craft were severely damaged Berlin added.

Still unaccounted for were more than half the Italian submarine fleet which was believed to have numbered between fifty and sixty. Some of these, however, were understood to have been operating in the Atlantic. Other units of the fleet, including some of the submarines, were believed to be at sea attempting to elude German bombers which sent the 35,000-ton battleship Roma to the bottom with one well-placed bomb as she fled Italy on Friday.

Word from Malta was that Admiral Bagliria, commander of the fleet, went down with the Roma. Swiss dispatches said that seven ships had arrived at the Spanish-owned Balearic Islands, in the western Mediterranean, and that two of the seven had sailed, presumably for Allied ports. On the other hand, the German-controlled Paris radio, in a broadcast picked up at London by the Associated Press, quoted a Madrid dispatch as reporting that two of seven Italian warships at Pollensa had been scuttled.

Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of the Allied fleet, said that the Italian ships "are in good order, absolutely first class, especially the battleships and new cruisers."

The situation concerning the merchant fleet was not clear. The Allied authorities had little hope that the gigantic liners Rex and Conte di Savoia as well as other speedy transoceanic passenger ships would reach safe haven. These ships are regularly berthed at Genoa, Italy's principal seaport in the north of Italy, which fell under German control shortly after the announcement of the armistice.

There still are numbers of good freighters and tankers under Italian registry which, in Allied hands, would be valuable in further easing the transportation problem.

Britain Is Reported Shifting Warships For Drive on Japs

Many Said to Have Been Sent to Aid Mountbatten In Burma Campaign

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Britain was reported today to be transferring many of her heavier naval units to the Far Eastern fleet under Admiral Sir James Somerville for the opening of an Allied drive against the Japanese in Southeast Asia this fall.

Lord Louis Mountbatten's new Southeast Asia Command Forces probably will be strengthened, too, with the transfer of some thousands of Commandos from Britain—perhaps for operations against such outlying points as the Andaman Islands, which the Japanese have been using as a submarine and seaplane base, and against the Nicobar group in the Bay of Bengal.

It is anticipated here that the coming offensive will be on a far greater scale than anything attempted thus far in Southeast Asia and will get under way same time in October when the monsoon season ends.

Burma Road Recapture Is Goal.

In addition to early operations against outlying islands now in Japanese hands, it is believed generally in London that recapture of the Burma Road is one of the immediate goals of the Allies, not only in order to speed supplies to China, but also for political reasons.

Both the United States and Britain are expected to increase air power in that theater. The Arakan campaign which the British undertook last December demonstrated that the key to the reconquest of Burma is naval and air power and that without control of the sea lanes the number of troops which can successfully be maintained in Burma is strictly limited by the extraordinary complexity of land communications.

Three reasons are assigned here for the failure of British Empire forces to expel before now the five divisions which it is estimated the Japanese are employing to hold Burma.

Short Campaign Season.

First, India has occupied a relatively low place on the quota list for supplies; second, the training of her troops previously was directed toward the desert warfare of the west rather than the jungle warfare of the east; third, the campaign season between the monsoons is relatively short.

Now the troops in Lord Mountbatten's new command apparently are high on the priority list for supplies and moreover recent operations have given them experience in jungle warfare. Next time the story should be different.

ALLIED WAR FLEET FREED FOR ACTION AGAINST JAPANESE

Five Battleships at Malta, Other Vessels in Mediterranean Ports.

LONDON, Sept. 13 — (AP) The liquidation of the Italian fleet, which started the war as the world's fifth largest, was all but complete tonight, freeing Allied naval power from the Mediterranean for action in the Pacific against the Japanese.

The doughty old battleship Giulio Cesare steamed into Malta today to join four other surrendered battleships, leaving only one more unaccounted for. The Roma, one of Italy's newest and largest, was sunk by German planes.

One Battleship Missing

The battleship still unreported is believed to be either the Impero, scheduled for completion in 1942 but, according to London authorities, possibly not yet completed and either at Trieste or Pola, or the battleship Cavour. The 23,000-ton Cavour was torpedoed by the British at Taranto in 1940. Later she was reported to have been refloated, but was regarded by the British as a total loss for war purposes.

Into Valletta harbor the 23 000-ton Guilio Cesare led a procession of four destroyers, a seaplane carrier and a number of submarines. They anchored under Malta's guns alongside a fleet ranging from capital ships on down which gave themselves up earlier.

From Spain's Balearic islands in the western Mediterranean came the news that two Italian destroyers put to sea again after landing wounded crewmen, and that other warships, including a cruiser and destroyers and gunboats, had been interned by Spanish authorities after overstaying their 24 hours as provided by international law.

These were in addition to others which were reported to have been scuttled by their crews after reaching the Balearics.

At the other end of the Mediterranean another warship, its size undisclosed, put in with the black pennant of surrender flapping from her mast.

39 Ships Surrender

In all, an least 39 Italian warships were in Allied ports and naval authorities awaited word of other arrivals from a score of Mediterranean bases.

Freed for the forthcoming assault on Japanese sea communications was a powerful fleet including the British battleships Nelson, Rodney, Anson, Howe, Warspite and Valiant.

With these units joining the United States Pacific fleet there was a likelihood that the Japanese clean-up might be launched sooner than had been anticipated. Preparations for this drive are already shaping up under Vic Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's newly-established southeast Asia command.

Through Field Marshal Archibald P. Wavell, viceroy of India, the British have pledged the liberation of Burma among the first of their objectives, and there the first blow is expected to fall.

BADOGLIO ASKED TERMS AT ONCE

Italian Surrender a Month Under Negotiation.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.),—Negotiations for the Italian armistice were started almost a month before the actual terms were laid down and Italy stepped out of the war, an authoritative account of the secret sessions has disclosed.

The first overtures were made to British officials in two unidentified countries by emissaries of Marshal Badoglio. These envoys said that Italy's plight was desperate and asked for terms, but were told that the only terms were unconditional surrender.

In the middle of August an Italian general traveled to Lisbon, ostensibly on another mission, and there called on Sir Ronald Hugh Campbell, British Ambassador to Portugal, to renew his plea. He told the British he had full authority to say for the Badoglio government that when the Allies landed in Italy the Italians would join them. This was reported to the British and American governments, and the Russian and British Dominion governments were duly informed. High officials of Gen. Eisenhower's staff and the American Charge d'Affaires took part in these negotiations.

When the terms were completely drafted the Italian general returned to Italy, but his trip was delayed and the Italian Government, worried, sent another general who brought with him the British Gen. Carton de Wiart, a prisoner of war, as evidence of good faith.

The account added that the armistice itself was signed by the American, Gen. Bedell Smith for the Allies, and by Gen. Castellano for the Italians. Both Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander were present.

The terms, announced by Allied Headquarters in North Africa on Saturday included, in addition to an immediate cessation of fighting, the transfer of the Italian fleet and military aircraft to Allied bases. It also provided that merchant shipping could be requisitioned by the Allies for use in the military program. Furthermore, Italy was obliged to surrender immediately the island of Corsica and all Italian territory for use as operational bases against the Germans. Air and naval bases were to be turned over to the Allies and were to be protected by the Italian armed forces until so taken over.

A military government was to be established over Italian territory wherever necessary and the Italian Government was to take over any administrative tasks or agencies required by the Allied command. Other conditions dealing with questions of a political, economic or financial nature were left open to be settled at a later date.

"There was a curious and unexplained delay after July 25, (when Mussolini was ousted as premier) and the Germans were presented 40 days in which to pour troops into Italy and the Balkans x x x," Lord Strabolgi said.

"The Badoglio government had displayed weakness and indecision and had failed to give a resolute lead to the Italian people.

"Why did we not give them this lead ourselves? If, as soon as we knew of Mussolini's ruin, an appeal had been made direct to the Italian people to join us as Allies in ejecting the Germans, we could have secured control of the whole country.

"Any landing force rushed to the Italian coast would have been received with open arms x x x.

"So confused were our councils that instead of grasping this wonderful opportunity we sent airplanes to bomb Milan and other northern Italian cities and disperse and terrify our friends and potential allies. We created such confusion that 200,000 Italians laid down their arms to the Germans without a fight."

DELAY IN OCCUPYING ITALY IS CRITICISED

Strabolgi Declares Allies Should Have Landed When Duce Was Ousted.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(AP) Lord Strabolgi, Laborite member of Parliament, asserted tonight that "a curious and unexplained delay" of action by the Allies after Mussolini's fall had lost part of the advantages of the Italian capitulation.

Lord Strabolgi, a naval commander and later an Admiralty war staff member in the last, spoke at a dinner honoring Will Rogers Jr., California congressman who has been visiting England.

He said the Italian lesson made it plain that "we must beat the Germans in speed and resolution, especially in the political field."

ROMER SAYS POLES SEEK SOVIET AMITY

GOEBBELS

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Tadeusz Romer, in his first public statement as Foreign Minister of the Polish Government in Exile, said today that his country desires a "full and equitable understanding with Soviet Russia on a basis of complete loyalty and recognition of mutual rights and mutual independence." Romer, former Ambassador to Russia who was appointed to the cabinet of Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk last July, addressed the Polish National Council.

"We do not wish to minimize in any way the position due the Soviet Union in post-war organization of the world," Romer said in the authorized English text of his address. "We look for the peaceful and neighborly co-operation between Poland and Russia in the future."

Suggesting that solution of some problems await the "common victory," he added, however, that on "humanitarian grounds" it would be desirable that as many as possible of the Polish citizens now on Soviet territory be enabled to leave Russia to rejoin their families or work for Poland.

On the question of boundaries of a reconstituted Poland, Romer said:

"There is no reason to attempt to reach a solution of this problem piecemeal or prematurely so long as the common enemy still is in occupation of the greater part of Europe and the whole of Poland and constantly on the lookout for any dissension or difference of opinion in the camp of the United Nations.

"We see no adequate reason why, after the common victory, Poland should make any further sacrifices either in territory or population in addition to those which she has already made and is still making. Such a step would be immoral and repugnant to the ideals for which we are fighting, and for that reason the Polish Government stands firm for the integrity of Polish territory."

MAISKY MISSION ENDS

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.)—An indication that preliminary arrangements had been completed for a British-Russian-American conference appeared today when it was reliably understood that Ivan Maisky, the Soviet Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, had completed his mission here and would leave England shortly for Moscow.

The Soviet embassy would not confirm a report that Maisky had actually left. During his stay he conferred repeatedly with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the American Ambassador, John G. Winant.

The place of an initial meeting of the Foreign Ministers of all three countries has never been disclosed, but London has been frequently mentioned. President Roosevelt's announcement that he was optimistic about a meeting of himself, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill has been taken here to mean that the Foreign Minister conference would take place as soon as possible to pave the way for the chiefs-of-state session.

can radio still spoke tranquility to the world tonight.

Its latest message, as recorded by the Ministry of Information, reassured British listeners of the safety of relatives and friends in the convent of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin.

Meanwhile the London Daily Mail commented that "the danger to the Pontiff is that Hitler will kidnap him under the specious pretext of 'protection.' He may allege that Rome is in danger of becoming a 'front line city.'"

The enemy often puts out false statements intended to elicit such denials as may reveal, expressly or by implication, facts of military value. The claims made below are not confirmed by any Allied authority.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The German International Information Bureau, in a radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said today that Nazi speedboats had overhauled a large Allied troop carrier and a merchantman and had forced them to put into a German-controlled Italian port.

ITALIANS TOLD TO FIGHT HARD

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—"Hit the Germans and hit them hard," the United Nations radio in Algiers urged the Italians today.

The broadcast declared, "the next few days are decisive. Show yourselves worthy of the aid the United Nations are giving you. Have faith in the future."

NAZIS RESTORE FASCISM

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 14—(AP) The Berlin radio said early today that a Fascist national government had been founded in the name of Benito Mussolini and now was under Mussolini's direct command.

Nazis Hold North Italy.

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Reports from Allied headquarters in North Africa and from neutral quarters, tended to bear out German claims that most of northern Italy now is under Nazi control. The German High Command appealed to Italian soldiers there to join them in fighting against the Allies, promising they would be "well armed and well paid."

Except in Turin, however, where Italian troops aided by civilians still are fighting the Germans, the Nazis are encountering little open resistance in the north, the Swiss reports said. Passive resistance was reported widespread, nevertheless.

Rome itself was reported suffering from a severe food shortage and public transportation there was said to be virtually paralyzed.

NIGHT RAID LULL

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The R. A. F's heavy night bombers and American Flying Fortresses are believed to be awaiting a break in a stretch of bad weather before resuming their long-range campaign against Berlin and other Nazi war centers American heavy bombers have not left their bases since the climax of the eight-day, round-the-clock assault last Thursday, and the R. A. F.'s heavy bombers have made no major raid since the Munich assault of a week ago. Some Wellingtons and Stirlings, however, were reported to have participated in an attack on French channel ports Wednesday night.

An attack by a combined force of American Marauders, R. A. F. Mitchells and Typhoons on French shipyards and airfields Saturday indicated that the Allies were not planning to give the Nazis any prolonged rest.

NAZIS CLAIM TIRANA

London, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—DNB, official German news agency, said in a broadcast today that German troops had occupied Tirana, the capital of Albania.

RAF Fighters Cross Channel For France

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—While unfavorable weather still held Allied heavy bombers aground, RAF fighters crossed the Channel before dark tonight in the direction of Boulogne and Calais, France.

American heavy bombers have not left their bases since the climax of an eight-day, round-the-clock assault upon the Continent last Thursday, and the RAF's heavy bombers had made no major raid since the Munich assault of a week ago.

Typhoon Bombers Sink 3 Craft

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—In a wave-top attack off Holland, Typhoon bombers today sank two coastal ships and a barge. In addition, the Air Ministry News Service reported, the bombers damaged ten tugs, three barges, a coastwise ship, a dredge and a launch.

UGOSLAV KING PETAR TO VISIT BATTLEFIELD

LONDON, Sept. 13—(AP) Dramatizing Yugoslav plans to take a full-blown part in the United Nations offensive, young King Petar II is expected to fly shortly to Allied headquarters in North Africa and visit the battlefields in Italy.

His appearance in Italy may be the signal for a large scale uprising of the Yugoslav partisan and patriot forces under Gen. Draja Mihailovic and Josip Broz, known to his men as "Tito."

Cairo received reports today that fighting had broken out in Yugoslavia between the Italians and Germans as patriot forces resumed their guerrilla offensive on railways and other Nazi installations.

In parts of Yugoslavia, these reports added, the Italians and partisans joined forces to combat the Germans. Many Croatians were said to have joined in the general attack on the Nazis.

Most of Petar's ministers are ready to embark for Cairo where the Government-in-exile is transferring its headquarters.

The Greek Government's move to Cairo for the same purpose—to be nearer the homeland for the invasion—is considered to have had successful results so far.

Nazis Shift Norwegian Officers

Stockholm, Sept. 13 (AP)—About 1,000 Norwegian army officers rounded up under Hitler's orders recently because of a fear that they might lead the people against the Germans in the event of an Allied invasion, have been transported to a German internment camp at Schocken, Poland, a Norwegian source said today.

Stockholm, Sept. 13 (AP)—The former Chrysler factory in the free port of Copenhagen suffered severe damage when a saboteur's bomb exploded there yesterday, reports from Malmoe said today. Another factory was also said to have been damaged.

As sabotage of factories producing for the Germans proceeded, King Christian was said to continue to resist the Nazi pressure to form a new government. A Free Danish spokesman said the King simply refers the Germans to the old Government which is regarded as "on strike." The powerful Conservative party has refused to take any steps until the Germans release all imprisoned politicians.

Nazis Use Rome Radio.

Berne, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The Rome radio is broadcasting German propaganda today, but the gutteral accents of the speakers indicate that the speakers are not Italians. Como on the border finally was occupied by German forces during the night.

Previous dispatches said 32,000 Allied prisoners of war, freed by the Italians, had been waiting in Como to get across the border into Switzerland.

Report Tells of Sicily.

Berne, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The Swiss telegraph agency said in a dispatch from the Swiss frontier town of Chiasso today that Benito Mussolini was liberated by German parachutists from his detention place near Palermo, Sicily. The agency's report, which was not confirmed, said Mussolini was taken to Palermo at the time of Premier Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel left Rome.

Milan newspapers failed to arrive at the Swiss frontier, and it was reported that newspaper had been suspended in the northern cities held by Marshal Erwin Rommel. Il Regime Fascista, the newspaper of the former Fascist party secretary, Roberto Farinacci, was said to have resumed, however.

LAVAL'S VICHY REGIME SEEN AS CRUMBLING

Pro-Nazi Officials Said To Vanish In Welter Of Graft And Corruption

[By the Associated Press]

Madrid, Sept. 13—A welter of graft, political crimes and general corruption among persons high in the pro-Nazi Vichy French regime and other collaborationist circles is shown in the twice-censored French newspapers arriving here daily.

Only the barest outline, however, is able to get into the newspapers, censored both by the Vichy authorities and the Germans, but the details are supplied by reports seeping over the border.

The web of pro-German and pro-Vichy employes—prefects, mayors, local quislings and minor officials—is said to be crumbling under the triple threat of the exposure of their graft, assassination and plain fear that the German domination which has been supporting them was nearing its end.

Number Of Officials Vanish

During the last few days, a number of Vichy officials of all categories and in all parts of France have simply vanished, some with their families, some leaving explanatory notes behind them. But none left forwarding addresses.

Many went to the northern provinces, dispatches from France said, to be nearer the German border.

Others did not leave soon enough and ended in hospitals, cemeteries or jails.

The French press, which reaches Spain by plane, could no longer hide the seriousness of what it called "terrorism."

War On "Terrorism" Demanded

The Fascist, pro-German Gringoire, a political weekly owned and edited by Horace de Carbuccia, a Corsican who was involved in numerous political scandals in France before the war, demanded "pitiless repression of the terrorists," particularly those who attack "farms, barns, crops, farmers and agricultural machinery."

Carbuccia had a more-than-academic reason for a campaign of repression as he is said to have received hundreds of threatening letters and was twice attacked recently although he escaped on each occasion.

The Paris anti-Jewish press reported that French Swimming Champion Nakache had been forced to abandon his title because he was Jewish. It added that a pro-German, Melice Francais, active against Nakache, was shot and killed two days later by unknown assaillants.

Book Theft Laid To Senator

The Fascist weekly, Je Suis Partout, noted with chagrin that Rightist Senator Donon, of the Loiret Department, who had supported Laval was in police courts recently charged with stealing books from the Orleans library.

Crime news reported in the controlled press included the arrest of a Vichy employe in the Twentieth district of Paris for stealing 2,000,000 francs worth of ration cards, and the jailing of five Vichy officials in Nancy the same day for the organized stealing of stocks of food and clothing addressed to French prisoners of war in Germany.

One anti-Jewish campaign backfired when Pierre Delesse, inspector of the special Paris police organized by the Germans to press the anti-Jewish campaign, was sentenced to thirteen months in jail and 5,000 francs fine in a Paris court for blackmailing a Turkish banker who happened not to be Jewish.

PRO-NAZIS VANISHING

Madrid, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Reports reaching here today from the French border said that many of the Vichy government's pro-German employees were quietly vanishing under fear of assassination and that German domination was nearing an end.

Hundreds departed in recent days, the reports said, with none leaving forwarding addresses. Others who did not leave soon enough after threatening letters were sent to hospitals or cemeteries, the reports said.

French newspapers reaching Spain told of "terrorism" in France.

Italian Embassy in Spain Loyal to Badoglio

Madrid, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—A spokesman for the Italian embassy said here today that the Ambassador and his entire staff remained "under the orders of the House of Savoy and Marshal Badoglio."

He said they had received no communication from either Badoglio or King Victor Emmanuel.

Prisoner Swap Off, No British Arrive

LISBON, Sept. 13 (AP).—The Red Cross ship Atlantis, bearing 555 Italian war prisoners who were scheduled to be exchanged in Lisbon for British prisoners, anchored in the Tagus River here today but did not establish contact with the shore.

British prisoners from Italy have not arrived, due to the present unsettled situation in Italy, and it was reported that the Atlantis might return to North Africa soon without putting the Italian prisoners ashore.

PortugalBars Export of Olives

LISBON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Due to a shortage of olive oil, the Portuguese government prohibited today the exportation of olives.

AMERICAN GUN CREW ENGAGES 13 TANKS

Five Men Hold Off Enemy in First Stage of Invasion

Distributed by The Associated Press

WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY, in Italy, Sept. 13 (AP)—A gun crew composed of a young Texas lieutenant and four enlisted men shot it out with thirteen German tanks on the day that the Fifth Army came ashore in Italy. They probably saved the whole American beach-head from being cut to pieces.

One youngster attacked a tank with a tommy gun. He died trading bullets with a steel monster that he could not hope to hurt.

The first American assault waves had been ashore on the Gulf of Salerno only a few hours before the Germans sent groups of tanks against them. They met only a mile from the beach.

Lieut. John Whitaker, 18 years old, of Fort Worth, Tex., and his men were bringing their gun up the road when the German armor struck. They were five men alone on a road without any other artillery, but they went into action immediately. Lieutenant Whitaker's commanding officer, Capt. Wiley Stem of Waco, Tex., has written the following official dispatch:

"Lieutenant Whitaker and his men, having only one 75-mm. self-propelled mount available for his platoon, engaged thirteen Mark IV special German tanks. * * * All during the engagement they were subjected to near cannon and machine-gun fire and displayed conspicuous and extreme bravery under fire. * * * They destroyed three tanks and materially assisted in the destruction of two others."

With Lieutenant Whitaker were Sgt. Seth Gross of Caldwell, Tex.; Corp. Arthur Lloyd of East Rutherford, N. J.; Pvt. Camello J. Camiti of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Pvt.

1943

Harry Bodzin of 74 East Fifty-fifth Street, Brooklyn. They held their position and kept the tanks at bay until additional anti-tank weapons had arrived and driven off the German assault an hour later.

[This dispatch was received a few hours before the Germans announced Mussolini's capture.]

With the United States Fifth Army Somewhere in Italy, Sept. 12.—John Steinbeck, American novelist and war correspondent, arrived in this sector today with the story that Benito Mussolini is presently in the custody of Italian Army officers but dreams and talks of returning to power.

Accompanying a British and American tank force which recently took Ventotene Island, off Naples, Mr. Steinbeck said he missed Mussolini there by less than twelve hours. Mr. Steinbeck added that it seemed certain that the Mussolinis had been living on the nearby island of Ponza since the Fascist regime collapsed and Marshall Badoglio took over.

"I talked with a number of inhabitants of Ponza who were spending some days on Tentotene," Steinbeck said. "They are always going back and forth. They said Mussolini assured them he would return to power in Italy and re-establish the Fascist regime, comparing himself presently with Napoleon during the latter's brief exile on Elba.

"The islanders thought Mussolini acted, or pretended to act, as though his guards—Italian Army officers—were merely giving him protection rather than holding him in custody. According to some of them, Mussolini's gesticulations were more nervous and intense than ever, which they appeared to interpret as symtomatic of a jangled nervous system."

ITALIAN WARSHIPS SUITABLE FOR ASIA

By THOMAS S. TREANOR.

Los Angeles Times Correspondent Representing the combined American Press. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

Valletta, Malta, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The Italian ships surrendered to the Allies are eminently suitable to carry on the war in the Pacific against the Japanese, naval officers here believe. Reports that they were designed only for short dashes about the Mediterranean and are unfit for long cruises have been over-emphasized, British officers declared.

"That is the same old story that used to be passed around about the German fleet," said one officer. "You know how true that was.

"These are good ships. Some of the battleships rate with the best in the world."

The principal complication will be manning the vessels and providing ammunition for them. The caliber of their guns differs from that of British and American vessels and it is not likely that they could have carried away enough ammunition to make them immediately useful.

Unless manufacturing facilities already had been made available in anticipation of just such an emergency, extensive factories will have to be provided for ammunition.

MALTA VISIT AWES WRITER

Island, Under Blitz A Year Ago, Now Shelters Italian And British Fleets

By THOMAS S. TREANOR.

[Los Angeles Times War Correspondent]

Malta, Sept. 13 (AP)—Malta, once the most bombed spot on the earth, for the last two days has sheltered the main Italian fleet plus British battleships and numerous other major naval craft.

Yet not a single bomb has been dropped, although the island is within short bombing range of German bases in Italy.

There has been no more convincing evidence in the Mediterranean war of Germany's waning air strength and the overwhelming air power of the United Nations.

Contrast Noted

To one who visited Malta last summer when a rowboat was taking a risk in Valetta harbor, the contrast is too dramatic to describe.

Almost astounding is the experience of the British and Italian naval forces at Taranto.

In this Italian harbor, only seventy-five miles from Foggia, Germany's greatest air base in southern Italy with its eleven satellite fields, no ship of either nation was struck by a bomb.

The British were able to send in a section of their navy and trade places with the Italian navy without a scratch of bomb damage to either side.

British Vessels Lucky

Other British vessels, which had been patrolling off the Taranto coast, vulnerable to attack by land-based planes, were equally lucky.

Although they expected a concentrated assault at any moment, nothing more dangerous than the dropping of three flares took place.

Officers were certain they would be made the immediate target of a torpedo plane attack. They fired a few rounds of anti-aircraft, driving the flare plane off.

Sailors Look Healthy

On the cruiser Lugi Cadorna, several sailors had their underwear and shorts drying on the rail. There were very few shirts. The Italian sailors apparently are allowed to go bare to the waist at will. They're deeply suntanned and look ruggedly healthy. Perhaps they appear so nonchalant because they are not prisoners of war.

[A broadcast by the United Nations radio in Algiers said no details can be given regarding future use of the Italian fleet, but the "Italian crews are not considered prisoners of war." United States Government monitors recorded the broadcasts.

[James Wellard, Chicago Times correspondent representing the combined American press, reported that four high-ranking Italian naval commanders are with the Italian fleet at Malta. He said they are Admiral De Zara, who is now aboard the flagship Duilio; Admiral Romeo Oliva, aboard the cruiser Eugenio Di Savoia; Admiral Accroetti, aboard the battleship Vittorio Veneto, and Admiral Biancheri, aboard the cruiser Duca Degli Abruzzi.]

No Attempt At Secrecy

There is no attempt at military secrecy. Each vessel has its name embossed in large metal letters on either side of the stern.

We inspected the battleships Andrea Doria and Duilio in detail. Both appeared in perfect condition, clean as a whistle. They carried an astonishing number of anti-aircraft guns, the heavy ones protected in turrets and the lighter ones on the deck behind shields.

Armament Described

They mounted five heavy guns fore and five heavy guns aft and had batteries of three medium guns amidships.

The two vessels, apparently sister ships, had wonderfully sleek profiles with long horizontal lines.

The crews hung nonchalantly over the rails as we passed. One sailor was taking a shower on the open deck. The crew members aboard the destroyer Alfredo Oriani volunteered a description of the German air attack on the Roma.

Lasted 3 Hours

They said it lasted off and on for about three hours, between 2.30 and 5.30 P. M., Thursday.

"Planes came over in threes and fours and seemed to fire their bombs from guns," said an officer who spoke excellent English. "In any case we could see smoke and a flash as they launched their bombs."

He said he was unable to see the hits on the Roma and did not see any planes shot down.

We asked him how he happened to speak such excellent English and he answered:

"It was my grandmother that was Scottish."

REPORTER IS WOUNDED

Time Magazine Correspondent Shot in Salerno Attack

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13 (AP)—A dispatch from the American Fifth Army, attacking in the Salerno area, reported today that Jack Belden, Time Magazine correspondent, had been wounded twice in the leg during the troop landings.

Mr. Belden was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1910. He graduated from Colgate University in 1932.

Also injured in the initial fighting in Italy was a British newsreel cameraman, who had all the fingers of one hand blown off. No other details were given.

Mr. Belden went to China immediately after graduating from Colgate, and became a war correspondent while there, covering many campaigns.

Send Officers To Headquarters Of Mihailovic—Croatians Begin To Fight Germans, Cairo Hears

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Sept. 13 —Allied senior officers are serving at the headquarters of both Gen. Draja Mihailovic and Josip Broz to coordinate Yugoslav guerrilla activities with Allied strategic plans, a Yugoslav report said today.

Advices from the Balkan nation told of a series of confused battles between Italians and Germans, with some Croats fighting on each side.

Partisan groups composed of both Serbs and Croats were declared holding large mountainous areas in Bosnia and Dalmatia, including the strategic heights overlooking the important city of Banja Luka.

Positions Consolidated

The Partisans have consolidated their positions so well, it was reported, that some of the railways they destroyed when the Axis held them have been repaired and are being used by the guerrilla groups. Telephone service also is working in sections of the liberated territory.

In parts of the country the Italian troops and Partisans were reported to have joined forces to combat the Germans. At the important rail junctions of Karlovac and Ogulin, on the railway from Zagreb to the coast, Italians with their new Partisan allies are resisting attacks by the German and Croat Ustasha troops.

Croats Quit Nazis

There were reports here that many Croatians had lost their enthusiasm for the Germans, with 500 of them deserting the Croat army and joining the Partisans during the past week. Three hundred from the Banja Luka garrison were said to have come over to the Partisans recently with their full equipment.

German forces were reported making for the Adriatic coast from Trieste to Montenegro. In central Serbia there have been a series of minor engagements between Mihailovic's forces and the Bulgarian and German armies, and one hundred enemy soldiers were reported to have been killed in these operations.

"Tito" Heads Guerrillas

The Partisan commander, Broz, is the Montenegrin insurgent popularly known as "Tito."

Reports here indicated that the Germans anticipated the Italian surrender by several days. On September 2, six days before, German planes reportedly bombed the military barracks at Knin, then still held by the Italians. The Italians evacuated the town, and the Germans took it over with the assistance of Serb Quisling formations.

Offensive Hits Peak

The guerrilla offensive against the railways—now more vital than ever to the Germans—reached a peak in Italian-occupied Slovenia, where the Partisans carried out twenty-six operations against rail lines. It was reported that each operation held up traffic an average of twenty-two hours.

These operations were said to have occurred on the Trieste-to-Ljubljana line, the Ljubljana-to-Zagreb line, the Ljubljana-to-Karlovac line and the Ljubljana-to-Kocevje line. The enemy was reported to have lost 243 men killed and numerous wounded.

Partisans in Dalmatia have occupied small sections of the coast and some islands, and it was reported that they were sending out raiding parties in small fighting boats.

2 ITALIAN PLANES FLEE TO SAFETY

Crews Report Nazis Placed Guards Over All Aircraft.

CAIRO, Sept. 13—(AP) The captain of one of two Italian seaplanes that landed at Middle East air bases today told R.A.F. authorities that the Germans had placed guards on most Italian aircraft immediately after learning of the armistice with the Allies.

Stepping from his plane at an Allied base on the island of Cyprus, this officer, wearing the resplendent dress uniform of the Regia Aeronautica, was taken immediately to Middle East headquarters there. He said that he and his crew had succeeded in dodging the guard.

Both planes, devoid of Fascist markings, bore the Italian national colors.

The captain of the second plane which landed in Egypt told an R. A.F. officer that "relations between the Italian air crews and ground staffs and their German counterparts have been unbearable for a long time. There was open friction and often blows. Orders from senior officers were often disobeyed by juniors of the opposite nationality."

"We were sick of it all," the Italian continued. "The best food was stolen by the Germans. And then we received the invitation of the Allies to fly to their bases. I can not tell you how we heard them, but I immediately made my decision and laid my plans. We took off yesterday morning. I am happy to be away from the Germans with my crew."

R.A.F. officers said the rest of the crew agreed with broad smiles.

"Another thing made me happy, too," the Italian captain added, "—your beer."

Nazi Targets In Greece Next, Greek Airmen Told

Cairo, Sept. 13 (AP)—M. P. Woulgaris, Minister of Aviation in the Greek Government in Exile, told the Greek Air Force today in an order of the day that "the hour of your most intense action has sounded."

"We are convinced your next objectives will be bases and airdromes of Greece still infested by our enemies," he said.

DODECANESE LANDING REPORTED IN TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Sept. 13—(AP) A report that Allied forces had made several landings on the Dodecanese island of Rhodes, between Crete and the Turkish mainland, circulated today in marine circles of Izmir. Allied authorities said they had no confirmation.

(Rhodes airdromes were attacked by U. S. Liberators of the Middle East command Sunday without opposition, it was announced in Cairo.)

Italian authorities said they had been unable for three days to establish contact with any of their posts on the Dodecanese islands.

FLOODED WITH GIFTS

ISTANBUL, Sept. 13.—(AP) Since the surrender of Italy, Rumanian newspapers have printed small notices asking the public to refrain from sending more gifts to American fliers captured after the Liberator raid Aug. 1 on the Ploesti oil fields. The notices said the prisoners had already received more gifts than they could use.

Nazis Fight for Dodecanese.

Ankara, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Reports from Turkish towns on the Ægean coast today said German-Italian friction had grown into general fighting throughout the Dodecanese as the Nazis tried desperately to win control of the islands.

Apparently the fighting was flaring separately on each of the islands, where a mixed Italian-German garrison is stationed, without any general campaign on the part of the contestants.

A report said the Italians on one small island were loudly bewailing the fact that Allied forces had not arrived to take over. They were said to be complaining bitterly about the possibility of having to submit to the Germans.

Advices reaching Istanbul said German and Italian troops on Rhodes and in the Greek capital of Athens fought bitterly for three days after the Italian surrender. An informed neutral source said the Italians on Rhodes gave in Saturday.

[Berlin announced Saturday that German forces had won control there.]

A reported evacuation of German civilians from the island of Samos off the west coast of Turkey, indicated, however, that the Italians were having some successes in warding off the Germans. Italian troops there are believed to outnumber the Nazis at least three to one.

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 13—(AP) American Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt will leave tonight for Washington for general consultations with the State department which probably will last three or four weeks, an embassy spokesman said today.

Japanese Troops In Burma Bombed

New Delhi, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Hurricane fighters attacked Japanese troops at Sinoh yesterday in a sweep over the Mayu Peninsula of Burma and inflicted casualties, an Allied communique said today. At the same time R. A. F. Beaufighters attacked rail and road communications between Pyinmana and Myingyan. At least nine enemy supply boats were sunk by other Beaufighters patrolling Ramree Island and the Kaladan River areas.

JAP-MONGOL CLASH

Chungking, Sept. 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Brisk clashes between Japanese forces and the troops of Outer Mongolia, which is under Russian protection, were reported today by the Chinese Central News Agency. The scene of the fighting was given as the boundary of Inner and Outer Mongolia, north of Pailingmiao, which is 300 miles northwest of Peiping.

The report, dated "Somewhere in West Suiyuan," was said to be based upon "reliable information." It listed Kailinho as a scene of clashes but did not say how they developed.

The report also said that the Japanese recruited some 20,000 laborers to build three defense lines near Pailingmiao.

Chiang Elected President Of China, Succeeds Lin Sen

Generalissimo Urges Leniency Toward Communists. Hopes They Stop "Creating Trouble"

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Sept. 13—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was elected President of China today to succeed the late Dr. Lin Sen and he asked the Chinese Communists for full cooperation in the interests of the nation's war effort.

Elected President at a meeting of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee, the generalissimo, under a revision of the national government's organic law adopted Saturday, became, as President, commander in chief of China's land, air and naval forces.

The Central Executive Committee also confirmed Chiang in his post as President of the Executive Yuan, or Premier, and decided that the heads of four other Yuans (councils) should continue in office.

Declaring that the Chinese Communist problem should be solved by political means, Chiang said in a statement to the Central Executive Committee:

"If you share my view, we should maintain the policy of leniency and forbearance which we have consistently pursued in dealing in our domestic affairs, with the expectation that the Chinese Communist party will be moved by our sincerity and magnanimity, no matter in what ways they may slander us or in what manner they try to create trouble."

He said that despite provocations the Central Executive Committee should abide by its manifesto of November, 1942, which advocated overlooking the past record of those who mended their ways.

Chiang said he hoped the Communists would redeem their pledge of 1937 to give up the Communist movement, dissolve the organization and disband the Red army by incorporating it into the national army.

He said he hoped also the Communists would abandon their policy of forcefully occupying national territory and "give up their past tactics of assaulting national government troops in various sectors, thus obstructing prosecution of the war."

Valuable War Equipment Left Behind At New Guinea Port.

VICTORS PRESS PURSUIT

MacArthur's Troops Chase Foe Along Narrow Jungle Trail.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, Sept. 14—(AP) A fast disintegrating Japanese army has abandoned Salamaua, New Guinea, leaving behind valuable war equipment to Australians hotly pursuing them northward into the mountains, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The air and sea anchorage base is the first place of pre-war importance to be retaken from the enemy in the southwest Pacific.

Salamaua was overrun Sunday, a day after Australians of a pioneer unit swam the rain-swollen Francisco river and occupied the big airdrome two miles southwest of the town.

Japs Abandon Town

A large Australian force moved cautiously into the town's harbor section built on an isthmus connecting the mainland with Cape Parsee in the Huon gulf. The caution was unnecessary. The Japanese who had survived Allied bombings which flattened Salamaua during a campaign of seven and a half months had fled to ridges northwest of the town, beginning a flight toward Lae.

Salamaua, occupied by the Japanese shortly after they overran Lae Jan. 25, 1942, affords the Allies a sea and air base on the left flank of vital enemy bases on New Britain.

Eighteen miles above Salamaua, the pincers on Lae was tightened, aided by air blows.

Allied bombers, making a round-trip flight of more than 2,000 miles, heavily bombed the waterfront and barracks at Makassar, Dutch Celebes.

Many Fires Touched Off

In a night attack, Liberators dropped 27 tons of explosives and incendiaries. Fires raged among buildings and warehouses near the Juliana and Wilhelmina wharves, in an oil storage tank area and in the center of military barracks as well as at the Mandai airdrome. One Liberator failed to return.

Below Salamaua, Japanese divebombers attacked the harbor of Allied-held Morobe, New Guinea, but today's communique said the raiders caused only minor damage.

Japs Leave Equipment Behind

The Japanese abandoned Salamaua, leaving behind much equipment as they fled north. Only one good trail leads from the captured base toward Lae.

But even should they succeed in reaching Lae, their fate apparently is sealed because the entire area from Salamaua to Lae is tightly encircled.

"We have captured Salamaua," the communique said.

"Our southern forces are in close pursuit of remnants of the enemy's disintegrating troops.

"Our northeastern and western forces (at Lae) are gradually increasing their pressure. Our heavy bombers in direct support attacked enemy defense installations with 49 tons of explosives, causing extensive damage at Emerys and Diddymans. A bridge on the main valley road was destroyed and several gun batteries silenced."

In the Solomons, American bombers started fires and explosions in a new raid on the isolated Japanese air base of Vila, Kolombangara.

Village of Salamaua Captured; Encircled Foe Flees Toward Lae

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 14 (Tuesday).—The Allies have captured Salamaua, New Guinea, two miles above the newly won airdrome, General Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Salamaua, on an isthmus joined to a cape extending into the Huon Gulf, has a usable sea anchorage in Samoa Harbor. Eighteen miles above Salamaua, the pincers on Lae was tightened, aided by air blows.

"We have captured Salamaua," the communique said. "Our southern forces are in close pursuit of remnants of the enemy's disintegrating troops.

"Our northeastern and western forces (at Lae) are gradually increasing their pressure. Our heavy bombers in direct support attacked enemy defense installations with forty-nine tons of explosives, causing extensive damage at Emery's and Diddyman's (plantations). A bridge on the main valley road was destroyed and several gun batteries were silenced."

In the Solomons, American bombers started fires and explosions in a new raid on the isolated Japanese air base of Vila, Kolombangara.

The pattern followed by the Allies thus far in their reconquest of New Guinea was disclosed to newsmen today by General Sir Thomas Blamey.

The Allied Command's strategy has been to weaken the Lae Garrison to a point where it cannot hope to fight its way free of the trap which was set by the Australian and American drive to Salamaua and sprung by amphibious landings east of Lae and airborne landings west of the base on Sept. 4 and 5.

Failure of the Japanese to offer serious resistance to the amphibious operation and to stop the advance of Australians and Americans closing in from two directions seems a clear demonstration of the success of the strategy.

HEROIC DEEDS ARE CITED

One Army Bomber Fought Battle With Japanese All Alone —New Yorkers on Lists

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA, Sept. 8 (Delayed) (AP)—Award of the Air Medal to a group of officers and enlisted men of the Fifth Air Force was announced today by Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, Commander of Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific.

Those decorated included:

Second Lieut. Charles A. Tedeschi of Jackson Heights, L. I., for meritorious achievement while participating in twenty-five operational flight missions in the Southwest Pacific area. In the course of these operations, strafing and bombing attacks were made from dangerously low altitudes, destroying and damaging enemy installations and equipment.

General Kenney also awarded the Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to a group of fliers.

Their decorations were for participating in a bombing attack on a Japanese convoy in the Bismarck Sea last March. The rest of the formation of heavy bombers missed the rendezvous and the lone bomber made the attack although the lower turret gun was not functioning, and although it was known Japanese planes were in the vicinity.

U. S. Units in Solomons Blast 30 Enemy Barges

But Blockade Fails to Balk Foe in Some Areas

UNITED STATES HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 13 (AP).—The Japanese still are able to get some supplies through to their garrisons on Kolombangara and Vella Lavella Islands under cover of night despite a tight American blockade, a Navy spokesman said today.

However, the spokesman said, the blockade maintained by American planes and motor torpedo boats is withholding a considerable amount of badly needed material from the enemy on the remaining Japanese holdings in the Solomons, which include Arundel Island, south of Kolambangara.

American units destroyed or damaged thirty enemy barges in the last week—an accomplishment which brought congratulations and this message from Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey jr., commander of United States South Pacific Forces: "The air and surface war against Jap barges is warming the seat of the enemy's pants. Burn 'em up."

SOLDIERS DECORATED

General Headquarters, Southwest Pacific Area, Aug. 31 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Award of the air medal to a group of officers and enlisted men of the United States Fifth Air Force was announced today by Lieut.-Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific.

Those decorated included Second Lieut. Charles A. Tedeschi of 35-36 76th street, Jackson Heights, Queens.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—A Soldier's Medal has been awarded Pfc. Arthur C. Steanres, North Bergen, N. J., who, with another man, risked his life to recover the body of an American from a river on August 21, 1942.

Sergt. Edo V. Van Winkle of 3 Brook Farm, Suffern, N. Y., a former life guard at Crestwood Lake, Allendale, N. J., was also awarded a Soldier's Medal for rescuing a soldier from the same river on November 10, 1942.

PREMIER'S WIDOW AUSTRALIAN M. P.

Melbourne, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The widow of Joseph Lyons, former Prime Minister of Australia, today became the first woman Representative in the history of the Commonwealth's Parliament.

Dame Enid Lyons was elected to the House of Representatives as a member of the United Australian party, the faction formed by her husband after breaking away from the Labor party.

Dorothy Tangney was chosen in the recent elections as the first woman Senator representing Prime Minister John Curtin's Labor party.

FIRST LADY ... P

Brisbane, Australia, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—A realization of the sacrifices young men are forced to make on account of war stands out first in the mind of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt after a nine-day visit to American soldiers in Australia, the President's wife said in an interview today.

"What those years mean to a young life, what that period means to the millions of boys who gave up school careers and other pursuits I cannot forget," she said. "It is the thing which impressed me most in visiting our boys out here."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had spent a comparatively light day today, traveling only 500 miles by airplane, appearing at two Red Cross clubs, two receptions and one hospital, and making only four speeches.

Ban on Waikiki Beach Eased

HONOLULU, Sept. 13 (AP).—The recreational district of Waikiki Beach, closed to Army and Navy personnel since Sept. 8 in a move to control dengue fever, was reopened today for military personnel stationed on the Island of Oahu. Personnel from other islands still are barred from the area. Health authorities reported there had been 217 civilian cases of dengue fever since a recent outbreak.

ARGENTINE EDITOR HELD

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 13—(AP) Jose Agusti, publisher of the pro-Allied newspaper Noticias Graficas which was suspended indefinitely last week for its comment on Secretary Hull's rejection of Argentina's request for Lend-Lease aid from the United States, was taken into police custody today.

Police said he would be held for action by the Federal executive department, which indicated prosecution was likely.

The comment which caused the newspaper's suspension was this: "With or without purpose, with full knowledge or not, the Argentine government (of Gen. Pedro Ramirez) has not followed the feelings and hopes of the country in the matter of international policy."

Secretary Hull refused Argentina's request on the grounds that Argentina was not doing her share in the protection of the Americas and had not kept promises to break off relations with the Axis.

Buenos Aires Embassy Ponders: Duce or King?

Italian Officials Undecided on Allegiance

BUENOS AIRES Sept. 13 (AP).—The Italian Embassy in Buenos Aires appeared uncertain today as to which Italian authorities it now represents.

"Call back in five minutes," the embassy's secretary replied when asked about the embassy's allegiance in view of the Nazi announcement of Benito Mussolini's "liberation."

Called a second time, the secretary said he was unable to make a statement.

The Italian-language daily "Mattino d'Italia," which had proclaimed allegiance to King Victor Emmanuel after Mussolini's overthrow, plumped for Fascism again.

Canadian Strikers Vote Return

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 13 (AP)—More than 500 freight handlers at the docks in Port Arthur and Fort William, who had been on strike since Thursday, voted today to return to work immediately pending a Labor Board decision on their demand for increased wages. Japanese Report New U. S. Raid

On Kuriles

Two Transports Set Afire by 18 Planes, Broadcast Admits

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Japanese Domei Agency said in a broadcast today that 18 American bombers attacked Japanese installations in the Northern Kurile Islands yesterday. The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Kuriles stretch northward from Japan and include the principal North Pacific naval base at Paramushiro.

Domei admitted that two Japanese transports were set afire, but said damage to land installations was "extremely light." Land batteries and Army and Navy airmen shot down many American planes, the broadcast said, adding that Japanese losses consisted of one plane.

A subsequent Domei English-language broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission claimed that eight and probably nine American planes were shot down in the attack, which the dispatch said occurred early yesterday.

The Japanese indicated that 12 of the United States planes were B-25 Mitchell medium bombers.

"Serious Clashes" In Rome Are Reported By Germans

Nazis Blame "Irresponsible Criminal Element." Martial Law Imposed On South Italy

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 13—Widespread fighting between Italians and Germans in Italy was reported in radio broadcasts today and a Nazi proclamation from Rome said "serious clashes have taken place within the city."

The Nazi-operated Rome radio, in a broadcast reported by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said the fights in Rome were between German troops and "irresponsible criminal elements," and appealed to the people to "resume your occupations with discipline."

Count Calvi In Command

"Italian authorities under the orders of the commandant of Rome, General Count Carlo Calvi di Bergolo, are to see under their responsibility that all arms are surrendered at once," declared the proclamation. "The people of Rome are requested to support Count Calvi in the discharge of his task to prevent further shedding of blood and to ensure both the restoring of order in the city and the food suply.

"Saboteurs and franc-tireurs (guerrillas) will be rigorously dealt with according to martial law. Whoever is found in possession of arms at midnight, September 15, will be court-martialed." Count Calvi is the son-in-law of King Vittorio Emanuele III.

Reign Of Terror In South

The proclamation followed by a day the institution of a "reign of terror" ordered by a Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring who, as commander in chief in the south, proclaimed "German martial law" and laid down a ten-point decree which listed penalties up to execution for uncooperative Italians.

Text of the decree, as recorded by United States Government monitors:

"1. Italian territory under my jurisdiction is declared a zone of war in which German martial law is valid.

"2. All crimes committed against the German armed forces will be tried in accordance with German martial law.

"3. Strikes are forbidden and will be dealt with by war tribunal.

"4. Organizers of strikes, saboteurs and franc-tireurs (guerrillas) will be summarily tried and shot.

To Maintain Discipline

"5. I am determined to maintain calm and discipline and to support the competent Italian authorities with all available means to ensure the food supply of the population.

"6. Italian workers who place themselves voluntarily at the disposal of the German services will be treated according to German principles and paid according to German rates.

"7. Administrative ministers and judicial authorities are to carry on their duty.

"8. Train and postal services and communications will be restarted immediately.

"9. Private correspondence is forbidden until further orders. Telephone conversations, which must be cut down to the minimum, will be severely censored.

"10. Italian authorities and civil organizations are responsible to me for public order. They will fulfill their duty only if they prevent any sabotage or resistance to Germans and if they collaborate in an exemplary manner with the German services."

3 More Germans Reported Killed For "Defeatism"

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The German News Agency, DNB, said today that three more Germans had been executed for "defeatism."

The broadcast, heard by United States Government monitors, reported that one of those executed, a 45-year-old waiter, was accused of trying to "undermine the morale of the home front by making extraordinarily disruptive statements in inns and expressing defeatist views to customers." The other two men were 60 years old.

German-Italian Fight At Durazzo Reported

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Violent fighting is taking place between Italians and Germans in the Albanian port of Durazzo, across the Adriatic from Brindisi, and all Italian naval units in the vicinity have been scuttled, a London broadcast said today. The report was recorded by CBS.

DODECANESE ISLES BECOME CENTER OF NEW BATTLE ZONE

Rhodes Bombed by U. S. Planes Is Capital of Aegean Group.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The island of Rhodes, bombed by American planes over the week-end in a continuation of a softening-up campaign begun by the British last week, is the capital of the Dodecanese group in the Aegean sea.

Geographically close to Turkey—some of the islands lie just a mile or two off the Turkish coast—the Dodecanese are overwhelmingly Greek in population and tradition.

They were captured by Italy in 1942 and ceded to Greece by a 1919 treaty later denounced in 1922.

Greeks Demand Islands

Since last week's Italian capitulation, the Greek government-in-exile has demanded the return of the group.

Those are the bare facts which make the islands a center of contention.

Ceded to the Allies by the terms of the armistice between the Allies and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the islands seemed in reality open to whatever power got there first in sufficient force to hold them. At present, the Germans appear to have over-powered their former Italian allies.

Although their ancient name means 12, there are now 13 principal islands in the Dodecanese or southern Sporades group, the National Geographic society said. Most of them lie within visible distance of the shore of Asia Minor, while satellite islets, reaching southwestward from the main island of Carpathos, extend to within 30 miles of Crete.

30.24 - 8383

Rhodes Is Largest

Rhodes, southeastern anchor of the Archipelago, is the largest and best known. It contains many monuments to the medieval knights of St. John while the capital city at Rhodes has been modernized under Italian rule.

No trace remains of the Colossus of Rhodes, a statue of the sun god which towered 100 feet high at the entrance to the harbor and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was levelled by an earthquake in 224 B. C.

The Fascists made Rhodes and the much smaller island of Leros, near the opposite end of the group, into military strongholds. The modern naval base on the Bay of Lekki and other naval installations on Leros have been frequent targets for the R.A.F.

Other islands that claim distinction are: Patmos, isle of banishment of St. John the Evangelist; Cos, birthplace of Hipprocrates; Symi and Stampalia, famous for their sponges; Kasos, butter; Kalymnos, honey. All are rich agriculturally, producing excellent grapes, melons, oranges, lemons, figs, olives, grains, tobacco and other market produce.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The first crucial fight of the battle of Italy is taking place at the Salerno bridgehead south of Naples where American troops with some British contingents are threatening to cut off all southern Italy from the Nazis at one stroke.

German recognition of that threat is obvious in the forces being massed to check General Clark's efforts to expand his positions inshore.

At the town of Salerno itself 5th Army troops are not only astride the main rail lines running southward down the Italian boot to both the toe and heel provinces. They have set foot on the first of the several lesser rail connections which thread the mountainous central spine of the Italian peninsula to join the Tyrrhenian and Adriatic coasts.

At Salerno Allied forces are less than 80 miles airline from the Adriatic coast. The British 8th army's right wing, already north of Brindisi, is moving swiftly up that coast, presumably to form a junction with the American 5th army and establish a short line across the peninsula from the vicinity of Naples to some point on the Adriatic. Once this is done, Allied-seized air bases in southern Italy will become a deadly menace to the Nazi war industries in Rumania, Austria, Hungary and Czecho-Slovakia not now reachable from Britain.

This seems now to be the immediate Allied objective. A trans-peninsula line from a point north of Naples on the Tyrrhenian coast to the Adriatic would be the shortest and would afford good coverage for the vital airfields along the lower Adriatic coast already falling into British hands. But Allied plans may not call for a front that far north.

In any event, the campaign does not suggest any Allied purpose of attempting to occupy all Italy. Its objectives are more likely to prove the seizure only of the southern portion of the boot in order to bring up closer the air attack against Germany and her Balkan satellites and, as diversionary measure, to force withdrawal of Nazi troops from Russia.

There are clear indications that some such transfers already have been made. German air power is being withdrawn in greater strength also either from Russia or from the German industrial home front to meet the menace in Italy. To that extent the Italian invasion is already exercising a strong influence on military developments in Russia at a crucial moment.

It is the outcome of the fighting about the Salerno bridgehead, however, that will probably determine just how far north the Allied line ultimately will be drawn from coast to coast in Italy. An early breakthrough by Gen. Clark's men northeastward on that front could still trap considerable Nazi forces retreating from southern Italy before the advancing British.

Nazi occupation of Rome indicates that they hope to use the numerous good Italian air fields in that vicinity to check or limit the Allied air attacks from southern Italy on Rumanian oil wells and installations or war factory targets elsewhere in the Balkans, in Austria or in southeastern Germany. The clear air superiority the Allies have already demonstrated in the Italian campaign, however, makes that a dubious reliance for Berlin.

Army Planes Hammer Kuriles Fourth Time

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Japan's homeground has again felt the blast of American bombs, with the fourth raid on the Paramushiro islands area at the north end of the island chain which makes up Nippon.

The navy reported that heavy and medium army bombers battered enemy shipping and ground installations September 13 (Paramushiro time), fighting meanwhile an air battle with upwards of twenty-five enemy fighter planes and ploughing through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

10 Or More Japs Downed

When the fifty-minute engagement was over ten enemy fighters, and probably three more, had been shot down.

Four United States planes, the navy said, "are known to have been lost due to enemy action, and six others failed to return."

This latter reference to failure to return suggested they had been lost on a long road home, perhaps to Attu Island in the Aleutians, 720 miles east.

In addition to "numerous hits" on ground installations, the navy said, a transport was fired and left in a sinking condition, another transport damaged and hits scored on three cargo vessels, one of which blew up.

Indicating that at least part of the attack was at low level despite the anti-aircraft fire, the communique reported that numerous small craft were strafed by the United States planes.

Nazi Who Sank Ark Royal Rescued After U-Boat Sinks

U. S. Navy Plane Destroys Raider in South Atlantic Battle.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — (AP) One of the most famous of Germany's U-boat commanders is now a prisoner of the U. S. Navy, plucked from the waters of the south Atlantic after he lost a duel with an American patrol plane.

He is Kapitainleutenant Freidrich Guggenberger who, the Navy said in an announcement telling of his capture, is the man decorated by the Nazis for the sinking of the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal in the Mediterranean in November, 1941.

Six Others Rescued

The submarine-plane duel which preceded Guggenberger's capture occurred off the coast of Brazil at a time not specified by the Navy. The Nazi skipper was one of seven men picked up by a surface craft from a life raft which the plane dropped after the battle.

The Navy's account of the battle was in line with recent stories from the sea fronts that the now diminishing numbers of German undersea raiders encountered are displaying a tendency to stand and fight when located by aircraft.

Guggenberger's command, the Navy said, was a "new German submarine heavily armed with anti-aircraft guns" and when the Navy's Martin Mariner patrol plane headed in for her bombing run over the U-boat the Nazi vessel sprayed a stream of fire into the air, including tracer shells.

This heavy fire, however, did not deter the Navy plane from swooping down to a level only 50 feet over the turning, darting U-boat and letting go a salvo of bombs which hit the deck and straddled the boat to port and starboard.

U-boat Blasted

The blast lifted the U-boat from the sea and when the plane circled back her crew saw only boiling, discolored water and 15 to 20 men swimming on the surface. The plane dropped a life raft and another plane came up to patrol over the area until the arrival of a seaplane tender. The tender, the Navy [illegible] four [illegible] the raft when [illegible] including the U-boat's commander.

A keen-eyed aviation radioman William S. Stotts of Boise, Idaho, spotted the submarine, a tiny dark object on calm waters more than 12 miles away. Stotts reported to the pilot, Lt. (J.G.) Roy S. Whitcomb of Long Beach, Calif., and the second pilot, Donald T. Ward of Cincinnati.

The Navy's announcement gave no clue, to the rank of the other six survivors of the submarine. "Kapitanleutenant" in the German navy is a senior lieutenant who commands a ship.

Iran To Be Member Of United Nations

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull announced today that Iran will be received formally into the ranks of the United Nations tomorrow, when Iranian Minister Mohammed Shayesteh calls at the State Department to affix his signature to the United Nations Declaration of January 1, 1942.

Iran is the thirty-third country to join the United Nations group. Its declaration of war against Germany and intention to adhere to the United Nations declaration were announced last week.

CONGRESS RETURNS TO ITS WORK TODAY

Bond Sales Top 2-Million Mark As Treasury Pushes Loan Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — (AP) Bond sales in the $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan aggregated $2,369,000,000 at the end of the fifth day of the drive, the Treasury announced tonight. This was an increase of more than $500,000,000 since the Saturday noon tabulation.

Asserting that the first and second war loans, in December and April "are beginning to pay dividends," Secretary Morgenthau urged renewed support of the campaign "to back the attack and to supply our armed forces with the best and most fighting equipment as we come to grips with Hitler's forces."

The department said the secretary would make another radio report on progress of the drive at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday over the Blue Network. He will speak from the Army's mammoth bond show in Washington.

BOND SALES INCREASED BY ITALY'S SURRENDER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — (AP) The Treasury reported tonight that the surrender of Italy brought a "tremendous spurt" in war bond purchases by Americans of Italian descent.

"From the large centers of Italian-American population to the small, the story is the same," the Treasury statement said. "The Italians are welcoming the opportunity to declare themselves on the side of the United Nations and to support the war, and shorten it if possible, by the one means in their power — the power of their dollars."

Announcement of the capitulation was made on the eve of the $15,000,000,000 third war loan, now in its second week.

Quick Showdown on Father Draft, Manpower Needs Sought by Leaders.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — (AP) A quick showdown on the Army's manpower needs was urged by legislative leaders tonight on the eve of the reconvening of Congress after its longest holiday in four years.

With the drafting of fathers shaping up as one of the hottest issues of the impending session, Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky urged that Army and Navy chieftains be called to tell "what they need, how much they need and why they need it."

His proposal was backed up by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) and, in part, by House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts, who advocated congressional review of the entire manpower problem to "see just what we have and what we need."

"I don't think the public would object to the induction of fathers [illegible]ed for them was proven," said Rep. Martin.

Rep. Kilday (D.-Tex.) asserted that the manpower review ought to take up the question of the Army's size to determine whether its demands for men "are reasonable and necessary." Rep. Kilday, however, expressed reluctance to put a congressional ceiling on the strength of the armed forces because it might affect the Army's strategy.

Deadline Near

With the deadline for the drafting of fathers only three weeks away, Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) already has served notice that he will press for immediate action to postpone their induction until Jan. 1.

Senator Barkley, however, expressed hope of obtaining an agreement with Senator Wheeler to put off consideration of the bill until Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, have had an opportunity to explain the services' reason for taking fathers.

Senator Barkley said there had been so many "contradictory statements" and such "confusion in orders" about manpower that he believed the nation would welcome an explanation from the military and naval chiefs.

"If I had to vote on the Wheeler bill today," he said, 'I wouldn't know whether to vote for it or against it. I have no desire to break up homes, but the Army's needs must be considered."

While the draft and manpower problems are scheduled to be the first tasks tackled in the Senate, a declaration on foreign policy is at the top of the House calendar.

Congressmen Await Word From Army on Draft Needs

Talbot Says Connecticut Group Undecided Until Military Experts Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP) Among representatives from industrial New England there seemed today to be an inclination to hear the Army and Navy side of the father-draft question before taking a stand on the May-Wheeler proposal to block the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Rep. Joseph E. Talbot, chairman of the Connecticut delegation, all Republicans, made this statement:

"I would prefer to wait until these (military) experts come in and tell us what the picture is before I would vote for the May or Wheeler bills. I think their proposal is too broad. It is too complicated a question to dispose of it just like that. It is tied in with manpower.

Other Problems First

"My guess would be that we will tackle the manpower and food question before going into the father draft," he added.

Rep. May (D-Ky), chairman of the House Military Affairs committee, and Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) have announced they will introduce bills tomorrow to block the drafting of fathers.

But Rep. Talbot pointed out that industrial New England, especially Connecticut, has more at stake in the manpower question than most other areas of the United States.

"We have got to make up our minds whether we want to build up a huge army or whether we want to continue making shells, ships, tanks and submarines and other munitions for the United Nations. If we want the former, then drafting of fathers may be necessary. If we want the latter then we can't very well take a father away from his lathe.

"For myself, I want to find out which is to be our policy before committing myself. And I believe most of the Connecticut delegation feels the same way."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, expressed the same sentiment in a press conference on his arrival today.

"I believe Congress should go thoroughly into the manpower situation and see just what we have and what we need," he said. "I don't think the public would object to the induction of fathers if the need for them was proven."

Rep. Curley (D-Mass), one of the few other congressmen here in advance of the reconvening of the House, also withheld an opinion on the father-draft for much the same reasons. He wanted to hear what the military had to say.

Works on Shortage

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass) has been devoting much of her time during the recess to consulting government agencies about fuel oil, gasoline, grain, meat and butter — all commodities on the short side of the ledger in New England.

Mrs. Rogers said she learned these steps had been taken by the War Food administration to ease the butter shortage:

1. Food distribution order No. 2 was amended, as of Sept. 1, cutting from 30 to 20 per cent the amount of butter which producers must set aside for governmental agencies—including the military. This released about 40 million pounds of creamery butter which earlier had been scheduled for the armed forces and lend lease administration, Mrs. Rogers said. However, she added, current production is running about 10 per cent below a year ago.

2. The Office of Price Administration raised the point value of butter on Sept. 5 from 10 to 12 points, tending to reduce the consumption of butter in the immediate producing areas and making more available for shipment to deficit sections.

3. The WFA amended food distribution order No. 13 further restricting the sale of heavy cream, thus channelling more butterfat into butter production.

4. The WFA on Sept. 10 empowered the food distribution director to limit the scale of fluid milk, by-products and fluid cream.

5. Other programs contemplated to increase production of butter include: Limitation of production of whole milk powder by creameries which formerly produced butter and skim milk powder; restriction of cream storage and price ceilings on cream and plastic cream.

Because the set-aside order and the uniform price ceilings, many creameries stopped churning butter and found outlets for fluid cream, Mrs. Rogers said. This accounted for the 10 per cent decrease in butter production, she added.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP FULBRIGHT MEASURE FIRST

SEP 1 1943

Sabath Says World Peace Resolution Is Favored by Large Majority.

NO EARLY TAX ACTION DUE

Rules Committee Head Would Let the Senate Have Initial Crack at Father Draft.

Washington, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Consideration of the Fulbright resolution on world peace definitely will be the No. 1 item of business when the House reconvenes tomorrow, Representative Sabath (D.-Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee, declared today.

"I have made an investigation and find the vast majority of the members favor the Fulbright resolution," he asserted.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Fulbright (D.-Ark.), provides that "Congress hereby expresses itself as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, as favoring participation by the United States therein."

Regarding man power, Mr. Sabath said the House expressed itself last spring in opposition to drafting fathers, so "why not let the Senate act first now?"

Sees No Early Tax Action.

He declared that the tax issue wouldn't be considered on the floor for at least two months.

The move to draft fathers after October 1 vies with the Fulbright resolution for primary interest. With less than three weeks in which to act, plans have been made for a swift test on Senator Wheeler's (D.-Mont.) bill to ban induction of fathers at least until January 1 and thus give Congress time to inquire into the whole man-power problem.

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee has begun the spade work on a new tax bill. The administration has asked for $12,000,000,000 in new revenue. But, with the dwindling number of fresh revenue springs and with the Treasury still to present its recommendations, doubt is developing on Capitol Hill that a program acceptable to both House and Senate can be worked out this year.

Many Revenue Suggestions.

A variety of suggestions for finding at least part of the added billions has been advanced, including a retail sales tax, a manufacturers' sales tax, compulsory savings, a national lottery, increased excess profits levies, and added assessments on individual earnings.

Before reaching a decision, the committee plans to obtain a detailed report on how much of the money already appropriated for war remains unspent, and where economies may be made in Government operation.

Here are some of the other major issues on the congressional calendar:

1. Benefits for the returning veterans.
2. Prevention of post-war unemployment.
3. Limitation on the size of the Army.
4. National service legislation.
5. Compulsory military training after the war.
6. Extension of the Commodity Credit Corporation and its use of subsidies to hold down consumer prices.
7. Economies in Government.
8. Repeal of the renegotiation law authorizing the Government to recapture "excessive" profits on war contracts.
9. Reconversion allowances for industrial war plants.

50-Billion Army Outlay Forecast for Next Year

Representative Snyder Lauds Abundant-Supplies Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Representative J. Buell Snyder, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, chairman of an appropriations subcommittee handling Army funds, predicted today that the War Department would need $50,000,000,000 for next year's operations.

The department was voted $59,000,000,000 in cash and $12,000,000,000 in unexpended balances from previous appropriations for the fiscal year that started last July 1. The additional $50,000,000,000 would be for the year starting next July 1.

Representative Snyder attributed the savings of from 25,000 to 30,000 American lives in the African campaign to the Army's overabundance of supplies.

"Behind our lines," he said, "we had more than enough reserve material of all sorts to keep the fighting lines going. This was due to the insistence of General Marshall, chief of staff, that before a big push is started we should have on hand everything we need, multiplied by two."

Representative Snyder said Axis times as large as ours, and their killed in North Africa were "six wounded twice as many."

With the funds already appropriated, he said, the Army is, or soon will be, receiving 10,000 planes monthly, including some 300 Flying Fortresses.

A $50,000,000,000 fund next year would boost to a total of around a quarter of a trillion dollars the amount appropriated for the War Department since July 1, 1940.

Draft Boards Ordered To Check on Non-Fathers

Army Eligibles Face Shift to 1-A for Induction

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Every available non-father will be called into the armed forces before the general induction of fathers begins, selective service headquarters said today, ordering a new scraping of the man-power barrel.

It directed local selective service boards throughout the nation to begi nThursday an inventory of men without dependents to determine that they are correctly classified.

During the fifteen-day inventory, the boards will suspend new classifications. Non-fathers who have been erroneously placed in occupationally deferred classifications, or those in 4-F who are now physically qualified for Army life, will be shifted to 1-A, ready for immediate induction.

Then, the October call for about 321,000 men will be divided into two sections for each state. State directors first will call for all available non-fathers, regardless of individual board quotas. If the state's quota is not then filled, fathers will be inducted to make up the deficiency.

Officials previously have said that there is a "strong possibility" that only fathers in non-deferrable occupations will be taken in October.

Selective service also reminded those in non-deferrable occupations that Wednesday is the deadline for registration with United States Employment Service for a job in essential industry. Those who submit evidence that they have registered for essential work may be granted an additional thirty-day grace period before induction. Failure to do so makes the non-deferrable registrant immediately eligible for the draft.

WMC ORDERS 3000 MINERS RECRUITED

Washington, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, said in orders sent today to United States Employment Service offices that a minimum of 3,000 men must be recruited immediately to meet a shortage of coal miners in five Western States.

The order, which went to more than 1,500 USES offices, stated that vital war production cannot be maintained unless the miners are supplied at once. Mines for which workers are sought are in Colorado, Montana, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

It was the WMC chairman's first national appeal for mine workers. Although experienced miners are preferred, the USES offices were told that the need for increased output from western mines is so acute that physically qualified men will be trained on the job.

The necessity for conserving coal was underscored today by Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes when he reported slight declines in the production of both anthracite and bituminous coal in the week ended September 4.

Anthracite output was estimated at 1,250,000 tons, a drop of 46,000 tons from the previous week, and soft coal production was 12,050,000 tons, a decline of 80,000 tons from a week earlier. Mr. Ickes said the reductions demonstrated the need for conserving fuel, "especially in view of the added burden which may be placed on American production by the capitulation of Italy."

"While these declines are slight," he said, "they constitute another indication that we are not gaining any production which will be needed to meet the known requirements of the nation in 1943, much less any emergency requirements which may arise."

N. A. M. STRESSES NEED OF FUNDS FOR AFTER WAR

Witness Says Reserves for Conversion Should Be Retained Now.

PLAN PUT BEFORE CONGRESS

Testimony on Renegotiation of Contracts Is Heard by the House Committee.

Washington, Sept. 13 (A. P.).—The National Association of Manufacturers recommended today that major functions of the renegotiation law be suspended on negotiation law be suspended and that future recovery of any excessive profits made by war contractors be accomplished through the tax laws and voluntary price adjustments. Earl O. Shreve, representing the association, and the first industry witness before the renegotiations committee of the House Ways and Means Committee, urged also that Congress "recognize the need for adequate reserves (in industry) for the creation of post-war jobs."

He made three formal recommendations, as follows:

1. Continue the renegotiation law in its application to 1942

1943

profits with simplification of the administrative burden of the price-adjustment boards, by providing a more positive definition of their authority.

2. Continue authority of the procurement agencies to enter into voluntary price adjustment agreements "in those exceptional cases where reasonable prices cannot be ascertained in advance, because of large volume purchases or lack of adequate cost information."

3. Effective on January 1, "leave to the tax structure the recapture of past profits, with whatever congressional action may be necessary to handle those unusual cases which may not be covered by 'price-adjustment' procedures."

Representatives of the War and Navy departments, appearing before the committee last week, said that they believed it impracticable to allow post-war reconversion and peace-time production reserves through the renegotiation law, because of wide differences in reconversion problems of individual industries. Some witnesses suggested that such reserves might best be handled through revision of the tax laws affecting corporations.

Industry Proud of Record.

Mr. Shreve, vice-president of the General Electric Company, told the committee: "Industry is far too proud of its record of war production to allow such a hard-won and priceless asset to become contaminated or jeopardized for the sake of excessive war profits.

"But when Congress examines war production profits, it is imperative that it give close study to the broader picture. I am now speaking of America after the war. . . . Industry is determined that its war record of production will be maintained in the days of peace. The accomplishment of this ambition depends upon having the necessary tools—and that means working capital available and ready to be put to work at almost a moment's notice. If we expect industry to emerge in a position strong enough to reconvert rapidly and provide maximum employment during the transition period such funds must be available for immediate use."

Taxes imposed upon industry have been effective "in checking any overall expansion of profits," he testified, stating: "Expanding volume of manufacturing activity in the last two years has not been accompanied by any expanding dollar volume of manufacturing net profits after taxes. The rate earned on sales has steadily declined."

Gillette Warns Nation Of Peril in Fourth Term

Opposes Roosevelt Re-election as Threat to Democracy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa, declared today that election of President Roosevelt to a fourth term would be a "threat of democracy."

"I am definitely opposed to a fourth term," he said, "more so than I was to a third term, and every one knows how I fought a third term."

It is not a question of opposition to President Roosevelt, Senator Gillette said, but rather a matter of principle.

"I would oppose a fourth term for my own father," he told reporters. "All of this reservoir of patronage and Federal agencies that have sprung up is entering every avenue of activity and its perpetuation would be a distinct threat to democracy, to the rights of the people to govern themselves."

Senator Gillette asserted that he had not decided on whom to support for the Democratic Presidential nomination. He said he positively is not a candidate for re-election next year, "nor am I candidate for President or Vice-President."

WALLACE HITS OIL FIRM AGAIN

SEP 11 1943

Vice-President Says Standard, N. J., Stalled Synthetic Rubber Work

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 13—Vice-President Wallace said today that the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) had "deliberately stalled some of the rubber and chemical companies in order to keep them from developing synthetic rubber" by processes controlled jointly by Standard and I. G. Farben, a German industrial firm.

He issued a public statement replying to Ralph W. Gallagher, the oil-company president, who said an attack by Wallace on international cartels in a Chicago speech September 11 was directed at his company "by implication."

Gallagher commented after Wallace's speech that "Mr. Wallace has again resorted to the label 'cartel' to alarm the American public. . . . Surely Mr. Wallace should be in a position to know that long before war came we had worked with eight agencies of our Government to establish synthetic-rubber production in this country; that we put to our country's use every bit of technical knowledge we possessed."

Charged Double Dealing

In reply, Wallace declared "the cartel of Standard Oil and I. G. Farbenindustrie" had engaged in "subterfuge, concealment and double dealing" to prevent other rubber companies from developing synthetic tires from buna-s rubber.

He said Standard Oil (N. J.) had offered competing firms a license agreement which would have, "for practical purposes, prohibited the rubber companies from making tires."

Wallace quoted at length from testimony taken by the Truman Wa[illegible]vestigating Committee in its synthetic rubber inquiry.

"Standard was forced to choose between the interests of the United States and the cartel agreement with I. G.," the Vice-President's statement continued.

Quotes From Letter

"The choice that Standard made is indicated in the following quotation from their own document. In a letter dated April 20, 1938, it is stated:

" 'Until we have this permission (from I. G. Farben) there is absolutely nothing we can do. . . . We know some of the difficulties they have, both from business complications and interrelations with the rubber and chemical trades in the United States, and from a national standpoint in Germany, but we do not know the whole situation—and since under the agreement they have full control over the exploitation of this process, the only thing we can do is to continue to press for authority to act, but in the meantime loyally preserve the restrictions they have put on us.' "

Standard Issues Statement

Gallagher declined to comment on Wallace's newest statement but earlier in the day Standard Oil issued a statement saying "apparently 'cartels' are to become a political issue" and asserted it was a disbeliever in controlling production or combining to control price.

Through "name calling" the word cartel "has gathered to itself new and strange connotations" and has become the label of something "bad," the statement said, adding "as an emotional symbol, it calls forth the response of a 'secret,' 'un-American,' 'contract with foreigners'."

"We do not believe in controlling production," the company's statement said, "—whether it is done by bureaucratic expedient or by businessmen behind the locked doors of board rooms.

"We do not believe in combinations to control price. Quite aside from any moral principle involved, we think it is folly for a business to believe that it can be secure in such an arrangement."

Would Boost Foreign Trade

But the company said it was for business dealings with people in foreign countries, adding "the bitter experience of two bloody and costly wars has shown that international trade must be increased, planned more intelligently, made easier—not frustrated or blocked."

In conclusion Standard Oil said it was "against secret agreements," asserting:

"We are ready to file with the Department of State—or some other designated Government agency—copies of all contracts that we make with foreign corporations. If that agency considers publication of the facts to be in the public interest, we are for publishing them to the world."

Army Takes Year to Give Officer His Commission

Lieutenant Meanwhile Was Serving in the Ranks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Simply because the War Department could not find him, James Benjamin Coulston, of Albuquerque, N. M., served in the Army's ranks more than a year after his commission as a second lieutenant had been approved, aids to Representative Clinton P. Anderson, Democrat, of New Mexico, disclosed today.

Because he had postal experience in civi[illegible] for him in the [illegible] ice was approved A[illegible]

For months, Lieutenant [illegible]ton was overseas. His Army post-office address read 804th Tank Destroyer Battalion. Recently he returned home on a furlough and asked Representative Anderson to "find out about that commission."

The adjutant general's office advised Representative Anderson that the Army never had been able to find Lieutenant Coulson. Orders have now been issued assigning him to duty as second lieutenant, Port of Embarkation Postal Service, Brooklyn.

SMALL BANKS FEAR COMPETITION OF FEDERAL AGENCIES

30.24 - 8385

Government Lending May Hurt Post-War Business, Association Hears.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — (AP) Small town and country banks will have a stiff fight to survive in the post-war world in the face of competition from government lending agencies and non-banking lenders, the American Bankers association was warned today.

A series of officials of small banks sounded a cautionary note in a meeting of some 2,000 bankers from all over the country for a war-time service meeting which supplanted the usual annual convention.

In the background of the country bankers' protests, it was learned, was a factional fight within the association with New Deal versus "conservative" background. The small-town men were said to be seeking to force more energetic protests from the national association against government lending in competition with private capital.

To File Protest

The small-bank group, it was understood, won an agreement at a closed caucus Sunday that the resolutions committee of the national association, at the final session Wednesday, would give them opportunity to go on record with their protest.

Officials of state bankers associations in Nebraska, Indiana, Iowa and Pennsylvania were in the forefront of the effort to stiffen the association's attitude toward Washington policies, while their opponents were said to think the present time was inopportune for a frontal assault on government lending practices.

Claude F. Pack, president of the Home State Bank of Kansas City, Kansas, told a meeting of the state bankers division of the association:

"A few years ago most people took it for granted thta the government's going into the business of lending money was a tempoiary episode, due to the great emergency.

"The emergency is long since past, but the activity of the government as a money lender in fields competitive with country banks continues to grow."

Mr. Pack, citing particularly the activity of the government sponsored Production Credit association, said:

"The element of subsidy together with the well-known vices of bureaucracy accounts for their ever growing activity in a time when abounding war prosperity has taken the place of the great emergency to which they owe so much."

1943

SUBMARINE OFFICERS DECORATED BY NAVY

NEW LONDON, Sept. 13 — (AP) Commander Barton E. Bacon, Jr., San Diego, Calif., was awarded the Navy Cross today for "extraordinary heroism" as commander of a U. S. submarine in the Asiatic theater, and Lieut.-Commander Eric L. Barr, Jr., of Eastern Point, Conn., and Lieut. George E. Everly of Black Point, Conn., received Silver Star medals for operations against the Japanese. Commander Bacon's citation lauded his "excellent judgment and outstanding ability," during five patrols.

Two Coast Guardsmen Convicted by Navy Court

Their Arrests Precipitated Strike at Brewster Plant

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13 (AP).—The 4th Naval District announced today the conviction by general court martial of two members of the United States Coast Guard Reserve (temporary), whose arrests precipitated a three-day strike last month at the Johnsville, Pa., plant of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, where they were employed.

The guards—Richard Belli and Kenneth Bodine—were sentenced to receive "bad conduct" discharges. With two other guards arrested with them, they were tried on charges of refusing to obey the lawful orders of a superior officer. Verdicts in the cases of the other two have not been announced.

The guards were members of an aircraft local of the United Automobile Workers of America and were paid by Brewster. The union had been involved in a dispute with the company, demanding that guards be permitted to select their assignments on the basis of seniority. The Navy accused them of refusing to take their posts in violation of orders.

JEWS DEMAND ACTION

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13 — (AP) The Zionist Organization of America today unanimously adopted a resolution appealing to the leaders of the United Nations to initiate, without further delay, discussions with the Jewish agency for Palestine "to determine the role which Palestine must play in meeting the desperate needs of the dispossessed masses of the Jewish people and to secure the Jewish commonwealth's rightful place in a post-war world based upon the Four Freedoms and the Atlantic Charter."

Four In Carolina Family Die When Plane Hits Home

SEP 1 1943

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—A navy plane crashed into the home of Oliver Knight near Guilford College late today, killing four members of the family and the pilot, the plane's sole occupant. Knight himself was at a grapevine near the house and was uninjured.

The two-story frame house burst into flame. Several hours later the bodies had not been removed from the ruins.

The dead were Mrs. Oliver Knight; her oldest daughter, Miss Wilma Knight, 18, and two younger children, Dorothy and Oliver Knight, Jr.

The pilot, whose name was not released immediately, apparently was thrown from the plane or attempted to jump. His body was found on the lawn, with an unopened parachute near by.

J., died on Saturday of a cerebral hemorrhage while in bivouac with the Ordnance Department Ammunition Company of which he was a member. The unit is engaged in 2d Army maneuvers five miles south of Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Creighton, Jr., U.S.M.C., and Aviation Machinists Mate 3rd Class Joseph Henry Peate, U.S.N., were killed in a plane crash at the naval air station here Saturday, public relations announced. Lieut. There's Nothing New About WACs In Army

St. Louis, Sept. 13 (AP)—They didn't call them WACs 130 years ago but records at Jefferson Barracks disclose a Women's Auxiliary Corps existed at the post in 1813.

There were some differences. For one thing the girls of that era drew only regular army rations of 15 cents a day. In the line of active duty they had such grimy chores as scrubbing cannons, oiling muskets, filling powder horns and prepared wadding for ammunition.

Grape Processors Plead For Italian Prisoners

By the Associated Press.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 13.—Representatives of the grape industry addressed another plea to the public for help today while at the same time making known a request to the Army for Italian prisoners of war to assist with the work.

Officials of two plants said the prisoners would be needed for the processing of this year's Concord grape crop unless white-collar workers, students and others volunteer to relieve the manpower shortage.

The plants are scheduled to open Thursday for the three-week season. The companies hold priorities because the Government expects to rely on grape and other fruit jams and jellies to relieve a butter shortage next year.

The request for the use of Italian prisoners of war was sent to the 5th Service Command at Chicago.

WATSON ASKS GOP DETAILS

Party Backs World Organization, He Says, But Firmer Stand Is Needed

[By the Associated Press]

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 13—Deneen A. Watson, national chairman of the Republican Postwar Policy Association, said tonight that the recent declaration of Republican leaders at Mackinac Island "stands as a pledge for a definite world organization and a world court to adjudicate international disputes."

Watson, whose organization has advocated international cooperation with a council of nations and a world police force, said in a speech at the University Club here:

"There are two opinions about the Mackinac resolution. First, that it was a straddle and was meant to mean all things to all men. Second, that it showed substantial progress.

Wants Details Soon

"The conference promised a more detailed pronouncement would be offered in the ensuing months. We hope it will be as soon as possible, for it must be specific on the form of world organization, whether it shall be based upon the United Nations or all countries; it must be specific on the world court, whether America will be a member and what powers the court will have; it must be specific on restraining aggression, whether there shall be a world police force and how it shall be operated, and it must be specific on foreign trade and an expanding world economy.

"Meanwhile, while the committee on foreign policy is charting its course, we must look to the Republican members of Congress for official action to substantiate the Mackinac program and to the 1944 Republican National Convention to adopt a forthright statement of foreign policy and nominate a candidate who will be unequivocally for such a program."

Watson, whose organization has no official tieup with the Republican party, said his group was disappointed that the Mackinac resolution "did not go as far as we have gone."

Jap 'Didn't Live Long' After Challenging Yank

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—The Jap flyer who dropped leaflets onto an American fighter squadron in China, asking to meet the Yankee airmen in "a decisive air battle" didn't live long enough after his mission, according to a letter from Lieut. David Neil, of suburban River Forest.

The Yanks accepted the challenge, and as Lieutenant Neil's letter read—"P. S. We got the guy that dropped the leaflets, too."

It was a decisive battle, said Neil's letter. The entire Japanese squadron was wiped out.

Col. Roosevelt Tells of Kiska

SEP 1 1943

At San Diego, He Says Americans Were all Ready for Battle

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 13 (AP).—Lieutenant Colonel James Roosevelt was surprised, too, when he landed with American forces on Kiska and discovered the Japanese had sneaked away.

"Of course I was glad that it was not necessary to sacrifice any American lives," the President's eldest son told reporters, "but when we landed we were in a mood to give them what was coming to them."

Colonel Roosevelt, who previously saw action in the Pacific battle zone with the marines, arrived here last night with his wife, the former Romelle Schneider.

TWO SHIPS FOR CHINA

RICHMOND, Calif., Sept. 13—(AP) The Chinese government will accept delivery tomorrow of two 10,000-ton Liberty ships built at Henry J. Kaiser's Richmond yards and transferred to China by the U. S. Maritime commission.

RICHARD DU PONT KILLED IN CRASH

March Field, Cal., Sept. 13 (AP.).—Army Air Forces authorities have announced the death of four men, including Richard Chichester du Pont, during a test flight of a glider one mile southeast of this air base.

The field's public relations officer said Mr. du Pont, 31 years old, nationally known glider pilot and member of Delaware's noted du Pont family, bailed out when the glider went into a spin at 3,000 feet altitude, but a safety device on his parachute failed to operate.

Others killed, all of whom crashed to earth with the craft a few minutes after it was cut loose from the towing plane Saturday, were Col. P. Ernest Gabel, Washington, D. C., deputy director of the Army Air Forces' glider program; Howard L. Morrison, of San Fernando, Cal., and C. Chandler, Tarzana, Cal., test pilots.

The public relations officer, Major L. J. Doyle, said the glider was being tested for possible use by the Army.

Mr. du Pont was the son of A. Felix du Pont, of Rehoboth Beach, Del., a director of E. I. du Pont De Nemours Company. His wife, the former Helena Allaire Crozier of Philadelphia; a son, Richard C. du Pont Jr., and a daughter, Helena Allaire du Pont, also survive.

Mr. du Pont in 1934 established the international distance glider record of 153 miles, from Elmira, N. Y., to Somerset, N. J.

Two other civilians, who parachuted to safety, were Paul G. Wells and Harry M. Pearl.

ADD LONDON- RUSSIAN (LONG) XX SUMMER

AFTER TAKING A RAIL POINT ONLY 12 MILES EAST OF BRYANSK SUNDAY, THE RUSSIANS PLUNGED ON FOR SEVEN MILES TO RECAPTURE 30 MORE LOCALITIES, INCLUDING THE KEY RAIL NETWORK ON THE EASTERN SIDE OF THE DESNA, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

SEP 11 1943

THE VITAL RAILWAY LEADING TO GOMEL, SOUTHWEST OF BRYANSK, NO LONGER IS OF ANY SERVICE TO THE GERMAN BRYANSK GARRISON SINCE ITS JUNCTION, SOUTHEAST OF THE CITY, NOW HAS BEEN OCCUPIED.

RUSSIAN UNITS ATTACKING NORTH OF BRYANSK ALSO THREATENED TO CUT THE SOLE SUPPLY LINE LEADING TO SMOLENSK IN THE NORTHWEST. THIS THREAT WAS TWOFOLD. THE RUSSIANS WERE IN A POSITION TO HOP THE RIVER NORTH OF BRYANSK AND CUT THE RAILWAY AT THE EDGE OF THE CITY, WHILE 80 MILES TO THE NORTHWEST OTHER SOVIET TROOPS ARE ADVANCING ON THE JUNCTION OF ROSLAVL.

ROSLAVL IS MIDWAY BETWEEN BRYANSK AND SMOLENSK, AND THE COMMUNIQUE SAID ONE COLUMN FLANKING BRYANSK HAD GAINED UP TO FOUR MILES AND CAPTURED 40 MORE VILLAGES IN THE DRIVE ON THAT CITY. HOW CLOSE THE RUSSIANS ARE TO ROSLAVL WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

BRYANSK IS THE CORE OF A GERMAN BULGE IN RUSSIAN LINES. ITS DISTANT APPROACHES ALREADY HAVE BEEN FLANKED WITH THE DRIVE ON ROSLAVL AND THE CROSSING OF THE DESNA RIVER AT NOVGOROD SEVERSKI, FAR TO THE SOUTHWEST. ITS CAPTURE WOULD RELEASE GENERAL POPOV'S TROOPS FOR A DIRECT DRIVE ON WHITE RUSSIA, 75 MILES BEYOND.

THE RUSSIANS SAID THEIR TROOPS ON ALL FRONTS DURING THE DAY KNOCKED OUT 14 TANKS AND SHOT DOWN 18 ENEMY PLANES. THIS SCORE IS ONLY A FRACTION OF THOSE DESTROYED IN PREVIOUS DAY, INDICATING LITTLE GERMAN RESISTANCE ON THE MAIN FRONTS AS THE AXIS PULLS BACK ITS TROOPS TOWARD THE DNIEPER.

THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE GAVE THIS BREAKDOWN OF THE SITUATION ON THE LONG FRONT:

BRYANSK--A GAIN OF SEVEN MILES AND THE CAPTURE OF 30 LOCALITIES TO PLANT RUSSIAN TROOPS AT THE EDGE OF BRYANSK AND GIVE THEM POSSESSION OF STRATEGIC RAIL STATIONS IN THE CITY'S OUTSKIRTS. RAIL STATIONS NO. 1 AND 2 ON THE EAST BANK OF THE DESNA WERE OCCUPIED.

ROSLAVL--GAINS OF TWO TO FOUR MILES; 40 VILLAGES SEIZED.

NEZHIN--ADVANCES OF SIX TO 11 MILES AND THE CAPTURE OF 40 VILLAGES, INCLUDING KRUTI, 12 MILES SHORT OF NEZHIN AND A JUNCTION ON THE RAILWAY CONNECTING CHERNIGOV, PRILUKI AND POLTAVA.

PRILUKI--A SIX-TO-SEVEN-MILE GAIN THAT SWEPT UP 140 PLACES, INCLUDING YUSKOVTSI, 42 MILES EAST OF PRILUKI. THIS SEVERED THE STRETCH OF RAILWAY BETWEEN ROMNY AND POLTAVA.

DONETS BASIN--NINETY VILLAGES OVERRUN IN GAINS OF FOUR TO 10 MILES, INCLUDING BOLSHAYA YANISAL, 40 MILES WEST OF STALINO. RUSSIAN UNITS DRIVING WESTWARD IN THIS THEATER ARE WITHIN 45 MILES OF THE KHARKOV-CRIMEA RAILWAY, LAST LINE SHORT OF THE DNIEPER.

ITALIAN ROUNDUP
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEP 11 1943

LONDON, SEPT. 12--STUNG BY THE TERMS OF THE ALLIED-ITALIAN ARMISTICE AND THE ESCAPE OF THE BULK OF THE ITALIAN FLEET, GERMANY RAISED NEW CRIES OF ITALIAN TREACHERY TODAY WITH PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO STILL THE PRINCIPAL TARGET OF BERLIN'S RAGE.

REPORTS FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA AND FROM NEUTRAL SOURCES BORE OUT TO A GREAT DEGREE THE GERMAN CLAIMS THAT MOST OF NORTH ITALY IS NOW UNDER NAZI CONTROL.

BUT HITLER'S FAILURE TO PRODUCE HIS ERSTWHILE PARTNER, BENITO MUSSOLINI, TO HEAD A NEW GERMAN-PROCLAIMED FASCIST GOVERNMENT IN

1943

OCCUPIED ITALY, STIRRED NEW SPECULATION AS TO IL DUCE'S WHEREABOUTS.
NAZIDOM'S REKINDLED WARMTH TOWARD THE FALLEN ITALIAN LEADER, AND PARTICULARLY THE WARM PRAISE HE WAS GIVEN BY HITLER IN HIS SPEECH TO THE REICH FRIDAY, MADE MUSSOLINI THEIR LOGICAL CHOICE AS THE LEADER THE PUPPET GOVERNMENT--PROVIDED THE GERMANS CAN PRODUCE HIM.
HE HAS BECOME SOMETHING OF A PHANTOM FOR THERE HAS BEEN NO TRUS WORTHY INFORMATION FROM ANY QUARTER AS TO HIS WHEREABOUTS.
THE BERLIN RADIO, PERHAPS FISHING FOR INFORMJTION, SAID TODAY THE HAD BEEN NO CONFIRMATION "OF REPORTS SPREAD BY THE BRITISH-AMERICA PRESS" THAT HE HAD BEEN "EXTRADITED," BUT ADDED THATHIT WAS "PRESUME THAT DUCE WAS HANDED OVER TO THE BADOGLIO REGIME AND THAT HE IS IN NORTH AFRICA" AT PRESENT.
A DISPATCH FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, HOWEVER, SAI THERE WAS NO KNOWLEDGE THERE OF HIS WHEREABOUTS ALTHOUGH IT WAS BELIEVED BY MANY THAT HE HAD BEEN ON VENTOTENE ISLAND, OFF THE COAST WEST OF NAPLES, WHICH THE ALLIES HAVE TAKEN.
REFERRING TO TERMS OF THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE, MADE PUBLIC LAST NIG THE GERMAN RADIO CRIED THAT "THE TREACHERY IS NOW COMPLETE."
QUOTING AN ARTICLE HEADLINED BY THE BERLIN MONTAGSPOST AS "THE 13 POINTS OF SHAME," IT SAID BADOGLIO'S FATE WAS "A TELLING EXAMPLE OF WHAT A TREACHEROUS NATION HAS TO EXPECT. #

LONDON, SEPT.13-(AP)-THE UNITED NATIONS RADIO AT ALGIERS REPORTED TODAY THAT GERMAN AND ITALIAN TROOPS WERE BATTLING EACH OTHER IN THE HILLS NORTH AND SOUTH OF NAPLES AND THAT THEY WERE ENGAGED IN A "FULL BATTLE" IN THE TURIN AREA.

THE BROADCAST ALSO SAID THE ALLIES WERE TIGHTENING THEIR GRIP ON THE COASTLINE IN THE SALERNO AREA. THE GERMANS WERE REPORTED TO BE RESISTING STRONGLY AS THE ALLIES MOVED INLAND.

LONDON, SEPT.13-(AP)-A VEIL OF WAR-TIME SECRECY WAS LIFTED TODAY FROM THE FRIGID ARCTIC ISLE OF SPITSBERGEN AND THE NORWEGIAN GOVERNM IN-EXILE TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME THE STORY OF A SMALL BAND OF NOR-WEGIANS WHO MAINTAINED A VITAL WEATHER STATION THERE FOR A YEAR AND A HALF.

THE GOVERNMENT DISCLOSED THAT NO WORD HAD BEEN HEARD FROM THE GARRISON SINCE IT SIGNALED THE APPROACH OF A GERMAN FLEET WHICH BERLI ANNOUNCED HAD ATTACKED AND DESTROYED INSTALLATIONS THERE LAST WED-NESDAY.

SINCE MAY, 1942 THE GARRISON, NUMBERING LESS THAN 100 MEN, HAD MANNED THE WEATHER STATION AND PROVIDED INFORMATION NEEDED FOR SHIPS SAILING THE NORTHERN ROUTE TO RUSSIA.

THE LAST OFFICIAL NEWS CONCERNING THE ARCHIPELAGO, ONLY 550 MILES BELOW THE NORTH POLE, WAS ANNOUNCED IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, WHEN AN ALLIEI FORCE EVACUATED ALL PERSONS LIVING THERE AND DESTROYED COAL MINES WHICH THE GERMANS WERE REPORTED USING. THEN A TIGHT CENSORSHIP WAS CLAMPED DOWN.

A MONTH AFTER THE ALLIED LANDING THE GERMANS MOVED IN. THE FOLLOWING MAY THE NORWEGIANS ARRIVED TO BUILD AN ALLIED WEATHER STATION. GERMAN AIRCRAFT ATTACKED THE GROUP DAILY. ON JULY 2 A BRITISH NAVAL FORCE ARRIVED, AND THE GERMAN GARRISON SLIPPED AWAY.

SINCE THEN, THE NORWEGIANS HAD BEEN UNDISTURBED UNTIL THE GERMAN FLEET ARRIVED.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: ITALY'S SURRENDER PROMPTED A TORRENT OF SPECULATION THAT THE AXIS POSITION IN THE BALKANS MIGHT BE MATERIALLY WEAKENED. OF THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENTS, HE REPORTS, LEAN MORE TOWARDS SITTING TIGHT.)

BY THOMAS F.HAWKINS

SEP 13

BERN, SEPT. 13-(AP)-HUNGARY, ISOLATED IN THE CENTER OF LUKEWARM OR OPENLY ANTAGONISTIC BALKAN NEIGHBORS, IS STRIVING ENERGETICALLY TO ESTABLISH HARMONY AMONG HER MINORITIES AT HOME AND PRESENT AN ASPECT ABROAD OF BEING ON THE PATH OF DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES.

THIS POLICY WAS POINTED UP INTENSIVELY IN WEEKEND SPEECHES, BOTH BECAUSE OF THE COLLAPSE OF ITALY WHICH HUNGARY HAD USED AS A COUNTERWEIGHT TO GERMAN AND YUGOSLAV INFLUENCE, AND BECAUSE OF THE GROWING DEMANDS OF POLITICAL OPPOSITION AT HOME.

DESPITE THE WISH OF THE BALKAN PEOPLE FOR PEACE, BALKAN POLITICIANS ARE AT WORK AS NEVER BEFORE SINCE THE WAR BEGAN. THE COLLAPS OF ITALY WEAKENED GERMAN INFLUENCE IN SOME BALKAN COUNTRIES LIKE HUNGARY, BUT STRENGTHENED THAT INFLUENCE IN OTHERS LIKE BULGARIA.

THE SON OF THE LATE COUNT PAL TELECKI, FORMER HUNGARIAN PREMIER, IN A SPEECH AT KOLOSIVAR, AND CABINET MINISTERS ELSEWHERE EMPHASIZED THE NEED FOR A UNIFICATION OF HUNGARIAN MINORITIES IN SUPPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT AND ITS WORKS TO PRESERVE NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE.

MINISTER WITHOUT PORTFOLIO LUKACS BELA IN A SPEECH AT BUDAPEST SATURDAY NIGHT RE-STATED PREMIER NICHOLAS KALLAY'S NON-BELLIGERENCY POLICY, DECLARING, "HUNGARY CAN PLAY NO LEADING PART IN THIS WAR."

IN OTHER WORDS, HUNGARY, WITH ITALY NO LONGER A FRIEND CAPABLE OF GIVING A HELPING HAND WITH ALL THE SURROUNDING NATIONS FROM WHOM HUNGARY GOT TERRITORY, IS GOING TO KEEP AS QUIET AS SHE CAN UNTIL OTHERS END THE WAR.

THE HUNGARIANS HOPE THE ALLIES WILL CONSIDER THIS A CONDONING ACTION. HERETOFORE, THEY PRIVATELY HAD GIVEN THE IMPRESSION THE NATION WOULD TRY TO GET OUT OF THE WAR IF ITALY CAPITULATED AND THIS, THE HUNGARIANS SAY, REMAINS TRUE BUT THE GERMAN-REPORTED CEAPPEARANCI OF BENITO MUSSOLINI AND FEAR OF RUSSIA WORK FOR A DELAY.

BULGARIA, ON THE OTHER HAND, IS BEING PUSHED MORE THAN BEFORE INTO THE GERMAN SPHERE WITH THE APPOINTMENT OF PRO-NAZI INTERIOR MINISTER PETER GABROVSKI AS INTERIM PREMIER AND MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

THE NAZIS WANT THE USE OF THE BULGARIAN ARMY IF THE ALLIES LAND IN THE BALKANS.

TO BACK UP THEIR PROPAGANDA, THE GERMANS POINT TO ITALY AS AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT HAPPENS TO THOSE TRYING TO LEAVE THE AXIS. THE OLD CHARGE THAT BRITAIN WEAKENED BULGARIA AFTER THE BERLIN CONGRESS IN 1870 AND ALSO AFTER 1918 HAS BEEN REVIVED, WITH THE ADDED ARGUMENT THAT AN ALLIED OCCUPATION IN THE EVENT OF A GERMAN COLLAPSE WOULD RESULT IN THE PARTITION OF BULGARIA, TURKEY, GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA.

THE BEST COURSE, SAY THE NAZIPHILES, IS TO RESIST UNTIL A FAVORABLE BALANCE HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED BY THE GREAT POWERS WITH THE PROSPECT THAT A RUSSIAN INTERVENTION COULD BE COUNTED UPON TO PREVENT A TOO-GREAT ANGLO-SAXON INFLUENCE. THUS THE NAZIS USE THE ARGUMENTS OF THE LEFTIST BULGARIANS WHO HAVE MOMENTARILY LOST GROUND.

MIXED FEELINGS OF PLEASURE WERE APPARENT IN GREECE, ANTI-ITALIAN SINCE THE OCCUPATION OF THE DODECANESE ISLANDS IN 1911; IN CROATIA, MONTENEGRO AND ALBANIA WHERE THE VIEW IS HELD THAT THE ITALIANS THREATENED PERPETUAL OCCUPATION WHILE THE GERMANS COULD BE COUNTED

UPON TO LEAVE SOME DAY.

THE DISARMAMENT OF THE ITALIAN DIVISIONS IN GREECE, UNLESS ALTERED BY THE RE-APPEARANCE OF MUSSOLINI, MEANS THE GREEKS THEMSELVES WILL HAVE MORE POWER IN THE MAINTENANCE OF ORDER SINCE IT WAS CONSIDERED HIGHLY UNLIKELY THAT NEW GERMAN TROOPS IN THE SAME NUMBER AS THE ITALIANS WOULD BE SENT.

SEP 11 1943

THE GREEKS, RID OF THE OLD ITALIAN ENEMY AND SEEING IN THE GERMANS A TEMPORARY COUNTERWEIGHT TO BULGARIAN TERRITORIAL CLAIMS BEHIND WHICH A RUSSIAN INFLUENCE IS OFTEN SUSPECTED, ARE THUS SAID TO BE IN COUNTER-BALANCE UNTIL AN ALLIED INVASION.

RUMANIA IS IN A SPOT SIMILAR TO HUNGARY, HAVING ALWAYS STRESSED HER LATIN ORIGIN AND HAVING COUNTED ON ITALY AFTER THE COLLAPSE OF FRANCE AS A LINK WITH BIG POWER POLITICS. THE RUMANIANS HOPE FOR AN ALLIED PARDON AS A DEFENDER OF WESTERN CULTURE. THAT RUMANIA CAN EXTRICATE HERSELF APPEARS UNLIKELY WITH THE RUSSIANS STEAMROLLERING NEARER AND NEARER, WITH THE BULGARIANS LUKEWARM, THE HUNGARIANS SUSPICIOUS AND THE UNFRIENDLY GERMANS FIRMLY ESTABLISHED IN THE COUNTRY.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE PEOPLE IN THESE COUNTRIES MIGHT BE PRO-ALLY IN THE EVENT OF A BALKAN INVASION AND THE PARTISANS WOULD BE HELPED. BUT THE POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENTS AND THE ARMIES BEHIND THEM, WITH THE POSSIBLE EXCEPTION OF HUNGARY, IS TO KEEP THE FIGHT GOING UNTIL MORE OPPORTUNE MOMENTS COME.

LISBON, SEPT. 14-(AP)-APPOINTMENT OF THE DUKE OF PALMELA AS AMBASSADOR TO LONDON, REPLACING DR. ARMINDO MONTEIRO, WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY IN A PORTUGAL COMMUNIQUE.

THE DUKE WAS EDUCATED AT CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY. MONTEIRO WAS AMBASSADOR FOR SEVEN YEARS.

ARR ALLIED H-Q N. AFRICA XXX HANDS

GERMAN AIR OPPOSITION ROSE TO A NEW PITCH SATURDAY, WITH THE NAZI HIGH COMMAND APPARENTLY RUSHING PART OF ITS HOME FORCES TO THE BATTLE SCENE.

SEP 11 1943

ABOUT 180 ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE THROWN INTO COMBAT OVER THE SALERNO BATTLEGROUND, BUT THE FOALLIED FORCES REMAINED SUPERIOR, SHOOTING DOWN NINE OF THE ENEMY. EVEN OTHERS WERE DESTROYED ELSEWHERE FOR A TOTAL OF 16 FOR THE DAY. SEVEN ALLIED PLANES WERE LISTED AS MISSING.

A FORMATION OF 18 AMERICAN LIGHTNINGS ACCOUNTED FOR FIVE OF THE FALLEN GERMANS. IN A FURIOUS 10 TO 15-MINUTE DOGFIGHT OVER THE SALERNO INVASION BEACHES WITH TWICE THEIR NUMBER OF MESSERSCHMITTS, THE AMERICANS ALL EMERGED UNSCATHED.

THE EIGHTH ARMY IN CALABRIA WAS IMPEDED ONLY BY ENEMY DEMOLITIONS AND MINES. THE BRITISH WERE FANNING OUT TO THE NORTH AND NORTHWEST FROM TARANTO, WHICH ITSELF FELL WITH NO OPPOSITION, AND WERE REPORTED PURSUING ELEMENTS OF THE GERMAN FIRST PARACHUTE DIVISION AND A GERMAN ARMORED FORCE.

THE FALL OF BRINDISI, ANCIENT EASTERN SEAPORT OF SOME 20,000 POPULATION, OPENED UP WIDE NEW POSSIBILITIES OF ALLIED ACTION.

IT GAVE GEN.EISENHOWER'S FORCES THEIR FIRST FOOTHOLD ALONG THE ADRIATIC AND A SPRINGBOARD WHENCE THE BALKANS COULD BE INVADED. FROM THERE AND FROM BARI, 55 MILES UP THE COAST, MUSSOLINI'S LEGIONS PUT FORTH IN 1939 TO INVADE ALBANIA, LESS THAN 70 MILES DISTANT ACROSS

THIS HARROWEST NECK OF THE ADRIATIC.

(RADIO FRANCE AT ALGIERS, IN A BROADCAST YESTERDAY, DECLARED ALLIED TROOPS ALREADY WERE IN BARI.)

THE BRITISH PLUNGE ACROSS THE HEEL FROM TARANTO ALSO PRESUMABLY BROUGHT 10 OR MORE IMPORTANT ITALIAN AIRFIELDS WITHIN ALLIED CONTROL, INCLUDING THE OFT-BOMBED FIELD AT GROTTAGLIE, NINE MILES EAST OF THE NAVAL BASE.

"WE SAW ENEMY VEHICLES STREAMING OUT OF CORLETO AS WE NEARED THE 'ARGET," SAID TECH.SGT.D.PRILLO OF MILFORD, MASS., WHO FLEW WITH ITCHELL BOMBERS TO UNLOAD 38 TONS OF BOMBS ON THAT HIGHWAY JUNCTION.

WEEK-END AIR ACTIVITY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN ALSO EXTENDED TO THE ERMAN-OCCUPIEDITALIAN ISLAND OF RHODES IN THE DODECANESE OFF URKEY. BEAUFIGHTERS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST POUNDED THE MARITZA IRDROME THERE IN DAYLIGHT SATURDAY AND WELLINGTONS FOLLOWED UP THAT IGHT BY BLASTING THE FIELD AT CALATTO.

GERMAN AND ITALIAN BROADCASTS INTERCEPTED HERE ALL INDICATED THAT TALIAN OPPOSITION TO NAZI OCCUPYING FORCES HAD TAPERED OFF TO ALMOST OTHING. NEVERTHELESS, PASSIVE RESISTANCE APPEARED TO BE WIDESPREAD.

A GERMAN BROADCAST ADMITTED ITALIAN WORKMEN WERE REFUSING TO EPAIR BOMB-DAMAGED RAILWAYS. NAZI RAIL WORKERS WERE REPORTED EN OUTE FROM GERMANY ITSELF.

A DISPATCH LAST NIGHT SAID THAT THE ITALIAN AIRFORCE WAS UNABLE TO SCAPE TO SICILY OR OTHER ALLIED-HELD TERRITORY BECAUSE AIRFIELDS IN TALY LONG HAVE BEEN CONTROLLED BY THE GERMANS WHO TOOK THE RECAUTION OF SPLITTING THE ITALIANS INTO SMALL UNITS AND ALLOWING IEM ONLY A SMALL AMOUNT OF GASOLINE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT.13-(AP)-WITH 32 SHIPS OF ITALY'S SIZEABLE WAR FLEET ALREADY IN ALLIED HANDS, NAVAL AUTHORITIES WAITED HERE TODAY FOR WORD FROM A SCORE OF FAR-FLUNG MEDITERRANEAN BASES OF THE ARRIVAL OF OTHER UNITS OF THE ITALIAN NAVY AND MERCHANT SERVICE BELIEVED TO BE ENROUTE UNDER THE TERMS OF THE ARMISTICE.

ALREADY AT MALTA ARE THE 35,000-TON BATTLESHIPS ITALIA AND VITTORIO VENETO AND THE SMALLER 24,000-TON ANDREA DORIA AND DULIO AS WELL AS SIX CRUISERS, EIGHT DESTROYERS AND 14 SUBMARINES, WHICH STARTED TO ARRIVE IN VALLETTA'S GRAND HARBOR FRIDAY.

STILL UNACCOUNTED FOR ARE MORE THAN HALF OF THE ITALIAN SUBMARINE FLEET WHICH WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE NUMBERED BETWEEN 50 AND 60, SOME OF WHICH WERE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN OPERATING IN THE ATLANTIC OCEAN.

OTHER UNITS OF THE FLEET, INCLUDING SOME OF THE SUBMARINES, WERE BELIEVED TO BE AT SEA ATTEMPTING TO ELUDE GERMAN BOMBERS WHICH SENT THE GIANT 35,000-TON BATTLESHIP ROMA TO THE BOTTOM WITH ONE WELL-PLACED BOMB AS IT FLED ITALY FRIDAY.

(MALTA DISPATCHES SAID THAT ADMIRAL BAGLIRIA, COMMANDER OF THE FLEET, WENT DOWN WITH THE ROMA AND THAT ANOTHER OFFICER ABOARD THE CRUISER EUGENIO DI SAVOIA BECAME FLAG OFFICER AND BROUGHT THE FLEET TO MALTA.)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS HAD NO WAY OF KNOWING HOW MANY MORE SHIPS THEY MIGHT EXPECT OR TO WHAT PORTS THEY WOULD FLEE, ONE OFFICER POINTING OUT THAT THE SHIPS WERE BADLY SCATTERED.

(SWISS DISPATCHES SAID THAT SEVEN SHIPS HAD ARRIVED AT THE SPANISH-OWNED BALEARIC ISLANDS IN THE WESTERN MEDITERRANEAN AND THAT TWO OF THE SEVEN HAD SAILED, PRESUMABLY FOR ALLIED PORTS.

(THE GERMAN RADIO, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID THAT TWO OF THREE ITALIAN GUNBOATS PUTTING IN AT MALLORCA AND POLLENSA IN THE BALEARICS WERE SCUTTLED BY THEIR CREWS.)

THE SITUATION CONCERNING THE MERCHANT FLEET LIKEWISE WAS NOT CLEAR. ALLIED OFFICIALS HAD LITTLE HOPE THAT THE GIANT LINERS REX AND CONTE DI SAVOIA AS WELL AS OTHER SPEEDY TRANSOCEAN PASSENGER SHIPS WOULD REACH SAFE HAVEN. THE SHIPS ARE REGULARLY BERTHED AT GENOA, ITALY'S PRINCIPAL SEAPORT IN THE NORTH OF ITALY, WHICH FELL UNDER GERMAN CONTROL SHORTLY AFTER THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ARMISTICE.

THERE STILL ARE NUMBERS OF GOOD FREIGHTERS AND TANKERS UNDER ITALIAN REGISTRY WHICH, IN ALLIED HANDS, WOULD BE VALUABLE IN FURTHER EASING THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

ITALY'S SURRENDER HAD THE RESULT OF TURNING THE MEDITERRANEAN INTO AN ALLIED LAKE. THE MENACE TO SHIPPING, ALMOST ELIMINATED BY THE FALL OF NORTH AFRICA AND THE STEPPING-STONE ISLANDS OF PANTELLERIA AND LAMPEDUSA, IS ELIMINATED ENTIRELY NOW WITH THE SURRENDER OF THE ITALIAN FLEET. THERE STILL REMAINS THE POSSIBILITY OF AERIAL BOMBING BY LAND-BASED GERMAN PLANES, BUT THE OVERALL DANGER WAS SMALL COMPARED TO THE EARLY DAYS OF THE WAR WHEN THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS CLOSED TO ALLIED SHIPPING AND IT WAS FORCED TO MAKE THE LONG TRIP AROUND THE SOUTHERN TIP OF AFRICA.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ANNOUNCEMENT BY ALLIED HEADQUARTERS OF WHAT PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR USE OF THE ITALIAN SHIPS, BUT IT WAS PRESUMED THAT THEY WOULD BE PUT INTO SERVICE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

(ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM, COMMANDER OF THE ALLIED FLEET, TOLD CLARK LEE, WAR CORRESPONDENT REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS, THAT THE ITALIAN SHIPS "ARE IN GOOD ORDER, ABSOLUTELY FIRST CLASS, ESPECIALLY THE BATTLESHIPS AND NEW CRUISERS.")

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT.12-(AP)-RDSCUED AT SEA BY AN ITALIAN DESTROYER, THE CREW OF AN RAF WELLINGTON DEJECTEDLY THOUGHT THEY WERE PRISONERS OF WAR.

THEN THE ITALIANS TOLD THEM OF THE ARMISTICE, AND THAT THE DESTROYER WAS BOUND FOR AN ALLIED PORT AS RAPIDLY AS IT COULD GET THERE.

THE AIRMEN, FORCED DOWN OFF SARDINIA, WERE DRIFTING IN A RUBBER DINGHY. WHEN THEY SAW ITALIAN WARSHIPS APPROACH, THE PLANE'S CAPTAIN, FLIGHT SGT.D.WATSON OF VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, TOLD HIS MEN TO LIE LOW SO THEY WOULDN'T BE SEEN.

BUT WHEN IT SEEMED THE DINGHY MIGHT BE PLOWED UNDER BY A DESTROYER HEADING STRAIGHT FOR IT, THEY SIGNALLED TO BE RESCUED. GERMAN PLANES MEANWHILE WERE BOMBING THE FLEET, BUT THE DINGHY PASSENGERS WERE NOT INJURED.

WHEN THE AIRMEN CLIMBED UP A ROPE LADDER, THE DESTROYER'S CREW CHEERED THEM AND THE CAPTAIN SHOOK EACH MAN BY HAND AS HE REACHED THE DECK.

ITALIAN OFFICERS GAVE THEM FRESH CLOTHES AND GAVE UP THEIR OWN BERTHS FOR THEM.

"IT WAS A BIG RELIEF," SAID WATSON, WHO SUFFERED CUTS ON THE FACE AND LEGS. THE RADIO OPERATOR ALSO HAD MINOR WOUNDS.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT. 13-(AP)-AMERICAN AND BRITISH AIRMEN, IN A ROUND-THE-CLOCK ASSAULT ON NAZI COMMUNICATIONS, TODAY RAISED A BARRAGE OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES AND CANNON FIRE BETWEEN GERMAN DIVISIONS RUSHING SOUTH TO ATTACK THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY BRIDGEHEAD AT SALERNO.

MAINTAINING A CONSTANT UMBRELLA OVER ALLIED LANDINGS, THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIRFORCES EXPLOITED THEIR SUPERIORITY TO THE UTMOST, DESTROYING 13 GERMAN AIRCRAFT AGAINST A LOSS OF TWO ALLIED PLANES.

THE NAZIS THREW BETWEEN 90 AND 100 FIGHTERS AGAINST THE LANDING FORCES, BUT THE GERMAN AIR FORCE ATTACKS ON THE BEACHES AND SHIPPING WERE DESCRIBED AS WEAK, INDICATING THAT THE ALLIED BLASTING OF AIRFIELD OVER A WIDE AREA SOUTH OF ROME WAS SAPPING GERMAN AIR STRENGTH.

ALMOST EVERY ROAD AND RAIL JUNCTION IN THE NAPLES AREA LEADING TO THE BRIDGEHEAD HELD BY THE FIFTH ARMY WAS ATTACKED EVERY HOUR OF THE DAY.

WITH THE U.S.FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 13-(AP)-AMERICAN WOUNDED ARE GETTING THE FINEST MEDICAL ATTENTION SCIENCE CAN PROVIDE, AND THEY'RE GETTING IT IMMEDIATELY, RIGHT ON THE BATTLE-FIELD IN ITALY TODAH.

DOCTORS, COLLECTING COMPANIES AND AMBULANCES CAME ASHORE RIGHT BEHIND THE FIRST COMBAT TEAMS ON INVASION DAY. TODAY THESE UNITS ARE WORKING. THEY ARE UNDER BOMBARDMENT CONSTANTLY. THEIR FIELD HOSPITALS ARE SET UP SO NEAR THE FRONT THAT THE SOUNDS OF BATTLE ARE NEVER GONE FROM THE TENTS. IF THE BATTLE LINE MOVES AHEAD, THE HOSPITAL MOVES WITH IT.

A WHOLE ECHELON OF MEDICAL TEAMS TO CARE FOR THE WOUNDED WAS ORGANIZED WITHIN THE FIRST 24 HOURS AFTER THE FIGHTING STARTED. UP AT THE ACTUAL FRONT STRETCHER CREWS PICKED UP THE SOLDIERS AS THEY FELL.

(MORE THAN A FEW DOCTORS AND COLLECTORS HAVE FALLEN THEMSELVES.)

FROM THE FIGHTING ZONE THE WOUNDED ARE RUSHED BACK TO CLEARING HOSPITALS. THERE, IF NECESSARY, MAJOR SURGERY CAN BE PERFORMED.

USUALLY, HOWEVER, THE DOCTORS THERE DO ONLY WHAT IS NECESSARY TO KEEP A MAN LIVING UNTIL HE CAN BE MOVED TO AN EVACUATION HOSPITAL FARTHER IN THE REAR.

THUS THE THREE LINKS IN THE CHAIN ARE THE COLLECTING CREWS, EQUIPPED FOR FIRST AID ON THE SPOT WHERE A SOLDIER FALLS; THE CLEARING UNIT BEHIND THE FRONT; AND THE EVACUATION HOSPITAL, WHERE THE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED ARE KEPT UNTIL THEY CAN BE PUT ABOARD A SHIP AND MOVED OUT OF THE WAR THEATER.

I SPENT A NIGHT AT ONE OF THESE CLEARING UNITS RECENTLY, AND WATCHED IT WORK. A GERMAN STUKA HAD BEEN SHOT DOWN WITHIN A FEW HUNDRED YARDS OF THE TENT THAT AFTERNOON; BOMBS HAD FALLEN CLOSE AROUND THE UNIT ON EACH OF THE SUCCEEDING NIGHTS. ONLY A FEW MILES UP THE ROAD AMERICAN AND GERMAN FIELD GUNS WERE PAINTING THE CLOUDS WITH SHARP WHITE FLASHES AND FILLING THE AIR WITH THUNDER. IT WAS CLOSE TO THE FRONT.

MAJ.JAY W.PICKENS OF CLEBURNE, TEX., THE COMMANDING OFFICER DIDN'T SEEM INTERESTED IN ANY PART OF THAT.

HE WAS CONCERNED SOLELY WITH HIS JOB. "WE CAN DO JUST ABOUT EVERYTHING HERE THEY COULD DO IN A BIG HOSPITAL," HE SAID.

SPECIAL EQUIPMENT FOR AMPUTATIONS AND ABDOMINAL, THORACIC, BRAIN AND EYE OPERATIONS HAD BEEN PLACED IN THE TWO TENTS WHICH WERE ELECTRICALLY LIGHTED WITH POWER FROM A PORTABLE GENERATOR PARKED OUTSIDE. THE OPERATION TABLES WERE READY.

UP AHEAD AT THE FAR END OF THE TENT WERE THE ROWS OF STRETCHERS. THEY WERE ALMOST EMPTY NOW. THE DOCTORS WERE QUIETLY PLEASED ABOUT THAT. THEIR FUNCTION IS TO TREAT PATIENTS QUICKLY, AND GET THEM BACK TO THEIR UNITS OR BACK TO THE EVACUATION HOSPITALS.

THEY DON'T WANT THE STATIONS PILED UP WITH MEN WHO NEED QUICK ATTENTION; THEY WANT TO BE IN POSITION TO GIVE THAT ATTENTION THE MOMENT A SOLDIER COMES INTO THE TENT.

THEY ARE ALWAYS READY AND SOMETIMES THEY HAVE TO WORK WITH LIGHTNING SPEED.

THERE WAS THE SOLDIER WHO HAD HIS LEFT LEG BLOWN OFF. ON THE 1943

30.24-8395

FIELD ITSELF THEY HAD SAVED HIM FROM BLEEDING TO DEATH AND GIVEN HIM SULFANILIMIDE TO PREVENT INFECTION. BUT HE NEEDED A QUICK OPERATION AND THREE QUICK BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS.

THE DRIED PLASMA AND THE DISTILLED WATER ARE PACKED IN CANS THAT LOOK A LITTLE BIT LIKE "C" RATIONS. THE RUBBER HOSES AND NEEDLES ARE SEALED IN CELOPHANE.

THEY GAVE THAT BOY HIS THREE TRANSFUSIONS AND OPERATED ON HIS LEG AND HE IS GOING TO LIVE.

SO IS THE SOLDIER WHO HAD HIS ABDOMEN TORN ACROSS ITS LENGTH BY A SHELL FRAGMENT.

IN BETWEEN TIMES THE CORPS TAKES CARE OF ITALIAN CIVILIANS, MOST OF WHOM HAVE NOTHING MORE SERIOUS THAN MALARIA.

CAPT. CHARLES DILLEY OF AUSTIN, TEX., SAID ONE MAN WAS BROUGHT ALL THE WAY FROM SALERNO. HIS WIFE HAD ATTACHED A NOTE TO HIS CLOTHING WHICH EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THE "AMERICANOS" WOULD BE SURE AND SEND BACK THE BLANKET.

SEP 11 1943

"SHE DIDN'T SEEM TO CARE ABOUT HER HUSBAND," CAPTAIN DILLEY SAID.

SALERNO, ITALY, SEPT. 13--WE ENTERED THIS ALMOST DESOLATE CITY THIS MORNING ON THE HEELS OF THE BRITISH WHO TOOK IT YESTERDAY.

DESOLATE IS THE WORD, FOR ALMOST EVERY ONE OF SALERNO'S 77,000 INHABITANTS HAD TAKEN TO THE CAVES IN THE STEEP HILLS NORTH OF THE CITY AND ONLY TODAY HAD BEGUN TO STRAGGLE BACK.

THE BRITISH NAVY HAS SALERNO UNDER ITS THUMB.

THE GERMANS DID ABOUT THE MOST COMPLETE LOOTING JOB ON SALERNO THAT THEY'VE DONE IN ANY CITY. IT WAS PLAIN THAT THEY DID IT IN ANGER BECAUSE OF THE ITALIAN CAPITULATION.

ONE UNCONFIRMED STORY IS THAT THEY DROVE AN ARMORED CAR DOWN THE STREETS OF THE CITY SHOOTING PEOPLE AT RANDOM WHEN THE NEWS OF THE ARMISTICE CAME FOUR HOURS AFTER IT WAS ANNOUNCED.

THEY LEFT HARDLY A SCRAP OF FOOD, NOT A VEHICLE THAT COULD BE MOVED, NO MEDICAL SUPPLIES AND THE PLIGHT OF NO CITY IN SICILY EQUALS THAT OF SALERNO.

ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS IN SALERNO'S ORNATE CITY HALL RECEIVED A PATHETIC PLEA FOR A CAR TO TAKE AWAY THE BODIES OF TWO OLD PEOPLE WHO HAD JUST DIED BECAUSE THEY WERE HUNGRY.

THERE IS NO WATER. BEFORE THE GERMANS LEFT, THEY BLEW UP THE WATER PLANT AND THEY NOW HOLD POSITIONS THAT MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE TO GET MORE FOR AWHILE ANYHOW.

BOMBING CASUALTIES WERE LIGHT BECAUSE OF THE ALMOST GENERAL EXODUS OF THE CITIZENS TO THE HILLS.

A M G OFFICIALS, THREE OFFICERS AND TWO NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, WERE IN SALERNO TWO HOURS BEHIND THE INFANTRY, SHAPING UP PROCLAMATION NUMBER ONE THAT WAS BEGINNING TO BE READ THIS MORNING.

THE INHABITANTS PROFESS TO BE DELIGHTED TO SEE THE ALLIES AND IN THEIR WILLINGNESS TO WORK THEY ARE EMBARRASSING THE AUTHORITIES BECAUSE THEY ARE SURE THAT IF THEY WORK THEY'LL BE FED.

THE BOMBING OF THE CITY SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN RESTRICTED MOSTLY TO THE BUSINESS DISTRICT WHICH IS CLOSE TO THE HARBOR. PASSAGE

1943

THROUGH THAT PART OF TOWN IS EXTREMELY PERILOUS. WALLS WERE BEING PULLED DOWN THIS MORNING AND OTHERS SEEMED IN INSTANT DANGER OF FALLING.

THE NATIVES WERE MOST IMPRESSED BY THE AMERICAN FLYING FOTRESSES WHICH CAME IN.

LOOTING IS AT A MINIMUM CHIEFLY BECAUSE THE GERMANS LEFT VERY LITTLE BEHIND AND THE A M G TAKES CREDIT FOR MOVING IN QUICKLY ENOUGH TO PREVENT IT. ONE SURPRISING FACT IS THAT THE GERMANS DIDN'T LOOT THE BANKS. AN A M G OFFICIAL CHECKED UP THIS MORNING AND FOUND THE FUNDS ALMOST INTACT.

ON THE ROAD TO SALERNO THROUGH PONTECAGNANO, LIFE IS SETTLING DOWN TO NORMAL. COWS WHICH HADN'T BEEN MILED FOR THE PAST TWO DAYS FOLLOWING THE INVASION ARE BROWSING CONTENTEDLY IN PASTURES NEXT TO GUN POSITIONS AND ITALIAN CIVILIANS ARE BEGINNING TO RETURN TO THEIR HOMES ON THE BIG PLANTATIONS.

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE, SEPT. 12-(DELAYED)-MAINTAINING COMPLETE MASTERY OF THE SKIES OVER THE SOUTHERN PART OF ITALY, HEAVY FORMATIONS OF AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS, ESCORTED BY BOMB-CARRYING FIGHTERS YESTERDAY AND TODAY, WERE OUT LOOKING FOR TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY.

THESE TARGETS NOT ONLY INCLUDE BRIDGES AND ROADS BEHIND THE ENEMY'S CONFUSED LINES BUT ROAD TRAFFIC AND GERMAN-CONTROLLED AIR FIELDS WHERE THEY CAN BE FOUND.

THESE SO-CALLED TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY ALSO INCLUDE ANY NAZI AIRCRAFT THAT MAY BE SIGHTED, FEW THOUGH THEY MAY BE.

AMERICAN PILOTS ARE ENCOUNTERING A NEW PROBLEM SINCE THE SURRENDER OF ITALY AND HER AIR FORCE. OUR PILOTS MUST NOW DETERMINE WHETHER THE PLANES THEY SPOT ARE NAZI OR ITALIAN. THIS MEANS RECOGNITION AT FAIRLY CLOSE QUARTEGS AND A HEATED DOG FIGHT WHEN IT'S DETERMINED THAT THEY ARE GERMAN.

YESTERDAY, A FLIGHT OF A-36S SIGHTED A FORMATION OF PLANES IN THE DISTANCE. CAPT. HARRY HENRY OF WASHINGTON, PA., FLIGHT LEADER, LED HIS PILOTS IN AND DETERMINED THAT THEY WERE GERMANS. HE FOLLOWED THIS RECOGNITION THROUGH AND SHOT DOWN A JU-52 FIVE-ENGINED TRANSPORT THAT WAS STRAGGLING BEHIND ITS ESCORT IN THE POTENZA AREA.

THE AMERICAN PLANES CONTINUED SOUTHWARD ON THEIR HOMEWARD FLIGHT AND LT. ROY T. CARTER JR., BIRMINGHAM, ALA., TOPPED OFF THE MISSION BY DOWNING ANOTHER JU-52 OVER LAURIA.

BOTH GERMAN TRANSPORTS WERE HEADED SOUTH TOWARD THE GERMANS RESISTING THE BRITISH 8TH ARMY. IT COULD NOT BE DETERMINED, HOWEVER, WHETHER THEY WERE BRINGING IN REINFORCEMENTS OR WERE ON THEIR WAY TO EVACUATE MEN OR EQUIPMENT.

FOR THE MOST PART, OUR FLIERS ARE SPOTTING ONLY SMALL FORMATIONS OF ENEMY PLANES AND ONLY ONCE HAS THE ENEMY ATTEMPTED TO SEND DOWN A LARGE FLIGHT OF BOMBERS TO BLAST OUR LANDING AREA ON THE SALERNO GULF.

THAT WAS ON FRIDAY WHEN AMERICAN SPITFIRES INTERCEPTED 36 BOMB-CARRYING NAZI FIGHTERS HEADED FOR SALERNO. THE SPITS SHOT DOWN ONE FW-190 AND ONE ME-109 OVER SORRENTO AND FORCED THE REMAINING GERMAN PLANES TO JETTISON THEIR BOMBS AND HIGHTAIL IT FOR HOME.

ALL OUR PLANES RETURNED SAFELY TO CONGRATULATE CAPT. DALE E. SHAFER, WAYNESVILLE, O., FOR HIS SINGLE-HANDED ENGAGEMENT OF 16 FW-190S. THESE PLANES FORMED THE SECOND PART OF THE ENEMY FLIGHT INTENT UPON BOMBING SALERNO AND, WHILE HIS SQUADRON MATES TACKLED THE 20 ME-109S, HE BROKE INTO THE FWS, FORCED THEM TO DROP THEIR BOMBS AND RUN. HE SHOT DOWN ONE OF THEM FOR HIS FOURTH VICTORY AND DAMAGED A

WITH U.S.FORCES IN ITALY, SEPT. 13--AIR SUPPORT FOR THE AMERICAN OPERATIONS IN THE SALERNO AREA HAS BEEN PERFECT TO THE EXTENT THAT OUR TROOPS HAVE HAD THE CONSTANT COVER OF MUSTANG AND P-38 FIGHTERS.

OUR COMMUNICATIONS WITH SHIPS OF THE INVASION FLEET WERE POOR AT THE BEGINNIG, BUT NOW HAVE IMPROVED UNTIL THEY ARE PERFECT.

ALL THINGS TAKEN TOGETHER, OUR EFFORT HAS NOT BEEN ALTOGETHER SLICK, ALTHOUGH OUR TROOPS ARE FIGHTING MAGNIFICENTLY.

WE SIT HERE WITH MACHINE-GUNS RATTLING AROUND US AND THE GERMANS OCCUPYING PLACES OF ADVANTAGE ON ALL THE SURROUNDING HILLS.

THE FIRST ATTACK IN THIS AREA WAS LED BY LT.COL.CARLOS D.SMITH OF GONZALEZ, TEX., AND LT.COL.EDWARD B.MCCALL OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

TWO COMPANIES OF INFANTRY DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES SOON AFTER DAYLIGHT WHEN THEY REPELLED SEVEN GERMAN TANKS.

IT IS MY OPINION THAT OUR WHOLE LANDING MIGHT HAVE BEEN TOUGHER IF THE GERMAN 88-MILLIMETER GU[illegible]AD GOTTEN THE RANGE OF THE LANDING CRAFTS EARLIER IN THE GAME.

AS THINGS STAND NOW, WE ALMOST CERTAINLY WILL HOLD OUR BEACH-HEADS WITH HARD FIGHTING AND NAVAL GUNNERY. OUR VOYAGE TO ITALY WAS A MODEL MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE COMPLETELY WITHOUT INCIDENT UNTIL WE REACHED OUR DESTINATION.

THE TROOPS SENSED THE FACT THAT THERE WAS SOMETHING PHONEY ABOUT SAILING RIGHT UP THE ITALIAN COAST WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT AND THERE WAS MUCH TALK OF SNIPE HUNTS, WILD GOOSE CHASES AND DRY RUNS, ALL OF WHICH IS REGRETTED NOW.

WITH AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCES SOUTH OF NAPLES, SEPT. 13--HARD-FIGHTING TROOPS WHO LANDED WEST OF SALERNO ON "D-DAY" HAVE PUSHED FORWARD OVER THE MOUNTAINS, BATTLING GERMAN PANZER UNITS IN SIGHT OF MOUNT VESUVIUS --- LESS THAN 15 MILES AWAY --- IN ONE OF THE TOUGHEST BATTLES ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND.

THE TROOPS HAVE ALREADY ENCOUNTERED STRONG TANK OPPOSITION. THEY HAVE THREATENED WITH ARTILLERY AND RIFLE FIRE THE NAPLES-SALERNO RAILWAY AND ROAD BOTH OF WHICH RUN PARALLEL THROUGH POMPEI. MUCH OF THE FIGHTING HAS BEEN DONE 4,000 FEET HIGH.

THE TROOPS TOOK A SEASIDE TOWN "D-DAY" BY TACTICAL SURPRISE WITH ONLY A FEW CASUALTIES DURING THE LANDING. THEY IMMEDIATELY ADVANCED IN TWO WAYS: FIRST INLAND TOWARD THE NAPLES-SALERNO HIGHWAY AND SECOND ALONG THE COAST ROAD KNOWN IN GREEK LEGENDS AS THE PROMENADE OF THE SIRENS, QUICKLY OCCUPYING A TOWN AND CONTINUING ONWARD THROUGH SOME ORANGE GROVES BEHIND WHICH THE GERMANS WERE MASSED.

ACCOMPANYING A SPECIAL HEADQUARTERS MISSION HEADED BY A LIEUTENANT COLONEL, I SAW AT FIRST HAND THE TOUGH FIGHTING THROUGHOUT THE SECTOR. THERE WAS NO LET-UP FOR A SINGLE MINUTE IN THE ARTILLERY DUELS BOOMING ON ALL SIDES. ENEMY SNIPERS WERE TAKING POT SHOTS ALL DAY LONG. THE NAZIS WERE USING EVERY LEMON AND POMEGRANATE TREE AS A NATURAL CAMOUFLAGE FOR FIELD TELEPHONES, MACHINE-GUN NESTS AND SUPPLY DEPOTS.

THE PATTERN FOLLOWED BY THE ALLIES THUS FAR IN THEIR RECONQUEST OF NEW GUINEA WAS DISCLOSED TO NEWSMEN TODAY BY GEN.SIR THOMAS BLAMEY.

THE GENERAL TRACED THE PATTERN OF RECONQUEST ON A MAP AND STRESSED THAT GROUND FORCES WERE COVERED THROUGHOUT BY SUPERIOR AIR POWER AND BY EMPHIBIOUS RESOURCES AT DECISIVE MOMENTS.

AFTER THE JAPANESE PAPUAN ARMY WAS DRIVEN BACK ACROSS THE OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS LAST FALL AND DESTROYED IN THE BUNA SECTOR IN JANUARY THE ALLIED COMMAND WAS FACED WITH THE PROBLEM OF HOW TO STRIKE AT LAE, THE CENTER OF THE ENEMY'S BASES IN NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA.

SALAMAUA WAS THE ENEMY-HELD POINT NEAREST TO THE ALLIED ADVANCED POSITION AT WAU, 28 MILES TO THE SOUTHWEST. THE JAPANESE IN SALAMAUA WERE ALWAYS A POTENTIAL DANGER TO THE ALLIED HOLD ON CENTRAL AND SOUTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA. IN THE JAPANESE SCHEME, HOWEVER, SALAMAUA WAS MANNED PRIMARILY AS AN OUTPOST OF LAE, 18 MILES TO THE NORTHWEST.

THE ALLIED COMMAND BEGAN TO DRAW THE JAPANESE OUT OF LAE TOWARD SALAMAUA WHERE ALLIED FORCES COULD COME TO GRIPS WITH THEM. IN FEBRUARY THE 17TH AUSTRALIAN BRIGADE WAS TRANSPORTED BY AIR JUST IN TIME TO HELP TWO OUTNUMBERED AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY COMPANIES BEAT BACK THE ENEMY FROM THE APPROACHES TO WAU AIRFIELD.

THE TIMELY ARRIVAL OF REINFORCEMENTS NOT ONLY SAVED WAU AS AN ALLIED OPERATING BASE BUT ALSO FORCED THE JAPANESE TO WEAKEN THE LAE GARRISON BY SENDING UNITS TO MEET WHAT THEY BELIEVED WAS A DETERMINED ALLIED MOVE AGAINST SALAMAUA.

IN MARCH THE JAPANESE SOUGHT TO REINFORCE AND STRENGTHEN LAE BY A 22-SHIP CONVOY. THIS CONVOY WAS MAULED BY ALLIED AIRMEN FOR THREE DAYS AND NIGHTS AS IT MOVED THROUGH THE BISMARCK SEA INTO HUON GULF WHERE ITS DESTRUCTION WAS COMPLETED.

OPERATING FROM WAU, THE AUSTRALIAN BRIGADE CONTINUED FOR THREE MONTHS TO TAKE TOLL OF THE ENEMY AND FORCE HIM SLOWLY BACK ON SALAMAUA. LACKING AMPHIBIOUS SUPPORT DURING THIS PERIOD THE ALLIED COMMAND KEPT THE WAU BRIGADE FIGHTING WITH REPLACEMENTS AND SUPPLIES FLOWN IN FROM BASES AROUND PORT MORESBY.

THE ARRIVAL OF A UNITED STATES NAVY AMPHIBIOUS FORCE UNDER REAR ADMIRAL DANIEL BARBY AT THE END OF JUNE ENABLED THE ALLIED COMMAND TO DEVELOP MORE SPEEDILY ITS WORKING STRATEGY, DESIGNED TO DRAW MORE JAPANESE FROM LAE TO THE SALAMAUA FRONT WHERE THEY COULD BE DESTROYED PIECEMEAL.

30.24-8401

ON JUNE 30 THE 163RD REGIMENT OF THE U.S.ARMY'S 41ST DIVISION WAS LANDED BY THE NAVY AMPHIBIOUS FORCE AT NASSAU BAY, 12 MILES SOUTH OF SALAMAUA. TWO DAYS LATER THE AMERICANS JOINED WITH AUSTRALIANS WHO FOUGHT THEIR WAY OVERLAND FROM WAU TO BEGIN A SERIES OF FLANKING AND ENVELOPING OPERATIONS.

MOST OF THESE ACTIONS, SUPPLEMENTED BY DEADLY BOMBING BY AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN AIRMEN, SUCCEEDED IN SMASHING NINE JAPANESE BATTALIONS SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST OF SALAMAUA.

THEN CAME A SLOW ADVANCE ON THE SALAMAUA AIRFIELD WHICH ENDED SUCCESSFULLY SATURDAY WHEN AUSTRALIANS SWAM THE FLOODED FRANCISCO RIVER AND OVERRAN THE AIRDROME WITHOUT ENCOUNTERING RESISTANCE. THEY WERE LAST REPORTED PUSHING AGAINST JAPANESE REMNANTS HOLDING A RIDGE A MILE AND A HALF FROM SALAMAUA IN EFFORTS TO KEEP THE TRAIL TO LAE OPEN.

THE ALLIED COMMAND'S STRATEGY HAS BEEN TO WEAKEN THE LAE GARRISON TO A POINT WHERE IT CAN NOT HOPE TO FIGHT ITS WAY FREE OF THE TRAP WHICH WAS SET BY THE AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN DRIVE TO SALAMAUA AND SPRUNG BY AMPHIBIOUS LANDINGS EAST OF LAE AND AIRBORNE LANDINGS WEST OF THE BASE ON SEPTEMBER 4 AND 5.

FAILURE OF THE JAPANESE TO OFFER SERIOUS RESISTANCE TO THE AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION AND TO STOP THE ADVANCE OF AUSTRALIANS AND AMERICANS CLOSING IN FROM TWO DIRECTIONS SEEMS A CLEAR DEMONSTRATION OF THE SUCCESS OF THE STRATEGY.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA SEPT.13-(AP)-THE GENERAL STOOD THERE, A SHORT, SQUAT MAN WITH A BARREL CHEST AND GROOMED MUSTACHE.

HE FACED A MAP OF NEW GUINEA AND HELD A POINTER IN HIS HAND LIKE AN OLD TIME GRAMMAR SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY TEACHER. HIS AUDIENCE WAS WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

"GENTLEMEN," HE SAID, POINTING TO A PLACE ON THE MAP, "THE ENEMY IS HERE AND WE ARE HERE."

THE CORRESPONDENTS NODDED THEIR HEADS AS IF TO SAY "THE GENERAL IS GOING TO REVIEW THE MILITARY SITUATION AGAIN."

PHOTOGRAPHERS BANGED AWAY. MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS GROUND.

THEN THE GENERAL REMARKED:

"THE COLONEL THOUGHT IT MIGHT BE NICE IF I REVIEWED BRIEFLY THE NEW GUINEA CAMPAIGN TO DATE."

THE CORRESPONDENTS SETTLED DOWN. SAME OLD STUFF.

THE GENERAL, SIR THOMAS BLAMEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED GROUND FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, WENT ON.

"NOW HERE," HE SAID, POINTING TO A SPOT AROUND WAU, "IS THE TRACKLESS JUNGLE."

PRACTICALLY EVERY CORRESPONDENT HAS TRAMPED THROUGH THAT JUNGLE, DODGING JAPANESE STRAFERS. HO-HUM.

"NOW, OUR PROBLEM," THE GENERAL WENT ON, "WAS TO GET COMMAND HERE SO WE COULD MOVE IN THERE."

THE CORRESPONDENTS TO A MAN SHIFTED TO THE OTHER FOOT.

"AND SO WE GOT HERE," THE GENERAL POINTED TO SALAMAUA.

EVERY CORRESPONDENT KNEW WE HAD BEEN BANGING AT SALAMAUA FOR 1943

MONTHS. NO NEWS THERE.

INQUISITIVE JACK TURCOTT OF THE NEW YORK DAILY NEWS PIPED UP:

"GENERAL, WHERE ARE THE JAPS NOW AROUND SALAMAUA?"

THERE WAS JUST THE FAINTEST TWINKLE IN BLAMEY'S EYE AS HE SAID SOFTLY:

"WHY, WE HAVE HAD SALAMAUA FOR THE LAST FEW HOURS."

A PENCIL CRASHED TO THE FLOOR.

"WHY," THE GENERAL WENT ON, "WE LANDED PIPER CUBS (SMALL AIRPLANES) ON THE AIRFIELD THERE YESTERDAY.

THAT WAS IT. FOR MONTHS THE CORRESPONDENTS HAD BEEN WAITING FOR THE FALL OF SALAMAUA, AND THAT'S THE WAY IT FELL--VIRTUALLY IN THEIR LAPS.

RECOVERED BIT OF AMERICAN SOIL.

THE INCIDENT IS SIGNIFICANT OF THE CHANGE TAKING PLACE ON KISKA SINCE THE UNITED STATES AND CANADIAN AMPHIBIOUS FORCES SWARMED ASHORE AUG.15 ONLY TO FIND THAT THE JAPANESE HAD FLED.

ALL OTHER EVIDENCES OF MORE THAN A YEAR OF JAPANESE OCCUPATION WERE BEING CLEARED AWAY. MUCH OF THE LARGE QUANTITY OF MATERIAL ABANDONED BY THE JAPANESE IN THEIR HASTY DEPARTURE, SUCH AS THOUSANDS OF YARDS OF WIRE AND CABLES, WERE BEING PUT TO USE BY THE AMERICANS. THE SUBMARINES DOCK WHERE THE ENEMY LEFT THREE DAMAGED "TOJO CIGAR" TYPE SMALL SUBS WAS BEING USED FOR REPAIRING LANDING CRAFT.

EXPERTS CONTINUED SEARCHING FOR BOOZY TRAPS. TUNDRA-WALLED FOOD WAREHOUSES PILED HIGH WITH RATTAN BAGS OF RICE WERE BEING BURNED.

OTHER SUPPLIES TAKEN FROM TUNNELS, INCLUDING LARGE, CRATED BOTTLES OF SAKE, WERE UNDER GUARD PENDING DISPOSAL. SIGNS ALSO WARNED SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AGAINST TOUCHING CLOTHING AND BEDDING BECAUSE OF THE DANGER OF BUBONIC PLAGUE OR OTHER DISEASE.

AT ONE JAPANESE GUN EMPLACEMENT, LITTERED WITH DISCARDED CLOTHING, FLOURISHED A BUNCH OF RED WILD FLOWERS, POTTED IN A TIN CAN.

ABANDONED SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS COLLECTED AT A NAVY SEA-BEE SICK BAY GAVE STRIKING PROOF THAT THE JAPANESE PROZBABLY LEFT KISKA BY SUBMARINE AND BARGES IN FRANTIC HASTE. LIEUTENANT COMMANDER PHILLIPE KING, MEDICAL OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE SICK BAY, SAID DELICATE AND EXPENSIVE INSTRUMENTS HAD BEEN RECOVERED FROM A LATRINE INTO WHICH THE FLEEING JAPANESE HAD THROWN THEM.

"THERE'S PROBABLY LOTS OF OTHER STUFF BURIED AROUND HERE," KING SAID. "THEY WERE GREAT ONES FOR DIGGING HOLES." HE INDICATED A COLLECTION OF VITAMIN PILLS AND PREPARATIONS LEFT BEHIND BY THE MIKADO'S WARRIORS AND ADDED, "THEY WERE GREAT ONES FOR VITAMINS TOO."

RUMOR THAT THE JAPANESE HAD WOMEN ON KISKA PERSISTED DESPITE THE GENERAL OPINION OF THE ARMY AND NAVY INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS TO THE CONTRARY.

SEVERAL SAILORS SAID THEY HAD SEEN WOMEN'S SILK UNDERWEAR IN A FEMININELY DECORATED HUT. OTHERS CLAIMED THEY HAD SEEN WOMEN'S FOOTPRINTS.

RIO DE JANEIRO, SEPT. 13-(AP)-PRESIDENT GETULIO VARGAS TODAY ISSUED A DECREE FOR THE CREATION OF FIVE NEW FEDERAL TERRITORIES ON BRAZIL'S FRONTIERS WITH THE GUIANAS, VENEZUELA, BOLIVIA, PARAGUAY AND ARGENTINA. THE DECREE IS EFFECTIVE OCT. 1.

THE TERRITORIES ARE TO BE KNOWN AS AMAPA, RIO BRANCO, GUAPORE, PONTA PORA AND IGUASSU. THEY WILL BE CARVED FROM THE STATES OF PARA AMAZONAS, MATO GROSSO, PARANA AND SANTA CATARINA.

THE PUBLISHED DECREE DISCLOSED NO REASON FOR ADDING THESE NEW TERRITORIES TO THE TWO EXISTING ONES -- ACRE ON BRAZIL'S FAR WESTERN FRONTIER WITH PERU AND BOLIVIA, AND THE ISLAND OF FERNANDO NORONHA IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC.

HOWEVER, IT WAS RECALLED THAT FERNANDO NORONHA WAS MADE A FEDERAL TERRITORY AFTER BRAZIL DECLARED WAR AND THAT IT SINCE HAS BECOME AN IMPORTANT DEFENSE BASE, AND ALSO THAT PRESIDENT VARGAS RECENTLY DECREED THAT ONLY BRAZILIANS MAY OWN LAND ALONG THE NATION'S FRONTIERS.

OTTAWA, SEPT 13-(AP)-DEFENSE MINISTER J.L.RALSTON ANNOUNCED TODAY PLANS TO REDUCE CANADA'S HOME DEFENSE OPERATIONAL MILITARY FORCES BY ABOUT 20,000 MEN THROUGH DISBANDMENT OF THE 7TH AND 8TH DIVISIONS AND PARTIAL DISBANDMENT OF THE 6TH DIVISION.

THE PROGRAM WILL BRING ENROLLMENT IN THE HOME DEFENSE OPERATIONAL FORCES DOWN TO APPROXIMATELY 60,000 MEN.

THE ACTION, IT WAS EXPLAINED, WAS DECIDED UPON IN THE LIGHT OF IMPROVEMENTS IN THE GENERAL STRATEGIC SITUATION, A PRESSING MANPOWER SHORTAGE IN CANADA AND THE FACT THAT THE ARMY HAS "PASSED THE EXPANSION STAGE."

FORMATION OF THE 7TH AND 8TH DIVISIONS WAS AUTHORIZED IN MARCH, 1942. THEY WERE DESIGNED TO SERVE AS A "MOBILE RESERVE" FOR DEFENSE OF BOTH COASTS WHEN THREATS AGAINST THEM WERE REAL. MEN IN THE DISBANDED FORMATIONS WHO ARE FIT FOR OVERSEAS SERVICE WILL BE USED AS REINFORCEMENTS, WHILE THE MAJORITY OF THE REMAINDER WILL BE RETURNED TO CIVILIAN LIFE.

TROOPS FROM THE DIVISIONS AFFECTED RECENTLY COOPERATED WITH U.S. FORCES IN OCCUPYING KISKA ISLAND IN THE ALEUTIANS.

NEW YORK, SEPT 13-(AP)-THE NEW YORK TIMES SAYS IN A DISPATCH FROM BERN, SWITZERLAND, THAT THE IMPRESSION HAD GROWN IN DIPLOMATIC QUARTERS THERE THAT BENITO MUSSOLINI WAS DEAD, OR IN THE HANDS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND "THAT BERLIN WAS TRYING TO SMOKE OUT A DECLARATION TO THIS EFFECT."

SEP 11 1943

(A BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN SAID YESTERDAY THE OFFICE KNEW NOTHING ABOUT WHERE MUSSOLINI WAS AND THAT HE NEVER HAD BEEN IN BRITISH-AMERICAN HANDS.)

DECLARING THAT BERLIN'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE "LIBERATION" OF THE DEPOSED ITALIAN LEADER BY NAZI PARACHUTE TROOPS AND MEMBERS OF ADOLF HITLER'S ELITE GUARD WAS SUBJECTED TO CONSIDERABLE DOUBT IN BERN, THE TIMES DISPATCH SAID:

30.24 - 8405

"WERE MUSSOLINI DEAD--AS IS PROBABLE--IT WOULD EXPLAIN HIS NON-APPEARANCE ON THE GERMAN RADIO IN A PROCLAMATION TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE IMMEDIATELY UPON HIS 'LIBERATION,' WHICH IS A POINT THE GERMANS HAVE SO FAR FAILED TO EXPLAIN."

THE DISPATCH ADDED:

"REALIZING THAT MUSSOLINI'S DEATH WOULD SERVE THE AXIS CAUSE NO GOOD END AND IN VIEW OF DIFFICULTIES IN SELECTING A SUCCESSOR TO HEAD THE PUPPET FASCIST REGIME FOR ITALY THAT THEY REPORTED LAST WEEK, THE GERMANS WERE NOW BELIEVED TO BE TRYING TO CAPITALIZE ON MUSSOLINI'S NAME TO CREATE A STATE OF CONFUSION IN ITALIAN RESISTANCE TO THE REICH ARMY, UNDER COVER OF WHICH A COUNTER-REVOLUTION AGAINST MARSHAL PIETRO BAGDOLIO COULD BE MADE TO PAY DIVIDENDS."

HITLER'S SCREAMS OF RAGE AT ITALY'S "TREACHERY," AND HIS FEVERISH EFFORTS TO OFFSET THE DEBACLE WITH A BEWILDERING BARRAGE OF PROPAGANDA AND SUCH THEATRICALS AS THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A PUPPET GOVERNMENT IN ROME, SHOW CLEARLY THAT THE MORAL EFFECT OF HIS AXIS PARTNER'S COLLAPSE IS LIKE A KNIFE BETWEEN THE RIBS.

FREQUENTLY IT'S DIFFICULT TO SEPARATE THE MORAL AND MILITARY EFFECTS AT A CONFUSED MOMENT LIKE THIS, BECAUSE MILITARY ADVERSITY FOLLOWS THE MORAL SHOCK SO QUICKLY. HOWEVER, IT STRIKES ME THAT IN THE LONG RUN THE MORAL ASPECT OF THIS HISTORIC SURRENDER IS GOING TO BE THE BIGGEST ALLIED GAIN.

RECOGNITION OF THIS DROVE THE FUEHRER TO THE MICROPHONE SATURDAY TO TRY TO PREVENT A STAMPEDE AT HOME AND ABROAD BY DOUBLE TALK. THAT SPEECH WAS UNDERSCORED WITH FEAR. IT WASN'T THE SAME OLD

ARROGANT HITLER WHO STROVE TO PRODUCE OILY WORDS TO POUR ON THE TROUBL[illegible] WATERS, BUT A BADLY FRIGHTENED HERR SHICKLERGUBER WHO FOUND THE OIL BARREL EMPTY. THIS HEAR HE DELIBERATELY HANDED ON TO HIS PEOPLE IN AN EFFORT TO HOLD THEM IN LINE.

AT LEAST TWICE THE MASTER GANGSTER TROTTED OUT THE OLD BUGBEAR OF ALLIED INTENTION TO DESTROY GERMANY AND OTHER AXIS COUNTRIES--ONE OF PROPAGANDA MINISTER JOSEPH GOEBBEL'S FAVORITE LINES. "WE ALL KNOW THAT IN THIS MERCILESS STRUGGLE THE DEFEATED WILL BE ANNIHILATED ACCORDING TO THE WISHES OF OUR ENEMIES," HITLER BROADCAST. AND HE DECLAIMED THAT "ALL ATTEMPTS TO FORCE THE FATE OF ENSLAVED NATION UPON THE GERMAN PEOPLE WILL FAIL." IT WAS THE SAME OLD GOEBBEL'S DOPE, THE LIKE OF WHICH I'VE HEARD THE PROPAGANDA MINISTER HAND TO A VAST OUTDOOR AUDIENCE OF 50,000 IN BERLIN--THAT IF GERMANY LOSES THE WAR "SHE WILL BE BROKEN UP AND DESTROYED."

A90

WHY DID HITLER RETURN TO THIS IDEA SO INSISTENTLY? UNDOUBTEDLY BECAUSE THE HUMANITARIAN THOUGH FIRM MANNER IN WHICH THE ALLIES HAVE BEEN HANDLING THE ITALIAN SITUATION MAKES HIM FEAR THAT THE GERMAN PEOPLE, AND OTHER AXIS PEOPLES, WILL REALIZE THAT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER DOESN'T MEAN THAT THEY ARE TO BE DESTROYED.

THE WHOLE WORLD HAS BEEN WATCHING TO SEE WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO A DEFEATED MEMBER OF THE AXIS. NOW THE WORLD KNOWS THAT WHILE ITALY MUST PAY THE FULL AND HEAVY PRICE FOR MUSSOLINI'S BRIGANDAGE, SHE ISN'T GOING TO BE "ANNIHILATED" OR "ENSLAVED." ON THE CONTRARY, THE WORLD SEES THAT THE ALLIES EVEN ARE PREPARING TO LEND THE ITALIANS A HELPING HAND IN THE WAY OF PROVIDING FOOD AND OTHER ESSENTIALS.

I BELIEVE THAT'S GOING TO HAVE A TREMENDOUS EFFECT ON THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND ON OTHER ENEMY COUNTRIES. THIS MAY SEEM STRANGE TO AMERICANS WHO AREN'T ACCUSTOMED TO THINK IN BLOODTHIRSTY TERMS, BUT IT BECOMES UNDERSTANDABLE WHEN ONE STOPS TO CONSIDER THE MANNER IN WHICH HITLER NOT ONLY LITERALLY HAS ENSLAVED MILLIONS OF UNFORTUNATES, BUT HAS MURDERED COUNTLESS THOUSANDS IN COLD BLOOD.

ITALY'S TRUST IN THE ALLIES IS BEING REGISTERED TODAY BY THE SPREAD OF THE REVOLT AGAINST THE NAZI INVADERS. THE BALKANS ARE VIBRATING WITH THE HOPE OF RIDDING THEMSELVES OF THE GERMAN OCTOPUS.

HOWEVER, THIS DOESN'T MEAN THAT THE ALLIES ARE GETTING SOFT. IT'S TWO-FISTED FORCE WHICH HAS BROUGHT THE UNITED NATIONS SUCCESS, AND WE'RE NOT GOING TO EASE UP ON THAT ONE WHIT.

ITALY HAS BEEN SMASHED. GERMANY AND JAPAN WILL BE SMASHED. UNDOUBTEDLY SOME HEADS WILL ROLL, FOR GANGSTERS LIKE HITLER AND MUSSOLINI AND TOJO CAN'T GO FREE, BUT CERTAINLY NOBODY HAS ANY INTENTION OF WIPING THE GUILTY COUNTRIES OFF THE MAP.

HITLER IS AFRAID THAT HIS PEOPLE WILL SENSE THIS FROM WHAT IS HAPPENING IN ITALY, AND THAT THEY WILL GIVE UP THE UNEQUAL FIGHT. THE GERMAN PUBLIC IS BEGINNING TO UNDERSTAND THAT THE REICH IS BEATEN. AS A MATTER OF FACT HITLER VIRTUALLY TOLD THEM IN HIS SPEECH THAT HE WAS GOING TO WITHDRAW HIS BATTLINES TO THE FRONTIERS OF THE FATHERLAND.

THEY ARE THE WORDS OF A BROKEN WORLD-BEATER.

Allies Hold At Salerno Despite 24-Hour Nazi Attack

Russians Push 15 Miles Nearer Dnieperopetrovsk

5TH ARMY HARD BESET BY NAZIS' ONSLAUGHT

Admits Loss of Some Ground, While German Radio Claims Recapture of the City— 8th Army Moves North Swiftly.

GALLAGHER

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 14 (A. P.). — Heavy reinforcements poured in by sea tonight to the desperately beset American and British troops yielding ground on their slender, twenty-four-mile bridgehead south of Salerno and the British Eighth Army advanced swiftly up from southern Italy to within 100 miles of the battle as bloody as Gallipoli. Bari and Cosenza fell to the British in the south.

But on the beaches of Salerno, the American Fifth Army fought hand to hand with elements of three fine German divisions on the sixth day of combat and withstood the torture of German 88-millimeter cannon which commanded their positions with accurate, plunging gunfire from heights overlooking the battle.

Marshal Albert Kesselring was making a supreme bid to throw the Fifth Army into the sea and the Allied communique said:

"Heavy fighting continues on the Fifth Army front. The Germans are counter-attacking desperately and at certain points have regained some of the ground previously taken by us."

Salerno City Still Held by Allies.

The extreme depth of the beachheads was six or seven miles at some places. The Mediterranean was alive with ships landing men and materiel and pumping deadly salvos into the enemy. The city of Salerno remained in Allied hands.

[The Berlin radio late today claimed that German troops had reentered Salerno. DNB in a broadcast declared that Nazi tank formations had swept from the mountain heights before Salerno onto the coastal plains and that strong Allied detachments had been cut off from their landing points. Other German broadcasts said that the Allies were abandoning the Salerno bridgehead "in complete disorder." They said that the British were decisively beaten and that American troops were in flight after suffering 8,000 to 10,000 casualties. The official German communique, however, merely told of desperate fighting and even the Nazi propagandists modified their withdrawal version tonight.]

The air above Salerno was streaked with incessant dogfights as the Germans hurled more and more fighter-bombers into the battle. Allied planes, 150 miles from their nearest usable landing field, bombed roads and railways leading to Salerno, striving mightily to delay or prevent German reinforcements.

Pompeii Area Battered.

The area of Pompeii, destroyed in an eruption of Vesuvius in A. D. 79, was visited with modern damage by day and night attacks on its communications. Other targets were Torre del Greco, on the Bay of Naples; German installations south of Salerno, railways and enemy transport in the Potenza and Auletta areas and in the Sala Consilina sector, fifty miles southwest of Salerno.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army was beating swiftly up the Italian Mediterranean and Adriatic coasts "unchecked except by demolitions," Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

Cosenza, which is near the top of the Italian toe, 120 air line miles from the city of Salerno, fell after a ten-mile British advance, and Bari which is on the Adriatic 112 miles across the southern Apennine Mountains from Salerno, was taken after a sixty-five-mile sprint from Brindisi. The capture of the latter city gave the Allies 125 miles of Adriatic coastline threatening the Balkans. Cosenza and Bari both are provincial capitals, the latter only seventy-four miles from Foggia and its cluster of important airdromes.

Gen. Montgomery's pace was rapid because southern Italy was only lightly defended. The rough nature of the country and the effective demolitions probably will prevent his joining the Fifth Army for a week or so, and the Fifth was under immediate, incessant pressure.

Nazi Guns Rake Beaches.

The bridgehead was on the Gulf of Salerno below the city. It was under continuous assault by the German Fifteenth and Sixteenth tank and the Hermann Goering infantry shock divisions. Nazi warplanes bombed and strafed the Allies from airfields forty miles away. The Allies still held air supremacy, but the lack of nearby fields prevented their using short-range fighters.

The worst punishment of all was dealt by German artillery, long established in the hills fringing the sandy beaches. Their fire could be laid in any sector of the Fifth Army strip, and the whine and explosive crashes of 88-millimeter shells allowed the weary Americans and Britons no rest from battle.

The tall and lanky commander of the Fifth, Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. A., fought in the thick of the battle with his troops.

The tremendous effort made by the Germans on the ground and in the air bore out the widespread belief that Hitler was going to fight the battle of Europe in Italy. Fresh German troops swept toward Salerno from Marshal Erwin Rommel in northern Italy. Lacking strategic reserves, Hitler could only be drawing his planes and divisions from France and Russia.

The Nazis were launching counter-attack after counter-attack, seeking to dislodge the Allied infantry and tank units.

"The fighting is extremely heavy and it certainly is the bitterest land fighting encountered by an Allied landing force in this war," a military officer said.

EIGHTH ARMY GAINS

British Troops Take Cosenza, Bari, Drive Northward.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 14.—(AP) American and British troops fought hand to hand tonight with elements of three crack German divisions on the Salerno bridgehead as Field Marshal Albert Kesselring made a supreme effort to drive the Fifth army into the sea.

During the day and into the night Allied warships poured out everything from machine-gun bullets to shell fire to help protect the narrow beachhead extending 24 miles south of Salerno and the entire Fifth army was engaged in a grim battle.

Allied Reserves Arrive

The Mediterranean was alive with ships and planes as the Allies poured reserves into the Italian fighting under the direct supervision of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, the lanky commander of the Fifth army, and his staff were in the thick of the fray.

(A German radio broadcast recorded in London by the British Ministry of Information said Gen. Clark's army was made up of the 36th and 45th U. S. infantry divisions and the First U. S. tank division; the 46th and 56th British infantry divisions and a British tank division. Canadian elements—presumably of one of the British divisions—were reported "on the northern flank of the Allied bridgehead.")

British Troops Gain

One hundred miles to the south, the methodical Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery pushed his Eighth army with greater speed, passing Cosenza in a drive to effect a junction with Gen. Clark and take some of the tremendous pressure off the Fifth army. Bari as well as Cosenza had fallen.

The battle at Salerno was as bloody as the fighting at Gallipoli in the first World War.

The Allied communique said:

"Heavy fighting continues on the Fifth army front. The Germans are counter-attacking desperately and at certain points have regained some of the ground previously taken by us."

The extreme depth of the beachheads was six or seven miles at some places. The city of Salerno (pop. 77,000) remained in Allied hands.

The air was streaked with incessant dogfights as the Germans hurled more and more fighter-bombers into the battle. Allied planes, 150 miles from their nearest usable landing field, bombed roads and railways leading to Salerno, striving mightily to delay or prevent German reinforcements.

(A German broadcast declared Nazi tank formations had swept from the mountain heights before Salerno onto the coastal plains and were "engaged in breaking enemy resistance on the coasts of the sea." The enemy broadcast claimed that strong Allied detachments had been cut off from their landing points.)

Gen. Montgomery's Eighth army was beating swiftly up the Italian Mediterranean and Adriatic coasts "unchecked except by demolitions," Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

Cosenza Falls to British

Cosenza (pop. 40,000) is near the top of the Italian toe, 120 airline miles from the city of Salerno. It fell after a 10-mile British advance. Bari is on the Adriatic 112 miles across the southern Apennine mountains from Salerno. It was taken after a 65-mile sprint from Brindisi and its capture gave the Allies 125 miles of Adriatic coastline threatening the Balkans. Cosenza and Bari both are provincial capitals, the latter only 74 miles from Foggia and its cluster of important airdromes.

Gen. Montgomery's pace was rapid because southern Italy was only lightly defended. The rough nature of the country and the effective demolitions probably will prevent his joinning the Fifth army for a week or so, and the Fifth was under immediate, incessant pressure.

The bridgehead was on the Gulf of Salerno below the city. It was under continuous assault by the German 15th and 16th tank and the Hermann Goering infantry shock divisions. Nazi warplanes bombed and strafed the Allies from airfields 40 miles away. The Allies still held air supremacy but the lack of nearby fields prevented their using short-range fighters.

The worst punishment of all was dealt by German artillery, long established in the hills fringing the sandy beaches. Their fire could be laid in any sector of the Fifth army strip, and the whine and explosive crashes of 88-millimeter shells allowed the weary Americans and Britons no rest from battle.

Battle To The Finish

The tremendous effort made by the Germans on the ground and in the air bore out the widespread belief that Hitler was going to fight the battle of Europe in Italy. Fresh German troops swept toward Salerno from Marshal Erwin Rommel in northern Italy. Lacking strategic reserves, Hitler could only be drawing his planes and divisions from France and Russia.

Meanwhile, Allied sea strength was given a tremendous boost by the arrival of more Italian warships in the Malta harbor, bringing the total to 77. These included five battleships, eight cruisers, 27 destroyers, 19 submarines, a seaplane carrier, a dozen torpedo boats, six corvettes and other craft.

A delayed dispatch from Mark Watson, Baltimore Sun correspondent with the Fifth army, said German troops were far fram being beaten or even discouraged and were making counterattacks "without disturbing our firmly-anchored positions." His dispatch was sent Monday, covering action apparently referred to in today's communique.

Heavy, medium and light Allied bombers concentrated again on the web of highways and railways junctions around the Naples and Salerno area.

Pompei Bombed

The area of Pompei, destroyed in an eruption of Vesuvius in A. D. 79, was visited with modern damage by day and night attacks on its communications. Other targets were Torre del Greco on the Bay of Naples, German installations south of Salerno, railways and enemy transport in the Potenza and Auletta areas and in the Sala Consilina sector, 50 miles southwest of Salerno.

Three Allied planes were lost. The Allies shot down 13 enemy ships, including 10 of the 100 or so Nazi fighter-bombers over the Salerno battle. Pilots said the German fliers often were inexperienced.

The battle for Salerno was in its second expected crisis, the counter-attack phase which is inevitable after a landing. The climax was not yet.

The reference to Gallipoli, passed by Allied censors, referred to the ill-fated British attempt to take the Dardanelles from Turkey in 1915 during the first World war. The attack was beaten back and the British suffered 100,000 casualties and the Turks had about an equal number. The Gallipoli campaign was conceived by Winston Churchill.)

One officer at headquarters summed up the crucial fighting at Salerno in these words:

"The fighting is extremely heavy and it certainly is the bitterest land fighting encountered by an Allied landing force in this war."

R. A. F. Massed Planes.

It is known here now that the R. A. F. concentrated 500 Lightnings, Spitfires and Mustangs over the Salerno beaches Friday and that these pilots saw only 120 enemy planes. As late as Sunday the R. A. F. was able to fly 500 sorties over the area, but the nearest airfield now in Allied hands is some 150 miles away, as against the forty or fifty miles the Germans must fly to get to the battle area.

It is generally expected that it will take some time to get suitable fields in shape near the bridgehead. Meantime, Allied fighters can provide air cover only by using long-range planes. There is a good field in the Taranto area, on the Italian heel, now in Allied hands, but this is some 160 miles from Salerno. The R. A. F. considers an airfield eighty miles from the target ideal for fighter cover.

The best information here is that the Allies have been able to penetrate only six or seven miles inland from the Salerno beachheads, and this is considered the Americans Strive to Wrest High Ground From Germans—Attacks by Nazi Tanks Result in Confused Fighting.

By WILLIAM STONEMAN,

With the American Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 13 (Delayed).—Four and a half days after our landing, we are only not advancing today but are being pinned down by counter-attack and artillery barrage from an enemy who is obviously in a desperate situation with hundreds of miles of treacherous communications behind him and little hope of obtaining new supplies.

Our center is being attacked time and again by tanks and infantry which can never hope to see Germany again. The two battles they fought today with the advantage of holding the high ground and observation points eastward were conducted with the audacity of the men who sliced through Poland, Belgium and France.

We have got the stuff to beat them and we are going to do so. But we have got to hand it to them. They don't lick easily.

If anybody thinks this battle is a plain cinch and its results a foregone conclusion, he should have been with a group of correspondents who today came within an ace of meeting ten German Mark IV tanks at a spot where we thought we were advancing victoriously. Some unknown savior paused to wave us back before he ducked into the bushes.

Salerno Far Tougher Than Sicily; Beaches in Range of Nazi Guns

CHESTER

Distance That Protecting Planes Must Fly Hampers Allies.

London, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—Three-fold, related difficulties appear to be causing the stiff resistance the American and British are meeting in the Salerno area, where it is generally acknowledged the Allies are having a tougher fight than they ever had in North Africa or Sicily.

The three factors are:

The long distances planes must fly to protect the beachheads.

The difficulty of building up a heavy attacking force because of German ability to concentrate against a small area.

Consequent inability so far to push the Germans back far enough to get the beaches out of maximum penetration rather than the average. Thus the beaches still are within range of German guns.

Some military strategists consider the present phase one of the most difficult stages of any tough amphibious operation, because, although the beachheads are established, it is difficult to build up a sufficient attacking force when strong enemy opposition is able to concentrate on a few small, vital points.

Officials here had no comment whatsoever on the German claim that the Americans had pulled out of the Salerno area.

The British pushing up from the south appear to be entering a triangle roughly outlined by Cosenza, now taken; Taranto, and Salerno. It is believed that this area is not heavily defended, but the country is rough and suitable for delays through demolitions. Thus it is difficult to predict when the forces near Salerno can expect help from the south.

DNB Reports Breakthrough.

London, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—German tank formations driving down from the mountain heights have sliced to Salerno and the Italian coast, and "strong enemy detachments were cut off from their landing points," a DNB broadcast from Berlin asserted today.

A subsequent broadcast said the Germans had fought their way back into the city of Salerno in their drive.

"They are engaged in breaking enemy resistance on the coasts" in the bridgehead established by the American Fifth Army, the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said.

The attack was launched on the entire front from the mountains commanded by the Germans into the coastal plains, it added.

Another Nazi broadcast said British parachute troops which landed a few days ago near Castellamare on the Bay of Naples had been destroyed in a battle near Salerno.

Propagandists Backpedal.

After first saying the Allies were abandoning their Salerno bridgehead in Italy, the German propaganda machine swung around late today, saying, "It remains to be seen whether Clark (Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the American Fifth Army) considers the battle lost and is preparing a withdrawal of his forces."

In the face of both German statements, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, Allied headquarters in North Africa said fresh reserves of Allied troops were being poured into the bitter fight, and it was pointed out officially that the movement of ships back from Salerno after bringing in the reserves might have been the basis of the Nazi report of evacuation.

A Transocean broadcast recorded earlier today by the Associated Press had said that the Allies began a withdrawal from the Salerno sector yesterday afternoon and that the retreat was continuing today. Picturing the Salerno thrust as a bloody defeat for the American Fifth Army and companion British troops, Transocean said that the withdrawal by sea was being made in "complete disorder."

Even late today some Nazis continued to assert in their propaganda that "well-informed German circles" said the American Fifth Army had been "almost completely wiped out."

'Hold Line,' Clark Says —Allies Do

SEP 1943

With the U. S. Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 14 (AP).—Twenty-four tactical hours have passed and the Allied beachhead still stands intact. That may sound like a negative statement, but for those who have lived amid the developments of the past day that's saying a whole lot.

ments of the past day that's saying a whole lot.

Yesterday afternoon the Germans launched their attack. It has been hard and bitter fighting ever since. When I left the front shortly after 1 P. M., the situation was well in hand, although the Germans were pressing hard.

This has been a coordinated tank, artillery and infantry attack, or rather a series of attacks. It is perfect tank country and the Germans have all the observation posts, so it was not possible to hold them dead in their tracks.

Nazi Bomber Downed.

They found a hole and came down in it and it was nip-and-tuck all night. It was a dramatic night with a full moon and the air full of planes. We were bombed often but everybody in the beachhead rejoiced to see a German bomber come down in flames.

Daylight enabled many in the rear to gather confidence from the front, for it is always more alarming behind the lines than in them.

All morning we watched the troops in the lines. We took punishment from the artillery that ranged as heavy as 149 millimeters, but Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark had come along and he said that the line had to be held.

It has held for hours since and the Jerry is going to have to do a lot better if he wants to break it. In fact, the commander proudly reported that his artillery and anti-tank guns had destroyed or knocked out seven tanks this morning.

The New York Herald Tribune Correspondent Representing the Combined American Press. Distributed by the Associated Press.

With the American Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 13 (Delayed).—The fighting on the American sector of the Fifth Army front today has been a continuous struggle for the high ground now in the possession of the Germans.

All day long, there were attacks and counter-attacks along the roads leading to this high ground. During today's and yesterday's fighting of this type, the Americans have knocked out eighteen tanks, but their gains have been very slight.

The Germans have not thrown in mass tank attacks, but have adopted the tactic of moving down the roads with about a dozen tanks assisted by armored cars. These thrusts coming down from various directions have resulted in a confused, open type of warfare. At one point, the German tanks and armored cars suddenly over-ran the American infantry, but the Americans with artillery hit back quickly and repulsed the attack.

These encounters have recurred time and time again. A typical one was witnessed today by this correspondent. The Americans had sneaked toward the high ground in flat country on either side of a road. Lighter units were farther up the road. Everything was peaceful except for the artillery shelling of the enemy ahead. Horses and cows grazed near by.

Suddenly the word spread that German tanks were coming. This correspondent withdrew from the area between the opposing forces.

The German tanks had barged through the American infantry, but caught hell when they encountered the massed artillery. The tanks dodged through wooded areas and sneaked from one clump of trees to another. After a brisk encounter the enemy withdrew.

Allies Withstand Four Attacks

WITH THE 5TH ARMY AT THE FRONT LINES, Sept. 13 (Delayed).—The Germans launched four furious attacks against Allied positions today in the area around the junction of the Sele and Calore Rivers, but were hurled back.

In breaking the German attacks the Allies destroyed fourteen Nazi tanks and inflicted severe casualties on a group of Germon grenadiers.

The German commander evidentally was not aware of the full Allied strength and the Nazis hit first with a frontal blow and then followed with jabs from half a dozen points. Heavy Allied artillery fire blasted the assaults as the infantry peppered the grenadiers.

The German tanks not disabled by the accurate Allied artillery fire hid in the weeds, but waves of Allied planes dropped tons of bombs on them.

A group of Germans attempted to wade across the Sele River. Allied infantrymen held their fire until they "could see the whites of their eyes" and then let the Nazis have it. The entire group was shot.

A few minutes later another group of forty Germans, using the well known ruse of approaching our lines with white flags and then dropping them and attacking, were caught in the Allied crossfire and almost entirely wiped out.

The Germans are still striving to drive a wedge in the Allied line, but fresh troops line the highway for miles and are moving up to the front line.

With the Fifth American Army in Italy, Sept. 13 (Delayed).—German troops facing the British and American invasion forces, so far from being beaten or even discouraged, made several sharp counter-attacks today and without disturbing our firmly anchored positions, managed to make two small gains.

[This action may have been that referred to in the communique from Allied headquarters today which said the Germans gained ground at some points without specifying where or to what extent.]

These were approximately balanced by the minor gains our forces made during the day, and it is reasonable to expect that we will shortly expel the enemy from his new positions. At the same time it is well to understand that the enemy remains very tough and eager for a fight and is extremely competent in fighting without the aid of his former allies.

In both cases where his local successes were attained today it was by bold and skillful use of his tanks and artillery.

Fifth Army Holds, Dispatch Reports

By FRANK GILLARD
(Associated Press Correspondent)

Salerno, Italy, Sept. 13 (Delayed)—The Germans today are concentrating all available forces in an attempt to weaken our positions around Salerno Gulf and possibly drive us back onto the beaches.

Armored and other divisions attacked Allied troops north of Salerno yesterday.

Although the fighting is extremely stubborn, the United States Fifth Army is standing firm and is not only holding onto the beachhead but steadily building up its strength.

Enemy shell fire fails completely to prevent the flow of shipping on our beaches. There is no reason to be discouraged at the apparent slowness of the progress of this phase of the war.

Our troops have done magnificently and support from the air and sea has been superb throughout.

YANK POSITION 'PRECARIOUS,' BERLIN CLAIMS

Allies Withdrawing From Salerno With "Bloody" Losses, Nazis Report

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 14—The German radio claimed tonight that the American Fifth Army at Salerno "is in a very precarious position, with the Germans in the whole sector . . . holding the initiative firmly in their hands. . . .

Earlier the German radio had said the Allies were abandoning the Salerno bridgehead and withdrawing by sea.

Communique's Version

The day's German communique said:

"In the Salerno area, heavy battles are still in progress north of the city with American and British divisions which are defending themselves desperately. Enemy attacks against height positions to the south of Eboli (fifteen miles southeast of Salerno) have been bloodily repulsed after a hard fight and our troops in this part started an attack on a broad front.

"The enemy positions were taken and the enemy was thrown back to his landing places. Bloody losses of the British and the Americans are very severe."

Yanks Green, Nazis Say

The German Transocean propaganda agency, in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press, said the Americans "have had but little fighting experience" and are facing veteran German troops who were transferred to Italy from the Russian front.

The German radio said the withdrawal to the sea at first was irregular but now had "assumed major extent" and "there are several indications that the beaten Americans are in a rather demoralized condition and are fleeing toward the ships partly in absolute disorder. . . ."

Eighth Army "Slowed"

At the same time the Nazi radio claimed that the Germans were making the progress of the British Eighth Army, moving up from southern Italy, so slow that "it is hardly to be expected" it will arrive in time "to relieve the pressure on the American Fifth Army."

"The same holds good in regard to enemy forces landed at Taranto and Brindisi," the Berlin broadcast continued.

In a more detailed broadcast Transocean said later that the American Army at Salerno was "almost completely wiped out" and that the Allied troops had suffered heavy losses in men and material.

10,000 Claimed Killed

The Germans claimed the Americans had lost more than 10,000 killed since the battle started "and at least as many prisoners."

Since September 9, the Berlin radio related, German airmen have sunk three cruisers, one destroyer, one torpedo boat, "and a number of unspecified enemy warships" in the waters off Salerno. There was no confirmation or other comment from Allied headquarters on these claims.

The Germans said the American units fighting at Salerno included the Thirty-sixth and Forty-fifth Infantry Divisions, the First Tank Division and parts of the British Tenth Army Corps.

Canadians Reported At Salerno

The German Overseas agency said in a broadcast heard by Reuters tonight that Canadians were participating in the Salerno fighting.

This was the first mention from either side that the Canadians were involved in the battle. A Canadian tank brigade took part in the fighting in Sicily, but there had been no word of its disposition since the termination of the island campaign.

Canadian forces "on the northern flank of the Allied bridgehead," the German agency said, were encircled by a counter-attack and "now are exposed by heavy artillery fire on both flanks."

CITADEL OF BRYANSK GIVEN UP BY GERMANS

Berlin Admits Loss of Pivotal City—Red Army Gains 12 Miles West of Stalino —Makes New Stride Toward Kiev.

1943

London, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—The Germans announced the evacuation of the fortress city of Bryansk today, but the daily Russian communique made no mention of the city other than to say that "several populated places" were captured in the Bryansk sector.

The Berlin radio told of the withdrawal, which apparently unhinged the main Nazi defense line before the Dnieper River, shortly after Moscow reported that the Red Army was closing in on the almost completely encircled stronghold.

The Russian communique, broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor, indicated, however, that Soviet troops were chalking up gains all along the front.

Along the Sea of Azov, west of Stalino, the Russians were reported to have advanced twelve to fifteen miles and captured 150 inhabited localities, including the district center of Mangush, twelve miles west of Mariupol, which fell to the Soviets last week.

3 More Rail Stations Captured.

The Russians also announced the capture of five populated places and three railway stations, including Alexeyevskata, forty miles south of Kharkov, in their drive toward the Pavlograd. They said that Kunashovka, five miles east of the important town of Nezhin, had fallen to the forces driving directly on Kiev. This would place the Russians approximately seventy miles east of that Ukraine fortress on the Dnieper.

Bryansk had been a German communications center since 1941.

Nazis Lose Vital Rail Network.

Disruption of the Bryansk rail network vital for German winter transport heightened the belief in London that the backward-scurrying Nazis would not be able to halt their retreat now before reaching the west bank of the Dnieper.

The speed of their withdrawal toward Kiev and Dniepropetrovsk on the lower reaches of the river, where only three inadequate bridges and ferry crossings are available, raised hopes that large forces of Nazis might be trapped on the east bank of the Dnieper or even be overtaken while attempting to cross it.

[Increasing the speed of their advance, Russian forces are fighting through to Roslavl, about ninety miles northwest of Bryansk, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by NBC in New York. Red Army troops, the British report added, are marching on the town from four sides.]

Berlin Announces It First.

The German broadcast by DNB declared Bryansk (normal population 87,000) had been evacuated in good order, and the troops had not been encircled or injured to "a considerable degree."

Bryansk lies some eighty miles west of Orel. Its capture removes a bulge in the German line toward Moscow, and throws open the front from Smolensk southward to infiltration and flanking attacks by the Russians that may accelerate retrenchment of the whole enemy line.

From Bryansk, railroads radiate out to several key bastions in the next Nazi line of defense. One runs northwest to Smolensk, main supply base and headquarters of the whole central front. Another reaches southwest to Gomel, rail junction, where two lines cross the Sozh River tributary of the Dnieper. Still another line pushes deep into the Ukraine to Kiev overlooking the broad waters of the lower Dnieper.

Use of these railroads and their branches can be turned to reinforcing and suppling the advancing Red Army all up and down the Dnieper plains.

Fighting Inside Novorossisk.

Berlin also reported heavy street fighting at Novorossisk in the Kuban.

Upward of 2,000 German troops were slain in fierce fighting when Soviet spearheads fought their way through the intricate rail network on the east bank of the Desna to storm the outskirts of Bryansk across the river, the Russians declared in their earlier war bulletin.

Many prisoners were taken in this operation, and the Germans abandoned huge quantities of war supplies in their retreat to the high west bank of the Desna, the Moscow bulletin added.

IGNORE NAZI ADMISSION OF BRYANSK LOSS

Moscow Tells Only Of Fighting And Place Taken In That Sector

New Advance Puts Red Troops Three Miles From Nezhin

SEP 1 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, Sept. 15—The Russians announced today that Red army forces had swept fifteen miles nearer Dnieperopetrovsk and gained in other sectors, but ignored a German statement that Nazi forces already had abandoned Bryansk.

More than 4,300 Germans were killed and 1,000 captured in the fighting yesterday, said a communique broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor. Town after town fell to the Soviet offensive.

Towns Taken In South

Among towns listed as recaptured by the Russians were Federovka, Malaya Mikhailovka and Bogshays Mikhailovka.

Federovka is the name of two towns in the southern Ukraine, one fifty-five miles northwest of Mariupol and the other on the Crimean Railway north of Melitopol. The communique did not specify which of these was seized, but it evidently was the former.

[Editor's note: If the Federovka captured were the second, north of Melitopol, it would mean an advance of approximately one hundred miles to cut the Crimean Railroad.]

The Mikhailovka sister towns recaptured lie sixty-five miles west of Stalino, Russian-held steel city.

Fight In "Bryansk Sector"

Russian troops were said to have fought offensive engagements in the Bryansk sector and "captured several populated places," but there was no official mention by Moscow of the seizure of the strategic rail-junction city.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said Red army forces were storming Bryansk while the Nazis fought to gain time for their torch squads to fire or blow up everything that could not be moved.

The Russians were apparently making certain that they had the town of Bryansk securely in their grasp before making any announcement of its capture. Regarding the fighting in that area the communique said that the Red army troops "continued their offensive and captured several populated places."

"The enemy is offering desperate resistance and is throwing into action sapper battalions and auxiliary detachments," it said.

Nearer Dnieperopetrovsk

Meanwhile, in the central and northern Ukraine offensives, Soviet forces not only proached fifteen miles nearer Dnieperopetrovsk, but drove to within three miles of Nezhin, a rail station on the main line eighty miles northeast of Kiev. The communique declared that the Germans were retreating in disorder toward Kiev.

By some accounts it seemed the Soviet drive, already known to be within fifty miles of the Dnieper bend, might have pushed a new salient to less than thirty miles from the Dnieperopetrovsk escape bridge.

The communique listed the capture of Andreevka, which is located on the Samara river twenty-five miles northwest of Pavlograd and twenty-eight miles northeast of Dnieperopetrovsk. The Samara is a tributary of the Dnieper.

Aided By Marine Landings

The Russian drive in the south appeared to have been supported by multiple landings by Soviet marines along the Sea of Azov coast. The communique described two such landings, apporently in the area of Mariupol and Berdyansk.

The communique said that in fighting on various sectors, 4,300 enemy officers and men were killed and 1,000 were captured. Eighty-six German tanks were destroyed and four were captured, it said. Sixty-four guns were reported destroyed and 105 guns captured.

The Red army said to have destroyed 178 trucks and wagons and captured 1,032 trucks, wagons, horses, carts and railway trucks.

Gain West Of Stalino

A gain of from twelve to fifteen miles was claimed west of Stalino, where more than 150 inhabited places, including eight large towns, fell to the Soviet advance.

Similar progress was claimed along the shores of the Sea of Azov, with the capture of the district center of Mangush, twelve miles west of Mariupol, and in the Kharkov and Nezhin sectors.

Although the Soviets did not claim the capture of Bryansk, today's German broadcast told with great detail of the Nazis' withdrawal. The Germans declared they had evacuated the city in good order after stripping it of military stores and installations.

The capture of Bryansk would be the greatest Russian victory since Kharkov fell August 2.

Hinge Of German Front

Bryansk is the hinge of the whole German front, and its fall would give the Red army a strong base from which to close the trapdoor on Smolensk from the south or to broaden their attack upon the weak middle Dnieper defenses upriver from Kiev.

"The city of Bryansk, which first became known in this war by the great twin battle of Vyazma and Bryansk in the autumn of 1941, in the course of which German troops surrounded and captured several Soviet armies with their entire materiel, was evacuated by the Germans during Monday night," the German broadcast said.

challenged everywhere by Italian soldiers.

"Fierce fighting has occurred in Belgrade. Two thousand Italian soldiers are in the mountains of Montenegro where they are fighting against the Germans. The Balkans are seething with unrest and fighting."

Report Ex-Duce Is in Cremona.

German radio broadcasts concurred in the report that Mussolini had been "liberated" by the Nazis, but they were in striking variance as to his present whereabouts. He was most commonly reported to be in Cremona with Roberto Farinacci, former Secretary of the Fascist party, and Marshal Erwin Rommel.

A Daily Mail editorial called for a rigorous inquiry by Allied military leaders into the circumstances of Mussolini's escape and said that the fact he is no longer a prisoner "is a first-class example of Italian futility."

DUCE RENOUNCES HOUSE OF SAVOY

chapter in the confusing stream of narrations on the recent adventures of the No. 1 Fascist.

In announcing Mussolini's new role, the Nazis said he had sought to cancel Italy's surrender to the Allies and had decreed an end to the rule of the House of Savoy.

(A diplomat in Bern said it was expected that Mussolini's declaration rejecting the House of Savoy and formally announcing his new regime would be issued within two days.)

Duce Held on Plateau

The addition to the story of Mussolini's activities since his deposition came via the Berlin radio when it told the world that Mussolini had been held on a 9,500-foot plateau in the mountainous Abruzzi e Molise department east of Rome.

One third of the German soldiers employed in releasing him "fell into an abyss and have not been seen since," it was reported. "How many are still living is not known at the present."

This narration, recorded by the Associated Press, topped a long series of almost unconnected tales concerning withdrawal of the ponderous-jawed Mussolini from Italian custody to the protective wing of Adolf Hitler.

Reports filtered across Italy's borders, however, that the rebirth of Fascism had not been well received in that embattled country.

Street Fighting in Rome

The Italian army reportedly was solidly against Mussolini, and the United Nations radio at Algi said bitter opposition to the mans was spreading all over with many outbreaks of fighti the streets of Rome itself.

The whereabouts of Mus object of what the Nazis des as a spectacular "rescue" by man parachute troops two ago, remained an enemy secret. The German radio said further announcements about the new Fascist government would come from Mussolini himself.

The same broadcast declared that Edda Ciano, wife of the former Italian foreign minister and ambassador to the Vatican, Count Galeazzo Ciano, was with Mussolini's family. It denied, however, that Ciano was on his way to Rome to join the new Fascist government.

"Apart from everything else, the events which occurred in the last session of the Fascist Grand Council make it impossible for Ciano to London, Sept. 14 (A. "Bitter opposition to the presence of the German forces in Italy is spreading all over the country," Radio Algiers reported in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press. "In the Balkans, too, German troops have been hold any post in the Fascist government or party," the German broadcast said.

This was the first indication that Mussolini's son-in-law had incurred the active displeasure of the Germans, with whom he formerly was a notable collaborator. The broadcast said it was not certain that Ciano did not accompany Premier Pietro Badoglio in the latter's German-reported flight to Sicily.

In addition to Mussolini, the Germans were claiming to have "rescued" several other prominent officials of the former Italian Government, including Gen. Attilio Teruzzi, who was Mussolini's Minister of Colonies.

The Nazi broadcast said Gen. Teruzzi was saved only a few hours before he was to have been shot by Badoglio's order.

Black Shirts Again In Power

Swiss dispatches from the Italian frontier indicated that Mussolini's Fascist Black Shirts had gone over wholeheartedly to the Germans in the areas occupied by the Nazis. A Swiss editor said he saw Black Shirt patrols guarding the rail lines through the strategic Brenner Pass between Italy and Germany.

FIGHTER-BOMBERS HIT NAZI SHIPPING

Enemy Convoy Attacked Off Cherbourg, Four Vessels Damaged.

LONDON, Sept. 14 — (AP) The Allied air campaign against the continent from Britain gathered momentum again today with attacks for the second day in a row by squadrons of Typhoon fighter-bombers on shipping off Holland and a foray across the English channel at dusk by medium bombers.

In a Typhoon attack, a New Zealand squadron roared in at sea level in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire from the shore and ships to attack a small enemy convoy off Cherbourg. They set afire a tug which was left sinking as was 1,000-ton naval auxiliary vessel. Two small escort vessels were damaged.

Two coastal vessels and a harbor launch were set afire and sunk in a sweep among the islands off the Dutch coast by another squadron which also damaged three large barges and a tug.

A formation of Spitfires damaged a coastal vessel off Dunkerque. None of the Allied planes was lost in these operations.

With similar forays Saturday and yesterday, the score was brought to four enemy craft sunk and 27 set afire or otherwise damaged.

The target for the dusk raid by medium bombers — the first since Saturday — appeared to coastal observers to be northern France or Belgium.

The operations followed a brief lull in air warfare after an eight-day, nonstop, round-the-clock bombing drive which ended Thursday.

BRITISH REPORTED ON SPITSBERGEN

SEP 14 1943

London, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—The British have landed new forces on the Norwegian Island of Spitsbergen, above the Arctic Circle, following the German hit and run raid of September 8, according to a DNB report broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press.

The German report, which indicated that the British have control of the island, said that five British destroyers reached Barentsburg at dawn yesterday and brought guns ashore.

The Germans said their naval attack wrecked harbor installations and the weather station, but did not mention the fate of the handful of Norwegians who garrisoned the barren outpost.

Tokio Exchange Ship Sails

The Teia Maru Leaves Yokohama With 1,250 Americans

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP). — The Berlin radio quoted advices from Tokio as saying that the Japanese exchange ship Teia Maru sailed from Yokohama today loaded with Americans who have been in Japanese hands since Pearl Harbor. The vessel is expected to arrive at the exchagne port of Mormugao, in Portuguese India, about the middle of October, said the broadcast.

[The exchange liner Gripsholm sailed from New York on Sept. 2 with 1,330 Japanese civilians who are being repatriated, and was expected to pick up 173 more at Rio de Janeiro. The resolution will also seek powers to establish air lines between any countries or places, to build, buy or charter aircraft of all kinds and to construct and maintain airfields and stations.

The Cunard Steamship Company announced recently that it will ask similar powers from its shareholders at a meeting at Liverpool Sept. 27.

British Cotton Industry Faces Labor Problem

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP).—With no surplus stocks on hand and faced with the most serious labor shortage since war began, productive capacity of the cotton industry is being severely taxed to meet heavy consumer requirements, Tattersalls reported today. The monthly review of cotton described output in the last thirty days as "very irregular" and noted all new goods were being quickly carried into consumption.

Meanwhile the Minister of Labor, after studying the situation regarding workers, acted to recruit at least 20,000 more women for work in spinning mills. The governmental agency ordered all women between the ages of eighteen and fifty-five who were employed in the cotton industry any time since 1935 to register under a special plan designed to take as many as needed out of present jobs and put them back in mills. Thousands of women left cotton mills for munitions work and other war jobs.

Willkie's 'One World' Is Denmark's Best Seller

Stockholm, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—Wendell Willkie's "One World" has been translated into Danish and is being distributed by the Free Danish underground for 10 kroner a copy ($2.70 at pre-war exchange rates). It is currently Denmark's best seller, refugees reaching Sweden reported today.

NINTH ARMY MOVES

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 14 — (AP) The British Ninth army, long stationed in the Near East, has embarked for an "unknown destination," the Budapest correspondent of the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said today, quoting reports from Ankara.

The correspondent said that "in the last few days the liveliest shipping activity has been observed off the Syria and Palestine coasts."

PIUS XII REPORTED A VIRTUAL CAPTIVE

Berne, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—A dispatch from Chiasso on the Swiss-Italian border to the newspaper Der Bund said today that Catholics were concerned with the fate of Pope Pius XII, who was reported to be virtually a prisoner of Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring. It added that the German troops so far had respected the neutral territory of Vatican City.

The dispatch said that when the Allies begin their march northward "one must certainly suppose that German forces will be concentrated around Rome and will fight to the last."

The newspaper said Catholics were discussing the possibility that the Pope might leave the Vatican if Rome becomes a battleground.

The cardinals and other high churchmen in Rome were said to have withdrawn into the Vatican when the Germans occupied the capital. Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Secretary of State, conferred with the German Minister, the border dispatch said.

GERMAN CHILDREN FIND HAVEN IN SWITZERLAND

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 14 — (AP) The arrival of 500 German children in Switzerland for a bomb-free vacation led the Berner Tagwacht to express the hope today that the "country receiving them would have a better experience than did Norway."

During the last war, the newspaper recalled, Norway sheltered undernourished German children who became in 1940 the first line of Nazi troops invading Norway.

[Troo]ps North It[aly] ss-Italian Frontier, .).—Fascist militia[men] their old uniforms, day on the Swiss[-Italian] where they assumed their former duties, as the terror of a miniature civil war was said to have broken out in some northern Italian cities.

The newspaper Corriere del Tigino of Lugano reported that in "a terrible moment of Italian history," bloody encounters between Fascists and anti-Fascists, especially in Milan, Turin and Bologna, are usually decided in favor of the Fascists by the intervention of the German Army.

Only sporadic resistance, the newspaper added, was apparently offered by the Italian troops to the Germans as they occupied northern Italy, city by city, restoring the Fascists to power. In a frontier dispatch the newspaper said that all Italian resistance to the Germans appeared on the point of collapse.

Blackshirts Emerge From Hiding.

The Fascists, in hiding since the fall of Mussolini seven weeks ago, have emerged to don their blackshirt uniforms and resume their functions. The Fascist press was reported publishing again with Fascists in the editorial chairs recently assigned to anti-Fascists. In German occupied cities Fascist headquarters were reopened with Fascists taking power "with or without the consent of the people."

The Swiss telegraphic agency declared in a dispatch from Chiasso that German reports of popular demonstrations of joy in Italy on the liberation of Benito Mussolini are not confirmed.

The dispatch added that all of northern Italy, including Como and Varese, are now controlled by the Germans but that it appeared that the north was held by small detachments while Marshal Rommel moved the bulk of his forces south in the direction of [Ge]noa, Bologna and the Po River line..

NAZIS TO RETREAT BEYOND DNIEPER, DISPATCHES HINT

Spanish Correspondent Says Germans Must Shift Troops to Other Fronts.

MADRID, Sept. 14 — (AP) The Germans fear that concentration of their forces in other war theaters—which include Italy—may force the Nazi High command to abandon its plans to halt the Russian offensive on the line of the Dnieper river, a Spanish dispatch from Berlin said tonight.

Spanish correspondents in the German capital compared the Salerno action to the Gallipoli campaign of World war I. They praised the German maneuvers in the Naples area at length and then turned to news from the Russian front.

Berlin Reports Evacuation

Although the German news agency declared, without Allied confirmation, that British and American forces had abandoned the Salerno-Licosa bridgehead and re-embarked under the protection of the British fleet, the German-announced "evacuation" of Bryansk led to remarkable comments from the Reich capital.

Referring to the Soviet army's approach to the Dnieper, the Berlin correspondent of a Madrid evening newspaper wrote that "nobody can consider it strange that we ask just where the German command plans to advance."

Some German writers, he said, talked about the Dnieper line. He added that such a line "would mean abandoning a great part of the Ukraine, and above all, the Crimea, which would become so magnificent a plane carrier for attacks on the Rumanian oil region less than two hours from Sevastopol."

The correspondent wrote that what worries people in Berlin "is to think that the concentration of German divisions in other theaters of war may oblige the command to disregard counter measures to hold the Russian steamroller."

Heretofore official dispatches from Germany have emphasized the failure of the Allies to worry Germany sufficiently to draw troops and material from the Russian front. Now it appears that the Italian invasion forced Germany to dig deep into her reserves.

Allied Landing At Salerno Bitterly Contested By Nazis

Correspondent Writes Italian Armistice Was No Help. Germans Met Troops With Land, Air Artillery Fire

By ALFRED WAGG
[Associated Press Correspondent]

Aboard Flagship of Allied Amphibious Forces, Sept. 9 (Delayed). While the radios this morning were announcing the celebration in Times Square of the Italian armistice, a great force of British and American troops was being subjected to air and land artillery fire that made Sicily seem like a girls' Sunday-school picnic.

As the northern portion of the invasion force passed the famed Isle of Capri last night, when the first news of the armistice was being received, we got our first air attack and, though weak, it forecast quite definitely what the beaches had in store for us.

Just after dark we entered the Gulf of Salerno and were greeted by flares from aircraft and more raids. A few minutes later shore batteries from Sorrento tried to range the ships, but fell short. This, coming on top of the radio-reported armistice, made it obvious that the Germans intended to fight to the finish.

Artillery On Hills Opens Up

As midnight passed and day began, this flagship and landing craft approached only to have the shore batteries break the ice of our supposed welcome with heavy shelling from the heights behind the beaches which reach upward 4,000 feet.

So, before the hour was over, the element of surprise was no more and this outfit faced the enemy who waited to help celebrate "the armistice."

The zero hour of our attack this morning was set for 3.30. At the appointed time of 3.15, the naval bombardment was focused a few miles south of Salerno, where sandy terrain and sharply receding beaches appeared perfect for landing. The bombardment, though reduced in amount on account of the armistice, still helped to draw shore fire, thus revealing the battery positions.

Shells From Ships Cleared Way

Shells from specially appointed ships burst along the first line of enemy defenses, which included barbed-wire entanglements, fortified trenches and heavily concreted pillboxes.

The troops were embarked, and several British units arrived right behind the terrifying wave of explosives, which cleared the way over limited fronts. The First British troops in this sector, where by day we can see people in the streets of Palermo through binoculars, set foot ashore at 3.50 o'clock.

As the troops sprang ashore, rifle and machine-gunning echoed along the beaches. Waves of assault craft hit the beaches successfully with increasingly bigger stuff following along.

Landing Craft Dodge Fire

As in Sicily, small landing craft hit the beaches first. After sappers cut a mine-free route across the beach, the enemy gunnery increased. The hitch here has been our inability to get larger landing ships ashore and the small craft which have been spending the morning ferrying troops, are dodging the fire of enemy land batteries.

This sector has been the toughest yet. It was uncertain in the first hours whether our troops could establish themselves firmly. The lack of communications later was found to have been due to bomb damages to radios.

With daylight, reports began to indicate that our troops ashore were getting a hold on this slice of lowland which lies like a horse shoe between the mountain background and the southward terrain.

Navy Reserves Praised

Today's outstanding effort has been the absolute fearlessness of the United States Navy Volunteer Reserves, who put their ships straight forward onto the beaches, raked every minute by artillery fire from the hill country beyond.

A landing craft carrying tanks was dive-bombed twice on her way to the beach. When she hit shallow water she stuck aground and had to arrange pontoons for bridging the gap between the beach and her ramp. I watched salvo after salvo splatter her decks with shell fragments. About thirty minutes ago I watched this same craft leave the beach.

The climax thus far came when the Germans pushed the center of our invading line back onto "green beach." Then at 1.11 P. M. British troops were thrown back onto the beaches.

Four British destroyers were thrown into action, checking the shore batteries, while reserve troops were rushed ashore just in time to stop the German thrust which threatened to cut our forces in two.

The first day ends with the thrust ashore continuing after the morning delay.

Gun Crew Saved Beachhead

Soldiers From Brooklyn and New Jersey Are Cited for Heroism at Salerno.

With the American Army in Italy, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—To a New Jersey corporal and a Brooklyn private went a share today of the credit for saving the original American beachhead from being cut to pieces.

They were Corporal Arthur Lloyd of 77 River street, East Rutherford, N. J., and Private Harry Bodzin of 74 East 55th street, Brooklyn, who with a lieutenant and two other enlisted men shot it out with thirteen German tanks on the day the Fifth Army came ashore in Italy. Three enemy tanks were destroyed by the five men, and they were credited with helping to knock out two others.

The Americans had been ashore a few hours when the Germans sent a tank column against them. The lieutenant and his five men were bringing their 75mm. self-propelled gun up a road when the Mark IV tanks met them alone on the road.

Stood Fast with Gun.

The gun crew remained alone in the center of the road, pumping shells at the Germans, who continued to approach from three sides. German shell and machine gun fire rained about them.

But the crew held their ground until additional anti-tank weapons arrived an hour later to help drive of the Germans.

In an official dispatch, their commanding officer, Capt. Wiley Stem of Waco, Tex., said the men displayed "conspicuous and extreme bravery under fire."

Lieut. John Whitaker, 18 years old, of Fort Worth, Texas, was in charge of the gun crew and the two other enlisted men were Sergt. Seth Gross of Caldwell, Texas, and Private Camello J. Cameniti of Cincinnati.

Tanks Knocked Out on Barges.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—Eight United States tanks — survivors of a terrific hail of fire from German 88-millimeter guns encountered before they even got ashore—fought their way up the beaches of the Gulf of Salerno and had a big role in beating off the first German counter-attacks on the American beachhead a few hours after the landings on September 9.

Two of the units' tanks were knocked out aboard the tank landing craft by the 88's fire and two more were lost on the shore. The others rallied by 7 A. M. and rolled on to the little town of Albanella, destroying three tanks, one pillbox, and one ammunition truck en route. The outfit also captured two German tanks in good condition.

Capt. Martin J. Peterson of Kansas City, Mo., was blown out of his tank turret when a German shell pierced the side of the landing craft and then the tank itself. The shell killed two others of the tank's crew, wounded another two and killed several sailors. When it was obvious that the flames were out of control another tank pushed the blazing hulk into the sea.

Three men distinguished themselves in rescue work. Sergt. Raymond Geibel of Pittsburgh, Pa., went into the flaming tank twice to pull out the wounded. Sergt. Carmen Guarino of New York city, and Pfc. Thomas Wetherwood of Bayville, Ore., assisted him.

Also praised for coolness and courage was Staff Sergt. John Duigman of New York city, who ignored the intense shelling to drag several wounded men to safe places on the beach.

Nazis Use Sicily Remnants

FIFTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Salerno Area, Italy, Sept 13 (Delayed). — Some German units smashed by the Canadian in Sicily have been reconstituted and rushed into the line against the Anglo-American bridgehead in this area. Those "ghost formations," built around a nucleus of the battered remnants which were evacuated from Messina, were flung against advancing Allied units in a desperate effort to prevent exploitation of our bridgehead.

The effort failed against the quickly mounted Anglo-American defense line sealing the bridgehead.

How Mussolini Went to Jail in An Ambulance

Italian Officer in Salerno Tells Story of Downfall to an American Reporter

The following vivid account of Mussolini's downfall was written three days before the Nazis announced that they had freed him from an unnamed prison:

By Don Whitehead

SALERNO, Italy, Sept. 9 (Delayed) (AP).—Benito Mussolini ended his spectacular career as Italy's dictator a tired, beaten, rather comical figure riding to prison in the back seat of an ambulance.

His son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, former foreign minister, was made a virtual prisoner in a Rome apartment, while his pro-Nazi daughter, Edda, wept hysterically over the collapse of her playhouse.

For Mussolini the end came swiftly on the night of July 25. He was taken into custody by a mere captain of carabinieri as he walked from villa Savoia after a conference with King Victor Emmanuel III. The captain was polite but firm in insisting that Il Duce step into the ambulance—so coolly insistent that Mussolini acquiesced without a struggle.

This was the story told me today by a young Italian naval officer just returned from Rome, and vouched for by his superior officer. They were both surprised that the outside world had not heard it before.

[The Berlin radio on Sept. 9 broadcast its version of Mussolini's downfall, declaring he was "dragged by brute force" from the royal palace, strapped to a stretcher and spirited away in an ambulance. His removal, the broadcast asserted, was the result of a secretly planned coup d'etat by the King and Marshal Pietro Badoglio.]

He told me the story while standing on the main street of Salerno a few hours after German troops had been driven from the outskirts of the city. "I swear every word is true," he said. "Every one will know the story sooner or later, so I might as well tell you. All Rome knows it by now."

The Officer's Story

On the night of July 24 the Italian Senate met to consider the country's military and political future. There were long speeches, arguments and discussions lasting through the night into the next day.

Roberto Farinacci, perhaps the most rabid of all Fascists, led the Fascist minority. Dino Grandi, former Ambassador to Britain, championed the anti-Mussolini majority.

"Farinacci made an impassioned plea to place Italy's entire military and political future into the hands of the Germans," said my informant. "He said the Germans were strong and would restore Fascism to its former glory, and that this was the only hope to save the deteriorating political and military situation."

To this Mussolini and the Senate said no.

Then Grandi made an equally impassioned plea. He spoke for several hours, setting forth the view of those clamoring against Fascism, against Mussolini and against German domination of Italy. He read a proclamation which would place the country's military and political future in the hands of the King.

To Grandi's proposal, Mussolini said no. Five Senators said no. Nineteen said yes. Count Giacomo Suardo, president of the Senate, voted neither no nor yes.

As these men left the Palazzo Venezia, nineteen turned and walked one way. Six, including Mussolini, walked in the opposite direction. The man who voted neither no nor yes strolled away alone.

Gets Call From the King

Ordinarily, the naval officer continued, Mussolini visited the King on Mondays and Thursdays for conferences. But on this day, Sunday, he received an urgent call that the King wished to see him immediately.

So Mussolini hurried to the Villa Savoia. This time, for some reason, he had a stronger guard accompanying him. He hurried from the automobile into the palace while the bodyguard waited outside. He was closeted with the King for several hours.

Meantime, after the decisive defeat in the Senate, Farinacci went to the German commander in Rome, and a few hours later was on his way to Germany, dressed in the uniform of a captain in the German army. A few days later over the Munich radio Farinacci pleaded with the Italian people to trust the Germans because they would restore Fascism and Italian glory.

When Mussolini concluded his conference with the King, he came out the door and walked to where he had left his automobile and special guards. His car was not there. An ambulance stood in its place with a carabinieri captain at the wheel, my informant said, appeared startled. The carabinieri captain stepped forward and saluted.

"I think, your excellency," he said, "this automobile is more suitable for your safety than the other one."

"Nonsense," Il Duce snapped. He looked about and saw only royal police. "What is the meaning of this?"

"Well, sir," said the young captain, "I must tell you this car is much better than the other."

Mussolini looked into the eyes of the determined, insistent young captain, and what he saw there made him give a shrug of resignation.

"Mussolini stepped to the door of the ambulance," the officer concluded, "and the captain opened it. Inside were four big, handsome carabinieri. Mussolini stepped in. The door was shut. The ambulance drove off the grounds—through the rear gate—to prison."

19 SUBMARINES JOINING ALLIES

NORGAARD

27 Italian Destroyers Also Now Accounted For.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—The Allied Naval Command announced today that a total of nineteen Italian submarines have now reached Allied ports in safety or are due to arrive shortly, and that a total of 27 destroyers of the Italian fleet have been accounted for.

An official naval statement gave the following recapitulation of the situation regarding the late arrivals with the notation that "the Italian fleet is scrupulously honoring the engagement entered into by the Italian Government."

"1. Apart from four Italian battleships and six cruisers whose names were given two days ago as having arrived at Malta, the battleship Giulio Cesare and the seaplane carrier Giuseppe Miraglia have now reached the island. It was quite unknown officially that the Giulio Cesare was fit for sea and it still is unknown here if she can be considered fully efficient as a fighting unit. She was refitted at Trieste and made the voyage to Malta via Taranto.

Giulio Cesare Described.

"2. The Giulio Cesare is a sister ship to the Andrea Doria and the Caio Dulio. She is a ship of about 25,000 tons, built before the last war and reconstructed in 1937-38. With a designated speed of 27 knots, she mounts ten 12.6-inch guns, twelve 4.7-inch and numerous smaller weapons. She was one of the ships damaged by the torpedo attack of the fleet air arm on Taranto in 1940.

"3. The Giuseppe Miraglia is an ex-passenger steamer of about 5,000 tons displacement, taken up after the last war and converted into a seaplane carrier. She has catapults forward and aft, is said to carry four large and sixteen smaller planes and has facilities for repairs.

"4. In addition to the six cruisers mentioned by name as having arrived at Malta, two light cruisers of the Regolo class are accounted for. These are vessels of about 4,000 tons completed in 1941. They have a reputed speed of 41 knots and are armed with eight 5.3-inch guns and various smaller weapons.

Other Craft Accounted For.

5. At least fourteen Italian submarines accounted for was the number given two days ago. The number in Allied ports or expected there now totals at least nineteen, though full details are not yet available.

"6. Some twenty-seven Italian destroyers, large and small, are now accounted for, together with twelve torpedo boats, six corvettes, one auxiliary cruiser and various small craft. The Italian hospital ship Toscana also arrived at an Allied port and various merchant ships are on their way.

"7. The Italian fleet is scrupulously honoring the engagement entered into by the Italian Government."

M. Ponton was a member of the official mission to Martinique and is known as a De Gaullist.

BALKANS SAID TO PASS UNDER NAZI CONTROL

HEINZERLING

Cairo Reports They Take Over Dalmatia, Greece From Italians

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Sept. 14—The best information from the Balkans today is that the Germans have the situation under control despite the great confusion caused by the Italian armistice, and will have to be pried out of their positions by Allied force.

The Germans are reported moving into the Dalmatian coastal areas and the positions in Greece held previously by the Italians.

While their position was made difficult by the collapse of Italy and the urge of most Italian troops to return home, they are reported to have moved swiftly to maintain the upper hand.

Italian Troops Divided

There are reports that some Italian troops in the Balkans apparently are seeking to cooperate with the Germans, but this move was apparently designed to assure their future rations.

Other Italians are said to be approaching the patriots in Greece and Yugoslavia in the hope of receiving ammunition to fight their former ally, but the main thought seems to be in finding the means to return to Italy.

With the onset of winter not far distant, it was reported here that the guerrilla forces in northern Yugoslavia and the troops of Gen. Draja Mihailovic in the southern part of the country were awaiting the signal to strike.

37-Mile Strip Liberated

The British radio quoted a special communique broadcast by the Yugoslav freedom radio as saying Yugoslav patriots had "liberated the Croatian coast between Susak and Senj" (a thirty-seven-mile strip) and captured a number of Italian ships in addition to encircling the port of Spalato, largest harbor in Dalmatia.

The British broadcast quoted the communique as adding: "The large Dalmatian islands of Brac, Hvar and Mljet have also been taken. In Slovena, the patriots have occupied the province of Ljubljana (Lublyana), with the exception of the capital, and have taken five other towns. The patriots have taken the arms from two Italian divisions and partially also from a third. In Montenegro, the patroits are holding out against the Germans."

North Adriatic Retaken

CBS Correspondent Howard K. Smith in Bern said the communique "pointed out that this brought virtually the whole north Adriatic coast under Partisan control." Smith said the Partisan high command in Slovenia reportedly had received one hundred per cent. response to a call for the general mobilization of the male population.

The Nazi version, as broadcast from Berlin and quoted by the British radio, told of populations in numerous Dalmation towns organizing street fighting "in the Russian manner." This British broadcast added that the Nazis "were claiming the capture of General Rossi, commander in chief of the Italian forces in the Balkans, by a German Panzer force."

WILL NOT FIGHT REDS

ISTANBUL, Sept. 14—(AP) A report reaching here said today that Prince Cyril, new regent of Bulgaria, had informed the Germans that Bulgarian forces would oppose American and British landings in southeastern Europe, but would not fight should the Russians reach their nation first.

TURKEY REPLIES TO RED CRITICISM

KLH SEP 11 10

Newspaper Editorial Sharply Retorts to Moscow Article on Neutrality.

ANKARA, Sept. 14.—(AP) Misunderstanding and bad feelings between Soviet Russia and neutral Turkey flared openly today as the newspaper Aksam attacked a Soviet magazine article which had declared Turkey's neutrality favored Germany.

The Russian magazine, "War and the Working Class," had complained that "if Ankara would depart from the neutrality which is favoring Germany the inevitable catastrophe for Germany would be accelerated."

The Askam editorial retorted sharply:

"Turkey is proud of the political road she has chosen. She has gained the admiration of the entire world, except perhaps Russia."

To a statement that "Soviet opinion is following with attention the present foreign policy of Turkey and studying events in order to establish its relation with this policy," the Turkish newspaper replied:

"It is easy to say that Turkey's neutrality is to the advantage of Germany and to want to push Turkey into the war, but difficult to perceive who would be favored if we left our neutrality and even more, where and how Turkey would enter the war and against whom she would direct her invasion Soviet Russia had to enter the war in self-defense. Turkey's loyal policy during the hard war has been a most solid wall of security for Russia."

Reds Say Hitler Is Playing For Time in Italy Battles

Assert He Lacks Forces to Check Allied Offensive

MOSCOW, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Soviet Army newspaper "Red Star" advanced the opinion today that the Germans lack sufficient forces to check the Allies in Italy.

"Hitler is attempting to gain time, hoping to organize a defense in northern Italy to halt the offensive of the Allied troops, but he does not have forces enough to carry out this intention," the newspaper declared. It estimated the Nazi forces in the Naples region at "two or three divisions."

"Red Star" said the Russian summer offensive had radically reduced German reserves and "now the Hitlerites are forced to shift new divisions West to East."

"Withdrawal of the Germans from the Donets Basin and the breach of the German defenses in the Ukraine are increasing pressure on the German reserves," it asserted. "These factors simplify the problem of the defeat of German troops on the Continent by the Allies.

BURMA RAILROADS HIT

New Delhi, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—Medium bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force yesterday attacked the railroad and river ferry terminal at Sagaing, Burma, blasting the sidings, rolling stock and docks, a headquarters communique said today. Bombs also were dropped on enemy barracks at Lonkin in Northern Burma and fires were started, destroying several of the buildings.

R. A. F. Beaufighters patrolled the Irrawaddy River and the Arakan coast in the Ramree Island section striking at river craft. Troop positions east of Maugdaw were dive-bombed by Vengeances. Hurricanes machine-gunned Jap Army huts north of Rathedaung.

The R. A. F. disclosed that attacks last week on sampans on the Mayu River near Kwazon sank thirty-eight craft and killed a large number of Jap troops.

CHINESE CREW SEIZES JAPANESE CARGO SHIP

CHUNGKING, Sept. 13—(Delayed)—(AP) A mutiny in which 18 Chinese seamen wiped out the Japanese officers and crew of the transport Mia Maru and delivered her and her cargo to Chinese authorities was disclosed today with the announcement that the Chinese seamen were awarded the Kwang-Husa (Glorify China) medal.

A Central News agency dispatch said the Mia Maru formerly flew the Panamanian flag, and was seized by the Japanese following the outbreak of war in the Pacific. The 18 Chinese members of the crew were forced by the Japanese to continue working on the Mia Maru after it was converted into a transport plying between Hong Kong, Hainan island and Singapore.

CHINA ACCUSES REDS

Chungking, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—The Kuomintang Central Executive Committee concluded its eleventh plenary session yesterday with a resolution accusing the Chinese Communist party of subversive activities and expressing the hope that it would "refrain from committing acts undermining national unity and obstructing the prosecution of the war."

The resolution also called upon the communists to redeem the pledge made September 22, 1937, to abandon the communist movement and dissolve the Chinese Soviet Government and disband the Red Army.

DEFENSES AT LAE CRUSHED BY ALLIES

Two Strongpoints Captured in Drive on Jap Base on New Guinea.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, Sept. 15 — (AP) The bulk of the Japanese garrison routed from the air and shipping base of Salamaua, New Guinea, has been destroyed and the small scattered groups which got away into the jungles face certain annihilation, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Another triumph of even greater proportions seemed in the making at Lae, 18 miles above captured Salamaua, as enemy strongholds crumbled before the weight of forces above and behind that big air base.

Enemy Routed at Salamaua

"At Salamaua the enemy is completely routed and his forces destroyed," today's communique said.

"Only small scattered groups remain, fleeing in hills and jungles many miles northwest of Salamaua itself (in the general direction of Lae).

"Their eventual annihiliation is certain.

"Quantities of the enemy equipment, including heavy and field artillery were captured."

How many enemy troops were wiped out at Salamaua was not stated but the encircled Japanese army in the Lae-Salamaua sector has been estimated to have numbered 20,000 at one time. Many hundreds of dead were abandoned as the Japanese earlier fled ridge positions on the coast just below Salamaua.

Lae Under Artillery Fire

Today's communique said Lae is under artillery fire.

Above Lae, Allied forces which had crossed the Busu river within two miles of the Malahang airdrome now have destroyed two enemy strongholds.

The other arm of a pincers on Lae also made progress. These forces, brought in by big air transports to move down the Markham valley, have captured two prepared positions, headquarters said.

Last reports had placed this force in the vicinity of Heath's plantation, a Japanese strongpoint on the north bank of the Markham river eight miles west of Lae.

The Aussies above Lae who forded the rain-swollen Busu river have captured New Yanga, in addition to destroying the two enemy strongpoints, headquarters said today.

The Markham valley force drove the Japanese from positions near Whittakers.

Mitchell medium bombers continued to supply air support for the envelopment of Lae, strafing Japanese positions and installations along the south bank of the Markman river.

The Japanese raiders in the Lae battle zone consisted of a formation of 12 which bombed Allied installations near the Burep river.

Attacked on Three Sides

Lae now is being approached on three sides, the third being the victorious jungle troops which seized the Salamaua airdrome Saturday and the town and harbor Sunday.

Japanese and Allied artillery now are engaging in an intensive duel at Lae.

Capture by the Australians of the village of New Yanga put that force only a mile from the prized Malahang airdrome, largest of two in the Lae sector.

The latest raid on Wewak was prompted by the movement of new enemy air units into that sector. The liberators dumped 63 tons of bombs on airfields at Dagua and But. The bombs, concentrated on runways and dispersal areas, started fires which could be seen for 50 miles and there were explosions as fuel dumps were hit.

Southwest of Salamaua, 15 Japanese bombers with an escort of fighters struck at the Allied inland post of Watut "causing negligible damage and casualties," today's communique said. Allied interceptors, at a cost of one plane, shot down a bomber and a fighter and probably bagged another enemy fighter.

Mrs. Roosevelt Guest Of Mrs. MacArthur

Somewhere in Australia, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Liberator bomber which carried Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt more than 3,000 miles along Australia's east coast in ten days, took off today for an unannounced destination.

During one stopover, the American First Lady was the dinner guest of Mrs. Jean MacArthur, wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger was host in the absence of the general who now is on the New Guinea front.

The two women first met at an unnamed airport.

"I am so sorry that my husband can't be here to greet you," said Mrs. MacArthur.

"I imagine he is too busy where he is," Mrs. Roosevelt replied.

COLLAPSE OF GERMANY WILL DOOM JAPANESE

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 14.—(AP) Senator Ralph O. Brewster (R., Me.), a member of the Senate mission inspecting United States Army installations, said in an interview tonight that if Germany collapsed this fall Japan wouldn't last many months.

"When the naval might of Britain is concentrated in the Pacific I don't think Japan will last long," he said. "Victory will come very fast.

"General MacArthur cannot say enough about the cooperation he has received from Australia. Australia has done wonders in New Guinea."

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), said that "Before Japan is crushed we must have overwhelming naval forces in these waters. The fall of Italy made that day not far off as there is no need now for heavy naval forces in the Mediterranean."

Patagonian Jitterbug Fights for Little Guys

[The following story, w... by Sergt. Asa Bordages ... King street, New York city, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, was distributed by the Associated Press.]

Somewhere in the South Pacific (Delayed).—Oscar Cardozo, a jitterbug, finds it hard to explain why he left his father's ranch in Uruguay, left his sweetheart and left his easy life in El Estado de Arienta-Tres to work his way as a deckhand to New York so he could fight with the United States Marines.

"It makes good sense to me," he said, "but it sounds crazy when I try to tell it. People think I'm nuts. They say, 'What's a Patagonian Indian that's part Spanish doing in this war?' I can't seem to make 'em understand. I guess my mother's the only one who sees why I had to do it."

He is Pfc. Cardozo now, a Marine in a famous regiment. He is also a jitterbug, only 19, with a moon face and a nice grin. And this is what he has to say:

"I grew up in New York city. I went to Haaren High and Benjamin Franklin in First avenue, and then I graduated at Greer School. That's in Millbrook, up near Poughkeepsie. Then we went home to Uruguay.

Victim of Jitterbugitis.

"I never did much in school. Just a verage, I gues. I guess I did play hookey too much at Haaren. Anyhow, they dropped me. But I had something else on my mind. I go for this jitterbug stuff, and when the music gets in your blood, it drives all the sense out of your head. It just sends you. You can't help it or explain it. You just feel it. Or you don't. With me, it's this way—if I could be anywhere tonight, I'd be up New York where Jimmy Lunceford is playing. Boy, oh boy!"

He was out on the ranch in Uruguay when Pearl Harhor was bombed, and he says:

"I told my father, I've got to go. He tried to argue with me. He told me it isn't my war. He told me I'm a fool to go get myself killed in a strangers' war. He said I should stay home and raise cattle; that there'll be a lot of money in cattle.

"Finally he told me I couldn't go. I am his only son and he is blind now. It was tough and I feel lousy, but it was no use trying to explain to him. So I just left.

"My girl tried to argue with me, too. I couldn't make her understand, either. So I just gave her a kiss and took off."

He said he worked his way on a fruit ship to New Orleans, then on a tanker to New York. There on the dock, his mother was waiting. She had flown up from Montevideo.

"My mother didn't say much She never says much. She is a Patagonian Indian and also a Salazar from Venezuela and some kind of distant kin of Cipriano Castro who used to be President of Venezuela. Anyhow, that's what they say.

"My mother said she had a place in New York. In Thompson street, 172. And she'd wait there for me to come back.

"She never asked me not to go. All she said was, 'If you are going to do something, do it all the way.' So I did."

And why?

Because he grew up in America. Because the boys he went to school with, the jitterbugs like him, were in it? That was part of it, he said. He said a man wants to stick with his friends when they're in trouble.

"But mostly," he said, "I guess it was just the way I feel. I don't like Fascists. I don't like 'em because they pick on little guys—and I'm a little guy."

Political Parties Fight Curbs on Civil Liberties in Argentina.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 14.—(AP) Argentine political parties, backed by popular feeling, are slowly moving toward a united protest against curbs on civil liberties enacted by the military government of President General Pedro Ramirez, a responsible person who arrived here from Buenos Aires said tonight.

The general feeling in Argentina, this traveler said, was that the government itself was bewildered by the complexities of its task, including adherence to its explosive neutrality policy, and was attempting to solve them with a succession of restrictive decrees.

The latest of these led to suspension of two newspapers of the pro-Allied publisher Jose Agusti and the arrest of Agusti on the grounds he "broadcast alarmist reports, including an announcement of a false revolutionary movement and eventual changes in the present cabinet."

Agusti's "Noticias Graficas" of Buenos Aires was suspended indefinitely for commenting editorially on United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull's refusal of Argentina's request for Lend-Lease aid. This was followed today by suspension for 10 days of Agusti's provincial newspaper in Cordoba.

The traveler said the Ramirez government implicitly admitted it was controlling even private talks in the Agusti action, inasmuch as Agusti's newspaper had never been known to have published such reports as charged.

International communications long have been strictly controlled.

'Chutists Guarding St. Peter's Square

New York, Sept. 14 (AP) — The German radio was quoted by BBC tonight as saying in a Rome dispatch that German parachute troops armed with anti-tank guns had mounted guard in St. Peter's Square "to prevent by force anyone penetrating into Vatican City."

The British radio said that technically St. Peter's Square is Vatican City territory and "the Germans try to explain away this encroachment on it by citing the Lateran Treaty between the Vatican and the Italian Government, which makes St. Peter's Square open to free use by Italians.

"Therefore, the Germans say, it is open to free use by Italian police—and by the German soldiers who have replaced them."

The Office of War Information said a Berlin broadcast picked up by United States Government monitors declared that "behind the German soldiers at entrances to the Vatican the Pope's Swiss Guards have taken up posts."

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Badly shaken by the Allied invasion of Italy, the Nazi High Command is obviously combing its perilous Russian front for reserves to bolster the southern wall of the now vulnerable fortress of Europe.

No other explanation of the surrender of the Bryansk bastion, anchor of the whole German line in Russia from Smolensk southward to the sea coast, is admissable. Only on that front can Nazi commanders find seasoned troops competent to meet the British-American attacks in Italy. And under the relentless pressure of a Russian offensive that is gaining momentum with the weeks, only a drastic shortening of the front in the east can furnish the manpower now urgently needed in Italy.

Swiss reports that up to 70 Nazi divisions are being hurried from Russia to prop the Italian-Balkan front may be exaggerated. There seems little doubt, however, that the Berlin-announced "evacuation" of Bryansk means that previous German plans for a slow and orderly withdrawal to shortened lines for a winter stand have been completely upset.

Without its Bryansk pivot, the German front in Russia east of the Dnieper is of little value either defensively or for future offensive operations. It is too long to be held against Russian winter attacks with the forces left to Hitler by the campaign in Italy and the threat of Allied trans-channel onslaught.

Only along the west bank of the Dnieper from the Orsha bend in the north, west of Smolensk, to Kiev can the Germans find a strong natural position so shortened as to release heavy reserves. Russian forces already have driven a dangerously wide and deep salient into the German front south of Bryansk along the Konotopkiev railway. Its spearhead is reported less than 70 miles from Kiev in the Nezhin sector. The Russians are threatening Chesnigov junction, beyond the Lower Desna, and even the Gomel escape gateway beyond it through which Nazi forces retreating from Bryansk must reach the haven of the Dnieper west bank.

There seems small chance that the Nazi retreat in Russia can halt even along the lower Dnieper. Evacuation of the whole Dnieper plateau, within the great southern bend of the river, seems certain. To attempt to hold the whole Dnieper west bank from Orsha, through Kiev, Kremenchug, Dniepepropetrovsk and Zaporozhe would extend rather than shorten the front. It represents nearly 800 miles, measured from the Dnieper mouth to Orsha.

From Kiev southward to the Black sea the Bug river appears to offer the most likely defense line. It would shorten the Russian front by some 200 miles, about a fourth.

Abandonment of the Dnieper plateau would involve loss of the Crimean peninsula and the Caucasus bridgehead.

The Allied invasion of Italy has definitely created those second-front conditions to take enemy weight off Russia for which Moscow has urged a surge across the channel from Britain. Moscow press comment is beginning to admit that.

JAPS OFFER PEACE IF CHINA WILL JOIN IN WAR ON ALLIES

Chungking Rejects All Enemy Proposals, Dr. Soong Reveals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) China is constantly receiving peace proposals from Japan and the terms become more liberal as the Japanese become more hard pressed, T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, revealed today.

In response to press conference questions, Dr. Soong said that the Japanese are ready to get out of China (except for Manchuria and Formosa) if China will leave the United Nations and join Japan in a racial war against the white man.

Pearl Harbor Proposal

He said that on the day of Pearl Harbor such a proposal came through, but that China had never wavered.

"I know of no conscious political group who sees in this any solution," the foreign minister said.

Dr. Soong did not initiate the discussion of Japanese peace proposals at the press conference which he called to emphasize the announcement from Chungking that within a year after the war, a national assembly will be convened to adopt a new constitution, to be followed by a general election to set up a congress and government responsible to the people. ple.

He said this step means that China is moving toward a broadening and deepening democracy. He said the Kuomintang party never had desired one-party rule.

Few Communists in China

Asked about the Communist question in China Dr. Soong said "Actually there is a very small number of Chinese who are real Communists. I look forward to a political rather than a military settlement of that question."

Asked why the central government had stationed a large army in the vicinity of Chinese Communist regions in north China, Dr. Soong replied that the troops, would have been disposed along the bend of the Yellow river in any case. He said it was a strategic location for guarding China's wartime capitol and protecting communications with Russia.

He declared that all the Kuomintang wanted the new semi-autonomus Chinese Communist area in north China to do was to live up to political promises of 1936 when they agreed to incorporate their armies into China's national forces.

Regarding China's post-war desires, Dr. Soong said the Chinese expected their territory to include Formosa where the population is Chinese. He said China had no desire to control Indo-China and that Korea should become independent.

"And we don't want to see Thailand ruled by anyone but the Thais."

U. S. SUB IS LOST, TWO SUB-CHASERS SUNK BY BOMBERS

SEP 17 1943

Navy Reveals Ship Losses, Reports Jap Raid on Funafuti.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) Three United States vessels—a submarine and two submarine chasers—have gone down in action against the enemy, the Navy reported today, bringing to 114 the number of the craft lost since the war started.

Only the meager statement that the Grenadier "has failed to return from patrol operations and must be presumed to be lost" was made by the Navy in announcing the 12th submarine loss of the war.

Sub Lost in Pacific

The Grenadier, commanded by Lieutenant Commander John A. Fitzgerald, presumably was one of the many submarines which have been shattering supply lines to the widespread Japanese bases in the Pacific.

Less than a week ago a compilation of enemy losses inflicted by submarines showed that 319 enemy ships have been sunk or damaged. They include 223 definitely sent to the botom, 29 probably sunk and 67 damaged in attacks that have reached even into the harbors of Japan itself.

Fitzgerald, of Livermore, Calif., and all members of the crew—probably more than 65 men on a submarine the size of the Grenadier—are listed as missing in action. Completed in May, 1941, the 1,475-ton Grenadier had ten torpedo tubes, a three inch all-purpose gun, and two machine guns.

Sunk by Bombers

The submarine chasers were sunk by enemy bombing planes in the Mediterranean Aug. 23. Presumably they were protecting supply ships and landing craft. Each of the sub-chasers—the 694 and the 696—caried a crew of about 27 men. Lieutenant (j.g.) Fred J. Schloemer, skipper of the 696, is missing in action and Lieutenant (j.g.) Roger S. Robinson, Coconut Grove, Fla., was wounded.

A revival of aerial warfare in the south Pacific also was reported by the Navy with announcement that 15 Japanese bombers raided the American base at Funafuti in the Ellice islands Sunday night. Damage caused by the raiders before they were driven off by anti-aircraft fire was reported slight. One enemy bomber was shot down.

The raid on Funafuti was the foutrh since American troops occupied the island. In none of the previous raids on April 22, July 20 and July 22, was damage severe.

Knox Reports "Stiff Fight"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—Establishment of the beachhead at Salerno involved the most hotly contested landing American troops have ever made, Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, said today.

The resulting engagement with German troops he called "a good, stiff fight," but he did not go into any additional detail on the battle now under way, saying his information consisted principally of published reports of the engagement.

Asked at a press conference about the use that will be made of Italian naval units now in the hands of the Allies, he said they "can be made very useful," noting, however, that there were special problems relating to proper ammunition and replacement parts that had to be dealt with.

"There are some very good ships in the Italian Navy," he added.

PROGRESS IS REPORTED ON MEETING WITH REDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) A report of additional progress toward an Anglo-American-Russian war conference was given to a press-radio conference today by President Roosevelt, but he offered no details.

Reminded that he had said a week ago that more progress could be expected in 24 to 48 hours, he remarked that it had come in about the latter time.

The chief executive had no comment on the siuation in Italy, but, answering a question, he said the Italian fleet presented certain problems.

To use an Italian cruiser, for example, you have to have ammunition to fit the guns and spare parts to fit the machinery. He said it was as yet unknown how much ammunition had been obtained when the Allies took the Italian naval base at Taranto.

Harriman Denies Rumor He Will Go To Soviet

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—W. Averill Harriman, lend-lease coordinator in Britain who is now in Washington, said today there was no foundation for a report published in a New York newspaper that he had been asked to go to Moscow on a special mission and might succeed Admiral William H. Standley as Ambassador to the Soviet Union.

"There is nothing to it," he said after a call at the State Department for a talk with Secretary Hull.

Bishop Sherrill is chairman of his church's committee on the Army and Navy, and vice-chairman of the general commission.

Col. Paul D. Bunker Dies In Japanese Prison Camp

On Walter Camp's All-American Team for 2 Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—Colonel Paul D. Bunker, believed to be one of only two athletes to make Walter Camp's all-American football team in successive years at different positions, died on Sept. 7 in a Japanese prison camp on Taiwan, the War Department announced today. He was sixty-two years old.

Colonel Bunker was a classmate of General Douglas MacArthur at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., graduating in 1903. He won his first all-American selection at tackle in 1901, and the next year was chosen by Mr. Camp as all-American halfback. He commanded the 59th Coast Artillery on Corregidore when he was taken prisoner by the Japanese.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Landon Bunker, of Los Angeles; a daughter, Mrs. Priscilla Maury, Los Angeles, and a son, Lieutenant Colonel William B. Bunker, now on duty with the Transportation Corps in Washington.

DICKSTEIN URGES ENTRY OF REFUGEES

Washington, Sept. 14 (A. P.).—A resolution directing the Attorney-General an dthe Secretary of State to arrange entry into the United States on a temporary basis for refugees from Axis-dominated countries was introduced today by Representative Samuel Dickstein (D.-N. Y.).

"With the defeat of the remaining Axis Powers having become a certainty," he said in an accompanying statement, "an increased reign of terror can be expected on the part of Hitler and his cohorts to eliminate, through murder, as many of their victims in occupied territory as possible."

"The national committees of both the Democratic and Republican parties have declared themselves in favor of immediate action. It is up to Congress to carry into effect the recommendations of both national committees."

The resolution stated that persons admitted under its terms would be permitted to remain in the country only until six months after the end of the war. They would have to be able to satisfy the authorities that they would not become public charges, were political or religious refugees, and had no criminal records.

DISLOYAL JAPS SHIFTED IN RELOCATION CAMP.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) The disloyal among Japanese in War Relocation authority camps are being segregated, President Roosevelt reported to the Senate today. He said investigation had shown that they "constitute but a small minority."

He passed on to the Senate a WRA report saying movements already are under way to a special camp at the Tule lake relocation center, Newell, Calif.

First to be separated from the rest of the evacuees are about 6,300 persons who filed requests, not withdrawn before July 1, 1943, for repatriation or expatriation to Japan.

Congress Gets Revision Of Lend-Lease Letter

Roosevelt Removes Sentences Renouncing Payment

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—President Roosevelt today sent Congress a revised version of the letter of transmittal which accompanied his Aug. 25 lend-lease report, removing two sentences which implied that there never would be any cash accounting for lend-lease aid.

The excised part of the original text read as follows: "The Congress in passing and extending the lend-lease act made it plain that the United States wants no new war debts to jeopardize the coming peace. Victory and a secure peace are the only coin in which we can be repaid."

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference a week ago that the letter of transmittal, through a misunderstanding, went out while he was at the Quebec conference and without his specific approval of its phrasing.

He said, at that time, that the nations benefiting from lend-lease help are expected to repay us, as far as they can, though not necessarily in dollars.

ROOSEVELT BUYS BELGIAN STAMPS

The new 5-cent stamps, part of a series commemorating occupied nations, went on sale today and the Ambassador, accompanied by Ramsey S. Black, Third Assistant Postmaster-Gen. eral, and Roy North, deputy Third Assistant Postmaster-Gen- White House to sell some to the Chief Executive.

"How much are they? Two dollars?" Mr. Roosevelt asked.

"No, $2.50," Mr. North told him.

ROOSEVELT FIGHTS MOVE TO PREVENT

DRAFT OF FATHERS

SEP 11 1943

Will Send Message to Congress Friday Explaining His Position.

TAX PLANS DISCUSSED

Conference of Administration Leaders Held in White House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) President Roosevelt was reported authoritively tonight to be ready to oppose a pending move in Congress to prevent the draft of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Informed congressional sources said he would make his position clear in a message to the House and Senate Friday outlining the progress of the war.

Mr. Roosevelt's plan to send a war report to Capitol hill was disclosed by his legislative chiefs after a White House conference during which they told him many returning members are seriously disturbed over the plan to induct fathers after Oct. 1.

First of Several Messages

Simultaneously, it was disclosed by the same congressional sources that the chief executive's message would be the first of a series of executive communications to Congress.

Others will deal with such subjects as benefits and rehabilitation for war veterans, the problems of giving soldiers an opportunity to vote in the next elections, and, later, taxes.

Whether President Roosevelt will include in his message Friday a recommendation for national service legislation remained uncertain, although some congressional sources predicted he would follow that course.

The congressional leaders conferred with the President shortly after a White House tax conference attended by the Administration's economic and revenue chiefs, among them Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and Fred M. Vinson, director of economic stabilization.

To Delay Financial Program

While there was no official disclosure of what was said at that conference, it was learned that the Administration probably will not submit a program for raising additional revenue until after the current war loan drive has been concluded.

While the President has urged that Congress find $12,000,000,000 in new money to combat inflation and to help pay the costs of war, one source said that there is a growing willingness in Administration circles to accept a program that would bring in $8,000,000,000. That source said that even the reduced objective might have to be met through a program of enforced savings, rather than new taxes.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he understood the message Friday would make no legislative recommendations. However, the father-draft position of the Administration could be made clear without direct commitment on any specific measure.

Demand Action on Draft

The legislators had hardly settled into their seats today after a ten-weeks summer recess before the issue bobbed up with Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and others demanding quick action to forbid the drafting of fathers.

Chairman Reynolds (D.-N. C.) then announced that hearings on the subject would begin tomorrow, and that members of the Army and Navy high command would be called to explain their manpower needs. Members of the House Military committee were asked to sit jointly with the Senate group.

Senator Barkley and other Democratic congressional leaders—Speaker Rayburn, Vice President Wallace, and House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts—conferred with Mr. Roosevelt in mid-afternoon.

When the President held his regular press-radio conference immediately afterward, he was asked for his views on the question and discussed it generally but without reference to the specific proposals before Congress.

It might be well, he said, if writers would make it clear that married men in essential occupations would not be taken. (Under Selective Service regulations, men with dependents and in essential occupations would be the last in the draft age group to be called.)

The President went on to say that everybody knows there are many fathers just laying around. A reporter suggested that the statement was not grammatical, and the President said he preferred to say it ungrammatically.

The discussion continued about like this:

Q. Do you think fathers in that category could well go into the Army?

A. He knew a good many around Washington who might, the President replied.

Q. Is there any move to draft men by age groups?

A. Not that the President knew about.

Q. Do you approve of treating pre-Pearl Harbor and post-Pearl Harbor fathers differently?

A. It appeared to him to be pretty hypothetical—a matter which should cause no one any concern any longer.

Long Hearings Expected

The congressional hearings on the question of drafting fathers are expected to be prolonged.

Senator Reynolds listed as the first witness Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, who recently completed a tour of Pacific fronts; Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service.

He said that Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, would testify next Monday—an indication that a committee decision would be deferred at least a week.

The hearings technically will be on a bill by Senator Wheeler to forbid the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers before next Jan. 1. Senator Wheeler announced, however, that he would not await committee action, would try to bring his bill up on the floor as early as possible, and would amend it to forbid the induction of fathers indefinitely. Indications were that he would have no chance before Thursday at the earliest to bring up his bill.

Seek to Delay Vote

Senator Reynolds' call for hearings was in line with strategy of Administration leaders in trying to delay a vote on the Wheeler bill. Majority Leader Barkley (Kentucky) said he thought action on the measure ought to be put off at least until sometime next week while the legislators received, meantime, up-to-date information on manpower needs.

Most of the Congress members arrived for renewal of the session with a variety of prepared speeches—on manpower, farm labor, rationing and policies of the office of price administration.

It quickly became evident, however, that the fathers' draft was uppermost in virtually all minds, and most of the prepared speeches were simply put into The Congressional Record without delivery on the floor.

When the draft issue was brought up on the House floor, Rep. Knutson (R., Minn.) demanded to know "what has become" of Winston Churchill's pre-Pearl Harbor request to the United States to "send us the implements and we'll do the job."

Senator Wheeler said there had been assurances when Congress recessed that no fathers would be called, but that during the recess War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt announced induction of fathers generally would start Oct. 1.

"I don't know who is responsible," he continued. "Some say the President is responsible. Some say the Army and Navy are responsible."

Senator Wheeler read a Canadian announcement of the disbanding of two and a half divisions of Canadian troops, a matter which also was brought to the attention of the House by Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the Military committee.

Canada's action, Rep. May declared, appeared to be "an irrefutable argument against the drafting of fathers in the United States."

Long Period of Training

Senator Wheeler told the Senate that many men in the Army had been kept in training camps 12 to 18 months "because there apparently wasn't anything for them to do."

"This lying around in Army camps is breaking down the morale of the men and the people who know about it," Senator Wheeler said, characterizing the proposal to draft fathers as "a most idiotic plan."

Senator Walsh (D., Mass.), chairman of the Naval committee, put in that "there is a widespread feeling of concern, anxiety and regret over the drafting of married men with children" before all single men are taken.

FATHERS WANT PROOF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP) Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, told the Senate today few fathers would object to being drafted if convinced they were needed, but he called for proof that other available manpower sources were lacking.

KNOX KEEPS QUIET ON KIMMEL TRIAL

Secretary Declines To Discuss Possibility Of Time Limit On Court-Martial

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 14—Secretary of the Navy Knox declined today to discuss published reports that a statute of limitations will bar trial of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel unless he is arraigned before a court-martial before December 7, the second anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

At the War Department, officials also refused to discuss the parallel case of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander at Hawaii, where Kimmel commanded the fleet during the Japanese assault.

Knox was questioned at a press conference about a two-year statute of limitations. While he declined to discuss the matter, the Navy Secretary said flatly there was no truth in reports that Kimmel had requested an early trial.

Allowed To Retire

Both Kimmel and Short were permitted to retire after being ordered February 28, 1942, to stand trial by courts-martial at some future date on charges of "dereliction of duty."

At both the War and Navy departments officials refused to discuss the present status of the two men or to say whether formal charges have been filed against them. It was learned, however, that both the army's Articles of War and the Articles for the Government of the Navy provide exceptions to the normal two-year limitation.

The thirty-ninth Article of War bans trial or punishment by court martial for any offense committed more than two years before arraignment of the accused. But it contains numerous exceptions, including one directing that any period of time in which a "manifest impediment" prevented trial shall be excluded in computing the two-year period.

The navy's Article 61 is similar.

Loses Life, Saves Others

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—"One of the greatest stories of the war"—that is his commanding officer's tribute to Lieut. Col. Addison Baker, of Akron, Ohio, who is missing in action.

Brig. Gen. Uzal G. Ent, commander of the Ninth Bomber Command and leader of the August 1 attack on the Ploesti oil refineries, told today how Baker's plane, flying at treetop level, was hit by flak just before reaching the target. One engine was knocked out.

"When that happens at that altitude, you've got to act quick," Ent said. "Baker dropped his bombs short of the target and kept flying. "Over the target, he was hit again—the plane was in flames. Even at that, he pulled his plane up, and got enough altitude to protect the following planes. If he had crashed ahead of them, the explosion might have knocked out one or two other planes.

"Baker's plane crashed, exploded, burned. But he had taken his men over the target. It was an outstanding example of leadership."

Seeks Loans for Veterans

McCarran Puts in Bill Allowing Them to Borrow Without Security

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—A bill which would permit veterans of the present war to borrow up to $1,000 from banks and building and loan associations, without security, to pay debts existing on their discharge from the service was introduced in Congress today by Senator Pat McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada.

The loans would carry 6 per cent interest. To assure that banks would make the unsecured loans, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be directed to purchase at par plus accrued interest any veteran's note more than three months in arrears or not paid at maturity.

Senator McCarran said he was not interested in forgiving service men's debts but believed they should be given sufficient time after the war to adjust their finances.

'Back Salerno' Day Planned To Boost War Bond Sales per cent of the $15,000,000,000 goal.

The total was $588,000,000 over last night's tabulation.

Designating Friday for special effort and tribute to Americans battling on the Italian coast, the Treasury sent a telegram to War Finance chairmen in each state saying:

"American boys at this moment are fighting one of the bloodiest battles of the war. Salerno may be as bitter as Chateau-Thierry. The entire nation has its eyes, ears and hearts on those brave Americans in the Salerno sector. x x x 'Back Salerno, push back the Germans' is to be Friday's battle cry on the war bond front."

Tomorrow will be "big money" day in the war loan campaign.

The three principal types of securities offered for large investors are dated September 15 and begin bearing interest on that date. These are 2 and 2 1-2 per cent bonds and 7-8 per cent certificates of indebtedness, designed primarily for insurance companies, mutual savings banks and other institutional investors.

As an example of the kind of "big money" the Treasury expects to flow in tomorrow, officials cited these insurance company bond purchases in the April second war loan:

Prudential Insurance company of America, $400,000,000; Metropolitan Life, $300,000,000; Equitable Life Assurance society, $150,000,000; New York Life, $125,000,000; Mutual Life of New York, $37,000,000. and Mutual Benefit Life, $35,000,000.

Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the committee for Economic Development, urged in a statement that each person earmark his war bonds for specific items to be purchased after the war.

"Every dollar saved today not only helps with the war but will help win the peace," Mr. Hoffman said, by providing purchasing power when industry returns to peacetime production.

Judge Rosenman Leaves Court To Be Roosevelt's Full Time Aide

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — (AP) Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, lone one of President Roosevelt's closest advisers, is quitting the bench to devote full time to the job.

The President announced at his press conference today that the man credited with originating many of the New Deal government reorganization moves is leaving the New York Supreme court to become his special counsel.

The move brings Judge Rosenman back to the same official relationship to Mr. Roosevelt which he held when the latter was governor of New York—legal assistant.

Operating mostly in private, Judge Rosenman has been a major factor in Roosevelt councils even while he occupied the bench. He has divided time between New York and the White House.

Now 47, Judge Rosenman has been closely associated with Mr. Roosevelt since 1928.

The Office of War Mobilization, which is in effect a home front war cabinet headed by James F. Byrnes, is understood to have been Justice Rosenman's idea, and also the Office of War Information, headed by Elmer Davis.

He and the President became close friends during Mrfl Roosevelt's 1928 campaign for governor of New York. A former New York legislator, Justice Rosenman was assigned by the Democratic state organization to the gubernatorial candidate's headquarters as an expert on legislative affairs.

After Mr. Roosevelt became governor, he appointed Judge Rosenman as his legal counsel. He named Judge Rosenman to the New York Supreme court bench in 1932.

The new post, which Mr. Roosevelt said would pay $10,000 or $12,000 a year, will bring him less than the $25,000 salary of the New York bench.

BANKER SEES END OF TRADE IRRITANTS

Gives Credit to Roosevelt, Hull for Good Neighbor Policy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — (AP) W. L. Hemingway, president of the American Bankers association, said today that under the present Administration at Washington most of the irritants hampering trade between the United States and Latin America had been removed.

"Great credit is due to the President and Secretary Hull for their foresighted diplomacy resulting in the good-neighbor policy," Mr. Hemingway told bankers assembled here for the association's war service meeting.

In the field of relations between government and American banking, Mr. Hemingway said, there must be a wisely determined division of responsibility "or a great opportunity to develop hemisphere solidarity may be lost."

"It seems to me that the division should be on the basis of the character of financing that is to be done," he added.

"If it is of a purely political nature or for military reasons it should be left solely to government, but if it falls into the regular routine of business, it should be in the hands of the banks," Mr. Hemingway explained. He continued:

"Naturally it will be in the borderline cases that misunderstanding may arise and it will be in the determination of those cases that there is need for a sympathetic understanding and unity of purpose to get the best results."

Eisenhower Epaulet Boosts War Bond Sale

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Julius Klorfein, New York cigar manufacturer, added a new million-dollar item—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's epaulet—to his collection tonight when he pledged $1,000,000 for war bonds during the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Report to the Nation" program.

This brought Klorfein's war bond purchases since last February to at least $3,600,000.

"Phony Revolt" by Nazis Predicted by OWI Chief

Elmer Davis Explains Need for Keeping Public Informed of War News.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 14.—(AP) German leaders probably will engineer a "phony revolution" to save their own necks and the skeleton of their war machine for another try at world conquest, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information told the New York State Publishers' association tonight.

Whether the Nazis get away with it depends in large part on the information supplied the public in America and the other United Nations, Mr. Davis said in counseling against overoptimism and distorted perspectives in handling war news.

Official Agencies at Fault

Mr. Davis acknowledged that part of the fault in any overoptimistic attitude in the United States lay with official agencies responsible for distribution of war news and pictures. He said this had been largely corrected.

"There is no present reason to expect that victory will come either soon or cheaply," Mr. Davis told the publishers. "It is possible that the political disintegration of Hitler's ramshackle empire, already well begun, might bring a decision in Europe earlier than might be expected on purely military grounds; but it would be far more difficult for those Germans who are sick of the war to translate their feelings into action than it was in 1918. x x x

"We may very likely, before the war is over, see a phony revolution in Germany put over by a sham opposition—by Nazi leaders or by military leaders who would be willing to cut the throats of their associates if they could thereby save not only their own necks but the substance of German military or industrial power. The object of such a revolution would be a compromise peace, which would leave Germany still strong among her shattered neighbors—a peace which would be only the beginning of German preparation for the next war."

War Coverage Excellent

News supplied from the fighting fronts by United States correspondents has been of outstanding excellence, Mr. Davis declared. He said the "belated, confusing and inadequate" reports released during the first months of the war by the high commands, "have for the most part been corrected."

"It is true that these improvements in the information supplied by the armed services have come in a period when they had little but good news to give us," Mr. Davis continued, "but I am confident they would be able to stand the strain if we should again have to go through a period of uncertain fortunes and heavy losses — as we may."

News pictures from the fronts hitherto have been unsatisfactory, Mr. Davis said, but declared the War and Navy departments are now determined on improvements in the direction of "realism."

"The pictures have been real," the OWI director explained, "but this war has not been merely a matter of occupying towns whose cheering inhabitants hang garlands of flowers about our soldiers' necks. x x x The news has been true, but we have covered only a small part of the distance that has to be covered before our armies fight their way into Berlin and Tokyo."

The news of individual victories should be weighed in perspective against the task remaining, Mr. Davis said, to maintain a proper perspective.

There will be occasions he said, when the high command will be unable to reveal that an operation is only a feint to confuse the enemy, and overemphasis will result in depression-reaction when an apparent defeat is reported, Mr. Davis warned.

Security reasons, the OWI chief said, prevented disclosure of negotiations for Italy's surrender. To have met criticism of our course in Italy would have revealed the negotiations and informed the Germans, who were caught completely by surprise.

Hospital Parley Told of Morale On Submarines

Commander Hogan Says Sinking of an Enemy Ship Is Best Tonic for Crews

BUFFALO, Sept. 14 (AP).—Sinking an enemy ship does more for morale of American submarine crews "than a ton of vitamins," Commander Bartholomew W. Hogan, of the Navy Department Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, said tonight.

In an address at a meeting of the American Hospital Association's war-time conference, Commander Hogan said morale of submarine crews sags under excessive crowding, high temperatures, sleepless nights, extreme humidity, canned foods and no glimpse of the sun.

"To the credit of our men," he added, "be it said that nothing revitalizes a tired crew like a successful offensive."

Commander Hogan was senior medical officer on the aircraft carrier Wasp which was sunk in the Solomons a year ago tomorrow.

Naval research experts have improved living conditions aboard underseas vessels by air conditioning, ultra-violet rays and vitamin tablets "until now the factors terminating a submarine patrol are more likely to be a failure of material than exhaustion of personnel," he continued.

Tuberculosis Takes Toll

Another conference speaker, General C. R. Reynolds, of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, declared that tuberculosis has impaired the military power and drained the financial resources of the United States out of all proportion to the number of cases in military service.

"The economic importance of tuberculosis in the military establishment is enormous," he asserted in a paper in which he placed the cost of the disease in the military during and following World War I at $1,000,000,000.

"While the admission rate for tuberculosis in the Army has been relatively low it has always stood high among the causes of time lost," he added. "Being a chronic disease, it usually requires prolonged hospitalization and results frequently in invalidism."

In another address, Major General Norman T. Kirk, Surgeon

General, United States Army, said at present there are 39,460 medical officers on duty in the Army, which is 6,000 short of requirements as of Aug. 1.

Fred A. McNamara, chief of the business management division, administrative management, U. S. Budget Bureau, declared the Federal government is running the largest group of hospitals in the United States—"close to 1,000 of them today." The Army, he added, is operating more than half of these and the Navy is maintaining the second largest number—approximately 275.

Opposes U. S. Control

Everett W. Jones, head hospital consultant of the War Production Board, said today he is opposed to compulsory hospital insurance under government management and declared Federal agencies "cannot hope to approach private initiative and enterprise in efficient management.

"After working 15 months in Washington, I have no delusions left as to the efficiency of governmental agencies," he said.

Louis H. Pink, president of the Associated Hospital Service of New York, said today civilian health in the United States in war time "has been good," and malnutrition appears to be on the decrease because of health education, increased earnings and food rationing.

Addressing the Blue Cross Hospital Service Plans conference held in conjunction with the conference of the hospital association, Mr. Pink, former New York State Superintendent of Insurance, declared "purposeful activity and fuller employment have lessened nervous disorders and improved the general health."

BRITISH TOMMIES AT CAMP EDWARDS

Veterans Demonstrate Anti-Aircraft Guns Under Combat Conditions.

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass., Sept. 14—(AP) Secretary of War Stimson saw a "miniature battle of Britain" today as British soldiers who have been throwing "flak" against Nazi planes for more than two years demonstrated their tactics and won a "well done" tribute from the cabinet member.

The huge 3.7 guns, which compare with the American 90 m.m. joined with the 40 m.m. light anti-aircraft weapons to throw a spray of lead over the Atlantic in a three-hour demonstration during which more than 50 percent of the flown targets were shattered.

The demonstrating crew was part of the 1st British composite anti-aircraft battery, touring U. S. military installations at the invitation of Secretary Stimson for an "exchage of ideas" with anti-aircraft personnel of Major General Joseph A. Green's command.

Terming the battery a unit which "represented the best work of our allies in the war," Secretary Stimson said the Tommies would "help promote the spirit of comradeship and fine friendly rivalry that makes for quick education and training.

"I have been glad to learn that both of these objectives have been very thoroughly achieved by this visit," he said. "The spirit of cooperation between the two services has been very fine."

Jersey Students Help Defeat Japanese Navy

Produce Special Tools for Use in South Seas

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—Students in the war production training centers of three New Jersey high schools have helped down the Japanese Navy in the South Seas, John H. Bosshart, State Education Commissioner, said today.

Special tools, whose specific use could not be revealed, were produced in large quantities in Dickinson High School, Jersey City; East Side High School, Newark, and Technical High School, Elizabeth, he commissioner said:

"The branch of the United States Navy for which they were produced has expressed appreciation for the contribution which has been made to victory," he added.

The implements were made by the high-school students as part of their course of instruction.

New York Ensign Dies in Crash

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 14 (AP).—Ensign Walter Jackson Cowart, of New York City, and McKinley L. Fuller jr., yeoman second class, were killed when their plane crashed Monday four miles northwest of near-by Cantonment, Pensacola naval air training center officials announced today. They were making a photographic training flight from the auxiliary Saufley Field. Ensign Cowart was the son of Mrs. Roy Holden, 306 West Nineteenth Street, New York.

C.I.O. LEADER WARNS AGAINST IMPERIALISM

DETROIT, Sept. 14—(AP) Sidney Hillman of the C.I.O., cautioning against "plans for a new American imperialism," said tonight that as the Allies advance into Europe they "must not only permit but encourage the free and untrammeled activity" of the people.

Mr. Hillman, here in his capacity as chairman of the C.I.O.'s political action committee, addressed a group of Michigan C.I.O. leaders on labor's interest in the future peace.

Declaring that freedom must be assured both peoples of the United Nations and countries to be released from the Axis, Mr. Hillman charged that "there are forces in this country who today are laying grandiose plans for a new American imperialism."

"They hope," he said, "to rise to power by an appeal to the isolationist sentiments that still persist among us and by exploiting the burdens and difficulties of the war to turn the voters against a constructive domestic program to meet post-war needs."

Willkie Asked to Reply Publicly to Questionnaire

Quoted in Missouri as Saying 'I'll Not Be Put on Spot'

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14 (AP).—Wendell Willkie was informed by "The St. Louis Post-Dispatch" today that some Republican leaders in Missouri want public answers to a questionnaire they sent him recently on international and domestic issues.

The 1940 Presidential nominee, who has agreed to come here later this month for an off-the-record discussion with the state's party leaders, told "The Post-Dispatch" he would refuse to answer the questions publicly.

The newspaper, which reached him at his New York office, quoted him as saying: "They aren't going to put Willkie on the spot."

"If I decide to seek the nomination for the Presidency, I will, of course, discuss all such questions and many others publicly," he was quoted as saying. "I certainly, however, don't want to spend all my time answering questions.

"Even I ought to have the privilege of selecting the time and place of my own public discussions."

The questions were submitted to Mr. Willkie in a letter signed by the entire Missouri delegation to the 1940 Republican National Convention and all the officers of the party in the state.

War Prisoners Get Paper

N. Y. German-Language Publication Distributed at Camp Carson

CAMP CARSON, Colo., Sept. 14 (AP).—A German language newspaper is being distributed among the prisoners of war at the Camp Carson internment camp to give them "possibly the first honest news they have seen written in the German language."

The newspaper is "The Neue Volks-Zeitung," published in New York. "The first issue of the publication to reach the prisoners of war carries a special message," an official release said today. "It points out that the paper will contain no one-sided political propaganda and that the readers will not meet a wave of hatred in its pages."

BRYANSK, REGARDED AS ONE OF THE MOST-HEAVILY FORTIFIED NAZI BASES IN RUSSIA, NOW HAS ONLY ONE RAILWAY ARTERY LEFT, LEADING NORTHWESTWARD TO SMOLENSK. A RED ARMY MECHANIZED FORCE IS REPORTED TO BE ONLY A FEW MILES FROM THIS LINE AND IS EXPECTED TO RENDER IT USELESS MOMENTARILY. THIS WOULD MAKE THE GERMAN POSITION PRACTICALLY HOPELESS.

CAPTURE OF BRYANSK WOULD OPEN THE WAY FOR A DRIVE ON WHITE RUSSIA, A BARE 75 MILES TO THE EAST.

LONG RANGE RUSSIAN ARTILLERY ALREADY HAS BEEN BROUGHT UP AND IS SHELLING THE CITY. IT WAS REPORTED, AND THE BATTLE WAS GROWING IN INTENSITY AS GEN. M.M. POPOV SENT IN HIS SHOCK TROOPS.

SOUTH OF BAKHMACH, WHERE OTHER RED ARMY THRUSTS ARE POINTING TOWARD KIEV, THE RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE DECLARED THAT THE REMNANTS OF FOUR NAZI DIVISIONS, ORIGINALLY TOTALING ABOUT 60,000 MEN, WERE ENCIRCLED BY SOVIET TROOPS AND WIPED OUT.

ONE RUSSIAN COLUMN IN THIS SECTOR WAS REPORTED ONLY 30 MILES FROM CHERNIGOV, NORTHEAST OF KIEV, AND WITHIN ARTILLERY RANGE OF NEZHIN. SEIZURE OF NEZHIN WOULD PLACE RUSSIAN VANGUARDS BUT 72 MILES FROM KIEV AND CUT THE LAST NORTH-SOUTH RAIL LINE IN GERMAN HANDS EAST OF

ZAPOROZHE AND DNIEPEROPETROVSK, AT THE LOWER END OF THE DNIEPER RIVER, WERE OBJECTIVES OF SOVIET COLUMNS OPERATING IN THE SOUTH. THE BATTERED GERMANS WERE FALLING BACK IN DISORDER, AND UPWARDS OF 90 VILLAGES WERE ADDED TO THE 250 WHICH FELL TO THE RUSSIANS ON OTHER SECTORS OF THE LONG FRONT. RED ARMY REPORTS SAID THAT 1,500 NAZI DEAD WERE COUNTED IN THE DRIVE TOWARD THE LOWER DNIEPER FROM THE LIBERATED DONETS BASIN WEST OF STALINO. FINALLY THE GERMAN TROOP LEADER STOOD BEFORE MUSSOLINI. HE SAID:

"DUCE, THE FUEHRER SENDS ME TO LIBERATE YOU. YOU ARE NOW UNDER MY PROTECTION. I HOPE THAT ALL HAS GONE OFF WELL."

SAID MUSSOLINI, EMBRACING THE TROOP LEADER:

"I GUESSED IT AND NEVER DOUBTED IT THAT THE FUEHRER WOULD DO EVERYTHING TO GET ME OUT OF THIS."

THEN MUSSOLINI GOT INTO THE WAITING NAZI PLANE AND WAS WHIPPED OVER TO GERMAN TERRITORY.

LONDON, SEPT 14-(AP)-LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK'S FIFTH AMERICAN ARMY WASLOCKED IN A BITTER BATTLE AT SALERNO TODAY, BUT THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WAS LASHING UP FROM THE SOUTH AND THE DECISION WAS YET TO FALL AS TO WHETHER THIS WAS TO BE THE FIRST GREAT ALLIED DEFEAT IN ITALY OR WHETHER IT WAS LIKELY TO BE THE ENEMY'S LAST SPASM OF EFFECTIVE RESISTANCE IN THE LOWER HALF OF THE PENINSULA.

CERTAINLY THE ALLIES ALREADY HAD SUFFERED A SERIOUS SETBACK, AND IT APPEARED THAT EVEN THE SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD, SO HARD WON, NOW WAS IN DANGER. GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS CONCEDED THAT WE HAD LOST GROUND BEFORE SAVAGE NAZI COUNTERATTACKS.

AS THE HOUR OF CRISIS DREW NEAR, EISENHOWER WAS REPORTED BRINGING UP RESERVES FOR A SUPREME EFFORT TO HOLD THE BRIDGEHEAD AGAINST THE SHARPEST MENACE THROWN AGAINST THE ALLIES SINCE THE CAMPAIGN FOR

ITALY PROPER BEGAN.

GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY, HOWEVER, WAS MOVING HIS EIGHTH ARMY AT A GREAT RATE. HIS COLUMNS ON THE RIGHT HAD OVERRUN AND PASSED BARI, WHILE HIS LEFT WING HAD ENGULFED COSENZA. BY NIGHTFALL YESTERDAY HE WAS WITHIN LESS THAN 100 MILES OF A JUNCTURE WITH CLARK'S HARD-PRESSED FORCES ON THE BEACHES OF THE GULF OF SALERNO.

HE WAS BEING DELAYED NOT AT ALL EXCEPT FOR ENEMY MINES, AND HIS FORCED MARCH ALSO HAD THE IMMEDIATELY SECONDARY BUT ULTIMATELY HIGHLY IMPORTANT EFFECT OF GREATLY INCREASING THE THREAT TO THE GERMANS' ADRIATIC FLANK IN GREECE AND ALBANIA BY THE PROGRESSIVE OCCUPATION OF GOOD PORTS IN EASTERN ITALY.

BY REACHING SALERNO IN TIME IT SEEMED HIGHLY PROBABLE THAT HIS FORCES, COMBINED WITH THOSE OF CLARK, WOULD EITHER DECISIVELY DEFEAT THE GERMANS OR THROW THEM INTO RETREAT UP THE PENINSULA TOWARD THE FINAL LOSS OF THEIR COMMUNICATIONS IN THE WHOLE OF LOWER ITALY.

A SUBSTANTIAL DELAY IN MONTGOMERY'S MARCH, COUPLED WITH THE CONTINUATION OF PRESENT GERMAN SUPERIORITY AT SALERNO, WOULD OF COURSE PUT THE WHOLE ALLIED POSITION IN PERIL IN THE NAPLES AREA.

ALL THE DETAILS WERE NOT CLEAR AS TO WHAT HAD HAPPENED AT SALERNO, BUT THIS MUCH SEEMED PLAIN:

1. OUR FORCES WERE SO FAR ADVANCED FROM OUR FIGHTER AIRFIELDS AS TO BE UNDER RATHER THIN AIR COVER.

2. THE TERRAIN FAVORED THE ENEMY, FOR HE OCCUPIED HILLY POSITIONS AND OUR TROOPS WERE OUT IN THE OPEN FLATS.

3. THE GERMANS HAD ANTICIPATED THE AREA OF OUR LANDING AND WERE IN GREAT STRENGTH THAN WE HAD THOUGHT. MOREVER, THE GERMANS HAD RECEIVED REINFORCEMENTS.

THE NAZIS REACTED WITH WILD EXULTATION TO THE TURN OF THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE AGAINST THE ALLIES, ISSUING LARGE CLAIMS THAT SOME ALLIED TROOPS HAD FLED IN TRANSPORTS DOWN THE GULF OF SALERNO AND THAT AMERICAN CASUALTIES WERE 8,000 TO 10,000 MEN.

THESE SENSATIONAL ACCOUNTS HAD NOT THE SLIGHTEST CONFIRMATION. SO FAR AS COULD BE JUDGED FROM HERE, THE NAZIS WERE BASING THEM IN PART ON THEIR REPORTS OF THE LANDINGS OF ALLIED TROOPS IN THE GULF OF POLICASTRO, FARTHER DOWN THE COAST.

SUCH LANDINGS, OF COURSE, COULD HAVE REPRESENTED THE ARRIVAL OF ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS RATHER THAN ALLIED EVACUATIONS. THE SEA WAS STILL FIRMLY IN ALLIED HANDS.

THE TOWN OF SALERNO WAS THE SCENE OF A VIOLENT STRUGGLE AND CHANGED HANDS SEVERAL TIMES AS THE GERMANS ARE FIGHTING WITH DESPERATION APPARENTLY DICTATED BY THE NECESSITY OF IMPRESSING THE SIMMERING ITALIAN POPULACE IN THE NORTHERN CITIES.

OVER THE BATTLE AREA, AIR WAR IS AT ITS MOST VIOLENT SINCE THE CLOSING STAGES IN NORTH AFRICA. DOGFIGHTS SWIRL OVERHEAD CONTINUOUSLY DURING DAYLIGHT HOURS AND THE NIGHTS ARE FILLED WITH MULTI-COLORED TRACERS.

THE ALLIED AIR FORCES ARE GRADUALLY GAINING DOMINATION BUT THE GERMAN AIR FORCE IS BATTLING WITH DARING WHICH MATCHES THE DESPERATE RESISTANCE OF THE GERMAN ARMY ON LAND.

WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 14--DESPERATE FIGHTING CONTINUED ALONG THE CENTER OF THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD THIS MORNING AS ALLIED INFANTRY, ARTILLERY AND AIRCRAFT ENDEAVORED TO THROW BACK A SPEARHEAD WHICH THE GERMANS, WITH RARE AUDACITY, DROVE TOWARD THE SEA IN A SERIES OF ATTACKS YESTERDAY EVENING.

THE SALERNO PLAIN ROARED AND SHOOK WITH HIGH EXPLOSIVES DURING THE NIGHT AS THE BIG GUNS OF THE OPPOSING FORCES EXCHANGED SALVOS AND THE GERMANS, WHO HAD DRIVEN INTO THE TRIANGLE BETWEEN THE SELE AND CALORE RIVERS BY MEANS OF TANK AND INFANTRY ASSAULTS, ENDEAVORED TO CONSOLIDATE THEIR GAINS.

AT THE PRESENT MOMENT THE AMERICANS ARE VERY HARD-PRESSED.

ALTHOUGH THE ALLIES ENJOY PARTIAL AIR SUPERIORITY THEIR PLANES AS YET HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO EASE THE PRESSURE ON THE GROUND TROOPS. THE ALLIES ARE MAINTAINING A CONSTANT SCREEN OF FIGHTERS OVER THE BATTLE FIELD THROUGH WHICH ONLY AN OCCASIONAL GERMAN FIGHTER OF BOMBER IS ABLE TO PENETRATE.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 13-(DELAYED)-PLAYING POSSUM WITH THE GERMANS ALL AROUND HIM FOR TWO DAYS AND NIGHTS WAS THE UNFAVORABLE EXPERIENCE OF A DRIVER WHO HAS JUST WALKED INTO THE REGIMENTAL POST.

HIS NAME IS PVT.EVERETT RAYBOURNE OF SACRAMENTO, CAL., AND HE'LL BE NONE THE WORSE FOR HIS EXPERIENCE AFTER HE GETS THROUGH EATING AND DRINKING--A THING HE HASN'T DONE FOR 48 HOURS.

HE WAS WITH A GROUP OF AMERICANS WHO WENT OUT TO ENGAGE THE GERMANS AND TRY TO CLEAR THEM FROM A POSITION NORTH OF THE RIVER. THEY HAD SOME SUCCESS AND INCIDENTALLY DISCOVERED GERMAN 88-MM GUNS HIDDEN IN HAYSTACKS ALONG THE WAY. HOWEVER, ONE GERMAN TANK WAS TOO WELL HIDDEN AS THEY PASSED HIM AND HE CRIPPLED THE AMERICAN VEHICLE WITH ONE SHOT.

SOME OF THE AMERICANS JUMPED OUT OF THE CAR BUT MANY WERE MACHINE-GUNNED BEFORE THEY COULD REACH SAFETY. RAYBOURNE JUMPED OVER A HEDGE OF ROSE BUSHES AND FOUND THAT IT HAD A CONVENIENT DITCH AT THE BOTTOM OF IT. HE LAY FLAT ON HIS STOMACH AS THE GERMANS DROVE BY HOPING THAT THEY WOULD THINK HE WAS DEAD, WHICH THEY EVIDENTLY DID. SOON A PATROL CAME ALONG AND HE HEARD THEM TALKING AND LAUGHING AS HE CONTINUED TO PLAY DEAD.

DURING THE NEXT DAY IT WAS STILL WORSE, FOR A PLATOON CAME UP WITH TWO MACHINEGUNS WHICH THEY PLACED AT THIS DITCH WITHIN A FEW YARDS OF HIM AND FIRED FROM THERE FOR AN HOUR.

LAST NIGHT THE GERMANS WITHDREW AT LAST FROM THAT PART OF THE FRONT AND THIS MORNING RAYBOURNE FOUND HIMSELF ALONE AND FREE SO HE WALKED BACK HERE.

THAT HAPPENED TO ONE OTHER AMERICAN WHO HAD LAIN UNDER COVER FOR TWO DAYS BUT HE MADE THE ERROR OF TRYING TO BREAK FOR FREEDOM DURING DAYLIGHT. HE JUST COULDN'T GET AWAY WITH IT AND THE GERMANS TOOK HIM PRISONER.

WITH THE U.S. NAVY INVASION TASK FORCE, SEPT. 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FOR A COUPLE OF DAYS AMERICAN VICE ADMIRAL HENRY K. "I WAS PRETTY WELL BAFFLED ABOUT WHAT TO DO WITH THE BOKE," JOHNSON SAID. "HE STILL HAD TWO TORPEDOES IN THE SUB'S STERN TUBES, AND I DIDN'T LIKE TO TAKE HIM INTO THE CONVOY."

THE ITALIAN SKIPPER CAME ABOARD JOHNSON'S LAUNCH AND THEY TALKED THE SITUATION OVER. THE SUBMARINE SKIPPER INSISTED HE COULD NOT BE CONSIDERED A PRISONER BECAUSE THE ARMISTICE WAS IN EFFECT AND HE WAS FOLLOWING ORDERS IN TAKING HIS CRAFT TO NORTH AFRICA.

VICE ADMIRAL HEWITT WAS NOTIFIED OF THE ADDITION TO THE CONVOY AND TOOK THE SUBMARINE OFF JOHNSON'U HANDS. NOW IT IS EN ROUTE WITH ANOTHER CONVOY TO NORTH AFRICA AFTER LYING NEAR THE ADMIRAL'S SHIP WHILE THE ITALIAN INVASION WAS UNDERWAY.

SALERNO, ITALY, SEPT. 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-GERMAN SOLDIERS RODE THROUGH THE STREETS OF SALERNO MACHINE-GUNNING CIVILIANS AND ITALIAN SOLDIERS AS WELL BEFORE THEY WERE FINALLY DRIVEN OUT OF THE CITY THIS AFTERNOON IN THE SECOND DAY OF BITTER FIGHTING ON THIS NORTHERNMOST SECTOR OF THE ALLIED INVASION FRONT.

AGAINST DESPERATE OPPOSITION, THE ALLIED TROOPS SLOWLY DEEPENED THEIR INVASION BRIDGEHEAD.

WEEPING WOMEN, WHO SAID THE GERMANS ROBBED THEM OF ALL OF THEIR FOOD TWO DAYS AGO, GAVE OUR TROOPS THE SAME SORT OF RIOTIOUS WELCOME THEY RECEIVED WHEN THEY ENTERED THE TOWNS ON SICILY.

EVEN WHILE MACHINE-GUNS RATTLED AT THE EDGE OF THE CITY AND SHELLS BURST NEARBY, PEOPLE CAME FROM THEIR HOUSES TO GREET THE TROOPS.

THE MAYOR, FASCIST LEADERS AND WEALTHIER PEOPLE FLED WHEN THE ALLIES BEGAN THE INVASION. THOSE WHO GREETED US WERE THE POOR PEOPLE WHO HAD NO MEANS OF TRANSPORT OR MONEY WITH WHICH TO GET

OUT OF THE DANGER ZONE. SO THEY STAYED IN SHELTERS WHILE THE GERMANS STRIPPED THEIR HOMES OF SILVER, LINEN, FOOD, WINE AND ANYTHING ELSE OF VALUE THEY COULD FIND.

THE PEOPLE CHEERED THE TROOPS AS THEIR LIBERATORS AND THEY WERE BITTER TOWARD THEIR FORMER ALLIES. UNARMED ITALIAN SOLDIERS WANDERED ABOUT THE STREETS OR GATHERED TO TALK WITH BRITISH TOMMIES AND EXCHANGE SOUVENIRS.

I ENTERED THE CITY THIS AFTERNOON FROM THE FLAGSHIP OF THE AMERICAN REAR ADMIRAL COMMANDING THE NAVAL TASK FORCE AND WAS ACCOMPANIED BY LT. COM. FRANK MORTON, GREENSBORO, N.C., AND LT. COL. OF MARINES JIM BROWER, 234 ROCKINGHAM ST., ROCHESTER, N.Y.

WE CLIMBED INTO A SMALL LANDING CRAFT IN THE GULF AND WERE PILOTED TO THE BEACH.

AN ITALIAN CIVILIAN ON THE BEACH FRANTICALLY SIGNALLED THAT THERE WERE LAND MINES WHERE WE WERE HEADED AND THEN POINTED OUT A SAFE LANE. A BRITISH NAVAL OFFICER LATER SAID THE CIVILIAN HAD SAVED SEVERAL CRAFT FROM HITTING THE MINES.

"MAYBE," SAID BROWER AS HE STEPPED ASHORE, "I'M THE FIRST MARINE TO LAND ON ITALY."

"WELL I KNOW I'M THE FIRST CITIZEN FROM GREENSBORO INTO SALERNO," MORTON LAUGHED.

WE WALKED INTO THE CENTER OF THE CITY. THERE WERE A FEW ALLIED SOLDIERS AND NAVY MEN ON THE STREETS AND A FEW HUNDRED CIVILIANS. MACHINE-GUNS WERE STILL POPPING OUTSIDE THE CITY.

THREE AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT (AMG) HAD ALREADY ARRIVED WITH TROOPS AND POSTED PROCLAMATIONS. ITALIAN CARABINIERI POLICE WHO HAD BEEN DISARMED BY THE GERMANS WORE CIVIL POLICE ARMBANDS AND WERE KEEPING ORDER.

LT. COL. THOMAS A.LANE, 1434 MADISON ST. NW, WASHINGTON, D.C.,

AMG CHIEF FOR THE SALERNO DISTRICT, WAS BUSY ORGANIZING THE CIVIL GOVERNMENT WHICH BOGGED DOWN COMPLETELY AFTER MOST OF THE OFFICIALS HAD FLED. HE WAS AIDED BY CAPT. AUGUSTINE RIOLO, ENDICOTT, N.Y., AND 2ND LT. DONALD MURRAY, LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

THEY ENTERED SALERNO WHEN THE GERMANS AND BRITISH WERE STILL FIGHTING IN THE OUTSKIRTS AND BEGAN TO SET UP THE CIVIL AFFAIRS ORGANIZATION.

THE PEOPLE LIVED IN TERROR THE LAST TWO DAYS AS THE GERMANS LOOTED HOMES AND STORES, DYNAMITED WATER MAINS, STOLE ALL THE FOOD, AND CONFISCATED ALL VEHICLES AND GASOLINE.

"THE GERMANS MACHINE-GUNNED CIVILIANS WALKING DOWN THE STREETS," CAPTAIN RIOLO SAID, "AND THEY CLEANED OUT THE TOWN. THESE PEOPLE HAVEN'T EATEN FOR TWO DAYS, AND THEY ARE LOOKING TO US TO TAKE CARE OF THEM."

AN ITALIAN COLONEL SAID THE SITUATION IN NAPLES WAS DESPERATE WITH THE GERMANS PILLAGING THE CITY AND THREATENING DESTRUCTION OF ITALIAN TROOPS WHOSE AMMUNITION IS RUNNING LOW. THE CIVIL AUTHORITY HAS BROKEN DOWN COMPLETELY, AND NAPLES HAS BECOME A VIRTUAL BATTLE-FIELD.

WITH THE ARMISTICE, ITALIAN NAVAL AND ARMY OFFICERS WITH A FEW MINOR EXCEPTIONS APPEARED TO BE GIVING FULL COOPERATION TO THE ALLIES AND WILLINGLY TURNING AGAINST THEIR ONE-TIME ALLY. IN SOME CASES IT WAS REPORTED THE GERMANS WERE FORCING ITALIAN UNITS TO CONTINUE THE FIGHT, MACHINE-GUNNING THEM IF THEY REFUSED.

CAPTAIN RIOLO SAID, "THEY EXPECTED US TO LAND IN THIS AREA BECAUSE OF THE HEAVY BOMBINGS AND SAID THEY WERE READY TO FIGHT WITH US, BUT IF THEY WERE READY TO FIGHT THEY COULD DO NOTHING AFTER THE GERMANS TOOK THEIR GUNS AND AMMUNITION."

THE SENIOR ITALIAN NAVAL OFFICER IN CHARGE OF SALERNO PORT, CONFERRED WITH THE AMERICAN VICE-ADMIRAL AND GAVE HIM VALUABLE INFORMATION ON THE NAVAL SITUATION INCLUDING CHARTS OF MINEFIELDS ALONG THE COAST.

ADD ALLIED H-Q. N. AFRICA (GALLAGHER) XXX SAID

FROM THE CLOUDY MILITARY AND POLITICAL SITUATION ON THE ITALIAN MAINLAND THE BEST INFORMATION AVAILABLE GAVE THIS PICTURE:

1--GERMANY, WITH 15 TO 20 DIVISIONS IN ITALY AT THE START OF THE CAMPAIGN, HAS POURED INTO THE ITALIAN BOOT TENS OF THOUSANDS MORE SOLDIERS DRAWN FROM FRANCE AND POSSIBLY RUSSIA.

THIS, COMBINED WITH THE REPORTED APPOINTMENT OF FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL AS COMMANDING OFFICER IN ITALY INDICATES THAT GERMANY IS ESTABLISHING A BATTLE LINE WHICH MAY SATISFY EVEN THE RUSSIAN CONCEPT OF A "SECOND FRONT"--ONE WHICH WILL ENGAGE AT LEAST 50 NAZI DIVISIONS.

2--THE GERMANS ALSO ARE REINFORCING THEIR AIR STRENGTH IN ITALY.

3--DESPITE ITALIAN SURRENDER THE GERMANS HAVE A FIRM GRIP ON ALL STRATEGIC POINTS FROM NAPLES NORTH TO THE PO RIVER, WHERE A GREAT FINAL BATTLE MAY WELL DECIDE THE WAR.

4--THE AMERICANS ARE LAUNCHED ON A CAMPAIGN WHICH SEEMS LIKELY TO BE THEIR BIGGEST AND BLOODIEST OF THE WAR AND THE BIGGEST FOR BRITISH TROOPS SINCE THE FALL OF FRANCE.

5--THE ALLIES ENJOY A DEFINITE EDGE ON THE SEA AND IN THE AIR WHILE THE GERMANS FOR THE TIME BEING PROBABLY HAVE LANDED SUPERIORITY, ALTHOUGH THEY ARE HAVING A DIFFICULT TIME MOVING THEIR TROOPS TO MEET ALLIED THRUSTS IN SEVERAL DIRECTIONS.

6--LITTLE HELP CAN BE EXPECTED FROM THE ITALIANS, WHO ARE TIRED OF FIGHTING.

7--THE GERMANS ARE DETERMINED TO USE EVERY INCH OF ITALY AS A

1943

BATTLE GROUND.

8--IF GERMANY IS DEFEATED IN ITALY IT LIKELY MEANS THE COLLAPSE OF HER SATELLITES IN THE BALKANS.

THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE WAR MAY BE DECIDED IN ITALY IS BASED ON THE FACT THAT THE GERMANS SEEM DETERMINED TO MAKE A MAJOR STAND THERE. IF DEFEATED AT THE PO THE GERMANS, BEING MILITARY REALISTS, MAY WELL GIVE UP TO KEEP THEIR COUNTRY FROM BEING OVERRUN AND LAID WASTE.

BRITISH AND CANADIAN BOMBERS CONTINUED THE ATTACK LAST NIGHT.

THE HISTORIC POMPEI AREA WAS ONLY ONE OF MANY DISTRICTS IN THE VICINITY OF NAPLES UNDER HEAVY BOMBARDMENT AS THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIRFORCE CONTINUED RELENTLESSLY ITS EFFORT TO CUT OFF ALL AVENUES OF REINFORCEMENT AND SUPPLY OF THE GERMAN TANK DIVISIONS LOCKED IN FURIOUS BATTLE WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTY ARMY AT SALERNO.

UNITED STATES AND BRITISH FIGHTERS PATCOLLING THE SKIES ABOVE THE SALERNO BEACHHEADS SHOT DOWN TEN OUT OF APPROXIMATELY 120 ENEMY AIRCRAFT, MOSTLY MESSERSCHMITT AND FOCKE-WULF FIGHTER-BOMBERS AND DORNIER MEDIUM BOMBERS, THAT WERE ENCOUNTERED.

OFFICER WHO DUELED TANKS WITH MACHINE GUNS BY MOONLIGHT AND HIMSELF KNOCKED OUT A TANK WITH HIS TOMMY GUN AT 30 YARDS.

"THEY CAN'T MAKE A MEDAL BIG ENOUGH TO REWARD THAT KIND OF BRAVERY," SAID A HIGH RANKING OFFICER OF THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION, AN OUTFIT WHICH SEEMS LIKELY TO EQUAL ITS ACHIEVEMENTS DURING FIRST WORLD WAR DAYS IN FRANCE.

SEP 11 1943

WAYBUR WAS LEADING A RECONNAISSANCE PLATOON DURING THE EARLY MORNING OF JULY 17 WHEN FOUR LIGHT ITALCANTANKS CUT OFF HIS FIRST THREE LIGHT VEHICLES AT A BLOWN OUT BRIDGE. BECAUSE OF THE HIGH WALLS OF A SURROUNDING CANYON THERE WAS NO WAY TO ESCAPE. THE TANKS WERE HEAVILY GUNNED AND ARMORED. THE AMERICAN VEHICLES WERE UNARMORED AND CARRIED ONLY TWO 50 CALIBER GUNS. THE LOGICAL THING WAS SURRENDER, BUT THE YOUNG LIEUTENANT DECIDED TO CARRY THE BATTLE TO THE ENEMY. THERE WAS NO COVER OF ANY KIND. WAYBUR PROMPTLY ORDERED HIS THREE VEHICLES TO DISPERSE AND OPENED FIRE.

BY THEN THREE OF WAYBUR'S SIX MEN WERE WOUNDED, TWO SERIOUSLY. HE HIMSELF WASN'T EXACTLY IN THE BEST OF SHAPE, AND THE LEAD TANK HAD ADVANCED TO WITHIN 30(6-4$' 91 £8')855)3 :9,;96. THE LIEUTENANT

HAD ADVANCED TO WITHIN 30 YARDS OF HIS LITTLE CONVOY. THE LIEUTENANT LIMPED OVER TO HIS VEHICLE, PICKED UP HIS TOMMY GUN AND STEPPED OUT ONTO THE BARE ROAD IN BRIGHT MOONLIGHT. IN SPITE OF FURIOUS ENEMY FIRE HE EMPTIED HIS FULL TWENTY ROUNDS THROUGH AN OPEN PORT OF THE TANK WITH A PROLONGED, ACCURATE BURST. TWO CREWMEN IN THE TANK WERE KILLED WHEN THE HEAVY VEHICLE RUMBLED OVER THE END OF THE DEMOLISHED BRIDGE, OUT OF CONTROL, AND CRASHED INTO THE STREAM. THAT LEFT THREE TANKS STILL IN ACTION. WAYBUR WAS NOW WEAPONLESS, BUT HE DIDN'T FIGURE THAT WAS REASON TO SURRENDER. HE SCATTERED HIS MEN AMONG SPARSE CACTUS PLANTS AND SENT AN UNWOUNDED SOLDIER TO BRING MEDICAL AID AND TO WARN THE REST OF HIS PERSONNEL NOT TO RUSH HEADLONG INTO THE ITALIAN TRAP. FOR TWO HOURS THE TANKS RAKED HIS POSITION WITH FIRE, THEN, AS DAYLIGHT APPROACHED, THE ITALIAN TANKMEN BROKE. FEARFUL BECAYSE OF WAYBUR'S CONTINUED RESISTANCE THAT THEY WERE BEING SURROUNDED BY OVERWHELMING FORCE, THEY ABANDONED THEIR VEHICLES AND RAN. WAYBUR AND HIS WORN AND WOUNDED CREW WERE ABLE TO TURN OVER THE TANKS INTACT WHEN REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVED.

"HIS CONDUCT, VOLUNTARY AND EXEMPLARY IN ITS DARING AND COOLNESS, HIS GALLANTRY AND INTREPID BRAVERY UNDER HEAVY FIRE, HIS RESOURCEFULNESS AND INITIATIVE IN THE FACE OF OVERWHELMING ODDS, WERE AN INSPIRATION TO HIS MEN AND HIS ACTION REFLECTS GREAT CREDIT UPON HIMSELF AND THE MILITARY SERVICE," HIS OFFICIAL CITATION READ. THAT, IN THE OPINION OF THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION, IS PUTTING IT QUITE MILDLY.

--DASH--

AMERICAN SOLDIERS ARE ALWAYS THINKING UP NEW WAYS OF USING THEIR BATTLE EQUIPMENT MORE EFFICIENTLY. IF A NEW IDEA WORKS IT IS ADOPTED BY OTHER TROOPS AND SPREADS THROUGHOUT THE ARMY QUICKLY WITHOUT AN ORDER OF ANY KIND BEING GIVEN.

FOR EXAMPLE, PRIVATE GLENN W.PROPST, 21, OF SALISBURY, N.C., THOUGHT IT UNWIELDLY TO HAVE HIS RIFLE HOLSTER AT THE LEFT OF THE DRIVERS SEAT IN HIS JEEP AS IS CUSTOMARY. HE BUILT A HOLSTER INSIDE THE JEEP TO THE RIGHT OF THE DRIVER. NOW THE RIFLE CAN BE USED BY EITHER THE DRIVER OR

THE FRONT SEAT PASSENGER, HE EXPLAINED. THAT COULD BE PRETTY IMPORTANT DURING A FIGHT. SEVERAL OTHER JEEP DRIVERS WHO HAVE SEEN PROPST'S INSIDE HOLSTER ARE COPYING IT. THERE ARE NO PATENT RIGHTS AT THE FRONTH

THE TURKISH PAPER DRAGGED INTO THE OPEN A SNUB THE RUSSIANS GAVE SUKRU SARACOGLU, THEN FOREIGN MINISTER, WHEN HE WENT TO MOSCOW TO NEGOTIATE A PACT WITH THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT. THE SLIGHT HAS RANKLED IN TURKISH HEARTS SINCE, AND HAS BEEN A MAJOR FACTOR IN IMPAIRING RELATIONS WHICH HAD BEEN GROWING WORSE AS THE WAR PROGRESSED.

THE PAPERBDLL

M

SEP 11 1943

THE PAPER RECALLED THAT SARACOGLU WENT TO MOSCOW IN 1939 TO SIGN A MUTUAL AID AGREEMENT WITH "THE DESIRE AND APPROBATION OF THE SOVIET." WHEN HE ARRIVED, THE AKSAM SAID, "HE FOUND HIMSELF IN THE PRESENSE OF THE GERMAN MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS, AND RETURNED WITH EMPTY HANDS."

THE EDITORIAL SET FORTH THAT THE ACCORD WHICH TURKEY, ALLIED TO FRANCE AND ENGLAND, SHOULD HAVE SIGNED WITH RUSSIA WOULD HAVE COMPLETED DISPOSITIONS FOR THE SECURITY OF EUROPE AND WOULD HAVE PREVENTED THE WAR. IT DECLARED THAT RUSSIA HAD MADE THE WAR IN EUROPE POSSIBLE, THAT SHE HAD PREFERRED TO COME TO AN UNDERSTANDING WITH GERMANY.

"EVEN MORE," THE EDITORIAL WENT ON, "MOLOTOV, VIOLENTLY CRITICIZING THE ANGLO-TURKISH ALLIANCE, DECLARED OPENLY IN A SPEECH THAT TURKEY WOULD REPENT FOR HAVING CONCLUDED THAT ALLIANCE X X X. IT IS NECESSARY TO REMEMBER THAT WHEN TURKEY SIGNED AN ACCORD WITH GERMANY, THE GERMANS WERE IN THE BALKANS AND CRETE, THAT ENGLAND WAS ALONE IN THE FACE OF A DANGEROUS SITUATION AND THAT RUSSIA WAS AT THE MOMENT IN FULL COLLABORATION WITH GERMANY IN HER PARTITION OF POLAND AND THE BALTIC COUNTRIES."

THE BEST INFORMATION IS THAT THE FOREIGN OFFICE HELD TALKS WITH THE RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR, SERGUEI VINOGRADOV, AFTER THE JOURNALISTIC EXCHANGE, AND THE RESULT LIKELY MAY BE A REVIVAL OF CORDIALITY BETWEEN THE NATIONAL NEIGHBORS.

IT IS AN "OPEN SECRET" THAT THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH AMBASSADORS TO TURKEY HAVE BEEN STRIVING TO REPAIR THE STRONG FREINDSHIP WHICH WAS SNAPPED IN THE 1939 DIPLOMATIC MIXUP.

ONE REPORT SAID THE VINOGRADOV HAD ASSURED TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER NUMAN MENEMENCIOGLU RECENTLY THAT TURKISH FEARS OF AN ATTACK FROM BEHIND RUSSIA IF TURKEY ENTERED THE WAR AND PUSHED INTO THE BALKANS, WERE GROUNDLESS.

(CLYDE A.FARNSWORTH, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, HAS RECENTLY ARRIVED IN NEW DELHI, INDIA, AFTER SEVERAL MONTHS WITH THE PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND WHICH HANDLES LEND-LEASE SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA. IN THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE HE TELLS WHAT THE OPENING OF THE MEDITERRANEAN SUPPLY ROUTE CAN MEAN TO THE RED ARMY.)

BY CLYDE A.FARNSWORTH

(ADVANCE) NEW DELHI (AP)-GROWING ALLIED POWER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, TOGETHER WITH A FURTHER POTENTIAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE POSITION IN THAT GENERAL WAR SECTOR, PROMISES A REMARKABLE NEW SHORTENING OF THE NO.1 AMERICAN SUPPLY LINE TO RUSSIA.

IT IS EASY TO IMAGINE THAT THIS IMPROVEMENT IN COMMUNICATIONS WOULD IN TIME STEP UP RUSSIA'S OFFENSIVE POWER TO AN IRRESISTIBLE LEVEL, WITH FAR-REACHING EFFECT ON THE WAR IN EUROPE.

ALREADY THE OLD 17,000-MILE SHIPPING ROUTE FROM AMERICA AROUND THE AFRICAN CAPE TO THE PERSIAN GULF HAS BEEN BETTERED BY THOUSANDS OF MILES AND SHIPPING TIME MORE THAN HALVED THROUGH DIVERSION OF SOME CARGO THROUGH THE MEDITERRANEAN, THE SUEZ CANAL, THE RED SEA AND THE ARABIAN SEA TO THE PERSIAN GULF.

NOW THE STRATEGISTS OF SUPPLY ARE ATTRACTED BY AN EVEN MORE DIRECT APPROACH TO THE RUSSIAN FRONT THROUGH WHICH THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN REGION, 6,000 MILES FROM THE AMERICAN EAST COAST, MIGHT BECOME THE FIRST DUMPING GROUND OF THE BULK OF AMERICAN AID TO THE U.S.S.R.

IF THE UNITED STATES ARMY SUPPLY FORCE WERE TO FORWARD THE MATERIEL FROM THERE WITH DISPATCH COMPARABLE TO THAT ALREADY SHOWN BY ITS PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND IN THE DIFFICULT IRANIAN CORRIDOR, THE VOLUME OF AID MIGHT BE DOUBLED.

THE POSITION OF NON-BELLIGERENT TURKEY, WITH HER OWN RUSSIA-CONNECTED RAIL SYSTEM, OBVIOUSLY IS OF PRIME IMPORTANCE IN CONTEMPLATING A SHIFT OF THE RUSSIAN SUPPLY EFFORT TO THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN.

SPECULATION ALSO TOUCHES NATURALLY ON THE MOBILITY AND FLEXIBILITY OF THE PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND WHICH IN IRAN HAS BEEN ASSEMBLING PLANES AND TRUCKS AND FORWARDING THEM ALONG WITH AMMUNITION, FOODSTUFFS AND A GREAT LIST OF OTHER SUPPLIES.

1943

DESPITE THE SEMI-PERMANENT NATURE OF THE AMERICAN INSTALLATIONS IN IRAN--A TREMENDOUS INVESTMENT OF WAR FUNDS SCATTERED FROM THE GULF TO THE MOUNTAINOUS NORTH--ELEMENTS OF, OR EVEN THE WHOLE COMMAND, MIGHT BE READILY LIFTED OUT OF IRAN AND SET DOWN ON AN EASIER, FASTER AND MORE DIRECT SUPPLY LINE TO THE SOVIETS.

SEP 11 1943

IF THE IRANIAN SUPPLY LINE WERE TO BE RETAINED AS A SUPPLEMENTARY ROUTE SOME OF THE MOST IMPORTANT ESTABLISHMENTS, SUCH AS PLANE AND TRUCK ASSEMBLY PLANTS, STILL MIGHT BE TRANSFERRED.

ONE RESPONSIBLE OFFICER, FOR EXAMPLE, TOLD ME BEFORE MY DEPARTURE FROM IRAN THAT THE FACILITIES FOR SERVICING THE FLOWN-IN BOMBERS AND ASSEMBLING THE SHIPPED-IN FIGHTING PLANES COULD BE PACKED ON TRUCKS IN 72 HOURS AND MOVED OVERLAND TO ANY DESIRED LOCATION WITHIN THREE WEEKS.

THE SAME IS RELATIVELY TRUE OF THE TRUCK ASSEMBLY PLANTS, ALTHOUGH THEIR HEAVIER EQUIPMENT WOULD OFFER GREATER HANDICAPS IN TRANSPORT.

THE MOTOR TRANSPORT OF THE PERSIAN GULF SERVICE COMMAND NATURALLY IS THE MOST MOBILE ELEMENT OF THE COMMAND--TOGETHER WITH THE THOUSANDS OF WORKER-SOLDIERS AND TRANSPORTATION SPECIALISTS WHO MAKE UP THE PGSC.

AMERICAN ROLLING STOCK ON THE TRANSIRANIAN RAILWAY WOULD BE THE HARDEST OF ALL FACILITIES TO MOVE. APART FROM A DIFFERENCE IN GAUGE BETWEEN THIS STANDARD-GAUGE LINE AND THE NEAREST RAILWAY OUTSIDE IRAN --THE IRAQI STATE RAILWAY--THERE IS NO JUNCTION POINT.

THE GREAT FLEET OF DIESEL-ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES WHICH THE AMERICANS TOOK TO IRAN WOULD HAVE TO BE LEFT AS BACKSHEESH FOR THE IRANIAN GOVERNMENT, ALONG WITH HUNDREDS OF FREIGHT CARS, NEW FACILITIES IN SHOPS AND YARDS AND MANY MILES OF NEW SIDINGS.

THE BULK OF AMERICAN AID TO RUSSIA HAS FOR MONTHS BEEN CARRIED HALF-WAY ROUND THE WORLD EVEN BEFORE STARTING ON THE LABORIOUS MOVEMENT NORTHWARD ACROSS IRAN'S DESERTS, MOUNTAINS AND TABLE LANDS, INTO RUSSIA VIA THE MOUNTAINOUS CAUCASUS OR THE CASPIAN.

DUMPING THESE CARGOES AT THE EASTERN END OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WOULD KNOCK WEEKS OFF SHIPPING TIME AND IF FERRIED PLANES WERE TO USE THE MEDITERRANEAN ROUTE DAYS COULD BE CUT OFF THE FLYING TIME. WITH A MORE ADVANCED SERVICE AND ASSEMBLY CENTER, THE RED AIR FORCE COULD TAKE THEIR NEW PLANES DIRECTLY INTO BATTLE IN A MATTER OF HOURS.

THE FEASIBILITY OF THE MEDITERRANEAN ROUTE FOR FERRIED PLANES DEPENDS OF COURSE ON THEIR FUEL CAPACITY. THE SHORTER OCEAN HOPE OF THE SOUTH ATLANTIC ALREADY PRESS THE SAFETY FACTOR IN THE AUXILIARY TANKS OF THE A-20 ATTACK BOMBERS. THEY ARE REGARDED AS THE MOST IMPORTANT AMERICAN AIR WEAPON BEING DELIVERED TO RUSSIA.

THE LONG WAY AROUND AFRICA TO THE PERSIAN GULF REQUIRES AS MUCH AS 100 DAYS FOR THE SEA PASSAGE AND ABOUT A WEEK FOR THE AIR TRIP.

CARGOES THAT HAVE GONE RECENTLY TO THE PERSIAN GULF THROUGH THE MEDITERRANEAN WERE 40 DAYS IN TRANSIT, BUT IF THE DUMPING PLACE FOR RUSSIAN SHIPMENTS WERE THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN THIS TIME COULD BE HALVED ONCE AGAIN--WHICH IS ANOTHER WAY OF MULTIPLYING SHIPS AND SHIPPING SPACE BY TWO.

THE CITATION ACCOMPANYING HIS AWARD SAID: "FOR EXTRAORDINARY ACHIEVEMENT WHILE PARTICIPATING IN 50 OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA, DURING WHICH HOSTILE CONTACT WAS PROBABLE AND EXPECTED, THESE OPERATIONS CONSISTED OF DROPPING SUPPLIES AND TRANSPORTING TROOPS TO ADVANCED POSITIONS. THESE FLIGHTS INVOLVED FLYING AT EXTREMELY LOW ALTITUDES OVER MOUNTAINOUS TERRAIN UNDER ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS IN A TRANSPORT AIRPLANE AND OFTEN NECESSITATED LANDING WITHIN A FEW MILES OF ENEMY BASES. THROUGHOUT THESE FLIGHTS OUTSTANDING ABILITY AND DEVOTION TO DUTY WERE DEMONSTRATED."

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,SEPT.14-(AP)-ALLIED HEADQUARTERS TODAY REPORTED TEN STRIKES AGAINST JAPANESE BASES RANGING FROM A HEAVY BOMBER RAID ON MAKASSAR IN CELEBES, 1,000 STATUTE MILES NORTHWEST OF AUSTRALIA IN THE DUTCH EAST INDIES, TO DIVE-BOMBING ATTACKS ON VILA IN THE SOLOMONS.

SEP 11 1943

AMERICAN LIBERATORS CARRIED OUT THE HEAVIEST ATTACKS AT MAKASSAR, SCARRED AND SINGED BY 27 TONS OF BOMBS, AND AT LAE, 18 MILES NORTH OF CAPTURED SALAMAUA IN NEW GUINEA, WHERE 49 TONS OF BOMBS CAME DOWN WITH DESTRUCTIVE FORCE.

(TWO ALLIED PLANES IN ALL WERE LISTED AS MISSING BY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE IN TELLING OF THE TEN RAIDS ON ENEMY BASES. ONE BOMBER FAILED TO RETURN FROM THE MISSION TO MAKASSAR, AND A MEDIUM TORPEDO OR DIVE BOMBER WAS LOST IN ATTACKS ON JAPANESE INSTALLATIONS AT VILA ON KOLOMBANGARA).

FIGHTER-ESCORTED LIBERATORS DROPPED THOUSAND POUND BOMBS IN THE LAE AREA SUNDAY MORNING, CONCENTRATING THE WEIGHT OF THEIR EXPLOSIVES ON GUN EMPLACEMENTS. PILOTS REPORTED 53 DIRECT HITS ON THESE TARGETS. TWO GUN POSITIONS WERE SILENCED, OTHERS SHATTERED WITH SHRAPNEL. JAPANESE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS DESCRIBED AS "OF MINOR INTENSITY."

IN THE NORTHWESTERN SECTOR, THE ALLIED PLANES STRUCK OUT ON A TWO-THOUSAND MILE TRIP TO ATTACK JAPANESE OIL INSTALLATIONS AT MAKASSAR, ONCE A THRIVING DUTCH BASE. DIRECT HITS WERE SCORED IN THE STORAGE TANK SECTION AND AMONG BARRACKS. NUMEROUS FIRES -- LARGE AND SMALL -- FLARES UP AS THE BOMBS FOUND THEIR MARKS.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS ACCURATE AND INTENSE DURING THE TWO-HOUR ATTACK.

MEANWHILE, MITCHELL BOMBERS SWEPT THE NEW GUINEA COASTAL AREA AT LOW LEVEL FROM SAIDOR TO LANGEMAK BAY, EXPENDING 2000 ROUNDS OF 50 CALIBER AMMUNITION. FIVE LOADED BARGES WERE DESTROYED, AND A POWER LAUNCH WAS CAPSIZED BY A BOMB.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, WEDNESDAY, SEPT.15-(AP)-JAPANESE PLANE REINFORCEMENTS AROUND WEWAK, NEW GUINEA, WHERE MORE THAN 360 ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED IN AUGUST AFTER BEING CAUGHT WING TIP TO WING TIP, WERE SMASHED MONDAY BY A STRONG FORCE OF LIBERATORS-- WHO AGAIN FOUND MANY PLANES LINED UP IN THE SAME NEAT BUT VULNERABLE FORMATION.

PILOTS RETURNING FROM THE RAID ON AIRDROMES AT DAGUA AND BUT (CORRECT) SAID THE ENEMY PLANES WERE NOT IN SUCH STRENGTH AS THEY WERE ENCOUNTERED IN THE AUGUST RAIDS BUT THEY WERE GOOD TARGETS.

(A COMMUNIQUE TODAY FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA REPORTED THE LIBERATORS SET FIRE TO BETWEEN 20 (CORRECT) AND 25 PLANES ON THE GROUND WHILE ESCORTING FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN EIGHT FOR CERTAIN AND FOUR OTHERS PROBABLY OUT OF 40 ENEMY INTERCEPTORS).

ALTHOUGH MANY ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE IN THE AIR AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS ENCOUNTERED, ALL THE LIBERATORS GOT BACK BUT ONE HAD A NARROW ESCAPE. AS THE BOMBER, PILOTED BY 1 LT. CARL ELKSTRAND OF LYONS, NEB., NEARED WEWAK, ONE ENGINE CUT OUT. ELKSTRAND COMPLETED THE RUN IN FORMATION, THEN TURNED HOME ON THREE ENGINES.

WD

3024-8435

AS HE MADE THE APPROACH FOR A LANDING, TWO MORE ENGINES QUIT. LIEUTENANT ELKSTRAND LANDED WITH ONLY ONE ENGINE FUNCTIONING, QUITE A FEAT FOR A HEAVY LIBERATOR.

BEFORE THE BOMBERS MADE THEIR RUNS, ESCORTING LIGHTNINGS WENT AHEAD TO TANGLE WITH 15 TO 20 JAPANESE FIGHTERS, STACKED IN ELEMENTS FROM 5,000 TO 7,000 FEET LOOKING FOR LOW-FLYING STRAFING PLANES.

CAPT.NORBERT C.RUFF, OF BLOOMER, WIS., SENT DOWN TWO ENEMY FIGHTERS IN FLAMES.

OVER THE MARKHAM VALLEY, ALLIED FIGHTERS RAN INTO 40 ENEMY PLANES ENROUTE TO MAKE A RAID ON OUR POSITIONS. OUT OF THESE, CAPT.WILLIAM BANKS, OF RALEIGH, W.VA., MADE HIS FIRST KILL.

LT.ROBERT SUTCLIFFE, OF TRENTON, N.J., PROBABLY DOWNED ONE.

LT.LAWRENCE O'NEILL, OF ST.LOUIS, MO., GOT A JAPANESE BOMBER DURING THIS FIGHT WITH THE NUMERICALLY SUPERIOR ENEMY FORCE.

(THIS ACCOUNT VARIED FROM THAT CONTAINED IN GENERAL MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID THE 40 FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED THE RAIDERS IN THE WEWAK SECTOR. THE MARKHAM VALLEY IS IN THE GROUND FIGHTING SECTOR NEAR LAE.)

WITH ALLIED FORCES WEST OF LAE, NEW GUINEA,SEPT.13-(DELAYED)-(AP)- AMERICAN PARATROOPERS LANDED LADEN SO HEAVILY WITH BATTLE EQUIPMENT THAT THEY CARRIED ONLY THE BAREST ESSENTIALS OF PERSONAL GEAR.

MOST OF THE OFFICERS AND MEN DIDN'T EVEN BRING RAZORS SINCE EVEN THE BULKY POCKETS OF THEIR HIGHLY PRACTICAL JUMP SUITS WERE CRAMMED WITH AMMUNITION. THUS AT MAIL CALL TODAY -- THE FIRST THEY HAVE HAD -- THERE WERE MANY FLOURISHING FULL BEARDS TO BE SEEN.

CLUSTERED IN ONE LEANTO -- AN ENTIRE OUTFIT HADN'T SO MUCH AS A MOSQUITO BAR AMONG THEM -- WERE GROUPS OF OFFICERS INCLUDING CAPTAINS HARRIS MITCHELL, HUNTSVILLE,LA., A VETERAN OF NINE YEARS IN THE ARMY; LAWSON B.CASKEY, BIENVILLE,LA., SIGNAL OFFICER; ROBERT M.ATKINS, 1520 SOUTHWEST 14TH ST., MIAMI,FLA.;

LT.LESTER E.BYRD, 7631 EAST LAKE TERRACE, CHICAGO, CHEMICAL WARFARE OFFICER; 2ND LT.CHARLES J.WARNER, 179 SANTEE, ROCHESTE,N.Y., AND WARRANT OFFICER DONALD A.CRAWFORD, 305 NORTH ANDREWS, DOTHAN,ALA.

MITCHELL WHO WAS WINNER OF AN OFFICERS' POOL ON THE JUMP (WORTH 30 DAY LEAVE IN SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, AS WELL AS A POT OF SEVERAL HUNDRED POUNDS) SAID ORIGINALLY IT HAD BEEN PLANNED TO DROP A JEEP WITH THE PARATROOPERS.

"IT WAS PROBABLY JUST AS WELL THEY DIDN'T," HE SAID, "BECAUSE IN THAT LOUSY HIGH GRASS IT PROBABLY NEVER WOULD HAVE BEEN FOUND."

LT.WARNER BROKE IN:

"I THOUGHT FOR A WHILE I WAS TURNING INTO A SOFTY. I'D TAKE 20 STEPS THROUGH THAT SIX FOOT HIGH KUNAI GRASS, THEN FALL FLAT ON MY FACE. BUT IT DIDN'T TAKE ME LONG TO DISCOVER I WASN'T THE ONLY ONE."

CAPT.CASKEY WAS MOST ANXIOUS TO GIVE FULL CREDIT TO HIS SIGNAL-MEN.

"THESE BOYS IN ADDITION TO THEIR WEAPONS MADE LOW ALTITUDE JUMPS WITH ALL OF OUR RADIOS AND COMMUNICATION EQUIPMENT EXCEPT

1943

FOR ONE TYPE OF SET WHICH WEIGHS MORE THAN 100 POUNDS. THERE WERE SOME LOADS, EXCLSUIVE OF REGULAR AND RESERVE PARACHUTES WHICH TOPPED 60 POUNDS.

CASKEY TOOK THE GREATEST PRIDE IN THE PERFORMANCE OF PFC JAMES S.FEATHER, SMITHFIELD,PA. IT WAS FEATHER'S ASSIGNMENT UPON HITTING THE GROUND TO IMMEDIATELY ESTABLISH COMMUNICATION WITH A UNIT OF AUSTRALIAN PIONEERS WHO HAD BEEN WAITING ON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE MARKHAM RIVER UNTIL PARATROOPERS LANDED ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE RIVER AROUND NADZAB AIRDROME.

FEATHER DID HIS JOB SO WELL HE WAS TALKING TO THE AUSTRALIANS WITHIN TWO MINUTES AFTER HE STRUCK THE EARTH.

IN THAT TWO MINUTES HE HAD TO UNHARNESS HIS PARACHUTE, UNSTRAP HIS RADIO WHICH HAD SMACKED HIM IN THE NOSE UPON LANDING, AND SET UP HIS EQUIPMENT.

SEP 11 1943

"I GUESS THOSE AUSSIES WERE SURPRISED TO HEAR FROM ME SO SOON," FEATHERS DRAWLED. "BUT THEN I WAS JUST ABOUT AS SURPRISED TO FIND THEM LISTENING IN."

AMONG THE MEN WHO SWEATED OUT THE MAIL CALL WERE:

SGT.JOHN E.NEWSON, ROUTE 2, SEAFORD,ILL.; CORPS.FRANK G.ARRIGO, EAST CHICAGO,IND., STANLEY BOBIS, 1228 TAFT ST., GARY, IND., AND CLIFFORD L.BUTLER, 3592 BOGART ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO; PVTS.WILLIAMS ALLEN, ROUTE 1, PAOLI,IND., JOHN M. KUBKO, 524 LILLIBRIDGE, DETROIT, H.T.POSEY, ROYAL STATION, SHELBYVILLE,TENN., CHARLES METEA, 111 STEVENS ST., HIGHLAND PARK,MICH., AND PFC.RICHARD H.BURTON, 129 ARLINGTON AVE., TORONTO,CANADA.

MUNDA AIRDROME, SEPT.5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-NEW FLYING ACES STILL ARE BEING MADE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC BUT THE GOING IS HARDER, SAYS THE FIRST MARINE FIGHTER PILOT TO SHOOT DOWN A JAPANESE PLANE IN THE PACIFIC WAR.

SEP 11 1943

BOMBING NOW IS GETTING THE ATTENTION.

"TACTICS HAVE CHANGED, FOR THE PRESENT," EXPLAINED MARINE CORPS MAJ.JAMES L.NEEFUS, 32, OF ROCKAWAY BEACH, LONG ISLAND, N.Y., COMMANDER OF THE FLYING PIRATES SQUADRON OF CORSAIRS, WHO SHOT DOWN A JAPANESE BOMBER OVER MIDWAY ISLAND LAST YEAR.

"IT'S NO LONGER A BIG DOG FIGHT ALL THE TIME; NOT IN THE SOLOMONS.

"MUCH OF OUR WORK IS ESCORTING BOMBERS IN STRIKES AT KAHILI, THE JAPANESE AIRDROME UP THE LINE ON BOUGAINVILLE. ONE OF OUR CORSAIR PILOTS, PROTECTING A BOMBER, IS DOING A MORE IMPORTANT JOB BY KEEPING FORMATION AND HELPING THE BOMBER PERFORM ITS MISSION THAN HE WOULD BE DOING IF HE WENT OFF LOOKING FOR ZEROS."

NEEFUS' SQUADRON IN THE LAST SIX WEEKS HAS DOWNED 26 ENEMY PLANES IN FIGHTING AROUND MUNDA, KOLOMBANGARA, VELLA LA VELLA AND KAHILI.

THE NEWEST MARINE CORSAIR PILOT TO SHOOT DOWN FIVE PLANES, WINNING THE RATING OF AN ACE, WAS CAPT.DON ALDRICH, 26, OF CHICAGO. ALDRICH, A FORMER ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE FLYER, WAS ON A PATROL NEAR KAHILI THREE DAYS AGO WHEN HE SHOT DOWN TWO ZEROS. HE PREVIOUSLY HAD BEEN CREDITED WITH THREE PLANES.

MUNDA AIRDROME, SEPT.4-(DELAYED)-(AP)-OUT OF A GRAY TWIST OF A CLOUD A MARINE CORPS FLYING ACE SWOOPED DOWN ON KAHILI AIRDROME.

IN A FEW MOMENTS HIS PLANE WAS SKIMMING THE TREE TOPS, AND THEN HE WAS OVER THE FIELD.

HIS MACHINE GUNS BEGAN FIRING. THE BULLETS ZIPPED INTO JAPANESE AIRCRAFT JUST LINED UP FOR THE DAWN PATROL TAKEOFF. EIGHT ZEROS BEGAN TO BLAZE. OTHERS WERE HIT SO BADLY THEY NEVER TOOK TO THE AIR THAT DAY.

WHEN HE HAD DONE ALL THE DAMAGE POSSIBLE, THE MARINE FLIER VANISHED AS QUICKLY AS HE HAD COME, LEAVING AN ANGRY SWARM OF JAPANESE AVIATORS GROUNDED AT THEIR BIG BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND BASE.

SEP 11 1943

THE STRAFER WAS 1ST LT.ALVIN J.JENSEN, 23, OF 1236 11TH N.W. WASHINGTON, D.C., A MARINE FLIER WHO ROSE FROM THE RANKS OF ENLISTED MEN.

HE HAD NOT BEEN ASSIGNED TO DO THE JOB BY HIMSELF. THERE WERE 15 OTHER CORSAIR PILOTS SOMEWHERE IN THE CLOUDS, BUT IN THE DARKNESS OF A PRE-DAWN STORM, JENSEN HAD BEEN UNABLE TO LOCATE THE OTHERS AT THE APPOINTED RENDEZVOUS, AND HE DID THE JOB ALONE.

AS HE TOLD HIS COMMANDING OFFICER LATER, IT WASN'T THE KIND OF JOB YOU WANT TO TACKLE EVERY DAY, BUT IT WAS SATISFYING TO SEE THE ZEROS BURN. AND, JENSEN ADDED, IT WAS A LOT EASIER TO KNOCK THEM OFF ON THE GROUND THAN KNOCK THEM DOWN OUT OF THE AIR.

JENSEN OUGHT TO KNOW ABOUT THAT, BECAUSE HE ALREADY HAD QUALIFIED AS AN ACE, WITH SIX PLANES DOWNED IN COMBAT.

THE STRAFING, ON AUGUST 28. WAS THE FIRST OF THREE IN LESS THAN A WEEK AT KAHILI.

MAJ.R.G.OWENS, 26, GREENVILLE, S.C., FURMAN UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, LED 16 PLANES IN A STRAFING MISSION OVER KAHILI ON THE MORNING OF SEPTEMBER 1. EXACT RESULTS WERE NOT OBSERVED BECAUSE OF THE WEATHER. ALL ATTACKING PLANES RETURNED SAFELY.

AGAIN ON THE AFTERNOON OF SEPTEMBER 3, MAJOR OWENS TOOK A STRAFING MISSION OVER THE JAPANESE FIELD, PUMPING MACHINE GUN SLUGS INTO 30 PLANES ON THE GROUND.

OWENS WAS ACCOMPANIED BY 1ST LT.ROGER CONANT, 24, MARINETTE, WIS., A UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN GRADUATE AND 1ST LT.GRAFTON STIDGER, 24, WHO ENTERED THE MARINES AT CHARLESTON, W.VA.

RUSSELL ISLANDS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, AUG. 30-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE TALL PILOT REMEMBERED THAT FIGHT OVER VELLA LA VELLA, NOT SO MUCH BECAUSE HE AND HIS PAL WERE OUTNUMBERED BY ZEROS 16 TO 2, BUT BECAUSE THAT TURNED OUT TO BE HIS BEST DAY IN THE AIR SO FAR.

HE DOWNED THREE ZEROS, AND THE WINGMAN GOT ONE.

"THE ODDS WERE A LITTLE HEAVY THAT DAY," SAID THE LANKY FLIER, LT. WALTER B.MAYBERRY, 28, 811 NORTH BEACH STREET, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA., ONETIME UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA BACKFIELD STAR.

"WE'RE USED TO MEETING THREE AND FOUR OF THEM, TO ONE OF US. BUT THEN WE HAD A LITTLE ADVANTAGE. WE SURPRISED THEM AND KNOCKED FOUR OUT OF THE 16, BETWEEN US, BEFORE THE ZEROS KNEW WHAT HIT THEM."

MAYBERRY, WHO ALREADY HAD ONE PLANE TO HIS CREDIT BEFORE THE VELLA LA VELLA FIGHT, AND NEEDS ONLY ONE MORE TO MAKE IT FIVE AND BECOME AN ACCREDITED ACE, IS A MARINE CORSAIR PILOT.

HE WAS FLYING AT VELLA LA VELLA WITH LT. MAURICE NOONAN, EAGLE GROVE, IOWA, THE WINGMAN WHO GOT ONE ZERO WHILE MAYBERRY WAS GETTING THREE.

BOTH ARE MEMBERS OF THE EIGHT-BALL SQUADRON OF MARINE FIGHTERS, COMMANDED BY MAJOR RICHARD BAKER, SALEM, ORE. SEP 11 1943

"WHEN YOU'RE FIGHTING ZEROS," MAYBERRY EXPLAINED, "THE IMPORTANT THING IS TO HAVE A PARTNER. HE COVERS YOUR TAIL, AND YOU COVER HIS, IN A MANEUVER WE CALL SCISSORING."

RENDOVA ISLAND (DELAYED)--IT WAS SPONTANEOUSLY NAMED "SUICIDE POINT" AFTER A STRAFING AND TWO SEVERE BOMBINGS MADE IT THE HOTTEST SPOT OF THIS HOT SPOT.

THE TINY PENINSULA, EXTENDING INTO RENDOVA HARBOR, IS A NATURAL POSITION FOR DEFENSE GUNS, AND NATURALLY, A PROMINENT TARGET FOR THE JAP WAR PLANES.

ONCE, THE FIRST DAY OF THE AMERICAN INVASION, A JAP STRAFER PELTED THE PALM-GROVED CAPE, AND OUR MARINE SHORT-RANGE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS SHOT IT DOWN.

A SECOND TIME IT WAS A HUGE FLIGHT OF JAP BOMBERS, BREAKING THROUGH OUR AERIAL SCREEN IN MURKY WEATHER. BOMBS LITERALLY RAINED ON "SUICIDE POINT."

THE JAPS RETURNED TWO DAYS LATER, AND THOUGH THE 16-PLANE FORCE WAS COMPLETELY WIPED OUT BY OUR MARINE ACK-ACK BATTERIES AND AMERICAN FIGHTER PLANES, SIX RAIDERS MANAGED TO UNLOAD THEIR BOMBS--AGAIN ON "SUICIDE POINT."

"SUICIDE POINT" HASN'T BEEN ABANDONED. MOST OF THE ORIGINAL GUN CREWS ARE STILL HOLDING ON DOGGEDLY AND HAVE BEEN REINFORCED BY NEW MEN. THEIR JOB IS AN UNENVIABLE ONE.

THERE'S PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JERRY H.GRUETER, 30, OF 4942 RELLEUM STREET, CINCINNATI, OHIO, STILL BY HIS MACHINE GUN. HE AND HIS BUDDY WERE EATING CHOW WHEN THE JAP BOMBERS FIRST SNEAKED IN. PRIVATE FIRST CLASS GRUETER DIVED HEAD FIRST INTO THE GUNPIT TO GET HIS GUN INTO ACTION, BUT HIS BUDDY NEVER MADE IT. A BOMB BURST RIGHT BEHIND, AND SERIOUSLY INJURED HIM.

FIFTY YARDS AWAY A 500-POUNDER MISSILE STRUCK CLOSE BY ANOTHER GUN CREW. ONE MAN WAS KILLED, FIVE WOUNDED AND EVACUATED. THE REMAINING MEMBERS OF THE CREW ARE STILL STANDING BY. THEY ARE PRIVATE RICHARD T.DRIVER, 23, A CHEROKEE INDIAN, OF CHEROKEE, N.C.; PRIVATE FIRST CLASS RAYMOND O. WILLITS, 22, OF 2159 RILLGER STREET, DETROIT, PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JOHN A. NOLAN, JR., 23, OF 524 LONSDALE AVENUE, PAWTUCKET, R.I.; PRIVATE CLIFFORD M.BORCHERS, 19, CRESCENT SPRINGS, KY.

AT A THIRD GUN, ONLY ONE MAN OUT OF AN EIGHT-MAN CREW, ESCAPED UNSCATHED WHEN A BOMB DROPPED ONLY FIVE YARDS AWAY. THE LUCKY MARINE IS PRIVATE FIRST CLASS RICHARD E.NEWBOLD, 20, OF RICHMOND,

1943

3024- 8439

IND. PRIVATE FIRST CLASS REGINALD H.CONNERS, 19, OF LIVERMORE FALLS, ME., CARRIED ON EVEN THOUGH STRUCK BY SHRAPNEL.

WHILE ONE BOMB INCAPACITATED SEVERAL MEMBERS OF HIS CREW, ANOTHER BOMB BLEW UP THE SHACK, AND ALL PERSONAL BELONGINGS, OF SERGEANT JOHN M.TRUSZ, 24, OF LUDLOW, MASS. ONLY A ROSARY ESCAPED THE FIERY DESTRUCTION.

THREE MEN HAD TO BE EVACUATED WHEN TWO PROJECTILES LANDED BY A FIFTH GUN. ALL WERE IN THE GUNPIT AND HIT THE DECK WHEN THEY SAW AND HEARD THE BOMBS FALL. APPARENTLY THE BOMB CARRIED THE NAMES OF THREE ONLY, FOR THREE OTHERS WERE UNHURT. STILL IN THEIR FIRING AT THIS WRITING WERE CORPORAL JAMES H.MCNAMARA, 23, OF 126 SMITHFIELD AVENUE, PAWTUCKETT, R.I.; PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JOE KELLY, 25, OF 339 WEST WASHINGTON AVENUE, ELMIRE, N.Y.; AND PRIVATE FIRST CLASS EDWARDS ENGLISH, 21, FORMER ALL-STATE FOOTBALL GUARD, OF 11 LEWIS STREET, EVERETT, MASS.

POMPEI, WHOSE VICINITY WAS BOMBED BY ALLIED PLANES YESTERDAY, WAS WIPED OUT BY THE GREAT ERUPTION OF NEARBY MT.VESUVIUS IN THE YEAR 79. IT DROPPED INTO OBLIVION FOR CENTURIES, WAS RESTORED IN MODERN TIMES AND TODAY RANKS AS ONE OF THE CHIEF SOURCES OF KNOWLEDGE OF THE DOMESTIC LIFE OF THE ANCIENTS.

AFTER IT WAS VANQUISHED BY ROMAN ARMS, POMPEI SOON BECAME A FASHIONABLE RESORT FOR THE ROMAN NOBILITY WHO BUILT STATELY VILLAS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD. CICERO'S LETTERS ARE FILLED WITH REFERENCES TO HIS POMPEIAN VILLA.

AN EARTHQUAKE WRECKED THE CITY IN THE YEAR 63. THE INHABITANTS WERE STILL ACTIVE IN REPAIRING THE RUINS, INCLUDING MOST OF THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS, WHEN THE WHOLE CITY WAS BURIED BY THE ERUPTION.

FROM THE NUMBER OF SKELETONS DISCOVERED, IT IS BELIEVED THAT SOME 2,000 PERSONS PERISHED.

POMPEI THEN WAS ALMOST COMPLETELY FORGOTTEN. BUT IN 1748 DITCH CUTTINGS REVEALED THE RUINS AND 15 YEARS LATER SYSTEMATIC EXCAVATIONS WERE BEGUN.

THE DIGGINGS HAVE BROUGHT TO LIGHT ALMOST THE ENTIRE TOWN, JUST AS IT WAS QUITTED BY THE PANIC STRICKEN INHABITANTS NEARLY 1900 YEARS

NIGHT LEAD UNDATED GERMAN

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEP 11 1943

THE GERMAN RADIO CLAIMED LAST NIGHT (TUES) THAT THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY AT SALERNO "IS IN A VERY PRECARIOUS POSITION, WITH THE GERMANS IN THE WHOLE SECTOR X X X HOLDING THE INITIATIVE FIRMLY IN THEIR HANDS X X X."

EARLIER THE GERMAN RADIO HAD SAID THE ALLIES WERE ABANDONING THE SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD AND WITHDRAWING BY SEA, BUT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA REPORTED FRESH RESERVES WERE BEING SPED TO THE BATTLE FRONT.

THE ALLIES DID SAY, HOWEVER, THAT FIERCE GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS HAD WON BACK SOME GROUND FOR THE NAZIS.

THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, IN A BROADCAST HEARD BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID THE AMERICANS AT SALERNO "HAVE HAD BUT LITTLE FIGHTING EXPERIENCE" AND ARE FACING VETERAN GERMAN TROOPS WHO WERE TRANSFERRED TO ITALY FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

THE GERMAN RADIO SAID THE WITHDRAWAL TO THE SEA AT FIRST WAS IRREGULAR BUT NOW HAD "ASSUMED MAJOR EXTENT" AND "THERE ARE SEVERAL INDICATIONS THAT THE BEATEN AMERICANS ARE IN A RATHER DEMORALIZED CONDITION AND ARE FLEEING TOWARDS THE SHIPS PARTLY IN ABSOLUTE DISORDER X X X."

...WES GALLAGHER, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, HOWEVER, REPORTED THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS ALIVE WITH SHIPS AND PLANES AS REINFORCEMENTS WERE SENT TO THE FIFTH ARMY UNDER THE DIRECT SUPERVISION OF GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER.

THE SHUTTLING OF THE SHIPS BACK AND FORTH ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN MIGHT HAVE BEEN THE BASIS FOR THE GERMAN EVACUATION REPORT.

AT THE SAME TIME THE NAZI RADIO CLAIMED THAT THE GERMANS WERE MAKING THE PROGRESS OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, MOVING UP FROM SOUTHERN ITALY, SO SLOW THAT "IT IS HARDLY TO BE EXPECTED" IT WILL ARRIVE IN TIME "TO RELIEVE THE PRESSURE ON THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY."

"THE SAME HOLDS GOOD IN REGARD TO ENEMY FORCES LANDED AT TARANTO AND BRINDISI," THE BERLIN BROADCAST CONTINUED.

IN A MORE DETAILED BROADCAST TRANSOCEAN SAID LATER THAT THE AMERICAN ARMY AT SALERNO WAS "ALMOST COMPLETELY WIPED OUT" AND THAT THE ALLIED TROOPS HAD SUFFERED HEAVY LOSSES IN MEN AND MATERIAL.

THE GERMANS CLAIMED THE AMERICANS HAD LOST MORE THAN 10,000 KILLED SINCE THE BATTLE STARTED "AND AT LEAST AS MANY PRISONERS."

SINCE SEPT. 9, THE BERLIN RADIO RELATED, GERMAN AIRMEN HAVE SUNK THREE CRUISERS, ONE DESTROYER, ONE TORPEDO BOAT, "AND A NUMBER OF UNSPECIFIED ENEMY WARSHIPS" IN THE WATERS OFF SALERNO. THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OR OTHER COMMENT FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ON THESE CLAIMS.

SEP 11 1943

THE GERMANS SAID THE AMERICAN UNITS FIGHTING AT SALERNO INCLUDED THE 36TH AND 45TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS, THE FIRST TANK DIVISION AND PARTS OF THE BRITISH 10TH ARMY CORPS.

HERR HITLER, SIGNOR MUSSOLINI, GENERAL TOJO--MEET MR. CORDELL HULL.

OUR SECRETARY OF STATE HAS IDEAS WHICH ARE INTIMATELY ASSOCIATED WITH YOUR COMMON WELFARE. HE STATES THAT ONE OF THIS COUNTRY'S WAR AIMS IS TO ACHIEVE AN IRON-CLAD PEACE FOR THE WORLD, BACKED BY NATIONS READY TO USE FORCE TO MAINTAIN IT. HE SAYS "IF THERE IS ANYTHING ON WHICH ALL RIGHT-THINKING PEOPLE ARE AGREED, IT IS THAT THE MONSTROUS SPECTER OF A WORLD WAR SHALL NOT AGAIN SHOW ITS HEAD."

NOW YOU THREE WAR-LORDS, AS INSTIGATORS OF THE PRESENT GLOBAL BLOOD-BATH, SHOULD BE DEEPLY INTERESTED IN MR. HULL'S DECLARATION. HE DIDN'T SAY SO SPECIFICALLY, BUT HIS THESIS CERTAINLY SEEMS TO CONTEMPLATE PUTTING ALL OF YOU OUT OF CIRCULATION, BECAUSE THERE CAN BE NO POSSIBLE ASSURANCE OF PEACE SO LONG AS YOU REMAIN AT LARGE (OR DO YOU REMAIN AT LARGE, SIGNOR MUSSOLINI?).

OF COURSE, MESSRS HITLER AND MUSSOLINI, YOU WOULDN'T REMEMBER IT, BUT BACK AT THE TIME OF THE FATEFUL MUNICH CONFERENCE I STOOD CLOSE ENOUGH TO THE PAIR OF YOU SO THAT I COULD HAVE TICKLED BOTH YOUR NOSES WITH A FEATHER. SINCE THAT DAY I'VE OFTEN PONDERED ON HOW MUCH ANGUISH COULD HAVE BEEN SAVED THE WORLD HAD YOU BOTH MET VIOLENT ENDS THEN.

STILL, THAT WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN THE RIGHT SOLUTION. IT WOULD HAVE BEEN TANTAMOUNT TO CONCEDING THAT DOES NOT CHANGE THE FACT, LIVES, THOUGH I'M SURE THAT YOU WHO HOLD LIFE SO CHEAPLY WOULDN'T MIND FACING A FIRING SQUAD OR YET THE HANGMAN.

HOWEVER, IT STRIKES ME THAT THE LEAST (UPPER CASE) IT CAN MEAN ISO DEPRIVING YOU OF YOUR LIBERTY SO LONG AS YOU LIVE. MAYBE HANGING IS TOO OU AND HAT, AS ON. OF MY COLLEAGUES REMARKS, YOU SU D UP ND FORCED TO LISTEN CONTINUOUSLY TO PHONOGRAPHIC RECORDS OF YOUR BOMBASTIC SPEEVHES. AMYWAY, YOUR FATE IS SOMETHING THE ALLIES MUST DECIDE, AND THE QUICKER THEY DO IT--AND IMPLEMENT IT --THE BETTER.

YOU'LL REMEMBER, XUEHGER, HOW THE ALLIES IN THE LAST WAR SHOUTED THEMSELVES HOARSE OVER HANGING YOUR PREDECESSOR IN CRIME. THE KAISER. THEN EVERYBODY GOT COLD FEET. THE KAISER LIVED LONG AND WELL, UNTIL OLD AGE LED HIM TO HIS REWARD.

THERE'S A FAR DIFFERENT ATMOSPHERE THIS TIME, THOUGH, BECAUSE WE KNOW IT'S NO GOOD BEATING ARMIES IF WE DON'T ALSO ELIMINATE THE INSTIGATORS OF THE AGGRESSION. THE AXIS ARMIES ARE MERELY TOOLS WHICH ARE USED BY THE WAR-LORDS. WHO REPRODUCE THEIR KIND, GENERATION AFTER GENERATION.

SEP 11 19

TO ENSURE PEACE WE ALLIES MUST GET AT THE ROOTS OF THE EVIL. IN THE CASE OF GERMANY, HERR HITLER, WE MUST ELIMINATE FROM SOCIETY IN OME WAY OR ANOTHER NOT ONLY YOUR WICKED SELF BUT ALL YOUR CAPTAINS--LIKE GOERING, HIMMLER AND GOEBBELS.

BUT WE SHALL HAVE TO DIG MUCH DEEPER THAN THAT, BECAUSE THE REAL AND PERPETUAL MAINSPRING OF GERMAN AGGRESSION IS PRUSSIAN MILITARISM. WE MUST ELIMINATE THE PRUSSIAN WAR LORDS AS WELL--AND THEY WON'T BE HARD TO NAME.

THERE'S A VERY SIMILAR SITUATION IN JAPAN, GENERAL TOJO. THERE MILITARISM RULES. YOU AND THE OTHER MILITARISTS ARE GUILTY OF MULTIPLE AGGRESSION AND UNTOLD ATROCITIES. WE'RE GOING TO GET YOU, TOJO, AND YOUR CO-MURDERERS.

AS FOR ITALY, SIGNOR SOFT UNDERBELLY, WE WANT YOU AND A FEW OTHER COWARDLY GANGSTERS LIKE XOUR SON2IN-LAW COUNT CIANO. THAT'S NOT ASKING MUCH.

A MOST SATISFACTORY SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM (IF ANY) GROWINGO OUT OF YOUR ELIMINATION FROM SOCIETY WOULD BE TO HOLD ALLIED COURTS

1943

MARTIAL AS FAST AS YOU CRIMINALS ARE ROUNDED UP. WE WANT NO ROMAN HOLIDAY MADE OF YOUR TRIALS--NO THEATRICALS, NO FUSS OR FEATHERS, NO PIDDLING ABOUT. WE NEED DIGNIFIED AND SPEEDY COURTS MARTIAL WHICH WILL SEND YOU ALL TO YOUR JUST PUNISHMENT--WHATEVER THAT MAY BE.

Enemy Makes Limited Withdrawal from Salient in Allied Bridgehead.

EIGHTH ARMY RACES UP

Montgomery's Units, in Forced March, Dash 25 Miles Along Coast.

FRESH TROOPS LANDED

Warships Bring Reinforcements for Gen. Clark; Battle Rages Fiercely.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 15.—(AP) Supported by the strongest air attacks ever launched in front of an Allied army and by naval bombardment, American and British troops beat off the most violent German counter-attacks yet mounted in Italy after again yielding small bits of their 27-mile bridgehead in the week-old, see-saw battle of Salerno.

In other sectors, however, the Fifth army made fresh gains and quickly dug into new positions. From these they successfully beat back hard enemy blows.

A field dispatch by L. S. B. Shapiro, representing the combined Canadian and British press with the Fifth army, said the Germans had eased up on their counter-attacks and appeared to be making a limited withdrawal from the salient they drove into the Allied bridgehead Monday night and Tuesday morning.

On forced march from the south, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army dashed 25 miles up the Calabrian coast to capture the Mediterranean village of Belvedere, narrowing the gap between his force and Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army to 67 miles and raising the prospect of early relief by land as well as by sea.

(The British radio declared unofficial reports placed the Eighth army vanguard at Scalea, on the coast 15 miles north of Belvedere, which would narrow the gap between the commands to little more than 50 airline miles. The B.B.C. broadcast, recorded by N.B.C., said Scalea possessed an excellent air field.)

Both Sides Hurl Reserves

The crucial battle of Salerno roared and flamed throughout yesterday and last night along the whole slender front from the port of Salerno around its crescent-shaped bay to Agropoli, with both sides throwing fresh troops and armor into action.

Offshore just west of Salerno, the Allies occupied Capri, the little island to which the Emperor Tiberius retired in 27 A.D. to build villas to the Roman Gods.

"Bitter fighting continues in the Fifth army sector," the Allied communique said, adding that "determined counter-attacks have been carried out by both sides. In some places our troops have been forced to yield ground, but new positions are being consolidated and reinforcements continue to arrive rapidly. x x x

"Troops with their supplies and equipment continue to be disembarked on the beaches of the Salerno area by the Royal and U. S. Navies working under Vice Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, U.S.N. The bombardment of enemy positions by strong forces of cruisers and destroyers continues. x x x

Severe Aerial Pounding

"During the night of Sept. 13-14 and throughout yesterday, heavy, medium and light bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters of the Northwest African Air forces in their most intensive and concentrated operations to date attacked roads and railroads, enemy positions, transport and troop concentrations at numerous points around the Salerno area."

The whole battle scene was veiled in smoke and dust. Generally the Allies were in the low flats and the Germans were ensconced in better positions in the wooded hills rising sharply from the coastal lowlands.

The Germans brought up at least a fourth division, the 29th Motorized, through heavy day and night bombings of Allied planes which more than 2,000 sorties in the 24 hours ended at dawn today. The 15th and 16th German Armored and the Hermann Goering divisions previously were in the combat, striving powerfully to erase the Fifth army bridgehead and throw the Allies into the sea.

The Nazi attacks were supported strongly by tanks, which were driven by blistering Allied fire. One U. S. combat team alone destroyed 13 enemy tanks. Grey warships slipped close to shore, emptying salvo after salvo from their smoking steel rifles into the Nazi tanks and machine-gun nests. One U. S. cruiser alone fired 335 rounds yesterday.

Allies Yield at Dusk

As dusk fell over the blood-stained battlefield, Allied troops were compelled to yield some ground to straighten their lines and consolidate their positions against expected night assaults. Despite the withdrawal, a military spokesman asserted at the end of the day:

"The situation is a little more in our favor."

The heaviest and most sustained German drives were made from the villages of Excevilla and Armonina in high ground overlooking the entire southern part of the Fifth army holding in the Sele river valley. The Allies withdrew in that sector, leaving the villages in German hands.

Gen. Clark's problem was to hold and expand the bridgehead while driving into the high ground and pushing German batteries beyond range of the beaches. One of his officers summarized the situation thus:

"The enemy is attacking incessantly because he realizes this is his best opportunity. Allied forces have proven they can beat the Germans and know that they can do it again."

The officer added that frontline reports said the Americans and Britons had great confidence.

There still was no word from the American Seventh army of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., which fought in Sicily. (A London dispatch via Stockholm and Turkey said the British Ninth army, normally based in Syria, had embarked for an "unknown destination." The Algiers radio said "important new military developments are imminent."

Nazis Change Story

(German broadcasts shifted abruptly from boasting assertions that the Fifth army was embarking in beaten retreat from Salerno and said the Allies were resisting near the coast under naval gunfire cover. The mid-day German news summary omitted the Italian front, which the Nazi communique treated in this fashion:

("Great successes were scored yesterday in an attack launched against the Anglo-North American landing formations at Salerno and Eboli. One enemy group was encircled and another was destroyed. The figures on booty and prisoners are steadily growing. The enemy, who was thrown back yesterday at Eboli (13 miles southeast of Salerno), has again put up resistance close to the coast under the cover of his ships' artillery.")

Gen. Montgomery's Eighth army had added virtually all the Italian toe to its conquest. It was driving through rough country and over and around effective Nazi demolitions. Despite its speed, the opinion at headquarters was that it might be several days before it reached a junction with Gen. Clark. Gen. Montgomery was driving large elements of at least one German division before him. The retreating foe gave no sign of standing to fight.

Contact Nazi 'Chutists

Across the peninsula above the heel, another British force which had captured Bari, Taranto and Brindisi, made contact with a rear guard of the German First Parachute division at Gioia, 28 miles above Taranto and inland. Italian troops in the Taranto area were said to be assisting the British. Some 300 Allied prisoners, including two Greek generals, were liberated.

(Farther up the Adriatic coast, Liberators from the Middle East bombed Pescara, almost directly across the peninsula from Rome. The rail junction of Potenza between Naples and Taranto was pounded Monday night by the R.A.F.)

The massive air assaults in close support of the Fifth army were unlike anything seen before in this war. Every available plane was used.

Big formations of Flying Fortresses poured hundreds of tons of bombs on the narrow strip of enemy territory around the village of Eboli, nine miles inland from the mid-section of the Allied beachhead north of the Sele river.

Enemy Vehicles Blasted

Thousands of bombs not only tore up the roads but blanketed a quarter-mile stretch on either side of the main roadway where enemy vehicles were dispersed under cover

Medium bombers and fighter-bombers also pounded every target offered in a determined attempt to prevent the Germans from throwing more and more reinforcements into the battle. Fighters also were used. No Allied plane was lost, and they shot down six Germans.

German fighters made only one half-hearted effort to interfere with the American bombers. Allied air officials declared the German Air force appeared to be under orders to avoid combat. Most of the available enemy fighters were believed to be employed in swift, hit-and-run attacks against Allied warships and barges carrying Gen. Clark's reinforcements.

Close behind Gen. Montgomery's advancing troops came the R.A.F.'s servicing commandos, entrusted with the job of getting abandoned airfields into operation as soon as possible. Evidence of their difficulties was given in this R.A.F. statement:

"Vibo Valentia was the first big airfield to receive the attention of our servicing commandoes. It was mined, booby-trapped and generally unpleasant. Six civilians were blown up in the first two days. It also had been a target for our bombers, and little remained of what in peacetime was a handsome airport."

New Evidence of Air Power

The R.A.F. crews found much more evidence of the effectiveness of Allied bombs and enemy dynamite squads.

North of Palmi, a railroad bridge which received direct hits swung precariously over a deep gorge.

"As the Commandos moved up the toe they found satisfactory evidence of the work of our bombers," the RAF said. "Shattered German barges used in the evacuation of Sicily littered the beach at San Giovanni. German vehicles were overturned and guns were abandoned beside the road."

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Allied troops have beaten off fierce German counter-attacks against the Salerno bridgehead in Italy, but were forced last night to yield some ground gained earlier in order to straighten their lines.

SEP 16 1943 NORGAARD

New support came to Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces—the strongest air attacks of the Mediterranean war and the thunder of naval guns offshore.

Today's Allied communique disclosed that savage, close-quarter combat raged along the whole Fifth Army from Salerno to Agropoli twenty-seven miles south, with both sides throwing heavy reinforcements of troops and armor into battle.

British Eighth Army troops speeding up the west coast to support the landing drove through the village of Belvedere, sixty-seven air miles from Agropoli, to close the gap between Allied forces to some eighty miles of coast line by land.

Heavy, see-saw fighting swirled in the Salerno sector, and the Northwest African Air Force hurled all planes at its command against the Germans, flying more than 2,000 sorties from dawn Tuesday to dawn today in the greatest air attack ever witnessed in this theater. A sortie is one flight by one plane. Not a single Allied planes was lost.

Nazis Reinforced.

The Nazis managed to bring up more troops to the Salerno sector despite the concentrated pounding of roads by Allied aircraft, and elements of at least one more division—the German Twenty-ninth Motorized—were identified in action against the Allies. At least three others, the Hermann Goering, and Fifteenth and Sixteenth Armored divisions, already were in the battle.

[German broadcasts, which yesterday had reported the Allies were evacuating their bridgehead, admitted today that the invaders were "offering resistance near the coast under cover of naval guns," and that "the Allies have got their teeth into Salerno and even the most experienced soldiers find it difficult to push them back into the sea." The official German communique told of Allied resistance near the coast.]

Allied naval forces were landing reinforcements all along the Salerno-Agropoli front despite German interference, and the Allied naval communique announced occupation of Capri Island west of Salerno on Sunday.

The land communique reported that "in some places our troops have been forced to yield ground, but new positions are being consolidated."

The German attacks were strongly supported by tanks that were driven back repeatedly by blistering American and British fire. One United States combat team alone destroyed thirteen tanks. The yielding of ground at nightfall straightened Allied lines and permitted consolidation of positions against expected night assaults by the enemy, it was announced.

One officer declared that the end of the day showed the situation was "a little more in our favor, especially with the arrival of fresh reinforcements."

Small pieces of ground changed hands repeatedly in the day's fierce conflict. The Germans made their heaviest and most determined attempt to drive the Fifth Army into the sea by sharp thrusts from the villages of Exvecilla and Armoniana, situated on high ground overlooking the entire southern portion of the Allied foothold in the Sele River Valley.

One officer described the fighting there as "exceedingly bitter." The Allied troops withdrew there slightly, leaving the enemy holding the two villages, but with every prospect that equally violent combat would begin at the first light of dawn today.

With complete co-ordination never before attained by any army, navy and air force, Allied aircraft and warships joined in support of the Fifth Army, and the air force threw in the full weight of its striking power which never before was concentrated on so small an area.

Hundreds upon hundreds of Flying Fortresses, medium bombers, fighter-bombers, dive-bombers and fighters attacked roads, motor transports, troops and gun positions immediately behind the enemy's front lines and other night bombers carried on the assault after dark.

Hundreds of big shells were poured into Nazi positions, where troops concentrated for counter-attacks, by American and British cruisers and destroyers steaming close inshore despite several hit-run bombing attacks and strong counter-fire from German artillery.

Cruiser Fires 355 Rounds.

One American cruiser alone fired 355 rounds in a single day at enemy tanks and machine-gun nests.

Despite all this, Gen. Clark's Army still was confronted with a terrific fight in its efforts to expand a small bridgehead and gain fresh footholds on the high ground beyond, from which the Nazis can now command the entire beach area.

"The enemy is attacking incessantly because he realizes this is his best opportunity," the Allied officer declared. At the same time, however, reports from the front told of great confidence among the Allied forces who, he explained, "have proven that they can beat the Germans and know they can do it again."

Nazi Fire Murderous.

From heights commanding the beaches Nazi artillery was reported pouring down a murderous fire from guns ranging up to 149 millimeters on the six-mile-wide strip held by the Americans.

Under cover of this fire Marshal Albert Kesselring's armored divisions apparently were trying to consolidate a wedge they had driven into the area between the Sele and Calore rivers and to extend their line to the sea.

The Eighth Army's advance to Belvidere represented a twenty-five-mile advance beyond the Cosenza line, which had been announced yesterday as its position.

In the Tarlanto district on the "heel," British forces liberated 300 Allied prisoners, including two Greek generals. They came in contact with German forces at Gioia, about twenty miles northwest of Taranto. This was believed to have been a rear guard of the German First Parachute Division encountered earlier just north of Taranto.

Despite the Eighth Army's rapid progress, military men said that several days must elapse before Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's force could possibly reach the Salerno bridgehead and become a factor in the fighting there. Particularly since it must bring up its own supplies.

In addition, the German High Command undoubtedly realizes the danger of its own position, if the Eighth Army reaches that area and throws its veteran warriors into support of the Fifth Army. Thus it appeared likely the British would encounter even more extensive demolitions to retard it in the eighty miles of travel through rough country still ahead of it.

German Division Retreats.

A substantial force including large elements of at least one German division is known to be retreating swiftly ahead of the Eighth Army, but there has been no indication yet that it might turn and try to bar Gen. Montgomery's way.

Instead, it is apparently being rushed north to join the onslaughts in the Salerno area.

Capri was occupied by an Allied force Sunday afternoon, and defense of the island was left with Italian naval and military authorities co-operating with the Allies.

Allied Communique.

Today's Allied communique read as follows:

SEP 16 1943

NAVAL.

"1. In spite of fierce enemy resistance and air interference, troops with their supplies and equipment continue to be disembarked on the beaches in the Salerno area by the Royal and United States navies working under Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, N. S. N. The bombardment of enemy positions by strong forces of cruisers and destroyers continues. In one day one United States cruiser fired 355 rounds on enemy tanks and machine-gun nests.

"2. Allied naval forces continue to assist army movements into the Taranto area and the advance of the Eighth Army on the coast of Calabria.

"3. The island of Capri was occupied by an Allied force during the afternoon of September 12. The defense of the island remained with the Italian naval and military authorities who are co-operating with ours.

than 600 sorties.

The terrific air attack was concentrated on the few miles between Salerno and Eboli, thirteen miles to the southeast. The attack was even greater than the huge Allied effort on May 6 last that broke the German will to resist before Bizerte and Tunis.

Every type of plane under the command of Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz took the air, and, while heavy Wellingtons dropped 4,000-pound block busters, fighter-bombers completed the bomb range by dropping anti-personnel bombs of 100 pounds.

Hitting Power Turned Loose.

"The entire hitting power of the Northwest African Air Forces were turned loose yesterday on one small strip of territory east of Salerno where the defending German forces are holding up the Allied troops on the bridgehead," an official statement said.

Fighter-bombers alone flew more than 500 sorties.

This greatest air attack in the history of the fighting in this part of the world encountered almost no opposition as the Germans used their air force in offensive operations only.

The fight was part of the great Allied effort to save the Salerno bridgehead. The barrage of high explosives started at dawn and continued without let-up for twenty-four hours.

An Air Force spokesman added: "Every bomber in the strategic air force which is normally used for long-range operations joined the tactical air force in the attack."

Six Italian Machi 202s with German markings on them were seen by the bombers but they made no attempt to halt the terrific avalanche of bombs which deluged the German positions, roads and lines of communications feeding the bridgehead.

The Fortresses which bombed road and dispersal areas near Eboli were in a position so the crews could see the fighting on the ground.

"The battle on the ground could be seen even from our high altitude," Lieut. George E. Kaiser, Jr., of Hartville, Ohio, bombardier, said. "It looked like heavy fighting down there. I could plainly see the flashes and explosions of artillery fire. We also added our bit along the highway."

Lieut. Fred G. Zimmerman of Kirkwood, Cal., a pilot finishing his fiftieth mission, declared that at least three strings of bombs plowed up the highway. Other pilots in Mitchells following up the Fortresses attack said that smoke and flames, 1,000 feet high, covered the whole area.

These Mitchells, the only planes under serious attack all day, were jumped by twelve enemy aircraft. They escaped safely, however, shooting down three of the Nazi planes.

Other formations of Mitchells and Marauders blasted road junctions and defiles near Auletta.

A Middle East communique from Cairo announced that Liberators of the Ninth United States Air Force joined the battle of Italy yesterday, plastering railway switching yards at Pescara. Fires and explosions were caused by bomb bursts which covered the target area.

Describing the attacks in the Eboli area Sergt. Warren E. Gamble of Vidalia, Ga., gunner, related: "This morning the whole place was full of bombers and this afternoon all of them seemed to go back plus a lot more fighters who were strafing the Germans to our right. Our fighters were right down on the deck shooting at German trucks as fast as they could fire. We dropped our bombs on a bunch of Germans lying low in a grove."

Concentration Attacks.

"Our target was a German troop and armored concentration," Lieut. Louis Balls of Laredo, Tex., a B-26 pilot, said. "The Germans were well dispersed throughout the shrubs and hilltops. A large barracks area in the corner of the target made an excellent aiming point and our bombs ran through the dispersal area as the formation unloaded."

Victories credited to B-26 gunners included Sergt. Fred A. Hirt of 1104 Findley avenue, the Bronx, N. Y.

During the night, the tactical air force dropped nearly 100 tons of bombs on communications and transport in the area near Pompei.

Invaders and P-38 fighters incessantly bombed and strafed every moving German truck or person in the area.

Invader pilots, Lieut. Robert M. Garvin of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Lieut. John Courtney of Baker, Fla., shot down two FW-190s that tried hit-and-run raids on Allied shipping.

ARMY.

"Bitter fighting continues in the Fifth Army sector between Salerno and Agropoli. Determined counter-attacks have been carried out by both sides. In some places our troops have been forced to yield ground, but new positions are being consolidated and reinforcements continue to arrive rapidly. The support provided by our naval units and our air forces was excellent.

"To the south the Eighth Army continues to make progress and our troops have reached Belvedere on the west coast road.

"In the Taranto sector operations are proceeding according to plan.

AIR.

"During the night of September 13-14 and through yesterday, heavy, medium and light bombers, fighter bombers and fighters of the Northwest African Air Forces in their most intensive and concentrated operations to date attacked roads and railways, enemy positions, transport and trop concentrations at numerous points around the Salerno area. Night bombers continued the attack after darkness. Six enemy aircraft were destroyed during the period. None of our aircraft is missing."

Allies Stop Foe Cold In Center

By WILLIAM STONEMAN

[American War Correspondent]

With Allied Forces in the Salerno Area, Sept. 14 (Delayed)—With heavy reinforcements of all kinds now at hand, the Allies today stopped the Germans cold along the center of the line and put an end to what perhaps was a serious German threat against our bridgehead.

The plain roared and rocked to the racket of guns shelling the Germans and making their ears ache in the town of Altavilla, perched on the slopes of Mount Dibosco.

Intermittently something resembling the earthquake that struck the Naples district fourteen years ago marked the arrival of our heavy and medium bombers over this tough nut on the British front and the place where the Germans are believed to have supply dumps.

By tonight the situation looked far better than at any time previously. Everybody was able to draw a restrained breath of relief.

'Battle of the Triangle' Won

By Relman Morin

For the Combined American Press

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 14 (Delayed) (AP).—Our troops won the "Battle of the Triangle," a real victory, today.

In the record of this whole campaign in Italy, the battle probably will not be assessed at any great importance, but it is freighted with the greatest importance for the beachhead on the Gulf of Salerno.

It held a wedge the Germans had thrust deeply into the triangle formed by the confluence of the Sele and Calore Rivers, in a drive that carried German armored units almost within sight of the shore.

From the heights overlooking the plains I watched a unit under cover of a shattering bombardment and with artillery support toss the Germans back into the area from which they launched an attack in darkness last night. It was an unbelievable spectacle.

The German attack had been expected, and when it came the armored units hit hard. There were five German divisions opposing the 5th Army, one of which was the crack Hermann Goering Division and another identified as the 16th Panzer. They "regained some ground," as the official dispatches phrase it.

Early this morning our troops reorganized and set out to retake that ground.

In the hills near the front I first came upon an artillery unit under the command of Lieutenant Bernard Reed, of 96 Ryerson Street, Brooklyn. He was awaiting map co-ordinates before opening fire and was calmly munching breakfast when he said: "We have been told to hold this position at all costs and we are going to hold it."

Fifth Army Uses Time To Reform

By L. S. B. SHAPIRO

[Canadian War Correspondent]

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 15—The Germans eased up on their counter-attacks today and gave indications they were making a limited withdrawal from the salient they drove into the Allied bridgehead Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army took advantage of the quiet period to reorganize and reinforce the lines protecting the bridgehead.

[The filing time of this dispatch was not indicated, but presumably it was written in the late afternoon or evening.]

New Units Relieve Troops

New units and equipment rolled up the beach road to relieve weary formations, some of which have been fighting six days.

In spite of the sporadic German air raids on the beach area, heavy equipment was landed in lavish quantities.

Anti-aircraft and other batteries scored heavily when a big group of German planes attempted a ground strafing operation. Our gunners shot down what was described by an Allied officer as a "considerable number."

Triple Allied Offensive Deals Sharp Blow to Axis

Eyewitness Tells of Severe Fighting Tuesday, Fifth Army's Comeback.

WITH THE U. S. FIFTH ARMY IN THE SALERNO AREA, Sept. 14.—(5 p. m.-11 a. m.) The front line of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army held firm today after the enemy unleashed attacks yesterday—one just east of Salerno toward the center of the British-American bridgehead.

In all the attacks the enemy used a number of tanks to support the infantry.

Today, however, Allied air and sea forces and infantry joined together to give the Germans the worst blasting they have yet received since the landings last Thursday.

From an advanced observation post overlooking the triangle formed by the Sele and Calore rivers, I saw the intensity of today's Fifth army comeback.

Many Reinforcements

I also heard, at the same time, that many reinforcements were pouring into the Allied bridgeheads with plenty of heavy equipment as the fighting was taking on a faster tempo.

Allied naval units let loose a terrific artillery fire in the enemy territory in the Sele-Calore triangle, their shells sizzling over our observation post. At the same time planes blasted the same area. From that area the enemy tried advances yesterday towards Salerno. The Allies also smashed the town of Eboli. I could see great columns of smoke rising from both places, especially where freight yards, stores and ammunition dumps were targets.

I also could see German tanks maneuvering for battle positions in the Sele-Calore triangle during which a number were knocked out with some shooting flames.

Surprise Attack Failed

The Germans' surprise attack, which apparently was diversionary in character, was quickly repulsed by British Tommies. The second enemy advance yesterday already was pinned to the wall, while a third German thrust, near the center of the British-American bridgehead, petered out at dawn.

Meantime, from this observation post it looks as though the fighting of the past several days is developing into a battle wherein the Germans are counting heavily on their defense using Mark VI tanks.

Altogether, five German divisions, including the 16th Panzer and Hermann Goering divisions, are opposing Lt.-Gen. Clark's Fifth army.

NAZIS CHANGE TUNE ON SALERNO STORY

O'QUINN

Berlin Admits Allies Were Coming Instead of Going.

LONDON, Sept. 15 — (AP) The German radio, which said yesterday that the Allies were withdrawing from Salerno region in Italy, toned down its tales tonight in the face of bitter fighting and admitted the Allied troops still were coming instead of going.

Grudgingly acknowledging that Allied resistance had stiffened during the night, the German International Information bureau in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted that British and American invasion troops in the sector had lost so many men and so much material that despite reinforcements a resumption of the offensive was inconceivable.

The Nazis admitted fresh American landings from the fleet they said last night was in Salerno bay to carry Allied troops away from a beating at the hands of the Germans.

Berlin had its usual batch of new claims to minimize the Allied toehold on the beaches. The information bureau asserted that a considerable part of the German operational aim had been reached, with the Nazis controlling the high ground and United States troops pressed together on the plains, and that contact between British troops stationed in the town of Salerno—which the Germans said they held last night—and American troops in the Salerno bridgehead was definitely broken.

Nazis Change Their Tune.

London Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The German propaganda machine radically changed its tune today, not only admitting that the Allied forces in the Salerno bridgehead had not been evacuated but were offering resistance near the coast under cover of naval guns. Yesterday, the Germans said warships were being used to cover a withdrawal.

Today's Nazi communique continued to assert that the Allies were suffering heavy losses, but the German radio in its midday news bulletin today made no mention of the Italian front. Yesterday it had issued an endless stream of victory reports.

The toning down began last midnight when a Nazi commentator observed, "the Allies have got their teeth into Salerno and even the most experienced soldiers find it difficult to push them back into the sea."

The Berlin radio today was recorded by the Associated Press as emphasizing the "extreme violence of the fighting there between the Fifth American Army and the German divisions."

Berlin also broadcast a Stockholm dispatch which said, "German reports on the beginning of the embarkation of the troops of the Fifth Army have not yet been confirmed." The Nazis added "that hope" of an Allied withdrawal" was not yet abandoned."

The German Communique.

Today's official German communique as broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press had this to say of the battle of Salerno:

"Great successes were scored yesterday in an attack launched against the Angelo-North American landing formations at Salerno and Eboli, one enemy group was encircled and another one was destroyed. The figures of booty and prisoners are steadily growing. The enemy, who was thrown back yesterday at Eboli, has again put up resistance close to the coast under the cover of his ships' artillery.

"The Luftwaffe constantly attacked the enemy landing fleet. A 4,000-ton transport was destructively hit and heavy-caliber bomb hits were scored on five more ships of medium size."

RUSSIANS TAKE VITAL RAILWAY CITY OF NEZHIN

Open Way for Quick Assault on Germans' Middle Dnieper Line.

NOW BUT 80 MILES FROM KIEV

Reds Also Break Through Nazis' Intermediate Defenses at Key Lozovaya Base.

SEP 16 1943

London, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The Russian forces have captured Nezhin, a key junction point on the Kiev-Kursk railroad eighty miles northeast of Kiev, Moscow today announced in a Special Order of the Day.

The fall of this important main line town opens the way for an assault evidently intended to crack the German's middle Dnieper defenses, just up the river from the Ukrainin capital.

The Order of the Day, signed by Premier Joseph Stalin, was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet Monitor

Addressed to Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky, whose column in the northern Ukraine is the fastest ground-gaining assault force on the Russian front, Stalin's order called Nezhin the "most important center of the Germans' defense on the road to Kiev," and said that it fell after two days of violent fighting. The troops which fought their way into the city had had to drive 200 miles in forty days in a bee-line thrust toward Kiev since the fall of Belgorod.

All South Russia at Stake.

With Nezhin in Russian hands a flanking drive against Kiev might now force the Germans to yield all of South Russia. The thrust against Nezhin was reported earlier to have sent the enemy fleeing in disorder toward the Dnieper defense wall.

Rokossovsky is regarded as one of Russia's ablest offensive commanders and his assignment to this salient is an indication of the importance Moscow attaches to a middle Dnieper breakthrough to split the German front south of the Pripet Marshes.

Tonight's regular Russian communique added that the Russians overran more than 200 towns and villages today in gains all along the widespread front ranging up to nine miles. In the region of Zaporozhe and Melitopol the Russians were said to have advanced by from six to nine miles and to have captured the town of Gulyai Pole, seventy-five miles southwest of Stalino; Kuibyshevo, district center of the Zaporozhye region, and Pokrovskoye, district center of the Dnieperopetrovsk region, along with over sixty other places.

To the east of Zaporozhe, in the sector before Pavlograd, the Russians were also reported to have gained by from six to nine miles and to have taken more than 120 towns and villages.

Moscow also announced that far to the north the Red Army captured the town of Dyatkovo, about twenty-five miles north of Bryansk, but made no mention of Bryansk itself, which the Germans have said they have already evacuated.

Novaya Vodolaga, about fifty-eight miles east of Poltava, was said to have fallen to the Russians, who advanced three to five miles in the area southwest of Kharkov and overran several other large inhabited points.

REDS CAPTURE NEZHIN, PUSH FOR DNIEPER

Russian Forces Are Now Only 73 Miles Away From Kiev

New Victory Announced

1943

By Stalin In Special Order Of Day

SEP 16 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Sept. 16—Soviet columns pounded toward the Dnieper river from captured Nezhin, seventy-three miles east of Kiev and from captured villages only fifty miles east of the river in the south, Moscow dispatches said today.

Killing more than 6,000 Germans and capturing more than 200 towns in the Ukrainian sweep, the Russians registered their biggest victory at Nezhin, which they captured after two days' fighting.

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the capture of Nezhin deprived the Germans of the last main railway line on the left flank of the Dnieper and Premier Joseph Stalin, who announced the capture in an order of the day, called it "the most important center of the Germans' defense on the road to Kiev."

Prisoners Captured

Three thousand Germans fell in the fierce fighting there and large quantities of war material and prisoners were captured, the communique said. It marked an advance of 200 miles in forty days.

Soviet forces were even nearer the Dnieper in the south where the river bends far east. Here they captured Gulai Pole and Pokrovskoye, both fifty miles from Zaporozhe, a river and railroad town upon which hinges the German defense of the Crimea.

Over 2,000 Germans were killed and quantities of tanks and guns destroyed or captured, while over 300 prisoners were taken in this area. Soviet planes were lending support to the southern drive and brought down thirty-four German planes.

Three Other Drives

There were at least three other major Soviet drives fanning into the heart of the Ukraine and to the north still another Soviet offensive drew tighter around Bryansk, which the Germans had announced was evacuated. Making no claims of its capture, the Russians reported only the capture of Dyatkovo, twenty miles to the north. Large quantities of war material and ammunition were declared captured.

Kuibyshevo, almost fifty miles northwest of Mariupol, was recaptured as the Russians gained speed across the southern Ukraine. Novaya Vodolaya, southwest of Kharkov, was captured in a heightened threat to the Nazi bastions of Poltava and Krasnograd. Eight hundred Germans died in the street fighting for the town.

Southeast of Priluki Soviet troops swarmed across the Sula river before the Germans could fortify it and captured the village of Sencha with quantities of war material intact.

Addressed To Rokossovsky

Stalin's order of the day announcing the fall of Nezhin was addressed to Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky, the victor of Stalingrad. His assignment to this salient was an indication of its importance in Moscow's plans to split the Germans' middle Dnieper defenses.

Spearheading the assault were some of Russia's finest fighting forces—guards regiments previously honored by Stalin for their victories at Konotop, Bachmach and Sevsk.

Meanwhile, German accounts suggested an intensive renewal of the Russian pincer attack on Smolensk, as well as a determined Red army attack in the Kuban.

Attacks Acknowledged

Berlin broadcasts acknowledged that fierce Russian attacks temporarily had breached Nazi defenses northeast and southeast of Smolensk, and reported that street fighting was in progress in Novorossisk in the Kuban.

Autumn rains spread black mud along broad stretches of the front. The rains normally fall this time of year, continuing until the weather drops to freezing early in October.

A Nazi military commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer, said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the Russians were exerting their greatest pressure northwest of Kharkov, where they were employing "extraordinarily strong tank and infantry masses in incessant attacks against inferior German forces." He conceded that losses on both sides were "considerable."

The Russian battle for the Ukraine was fought against time, for already the first pre-autumn rains were softening the rutted roads, caking the tank treads and wheels of war with mud.

But fall of the last cores of defense short of the lower Dnieper—Romny, Poltava, Krasnograd and Lozovaya—appeared certain and soon. Every one was either flanked or partly enveloped as the Red tide surged west over the battlefields of 1941.

Nazi Defenses Shattered

Typical was the action near Pavlograd in the south where the communique said:

"Our men are breaking through into the enemy's rear, disorganizing defenses and wiping out detachments and garrisons. Units of one formation, throwing back the enemy, wiped out more then 1,000 German officers and men. They captured large quantities of war material, including 24 guns, two armored troop carriers, many machine-guns and rifles."

BRITISH NINTH ARMY IS SAID TO BE ON MOVE

Great East Mediterranean Force Reported Off for Unknown Destination.

WAS BASED OPPOSITE GREECE

Unconfirmed Ankara Dispatch Coincides With Widespread Unrest in Balkans.

London, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Unconfirmed reports reaching London from Stockholm via Ankara today said that the British Ninth Army—a force which the Germans assert has been designated for an Allied drive into the Balkans—was on the move today from its Middle East bases facing the island pathway into Greece.

British military officials had no comment to make on the Ankara reports, which were published in the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet. These reports said that the Ninth Army commander, by Lieut.-Gen. W. H. Holmes, had embarked for an "unknown destination."

Yugoslav Divisions in Action.

The dispatch coincided here, however, with authentic accounts of unrest in the Balkans, of sweeping new successes by Yugoslav guerrillas, and reports of fierce fighting between German and Italian troops in the Dodecanese Islands off the Turkish mainland.

The Algiers radio, in a broadcast recorded here by the Associated Press, today again forecast that "important new military developments are imminent," and it was pointed out that the surrender of the Italian Navy has cleared the Mediterranean for any assault against German positions in southeastern Europe.

Bases of the Ninth Army in Syria and Transjordania are only 400 miles from the island of Rhodes and less than 600 miles from Crete, Axis outposts in the Mediterranean.

Unrest in Balkans.

A summary of accounts of Balkan unrest reaching here gave this picture:

Yugoslavia—Forestalling German and Croat troops, partisan forces reportedly have occupied more than 100 miles of the Dalmatian coastline on the Adriatic Sea opposite Italy. They were said to have seized a large area in Slovenia which previously had been occupied by Italian troops. Two divisions of partisan troops were said to be moving toward Serbia and there were reports of large scale fighting throughout Bosnia.

Rumania—The Government of Premier Antonescu is said to be losing its control. Antonescu, in one account reaching London was reported to have refused a renewed German demand for more troops.

Bulgaria—Alarm over the capitulation of Italy has heightened throughout the country, with agitation for a break with Germany reportedly increasing.

Reports from Cairo, however, said that despite great confusion caused by the Italian surrender, the Germans still have the Balkan situation well in hand.

BALKAN DRIVE NOW HINTED

British Ninth Army Reported By Ankara To Have Sailed From Syrian Base

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 15—The mystery of the whereabouts of the British Ninth Army, coupled with the reported successes of Yugoslav patriot forces apparently fighting along a prepared plan, hinted tonight that a strategic Balkan thrust was in the making.

A Cairo announcement that Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, who has been commander of all United States forces in the Middle East, had been shifted to an important new assignment suggested he might now be with the Ninth Army.

Official quarters here expressed ignorance of the movements of the Ninth Army, whose size and equipment have been kept a military secret. Ankara and Stockholm reports had the army sailing from Syrian bases after two years' training. The Germans repeatedly have suggested the Ninth was being saved for a Balkan invasion.

Rhodes And Crete In Way

The route from the Middle East to the Balkans would traverse the German-occupied islands of Rhodes and Crete and these islands, in Allied hands, would provide needed and valuable bases for bombers and fighters in any air umbrella, vital to a landing in Greece.

Reports from Yugoslavia said Partisan forces had occupied more than one hundred miles of the Dalmatian coastline on the Adriatic Sea opposite Italy. They were said to have seized a large area in Slovenia, which previously had been occupied by Italian troops. Other reports said two divisions of Partisan troops were moving toward Serbia and there were reports of large-scale fighting throughout Bosnia.

The German news agency DNB in a Berlin broadcast, however, claimed the entire Dalmatian and Albanian coastline was in German hands.

Belgrade-Serajevo Line Cut

Advices reaching here tonight, according to the Yugoslav information bureau, said a patriots' army had captured Gorazde on the Drina river, cutting the railroad line between Belgrade and Serajevo.

The late advices, according to the information bureau, said the patriots were holding fast to the Adriatic coast territory they captured yesterday and that the siege of Split was continuing.

A broadcast heard in London by the Associated Press from the Algiers radio declared that "importantant new military developments are imminent."

Near Crisis Reported In Rumania

Reports from Rumania described a state of "near crisis" there, with the Government of Premier Ion Antonescu losing its control. One account reaching London said the Premier had refused new German demands for more Rumanian troops.

Agitation for a break with Germany was reported growing in Bulgaria.

Cairo, reported, however, that despite great confusion caused by Italy's surrender the Germans continued to have the Balkan situation well in hand and would have to be pried out of the area by Allied force.

TERROR REIGN IN ITALY HINT OF MUSSOLINI

"Exemplary Punishment Of Traitors" Quotes Threat Of Ex-Duce

SEP 16 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 15—Italy's ousted and invisible Premier, Benito Mussolini, apparently attempted to dethrone King Vittorio Emanuele today in a proclamation read in his name by a radio announcer, recasting defunct Fascism in Italy as the "Republican Fascist party," with Mussolini as its supreme leader.

The manifesto, read over a German-controlled "Fascist government radio," failed to mention the King by name, but the reconstitution of the party under the "Republican" label obviously meant the King no longer ruled in the eyes of the Nazi-sheltered ex-Duce.

This action was in line with predictions that the new German-nurtured Fascist government would disestablish the House of Savoy and establish a republic.

Reign Of Terror Seen

There was little likelihood, however, that the population which joyously welcomed the end of Fascism would assist in reestablishing the old regime.

The threat of "exemplary punishment of traitors and cowards" signaled that a reign of terror may be expected in Italy.

In Rome, the Germans were reported to have arrested Foreign Minister Raffaele Guariglia and other members of the Government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio who remained in the capital.

New Governor Of Rome

But the appointment of General Count Carlo Calvi di Bergolo as Governor of Rome—with German consent—to carry on the Government failed to square with the previous German announcement that the national Fascist government had been placed in charge.

Mussolini remained in the shadows.

At last accounts, he was reported to have gone to Berchtesgaden for treatment of a gastric disorder. Only yesterday the Germans said he was a very sick man whose condition was greatly aggravated by his recent experiences.

The Mussolini decrees were r[ead] by Allesandro Pavolini, f[ormer] Italian Propaganda Minister, was named in one of the d[ecrees] as "temporary secretary" [of the] new Fascist party.

Ex-Envoy To U. S. Heads Ca[binet]

A short time later the I[talian] news agency Stefani, now [under] German control, broadcast a [dis]patch containing an ordinance signed by di Bergolo naming Mr. Augusto Rosso, former Ambassador to the United States, as commissioner of the Foreign Ministry, to replace Guariglia,

The Stefani broadcast listed these appointments by di Bergolo in addition to that of Russo:

Presidency of the Council of Ministers, Dr. Gina Giacomo Bellazzi.

Interior, Dr. Lorenzo Lavia.

Italian Africa, Dr. Enrico Cerulli.

Administration of Justice, Dr. Giovanni Novelli.

Finances, Dr. Ettore Cambi.

National education, Dr. Giuseppe Guistini.

Public works, Engineer Paolo Saltino.

Agriculture, Prof. Vittorio Ronchi.

Communications, Engineer Luigi Velani.

Industry and commerce, Dr.

1943

Ernesto Santro.

Popular culture, Dr. Armedeo Tosti.

Foreign currency and exchange, Dr. Francesco Cemonese.

War production, Dr. France Liquori.

The Mussolini decrees said all former Fascist officials are to resume their posts; all party organizations are to be reformed; all Italians must support German authorities; the behavior of all Fascists will be reexamined in relations to their present behavior; all traitors are to be punished; the voluntary militia is to be reformed.

Duce to Meet Fuehrer.

London, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The German-controlled Paris radio, quoting a Berlin dispatch to the Neue Zuercher Zeitung of Zurich, Switzerland, said today that Hitler and Mussolini would meet this week.

NAZI RAIDERS HIT SUBURBAN LONDON

Capital's Heaviest Attack In Months Follows American Foray On Paris

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Sept. 16—Suburban areas of London suffered their heaviest air raid in months last night while waves of Allied bombers streamed out over the coast toward the Continent in the wake of powerful attacks on Paris and other sections of France.

The bombers over London hit a number of districts and caused casualties. However, the raiders were not numerous and intense gunfire prevented any from reaching the central part of the city.

Raids In Southeast England

Bombs also were reported in scattered parts of southeast England. One raider was seen falling in flames over the Dover Straits.

The German raid came on the third anniversary of the record daylight attack on the capital during the battle of Britain, when 185 German planes were shot down by British planes and guns. The 1943 version was light in comparison.

The Allied night bombers crossed the sky a few hours after American Flying Fortresses bombed an aircraft factory in the Paris area and other Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders hit French airfields. The Paris radio later reported "there are many victims."

The attack on Paris was the second within a week by the Fortresses and the sixth this month. They raided a German aircraft plant near Paris last Thursday.

Big Force Indicated

Preliminary announcements indicated the Fortresses and Liberators might have made up one of the biggest heavy bomber forces ever to strike at the Continent.

Up to yesterday, Flying Fortresses have struck at fourteen targets this month—four of them were aircraft plants and nine were airfields. The other target was Stuttgart, industrial center in southwest Germany.

The attacks on German air facilities have a dual objective—they whittle down Nazi resistance to Allied raids on industrial centers and add to the mounting Allied air superiority.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said the attack on Paris started at 7:25 p. m.

"Anti-aircraft guns opened up and several planes which were hit fell in flames on the town," it said. "There are many victims."

The raid on Paris was the first last Thursday. The R.A.F. has not been on any large scale night raids since Sept. 6.

The aerial activity continued into the night.

New Raids on Reich

The German radio station Deutchlandsender went off the air, usually a sign of Allied air attacks on Germany.

An air raid alert was sounded about 10 p. m. (5 p. m. Eastern War Time) in London.

The all clear was sounded an hour later after anti-aircraft gun fire was heard in outlying sections of the capital.

Raiders bombed two southeast coast English towns.

BRITAIN HONORS 'THE FEW'

Pays Tribute to RAF Three Years After Rout of Nazis in Air

LONDON, Sept. 15 (AP)—The memory of "the few" to whom, as Prime Minister Churchill said, "so many owe so much," was honored by this nation today on the third anniversary of the RAF's greatest victory in the Battle of Britain.

With an emotion akin to reverence, Britons recalled how, on Sept. 15, 1940, British airmen and anti-aircraft gunners brought down 185 German planes in furious aerial fighting that began at dawn and lasted until twilight settled over the hills of Kent and Sussex.

At an anniversary gathering of veterans of the Battle of Britain Air Chief Marshal Lord Dowding paid tribute to the eleven RAF fliers who were killed that day and to their mates.

So great were the odds against which they fought, Marshal Dowding said, that "at the end of the battle one had the feeling there had been some special divine intervention to alter the sequence of events which would otherwise have occurred."

Between 350 and 400 German planes launched the principal attack against London and southeast Britain in two waves. Spitfires and Hurricanes met them over Maidstone and Canterbury and over the Thames Estuary.

The fighting, which London newspapers declared today was even more eventful for the world than Marathon, culminated three months of almost incessant air combat. Some hundred or more German bombers broke through the defenses and reached London. There was a lull thereafter until 2 P. M., when fresh enemy forces returned to the attack, but they were smashed by the determined British defense.

That day showed the Germans the futility of their attempts to gain air superiority over Britain. The coup de grace was administered on Sept. 27, when 133 enemy planes were shot down. The big daylight bombing offensive against Britain ended then.

Flying Fortresses Sighted Over London

London, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—A formation of large bombers flew over London this afternoon, indicating the Allies might be resuming heavy raids after a week's lull presumably due to weather conditions. American Flying Fortresses were last out last week when they bombed a Paris aircraft factory and French airfields. The R. A. F. has made no heavy raids since the Munich attack of September 6.

GEN. ROBERT CRAWFORD GETS ARMY SUPPLY POST

LONDON, Sept. 15. — (AP) Maj. Gen. Robert W. Crawford, who has been in command of U. S. Army service forces in the Middle East, has been named deputy commander and chief of staff of the supply services for the European theater of operations of the U. S. Army, it was announced tonight.

General Crawford succeeds Brig. Gen. William J. Weaver, who has been named deputy field commander of the supply services, the announcement said.

Col. Royal B. Lord, former director of the Bureau of Public Relations in the War department and former chief of operations for the Board of Economic Warfare in Washington, has been named chief of operations for the supply services in the European theater.

The appointments were announced by Maj. Gen. C. H. Lee, commanding general of the supply services in the European theater.

D. S. C. FOR FORREST

London, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, 38-year-old grandson of the famous Confederate Cavalry leader of the same name, who has been listed as missing in action since his Flying Fortress was shot down in a raid on Kiel on June 13, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Lieut.-Gen. Jacob L. Devers announced today.

Gen. Forrest accompanied the Flying Fortress raid on Kiel preparatory to taking over the command of another Fortress unit. Army officials said his plane was shot down after it had dropped its bombs on the target despite the fact that one engine had been wrecked.

Eight parachutes were seen to open from the plane as it went down, apparently under control.

Archbishop of York Arrives in Moscow

London, Sept 15 (A. P.).—The Archbishop of York has arrived in Moscow, Reuters reported today. The Archbishop frequently has urged better understanding between Britain and Soviet Russia.

Japan's Spring Crop Of Silk Cocoons Drops

London, Sept. 15 (AP) — Japan's spring crop of silk cocoons amounted to 108,000 tons this year —13,000 tons less than the expected yield and 5.8 per cent. below the previous year—the Berlin radio reported today in a broadcast of a Tokyo dispatch.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, gave a shortage of workers and a limitation of mulberry tree plantations as the reasons for the crop reduction.

Nottingham, England, Sept. 15 (AP)—Sidney Page, 18-year-old pitboy whose imprisonment caused 14,000 coal miners to strike since September 12, is to be released from Lincoln jail tomorrow upon his agreement to work where ordered, it was announced tonight.

Raymond Evershed, regional controller of fuel and power, said Page had agreed to work underground. He was employed on the surface and was imprisoned for refusing to obey an order by the Ministry of Labor to work in the mines.

FINNS DISCUSSING MOVES FOR PEACE

COLBURN

Stockholm, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The Finnish Government is devoting full attention to the possibilities of a separate peace with Russia as the realization grows that every advance of the Soviet Army puts in jeopardy Finland's chances for the peace terms she wants.

A committee is meeting twice weekly to review the situation with President Risto Ryti, Premier Edwin Linkomies and Foreign Minister Sir Henrik Ramsay although Parliament is in recess until October 1.

There is a growing agreement in Finland that any bargaining with Russia on peace terms must start soon—but there is still hesitancy among Ryti, Linkomies and Ramsay on how to approach the Soviets.

The possibility that all three might have to step out of the Government along with Finance Minister Viano Tanner whose anti-Soviet views have been undisguised, is being discussed both in Finland and here.

The Finnish press has been discussing peace more than ever permitted before and the Swedish press here is insisting that now is the time for Finland to get out of the war.

Rome and Other Cities Held by Nazis Face Threat of Famine

Germans Claim Order Restored in Italian Capital After Resistance

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 15.—The specter of famine hangs over Rome and the Nazi-occupied cities of Northern Italy, dispatches from the Italian frontier said today.

Nazi authorities in Rome broadcast a proclamation telling the Italian people that "after the treason of Badoglio and the rupture of the treaty of alliance between the Reich and Italy, the Germany military have taken Italian territory under their protection."

The proclamation admitted that resistance had occurred "even in Rome" to German occupation, but declared that order now had been restored. It ordered all persons to deliver their firearms to German authorities by today or be shot.

Saboteurs to Be Punished.

German Gen. Stein, who signed the proclamation, declared that saboteurs and franc-tireurs would be punished serevely, the dispatches added.

The Rome radio last night appealed to food producers and farmers in the vicinity of the Italian capital to bring food to Rome, promising that it would be used solely to feed civilians. All Rome schools have been closed indefinitely, it was said.

Diminishing food supplies were reported in the north where the Germans have requisitioned all available supplies. The Swiss telegraphic agency said that Como yesterday was totally without fruit and that the Italian people were fearful of the possibility of a country-wide famine.

Many Arrested in Milan.

Following the arrest of Gen. Vittorio Ruggero, Italian military commander at Milan, the Lombardy capital was occupied by stronger Nazi military contingents who were reported conducting a vast requisition program and arresting many persons.

Ministers of the Badoglio government who remained in Rome are reported to have been arrested, among them being Foreign Minister Raffaele Guariglia.

Heavy Winter Fighting Is Predicted for Europe

Swiss Expert Doesn't Expect Another November Armistice

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 15 (AP).—Europe must count on heavy fighting through the autumn and a fifth winter of war, Colonel Lecomte, military commentator of the "Gazette de Lausanne," predicted today.

A repetition of the November, 1918, armistice is unlikely, for both psychological and military reasons, he declared.

"One can't predict from here to November, but one should recognize that the military situation of the Axis does not justify unconditional surrender," he said. "The situation is, in effect, that all theaters are less critical than on a comparable date in 1918."

In the west in 1918 the Allies had several million men in northern France and never succeeded in reaching German territory, Lecomte remarked. He added: "It would be strange if they succeeded in crossing the Rhine this year, when today there is not a single Allied soldier in France."

Railroad Sabotage In Italy Reported

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 15 (AP)—A dispatch from Chiasso on the Swiss-Italian border to the Bern newspaper Der Bund said today that sabotage by Italian guerrillas had cut down railroad traffic in northern Italy.

Trains no longer run on schedule and many of them have been canceled, the dispatch said.

Anti-Fascists Urge Milan To Resist Nazi Forces

They Say City's Military Chief Went Over to Foe

AT THE ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 15 (AP).—Italian anti-Fascist parties called on the people of Milan today to resist German forces at all costs and to fight Italian Fascists arriving with "thirsty vengeance" in German tanks.

A proclamation accused General Ruggero, military commander in Milan, of "delivering to the enemy vital centers of the country." Signed by the Liberal, Christian, Democratic, Socialist and Communist parties, it declared that the non-Fascist parties wished to create a national guard in Milan to fight at the side of the Allies, but that soldiers who were to have defended Milan had been ordered by Fascists not to fight.

The proclamation said that "delegates of the anti-Fascist parties will give the people of Milan the necessary instructions." It warned against "individual acts of violence."

"Milanese, the fight will be bitter and hard, but only the conquest of liberty will redeem us for twenty years of shame," it went on.

The proclamation reminded Milanese that Premier Pietro Badoglio, in announcing the unconditional surrender, urged resistance against aggression from whatever quarter it came. "German aggression is now a fact," it said.

GET EIGHT MORE SHIPS

Nicosia, Cyprus, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Eight Italian vessels, including a gunboat and two minesweepers, reached this eastern Mediterranean port today, carrying about 200 Italians from the Dodecanese Islands who told stories of fierce fighting going on there between Italians and Germans.

The refugees included a number of Italian military officers, who exchanged their automatic pistols for biscuits and tea—the first tea, many said, that they had tasted in three years.

200 Targets Shelled in 5 Days By British Ships Off Salerno

Umbrella of Naval Gunfire Supports Allied Troops in Grim Battle.

By PAUL KERN LEE

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER BOMBARDIING THE GERMANS NORTH OF SALERNO, Sept. 13—(Delayed)—(AP) Under an umbrella of naval gunfire, Allied forces were pressing ahead in the Salerno area today against ferocious German opposition.

This, the fifth day of the landings in Salerno gulf, finds the Allies several miles inland with constant reinforcements coming up to man the beaches and assist in the tedious job of blasting the Germans from the volcanic hills of the peninsula which rises between the gulfs of Salerno and Naples.

This British force of cruisers and destroyers alone had shelled more than 200 targets in five days and, as I write, the guns are still hammering away.

An Allied attack during the night up the road north of Salerno resulted in considerable easement of enemy shelling of the Salerno harbor area. But the enemy was still planting shells on Vietra, a coastal town five miles southwest of Salerno.

Allies Hold Plains

The Allies generally hold the plains area southeast of Salerno firmly.

British and American forces established firm communications there while the Americans were holding their own well inland.

German zones beyond this area were shelled repeatedly today by this and other warships. Much of the shooting has been blind, owing to heavy smoke and mist cloaking every valley but the warships laid down a blanketing fire over numerous villages and road crossings.

A further encouraging sight today was a formation of Fortesses flying north to bomb enemy positions.

The air cover generally was superb Focke Wulfs and Messerschmitts in groups of four to six frequently dart in under clouds and try to bomb ships in the gulf but each time Lightnings, Invaders and Spitfires get on their tails immediately.

The red warning, which once meant bombing showering among us at any moment, now means little more than a signal that a dogfight is about to start overhead. However, when the Lightnings stray too far northward German anti-aircraft guns open up viciously.

Decisive Battle Forecast

A decisive battle may well be fought out in this area.

The commanding officer of this ship signalled an American destroyer late yesterday: "How is the war going in your area?"

"Well, but slowly," was the reply.

That about sums up the entire situation at present.

Throwing the Germans out of Italy bids fair to be a tough job for some time but with the likelihood that the enemy eventually will crack under constant pounding.

Gunfire from the large Allied naval squadron started with the first rays of light yesterday and continued until darkness. Meanwhile, British forces and the Americans established contact, and the bridgehead generally was enlarged against a foe well placed in high ground.

During a busy day today this cruiser shelled enemy guns five to 10 miles inland at several points, winning the Army's thanks, but got in its best work against ammunition dumps.

Direct Hits Scored

One of these, designated originally as an infantry concentration near Salerno, brought the following signal from the Army: "Target destroyed. Several direct hits on what used to be an ammunition dump."

Again against a target, designated as an enemy battle line on a road, good luck came this way and the observer signalled: "Last shot hit battery ammunition dump. Six explosions." The same army observer said the Germans apparently had pulled back to the north about three miles, leaving only some batteries behind as little activity was seen there after several hours of frantic transport movement to the north.

A group of enemy guns at a crossroads village seven miles inland was another target successfully engaged.

The stubborn caliber of the German resistance is shown by the fact that they repeatedly shelled the town of Salerno with a six or eight-inch gun somewhere in the hills. This same gun had an unsuccessful crack at a destroyer yesterday afternoon.

U. S. Navy Men Landed Troops In Salerno Under Heavy Fire

British Praise Daring of Boat Crews Who Ran Craft Onto Beaches and Helped Dig Guns Out of Soft Sand.

SEP 16 1943

By DON WHITEHEAD.

With the United States Navy in the Gulf of Salerno, Italy, Sept. 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The determined courage of American naval men in taking ships onto the invasion beach in the Gulf of Salerno under direct enemy fire won the praise today of British troops.

With the cool determination of veterans the youthful crews of the amphibious vessels unloaded an English division to hold part of the Allied invasion front in the face of bitter German resistance.

A young British lieutenant returned to our ship after he was wounded in the early morning landing. He was painfully hurt, but he wanted to tell how the Americans helped him and his men on the beach.

"The Americans aboard our ship were wonderful," he said. "As we started in for the beach, 88 mm. guns opened up on us at 300 yards and followed us all the way in. The skipper did not even hesitate in the face of the heavy fire.

"We beached and got all our vehicles off the craft, but some of them stuck in the soft sand and we were having a hard time getting them dug out. The crew left the craft and came ashore to help us. They did not have to do it, but they did, while the skipper waited for them. Then an 88 shell burst in the ship and I was wounded along with a few other men. Only then did the skipper pull away from the beach."

It took courage for the Navy men to get this British division ashore, for the Gulf of Salerno has been a devil's cauldron of smoke and flame and cannonading and bombing since the invasion armada steamed into position early this morning.

Run Into Rangers.

On this part of the front the British ran headon into a panzer grenadier division which had rushed up batteries of 88-millimeter guns to cover one sector. Fighting has been savage throughout the day, British cruisers, destroyers and gunboats duelling with German shore guns. The cannonading began shortly after midnight and has continued without pause.

The Italian naval commander at Salerno has been taken prisoner, but as yet we have had no clarification aboard our ship of Admiral Cunningham's message last night saying an armistice had been reached with the Italians.

"Maybe," said one wag, "it would be better for us to fight without an armistice."

There are still some Italians fighting alongside the Germans, and it is not clear whether they know of an armistice.

When the sun came over the hills this morning it disclosed the invasion armada to the enemy. Hundreds of ships anchored in the glassy waters of the gulf. They stretched as far as the eye could see, and as each hour passed more arrived. They came in great convoys and then anchored to wait their turn to go to beach.

As troop, tank and vehicle-carrying vessels moved toward the beach, destroyers shuttled back and forth near the beach, blasting the enemy and trailing black smoke to screen the ships from enemy observers, lashed to barrage balloons inland, and escorting ships to their positions. When American fighter planes came over to give aerial cover they shot down the balloons.

The enemy guns in the hills back of the plain and beyond Salerno had the range of the beach and kept pouring shells into the landing areas and at the vessels heading for the beach.

The enemy prepared for invasion on these beaches, for they were mined and the waters were sown with mines, which had to be cleared.

Fight Way Inland.

The landing proceeded smoothly on "Red Beach" and troops pushed inland to take objectives astride the main road and on the high ground south of Salerno known as Monte Giogi.

But on the right flank of this force at "Green Beach" the enemy had a concentration of 88s firing directly into the beach, with infantry deployed in the groves, and the troops fought their way inland slowly.

At noon the enemy counter-attacked behind strong artillery support and the troops fell back to the beach, destroyers, cruisers and gunboats again moved in to give support to this weakened sector. Under these conditions it was necessary to abandon the original "Green Beach" and to move unloading operations further south.

During the intense excitement of this grand scale invasion operation the flagship of the American rear admiral directing one of the task forces gradually moved near the beach until we were only a few hundred yards off shore.

R. A. F. BALLOONMEN IN BEACH LANDING

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Royal Air Force balloon barrage crews raced ashore with the American and British assault forces on the beaches about Salerno, to give the ground troops and barges immediate protection from low-flying bombers, an R. A. F. statement revealed today.

"One detachment landed with their balloons in the Gulf of Salerno before daylight on invasion day," the statement said, "and waded ashore through three and a half feet of water carrying their balloons which they planted on the beach in a wave of heavy machine-gun and mortar fire."

The balloons were brought in at 200 feet altitude and then raised.

"We had hardly set foot on the sand when the German guns and mortars opened up on us and the balloons," the leader of one of the first detachments said. "One balloon was shot down, but a new one was sent up almost immediately. We all lay down flat on the sand and watched the battle between the coastal guns and the salvos of a destroyer."

The balloon crews were only 100 yards from one powerful German gun. A boat approached and a naval officer shouted: "Is that the enemy on your left?" The balloonmen replied: "You bet it is. Can you clear him out?" A few minutes later a broadside from a warship knocked out the gun, whereupon then the gun crew came out to surrender. The balloonmen rounded up twenty prisoners and took them to landing craft.

R. A. F. service Commandos also landed soon after the assault wave, ready to service Allied aircraft as soon as an airfield could be captured and placed in operation.

All Sicily Banks Reopen, Use Military Currency

Withdrawals Limited to $50; No Runs Reported

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Allied Military Government for Occupied Territories announced today that banks all over Sicily had reopened, supported by special military currency brought in by occupation authorities.

Each depositor was permitted to withdraw up to 5,000 lire ($50), but no bank runs marked the opening. A. M. G. officials said they hoped unlimited withdrawals could be arranged soon.

An agency called the Allied Military Financial Agency, or A. M. F. A., has been put in charge of the banks.

A. M. G. announced that steps were being taken to overhaul Sicily's price decrees and rationing system to combat the black market while plans for industrial and commercial rehabilitation are being made

GEN. ROYCE TAKES COMMAND IN EGYPT

SEP 16 1943

Cairo, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—United States Army Headquarters announced today that Major-Gen Ralph Royce has taken over command of all American forces in the Middle East from Major-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton who has left for an important assignment in another theater of operations. The announcement did not disclose the nature of Gen. Brereton's new assignment.

Gen. Royce, who had been since April commanding general of the First Air Force at Mitchell Field, Long Island, is the flying general who in April, 1942, led thirteen bombers from an Australian base on a raid against a Japanese position in the Philippines. He received the Distinguished Service Cross for that exploit and later the Distinguished Flying Cross. He served as Chief of Staff to Lieut.-Gen. George H. Brett, then commanding the Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Gen. Royce is a native of Marquette, Mich., and twice commanded the First Pursuit Group at Selfridge Field. He has flown more than a million miles in the past twenty-eight years.

TURKEY REPLIES TO SOVIET CHARGE

Ankara, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Bad feeling between Russia and Turkey engendered by the latter's persistent neutrality policy flared anew yesterday when the Turkish newspaper Aksam answered an attack in the Russian magazine War and the Working Classes declaring that the Turkish stand favored Germany.

The Soviet publication said that if Turkey would enter the war the inevitable catastrophe for Germany would be accelerated.

"It is easy to say that Turkey's neutrality is to the advantage of Germany," Aksam retorted, "and to want to push Turkey into the war, but difficult to perceive who would be favored if we left our neutrality and, even more, where and how Turkey would enter the war and against whom she would direct her invasion. Soviet Russia had to enter the war in self-defense. Turkey's loyal policy during the hard war has been a most solid wall of security for Russia."

Aksam recalled that when Sukru Saracoglu, then Foreign Minister, went to Moscow to negotiate a mutual-aid pact with Russia in 1939 "he found himself in the presence of the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, and returned with empty hands."

It took the position that if the pact with Turkey, allied to France and England, had been signed by Russia it would have prevented the war.

ALLIED UNITS SEIZE 2 ISLES OFF TURKEY

Lero, Samos Occupied; First Step in Balkan Invasion Seen.

ANKARA, Sept. 15.—(AP) A foreign naval source said today that the Dodecanese island of Lero and the Greek Aegean island of Samos were occupied by invading Allied forces approximately three days ago.

Lero has a valuable naval seaplane base. Samos is the site of one of the best airdromes in the Aegean area.

Both islands are off Turkey's west coast and north of the Italian island of Rhodes. Lero and Samos are about 50 miles apart.

(This dispatch did not indicate whether the reported invasions were by special landing parties or by task forces of some great offensive movement.

(A stockholm dispatch yesterday said the British Ninth army, headed by Lt. Gen. W. H. Holmes, had sailed from Syrian bases after two years of intensive training.

Balkan Blow Indicated

(The mystery of the whereabouts of this army, coupled with announced successes of Yugoslav guerrillas who have liaison with the Allied command, suggested that a blow at the Balkans might be in the making.)

Samos, separated from the Turkish mainland by a one-mile strait, is about 27 miles long and 14 miles wide. The capital is at Vathy, in a deep bay on the north coast. A modern town, it is connected by carriage roads to other villages. Other ports include Tigani and Carlovasi.

The islanders cultivate grapes, cotton and tobacco and build sailing vessels.

Annexed to Greece in 1912, Samos has a population of more than 70,000.

Lero is a northerly island of the Dodecanese chain, which has variously been reported wrested from Italian control by the Germans in the last week. Lero is six miles long and four miles wide. It has a population of about 3,000 and its main town, of the same name, is on the east coast.

Italian Sloop Surrenders

Colombo, Ceylon, Sept. 15 (AP)—The modern 2,200-ton Italian sloop Eritrea entered Colombo harbor today flying a flag of surrender. The sloop is equipped for mine laying.

90% of Burma Facilities Razed By Allied Blows

Haynes, Who Has Been on 20 Raids, Says Country Is No Longer Enemy Fortress

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 15 (AP).—Brigadier General Caleb V. Haynes, who has been directing American task forces based in India and co-ordinating air attacks against Burma, asserted today that nine-tenths of the facilities of that country have been pulverized by Allied air attacks.

Burma is no Japanese fortress, he declared.

Haynes, known as "Old Grizzly" to pilots, has been ordered to the United States to take a new post. He has been on twenty bombing missions against Japanese bases in Burma.

"Japanese planes are improving, but are not improving as fast as ours," he observed. "Japanese pilots are not trained nearly as well as they were eighteen months ago."

Haynes, whose home is at Mt. Airy, N. C., is eager to see his wife, who is working in New York for the Sperry Bombsight Company—"making the same equipment I am using." She got the job without disclosing she was a general's wife, he commented.

Nazis' Defenses At Lozovaya in Ukraine Broken

General Russian Advance Toward Dnieper Continues

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Sept. 15.—The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star, reported today that a Russian night attack broke the German intermediate line defending Lozovaya in the Central Ukraine as the Red Army pressed a general advance toward the Dnieper.

The autumn rains had started falling in the Ukraine, the dispatch said, bogging down roads and fields and slackening the speed of maneuvers, but the tanks and motorized infantry continued to push forward in pursuit of the retreating enemy.

No further reports of the position around Bryansk were issued since yesterday's dispatches said the Red Army marched to within view of the city. (The Germans have reported they evacuated Bryansk.)

The Soviet drive west across the Ukraine proceeded steadily despite the admitted difficulties created temporarily by the mud.

Last Old Ukrainian Bastion.

Lozovaya, 30 miles northeast of Pavlograd and 65 miles northeast of Dnieperopetrovsk, was the last of the old Ukrainian bastions left to the Germans. It served as one of the main defenses south of Kharkov during the first winter offensive and was the scene of one of their counterattacks during the second winter. It was the highwater mark of the Russian counteroffensives in the south.

Red Star said the Russians were advancing toward Lozovaya along the railroad running west from Slavyansk through Barvenkova, both of which have been captured.

The Germans attempted to block the drive along the railroad to Lozovaya, the newspaper said, taking a stand on an intermediate line on a river bank near an undesignated railroad station. Big infantry forces and numerous fire points were detected there by Russian scouts.

Red Army men shattered the position by a night assault, the dispatch reported, and tanks rushed through the gap leading a 6-mile advance.

Gains Around Mariupol.

On the left flank of these forces other Red Army units battled their way west along roads from Kransnoarmeiskoye toward Pavlograd. German tank and infantry counter-attacks were reported being repulsed in that sector.

The base of the Russian line on the Sea of Azov was broadened yesterday by the expansion of the occupation around Mariupol, 12 miles west to Mangush and 12 miles northwest of Volodarskoye.

In the Northern Ukraine, the Soviets entered the immediate defenses of Nezhin after taking Kunashevka, 3 miles east of that railway junction 73 miles northeast of Kiev.

The Red Army lines also rolled closer to Priluki in the Northern Ukraine as the Russians pressed an enveloping maneuver around positions at Romny protecting Priluki from the east. Romny was outflanked from the south by a push through Lokhvista, 29 miles southwest of Romny and 43 miles southeast of Priluki.

JAP WARSHIP BOMBED

Chungking, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Planes of Major Claire L. Chennault's Fourteenth United States Air Force attacked Japanese shipping in Hongkong harbor last Saturday, badly damaging two ships, a communique from Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said today. The Americans also dive-bombed a destroyer off Sanchau Island, near Honkong, and left it damaged and burning, the communique added.

A near miss was scored on a 250-foot vessel near the Yangtze River port of Kiukiang and direct hits were recorded on a Japanese camp south of the city.

One American plane failed to return from the mission, the communique reported.

CHINA TO BUY GOLD TO FIGHT INFLATION

Chungking, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—China plans to buy $200,000,000 worth of gold and bring it to this country to combat inflation.

Chang Ping, chun, counsellor of the executive Yuan, said today that actual carriage of the gold would not have to await reopening of the Burma Road. The gold would be bought with part of the $500,000,000 loan granted China by the United States in 1942.

The methods to combat inflation were not disclosed.

It was also announced that negotiations are in progress in Washington for revision of the Chinese currency stabilization agreement among China, the United States and Great Britain, concluded well before the Pacific war and since outmoded by the fixing of exchange rates.

Minister of Information Chang Tao-fan, asked what the authorities intended to do if they could not settle the Communist problem in China by political means, replied "it is hoped the Communists will realize the significance of placing national interests first without hindering the war of resistance."

Center of Jap Resistance Pierced by Allies at Lae

Japs Compressed Within Two Miles of Key Base in Quick Advance.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, Sept. 16.—(AP) Allied forces have crashed through the main core of resistance west of the Japanese air base at Lae, New Guinea, and the other arm of a steadily advancing pincers has moved from the east within two miles of the town's center.

Following quickly the overrunning of other prepared positions on both sides of Lae, the new successes were announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Heath's plantation, eight miles west of Lae, where a bitter battle with the Japanese had been expected, fell to forces moving down the Markham valley. This force, brought in by big air transports Sept. 5, also overran Vernon's plantation, another center of resistance, and pushed ahead.

The force east of Lae standing nearest the town is comprised largely of Australians, veterans of African campaigns against the Germans, who are gravely menacing the bigger of Lae's two airdromes. This force is one which landed from the sea Sept. 4.

Ahead of the Markham valley troops, Mitchell medium bombers raked enemy positions along the valley road with bombs and strafing bullets.

The valley troops now are within five and a half miles of Lae, having also overrun Whittaker's plantation. The latest reports covered advances achieved Tuesday.

The Japanese did put up a rather stiff fight at Heath's plantation after having offered only patrol opposition previously to either of the Allied pincer forces. At Heath's, the enemy had erected pillboxes, prepared trenches and dugouts and installed machine guns, artillery and anti-aircraft. The enemy also attempted stands at Whittaker's and Vernon's.

Dislodged by Australians, the Japanese fled into jungles, leaving behind 100 dead and much equipment, including machine guns and ammunition.

The Japanese had converted the plantations into jungle forts.

Heath's and Whittaker's had been wired in. Allied troops had to fight their way from thick jungle into a wired-in clear area.

Fight Lasted Several Hours

Twenty-five pounders were used against the enemy's prepared positions. The fight at Heath's lasted several hours.

A force of Australians slipped into Vernon's plantation in an effort to cut off the Japanese retreating from Heath's but the Japanese took to the hills instead of using the road to Lae.

Allied artillery continued to pound the Lae garrison from both east and west and the Japanese returned the fire.

The Allied force which captured the airdrome and harbor town of Salamaua now has moved north some 10 miles, better than half the distance toward Lae. There were no indications that the few Japanese who escaped annihilation at Salamaua had been able to reach Lae. About their only feasible route would be inshore along the Huon gulf which the Allied Navy is patrolling.

16 Jap Planes Downed

In the Solomons, 16 Japanese planes were destroyed in a new American raid on the enemy's big air base of Kahili on Bougainville and the isolated Japanese garrison at Vila on Kolombangara has been bombed twice.

At Hansa bay, up the New Guinea coast from the ground fighting scene at Lae, 30 barges were bombed and strafed.

Above New Britain in the Admiralty islands, an enemy cargo vessel was bombed.

The vessel, of 2,000 tons, was attacked with unreported results by a four-engined bomber on reconnaissance.

In the attacks by Mitchells in the Hansa bay area, the majority of the barges were either destroyed or seriously damaged.

The Mitchells, twice sweeping along the coast south from the Sepik river, demolished warehouses, silenced machine-gun and anti-aircraft positions, attacked shore installations and set fire to enemy-occupied villages. No interference was encountered from Japanese planes.

Seven Shot Down

In the Solmons raid on Kahili, in addition to the sixteen enemy planes wrecked on the ground by the Liberators, escorting fighters shot down seven out of twenty-seven interceptors.

Today's communique also reported damage to a Japanese destroyer north of Bougainville by an American plane which scored direct hits with its bombs.

Six hundred miles above Australia, on Amboina Island, an enemy seaplane base was attacked by Mitchells which damaged two float planes and a flying boat.

CLEMENTS

Allied Pincers Squeeze Foe Out of Prepared Posts.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Japanese faced with annihilation at Lae, New Guinea—a fate which has overtaken most of the routed Salamaua garrison—fell back today before Allied pincer forces from prepared positions on two sides of the big air base.

Thunderous artillery exchanges and aerial bombardments by both sides intensified the struggle.

Allied forces which landed from the sea above Lae on September 4 now stand only a mile from the southern end of the Malahang airdrome, the bigger of two at Lae. This force reached that point by seizing the village of New Yanga, half way between the airdrome and the Busu River.

Americans and Australians who landed from big transport planes in the Markham Valley on September 5 have swept through two prepared positions west of Lae and are expected momentarily to engage in bitter fighting with Japanese at Heath's Plantation, eight miles from the town. Enemy patrols already have been encountered near the plantation.

Eighteen miles below Lae, where the Allies have captured the airdrome and harbor town of Salamaua, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said: "The enemy is completely routed and his forces destroyed." Only a few scattered groups succeeded in fleeing into nearby jungles.

"Their eventual annihilation is certain," today's communique stated.

The opposing air forces exchanged blows, but the most damaging one was delivered by the Allies against Wewak, New Guinea. On airdromes in that area, 350 miles above the ground front, the Allies in five raids during August destroyed more than 360 enemy aircraft, many of them caught wingtip on the ground.

One of Most Decisive at Awards Ceremony.

NAVAL HEADQUARTERS, South Pacific—(AP) "We made a torpedo attack. We waited for the torpedoes to hit. The torpedoes hit."

With these simple but graphic words, Commander Frederick Moosbrugger, U.S.N., squadron commander of a destroyer task force, described how his naval force sank one Japanese light cruiser and three enemy destroyers in Vella gulf on the night of Aug 6-7.

Commander Moosbrugger, 42, whose wife lives at 625 Washington lane, Jenkintown, Pa., and Lieut. Comdr. Clifton Iverson, U.S.N., 35, of Houston, Tex., were awarded Navy crosses personally by Admiral William F. Halsey for their leadership in the smashing victory.

Commander Iverson was captain of the destroyer which served as Commander Moosbrugger's flagship.

High officers at South Pacific headquarters describe this victory as "one of the most decisive, clean-cut actions our surface forces have engaged in during the war."

No U. S. Vessels Scratched

The entire Japanese force of four ships was wiped out without a single American ship or man getting even a scratch.

"We detected four enemy ships coming from the north into Vella gulf," Commander Moosbrugger said. "We moved in on them fast. The Japs and our force must have been closing at about 55 miles per hour.

"Our first torpedoes caused heavy explosions on one ship. Then there were bursts of flames and explosions on two others."

Commander Moosbrugger said that as soon as the torpedoes hit, American deck guns followed up with devastating salvoes.

A third enemy destroyer was "knocked to pieces and sunk."

"There were continuous explosions on the Jap cruiser and the whole area was a flame," Commander Moosbrugger continued. "Then I took our ships northward to take care of any other Japs which might come down.

"We passed within a few thousand yards of the burning cruiser. We saw a Jap destroyer silhouetted against the cruiser. She suddenly exploded, up-end and sank."

The American ships continued to pump torpedoes into the cruiser until she went under.

"Then there were no more enemy ships around," the officer said with a grin.

Survivors in Burning Oil

He reported the crews on some American ships saw many Japanese survivors, "crying and yelling in pain and misery as they were enveloped in the burning oil on the water."

The Americans attempted to pick up survivors outside the flaming oil, but the Japanese did their best to hide.

The action lasted from 11:45 p.m. until 12:27 a. m., and when the American ships departed the area was still alight with flames.

Commander Moosbrugger commented:

"I'd rather go into another battle like that than go through another award ceremony. My knees were certainly shaking when Admiral Halsey pinned on the medal."

Whizzer White Carrying Ball For Navy Now

On P. T. Boat Staff in South Pacific, He Aims to Stick to Law Study After War

JAMES

AT A MOTOR TORPEDO BOAT BASE IN THE NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS, Sept. 5 (delayed) (AP).—A turn to the right, and take three steps, turn left and walk fifteen more steps, and there at a desk in a sandbagged dugout in the yellow glow of electric lights is one of the most extraordinary young men to gain fame playing football.

He is Navy Lieutenant (j.g.) Byron Raymond White, twenty-six, of Wellington, Colo., commonly known as Whizzer White, a nickname he earnestly dislikes.

A former All-American football ace for the University of Colorado, former Oxford University Rhodes Scholar and former professional football player, he left the Yale University Law School to enter the Navy reserve as an ensign in May, 1942, and became a lieutenant, junior grade, a year later.

His job now is with the P. T. boats staff operating against the Japanese in the Northern Solomons and the New Georgias. He was lent by the staff of the commander of the South Pacific Forces to do the job, and has been ten weeks at forward bases.

Tall, fair-haired and still evidently very fit physically, White smiles in recalling incidents of the football field, but his interest is in winning the war and going back to Yale for his final year of law study.

"Football was just a means to an end—education—so far as I was concerned," he said. "I went from college into pro football to make money to pay for schooling."

At the University of Colorado, from which he was graduated in 1938, he was noted as a scholar as well as one of the best halfbacks ever developed in the Rocky Mountain Conference. His scholastic standing won him a Rhodes scholarship. He attended Oxford one year and came back for two years at Yale Law School.

Kurile Raiders Back at Base

BELL

Flyers Say Attack Was a Success Despite Cost in American Planes.

An Advanced Aleutian Base, Sept. 13 (A. P.) (Delayed).—As American Army flyers told vividly today of their latest and largest raid against Japan's Kurile Islands, Col. Frank Fogle, intelligence officer of the Eleventh Air Force, described the mission as successful but costly.

He said that of the planes participating five were presumed lost and five others may have reached land after the raid. (A Navy communique reported the time as Monday, Paramushiro time).

The raiders reported heavy damage to the Kashiwabara installations on Paramushiro Island and to shipping in Paramushiro Strait. They reported one ship was sunk, one exploded after a direct hit and another was left in flames by the force of Mitchell medium bombers which attacked at deck level.

The Japanese Zero fighters centered their attack on the big four-engined Liberators which dropped bombs from high altitude on the Kashiwabara installations. Returning flyers said ten Zeros were downed and possibly four others in this fourth aerial foray since July 10 against Japanese home soil at Paramushiro and the adjoining Shimishu Island naval base by planes from the Aleutians.

The greatest number of planes in a previous raid was nine.

Japanese broadcasts reported eighteen American planes were involved in the latest raid.

Tell of Experiences.

Striking experiences were described by the returned flyers as they stood beside bullet-pierced planes.

They told how Lieut. Nels A. Lofgren, 24 years old, of Sheridan, Wyo., fired with his .45 automatic pistol out of his co-pilot's window in a Liberator at an attacking Zero fighter.

Lieut Lofgren confirmed the story and remarked:

"I'll say they come in close enough!"

Technical Sergt. William Clark, 22, of Eunice, La., told of seeing the youngest member of the attacking force, 19-year-old Staff Sergt. Roy Cline of Knobsville, Pa., standing alone at his side gun—among fallen comrades—in a Liberator at the height of the Zero attack.

Most of Flyers Veterans.

Lieut. Lofgren, Corporal Charles Hopp, 29, of Chicago, and several others who had been on previous Paramushiro raids, said both ground and Zero resistance was heavier this time.

Most of the flyers were veterans of bombing-attacks on the Japanese on Attu and Kiska, and they agreed with Lieut. William T. Dolly, 26, of Detroit, who asserted:

"Kiska and Attu were just Sunday schools compared to this."

The flyers said the Zeros, which they estimated at twenty to forty, attacked the big bombers as they started back for the Aleutians after dropping their lethal explosive cargoes. The leading Liberator, with one motor in flames and another disabled, was seen to crash into the sea, breaking up as it hit. The tail gunner could be seen still firing at a strafing Zero as the bomber struck.

QUITS DIPLOMATIC CORPS

Ruiz Guinazu Objects to Storni's Notes on Argentine Policy

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 15 (AP)—Former Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu sent a letter to President Pedro Ramirez today declaring that he intended to resign from the diplomatic corps because of references to Argentina's neutrality policy contained in Vice Admiral Segundo R. Storni's note to Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Señor Ruiz Guinazu has been in retirement since the June revolution that unseated Ramon Castillo as President, but he had retained his status as a career diplomat. He formerly served as Minister to Switzerland and Ambassador to the Vatican.

His letter said that the neutrality policy of Argentina, of which he was a determined exponent, represented the "sentiment of Argentina that was respected by the previous government." Foreign Minister Storni, in asking Mr. Hull recently for lend-lease aid, said that the Castillo Government "did not understand the reality of internal and foreign policy" and added that a change in foreign policy "could not be effected in a violent manner because our country was not ready for it." Admiral Storni resigned as Foreign Minister after Mr. Hull had rejected his plea for aid.

Protest Press Suspensions

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Argentine Federation of Journalists told the Ministry of Interior today that the suspension of newspapers and publications frequently ordered by the government decreased the income of staff members and other employees. Their memorandum to Alberto Gilbert, the minister, followed the announcement that new press regulations would be issued shortly.

HONOR CAPT. COHEN

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Capt. Marion Y. Cohen of Belmar, N. J., has been awarded the Legion of Merit Order of President Roosevelt "for exceptionally meritorius conduct in the performance of outstanding services as commander of escort units with the North Atlantic convoys."

The presentation was made made here yesterday by Vice-Admiral A. B. Cook, commander of the Caribbean sea frontier, on instructions from Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

The citation said: "By skillful conduct a convoy escorted by Capt. Cohen not only prevented an enemy attack on the convoy but while in command of a task unit launched an effective attack on an enemy submarine."

Marshall Pays Surprise Visit To Mexico City

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Chief of Staff, arrived here today on a surprise visit and said German resistance north of Taranto and west of Brindisi in Italy had eased up, but "we do not know how long the Germans will continue fighting in the south."

In a statement on the war, Marshall, whose visit with Mrs. Marshall was so unexpected that only a few high-ranking Mexican officers and a guard of honor were at the airport, said the bitter engagements around Salerno yesterday were regarded "as the beginning of heavy fighting."

He said Allied bombings of Germany had been "very effective," with important Nazi utilities and the inner organization of Germany proper destroyed, and forecast even heavier raids.

As for the Pacific area, he said the Japanese were meeting difficulties "and they will have an even harder time a little later."

"We were most unready in December, 1941," he said, "but are fully prepared now."

The U. S. chief of staff, accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, planned to remain for the Mexican Independence day celebration tonight and a parade tomorrow. He told reporters that he thanked "the Mexican government for the demonstration given the U. S. government in my person."

General Marshall climbed down from an Army air transport, with

1943

Mrs. Marshall and one aide, Col. Frank J. McCarty. He was met by Gen. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican ambassador to Washington, who introduced him to other Mexican officials. General Marshall reviewed the 34th infantry battalion and then congratulated Col. Juventino Bolanos Huerta on the appearance of the troops.

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—The United Nations radio at Algiers said tonight that 8,000 Italian infantrymen had been battling German occupation troops at Trento, strategic valley town south of Brenner Pass, "besieging the local barracks and inflicting heavy casualties." ISLAND OF CAPRI PEARL OF NAPLES

By Associated Press.

The small island of Capri, captured by Allied forces, is known as the Pearl of the Bay of Naples and was often been the object of dispute and military warfare as well as inspiration of song.

Capri was inhabited in prehistoric times, later being taken first by the Greeks and then by the Romans. The Roman Emperor Augustus obtained it by purchase from the Neapolitans. The Emperor Tiberius retired to Capri in 27 A. B., building a number of villas dedicated to Roman gods.

In 1806, during the Napoleonic wars, the island was taken by a British fleet under Sir Sidney Smith. The French under Gen. Maximilien Lamaroue re-took it two years later, however, and in 1913 it was restored to Ferdinand I, King of the two Sicilies.

In modern times, the island has become a tourist center. Its chief products are fruit, oil and wine.

Capri and Anacapri, on opposite ends of the four-mile-long island, are the principal towns, with about 4,000 inhabitants.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Desperate Nazi attacks against the center of the American Fifth army's bridgehead fringing Salerno gulf appeared balked last night and the first Allied crisis of the invasion of Italy passing.

Allied air power, thrown into the struggle on a tremendous scale, is credited with staving off a German break-through down the plain of Eboli, south of the 1,500-foot mountain of that name, which could have cut the American force in half in the center. With the constant arrival by sea of reinforcements and the approach from the south of British troops to outflank the Nazi positions on the inshore heights, the tide of battle seems destined to turn decisively in Allied favor before many hours have gone by.

Mount Eboli itself is the key to the situation. Official Allied accounts furnish little data on the nature of the struggle within its shadow although emphasizing the bitterness of the conflict and the desperation with which Nazi commanders hurled armored forces into the effort to break through to the beach.

Press accounts passed through censorship give a clearer picture. They make it clear that Mount Eboli, towering just north of the village of that name on its southeastern flank, must have been the stumbling block to swift expansion inshore of the Allied beach head. Nazi big guns set high on its slopes commanded not only the beaches in the center, but the Eboli plain and the valley of the Sele river south of it, the natural, low-level route of advance inshore for the Allied invaders.

The press accounts tell of a terrific massing of Allied medium and small bombers over the slopes of Mount Eboli and the roads north and east of it, supplemented by a pounding attack from British and American naval guns. They describe the main Nazi attack as having been delivered between the Sele and the Calore rivers, just south of Mount Eboli. It has halted before the confluence of the two streams at Persano village was reached.

Deepest in Center

That indicates that the deepest American inshore penetration is in the center. It appears aimed up the Sele valley presumably to reach the main Salerno motor highway southward, which passes over the lower slopes of Mount Eboli to reach both the toe and heel of the Italian boot, forking at Auletta.

It is up the west fork of this primary highway that the British Eighth army spearhead at Cosenza is pushing, but still distant. The nearest British force is reported on the west coast road at Belvedere, with nearly 70 miles still to go by last account to reach the Salerno battle front.

Even so, that British spearhead at Belvedere and its matching Eighth army push up the main inshore highway from Cosenza must figure in Nazi tactical dispositions. They cannot continue to mass all available forces in the center and on the southern end of the American Salerno bridgehead against General Clark's forces. The British would take them in flank and rear from the south within the next few days unless a Nazi stand against Eighth army spearheads is quickly developed.

The implication of the German failure to break through to the beach in the Eboli sector is that an American counter drive up the valley of the Sele is to be expected once sufficient men and heavy equipment have been set ashore. Once they reach the Salerno-Auletta highway southeast of Mount Eboli, that Nazi bastion would be outflanked and could be taken to free the Salerno bridgehead of danger and permit its expansion both eastward and northward up the Salerno-Naples motorway, the most ambitious bit of modern road in Italy.

MIDDLE EAST FORCES' SIZE IS UNKNOWN

SEP 16 1943

Two British Armies, 9th And 10th, In Sir Henry Wilson's Command

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 15—Created to guard the crossroads of the world in Asia Minor, the Allied armies of the Middle East add up to a formidable force—but so far as is known they still are under independent commands.

A report today that the British Ninth Army was on the move, unconfirmed in official quarters, centered attention on these troops grouped around the eastern end of the Mediterranean.

Both the United States and Britain have Middle East commands—the British under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, 62; the American under Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, who has just succeeded Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton.

Two Armies Under Wilson

The size of these forces is a matter of conjecture, as is their make-up. Wilson's command includes the Ninth and Tenth British armies, but the strength and equipment of these armies has not been publicized.

A year ago, Wilson's command was estimated to total 150,000 men. It is probably much larger by this time, and also probably has been all but reequipped with modern implements of war. Its territory is vast—stretching from somewhere west of Egypt across Palestine, Syria and Iraq into Persia. The Tenth Army has been in Persia and Iraq; the Ninth in the lands adjacent to the Mediterranean.

American forces also are in the Middle East, but so far the only American combat troops whose presence there has been disclosed are those of the Ninth Air Force. Others are supply and technical troops, scattered throughout the area, but found probably in greatest numbers at the head of the Persian Gulf, where they operate the supply line into Russia.

French And Poles Also There

In addition to these British and American forces, there are others—the French in Syria, and a large Polish force which has been in training more than a year under British supervision in the Middle East. The size of the French forces is not known.

The Poles, released by Russia to join the Allied fighting forces in the Mediterranean area, probably number between 50,000 and 75,000. This would be enough to provide two or three divisions, with supporting troops, and their equipment—as well as training—probably has kept pace with that of the British themselves.

BRITISH LIMITED USE OF BASES GRANTED U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP) As a condition for permission to build air fields on British territory during the war, the United States has had to guarantee it would not use them for commercial purposes, Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) said today.

Asserting that a post-war race in commercial aviation is inevitable, Senator McCarran declared the fields "are of such a nature that Great Britain could step right in after the war and use them to forward its post-war air commerce."

He said in a statement that American money had been used to construct the air fields and that this country should benefit from its industry and enterprise.

RUSSIAN ARMY'S SIZE PUZZLES WAR DEPT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15. — (AP) Even the War department doesn't know how big the Russian army is, Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson disclosed today.

Mr. Patterson was questioned by Senator Downey (D-Calif) about a statement the former made before the Military Affairs committee that Russia and Great Britain had greater proportions of their population under arms than the United States. Senator Downey challenged this.

"How many men are in the Russian army?" Senator Downey demanded.

"Nobody knows," Mr. Patterson replied with a shrug.

Senator Downey said it was his belief that the Russians had about 9,000,000 men under arms, about the same number as the United States.

Marcantonio to Press Puerto Rican Bill

Washington, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Representative Marcantonio (A. L. P.-N. Y.) announced today that he would seek early consideration of his bill providing Pureto Rican independence.

The bill provides that within ninety days of its enactment, the President would proclaim Puerto Rico free, with the United States retaining control of Army and Navy installations until a treaty of defense could be concluded. If no such treaty were drawn, the United States would remain in control until six months after the war.

F.D.R. Favored Raids on U. S., Says Witness at Espionage Trial

SEP 16 1943

F.B.I. Agent Tells of Sentence in Invisible Ink in Letter.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—(AP) An F.B.I. agent testified today that one of two men on trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the Wartime Espionage act had written Germany that "Roosevelt would be only too glad to see attacks on American coastal cities to rouse the nation to greater war efforts."

The agent, Gerhardt Hundt, testified in Brooklyn Federal court that this message, written in invisible ink, was dated Feb. 18, 1942, and signed "Fred Lewis," an alias identified by previous witnesses as that of Ernest P. Lehmitz, 57.

Lehmitz and Erwin H. de Spretter, 52, both former State Island air raid wardens, are being tried before a jury of eight men and four women. Conviction carries penalties ranging from 30 years' imprisonment to death.

Another message that the liner Normandie "is said to have sailed with troops," was attributed to Lehmitz by Hundt. It was dated Jan. 26, 1942, and Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for Lehmitz, said for the record that the former French liner Normandie burned at its Hudson river pier Feb. 9 of that year.

Found in Innocuous Letters

Hundt said that the messages were written by Lehmitz in invisible ink between lines of apparently innocuous looking letters to "friends" in Spain and Portugal.

Among messages introduced as evidence was one from Lehmitz, on April 11, 1942, telling that a convoy of 27 ships with seven warships and carrying 39,000 troops was due to sail for Ireland.

Testimony also was given by F.B.I Agent Charles Stanley linking Lehmitz and de Spretter. Mr. Stanley said de Spretter told him that he met Lehmitz through a man he knew as an employe of the Hamburg-American line.

De Spretter related, Mr. Stanley said, that Lehmitz offered to pay for information on ship movements to help solve de Spretter's financial difficulties. De Spretter admitted obtaining $100 from Lehmitz for a book on the Brewster Aircraft Corp., containing several passes to the plant, Mr. Stanley testified, but that otherwise he had received only small sums.

Mr. Stanley said de Spretter declared that the information he had given on the Normandie sailing had been gleaned from a conversation he overheard on a ferryboat.

Morgenthau Assails Optimism, Cites Cost of Sicily's Conquest

Reports Tremendous Loss of Life and Materiel Just to Get Into an Outpost of Europe; Warns That Third War Loan Won't Be the Last

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Lashing out at "this foolish, childish overoptimism," Henry Morgenthau jr., Secretary of the Treasury, disclosed tonight that the conquest of Sicily—"merely an outpost of the fortress of Europe"—cost the Allies materiel losses ranging up to 54 per cent.

Solemnly he warned that the attack in Italy "is the beginning of the war, as far as the United States is concerned."

Declaring that "months from now, when and if we conquer Italy, we will still be nowhere near Germany," Mr. Morgenthau said that the hard fighting around Salerno is costing the Americans "a tremendous loss of life."

In a nation-wide radio address from the Army's "Back the Attack" show on the Washington Monument grounds, the Treasury head asserted the current $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan would not be the last.

Detailing the costs of the Sicilian invasion, Mr. Morgenthau reminded: "I'm not talking about Italy. I'm talking about Sicily. In Sicily we met only a small fraction of the opposition we are getting from the Germans now in Italy. Listen to what it cost us."

He listed:

Thirteen per cent of all 155-mm. howitzers landed by the Allies.

Forty-six per cent of all 57-mm. guns put into action.

Thirteen per cent of all guns employed.

Eight per cent of all medium tanks and 7 per cent of all light tanks.

Fifty-four per cent of the carriages for the 37-mm. guns.

Thirty-six per cent of the motor carriages for the 75-mm. guns.

1943

3027-8453

Twenty-two per cent of the carriages for the 105-mm. howitzers.

"I say nothing of killed and wounded," he added, "I say nothing of the vast quantity of secondary materials used—things like 1,100 miles of copper telephone wire."

Pointing to the optimism he said was engendered by the North African successes, the Sicilian campaign and the Italian surrender, Mr. Morgenthau said:

"Let us stop this foolish, childish overoptimism and overconfidence. It is criminal. It is criminal because every time we decide the war is won, we sign a death warrant for another thousand, or two thousand, or five thousand American soldiers and sailors.

"Let management spend less time telling the public what a magnificent job it is doing—which everybody knows—and more time doing the job.

"Let labor think less about the fun it's going to have on Saturday night, and think more about ways to increase production and buy more bonds."

Mr. Morgenthau said after the Italian surrender the public adopted the attitude that "the war was won. We could stop drafting soldiers. We could stop producing weapons. We could reduce taxes. Everybody could sit back and take it easy."

"Well," he continued, "you've seen the newspapers today. We are holding around Naples, but we are just barely holding, with tremendous loss of life. In a hard week of fighting we have managed to gain only a small foothold in Italy. Today the situation is critical. In any event, we still have to drive north about 500 miles, with the Germans fighting every inch of the way. At the very least it will take months. And . . . when and if we conquer the whole of Italy we will still be nowhere near Germany. We will still have a long way to go."

Secretary Morgenthau introduced a new American weapon in his speech tonight—the 57-millimeter gun.

It was described at the War Department as a modified and improved American version of the British six-pounder, principally used as an anti-tank gun. In early stages of the war the major American anti-tank weapon was the rapid-firing 37-millimeter gun, but as the Germans brought in more heavily armored tanks its effectiveness dropped. The 57-millimeter was the Army's answer.

DRAFT OF FATHERS ESSENTIAL, SAY ARMY OFFICIALS

National Service Legislation Urged by Undersecretary of War Patterson.

STRATEGY SEEN PERILED

Gen. McNarney Says Ban Would Require Change in Pacific Plans.

SEP 16 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15. — (AP) War department officials, called on to explain the need for drafting fathers, told Congress today that the global war situation demands not only this step but also legislation allowing compulsory assignment of men and women to war industries.

Gravely, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, testified before a Senate-House committee that a ban on induction of fathers would necessitate recasting all the strategic planning done at the Roosevelt-Churchill Quebec conference.

To this, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson added testimony that deferment of fathers would cripple war production because it would necessitate drafting childless men who are essential workers in key industries.

Troop Bases Essential

Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, sent the following statement to the Senate Military Affairs committee on the need for maintaining the current induction plans of the armed forces:

"The troop bases for all armed services for the calendar year 1943 as finally recommended by the joint chiefs of staff and approved by the President are essential to the successful prosecution of the war. There can be no lowering of the numbers of men to be furnished the armed services without serious detriment not only to planned operations but to operations that are now under way or in process of mounting.

"The troop bases for 1944 are now under continuing study by the joint chiefs of staff. There will necessarily be some increase in the numbers required for that year over 1943."

The admiral will not testify in person.

Already, Mr. Patterson said, a shortage of labor in aircraft factories "is cutting down the number of planes that might be produced for waging war against our enemies," and added that he believed the only solution to be legislation for compulsory manpower controls.

Vital for Early Victory

"The War department believes," he continued, "that the prompt passage of a law for national service would be of prime value in bringing the war to a successful and swift conclusion."

Gen. McNarney and Mr. Patterson testified before the Senate Military committee on a bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) to forbid drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers before Jan. 1. Senator Wheeler has served notice he will try to bring the measure up in the Senate without waiting for the committee's report and also will amend it to prohibit indefinitely the induction of fathers. Members of the House Military committee are sitting with the Senate group at the hearings.

Double War Jeopardized

It was announced after the Quebec conference that it was concerned primarily with planning campaigns against the Japanese. Therefore, Gen. McNarney's assertions carried the implication that it would be impossible to conduct major campaigns simultaneously against both the Japanese and the Germans if fathers get blanket deferment from the armed services.

He told the legislators that the collapse of Italy had brought no change in the high command's estimate that an Army of 7,700,000 by the end of this year "is the minimum force required for the tasks ahead."

"Any curtailment, reduction or postponement" of plans to raise that Army, he continued, "will necessitate a change in our strategical commitments."

"Whoever initiates such a change must assume the grave responsibility for ignoring the considered judgment of our military leaders arrived at after careful and prolonged studies."

The over-all army figure, he added, includes 190,000 nurses and WACS.

Gen. McNarney agreed to give in a closed session more details on the need for an Army of that size.

Upon the demand of Sen. Downey (D-Calif.) Gen. McNarney also was instructed to present in closed session figures on the number of men in the Canadian Army and Navy. Gen. McNarney was told it would be all right to ask the Canadian general staff representatives for such information as they cared to disclose. Sen. Revercomb (R-W. Va.) also requested that comparable figures be furnished relating to the war effort of all our Allies.

Navy Boosts By 400,000 Call For New Men This Year

WMC Official Says Nation's Armed Forces Will Total 10,700,000 By End Of 1943

SEP 16 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 15—The nation's military services now are pointing toward an armed force of 10,700,000 by the end of 1943, instead of the 10,800,000 planned earlier, an informed War Manpower Commission official said today.

A decrease of 500,000 in the projected size of the army is forecast but the navy's call for new men is due to be increased by approximately 400,000, the official said.

It was explained that the jump in the naval estimate probably resulted from faster delivery of ships than had been expected.

Navy Negro Enlistments

Meanwhile, the WMC is hoping for an acceleration in the rate at which Negroes are being taken into the navy. WMC has urged the navy to build up its Negro enlistments and inductions to ten per cent. by the end of 1943. But the present rate of acceptance indicates that proportion will not be reached until late in 1944, the official said.

Navy recruiting, the source said, is taking a bigger bite than expected out of the whipped cream on top of the manpower cake—the youths who are reaching their eighteenth birthdays. Plans had been based on estimates of 100,000 boys a month becoming eligible for induction but the official said the actual number is running only about 80,000, indicating that many already have been taken by the navy.

The November call for men in the armed services is expected to be higher than that for October, although no figures have yet been released, another authoritative source reported.

October Call 300,000

The October call totaled approximately 300,000 men.

An increase would not represent any enlargement of the total net strength of military forces planned for this year.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, told a Senate committee today that the army planned on inducting between 145,000 and 175,000 per month for the remainder of the year. That number would leave about as many more under the WMC totals for the navy, marines and Coast Guard.

Allied invasion requirements demand that the merchant marine during the next year recruit at least 35,000 experienced officers and men now holding shore jobs, the War Shipping Administration announced today.

Committee Told Renegotiation Act Should Stay

Investigators for House Naval Body Also Favor Post-War Aid to Industry

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP).—Government aid to industry in post-war reconversion to civilian production, but retention of the contract renegotiation act to prevent "excessive" profits on war contracts, were recommended today by the investigating staff of the House Naval Committee.

Meanwhile, Harvey W. Moore, of Concord, N. C., representing the cotton textile industry, told the House Ways and Means Committee that "statutory renegotiation should be repealed, or if it is continued in any respect, then the manufacture of standardized commercial articles should be exempted from the law."

The Naval Committee's report, the result of a long investigation, was released by Robert E. Kline, general counsel, after it had been approved by Representative Carl Vinson, Democrat, of Georgia. Mr. Kline said a long list of recommendations would be submitted to the full committee, probably early next week, for passing along to the Ways and Means Committee.

The latter committee, holding jurisdiction over the renegotiation act, only last week began a public hearing on whether the act should be retained in its present form, revised or repealed, Representative W. Sterling Cole, Republican, of New York, introduced yesterday a bill calling for repeal.

In summarizing its report, the Naval Committee staff declared that those charged with administration of the law "have demonstrated the extreme usefulness of the act to the procurement program, and they have saved the public treasury very large sums of money."

While saying that the renegotiation act is not the "proper vehicle" for meeting the problems of post-war readjustments, the report asserted "there is an obligation on the part of government to assist industry in meeting those problems. It recommanded, among other things, that the government provide severance pay for employees whose jobs will end with cancellation of government war contracts.

Army Unveils Its Tank-Buster, The Bazooka

Rocket Gun Demonstrated for First Time; It Can Pulverize Rock Masonry

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Bazooka, the Army new secret weapon, made its first public appearance today at an Army show on the Washington Monument grounds.

Named "Bazooka" by soldiers, it is an anti-tank rocket gun which the Army said "has proved as effective an instrument of destruction against thick brick walls, rock masonry, structural steel and railroad rails as it has against enemy tanks."

A product of long experiment by the Ordnance Department, the weapon's mechanism was a military secret until today, although it has been known by name since the North African campaign.

The Army now gives its decription:

"The 'Bazooka' launcher, or gun, is a metal tube somewhat more than fifty inches in length and less than three inches in diameter. It is open at both ends. Attached to the tube are a shoulder stock and front and rear grips for the firer, together with sights and an electric battery which sets off the rocket propelling charge when the launcher trigger is squeezed.

"The launcher is operated by a two-man soldier team—one the firer, the other the loader.

"After the loader has inserted the rocket in the launcher, he turns a contact lever to the 'fire' position, signals 'ready' to the firer, and then drops down and away from the rear end of the launcher and grasps a new rocket.

"When the firer squeezes the trigger, the rocket-propelling charge is ignited and flashes from the rear of the launcher tube.

"The rocket itself is heavier than the hand grenade and is nearly two feet long. Its appearance is that of a small, elongated aircraft bomb. Its components are an explosive head, propelling charge powder tube and finned tail, the latter providing accuracy in flight.

"The 'bazooka' supplements, rather than supersedes, other weapons. It is standard equipment for certain classes of troops. Raiding groups, tank-hunting parties and reconnaissance elements have reported it highly effective. It has been used with success by landing parties in neutralizing pillboxes."

The Army said the projectile is capable of piercing the armor of any tank which so far has been in action against Allied troops. The weapon is now being supplied in quantity, it was said, to American and other United Nations forces.

New Weapon Disclosed

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau introduced a new American weapon in his speech tonight—the 57-mm. gun.

SEP 16 1943

It was described at the War Department as a modified and improved American version of the British six pounder, principally used as an anti-tank gun.

In early stages of the war

the major American anti-tank weapon was the rapid firing 37-mm. gun, but as the Germans brought in more heavily armored tanks its effectiveness dropped. The 57-mm. was the army's answer.

McCarran Concerned Over Airfields Abroad

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—As a condition for permission to build airfields on British territory during the war, the United States has had to guarantee it would not use them for commercial purposes, Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) said today.

Asserting that a post-war race in commercial aviation is inevitable, McCarran declared the fields "are of such a nature that Great Britain could step right in after the war and use them to forward its post-war air commerce."

He said in a statement that American money had been used to construct the airfields and that this country should benefit from its industry and enterprise.

Throng Hails Bomber Veterans

Army Airmen Land at Washington Before Beginning Tour of United States.

Washington, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Three battle-scarred Army bombers and their veteran crews, returning from operations over North Africa, Sicily, the Rumanian oil fields and the Middle East, landed at the Washington National Airport today to be welcomed by a cheering throng of spectators.

The planes were two B-24 Liberator bombers, the Wash Tub and the Squaw, and one B-25 Mitchell, Desert Warrior, all members of the United States Army Ninth Air Force. They came here from Florida for the crews' first public appearance since returning from overseas.

Tour of U. S. Planned.

The airmen will spend the next three days here, then will be allowed three weeks' furlough, to visit their homes. After that, they will reassemble as a group and make a tour of the United States.

The three planes are credited with downing thirty-one enemy planes and dropping 460 tons of bombs over a stretch reaching from El Alamein across Africa to Sicily, and on Italy, Greece, Crete and Rumania. The Wash Tub, dropped 219 tons of bombs, participated in seventy-three combat missions, flew 551 hours for a total of nearly 100,000 miles and shot down twenty-two enemy fighters.

The Squaw dropped 180 tons, participated in the daring low-level attack on the Ploesti oil-fields in Rumania and destroyed six enemy aircraft. The Desert Warrior, a twin-engine bomber as contrasted with the two other four-engine planes, was flown in seventy-three combat missions, dropped more than seventy tons of bombs and shot down three enemy fighters.

Co-captain From Brooklyn.

The Wash Tub's crew included co-pilot Capt. Richard W. Beck of 7323 Stewart avenue, Brooklyn.

The Squaw's crew included Radio Operator-Technical Sergt. John R. Rielly of Utica, and Tail Gunner-Staff Sergt. John Gunnu of Albany.

The Desert Warrior's crew included Top Turret Gunner-Staff Sergt. James P. Garofale of 8840 Union Turnpike, Glendale, L. I.

House Plans Vote Monday On Post-War Collaboration

Overwhelming Approval of Fulbright Resolution Is Forecast.

SEP 16 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP) Arrangements were made today for a House vote Monday on a resolution recording Congress in favor of international post-war collaboration to maintain the peace, and there were indications that Senate action on the subject would not be long delayed.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders expressed conviction the House would give overwhelming approval to the Fulbright resolution. The House Foreign Affairs committee agreed to bring it to the floor Monday under a procedure barring amendments.

On the Senate side, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee suggested the United States take a leading part in creating a post-war organization of foreign nations to enforce the peace with military and naval might.

Senate Hearing Wednesday

He announced that a Foreign Affairs sub-committee would meet Wednesday to consider a dozen or more post-war proposals and indicated that it would—rather than accept the House resolution—write one of its own.

Behind closed doors, the House committee debated at length the wisdom of the move, and then decided to call up the resolution under suspension of the rules—a procedure precluding amendments and requiring a two-thirds vote of approval.

The action came after Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex), Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass) and Minority Leader Martin (R-Mass) were called into the executive session. Committee Chairman Bloom (D-NY) declined to disclose the vote.

Ordinarily, the procedure would limit debate to just 40 minutes. The party chiefs got together, however, and Speaker Rayburn announced that "liberal" time would be provided for discussion—"all afternoon if necessary."

By adopting this procedure, the Foreign Affairs committee by-passed the Rules committee which has control over movement of most legislation to the floor, and could—if it wished—prescribe procedure opening the resolution to amendments.

Favor International Body

Drafted by Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark) and approved unanimously by the House committee, the resolution says simply:

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), that the Congress hereby expresses itself as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein."

Rep. Martin told newsmen later that normally he would oppose the procedure preventing amendments, but added that there was "justification in this case because we're at war—in a critical phase of a war—and you don't want to go too far afield."

The Republican leader, recording himself as personally in favor of the resolution, said that "there is no question but what it will pass."

Speaker Rayburn said, "I don't think that there will be a great number of votes against it."

Authority for Sanctions

Senator Connally told a press conference that unless this country participates in efforts to preserve the peace, those efforts will fail.

"It seems to me fundamental," he declared, "that any international peace machinery must have authority to impose sanctions. These would include economic and, in the final analysis, military and naval sanctions.

"I do not mean by that that I favor a separate international police force, but I believe that machinery should be worked out by which each nation would be given quotas in furnishing armed forces."

1,425 Aliens Overseas Granted U. S. Citizenship

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—American citizenship was granted to 1,425 aliens serving overseas with the armed forces in the fiscal year ended June 30, Earle G. Harrison, Immigration and Naturalization Commissioner, reported today.

An Irishman serving in the Canal Zone, James A. Finnell Hoey, was the first person ever to receive American citizenship on foreign soil.

Bill Would Bar Unauthorized Pacts

Washington, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—Legislation prohibiting unauthorized agreements between the United States and foreign nations has been introduced in the House by Representative Cole (R.-N. Y.). It provides that "no promise, agreement, commitment or undertaking made by any person with any foreign government, people, representative, official or agency, shall be binding" on the United States unless "made in accordance with and under the express and specific authority of the laws of the United States."

Stimson Urged To Put Colman Out of Army

Representative O'Toole Asks Inquiry Into Court Martial, Sees Morale Hurt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP).—Representative Donald L. O'Toole, Democrat, of New York, demanded today of Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, an investigation of the court martial of Colonel William T. Colman, saying "the morale of the Army and of the public will be shattered by the retention of such specimens within our armed forces."

The Representative also demanded that Colman be suspended from all duties until the inquiry is completed. Earlier Representative Paul W. Shafer, Republican, of Michigan, described the outcome of the court martial as a travesty and said he would ask the Military Affairs Committee to review the case.

Colman, former commanding officer at Selfridge Field, Michigan air base, was convicted by a general court martial of violating the articles of war and faces a demotion to the grade of captain with no chance for promotion for three years. He was found guilty of careless use of firearms in the shooting and wounding of a Negro private and on four charges of drunkenness on duty.

If press accounts are accurate "and this man is allowed to remain as an officer of the Army of the United States," Representative O'Toole wrote Mr. Stimson, "I could not blame any civilian or member of the Army for failing to have respect for those who are known as 'officers and gentlemen' by act of Congress."

Marshall Asks 48 Governors To Aid WAC Drive

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall has asked the Governors of the forty-eight States to head as many recruiting campaigns for the Women's Army Corps.

The campaign will start September 27 and continue through December 7.

The War Department announced today that the chief of staff, in a letter to each Governor, asserted WACs were needed to replace all soldiers now performing jobs which women can do, and asked them to recruit women volunteers "to equal the total battle casualties of the army to date"—more than 70,000.

The most recent report showed the strength of the WAC as approximately 65,000, compared with a goal of 150,000 which Marshall has set for this year.

The ship, the Bladensburg, went to the tanker fleet.

U. S. Turns Over First Liberty Ship To China

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (AP)—Flying the Chinese flag and manned by a Chinese crew under American officers, the S. S. Chung Shan today became the first Liberty freighter in the Far Eastern republic's infant merchant marine.

The Shung Shan, named for Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first President of the Republic, was turned over to Chinese representatives yesterday at Henry J. Kaiser's Richmond shipyard. Today Chinese and the United States Government joined in a formal celebration of the transfer.

MORE PLANES! CRY FROM EVERY FRONT

Washington, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—"More planes, more planes!" That, Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the Senate Military Committee today, is the cry arising from every front.

"I got it over there the other day from Gen. MacArthur," he said. Mr. Patterson was in Australia just two weeks ago on an inspection of the Pacific fronts.

NAVY CROSS AWARD

Washington, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The Navy Cross has been awarded to Lieut.-Commander George K. Mackenzie Jr., missing skipper of the submarine Triton, for heroism in action against the enemy. Lieut.-Commander Mackenzie, a resident of New London, Conn., commanded the Triton, the Navy said, "during a highly successful attack on an enemy convoy."

He was listed as missing with members of the Triton's crew when the loss of the submarine was announced by the Navy several weeks ago. His wife, Mrs. Josephine Moore Mackenzie, lives in New London.

The citation, accompanying the cross awarded by the President, reported that the Triton sank several ships of an enemy convoy and damaged others. Where the action was fought was not disclosed, but it presumably was in the Pacific where United States submarines are most active.

NOTES AIRED AT SPY TRIAL

FBI Agent Tells Of Message Sent Germany About Attacks On U. S.

SEP 16 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 15—An FBI agent testified today that one of two men on trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the Wartime Espionage Act had written Germany that "Roosevelt would be only too glad to see attacks on American coastal cities to rouse the nation to greater war effort."

The agent, Gerhardt Hundt, testified in Brooklyn Federal Court that this message, written in invisible ink, was dated February 18, 1942, and signed "Fred Lewis," an alias identified by previous witnesses as that of Ernest P. Lehmitz, 57.

8 Men And 4 Women

Lehmitz and Erwin H. de Spretter, 52, both former Staten Island air-raid wardens, are being tried before a jury of eight men and four women. Conviction carries penalties ranging from thirty years' imprisonment to death.

Another message that the liner Normandie "is said to have sailed with troops," was attributed to Lehmitz by Hundt. It was dated January 26, 1942, and Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for Lehmitz, said for the record that the former French liner Normandie burned at its Hudson river pier February 9 of that year.

Hundt said that the messages were written by Lehmitz in invisible ink between lines of apparently innocuous-looking letters to "friends" in Spain and Portugal.

Another Message

Among messages introduced as evidence was one from Lehmitz on April 11, 1942, telling that a convoy of twenty-seven ships with seven warships and carrying 39,000 troops was due to sail for Ireland.

Testimony also was given by FBI Agent Charles Stanley linking Lehmitz and de Spretter. Stanley said de Spretter told him that he met Lehmitz through a man he knew as an employe of the Hamburg-American Line.

Stanley's Testimony

De Spretter related, Stanley said, that Lehmitz offered to pay for information on ship movements to help solve de Spretter's financial difficulties. De Spretter admitted obtaining $100 from Lehmitz for a book on the Brewster Aircraft Corporation, containing several passes to the plant, Stanley testified, but that otherwise he had received only small sums.

Stanley said de Spretter declared that the information he had given on the Normandie sailing had been gleaned from a conversation he overheard on a ferry boat.

Train-Plane Shipping To Cuba Is Started

Portuguese Arrested In New Jersey As Spy

Newark, N. J., Sept. 15 (AP)—Samuel K. McKee, New Jersey chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today the arrest of John Da Silva Purvis, 43, of Newark, N. J., on charges of acting as a spy for Germany.

Purvis, A Portuguese national, was arraigned before United States Commissioner William J. Bartholomew on charges of violating the Wartime Espionage Act, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and evasion of censorship regulations.

Bail Set At $25,000

Bail of $25,000 was fixed upon recommendation of Assistant United States Attorney Charles A. Stanziale. Purvis was committed to the Hudson county jail in Jersey City, N. J., to await action of the Federal grand jury.

Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the FBI in Washington, said Purvis had transmitted information by way of couriers and on two occasions received payment for his work.

Purvis was born in Lisbon, Portugal, November 22, 1899, and came to the United States in August, 1920. He worked in Taunton, New Bedford and Cambridge, Mass. After a two-year stay in Portugal he returned to this country in 1931 and worked in Cambridge and Mineola, N. Y.

Worked As Stevedore

Purvis came to Newark in 1935, where he worked at odd jobs and as a stevedore at Port Newark, where he loaded airplanes with high-octane gasoline. He was dismissed when his alien status was established.

McKee said that under questioning as to how he made a living, Purvis replied, "I live by my wits."

The Portuguese admitted, McKee said, that he received a letter by courier from a representative of the German espionage system in Europe and he replied through the same messenger. The FBI agent said Purvis had been contacted by at least two couriers and by one of them on two different occasions.

Committee Presents Proposal To Education Assembly At Harpers Ferry

[By the Associated Press]

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sept. 15—The International Educational Assembly considered tonight a resolution calling on the United Nations to use a strong hand on education in Axis countries after the war.

The resolution was presented by the liaison committee for international education of the assembly and urged that the control be maintained until the Axis countries—including Japan—follow "policies and develop programs in economic, social and cultural spheres which move toward a national existence suitable to post-war international society."

Return After Reformation

"As soon as these policies and programs are put in effect," the committee report continued, "the committee recommends that control of the educational systems be returned completely to nationals of Axis nations."

The group called Nazi, Fascist and Japanese educational systems "denials of fundamental principles of a democratic social order, namely, individual advancement through free access to the entire body of knowledge."

Methods Recommended

As to administrative policies in governing education in Axis nations, the committee recommended a five-point program:

1. All Axis propaganda be stopped, including press, radio and educational varieties.

2. Axis nationals be informed of the true objectives of the United Nations.

3. Schools be used as relief agencies in gaining confidence of communities.

4. All anti-democratic teachers and school administrators be removed.

5. Youth organizaticns controlled by the present Axis governments as well as Japanese military parties be disbanded and educational and religious agencies be encouraged to revive or create youth organizations committed to the democratic way of life.

The committee is headed by Dr. Grayson Kefauver, dean of the school of education of Stanford University, who also is president of the assembly.

london, sept. 15-(ap)-the germans have been able to muster only about 100 aircraft sorties per day against the salerno landings in italy, mainly by fighters and fighter-bombers and as a consequence there hasn has been little bombing of the allied troops on the beaches, it was stated here today on reliable authority.

allied headquarters in north africa announced today that the northwest african air force made 2,000 sorties over the salerno region yesterda y.

a sortie is one flight by one aircraft.

the air fighting was described by this authority who can n o t be identified by name as n o t on a severe scale. despite the handicap of having to operate from fighter bases in sicily and possibly on the toe of italy some 160 miles from the beaches, allied aircraft have nevertheless been able to provide "excellent protection" to the troops.

during the first four days of the landings, more than 2,800 sorties were flown by spitfires, lightnings and mustangs fitted with long-range gas tanks and based on sicily in direct support of the troops on the beaches. these sorties, averaging 700 per day, were in addition to those flown by carrier-borne aircraft of which the number has n o t been specified.

the main allied bomber effort since the axis was driven from sicily has been concentrated almost entirely on airfields and road and railroad junctions in italy to disrupt communications and ground enemy aircraft.

the offensive was kept up at night by raf wellingtons attacking airfields and communication centers and by beaufighters which carried out intruder patrols over the airfields.

LONDON, SEPT. 15-(AP)-THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY, ALTHOUGH STILL DESPERATELY AND BLOODILY ENGAGED, EMERGED TODAY FROM THE CRISIS OF SALERNO.

GEN. SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AT THE SAME TIME SWERT FORWARD UNHALTED IN ITS FORCED MARCH FROM SOUTHERN ITALY TOWARDS JOINING FORCES WITH LT. GEN. MARK. W. CLARK'S HARD-FIGHTING TROOPS.

ON THE LEFT THE EIGHTH ARMY OVERRAN BELVEDERE ON THE ITALIAN WEST COAST, AND THAT COLUMN AS WELL AS THE RIGHT WING REACHED A POINT LESS THAN 70 MILES FROM THE BEACHES OF SALERNO.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER'S COMMUNIQUE TOLD OF THE LOSS OF SOME GROUND BY THE FIFTH ARMY, BUT ADDED THAT NEW POSITIONS WERE BEING CONSOLIDATED AND REINFORCEMENTS WERE POURING IN ENDLESSLY UNDER COVER OF THE ALLIED FLEET, WHICH FIRMLY HELD THE SEA AND AT THE SAME TIME HAD JOINED THE BATTLE WITH A TREMENDOUS CONTINUING BOMBARDMENT OF GERMAN POSITIONS.

THE STRUGGLE STILL WAS RISING IN VIOLENCE, BUT THE TERRIBLE HOURS WHEN THE ENTIRE ALLIED SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD WAS IN DANGER HAD PASSED

AND THE SITUATION APPEARED STEADILY IMPROVING.

THIS IMPROVEMENT WAS SUPPORTED EVEN BY GERMAN ANNOUNCEMENTS, WHICH HAD WHOLLY DROPPED THEIR BRAGGADOCIO OF YESTERDAY. THE GERMAN COMMAND TOLD OF ALLIED "RESISTANCE NEAR THE COAST UNDER COVER OF SHIPS' GUNS." IT SAID NOTHING AT ALL OF AN ALLIED FLIGHT FROM SALERNO GULF, WHICH IT EARLIER HAD ALLEGED AGAIN AND AGAIN.

AS HAD BEEN SUSPECTED, THE EARLIER "DISEMBARKATION" FROM SALERNO WHICH THE GERMANS HAD CRIED UP WAS ACTUALLY A CASE OF THE ARRIVAL OF ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS. AND THEY STILL WERE POURING ASHORE AS GEN. EISENHOWER CALMLY CONTINUED TO PILE HIS CHIPS HIGHER AND HIGHER IN HIS GREAT CONSIDERED GAMBLE.

THE ALLIED AIR ARM TREMENDOUSLY INCREASED THE SCOPE OF ITS OPERATIONS IN SUPPORT OF THE MIXED AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES DIGGING THEIR TOES INTO THE SALERNO BEACHHEADS, AND ALL SIGNS WERE THAT THE PREVIOUSLY INADEQUATE ALLIED FIGHTER COVER HAD BEEN SUPPLEMENTED.

SEP 16 1943

UNFOLDING EVENTS MADE IT STRONGLY APPEAR THAT THE ITALIAN PENINSULA WAS DEVELOPING INTO A MAJOR FRONT IN THE FULLEST AND MOST FATEFUL SENSE.

NO LONGER WAS THE QUESTION "WHERE NEXT FOR THE ALLIES?" BEING SO WIDELY UTTERED. NOW IT HAD COME DOWN TO THE HARD, SINGLE REALITY OF ITALY AT THIS PRESENT HOUR. IT WAS APPARENT THAT WE AND THE GERMANS WERE COMMITTED THERE TO A BATTLE THAT MIGHT BE AS MEANINGFUL AS WAS THAT OF THE MARNE IN THE LAST WAR.

IT WAS SOBERLY ESTIMATED IN LONDON THAT WHAT THE ALLIES ARE DOING IN ITALY AND WHAT THEY PLANNED TO DO COULD WELL HAVE THE EFFECT OF TAKING THE WEIGHT OF 25 NAZI DIVISIONS OFF THE RUSSIANS.

GEN. EISENHOWER'S COMMUNIQUE TELLING OF CONTINUOUS ARRIVALS OF

1943

VERY HEAVY ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS IN ITALY WAS IN SUCH TERMS AS TO SUGGEST HE WAS ONLY BEGINNING AN IMMENSE MARSHALING OF MEN. THIS HAD ITS COUNTERPART IN ACCUMULATING REPORTS OF A GREAT FLOW OF NAZI REINFORCEMENTS SOUTHWARD INTO THE PENINSULA.

A NAZI COMMAND WILLING TO SPEND WHAT IT ALREADY HAD SPENT AT SALERNO, IT WAS REASONED HERE, MUST BE PREPARED FOR PRODIGIOUS DEFENSIVE EFFORTS FARTHER TO THE NORTH IN ITALY, WHERE THE REAL STRUGGLE WILL BE JOINED.

SEP 16 1943

THERE WERE SEVERAL INDICATIONS THAT THE RUSSIANS ALREADY WERE BEING MEASURABLY HELPED. FOR EXAMPLE, THE REPORT WAS PUBLISHED HERE THAT ARMORED GERMAN UNITS NOW FIGHTING IN ITALY HAD COME FROM RUSSIA, AND THERE WAS SPECULATION THAT RUSSIAN DISSATISFACTION WITH EFFORTS OF ITS WESTERN ALLIES MIGHT BE PROPORTIONATELY REDUCED.

WHILE THE SALERNO SITUATION WAS SHARPLY IMPROVED FROM YESTERDAY, THE ENEMY STILL WAS COMING AT US STRONGLY. DISPATCHES FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS TOLD OF NAZI TROOPS STILL BEATING THEIR WAY UP TO THE FRONT IN THE FACE OF THE BLOWS OF OUR AIR FORCE.

ALTHOUGH OUR POSITIONS HAD BEEN BETTERED IN THE PAST 24 HOURS, WE HAD A NET LOSS FOR THE ENTIRE PERIOD SINCE THE ENEMY FIRST SPRANG BACK AT US, AND A MILE OF GROUND LOST IN THE EARLY HOURS OF SUCH AN ACTION IS MORE PUNISHING THAN IT WOULD APPEAR ON ITS FACE.

A U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE STATION IN ENGLAND, SEPT 15-(AP)-A FIGHTING FRENCH DESTROYER RECENTLY RESCUED THE CREW OF THE FLYING FORTRESS, "JEANER," AFTER THE MEN LANDED IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL OFF THE FRENCH COAST AND SPENT 13 HOURS IN A DINGHY.

THE PLANE, PILOTED BY LT. FREDERICK T.PRASSE OF 607 DELAFIELD AVE., STATION ISLAND, N.Y., WAS PART OF A FORMATION WHICH BOMBED STUTTGART. PRASSE RISKED LANDING IN THE CHANNEL WHEN THE GASOLINE GAVE OUT RATHER THAN SET THE PLANE DOWN IN FRANCE.

THE BOMBER HIT THE WATER AT MORE THAN 100 MILES AN HOUR WITH AN IMPACT THAT STUNNED SOME OF THE CREW AND HURLED ALL OF THEM INTO A HEAP IN THE PLANE'S RADIO ROOM. THE SHIP SANK IN ONE MINUTE, BUT ALL MANAGED TO ESCAPE TO THE ONE DINGHY.

A TYPHOON PILOT FIRST SPOTTED THEM AND AFTER MIDNIGHT THE DESTROYER HEADED DIRECTLY FOR THEM. THERE WAS SOME CONSTERNATION WHEN THE BOMBER CREW HEARD ORDERS BEING GIVEN IN A FOREIGN LANGUAGE BUT THE

BY GLADWIN HILL

AT A U.S. FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE AP)--MASTER SGT. LEON TRIBBY AND HIS CREW HAVE NEVER FLOWN BACK FROM THE TARGET WITH TWO ENGINES OUT AND PART OF THEIR NOSE SHOT AWAY.

THEY'VE NEVER DESTROYED ANY GERMAN FIGHTERS, AND NEVER HAVE COME HOME TO A BREATH-TAKING BELLY LANDING.

BUT THEY HAVE DONE AS MUCH AS ANY MEN WHO HAVE, TO MAKE THE AMERICAN BOMBING CAMPAIGN AGAINST GERMANY A SUCCESS.

THEY'VE ACCOMPLISHED THE IMPOSSIBLE.

TRIBBY AND HIS 35 MEN ARE THE SHEET-METAL CREW AT THIS BASE, ON WHOM FALLS THE BRUNT OF REPAIRS OF BATTLE-DAMAGED BOMBERS.

DURING THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE'S RECENT SIX-RAIDS-IN-SEVEN-DAYS BLITZ ON GERMANY, THEY REPAIRED 120 FORTRESSES IN A WEEK.

CONSIDER A LITTLE ONE-INCH FLAK HOLE. IT NOT ONLY HAS TO BE PATCHED; THE METAL AROUND IT HAS TO BE PULLED BACK AND THE STRUCTURE UNDERNEATH EXAMINED FOR DAMAGE. NEARLY EVERY SECTION OF A FORTRESS' METAL SKIN COVERS A COMPLICATED ARRAY OF BRACES, STRUTS, SPARS, CROSS-MEMBERS, USUALLY ALSO DAMAGED. FIXING THEM UP IS ABOUT AS TOUGH AS INSTALLING THEM AT THE FACTORY.

THEN THE ORIGINAL HOLE HAS TO BE PATCHED WITH METAL FASTENED ON BY RIVETS.

SEP 16 1943

THAT'S ONE FLAK HOLE. THEY DON'T CONSIDER A FORTRESS REALLY DAMAGED UNLESS IT HAS SEVERAL DOZEN. AFTER THAT COME SHELL HOLES, A FOOT OR MORE ACROSS, WITH CORRESPONDINGLY SEVERE STRUCTURAL DAMAGE UNDERNEATH, AND MANY OTHER INJURIES. THEY DO JUST ABOUT ALL REPAIRS EXCEPT TO ENGINES, PROPELLERS, RADIOS AND INSTRUMENTS.

THEY WORKED ABOUT 20 HOURS A DAY THAT WEEK, GRABBING TIME OUT FOR NAPS ON BENCHES, AND SUBSISTING MAINLY ON COFFEE AND SANDWICHES.

THEY HAD ONLY 13 COMPLETE TOOL KITS, AND MOST OF THEIR WORK WAS DONE A QUARTER OF A MILE TO TWO MILES FROM THE HANGAR, ON THE PLANE DISPERSAL POINTS, A LOT OF IT AT NIGHT WHEN A MINIMUM OF LIGHT HAD TO BE USED.

"BUT A GOOD SHEET METAL MAN CAN DRILL HOLES AND BUCK RIVETS IN THE DARK" COMMENTED ONE OF TRIBBY'S TWO ASSISTANT FOREMEN, TECH. SGT. EMORY JOHNS, 28, A HANDSOME, HUSKY EX-BOXER AND PRE-WAR COPPERSMITH IN VALDOSTA, GA., WHO ACKNOWLEDGES WITH A WRY SMILE HIS COMPANIONS JIBES THAT SOME OF HIS EXPERIENCE THAT HELPED KEEP THOSE FORTRESSES FLYING WAS GAINED FIXING STILLS FOR MOONSHINERS.

JOHNS CLIMBED INTO A HORIZONTAL STABILI[illegible]-THE 40-FOOT MINIATURE WING ON THE TAIL OF A FORTRESS--AT NOON ONE DAY TO REPAIR DAMAGE BY A SHELL THAT EXPLODED INSIDE, AND GOT OUT THE NEXT NOON.

THEY NEEDED SOMEBODY TO BUCK RIVETS IN THE AIR DUCT BETWEEN TWO ENGINES, BUT FOUND THAT THE SLIMMEST MAN AROUND, SGT. JAY PAUSTAIN OF RICHMOND, MO., COULDN'T QUITE SQUEEZE IN. SO HE SHUCKED OFF HIS

1943

CLOTHES AND SLIPPED IN--NAKED.

"IT GOT SO EVEN IF A SHIP WAS A MESS, THE ARMAMENT MEN WOULD LOAD THE BOMBS ON OUR WORD WE'D HAVE IT READY TO FLY," SAID TRIBBY, WHO IS 23 AND USED TO WORK ON A FARM IN LACYGNE, KAS. HIS OTHER ASSISTANT, SGT. GERALD CESTARTE, 23, GRADUATED FROM THE CRANE TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL IN CHICAGO JUST BEFORE THE WAR.

THE CREW ARE PRODUCTS OF THE AIR FORCE'S TECHNICAL SCHOOL AT CHANUTE FIELD, ILL.

A NUCLEUS OF 15 OF THEM HAVE WORKED TOGETHER FOR NEARLY TWO YEARS, AND DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES LONG BEFORE THEIR PRODIGIOUS BLITZ REPAIR JOB.

SEP 16 1943

THEY WERE SO GOOD THEY WERE KEPT IN THE UNITED STATES FOR A YEAR AS A UNIT TO TRAIN OTHERS. WHEN THEY ARRIVED HERE, THEY WERE ASSIGNED FOR TWO WEEKS TO A MODIFICATION CENTER. HERE THE CREW DID THE COMPLETE SHEET METAL MODIFICATION ON 14 FORTRESSES--AN AVERAGE OF ONE A DAY--AND TURNED OUT SOME B-26 MARAUDERS AND A-20 FIGHTER-BOMBERS BESIDES.

ON ANOTHER URGENT JOB, THE 15 OF THEM, WITHOUT NEEDED SPECIAL EQUIPMENT, DID COMPLETE MODIFICATIONS ON 80 MARAUDERS IN SIX WEEKS.

THEIR INGENUITY PLAYED A BIG PART IN THEIR BLITZ FEAT. ALL THEY KNEW AT THE OUTSET WAS THAT IT WAS A "MAXIMUM EFFORT" DRIVE.

THEY HAD TO USE THEIR HEADS, IN MORE THAN ONE WAY, JUST TO EAT. THEIR COFFEE CAME OUT OF A SHEET METAL URN THEY MADE THEMSELVES. BREAKFAST WAS THE ONLY MEAL THEY COULD GET TO AT MESS, AND THE MESS SERGEANT GOT TECHNICAL ABOUT GIVING THEM FOOD TO TAKE OUT. SO SOME OF THE CREW WOULD ENGAGE HIM IN A DISCUSSION WHILE OTHERS SNEAKED AROUND IN BACK AND COMMANDEERED THE MAKINGS.

THEY NEEDED A DRILL THAT WOULD WORK IN TIGHT CORNERS, SO TECH. SGT. ELMER BLANK, FORMER FARMER AND MACHINIST OF MADISON, NEB. YANKED SOME FLEXIBLE CONTROL-INSTRUMENT SHAFTING OUT OF A WRECKED FORTRESS "HANGAR QUEEN," HITCHED A PIECE ONTO THE END OF AN ORDINARY DRILL, AND PRODUCED A DRILL THAT WOULD REACH AROUND CORNERS.

SEP 16 1943

LEADING OUT FROM FORTRESS CARBURETORS IS A SMALL AIR INTAKE PIPE FIXED TO A METAL BRACKET SO IT WON'T SNAP UNDER VIBRATION. THE CREW FOUND THE BRACKETS WERE BREAKING OFF UNDER THE HEAVY DUTY. THEY HAD NO REPLACEMENTS. SO JOHNS PROMOTED SOME STEEL SHELVING AND FASHIONED BRACKETS THAT WORKED BETTER THAN THE ONES PUT ON AT THE FACTORY.

ACTUALLY, THERE WEREN'T 120 FORTRESSES ON THE BASE DURING THE BIG WEEK. SOME OF THEM WERE THE SAME SHIPS OVER AGAIN.

APPENDS TRIBBY: "WHEN YOU'RE WORKING YOUR HEAD OFF IT'S KIND OF FUNNY TO STOP AND THINK YOU MAY HAVE THE WHOLE THING TO DO OVER AGAIN IN A FEW HOURS. BUT AS LONG AS THE SHIPS GET BACK, WE DON'T CARE.

"IF THEY CAN GET BACK, WE CAN GET THEM IN THE AIR AGAIN."

OTHERS IN THE CREW: SERGEANTS MORRIS MILLER, WHO USED TO RUN A DRESS SHOP IN PHILADELPHIA; OSCAR W. MORRIS, KNOXVILLE, TENN.; CHARLES BUFFINGTON, CARMONA, TEX.; JOSEPH OBUCHOWSKI, CHICAGO; WALTER GILLISSIE, HOMESTEAD, PA.; ERNEST E. MOORE, GLENDALE, CALIF., PHILIP D. PAUL, FREEPORT, ILL.; FRED G. gen. sir bernard l. montgomery today told a group of canadian commissioned and non-commissioned officers that the war will be carried into germany itself, but until then it is premature to say the end is in sight.

speaking in a hilltop grove in the canadian headquarters area in southern italy, the british eighth army commander paid tribute to the canadians for the "great part" they played in knocking italy out of the war and said it was a "great mistake" to regard the war as nearly over now that "north italy is under german control."

"we won't be able to say the war is nearly over until we have carried it into the homeland of the germans," he said. "that we shall do without a doubt. then we shall be able to say that the end of this part of the war is in sight."

AT THE FRONT WITH THE U.S. FIFTH ARMY, SEPT. 13-(DELAYED)-FOLLOWING A NIGHT OF SPARRING, THE ALLIED-NAZI BATTLE WAS RENEWED FURIOUSLY TODAY WHEN THE GERMAN MONSTER LAUNCHED FOUR ATTACKS. IT MET A SOLID ALLIED MACHINE WHICH REARED UP AND KICKED THE ENEMY SQUARELY IN THE FACE, KNOCKING OUT 14 TANKS, BREAKING NAZI ARMORED FORMATIONS AND DECIMATING PANZER GRENADIERS.

I SAW JERRY RUN FOR THE FIRST TIME FROM THE OPEN MAINLAND BATTLE GROUND. HE WILL RUN ONLY A LITTLE WAY PROBABLY, BUT RUN HE DID.

UNAWARE OF OUR STRENGTH THE GERMAN COMMAND YESTERDAY NOON REPEATED ITS ATTACK TACTICS HITTING FIRST WITH A FRONTAL BLOW. A HALF-DOZEN TANKS LEAD THE ASSAULT. BETWEEN 7 AND 8:30A.M., THREE TANKS HAD BEEN BLASTED IN FLAMES BY ACCURATE ARTILLERY FIRE. OUR INFANTRY PEPPERED THE GRENADIERS FOLLOWING A HASTY RETREAT.

AT 8:40A.M., ONE OF OUR UNITS BLEW UP TWO MARK VI TANKS WITH DIRECT HITS. THE ENEMY SENT IN DESPERATION TO ATTACK OTHER POSITIONS.

AT 9:16A.M., WHILE LT. GEN. MARK W. CLARK, FIFTH ARMY COMMANDER, WAS VISITING THE FRONT LINES, HE GAVE THE ORDER THAT THIS IS WHERE WE WOULD HOLD AND THAT WE WOULD NOT GO ONE FOOT FURTHER BACK.

TWO ADDITIONAL MARK VI TANKS STILL ANOTHER 50 YARDS TO THE RIGHT WENT UP IN FLAMES AND SMOKE AT 9:08A.M. AT 10A.M. FOUR NAZI TANKS WERE KNOCKED OUT AT THE SELE RIVER JUNCTION WHILE THE NAVY SHELLED THE AREA. THE REMAINING ENEMY TANKS RAN AND HID IN THE WEEDS BUT SUCCEEDING AIR MISSIONS DROPPED TONS OF BOMBS OVER THEM.

THE NAZIS WADED ACROSS THE SELE RIVER AND OUR BOYS WAITED UNTIL THEY SAW THE WHITES OF THEIR EYES AND THEN LET THE GERMANS HAVE IT. ONE MORTAR BLEW UP SIX CRACK RIFLEMEN AND A UNIT COMMANDED BY LT. COL. PRESTON MURPHY, FORT COLLINS, COLO., SHOT ALL THE OTHERS.

A FEW MINUTES LATER ANOTHER GROUP OF 40 GERMANS USED THE WELL KNOWN RUSE OF COMING UP TO OUR LINES WITH WHITE FLAGS AND THEN DROPPING THEM AND ATTACKING.

BUT THIS TIME FIRST LT. CHARLES BARCER OF ATLANTA, GA., PVTS, RAY KINZYCKY OF MILWAUKEE, WIS., WILLIAM MORRIS OF LEADVILLE, COLO., ARTHUR HAGLIN OF NORTH BILLERICA, MASS., MOSE AVAILES OF TRINIDAD, COLO, AND SGTS CONRAD SMITH OF GREELEY, COLO, AND JOHN LADURMI OF TOLTEC, COLO., AND PTF RICHARD REITENBAUCH OF GREELEY:18:9)9., WITH THE HOLDING THIS SECTOR WEMUVV

AT 5TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE SALERNO AREA, SEPT. 14-(DELAYED)- FIGHTING SIDE BY SIDE IN THE LIGHT OF A FULL MOON THROUGHOUT LAST NIGHT AND IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS, BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS STOPPED VICIOUS GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACKS WHICH PUSHED WITH CONSIDERABLE FORCE AGAINST THE DEAD CENTER OF THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD ON SALERNO BAY.

THE ENEMY BEGAN THE ATTACK ABOUT NIGHTFALL, STRIKING ON THE FRONT IN THE AREA OF THE SELE AND CALORE RIVERS AND POUNDING TOWARDS THE JUNCTION OF THE RIVERS. INFANTRY UNITS OF THE 16TH PANZER GRENADIERS ATTEMPTED TO OPEN GAPS IN THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD LINE CLOSELY FOLLOWED BY TIGER TANKS. THE CLEAR NIGHT AIR CRACKLED WITH THE SOUND OF ALLIED MACHINE AND ANTI-TANK GUNS REACHING A SCREAMING CRESCENDO AT MIDNIGHT.

FOR A FEW MINUTES THE ALLIED LINE SAGGED UNDER THE WEIGHT OF THE STRONGEST GERMAN THRUST OF THE SALERNO CAMPAIGN. A FEW TIGER TANKS BROKE THROUGH. BUT THE DOUGHBOYS AND TOMMIES FIGHTING DOGGEDLY AT CLOSE QUARTERS BLUNTED THE SPEARHEAD SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT. THEN WITH THE AID OF NAVAL GUNS OFFSHORE, WHOSE DEEP-THROATED ROAR SUDDENLY JOINED IN THE MACABRE SYMPHONY, THEY STOPPED THE GERMAN ATTACK AND PUSHED THE ENEMY BACK.

NUMEROUS ENEMY TANKS WERE KNOCKED OUT DURING THE GERMAN ATTACKS AND COUNTER-ATTACKS, BUT AN ACCURATE COUNT IS IMPOSSIBLE BECAUSE OF THE NUMEROUS SEPARATE ENCOUNTERS.

A TERRIFIC AERIAL POUNDING FROM MASSES OF ALLIED PLANES EVIDENTALLY WAS EFFECTIVE, AS THERE IS A COMPARATIVE LULL IN GROUND ACTIVITY THIS AFTERNOON. ALLIED NAVAL UNITS CONTINUED TO POUR SHELLS OVER THE BEACHHEADS INTO ENEMY TERRITORY.

DURING THE DAY ENEMY FIGHTER PLANES MADE DASHES OVER THE LINES AND IMMEDIATELY THE AIR WAS FILLED WITH ACK-ACK. AT NIGHT ENEMY BOMBERS RAID THE BEACHES. FLARES HANG IN THE SKY AND FIRES DOT THE BATTLE LINE.

WITH THE U.S.FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY-(NO DATE)-SALERNO BAY WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY AS THE GALLIPOLI OF 1943--WITHOUT THE EVACUATION.

THE SET-UP AT SALERNO IS MUCH THE SAME AS AT GALLIPOLI, WHERE THE AUSTRALIANS STORMED THE TURKISH BEACHES 28 YEARS AGO. THE BEACHES IN BOTH INSTANCES WERE PERFECT FOR LANDING PURPOSES BUT A POWERFUL ENEMY

3024-8467

LAY IN WAIT FOR THE INVADERS BEHIND POSITIONS THAT GAVE THE DEFENDERS AN ALMOST OVERWHELMING ADVANTAGE.

THE WORLD WONDERED HOW THE AUSTRALIANS EVER GOT A FOOTHOLD AT GALLIPOLI IN THE FACE OF SUCH FIERCE OPPOSITION AND CAN WELL WONDER AGAIN HOW BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS MANAGED TO GET ASHORE IN SALERNO BAY.

I CANNOT FIND WORDS TO PRAISE SUFFICIENTLY THE HEROISM OF THE AMERICANS I LANDED WITH. WELL-TRAINED, THEY WERE UNFLINCHING.

I SAW MANY SHELLS DROP ON MEN, LANDING CRAFT AND VEHICLES BUT THERE WAS NO DETERRING THE YANKS. WAVE AFTER WAVE OF SUPPORT TROOPS AND SUPPLIES KEPT COMING ASHORE ON THE SHELL-TORN BEACHES AND WERE RUSHED UP BEHIND SAND DUNES.

SEP 16 1943

THE AMERICANS CLUNG TO THEIR HARD-WON BRIDGEHEADS WITH TENACIOUSNESS AND BRAVERY.

AS I WRITE THIS NEARLY A WEEK HAS PASSED SINCE THE LANDING AND THE AMERICANS STILL ARE CLINGING TO THEIR BEACHES WITH GRIM RESOLUTION.

THE ONLY BRITISHER I MET ON THE AMERICAN BEACHES WAS A CANADIAN OFFICER ACTING AS AN OBSERVER. LIKE ME HE WAS VERY MUCH IMPRESSED WITH THE DOGGED COURAGE OF THE YANKS.

HE HAD BEEN AT DIEPPE AND HE TOLD ME THIS SHOW WAS WORSE THAN THAT FAMOUS RAID BECAUSE DIEPPE WAS ONLY AN IN AND OUT AFFAIR WHILE THE SALERNO BAY ATTACK WAS "IN FOR KEEPS," AS HE PUT IT.

HAVING BEEN THROUGH SICILY WITH THE AMERICANS I HAVE EVERY CONFIDENCE THEY WILL BE ABLE TO DISH IT OUT AS WELL AS TAKE IT, GIVEN IN ITALY ANYTHING LIKE AN EVEN BREAK.

WITH ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, SEPT. 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE FIRST AMERICAN EVACUATION HOSPITAL TO FOLLOW THE TROOPS IN THE INVASION OF ITALY BEGAN RECEIVING PATIENTS TODAY IN CANVAS-WALLED WARDS.

TENTS AND EQUIPMENT CAME ASHORE ON THE INVASION BEACH LAST NIGHT AND LESS THAN 12 HOURS LATER, CASUALTIES RETURNING FROM THE FRONT LINES WERE RECEIVING EXPERT CARE FROM THE STAFF DIRECTED BY LT.-COL. PAUL K.SAUER, 162 EAST 88TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

OVERNIGHT A MODERN HOSPITAL HAD SPRUNG UP IN THE PLAIN OVER WHICH THE AMERICAN TROOPS HAD PUSHED BACK THE GERMANS ONLY TWO DAYS BEFORE. IT WOULD HAVE BEEN OPERATING SOONER EXCEPT THAT BATTLEFIELD PRIORITIES DELAYED THE ARRIVAL OF EQUIPMENT.

SAUER AND HIS STAFF LANDED IN ITALY AT 2 P.M. ON INVASION DAY AND SPENT THE NEXT 48 HOURS PEEKING OUT OF SLIT TRENCHES WHILE ENEMY GUNS SHELLED THE BEACH AREA, AND PLANES BOMBED AND STRAFED AROUND THEM.

SEP 16 1943

"WE GOT A WARM RECEPTION," THE GRAY-HAIRED HOSPITAL COMMANDER SAID WITH A SMILE. "WHEN WE GOT ASHORE WE FUND THE ENEMY WAS ONLY 800 YARDS AHEAD OF US. IT WAS AN EXCITING INTRODUCTION TO WAR."

SAUER BROUGHT HIS HOSPITAL FROM THE UNITED STATES TO NORTH AFRICA LAST MAY, AND THEN HE WAS SELECTED TO BRING THE FIRST EVACUATION HOSPITAL INTO ITALY WITH THE FIFTH ARMY.

COMING ASHORE, THE DOCTORS WERE MACHINE-GUNNED AND STRAFED AS THEY CROUCHED IN LANDING BOATS. THE VESSELS WERE USED FOR LANDING ALL TYPES OF ARMY PERSONNEL AND WERE NOT MARKED WITH RED CROSSES,

1943

SO THE ENEMY HAD NO WAY OF KNOWING IT WAS A HOSPITAL UNIT.

AMONG THE DOCTORS WITH SAUER WERE MAJ. HOWARD PATTERSON, 107 EAST 67TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, MAJ. WILLIAMICOMESS, YORK, PA., LT.- COL. JOHN G.BAXTER, PHOENIXVILLE, PA., AND CAPT. MILLARD BEYER, AKRON, OHIO.

SEP 16 1943

IN THE PLAIN WHERE THE HOSPITAL NOW SITS THEY WATCHED AMERICAN TROOPS BATTLE GERMAN TANKS WHICH COUNTER-ATTACKED IN A DESPERATE EFFORT TO BREAK THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD. WHEN THEY GOT ASHORE THERE WAS NOTHING FOR THEM TO DO BUT DIG IN AND WAIT FOR EQUIPMENT TO FOLLOW THEM ASHORE.

"SO WE SPENT OUR FIRST 48 HOURS ON ITALIAN SOIL IN FOX-HOLES," SAUER SAID. "THEN OUR TENTS AND EQUIPMENT ARRIVED LATE YESTERDAY WE WORKED ALL NIGHT SETTING THEM UP."

OCCASIONALLY THEY HAVE TO BREAK OFF WORK AND JUMP FOR FOXHOLES WHEN ENEMY PLANES DIVE IN TO STRAFE NEARBY TARGETS, AND BITS OF SHELL SHOWER DOWN FROM AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGE.

EVEN AS SAUER TOLD OF THE TRIP TO THE BEACH, THERE WAS THE STUTTERING OF MACHINEGUNS FROM THE SKIES. TWO SPITFIRES WERE ON THE TAIL OF A MESSERSCHMITT 109 WHICH HAD TRIED TO SNEAK IN TO ATTACK THE BEACHES. THE SPITFIRES POURED A HAIL OF BULLETS INTO THE ENEMY PLANE AND THEN THE GERMAN PILOT BAILED OUT AND THE SHIP CRASHED.

"WHEN OUR NURSES COME ASHORE TOMORROW FROM THE HOSPITAL SHIP WE WILL HAVE ALL PERSONNEL ON HAND AND GIVE THE WOUNDED OR ILL MEN THE BEST OF CARE," SAUER SAID.

NEAR SAUER'S EVACUATION HOSPITAL, MAJ. J.W. PICKENS OF CLEBURN, TEX., HAD A DIVISIONAL HOSPITAL CLEARING STATION OPERATING WITH A CAPACITY OF 100 BEDS. FROM THESE HOSPITALS, THE CASUALTIES ARE BEING CLEARED TO THE HOSPITAL SHIPS TO BE TAKEN TO STATION HOSPITALS IN SICILY OR NORTH AFRICA.

SEP 16 1943

WITH PICKENS WERE CAPT. CHARLES B.DILDY, AUSTIN, TEX., CAPT. CASS KNIGHT, 925 NORTH ADAMS ST., SOUTH BEND, IND., AND 2ND LT. ORAN C. OGDIN JR., PARKERSBURG, W.VA.

"I HAVE BEEN WITH THIS OUTFIT OVER A YEAR," PICKENS SAID. "I THOUGHT THEY WERE GOOD, BUT NOT SO GOOD AS THEY ARE. THEY HAVE DONE A GREAT JOB UNDER FIRE.

"WHEN WE WERE COMING IN ONE OF OUR SMALL BOATS WAS SUNK BY DIRECT 88-MILLIMETER GUNFIRE. TWO OF MY MEN SWAM BACK INTO THE SEA TO SAVE THE LIVES OF TWO MEN WHO COULDN'T SWIM, AND WERE DROWING. ONE COMPANY OF OFFICERS WAS CAUGHT IN MACHINEGUN FIRE DURING A TANK BATTLE, AND WE'VE BEEN BOMBED AND STRAFED, BUT THE MEN HAVE GONE RIGHT AHEAD WITH THE WORK."

OGDIN CAME THROUGH TWO HARROWING EXPERIENCES WITH ONLY A COUPLE OF SLIGHT WOUNDS WHICH DID NOT KEEP HIM OFF HIS FEET.

HE WAS ON THE BEACH WHEN A SHELL BURST WITHIN A FEW FEET OF HIM, BUT WAS ONLY GRAZED BY THE SHRAPNEL. THEN LATER A GERMAN PLANE DROPPED A BOMB WHICH HIT BESIDE HIS SLIT TRENCH. IT BLEW HIM INTO THE AIR JUST AS A TREE TRUNK FELL INTO THE TRENCH WHERE HE HAD LAIN.

"IT FELT LIKE THE WHOLE PLAIN WAS FALLING ON TOP OF ME," HE SAID. "IT WAS A MIRACLE THAT I GOT OUT OF THAT ONE."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, THURSDAY, SEPT.16-(AP SENATOR CHANDLER (D-KY), MEMBER OF A SENATE COMMITTEE INSPECTING THE WORLD WAR FRONTS, INDICATED TODAY HE WOULD FAVOR PLACING GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN SUPREME COMMAND OF THE GENERAL OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPAN.

DISCUSSING MACARTHUR'S FIELD OF COMMAND IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AND ITS RELATION TO THAT MORE RECENTLY CREATED UNDER LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN IN SOUTHEAST ASIA, CHANDLER SAID THAT MOUNTBATTEN'S APPOINTMENT "MEANS THE BRITISH REALLY ARE GOING TO MOUNT AND SUPPORT AN EFFECTIVE OFFENSIVE FROM INDIA, YOU MAY BE SURE WE WILL BE WITH AND BEHIND HIM."

"BUT IT WOULD BE A SHAME," HE ADDED, "NOT TO GIVE A GOOD MAN LIKE MACARTHUR, WHO HAS PROVED HE IS PREEMINENTLY FITTED FOR THE ROLE AND WHOSE FORCES ALREADY ARE ON THE MOVE, SUPREME COMMAND OF THE GREAT TASK OF SMASHING JAPAN."

CHANDLER, WHO DURING THEIR TOUR OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC HAS BEEN THE MOST OUTSPOKEN OF THE SENATE COMMITTEEMEN IN ADVANCING GREATER AND IMMEDIATE INTENSIFICATION OF THE WAR EFFORT AGAINST JAPAN,

EXPLAINED IN HIS INTERVIEW, HOWEVER, THAT HE WAS "FIRST AND ALWAYS FOR WHIPPING THE ENEMY WHEREVER HE MAY BE."

TWO OTHER MEMBERS OF THE PARTY, SENATOR BREWSTER (R-ME) AND SENATOR MEAD (D-NY), DISMISSED THE POSSIBILITY OF ANY DISAGREEMENT BETWEEN MACARTHUR AND MOUNTBATTEN OR ANY CONTROVERSY OVER THE RESPECTIVE IMPORTANCE OF THEIR COMMANDS.

"I CANNOT TAKE SERIOUSLY THE SUGGESTION THAT SUCH A CONFLICT COULD DEVELOP OVER THE QUESTION OF WHETHER ONE OR THE OTHER COMMANDER WILL LEAD THE MAJOR DRIVE AGAINST JAPAN," BREWSTER SAID.

"MACARTHUR HAS MADE THE GREATEST USE OF RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO HIM, AND I AM CONVINCED HE WILL GO AS FAR AND AS FAST AS HIS RESOURCES PERMIT."

SEP 16 1943

MEAD REITERATED HIS EARLIER ASSERTION THAT "COMPLETE UNDERSTANDING EXISTS NOT ONLY BETWEEN MACARTHUR AND AUSTRALIA BUT BETWEEN MACARTHUR AND THE WAR DEPARTMENT AT WASHINGTON."

MUNDA AIRDROME, SEPT.8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WHEN THE AIR RAID SIREN WAILS TONIGHT, AS HAPPENS EVERY NIGHT ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, IT WON'T SOUND THE SAME. SOMEBODY ELSE WILL BE LEANING ON THE SIREN BUTTON.

TWO MASTERS OF THE ART OF WAKING MEN AT NIGHT AND SENDING THEM INTO FOXHOLES, WHO ARE KNOWN FROM GUADALCANAL TO VELLA LA VELLA AS "LUCKY" AND "PETE," ARE TAKING NEW JOBS.

BOTH ARE MARINES FROM MINNESOTA, "LUCKY" IS MAJOR G.R.LUCK, 6618 HUMBOLDT AVE., SOUTH, MINNEAPOLIS. "PETE" IS MAJOR VERNON A.PETERSON, 3742 DAKOTA STREET, ST.LOUIS PARK, A MINNEAPOLIS SUBURB.

PETERSON WAS ONE OF THE EASTERN AIRLINES' BEST KNOWN PILOTS ON THE CHICAGO-ATLANTA RUN, BEFORE ENTERING THE MARINES. BOTH ARE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA GRADUATES.

LUCK STARTED LAST FEBRUARY AT GUADALCANAL AS OFFICIAL AIR RAID RED ALERT SETTER, AND HAS AN ALMOST PERFECT RECORD. PETERSON TEAMED WITH LUCK ONLY A MONTH LATER, AND TOGETHER WITH A THIRD OFFICER, MARINE MAJOR E.F.SYMS, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., PUT OUT WARNINGS ON MORE THAN 200 JAPANESE RAIDS.

SEP 16 1943

"WE'VE HAD AN AIR RAID ON AN AVERAGE OF AT LEAST ONCE A

"THE MAN GIVING AIR RAID WARNINGS HAS TWO THINGS TO CONSIDER. ONE IS THE SAFETY OF THE TROOPS. THE OTHER IS THE FACT THAT THEY NEED SLEEP. SOMETIMES THERE'S A THIRD CONSIDERATION--IT MAY BE THAT "IF YOU SLAP ON A 'CONDITION RED' YOU BREAK UP THEIR SLEEP, OR, IF THEY ARE WORKING, STOP THEIR WORK."

PETERSON GAVE HIS OWN VERSION OF HOW TO DO THE JOB.

"YOU DON'T WANT TO CRY 'WOLF' ALL THE TIME," HE SAID. "IF YOU DO, IT'LL GET SO NOBODY WILL BELIEVE YOU. THEY JUST WON'T GET INTO FOXHOLES FOR YOU, AND WHEN THE BOMBS FALL, A LOT OF PEOPLE WILL GET HURT. THE AIR RAID SIREN HAS GOT TO MEAN SOMETHING. THE MAN WHO CONTROLS IT HAS TO HAVE THE MEN'S CONFIDENCE."

GERMAN BROADCASTS REPORTED TO THE OWI BY THE U.S.FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE ASSERTED THAT:

1. MUSSOLINI HAD ISSUED A SERIES OF DECREES REESTABLISHING THE FASCIST PARTY UNDER HIS "SUPREME DIRECTION" WITH THE LABEL OF "REPUBLICAN FASCIST PARTY" AND ORDERING "DAILY AND COMRADELY COLLABORATION TO THE GERMAN MILITARY FORCES FIGHTING ON ITALIAN SOIL AGAINST THE COMMON ENEMY."

2. GEN.CALVI DI BERGOLO, PUPPET COMMANDANT OF ITALIAN FORCES IN ROME, HAD FORMALLY LIQUIDATED THE BADOGLIO CABINET AND NAMED COMMISSIONERS -- ALL OF THEM WELL KNOWN IN THE FASCIST REGIME -- TO TAKE OVER THE FUNCTIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE MINISTRIES.

THE MUSSOLINI DECREES, SAID TO BE SIGNED BY THE FORMER PREMIER, WERE ROAD OVER THE GERMAN RADIO STATION, ZEESEN. THEY WERE READ NOT BY MUSSOLINI BUT BY ALESSANDRO PAVOLINI, FORMER ITALIAN PROPAGANDA MINISTER, WHO WAS NAMED IN ONE OF THE DECREES AS "TEMPORARY SECRETARY" OF THE NEW FASCIST PARTY.

A SHORT TIME LATER THE ITALIAN NEWS AGENCY STEFANI, NOW UNDER GERMAN CONTROL, BROADCAST A DISPATCH CONTAINING AN ORDINANCE SIGNED BY DI BERGOLO NAMING DR.AUGUSTO ROSSO, FORMER AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES, AS COMMISSIONER OF THE FOREIGN MINISTRY, TO REPLACE RAFFAELE GUARIGLIA, THE BADOGLIO FOREIGN MINISTER.

A SWISS BROADCAST, ALSO TREPORTED TO OWI, SAID THAT GUARIGLIA HAD BEEN PLACED UNDER ARREST IN ROME AND THAT OTHER MINISTERS OF THE LEGAL CABINET STILL IN ROME ALSO WERE REPORTED UNDER ARREST.

THE MUSSOLINI DECREES SAID ALL FORMER FASCIST OFFICIALS ARE TO RESUME THEIR POSTS; ALL PARTY ORGANIZATIONS ARE TO BE REFORMED; ALL ITALIANS MUST SUPPORT GERMAN AUTHORITIES; THE BEHAVIOR OF ALL FASCISTS WILL BE REEXAMINED IN RELATIONS TO THEIR PRESENT BEHAVIOR; ALL TRAITORS ARE TO BE PUNISHED; THE VOLUNTARY MILITIA IS TO BE REFORMED.

SEP 16 1943

THE STEFANI BROADCAST LISTED THESE APPOINTMEN BERGOLO IN ADDITION TO THAT OF ROSSO: PRESIDENCY OF THE NCI . DIFFICULTIES SUCH AS OUR TROOPS ARE ENCOUNTERING ON THE OPEN BEACHES OF SALERNO ARE BOUND TO CAUSE WORRY AMONG THE FOLKS BACK HERE AT HOME, ESPECIALLY SINCE CASUALTIES APPARENTLY HAVE BEEN SEVERE, BUT THERE'S NO REASON WHY WE SHOULDN'T REGARD WITH COMPLETE CONFIDENCE THE GENERAL POSITION OF OUR BATTLE WITH THE HITLERITES IN AN ALREADY BEATEN ITALY.

EVENNIF THE FIFTH ARMY UNITS HAD TO WITHDRAW ENTIRELY FROM SALERNO, AS THE LYING GERMAN PROPAGANDA MACHINE YESTERDAY SAID THEY WERE DOING, IT WOULDN'T REPRESENT A MAJOR DEFEAT FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE ITALIAN OPERATIONS AS A WHOLE. IT WOULD BE A NASTY BUT NOT VITAL SETBACK.

IN ORDER TO HAVE A CORRECT PICTURE OF THE SITUATION WE MUST KNOW THAT THE NAZIS HAVE NO EXPECTATION WHATEVER OF PREVENTING ALLIED OCCUPATION OF ITALY. THEIR TACTICS REPRESENT AN ACT OF DESPERATION WHICH IS BEING CARRIED OUT LARGELY TO TRY TO RESTORE IN SOME DEGREE THEIR SHATTERED PRESTIGE, AND PARTLY IN THE HOPE OF DELAYING THE ALLIES IN UNDERTAKING OTHER INVASION OPERATIONS.

OUR TROUBLES AT SALERNO HAVEN'T BEEN DUE TO THE MASSING OF GREAT GERMAN STRENGTH--THOUGH WE SEEM TO HAVE BEEN OUTNUMBERED NUMERICALLY--BUT TO THE FACT THAT THE HITLERITES WERE WELL ESTABLISHED WITH ARTILLERY ON THE HILLS OVERLOOKING THE LANDING-STAGES. OUR BOYS HAD TO STRUGGLE ASHORE UNDER HEAVY GUNFIRE FROM THE HEIGHTS, AND FIGHT THEIR WAY UP THE SLOPING BEACHES IN THE FACE OF FIERCE ATTACKS FROM TANKS AND INFANTRY.

SEP 16 1943

I'VE SAILED ALONG THOSE SHORES, AND HAVE MOTORED AND HIKED IN THA NEIGHBORHOOD, UNDER THE SHADOWS OF OLD VESUVIUS. IT'S BEAUTIFUL IN MANY PARTS FROM AN ARTIST'S VIEWPOINT, BUT IT'S A DEVILISH SECT FOR A SOLDIER TO HAVE TO INVADE FROM THE SEA.

IT DOESN'T TAKE A BIG T DEFEND ABLE POSITIONS AS ARE HELD BY THE GERMANS. ACTUALL HE D TO HAVE ONE INFANTRY AND TWO MECHANIZED DIVISIONS--OR PARTS OF DIVISIONS--IN THE SALERNO SECTOR. FULL DIVISIONS WOULD REPRESENT BETWEEN 35,000 AND 40,000 MEN.

CONCENTRATION OF THESE TROOPS ON THE HEIGHTS HAS MADE IT EXTREMELY DIFFICULT FOR US TO CREATE A HEAVY ATTACKING FORCE FROM OUR INVASION UNITS AT THE BEACHHEAD. HOWEVER, THE YANKS OBVIOUSLY HAVE DONE A SIZABLE JOB, FOR AT LEAST REPORTS THEY WERE HOLDING A 24-MILE BEACHHEAD AND WERE IN POSSESSION OF THE CITY OF SALERNO--A PLACE OF SOME 70,000 INHABITANTS.

APPARENTLY IN THE EARLY STAGES OF THE FIGHTING WE DID HAVE TO WITHDRAW A UNIT FROM ONE POINT IN THE BEACHHEAD AND SEND IT IN AT ANOTHER PLACE. SO FAR AS INFORMATION FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS GOES THIS REPRESENTS THE SOLE EXCUSE FOR BERLIN'S CLAIMS THAT WE WERE WITHDRAWING WHOLESALE AND WERE BEATEN. ON THE CONTRARY, LATEST ADVICES ARE THAT GENERAL EISENHOWER IS POURING REINFORCEMENTS INTO THE SALERNO

BATTLE AND THAT THE SEA IS BLACK WITH TRANSPORTS IN THAT AREA.

MEANWHILE GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IS PUSHING NORTHWARD IN TWO COLUMNS FROM THE HEEL AND TOE. THESE COLUMNS NOW ARE SOMETHING LESS THAN 100 MILES FROM SALERNO. THEY AREN'T ENCOUNTERING MUCH ARMED RESISTANCE, ALTHOUGH THEY ARE HAMPERED BY MINES AND NAZI DEMOLITIONS ALONG THE HIGHWAYS, AND THEY ARE MOVING SO FAST THAT THEY MAY REACH SALERNO IN A WEEK OR SO. AN ATTACK ON THE GERMAN REAR WOULD CHANGE THE COMPLEXION OF THINGS.

SEP 16 1943

AS A MATTER OF FACT, THE POSITION OF THE GERMANS AT SALERNO IS FAR FROM ENVIABLE. THEY'VE BEEN MORE OR LESS CUT LOOSE ON THEIR OWN, WITH BAD COMMUNICATIONS TO THE NORTH, TO CARRY OUT A SUICIDE JOB. THEIR GAME WILL BE TO HIT AND RUN--IF THEY CAN--WHEN MONTGOMERY'S TROOPS ARRIVE AND THINGS GET TOO HOT.

AS THE SIGNS NOW READ, THE ALLIES SHOULD BE ABLE TO MAKE REASONABLE PROGRESS UP THE SOUTHERN HALF OF THE PENINSULA, THE FIGHTING IS LIKELY TO INTENSIFY FROM ROME NORTHWARD, AND WILL REACH ITS PEAK ALONG THE PO RIVER IN THE FAR NORTH, WHERE THE WILY MARSHAL ROMMEL AGAIN IS PLOTTING HOLDING OPERATIONS SUCH AS GAINED HIM FAME IN AFRICA. MUCH WILL DEPEND ON AIR POWER, AND WE HAVE A SUPERIORITY.

Fifth U. S. Army Opens First Real Drive—Gen. Clark Attacks at Center—Says Eighth Army Is at Hand.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Sweating British and American soldiers of the Fifth Army have lashed out at the Germans, driving them back from the Salerno bridgehead, and have clinched their foothold in Italy, Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark announced today.

Gen. Clark launched his offensive this morning on the eighth day of the biggest battle yet fought in the Mediterranean, and threw the German armored forces back between the junction of the rivers Sele and Calore north of Altavilla in the central sector of the twenty-seven-mile front.

The vigor of the attack drove the Germans back to a position eight miles from the sea. (The British Broadcasting Corporation, heard by NBC, reported a German retreat of four miles northwest of Altavilla, which would put the Allied forces ten miles inland.)

Simultaneously, Gen. Clark, in an order of the day to his troops, declared "our bridgehead is secure. Additional troops are landing every day and we are here to stay. Not one foot of ground will be given up."

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army, racing northward toward Sapri, but thirty-nine miles from the southern anchor of the Fifth Army's front, was mentioned by Gen. Clark, who said: "In a matter of hours its presence will be felt by the enemy."

[The United Nations radio at Algiers said the Eighth Army was within thirty-seven miles of Agropoli, the southern end of the Fifth Army's front.]

A military spokesman said that the Germans were in flight in the Salerno sector for the first time since the original landings eight days ago and that this morning's

ALLIES THRUST 8-MILE WEDGE INTO SALERNO LINE; SHIPS BLAST ENEMY; 8TH ARMY NEARS JUNCTION; RUSSIANS TAKE NOVOROSSIISK, DRIVE ON KIEV assault was "the first serious offensive thrust we have been able to make since getting on the beaches."

Reinforcements pouring into the bridgehead during the last forty-eight hours made the drive possible, he said.

The text of Gen. Clark's order of the day:

"As your commander, I want to congratulate every officer and enlisted man in the Fifth Army on the accomplishment of their mission of landing on the west coast of Italy. All the more splendid is your achievement when it is realized that it was accomplished against determined German resistance at the beaches. Every foot of our advance has been contested.

"We have arrived at our initial objective—our beachhead is secure. Additional troops are landing every day and we are here to stay. Not one foot of ground will be given up.

"Gen. Montgomery's battle-proven Eighth British Army—our partner in the task of clearing the German forces out of Italy—is advancing rapidly from the south and in a matter of hours its presence will be felt by the enemy. Side by side with the Eighth Army, the Fifth Army will advance to occupy Naples, Rome and other cities to the north and to free Italy from German domination.

"I am highly gratified by the efficient manner in which the British and American troops have worked side by side. Their performance has justified the confidence placed in them by the people of the United Nations. They know that we shall drive on relentlessly until our job is done.

"I desire the contents of this letter to be a communication to all ranks in your command."

Gen. Clark's Fifth Army is composed equally of British and Americans, was now the largest Allied froce engaged in a single battle since the Mediterranean war started, and it was supported again yesterday by more than 2,000 sorties flown by the powerful Northwestern African Air Force and separate raids by Middle East heavy bombers.

Flyers Join Battle.

The entire Allied air force thus joined the struggle for the second straight day and hurled hundreds of tons of explosives upon the Germans' positions with earth-shaking barrages.

With unchallengeable control of the sea, the Allies exploited the advantage to the utmost by moving their mobile naval batteries up close to the blackened, smoking beaches and hurling tons of screaming steel into the teeth of the Germans. The British battleships Valiant and Warspite with their 15-inch rifles joined in the bombardment.

Gen. Clark toured the fiery arena, cheering begrimed Tommies and doughboys with his presence at the advanced positions where he told the troops that every soldier must fight to the last and that there must be no withdrawals.

Casualties in this seven-day battle have been the heaviest of any in the Mediterranean fighting.

At least four German divisions had been identified in the action against the 27-mile front, and more were being brought up. It was probable that as many as five had been employed in the all-out effort to smash the Allied grip.

The magnitude and fierceness of the battle undoubtedly was draining German strength even more rapidly than Marshal Erwin Rommel's effort in Africa.

Gen. Montgomery's Eighth Army, racing dramatically up the Italian west coast, with the Italian toe behind it, passed through the ancient fishing village of Scalea, approximately fifty miles air line southeast of Agropoli, the southern anchor of Gen. Clark's position, Allied headquarters announced.

Montgomery's dust - stained warriors were meeting no opposition in the dash that had carried them more than fifteen miles in the last twenty-four hours.

Situation Still Critical.

Although Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters communique said that the Fifth Army had strengthened its hold on its bridgehead and was being reinforced and supplied, it was not considered likely that the critical phase would pass until it had been joined by the Eighth Army to form a great unified force.

Meanwhile, the communique had nothing further to report of the British force which landed at Taranto and sliced off the Italian heel with the capture of Brindisi and Bari in a flanking drive on the east side of the peninsula. These troops were believed to be fanning out through the lower backbone of the Appennines, however.

Standing offshore, British and American naval units, including an unspecified number of battleships, poured heavy shells into German lines in the foothills in support of the land forces at Salerno. Thousands of aircraft also again joined in the fray, smashing at the enemy back of and immediately on the battleground.

As in the previous 24-hour period, all aircraft in the northwest African air forces once again blasted German front line positions and communications, particularly in the Eboli area, about sixteen miles southeast of Salerno.

Forced to Withdraw.

The shifting nature of the hard-fought engagement was indicated by earlier field reports that the Germans had been forced to make a limited withdrawal from the wedge they had driven at the center of the Allied bridgehead near Eboli and, apparently spent, were digging in in the higher ground, and by later reports that the German attack still was on the increase.

Stressing that the Fifth Army was composed equally of Americans and British and that "there should be no attempt to make this either an exclusively British or American show," a headquarters spokesman said:

"I would like to emphasize that this Salerno attack always was considered a hazardous enterprise and hard fighting was expected. The element of surprise was missing and from the first day the fighting has been furious."

The Germans were rushing all available troops to the front despite the terrific Allied air bombardment which was blanketing the whole area with bombs, and they were seizing Italian guns and munitions to throw into the fray.

Americans and British, on the other hand, were using some of the most daring tactics of the war and accepting "suicide" assignments as a matter of course, headquarters reports said.

Still weak in the air, the Germans were unable to meet the Allied air armadas thrown over the bridgehead. The Allies lost four planes yesterday while shooting down five of the enemy.

Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's air headquarters said that the daily bomb tonnage deluging the Germans in the Salerno area was "vastly greater than any previous effort in the Mediterranean," including even the 1,200 tons dropped on Rome in the first raid on the Italian capital, and far outdoing the huge Pantelleria effort.

The big air assault was meeting almost no resistance, with the flyers reporting very little anti-aircraft fire over the battle area, indicating the Germans had not yet time to bring up their heavy anti-aircraft batteries or were forced to engage them against American and British troops rushing up from the beaches.

The Middle East Air Force, giving a helping hand again in the attacks on the enemy in Italy, bombed railway and highway communications at Potenza, fifty miles east of the Salerno battlefield, in raids Tuesday night and yesterday, a Cairo announcement said.

American Liberators bombed the freight yards there in daylight, scoring direct hits on a bridge and causing severe damage throughout the yards. British Liberators and Halifaxes attacked a road junction the previous night.

Fifth Army Strikes First Hard Blow at Southern End of Line.

EIGHTH ARMY GAINS

Montgomery's Troops Only Few Miles South of Battle Area.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 16—(AP) The powerfully reinforced American Fifth army drove the Germans more than eight miles from the sea today in its first serious offensive from its Salerno bridgehead, firmly secured on this eighth day of battle.

The British Eighth army advanced 15 miles from the south through the old Italian fishing village of Scalea, approaching so close that "in a matter of hours, its presence will be felt by the enemy," Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark told his charging Americans and Britons in an order of the day predicting the conquest of Naples, Rome and all Italy.

British 18 Miles Away

(The Algiers radio said tonight that some detachments of the advancing British Eighth army were only 18 1-2 miles from the Fifth army bridgehead. The broadcast, recorded by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service, said the Eighth army had captured Sapri, on the west coast 65 miles south of Salerno.)

The Fifth army—mightiest single Allied force in action in the Mediterranean in this war—surged suddenly and violently at dawn today from its foxholes at the southern end of the Salerno front, snapping the German ring at a junction of the Sele and Calore rivers just north of Altavilla.

Warships Support Attack

The equally divided American and British force (probably up to 100,000 men) struck with the support of thousands of planes, the British battleships Valiant and Warspite which hurled 15-inch shells into the foe, and sleek destroyers which added their firepower to the advance.

For the last four days, the tired Americans and Britons had been fighting the most furious defensive battle seen in the Mediterranean in this war. As dawn rolled up, the Fifth army with its strong reinforcements assaulted the German defenses in the wooded hills overlooking the critical coastal plain position. They regained ground lost to scores of German counter-attacks, then pushed inland, putting to flight the fanatical soldiers of Marshal Albert Kesselring who had vainly tried to push the Allies into the sea.

The bridgehead along the Sele is now roughly extended eight more miles inland. (This dispatch did not state how near the surf the invasion forces had been pressed when the push back was started. A British radio correspondent was quoted by BBC in a broadcast recorded by CBS that: "The new offensive has put our leading forces about eight miles inland, or four miles short of the farthest point we reached in the earlier fighting.")

Clark Praises His Men

The tall and lanky Gen. Clark had been in the thick of the battle since its inception. As his men drove forward through the smoke and dust of battle, he issued this order of the day:

"As your army commander, I want to congratulate every officer and enlisted man in the Fifth army on their mission of landing on the west coast of Italy. All the more splendid is your achievement when it is realized that it was accomplished against determined German resistance at the beaches. Every step of our advance has been contested.

"We have arrived at our initial objective—our beachhead is secure.

"Additional troops are landing every day and we are here to stay. Not one foot of ground will be given up.

"Gen. Montgomery's battle-proven Eighth British army—our partner in the task of clearing the German forces out of Italy—is advancing rapidly from the south and in a matter of hours its presence will be felt by the enemy. Side by side with the Eighth army, the Fifth army will advance to occupy Naples, Rome and other cities to the north and to free Italy from German domination.

"I am highly gratified by the efficient manner in which the British and American troops have worked side by side. Their performance has justified the confidence placed in them by the people of the United Nations. They know that we shall drive on relentlessly until our job is done."

"It is the first serious offensive we have been able to make since getting on the beaches," a military spokesman said. "Reinforcements pouring into the bridgehead for the past 48 hours made the offensive possible. The bridgehead along the Sele now is roughly extended eight more miles inland."

First Contact Established

Newspapermen with Gen. Montgomery's Eighth army already had established contact with the Fifth. Daniel de Luce of the Associated Press and eight British war correspondents drove through 100 miles of no-man's land from Eighth army positions and joined the Fifth army yesterday after riding two days and nights without encountering a German.

The Eighth army, beating up the Italian west coast, was approaching Sapri at latest reports, only 39 airline miles from the lower end of the Salerno battle. By capturing Scalea, the British had overrun the whole Italian toe.

Another British force which had captured Italy's heel with its fine ports of Taranto, Bari and Brindisi was unreported.

(It appeared possible that these Britons might be striking across the lower Apennines toward positions behind the Germans around Salerno to effect a three-way squeeze with the Fifth and Eighth armies. Primary roads lead across southern Italy from Bari and Taranto through Potenza to Salerno. Potenza was bombed yesterday for the second day in a row by Middle East planes.)

Violent Attack Turned Aside

The violence of German attacks on the Salerno bridgehead persisted right up to the moment that the Fifth army turned its might upon the foe. A veteran British major said the violence of the struggle was "unequaled since the bloody days of 1916." At least five German divisions had mounted incessant day and night attacks, forcing every Allied soldier from Gen. Clark down to fight 24 hours a day to keep from being thrown into the sea. The sleepless Allies ate between gunfire rounds in their foxholes and were lucky if they got one hot meal in four days.

From the sea which the U. S. and British navies firmly controlled, ships unloaded fresh men and supplies around the clock faster than the Germans, with interior communications by land, could reinforce their army. It was with this fresh strength that Gen. Clark lashed out today.

Even before his offensive started rolling the Germans back into the wooded hills and toward a line beyond artillery range of the sea, the Fifth army had "strengthened their hold on the beaches," the Allied communique said.

"Reinforcements continue to arrive," the communique said. "Naval and air support is playing a great part in assisting the consolidation. Unloading on the beaches in the Salerno area continues satisfactorily. Destroyers working inshore are bombarding enemy positions and troop concentrations. Yesterday, Sept. 15, targets in the Salerno area also were bombarded by battleships."

More Italian Ships Surrender

The communique said 28 more small units of the Italian navy arrived at Palermo, Sicily, in surrender on Sept. 13 and 14. Previously, 77 warships were reported at Malta and another eight reached Cyprus, running the Allied naval prizes to at least 113 units.

The fury of the battle of Salerno was unequaled since the fall of France. German reinforcements were being rushed to the front from Marshal Erwin Rommel's command in northern Italy, but their progress was impeded by steady poundings of roads and rail lines.

To the cacophony of clanking steel tanks, chattering machine guns and small arms fire was added the whine of naval salvos exploding in Nazi nests in the hills. Planes droned constantly overhead above the dust and smoke laden surface air.

For the second day running, planes of all categories from Flying Fortresses to fighters flew more than 2,000 sorties, dropping the greatest cargo of destruction yet laid in a single day in the Mediterranean theater. They destroyed at least five enemy planes. Four Allied craft were lost.

ALLIED AIR FLEET SLASHES AT NAZIS IN SALERNO AREA

More Than 2,000 Sorties Flown by Planes Aiding Fifth Army.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 16—(AP) The most lethal concentration of air power in the history of the Mediterranean conflict is blasting and tearing at the Germans in the Salerno area in support of hard-fighting American and British ground forces.

Far more than 2,000 sorties were flown over the critical battlefield both yesterday and the previous day by this Allied armada, and an official declared the tonnage of bombs rained on the Nazis was "vastly greater" than that which brought about the capitulation of Pantelleria island earlier in the summer.

The record-breaking array of bombers and fighters was spraying bombs and cannonfire with deadly precision on enemy supply dumps, communications and troops only a short distance behind the smoke and flame of the actual fighting front. The Germans, almost devoid of effective aerial support, were helpless to avoid the devastating attack from the skies.

German fighter pilots continued to avoid conflict if at all possible, and in two days of unprecedented assault the Allies had suffered the amazingly low loss of four aircraft. Five German Focke-Wulf fighters were destroyed by P-40 Warhawks yesterday when they attempted to attack Allied landing barges.

An indication of the great weight of explosives cascaded on the Nazis in each of the past two days was afforded by comparison with the 1,200 tons dropped in the first American Flying Fortress raid on Rome. A "vastly greater" weight than that might easily reach 4,000 or 5,000 tons.

While the big Sicily-based Allied fleet pounded enemy objectives on and immediately in the rear of the Salerno fighting front, heavy Liberator bombers of the Middle East command spanned the Mediterranean to blast Nazi-held railroad yards at Potenza, key point in the railway supply line to enemy troops opposing the British Eighth army roaring up from the south of Italy.

Not a bomber was lost in this offensive action, which undoubtedly further handicapped the German forces trying to prevent Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's veteran army from closing in and joining the Allied troops defending the Salerno bridgehead.

Eboli road junction, only nine miles inland from the Salerno beaches, felt the brunt of yesterday's dawn-to-dusk aerial pounding. Flame spouted thousands of feet into the air when bombs from American Medium Marauders hit an enemy munitions or fuel dump near the important junction.

American A-36 dive-bombers destroyed 47 motor vehicles and damaged at least 13 others in a German bivouac area. The same group blocked three roads with bomb hits, strafed Nazi troop-carriers and blew up a supply dump near Picerno.

Flying Fortresses concentrated on bombing roads behind the German lines and destroying what little rail transport was left to the enemy. American Mitchells tore up roads in the Torre Annunziata area between Salerno and Naples, while tactical fighters and bombers concentrated on frontline targets.

The blanket coverage of the actual fighting area by Mitchells, Warhawks, Spitfires, Kittybombers, Lightnings and Baltimores was supplemented by Allied warships which stood a few miles to sea and hurled their salvos into the enemy's defenses.

"What a combination," exulted one American airman. "The navy was blasting away from the sea and our gang from above. We couldn't miss."

Air Armada Pounds Nazis

Another 24-hour Attack Destroys Enemy Dumps and Armor at Salerno

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The Allied Air Command threw every available fighter and bomber into the battle for the Salerno bridgehead for the second successive day yesterday and last night.

The second day of this record aerial assault found Flying Fortresses assuming the role of mobile long-range artillery in close support of the ground troops, spraying bombs with deadly precision on communications, supply dumps and soldiers only a short distance behind the front line in the sector where German armored troops have been attacking the American Fifth Army.

Eboli Road punction—only nine miles inland from the Fifth Army's landing beaches—was the focal point of the attack as American medium and light bombers and dive bombers carried out an unceasing dawn to dusk assault and R. A. F. Bostons and American Mitchells kept up the pounding all through the night.

Smoke and flame spouted thousands of feet when bombs from American B-26 Marauders hit an enemy munitions or fuel dump near Eboli junction, after an earlier wave of Marauders caused a similarly large explosion in a nearby area.

Transport Blown Up.

The attack continued on into the afternoon and flyers saw fragments of an enemy motor transport hurtle through the air when the raiders caught the Germans attempting to hide their vehicles.

Nazi troops, as well as their dumps and transport, were unable to escape the devasting aerial blows. American A-36 divebombers destroyed forty-seven vehicles and damaged at least thirteen others when they criss-crossed over a German bivouac area with machine guns wide open. The pilots saw more than 1,000 troops fleeing for cover and many of them were killed or wounded.

The same A-36 group managed to block three roads with bomb hits, destroyed a bridge, strafed several big, six-wheeled German vehicles loaded with troops and blew up a supply dump near Pincerno.

Tonnage Sets Record.

As during the preceding day, far more than 2,000 sorties were flown and an official said that the bomb tonnage rained on the Germans was "vastly greater than anything ever dropped on a single target area before in this war theater. It has been vastly greater than the tonnage dropped on Pantelleria, and the heaviest load of bombs dumped on that island before it surrendered was three times the tonnage ever dropped in an enemy raid on London.

German pilots again avoided combat wherever possible and anit-aircraft fire was relatively light. Four Allied planes were missing from the two days' total of far more than 4,000 combat flights, a percentage of loss so light it amazed aerial combat veterans.

Five German Focke-Wulfs were destroyed yesterday while attempting sneak-run raids on the Fifth Army's landing beaches. They were shot down by P-40 Warhawks.

Flying Fortresses concentrated on bombing roads, and in the words of an official's statement, "plowed up a highway for a couple of miles."

Several fires were left in Eboli, a transport junction for Nazi supplies, other fires were seen blazing in the railroad yards. Another wave of Fortresses blasted both the highway and railroad at Torre Del Greco and flyers expressed the belief they left both impassable.

Roads Are Plowed Up.

American Mitchells dealt powerful blows on roads in the Torre Annunziata area midway between Salerno and Naples and north of the Fifth Army's beachheads. A string of bombs crashed into the center of a motorized convoy and fires broke out near the road intersection.

Marauders also attacked south of the Sele River bridge midway between Eboli and Sorre and another wave laid their loads squarely on roads in the same vicinity. Flyers said that they could see Allied warships bombarding the same area.

While these attacks were under way, tactical bombers and fighters concentrated on frontline targets, starting at dawn when R. A. F. Baltimores laid a pattern on the town of Boli where German troops were seen massing and thirty minutes later when American Mitchells spread heavy explosions over the entire area.

Simultaneously, American P-38 Lightnings began strafing and bombing the enemy troops who had been subjected to many bombings the preceding night.

Mitchells, Warhawks, Spitfires, Kittybombers and Baltimores all joined in similar attacks during the afternoon.

Freight yards, motor convoys and enemy transport were the targets of the hammer blows. More than 100 sorties were flown by one A-36 group commanded by Lieut.-Col. R. C. Paul of Lake City, Fla., and a German observation plane was shot down by Lieut. Robert B. Walsh.

R. A. F. Beaufighters torpedoed two 2,000-ton vessels in an enemy convoy east of Corsica during the afternoon and American Mitchells braved a heavy storm of shore and ship fire to attack a large convoyed barge in the Tyrrhenian south of Rome

American Pinned To Ground By Foe's Armored Thrust Rescued By Daring Attack Of Planes

By HAL BOYLE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

In a Field Near the Invasion Beach in Italy, Sept. 14 (Delayed). Allied fighters and bombers, in a series of lightning smashes, have just broken up a great German tank drive threatening to engulf the north end of the American invasion bridgehead and drive a wedge between us and the British forces below Salerno.

We are lying in swampy bottomland where for several hours we have been pinned to the soil by the Nazi armored thrust. Around the bend and across the river Sele are the most advanced of the German tanks. All morning they have been shelling the area between them and the invasion beaches, and our artillery has been sturdy and steady in its replies.

One Unit Caught In Tanks' Fire

Our unit of the Twelfth Air Support command was caught at dawn in the crossfire of German tankmen who even now are no more than a mile and a half away.

During the night we were alerted by Lieut. Col. Eugene C. Cropper, headquarters commandant of Flemingsburg, Ky., after word of the Nazi attack was received, but the drive was not immediately realized. By the early morning hours it became evident it was another major attempt by the German military machine to smash the Allied bridgehead which, if it held, might spell the utlimate defeat of the Axis in Europe.

Despite stiffening resistance, the heavy Nazi tanks bored forward in force. Their whistling shells began shuttling a few feet over our heads and bursting somewhere near the sea with the terrific crack peculiar to German high velocity artillery.

10-Foot Ridge Protects Troops

We have been protected by a ten-foot ridge crowned by heavy blackberry brambles running perpendicular from the river in which our men bathed before luckily moving a few hundred yards further on to bivouac. Had we remained by the riverside, we would have been under the direct fire of the enemy tanks.

If the Germans had pushed on a little farther toward the sea, they would have rounded the river bend and the ridge that now protects us would be of no more value. We would be exposed like so many pins in a giant bowling alley.

But the strafing and bombing planes which swept to within a few feet of the ground have hurled back the tankmen—at least temporarily. And it is hard to see how they ever got through this flying web of winged death.

Blackberry Bush Welcome Refuge

When the first shell crackled overhead with a rush of air-like an express train I dived into a blackberry bush with Lieut. Louis C. Harris, former Pontiac, Mich., newspaperman, and Captt. Jay Vessels, another former newspaperman from Minneapolis, they were the most comfortable thorns anyone ever laid on.

"All we have got to throw back at them is bed-rolls," said Vessels.

In the clearing a few feet away, Lieut. Col. Vincent Sheean, New York author, was telling a group of officers a story about his friend, Ernest Hemingway. He finished the story despite the Nazi shell-bursts, but when German rifle or machine-gun bullets began whining overhead he and the rest of the group sought the shelter of the embankment.

"Sweat And Take It"

Because there are no heavy weapons in a unit of this kind, the fifty officers and men could do nothing but lie there and sweat it out. After one shell whistled past, a column of smoke rose from the direction of the sea. The Germans had made one hit. But they did not have long to enjoy their success.

Dozens of Invaders and Lightnings, summoned to support the hard-pressed American ground units, suddenly swooped low out of sight. We could hear their whining motors, thud of bombs and battle of machine-guns and then they wheeled around the river bend and rose triumphantly into the sky. Beneath and behind them lay silence—and presumably disaster to the Germans—for the

BALTIMOREAN STOPS ATTACK

Lieut. Col. Charles Weigand Directs Breakup Of Panzer Charge At Salerno

By MICHAEL CHINIGO
American War Correspondent

With the U. S. Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 13 (AP) (Delayed)—Although the Americans had been engaged in a nip-and-tuck battle with the Germans on the Salerno plain for four days they still felt their oats enough today to deploy for a morning attack.

The Germans however, having the advantage of observation from higher ground, undoubtedly saw us amneuver and while we were completing the disposition of our forces the Nazis hit us full in the face with the most powerful smash of the campaign so far.

Nazis Seek Soft Spot

For four long hours they struck again and again, charging every which way hunting for a soft spot. We pulled back under the terrific impact to allow our own artillery to counter-attack them, then we moved back into the line and tanks halted their drive.

Then Came Planes

While our group still was cheering these fighter pilots who, with Spitfire and Warhawk comrades, have batted down every enemy challenge from the air, the htunder of many heavy motors reverberated overhead. They came in waves of six—seemingly endless waves of six. They were Mitchell medium bombers and I lost count of them after tallying forty-two.

After passing us they turned sharply inland and later we heard distant dull rumbles as they unloaded heavy bombs on German positions and supply lines. When they passed us on the return trip we were packing to pull out.

"I want everything ready to move in five minutes," Colonel Cropper has just said.

The German tanks are still. There are shells overhead and in the few minutes during this lull we are going to move our convoy out from behind the embankment and make a more tenable shelter. If you read this story you know we made it.

CLARK 'PROUD' OF HIS TROOPS

Fifth Army Chief Voices Satisfaction With Battle, Thanks Flyers And Navy

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
[American War Correspondent]

With the American Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 16 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Fifth Army, received British and American correspondents this morning, exactly one week after the landing at Salerno, and expressed his satisfaction with what his forces had already achieved with the support of the Allied air force and navy.

"From what I have heard on the radio during the past few nights, accounts published in America and England have given a rather black view of what's happened here. I want the people of England and America to know how well every officer and soldier of the Fifth Army has stood up to mauled the German armor and grenadiers.

The Germans struck first directly southward Eboli, even while our naval gunfire was tering into the city, which is the enemy's pivotal point in this area.

Baltimorean Stops Foe

They came charging in groups of five, six and ten tanks, but Lieut. Col. Charles Weigand, of Batlimore, saw them coming and called for an artillery concentration. He got it and smashed the threat, which turned out to be merely a feint.

The main enemy force of a dozen tanks, a score of self-propelled 88-MM guns and a long line of troop carriers came dashing at break-neck speed in an effort to sweep over our right flank held by forces under Lieutenant Colonels Preston Murphy, of Fort Collins, Col. and Chester James, of Denver.

Murphy's men should have run, but they didn't and the battle raged for four hours before both sides quieted down to consolidate their positions for the night.

[A total of fourteen German tanks were knocked out during the fighting.]

Reporters with Eighth Army Sprint Ahead to Meet Yanks

Correspondents Establish First Contact Between Allied Forces in Italy.

SEP 17 1943

By DANIEL DE LUCE

FIFTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Sept. 15—(Delayed)—(AP) British and American war correspondents with the British Eighth army made the first contact with the American Fifth army in Italy today.

I drove through 100 miles of no man's land—playing hide and seek with German armored scouts—and into the dusty flak-roofed plain of Salerno to help establish the initial contact.

Danger of Ambush, Mines

The trip was a bit of tourism spiced with the danger of ambush and mines, and completed to the accompaniment of a roaring barrage from doughboy gunners on the ship-jammed rim of the Mediterranean as they drove off a typical noontime enemy bombing raid.

Flanks of the two armies were technically linked by a strange, dust-stained convoy of one jeep, one truck and two staff cars from the Eighth army in which rode eight British correspondents and this American reporter.

With us were two British captains as conducting officers and although they carried arms none in the party fired a shot in anger on the whole trip in spite of the fact that we skirted within 10 miles of the German troops' outposts.

Approximately 100 miles behind us on the mountain bordered Italian west coast the bulk of the Eighth army is advancing as rapidly as its lengthening supply line from the Messina strait will allow.

Meet U. S. Armored Truck

A green colored half-track with a vicious 50-caliber machine-gun pointing squarely at us blocked the high mountain road some miles south of Salerno.

A surprised youth in a tank corps crash helmet leaned down from his vehicle just to make sure his eyes weren't deceiving him.

"Another foot and I would have given you one hell of a burst," grinned Pvt. John Dowling of Jersey City, N. J.

"Where you from?" asked Pvt. Frank Pennington of Fairmont Station, Kansas City, Mo.

"Eighth army."

"Boy, we're sure glad to see you instead of another Jerry," chuckled Sgt. Raymond O. Nichols of Jefferson, Tex. The driver of the half-track was Corp. Milton B. Moore of Dallas, Tex.

Engineers Wreck Bridges

The half-track came from an engineering battalion of an American division now fighting well inland from the Salerno beach-head and their task was to blow up bridges on the road along which the Germans might try to stage a surprise armored attack.

"Guess we ought to save a few for the Eighth army," said Lt. Francis Runnfeldt of Winnetka, Ill. "We didn't know they were so close."

Our trip ahead of the British Tommies, with whom he crossed the Messina straits Sept. 3 from Sicily, nearly—but not quite—got us to Naples.

The first Italian town I entered with the invasion forces was Reggio, and a signpost there said Naples was 574 kilometers (418 miles) away.

Now I've only about 50 miles to go. The Fifth and Eighth armies together will make it all right.

It was a fantastic drive. For more than 100 miles we rode along the shores of the Tyrrhenian sea, which is prettier than a picture postcard. We drove over mountains crowned by mediaeval villages and monasteries, all the time on the watch for the enemy, but seeing none. We reaped scores of hysterical welcomes from settlements along the route.

Italians Give Assistance

Proud, smartly uniformed carabiniere and patient railway employes helped us at every point, warning us of the last reported location of German units. Many detachments of the Italian army were faithfully guarding railway tunnels, bridges and stations against possible German sabotage.

For 100 miles the only demolitions we discovered were an ammunition dump and a railway bridge the Germans had blown up. Elsewhere they had left the way open for the Eighth army to advance unmolested along the coast.

The desperate German rearguard, with the Eighth army in the south, the Fifth army in the north and a third Allied force on the heel of the Peninsula around Taranto and Brindisi, had been taking a run-out powder for nearly a week, pulling back into the central mountain ranges and there planting mines and wrecking communications.

The magnificently engineered highway built on the face of sheer cliffs gave us a view of the cobalt sea and the mountains terraced with vineyards and olive groves unmarked by war.

It seemed a road of peace and for the Italian soldier trudging on aching feet with a little bundle of clothing slung over his shoulder it was veritably "the road back."

Once Mussolini plastered the bridges and cliffs, and the walls of the towns of this Italian wonderland with his utterances in black painted letters five feet high. White paint now hides his mistaken boasts and prophecies of an empire.

As we passed one little hut, an aged woman in a shabby black dress ran toward us crying "Viva peace"—"long live peace."

Woman Offers Bread

We've heard that often since the invasion began but what made the incident different was the fact the woman brought us a two-pound loaf of freshly baked bread. She was weeping as we passed on.

The Italians warned us against following the main road inland because of German outposts at Laurito and another town we had to go through. So with native guides we weaved along the side roads, sprinting once for cover when we heard what the Italians said was a German tank rumbling toward a crossroad.

At Vallo Della Lucania we found an American airman, Lt. Stanley Stuber of Glendale, Calif., in a hospital practically recovered from injuries suffered when his Lightning was shot down by a Messerschmitt Sept. 10. He had been cared for tenderly by the Italians and had escaped capture by the Germans, who had been through the town only four hours before we arrived.

Maybe the muzzle of a 50 caliber machine-gun isn't a pleasant sight every day in the week but it was to us this morning and when we climbed out to talk with the doughboys in the half-track we could have patted the steel sides of the vehicle with affection.

The Eighth army in this campaign hasn't fought any big battles but on the Salerno plain we found ourselves in the middle of a real show. Offshore the gray shapes of warships, freighters, transports and landing craft dotted the misty waters. Inland the pall of dust hung thickly and guns thundered hotly and often.

I arrived at Fifth army headquarters almost simultaneously with Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of the Allied ground forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was making his first visit to the battle scene.

He asked to see who had arrived so unexpectedly from the Eighth army and the Reuters correspondent and myself were received by him.

"It was quite a trip," he said.

"Not half so tough as getting out of Burma with you, Sir," I replied.

The general, his face as dusty as mine, smiled at the recollection.

"You chaps get around extraordinarily well," he concluded.

Black Sea Base of Novorossisk Is Stormed and Taken by Reds

SEP 17 1943

Russians on Central Front Smash Way Into Novgorod-Seversky, Only Eighty Miles From Border.

London, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Novorossisk, the great Black Sea naval base in the German bridgehead of the Caucasus, fell to the Russians after a five days' battle against four German divisions, today, and other Russian forces driving westward between Bryansk and Nezhin captured Novgorod-Seversky, which is only eighty miles from the White Russian border.

The capture of these two important but widely separated points on the Russian front was announced by Premier Joseph Stalin in separate orders of the day, broadcast by the Moscow radio and picked up by the Soviet monitor here.

A Moscow communique later announced the capture of Romny and Lozovaya, two important railway centers in the Ukraine. Romny, south of Konotop, is 130 miles east of Kiev. Lozovaya, the last important German-held junction on the line from Kharkov to Stalino to Rostov, is seventy-five miles south of Kharkov.

To take Novgorod-Seversky, on the central front, the forces of Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky forced the Desna River and battered down the defenses which the Germans had prepared on the western bank. Novgorod-Seversky is ninety-five miles southwest of Bryansk and ninety miles northeast of Nezhin, which fell to the advancing Russian forces yesterday.

In capturing Novorossisk, the Russian land, sea and air forces pushed the Germans into a forty-mile-wide neck of land north of that port on the Taman Peninsula.

With the fall of the Kuban Delta port toppled Hitler's faded hope of Caucasus oil. There was no immediate indication of how much, if anything, the Germans were able to save from the Kuban debacle, but with the complete rout of the four enemy divisions and marine detachments—roughly 50,000 defenders—there seemed little likelihood that the Nazis had been able or would be able to pull much out of the wreckage of the defeat.

Capture Is Great Prize.

Presumably a small amount of the Kuban Delta remained to be mopped up, but Novorossisk was its great prize and the last strongly defended port.

If able to thread their way through the Russian Black Sea fleet, the Germans might yet get some troops out across the Kerch Strait to the Crimea by way of the tiny remaining port of Anapa, twenty-five miles northwest. Even in the Crimea the fate of any fighting forces saved from the Kuban still would hang in the balance. The Red Army drive along the shores of the Sea of Azov at the southern flank of the Ukraine front is sweeping so closely to the only rail line in the narrow northern neck of the Crimea that hope of a successful large scale withdrawal over that route is increasingly in doubt.

Novorossisk had been held by the Nazis since mid-September, 1942, and defended in bitter fighting throughout last spring and summer by a garrison force apparently ordered to hold on to the last man.

By the order of Premier Stalin, Moscow batteries thundered another 124-gun salute—keeping up the booming cadence following the repeated victories of the past two months.

Meanwhile, Red Army columns which captured Nezhin yesterday were battering their way across the central Ukraine toward the Dnieper River defense wall, some seventy miles to the west, today and apparently were aiming their main thrust against the Kiev-Poltava-Lozovaya railway, the severance of which would isolate German armies to the north and south.

REDS NEARING KIEV

Keystone in Nazi Defense Line Smashed at Novgorod Severski.

SEP 17 1943

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17—(AP) Soviet troops recaptured Novorossisk yesterday after a savage street fight to open the way for an attack on the Crimea, smashed the "German eastern wall" guarding White Russia, and raced on through Nosovka, only 55 miles short of the Ukraine capital at Kiev.

Two orders of the day and a Moscow communique also disclosed that the Russians had cut the Kharkov-Crimea railway at Lozovaya junction, and reached a point only 35 miles short of the Dnieper river bend in the Zaporozhe area.

Russians Move Swiftly

The swiftness of the Russian pace suggested that the Red army troops might reach the Dnieper river over the week-end, cause a German withdrawal from the doomed little bridgehead in the Caucasus above Novorossisk, and finally topple the citadel of Bryansk.

Spilling across the Desna river southwest of Bryansk, the Russians finally were reported to have overwhelmed Novgorod Severski, the keystone of Germany's "eastern wall" fortifications guarding the White Russia frontier 80 miles beyond.

One Soviet unit alone killed 1,500 Germans in the bloody struggle preceding Novgorod Severski's capture; other units wiped out 1,100 in the Lozovaya action, including a German regimental commander, and killed thousands of other enemy troops on the flaming 600-mile front.

In the five-day fight that overcame the German garrison at Novorossisk, the Russians said that four Axis divisions were smashed or routed in street fighting swirling through the Black sea port in the western Caucasus. Large stores of equipment and ammunition were captured in the city that the enemy had held for more than a year.

Moscow's victory batteries last night fired 24 salvoes from 124 guns to celebrate the fall of Novorossisk and Novgorod Severski as the Red army poured through great gaps in crumbling German defenses elsewhere along the front.

Nazis Try to Hold Kiev

The communique said "the enemy is attempting to hold up our advancing units" in the plunge toward Kiev, "but forceful blows delivered by our troops are throwing him back to the west and southwest."

The fall of Nosovka also put the Russians only 40 miles southwest of the German bastion at Chernigov, on the road connecting Kiev with Gomel in White Russia. While one Russian column drove head-on toward Kiev, another was said to have headed for Chernigov.

In southern Russia where the Russians were driving for the Dnieper river bend, the communique said the 17th German infantry division, which originally numbered about 15,000 men, had lost 6,500 killed and wounded. Three enemy divisions in that area now have only 16 tanks to withstand the onrushing Soviets, the bulletin added.

Marshal Stalin in an order of the day ending with the usual exclamation, "Death to the German invaders," said the Caucasian naval base of Novorossisk on the Black sea had fallen to Russian troops, sailors and airmen after a five-day battle in which combined Soviet arms routed approximately 50,000 Axis troops—three German divisions, one Rumanian Alpine division, and detachments of German marines.

Lt. Gen. Ivan Petrov, who commanded Soviet land forces in the siege of Sevastopol, led the forces which recaptured Novorossisk in cooperation with the ships of the Black sea fleet and the Red air force, Moscow said.

Nazi Troops in Danger

The Russians now are in a position to erase the narrow 45-mile wide German foothold across the neck of the Taman peninsula opposite the Crimea where Axis forces also are imperiled by Soviet troops approaching Kharkov-Crimea railway just east of the Dnieper river bend.

The railway, northern land artery for the Axis troops in the Crimea, already has been cut at Lozovaya, a junction on the Stalino-Kiev railway 75 miles south of Kharkov. Other Russian units rolling westward were reported only 35 miles from Zaporozhe, another station on the line where it skirts the Dnieper river bend.

A few hours after the announcement of the Novorossisk victory, Marshal Stalin issued a second order of the day telling of the capture of Novgorod Severski, an important German strongpoint on the west bank of the Desna river in the northern Ukraine.

The smashing of the enemy in that sector, midway between imperiled Bryansk and recaptured Nezhin, released a Soviet horde racing toward the border of White Russia 80 miles away. Gomel, another German strongpoint, lies only 20 miles inside the White Russia frontier.

A total of more than 225 towns and villages, many of them of great strategical importance, were captured during the day, Moscow said.

Germans Pushed Back

The Germans were being hammered back steadily toward the Dnieper river, last natural defense line short of the Dniester on the Rumanian frontier. At their present clip the Russians should reach Kiev's approaches and other points on the curving Dnieper within a week unless the fall rains bog down their strong armored forces.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians already had ripped away most opposition short of Kiev and were within 60 miles of that great industrial capital which the Germans captured Sept. 19, 1941, after a two-month siege. The daily communique said the Russians scored a nine-mile advance toward Kiev during the day.

One Russian column striking straight down the Bakhmach-Kiev railway beyond Nezhin was reported within 60 miles of Kiev; another column had turned south to take Ichnya, only 18 miles north of Priluki, another German strongpoint defending Kiev 80 miles to the west.

Priluki also was menaced by a Russian force striking from the east. That column toppled the stronghold of Romny, 80 miles from Priluki, and assisted in sweeping up a total of more than 90 localities during the day in the converging effort to smash through to Kiev.

The Russians had knocked out one corner of the German triangular defenses southwest of Kharkov with the capture of Lozovaya. The triangle, based on Lozovaya, Poltava and Dnieperopetrovsk, also was dented by Russian seizure of Valki, 30 miles southwest of Kharkov on the road to Poltava.

For the Russian forces pounding along the Sea of Azov the next major goal was Melitopol, last mainland junction on the railway crossing into the Crimean peninsula. The communique said the forces driving on Melitopol and Zaporozhe had gained up to 10 1-2 miles during the day and captured more than 40 villages.

The situation at Bryansk itself was not clear. The Russians said their troops continued to advance, apparently encircling that hinge of the enemy's central and southern fronts. The Berlin radio, which on Tuesday announced German evacuation of Bryansk, reversed itself by saying that the city still was under the Axis banner although fierce fighting was going on in its outskirts.

Russian recapture of Novorossisk again illustrated the strong recuperative powers of the Soviet forces. The Germans had held the port since Sept. 6, 1942, taking it in their campaign that reached deep into the Caucasus to the edge of the Grozny oil fields.

It has been stormed repeatedly, the Germans have said, since last winter's German rout in the Caucasus. Up until a late hour the Germans had not acknowledged its recapture, and only a few days ago they said Soviet amphibious forces had been destroyed in the port.

Novorossisk is vital to Russia as a naval base in the coming effort to avenge the unsuccessful defenders of Sevastopol in the Crimea, which is separated from the Caucasus only by the two-mile-wide Kerch Strait, still in German hands. It has a harbor three miles wide and five miles deep, and was the refuge of the Soviet Black Sea fleet when Sevastopol was besieged. When Novorossisk itself fell, the fleet put into Batum, 400 miles to the south near the Turkish border.

The city was the biggest cement producing and exporting center in the entire Soviet Union, and had a peace-time population of more than 100,000.

Nazis' Defenses Severed.

Moscow, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Russian troops surging swiftly toward Kiev and Zaporozhe, key cities on the Dnieper, were today reported to have ripped apart the German defenses east of the river.

CASSIDY

The Russian Army newspaper, the Red Star, said that the Germans no longer held a continuous line.

The Russian forces drove on Kiev from Nezhin, seventy-three miles to the northeast, and on Zaporozhe from a line between Gulai Pole and Pokrovskoye, some forty-five miles to the east. A Soviet communique announced the capture of Nezhin, Gulai Pole and Pokrovskoye yesterday.

The capture of Nezhin was considered here to have removed the most important obstacle to the march on Kiev after six days of fighting resulted in an advance of forty miles west from Bakhmach.

Red Star said the Germans lost one of the main points in the defense of Kiev when dislodged from the fortifications built around the swamps, four railway tracks and numerous water lines at Nezhin.

Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky's central front forces, which carried out supporting action for ansk front troops during the capture of Orel, now have moved from the flank to direct assault operations. Rokossovsky's men, who crushed the German Sixth Army at Stalingrad, appeared to have been chosen to become the captors of Kiev.

Advance in Deep Wedges.

Red Star said Rokossovsky's forces split the enemy defenses into several sectors, driving forward in deep wedges, but the Germans resisted stubbornly along individual paths and roads.

One mobile Red Army force was reported to have dashed twelve miles into the enemy rear during the battle of Nezhin, disrupting communications while tanks and motorized infantry encircled and exterminated separate enemy units.

In the central Ukraine, Red Star reported, the Russians are advancing between Kharkov-Krasnograd and the Kharkov-Lozovaya roads, crushing resistance between the Red Army salients.

U. S. BOMBERS BATTER NAVAL BASE AT NANTES

Daylight Foray Follows Big Fortresses' First After-dark Assault.

SEP 17 1943

R. A. F. AGAIN RAIDS BERLIN

Blasts Rubber Factory in France in Sweep That May Have Been the Allies' Greatest.

London, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—American Flying Fortresses, following up last evening's inaugural dusk raid and what was probably the Allies' biggest night assault on the Continent, today bombed naval installations at Nantes in France in their second foray in two days. An official announcement of the raid on Nantes, big French industrial center at the mouth of the Loire, said the Fortresses were escorted by American Thunderbolts.

In last night's mammoth operation the Fortresses, joined by Liberators and Marauders, plastered Nazi airfields and aircraft plants in France, in their first after-dusk assaults, while Royal Air Force bombers hit Berlin anew and stabbed at one of Hitler's important rubber factories at Mont Lucon, only forty-three miles from Vichy.

The attack on Berlin was the first since the pre-dawn hours of September 4. Presumably it was carried out by the swift Mosquito squadrons which pummel the German capital between saturation attacks. Other R. A. F. bombers struck at additional targets in Northwest Germany, the Air Ministry announced.

Mont Lucon, only forty-three miles northwest of Vichy, was the principal target of the night-flying formations which concentrated on a factory supplying much-needed tires for Hitler's war machine.

The Vichy radio said that the town of Chartres also was attacked, but the British announcement made no mention of this.

Last night's operations cost the R. A. F. eight bombers and two fighters, the Air Ministry said. One enemy plane was shot down.

Although clouds made it difficult to see the results of the bombing at Mont Lucon, the communique said, first reports indicated that the attack was effective. The factory there is one of the two largest tire plants in France. It receives its raw materials from Germany. The city itself is a railroad junction on the line connecting northwest France with Marseilles and another line joining Lyons with Bordeaux.

U. S. Experiment Succeeds.

The raid on Paris marked the first time that Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders had joined in the same operation in the European war theater and the first time they had gone out and come home after dusk. Brig.-Gen. Frederick L. Anderson, chief of the Eighth Air Force Bomber Command, pronounced the experiment a success, presaging the possibility that they would soon team up with the British in bombing Europe by night.

Axis radio reports indicated that the American bombers delivered a real blasting to the Paris area. "Over 400 yards of the Avenue de Versailles are a mass of ruins," the Vichy radio declared.

A Berlin broadcast, claiming that seven of the American bombers were shot down, said that the attackers knocked out the electric power supply in several districts of the city. It further admitted considerable damage, and said that the casualties were "believed to be very large."

The dusk bombing was regarded as a significant expansion of the scope of Allied operations. It means, American officers pointed out, that a time-strip of several hours has been added to the planes' potential operating time at both sunset and sunrise, as dawn-bombing presents similar problems. Partial-darkness flying also decreases the enemy's chances of shooting down the American planes.

The burst of widespread activity in the past twenty-four hours ended a lull in the extensive Allied air activities against western Europe which followed the climax of an eight-day non-stop offensive against the Continent a week ago.

FORTRESSES BLAST NAZI U-BOAT BASES

35 Enemy Fighters Shot Down, 13 Big Bombers Lost.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—(AP) American Flying Fortresses, in one of the heaviest daylight operations in the European theater, pounded port facilities at Nantes, U-boat pens at La Pallice and air fields at Cognac and La Rochelle yesterday.

Thirty-five enemy planes were destroyed during the huge operations, carried out on an obliteration scale.

Thirteen heavy bombers and three fighters were lost in the raids, a U. S. communique said.

Round-the-Clock Assault

These raids came as a continuation of a new round-the-clock assault on Nazi war installations by Allied British-based armadas.

Yesterday evening more formations were heard heading across the channel at dusk, indicating that the raids were continuing into the second night.

Last night, also, American Marauder medium bombers again smashed at oft-hit Nazi airfields at Beaumont-le-Roger and Tricqueville.

(Deutschlandsender, main radio station in the Berlin area, the Breslau station, the Nazi-controlled Kalundborg station in Denmark and the Allouis transmitter in France all went off the air last night, the Federal Communications commission reported. This usually indicates Allied air activity over Europe.)

Paris Factories Bombed

The Allied aerial drive opened Wednesday night when a fleet of Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders bombarded three Paris airplane factories and a number of Nazi air bases in northern France, while R.A.F. medium and fighter-bombers raided a half dozen additional air fields.

The Paris radio said tonight that sections of the city were in ruins and still smoking, and that casualties had mounted to 252 dead and 538 injured.

Following up the Americans' attack, a big force of R.A.F. heavy bombers thundered into France and bombed a big rubber factory at Montlucon, near Vichy. One of the two biggest tire factories in France, it had been operating with raw materials from Germany.

Simultaneously, other R.A.F. forces—probably Mosquito bombers—swept on across France to bomb Berlin and other targets in northwest France. Berlin was last raided by R.A.F. heavy bombers on Sept. 3.

No bomb tonnage figures were issued, but from the array of planes and targets it appeared the new onslaught likely was the greatest overall assault yet carried out by the Allies in such a short period.

The Paris raid marked the first time Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders had joined in the same operation, and the first time they had flown out and returned after dusk.

Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Anderson, commander of the United States Eighth Bomber Command, pronounced the experiment a success and said it opened the possibility that American planes soon might team up with the RAF in night bombing.

Raises Operating Hours

The dusk bombing and its implied counterpart—dawn bombing—will give American planes considerably more potential operating hours daily.

Heavier-armored, lighter-loaded daylight bombers still operate more effectively in daylight, just as heavier-loaded, lighter-armored craft still raid more efficiently at night.

But when, for example, daylight rains keep the Liberators and Fortresses at home, it would be better to send them out at night than lose their services for twenty-four hours.

The last two days of joint American-RAF sweeps brought to around fifty the total Nazi bases battered this month.

Pound 4 Paris Factories

At Paris the Fortresses added to the lengthening list of Nazi airplane factories bombed in recent weeks by pounding the Caudrom-Renault factory for the second time in two weeks and the Hispano-Suiza plant.

Photographs revealed tonight that other Paris factories hit were the Renault truck-tank plant and the Citroen Motor Works, as well as a near-by power station. The pictures showed extensive damage to all targets, it was announced.

Hits on the Renault truck-tank plant were believed to have ruined its second wartime reconstruction by the Germans.

At the Nazis' Romilly-sur-Seine fighter repair base, hit several times before by American bombers, a large, triple hangar was smothered anew by bomb bursts and the operational fighter field at Chartres—a previously unspecified target—was dotted with blasts.

GUERRILLAS SEIZE YUGOSLAV HARBOR

SEP 17 1943

Seaport at Split Captured After Two Days of Siege.

LONDON, Sept. 16—(AP) Split, Yugoslavia's most important seaport, has fallen to guerrilla patriot armies after two days' sieze, a Yugoslav communique said tonight.

The communique, issued in the name of the Yugoslav army of liberation, said the Axis garrison of the Adriatic seaport was believed to have surrendered in the last 24 hours.

The guerrillas were reported attacking Ogulin, 30 miles inland from the Adriatic in northern Yugoslavia. Guerrillas already hold a large part of the Susak-Zagreb railway in that region east of Fiume.

German motorized divisions attempting to pierce the Yugoslav lines near Klin were reported driven off with 300 killed and 500 wounded.

Italian Division Surrenders

The Italian Bergamo division was said to have surrendered and the Italians, wishing to fight alongside the partisan patriots against the Germans, were reported mustered into a "Garibaldi division."

The Allied menace to the German's Balkan flank apparently was still a distant threat, although the day brought word that Allied forces had thrust into the Aegean sea to occupy three islands off Turkey and Greece—Samos, Cos and Lero.

Madrid dispatches said concurrently that Croat guerrillas under the command of Allied officers had cut four principal German-held railways running out from northern Yugoslavia to Hungary, Rumania and Italy.

This quiet, steady process of attrition moved irresistibly under the surface of the main campaign. Its significance lay in the future.

Greeks Impatient

Greeks in London, impatiently waiting for the time when resistance can come out from underground and burst across the face of the Balkans, declared they had not received for four days past the usual direct reports of guerrilla activity. They suggested this indicated the well-disciplined partisans were withholding action in expectation of a signal to strike.

They said they had precise information that the Germans were taking troops out of Rumania through Bulgaria toward the Aegean, and that Bulgarian troops were being spread westward to support German troops occupying Albania.

The whereabouts of the British Ninth army, reported from neutral sources yesterday to have left its base in Syria, still was clothed in mystery.

The immense future importance of the Balkans in the war was portended by two Russian actions which strongly indicated that Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin had become newly interested in the area:

First was the Russian government's decision to allow its church to appoint a patriarch—a long step toward restoring its old position and one certainly popular in the Balkans generally.

Second was a sharp admonition to Bulgaria in an article published in Pravda, which said that the death of King Boris made Bulgaria's future course in the war of great interest and pointed to Russia's aid to Bulgaria in the past.

Two Islands in Aegean Area Reported Occupied by Allies

Samos and Lero's Seizure Said to Have Preceded Rumor of Ninth Army's Departure for Balkan Invasion.

SEP 17 1943

London, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Allied occupation of two island outposts to the Balkans, in a move strikingly similar to operations which preceded the invasion of Italy, was reported in dispatches from Ankara today.

One account said that the Greek island of Samos and the Dodecanese Island of Lero, off the Turkish coast and about 150 miles north of German-held Crete, were occupied three days ago—the day before Great Britain's Ninth Army was reported to have embarked from its Middle East bases 400 miles across the Mediterranean in Syria and Transjordania.

Other dispatches to London morning newspapers reported that both islands had been turned over to the Greek gendarmerie by Italian forces after their country surrendered to the Allies.

Has Seaplane Base.

Lero, thirty miles from the Turkish mainland, has a valuable seaplane base and also was used by the Italians as a base for light naval craft. Samos is a much larger Greek island, forty miles further north, with two of the best airdromes in the Aegean Sea. Both islands are north of the Italian Island of Rhodes.

There was no indication in the Ankara dispatches as to what type of forces were used in the reported occupation operations, but a Stockholm dispatch yesterday said the British Ninth Army, headed by Lieut-Gen. W. H. Holmes, had sailed from its Middle East bases after two years of intensive training.

Mystery as to the exact whereabouts of the Ninth Army, coupled with reports of successes by Yugoslav guerrillas who are in touch with the Allied command, suggested a possible Allied invasion of the Balkans was shaping up.

There was some question in London, as to whether Greek forces on Samos and Lero are loyal to the Allies or to the Greek puppet government set up by the Axis.

Military circles also questioned whether the islands would be found particularly useful for large scale operations, such as an Allied invasion of the European mainland would necessarily have to be.

Occupation of the islands, however, if true, was regarded here as a portent of things to come.

Tending to strengthen reports of intensified activity in the Balkans theater was the Cairo report that Major-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of all U. S. forces in the Middle East, had been transferred to an important new assignment, and it was suggested that he might now be with the Ninth Army.

German reinforcements meanwhile were reported to have been rushed to the Nish-Varder line in the Balkans with the evident intention of strengthening the strategic base of Salonika, Grecian gateway to the Vardar valley. Additional Nazi divisions were reported moving southward across the Danube River via Dobruja to positions on the Black Sea coast.

Reports of guerrilla activity received here by the Yugoslav Information Bureau told of the capture of Gorazde on the Drin River, cutting the railroad line between Belgrade and Serajevo. This line was the only one the Germans could use for troop movements south toward the Adriatic Sea.

Yugoslavian advices insisted that partisan forces had occupied more than 100 miles of the Dalmatian coastline on the Adriatic opposite Italy, despite a Berlin claim that the entire Dalmatian and Albania coastline was in German hands.

CAVALLERO IS NOW REPORTED SUICIDE

London, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Stefani, the German-controlled Italian news agency, declared in a dispatch broadcast by the Rome radio today that Marshal Ugo Cavallero, former chief of the Italian General Staff, had committed suicide.

Cavalerro, who resigned last January, was among the Fascist leaders reported seized by the Badoglio government after the downfall of Benito Mussolini. A German broadcast, only last Monday, said he had been liberated by the Nazis.

Stefani said that the marshal, "not being able to bear the burden of dishonor and shameful treachery of his country, has committed suicide.'

Known as the "businessman-soldier," Cavallero, who was 63 years old, had divided his time in recent years between the army and his large steel interests.

The Berlin radic reported, meanwhile, that Mussolini, acting as head of the new German-made Fascist regime in Northern Italy, had appointed Lieut.-Gen. Renato Ricci to be commander of the Voluntary Militia for National Security. Ricci is a former vice-president of the Fascist party and also served as Minister of Guilds during the Mussolini regime. He also was one of the Fascist leaders reported arrested after Mussolini's downfall.

ALL WELL IN VATICAN, SAYS RADIO BROADCAST

LONDON, Sept. 16—(AP) A German-language broadcast tonight from Vatican City, outside which Nazi troops armed with anti-tank guns and machine guns have been reported on guard, said "everybody who has friends or relatives living in Vatican City can be assured they are well."

(The Vatican radio broadcasts in several languages, and similar assurances have been transmitted from the station previously since the Germans announced their troops had moved in for protection of the city.)

Plea by King of Italy Reported

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch from Zurich today quoted diplomatic circles in Bern as saying that King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy had appealed to the British government for protection for himself and his son, Crown Prince Humbert. No comment on this report, or on the whereabouts of the Italian King, was forthcoming here.

Fighting Is Reported

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP) — The United Nations radio at Algiers said today that Italians were fighting the Germans all along the railway from Trento to Brennero in the Brenner Pass, and that the whole area between Bologna and Rome was still under Italian control.

British Mediterranean Navy Losses Disclosed

London, Sept. 16 (AP) — Describing the surrender of the Italian fleet as one of the great turning points of the war at sea, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, tonight disclosed how precarious Britain's position beyond Gibraltar was in the early years of the war.

"The crisis in our misfortunes was reached in November and December of 1941," he said. "November 14 the carrier Ark Royal was sunk. On November 20 the cruiser Sidney was sunk and on November 24 the cruiser Dunedin and on November 25 the battleship Barham. Shortly afterward the battleships Queen Elizabeth and Valiant were severely damaged and the cruisers Neptune and Galatea were sunk.

Germany Capitalizes On Morgenthau Report

London, Sept. 16 (AP)—Germany sought to make propaganda today out of Secretary Morgenthau's report that United States equipment losses in Sicily exceeded fifty per cent. in some categories.

"Statements made by Morgenthau, American Minister of Finance, as regards the camapign in Sicily, saying Sicily had been bad business, are considered in Berlin political circles an interesting contribution to the interior attittude of the United States of America toward the war in Italy's" said a DNB broadcast.

"Statements made by the American Minister of Finance allow interesting conclusions regarding the further course of the battle in Italy."

German In Paris Finds Score Of Bizet Opera

London, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Berlin radio said today that the score of Georges Bizet's opera, "Ivan le Terrible," previously believed destroyed by the French composer because he considered it not up to his standards, had been found by a German musical expert, Dr. Ernst Hartmann, in Paris, and would be performed for the first time at Dresden.

The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

Wavell Favors Spending to Rid World of Want

Tells Pilgrims Lend-Lease Is Attempt to Put Lives First and Money Second

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Wavell told The Pilgrims today, "We shall really be making progress when we are willing to spend money against poverty, ignorance, unemployment and sickness at the same rate as against Hitler—when we pay our schoolmasters at a much higher rate, and our lawyers perhaps at a somewhat lower rate."

Advocating a return to the "Pilgrim spirit," he called lend-lease the "first attempt on a large scale for many years to put principles and men's lives first and money second."

An Englishman who "might have been an American citizen" except for a twist of history, the Viceroy-designate of India told the Anglo - American luncheon audience that the establishment of Vice - Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's East Asia command "will make Anglo-American co-operation even closer in India, which is one of the principal bases for our common effort against Japan."

"There can be no military or economic security for the East, for ourselves and for the world," he said, "until Japan is as thoroughly defeated as Germany."

Among the contents of a "mental handbag" he is taking to India, Wavell said, "is a debt of hatred for a cruel, cold and treacherous people"—the Japanese. Other contents, he added, include a love for India, considerable knowledge of the East and a conviction that British opinion wants to "give every possible assistance to India in her aspirations for full freedom."

He said, "We are approaching the end of the struggle with Hitler. We are only beginning the struggle to save civilization. . . . We shall many of us soon, I hope, be taking off our uniforms, but we must not cease fighting or let the sword sleep in our hands."

Wavell concluded, "if there had been 100 years ago a Foreign Secretary with a really forceful sympathy for the claims of his countrymen abroad, I might have been an American citizen." Wavell's grandfather, "a roving soldier of fortune," obtained a large grant of land near what is now Austin, Tex., from the Mexican government while he was chief of staff of the Mexican Army. His claim was later challenged by the United States government, and the British government declined to support the claim.

London Factories Busy In Subways

SEP 17 1943

LONDON—(AP) A subterranean factory in the tunnel of a London subway produces some of the most complicated electrical devices used by the British Air Ministry. Men and women who are daytime employees of the London passenger transport board comprise the nearly 150 spare-time workers who devote five nights a week to this work.

The tunnel-factory, which is at present lined with work benches and lathes, was originally converted for the purpose of making shell cases over two years ago. Under the leadership of the chief signal engineer of the subway company, volunteer workers underwent a specialized training course, and transformed themselves from clerks, stenographers and laborers into skilled craftsmen. The air ministry entrusted the factory with the production of much needed precision instruments, and for the past 15 months it has been turning out flawless work on a device which involves 40 different operations.

BRITAIN FREES PITBOY

Nottingham, England, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Sidney Page, the 18-year-old pitboy whose imprisonment caused 15,000 coal miners to strike, was released today, but a miner's superstition against beginning work on Friday threatened to prolong the walkout at lease another day.

Young Page, who was sentenced to a month's imprisonment a week ago when he refused to obey a Labor Ministry order to work underground, was freed after he had changed his mind, it was announced.

FINNS TELL NAZIS THEY WANT PEACE

COLUMN

Premier Linkomies Serves Official Notice Nation Would End War

[By the Associated Press]

Stockholm, Sept. 16—Finland in effect gave Germany official, though informal, notice today that the Finns were tired of fighting alongside the Nazis and wanted peace.

Premier Edwin Linkomies provided the official torch by announcing that he was the anonymous Finnish spokesman who said September 11 that Finland regretted being at war with England and desired peace with Russia if she could be assured of her pre-1939 independence and territorial status.

Linkomies' informal pronouncement of a definite turn in Finnish foreign policy caused astonishment in Finland, where the people generally have been barred by rigorous censorship from any information on the Government's conduct of international affairs.

German Reaction Undisclosed

There was no immediate news of German reaction to the Finnish notice, but doubts were expressed in Berlin yesterday, official Nazi advices said, of September 11 statements regarding Finnish plans to withdraw from the war.

Linkomies' announcement clarified that point for the Germans, as well as for the Finnish people who have been fighting as cobelligerents of the Nazis against Russia since July, 1941.

The significance of the Finnish political rebuff against Germany bore more significance in the light of the fact that Linkomies said September 11 for the first time that Finland had but one year's food reserves. Previously, the Government had insisted that the Nazis held an economic strangle hold on the Finns.

Food Lack Chief Worry

Thus, Linkomies had warned his country to be prepared in case Germany, in a reprisal move, should cut off Finland's food supply. In permitting the Premier to make the declaration, the Finnish Government apparently had felt also that there no longer was danger of the Nazis occupying Finland—a fear expressed less than a year ago.

Still in Finland, however, were 80,000 Nazi troops, most of them facing the Russians on the northern Finnish front.

The Helsinki correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet reported that Linkomies' foreign policy declaration—his first made publicly—mirrored Finland's prevalent public opinion.

Informal Overtures Made

Informal peace overtures already have been made by the Finns through the United States and Britain, but it is considered doubtful whether any direct approach has been made as yet to Russia, which has insisted that Finland take the first step. The Finns have been trying to get an idea of the Soviet's peace plans before launching any negotiations.

The fact that Finnish officials are talking publicly about peace is a diplomatic triumph for the youthful United States charge d'affaires at Helsinki, Robert Mills McClintock.

The Germans have wanted Finland to sign a solidarity pact, but McClintock has been exerting strong counter-pressure designed to get Finland to break its alliance with the Nazis. McClintock has held over the Finns' heads the threat that the United States would break diplomatic relations — a threat which has been responsible as much as anything else for the change in Finnish policy.

Hungarians Broadcast Allied War Bulletins

By The Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 16 — The Hungarian Radio has begun broadcasting Allied and Russian war communiqués, as well as the German, a Budapest dispatch to the Svenska Dagbladet said today.

SEP 17 1943

The British Broadcasting Corporation said in a broadcast recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York that the Budapest radio had made the following comment on Secretary of State Cordell Hull's statement on the United States' post-war foreign policy:

"Hungarian public opinion is struck by Mr. Hull's affirmation that all sovereign nations are equal, whether they be small or large, and that each one has the right to handle her own internal affairs.

"Hungary has always agreed with these principles as well as with all other fundamental principles of American foreign policy."

The BBC added that "Hungarian Social Democrats have asked that Hungary resume her parliamentary régime and her independent foreign policy."

Guns Along St. Peter's Steps.

Geneva, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—An Italian border dispatch to the Lausanne Gazette said today that German troops armed with anti-tank guns and machine guns were preventing persons from entering or leaving the Vatican City. "A dozen mobile anti-tank guns have been placed in St. Peter's Square at the base of the grand stairway of the Basilica, while machine guns were installed along the celebrated Colonnades," the dispatch declared.

German parachute troops have mounted guard around the Vatican City to check all contacts with Rome proper, it was reported. The dispatch said it now was impossible for faithful Italians to obtain permission to pray in St. Peter's. These measures were taken, an Intalian crowd was told, to check the entry into the Vatican City of anti-Fascists seeking sanctuary within its precincts.

The Lausanne Gazette said that German troops had surrounded workers' quarters in the Transtevere district across the Tiber, where "communists, rebels and Socialists installed barricades in the streets and fortified their homes."

NAZI TROOPS FIRE ON ROME RIOTERS

BRUFFO

Crowds Storm Few Food Shops Not Looted by Germans.

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN BORDER, Sept. 16—(AP) German occupation troops were reported today to have fired on hunger-driven crowds which stormed Italian food shops in Rome, Udine and Belluno.

The German troops themselves were reported thoroughly looting occupied territories, not only of foodstuff but also of gold and silver.

Rome Closes Churches

The chaos was reported so great in Rome that all churches except St. Peter's had been closed because of the plundering. Pope Pius XII was reported to have conferred with Papal Secretary of State Cardinal Luigi Maglione regarding the situation. The Vatican's Swiss guard was said to have donned "full war uniform."

The Milan newspaper Corriere Della Sera said church authorities had appealed to Marshal Albert Kesselring to order his soldiers to refrain from looting churches.

Reports reaching the Swiss frontier said Nazi troopers were plucking gold ear rings from women and taking gold watches from men. The German military commander at Turin published a proclamation today, the newspaper Stampa said, telling the people that German soldiers were "not authorized" to requisition rings, watches or other precious articles from civilians.

People Lack Food

Corriere Della Sera said that despite efforts of authorities in Rome people were without sufficient food. The newspaper said there was a complete lack of eggs, milk, meat, vegetables, or fruit, and the situation had been drastic worsened by the stern requisitioning of foodstuff by Nazi troops, who were enforcing 100 per cent martial law in all the occupied territory.

The Bern newspaper Der Bund said German troops were searching the Italian rural regions for food supplies and at Milan "all business warehouses" had been completely emptied by German troops.

The Rome radio, commenting on the looting by hungry citizens, said it hoped "such acts would not reoccur."

Corriere Della Sera said civilian life in Rome was paralyzed, that only a few motorbuses were operating and suburban trains were not running, because much of the rolling stock of the companies had been damaged in recent fighting.

Threaten Reprisals

German authorities threatened dire reprisals to "the dogs" who aided the government of Premier Badoglio and at the same time, reminding the Italians of the martial law in the occupied territory, ordered them back to work.

Corriere Della Sera said military proclamations published in Rome, Turin and Milan announced that all factories in the occupied territory had been placed under Nazi control and that all industries and businesses must be resumed immediately.

The people were forbidden to listen to foreign broadcasts and strikes were forbidden. Businesses were ordered to report total stocks and banks were told to announce their financial situation. Transportation companies were ordered to list all material.

The Bern Der Bund quoted a Berlin foreign office spokesman as saying anti-Axis agents had been meeting Vatican City diplomats in St. Peter's square and that the placing of Nazi soldiers around Vatican city now "makes this more difficult."

Nazi Rail Links to Italy Blasted by Saboteurs

2 Main Lines to Continent Closed; Others Threatened

MADRID, Sept. 16 (AP).—German forces in Italy were reported today to be having serious difficulty in maintaining railway communications with the rest of Europe. Of the five main railway lines linking Italy with the rest of the Continent, two were said to be entirely closed, two frequently blasted by sabotage, and the other threatened by Yugoslav guerrillas.

Reports from France declared the Germans still were unable to use the Modane-Mt. Cents line between Italy and southern France owing to armed resistance by Italian troops. French patriot units in the Savoie also were said to be doing their bit with sabotage to keep the line closed.

Croat guerrillas, according to advices from the Balkans, have cut four main railways fanning out of Ljubljana in what formerly was northern Yugoslavia. Two of these lead into Italy—one through San Pietro to Trieste and the other along the Sava River and then south to Goriza.

Another main line running from Trieste west to Zagreb and south to Split was reported threatened by guerrilla units.

MADRID, Sept. 16 (AP)—Dispatches to the Spanish press from Berlin said today that the Allies already had achieved one objective in Italy by drawing large forces of German troops and material into the peninsula "from other battlefronts."

The Spanish correspondents obviously referred to the front in Russia where, they said, the German High Command has pinned its defense plans on the rainy season and mud.

'Business As Usual,' Motto Of Italians In No Man's Land

SEP 17 1943

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

[American War Correspondent]

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 15 (Delayed)—Life goes on about the same as usual in no man's land in Italy these days despite the fierceness of the war being waged on all sides.

Accompanying a reconnaissance patrol which went into no man's land beyond our lines, I had a chance to see how Italian farmers, villagers and townsfolk were living in the middle of the crisscross fire between the Anglo-American forces and the enemy.

I found they were not only amazingly unafraid of the shellfire and patrol skirmishing about them but also that they were ready to sell American doughboys and English Tommies any supplies they have in reserve in the way of eggs, grapes, wine and occasionally chickens. Their motto seems to be "business as usual."

Family Nurses Ill Yank

The patrol I accompanied was headed by Second Lieutenant Benjamin Blackmer, Dorset, Vt., and included Corporal Joseph Ryback, Canonsburg, Pa., and Privates Daniel Burton, Swink, Okla.; John Mislan, Perth Amboy, N. J., and Leopold Jaramillo, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

In one town, the name of which cannot be revealed for military reasons, we found an American doughboy being cared for by an Italian family and nursed back to health. He had been stricken with fever.

While making another patrol, he had got lost and was found by an Italian peasant who took him into the town. He is Private John Wyesilosky, Lafferty, Ohio. He told me as he left the town with us, "they sure served me some good soup. I could hear the shooting around me all the time. I was scared stiff a German patrol would come in. Anyway, I feel pretty strong again.

Only Old And Children

The main difference between Italian towns in no man's land and those in territory held by Allied forces is just the reverse of what I had expected.

I found in no man's land, the average household is composed mostly of old men and women and children with virtually no young girls or men. I don't think I saw one able-bodied boy over 13. This is in contrast to the towns in Allied hands where Italian soldiers and pretty girls promenade in the streets feeling secure from the Germans.

EISENHOWER HONORS GEN. SPAATZ, DOOLITTLE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 16 — (AP) Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Allied air chief in the northwest Africa theater, and Maj.-Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the northwest Africa strategic airforces, whose warplanes played a major part in securing the Salerno beachhead were decorated today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Gen. Spaatz received the Legion of Merit medal for his "unusually successful solution to the difficult problems of air organization, quartering, training and maintenance" of the American Eighth air force in the European theater. Gen. Spaatz created the Eighth air force before coming to the African theater.

Gen. Doolittle, who received the Distinguished Service Medal, was praised in the citation for his work in organizing and carrying out operations of the strategic airforce which is a part of Gen. Spaatz' command.

Gen. Eisenhower personnaly pinned on the medals at his advanced command post.

Jack Belden Reaches Hospital in Oran

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Jack Belden, Time Magazine correspondent who was wounded while covering the American invasion of Italy, has arrived at a hospital in Oran, Army press relations officers announced today. They said that Mr. Belden had been shot in the leg with a high-powered rifle from a distance of about twenty-five yards. The bullet shattered the bone and he probably will be laid up at least six months.

Mr. Belden was reported to have been with an American reconnaissance party which engaged a truck load of Germans. Press officers said that after the engagement was thought to be over Mr. Belden stood up on a stone fence for a look around and a German hidden in a ditch shot him.

Anna Lee, Film Actress, In Hospital At Cairo

Cairo, Sept. 16 (AP)—Anna Lee, American film actress with the Jack Benny troupe, which entertained armed forces in this theater, remained behind in a hospital when Benny left the Middle East to continue his tour, it was disclosed today.

Miss Lee, suffering from sinus trouble, was expected to be hospitalized several days.

17 Italian Warships In Turkish Port, Report

Istanbul, Sept. 16 (AP) — Seventeen Italian warships, both "large and small," have entered the Turkish port of Marmaris, near the Island of Rhodes, according to the Istanbul newspaper Cumhuriyet, which has close contacts with the Germans.

Another newspaper reported that five additional ships were at a small port near by, but Allied naval sources had no confirmation.

Cumhuriyet said that so far eighty-three Italian officers, 250 soldiers and 208 civilians had taken refuge in Turkey from the Italian island of Rhodes.

No 'Real Second Front' Opened Yet, 'Pravda' Says

Soviet Paper Insists No Nazis Have Left Eastern Lines

MOSCOW, Sept. 16 (AP).—"Pravda," Communist party newspaper, said today that a "real second front" has not yet been opened in Europe.

The newspaper counted 212 German divisions on the Soviet front, and said none had been withdrawn to meet the invasion of Italy. On the contrary, it declared, some German troops have been moved to the eastern front from western Europe.

["Pravda's" report did not agree with recent reports from Stockholm that German forces were being shifted from the east.

"Pravda" Warns Bulgaria

MOSCOW, Sept. 16 (AP).—A warning to Bulgaria that "there is a limit to all patience" was published today by "Pravda," organ of the Communist party. It was contained in an article by Georgi Dimitrov, Bulgarian star witness in the Reichstag fire trial and former secretary general of the Communist International, which has been dissolved. This was the first time Dimitrov's name had appeared here since the dissolution of the Comintern.

Although the Soviet Union maintains diplomatic relations with Bulgaria, which is neutral in the eastern European war, the article pointed out that the country is at war against the United States and Britain and indirectly is helping Germany in the war against Russia.

Dimitrov said the death of King Boris III aroused international interest as to the future role of Bulgaria in the war, in view of its large territory and fresh army of 450,000 men.

New Soviet Rail Link Ready

Route in North Connects With Lower Severnaya Dvina River

MOSCOW, Sept. 16 (AP).—Completion of a new north Russian rail link with the lower reaches of the Severnaya Dvina River, which flows into the White Sea at Archangel, was announced today. The new line connects Vorkuta, Kotlas and Konosha. Kotlas, on the river, is the terminus of a rail link with Leningrad and Moscow.

Simultaneously the Russians announced that preparations were under way for the development of the Pechora coal basin in that region.

Decorations were awarded by the Supreme Soviet (parliament) to 500 engineers, managers and workers for completion of the railroad.

Moscow, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Free French Gen. Petite was received in the Kremlin today by Premier Joseph Stalin and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov.

Chinese Enter Seven Japanese-Held Towns

Chungking, Sept. 16 (AP)—Chinese forces in eastern Kwangtun province broke into seven Japanese-held towns in the Swatow and Chaoan areas during the night of September 11, the high command announced today.

The communique added that the Japanese has rushed reinforcements.

59 JAP FIGHTERS DOWNED BY ALLIES IN WEWAK BATTLE

McDANIEL

10 Grounded Bombers Destroyed During Raid on Enemy Air Base.

TROOPS GAIN AT LAE

Malahang Anchorage, Two Miles from Jungle Fortress Falls to MacArthur.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday, Sept. 17.—(AP) Allied bombers and fighters shot 59 Japanese fighters out of action and destroyed at least 10 grounded bombers during a great air battle over the big enemy base at Wewak, New Guinea, General Douglas MacArthur announced today.

At least 48 of the fighters were shot down. The remaining 11 were listed as probables.

Details of the smashing victory were contained in a communique which also told of the capture of Malahang anchorage near Malahang airdrome two miles east of Lae.

Japs Hold Two Fields

The Wewak attack followed the recent neutralization of Dagua and But airdromes there and was concentrated against the remaining two fields at Boram and Wewak.

"Sixty-six tons of bombs were concentrated in the target area in less than 15 minutes, scoring heavily on runways and dispersal areas which contained from 30 to 40 parked aircraft," the communique said.

10 Bombers Destroyed

"Direct hits destroyed 10 enemy bombers and started many fires among the others. Two large fuel dumps were set aflame.

"Some 60 to 70 fighters intercepted in an effort to halt our attack. For nearly an hour the enemy attacked viciously but failed to break our formations.

"In brilliant defense, our bombers shot down 39 of the enemy and probably destroyed 10 more. Our fighters accounted for nine definite and one probable.

"The total enemy loss thus aggregated 59 fighters shot out of action, in addition to heavy destruction on the ground.

"Our losses in proportion were very light, some of the bombers being damaged, but all reached base. One fighter is missing and others sustained damage.

Jap Air Strength Growing

"Continuous air reinforcements are being brought up by the enemy in an attempt to redress his recent disastrous losses. His air strength in this theater now is larger than ever."

These new enemy plane losses raised to well over 400 the number of Japanese aircraft destroyed in the Wewak area in the past six weeks. Most of the planes have been caught parked, wing to wing, on the airfields.

Progress at Lae Reported

At Lae, where American and Australian troops are converging from three sides, steady progress was reported.

A center of resistance at Edward's plantation on the Markham valley road west of Lae was overcome and heavy losses inflicted on the enemy. The plantation is less than five miles from Lae.

On the east, Australians captured the anchorage just south of the Malahang airdrome. Liberator bombers attacked enemy installations at Lae's Chinatown, silencing a five-gun anti-aircraft position.

There was no mention of the American and Australian force driving toward Lae from Salamaua. When last reported, these troops had covered more than half of the 18 miles between the two places.

South of Salamaua, six enemy aircraft attacked Morobe at night but caused no damage.

Buin Airdromes Raided

Strong forces of torpedo and dive bombers from Admiral William F. Halsey's south Pacific command carried out a series of successful daylight attacks on airdromes in the Buin area of the northern Solomons.

Night reconnaissance planes bombed and machine gunned three enemy cargo ships west of Buka passage in the northern Solomons. Another bomber scored a direct hit on a 1,500-ton freighter in a midday attack. The ship was listing and dead in the water.

Japanese planes made night raids on Allied positions at Munda, New Georgia, and at Lambu Lambu on Vella Lavella isle.

A night raid by Mitchells on Ambon, former Dutch naval base, resulted in large fires and explosions in barrack ares and many smaller fires in the wharf district and in the center of town.

Liberators, also operating at night, dropped 27 tons of explosives on Kendari, Celebes, causing fires and explosions among buildings and docks and in the airdrome dispersal areas.

A dozen or more Japanese bombers ineffectively raided the Darwin, Australia, area under cover of darkness.

ALLIES CLOSING LAE DEATH TRAP

CLEMENTS

MacArthur's Forces Press In on Japs From Two Sides.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Backing the Japanese into a death trap where they are forced to fight, Allied jungle troops have battered through pillboxes, trenches and machine-gun nests with the aid of artillery and planes to bring nearer the fall of the big air base of Lae, New Guinea.

East of Lae Australians are only two miles from the center of the coastal town and are about to overrun the prized Malahang airdrome. On the west, where the intricate defenses were breached after hours of fighting, another force in the Markham valley is only five miles away.

To the south, Americans and Australians who annihilated most of a Japanese garrison in capturing the airdrome and harbor town of Salamaua left behind patrols to hunt down the surviving stragglers and moved in force more than half way along the eighteen miles of jungle trail separating the two Huon Gulf bases.

Offer Little Opposition.

The Japanese, tricked by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's strategy into believing the main allied push would be made below Salamaua, have offered scarcely any opposition until now to pincer forces which landed from the sea above Lae September 4 and from transport planes behind Lae September 5.

Today's communique reported the capture in the Markham Valley of three defended plantations. The most bitter fighting was at Heath's. There the enemy had erected pillboxes, dug trenches, installed machine guns, artillery and anti-aircraft.

Both Heath's and Whittaker's plantations had been inclosed by wire entanglements. The Japanese waiting in clearings for the Australians, spearheading the drive, to emerge from dense jungles.

Allied artillery, firing 25-pound shells, pounded these defenses before the Allies attacked Tuesday. At Heath's, where enemy installations were softened up recently by a heavy air bombardment, the fighting lasted several hours.

Meanwhile, other Australians had slipped ahead into Vernon's plantation, hoping to catch the Japanese as they retreated. But the surviving Japanese, instead of taking the valley road to Lae, fled into jungle-clad hills, leaving behind more than 100 dead, many machine guns and much ammunition.

From east and west, Allied artillery is pouring shells into Lae. Japanese artillery is returning the fire. Enemy resistance is reported stiffening everywhere along the line of advance.

Col. Archie Roosevelt Hailed As Hero of Salamaua Battle

Son of T. R. Entered Harbor and Stood in Boat Locating Every Jap Gun That Fired —Then U. S. Artillery Wiped 'Em Out.

By VERN HAUGLAND.

SEP 17 1943

With Allied Troops at Salamaua, Sept. 14 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The daring observational tactics of Lieut.-Col. Archie Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, contributed directly to the fall of Salamaua, an enlisted man from an amphibious engineering unit disclosed today. Col. Roosevelt had been with the 162d Regiment, Forty-first Division, throughout its record-breaking seventy-six-day period of combat during which the Japanese were pushed from the Mubo and Nassau Bay area, out of Salamaua and almost out of Lae.

Thin but looking well, he is one of the most popular men in the regiment. His fellow officers say he is a stimulating conversationalist and dinner companion even over a tin of bully beef.

The story of his daring achievement came from Technician John Bertot of Coal City, Ill., who with Private Frank Zarcaynski of Bayonne, N. J., and Technician John Plante of Bennington, Vt., manned a small landing barge.

"Our troops occupied Salamaua on Saturday," Bertot said. "On the previous Wednesday, Col. Roosevelt, with two officers and three enlisted men, made a reconnaissance tour of Salamaua harbor. Under his orders we went close to the isthmus until the Jap guns started firing at us, then turned west across the harbor and approached to within a hundred yards of the shore where we could see the Japs running from bush to bush.

"Col. Roosevelt stood up with a map in his hand and every time a gun fired jotted down its position.

"They fired at us for half an hour, barely missing us several times. While Col. Roosevelt was standing there deliberately encouraging them to fire at us, I was crouching in the bottom of a boat praying for all I was worth. The Colonel noticed I was scared, and said: 'You're safe with me. I was wounded three times in the last war, and that's a lucky charm.'

"Col. Roosevelt's a good officer, but he's got too damn much guts. When we got back to the base, officers said it was the best information on gun positions yet obtained.

"The next day our artillery landed squarely on those guns and the Japs never fired them again. That was when their resistance ended—and Col. Roosevelt should get most of the credit for that final blow."

Get Nice Jap Uniforms.

With Japanese troops fleeing swiftly before them, Australian and American soldiers staged a footrace for Salamaua—and the Aussies apparently won by a nose. The first sizable units of both forces entered the ruined, deserted town early on Sunday, but the Australians claimed they had put in a patrol late the night before which spent the night on Salamaua Isthmus.

The Japanese left hastily but apparently in fairly good order. They left weapons and large stores of clothing and supplies in good condition. Many Americans of the 162d Regiment, Forty-first Division, who had fought their way across the mountains from Nassau Bay and Tambu Bay, and whose uniforms were in tatters, quickly changed to Japanese naval uniforms of white cotton found in great numbers in undamaged warehouses here. What's more, the Japanese clothing was new and perfectly laundered and pressed.

First Americans In.

The first American unit into Salamaua was a reconnaissance patrol led by First Lieut. Myron Folsom, Stanford University graduate from San Mateo, Cal. Lieut. Folsom and five enlisted men reached the Francisco River just south of Salamaua on September 10, found it undefended, and returned to report. They came back to the river the next day, swimming it at dawn.

The first Americans to make a boat landing an hour or two after sunrise were detachments led by Col. Archibald MacKechnie of Port Angeles, Wash., Col. Kenneth Sweaney, Col. Roosevelt and Col. Charles Fertiz of Astoria, Ore.

The enemy lost much equipment at Salamaua. The guns captured in good condition included a 105-millimeter howitzer, two six-inch naval guns, two 75-millimeter howitzers, two 70-millimeter mountain guns, many rifles, machine guns, ammunition and two 50-caliber anti-aircraft guns. Some other big guns were out of commission.

The retreating Jap forces on the heavily pounded isthmus tossed much equipment, such as radios and bicycles, into the bay, but the Australians recovered a big Chevrolet truck which the Japanese apparently got in the Phillippines, and a number of motorcycles and bicycles. Captured along with the naval and marine clothing stores were new woolen blankets and new chromium-plated water purification pumps.

New Yorkers on Hand.

There was much evidence that the Japanese had had women at Salamaua. Dugouts on the peninsula contained compacts, perfumes and jewelry. Down the bay five miles, at Dot Inlet, our forces found a number of women's dresses and fine dishes in a neatly swept house. Private Theodore Caliendo of 6211 Fort Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn, among the first troops to land, appropriated a bicycle for himself. Private Arnold Rutin of 201 Bay 23d street, Brooklyn, claimed a portable phonograph with half a dozen tinny-sounding Japanese records.

Corporal Robert Rodman of 393 18th street, Brooklyn, found five cheap tennis rackets made in Tokio. Corporal Fred Reynolds of 17 West Central Boulevard, Palisade Park, N. J., said he found marijuana cigarettes and opium pipes. He also came across a supply of saki which he declined to sample. First Lieut. Robert L. Weil of 2 East 86th street, New York, also was among the first souvenir hunters.

AUSTRALIANS WON RACE

Got to Goal Before Americans —Arms and Big Supply Stores Abandoned by Japanese

SEP 17 1943

WITH ALLIED FORCES AT SALAMAUA, New Guinea, Sept. 14 (Delayed) (AP)—With Japanese troops fleeing swiftly before them, Australian and American soldiers staged a footrace for Salamaua—and the Aussies apparently won by a nose.

The first sizable units of both forces entered the ruined, deserted town early Sunday, Sept. 12, but the Australians claimed they had put a patrol in late the night before that spent the night on Salamaua Isthmus.

The first American unit into Salamaua was a reconnaissance patrol led by First Lieut. Myron Folsom, Stanford University graduate from San Mateo, Calif. The first Americans to make a boat landing an hour or two after sunrise were detachments led by Col. Archibald MacKechnie, Port Angeles, Wash.; Col. Kenneth Sweaney, Lieut. Col. Archie Roosevelt and Col. Charles Fertiz, Astoria, Ore.

Supply Stores Abandoned

The Japanese apparently left hastily, but in fairly good order. They left weapons and large stores of clothing and supplies in good condition.

The mystery here was where did the Japanese go and when did they leave? Lieutenant Folsom said natives told him the Japanese started leaving in canoes and other small craft a week ago, some for Lae, others presumably for Finschhafen, to the north on the New Guinea coast.

Colonel Mackechnie said it apparently took four or five days for the enemy to get wind of Allied landings near Lae on Sept. 4. He added:

"They started to pull out Sept. 8 and 9. On the morning of the 10th, when we took some of their strongest positions, we found them completely unmanned. The Japs had left rifles and machine guns in emplacements and helmets on sticks.

"When we learned the Japs were in full retreat, we hurried through jungles across the mountains as fas as we could, but met no opposotion. But the Aussies also racing to Salamaua had easier, more level country to cross and they got a slight lead on us."

As at Nassau Bay, where the Japanese abandoned a well-equipped hospital and radio station, the enemy lost much equipment at Salamaua.

Town Shattered by Siege

We found this isthmus a shattered place, with only two or three shacks still standing and they were badly riddled. But already a bulldozer was fashioning a road between giant shell craters along the isthmus.

Lieut. Gen. Edmund Herring, Australian officer in charge of Allied ground forces in New Guinea, visited Salamaua today. He conferred with Australian and American commanders and said he was highly satisfied with the Salamaua and Lae actions.

The retreating Japanese forces tossed much equipment, such as radios and bicycles, into the bay, but the Australians recovered a big Chevrolet truck, which the Japanese apparently got in the Philippines, a number of motor cycles and bicycles.

Captured along with the naval and marine clothing stores were new woolen blankets and new chromium-plated water purification pumps.

TINY PLANE LANDS AT SALAMAUA AS JAPANESE RETREAT

Observation Pilot Brings First Allied Craft Onto Enemy Airstrip.

By VERN HAUGLAND

WITH ALLIED FORCES AT SALAMAUA, New Guinea, Sept. 14.—(Delayed)—(AP) The first pilot to land upon the Salamaua airstrip after its seizure by the Allies this week was Staff Sgt. Carroll Guy of Troy, Tenn., who carefully dodged a wrecked Japanese Zero plane in the center of the strip and gently lowered his grasshopper plane (Piper Cub) on the bomb crater-pocked runway.

Sergeant Guy reached the field only a few hours after the enemy relinquished it.

The sergeant's passenger, Lt. Col. Gerald Cochran of Portland, Ore., said he took keen delight in landing upon the strip shortly after dawn on Sept. 9 as the Australian and American troops approached it.

Then the first arrivals hurried to the beach to welcome the astonished Col. Archibald MacKechnie, commander of the 162nd regiment, and Lieut. Col. Archie Roosevelt, who were just bringing in their forces by boat.

Col. Cochran said the wrecked Zero was one that had made a forced landing on the airstrip three weeks ago after being hit by Allied anti-aircraft fire. American artillery fired upon the Zero after it landed to complete its destruction.

Col. Cochran said that pilots like Sgt. Guy, Staff Sgt. Edward E. Baker, Omaha, Neb., and Capt. Edward Leer of Massachusetts had been doing a remarkable job of reconnaissance and artillery observation.

Landing on rough beaches, they also had rescued 23 stranded American fliers since July 28.

"We've been shot at by anti-aircraft guns lots of times and one turned me upside down once," Sergeant Guy said. "I was attacked by three Zeros once and by one another time but outmaneuvered them.

"A Japanese float plane fired both its front and rear guns on Baker yesterday. Captain Leer once was forced down by nine Zeros but got his plane off without damage when they left."

ARGENTINE POLICY WILL BE CHANGED

Rupture in Diplomatic Relations with Germany Is Hinted.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 16.—(AP) Latest reports from Buenos Aires suggested tonight that important developments in Argentine foreign policy were impending—perhaps a rupture in diplomatic relations with Germany.

The reports could not be confirmed and should be treated with reserve in view of the conflicting forces within the government of President Pedro Ramirez.

An Argentine source said the government might be searching for a reason to justify such a rupture. It was believed that the new situation between Germany and Italy, growing out of hostile acts committed by German troops against the forces loyal to Marshal Pietro Badoglio and King Vittorio Emanuele might provide a ground for changing Argentine policy.

German behavior toward the Vatican was also watched closely in Catholic Argentina.

An exchange of letters between Secretary of State Hull and Vice Admiral Segundo Storni, Argentine foreign minister, set off a chain of events. Secretary Hull refused Storni's request for Lease-Lend aid and Storni resigned. The Argentine official, in his letter, mentioned that his government had not acted against the Axis since it had no cause to justify a rupture in relations.

If any change does occur in Argentina's foreign policy, it was reported, the appointment of a new foreign minister could be expected to precede it. Mentioned for the post were Jose Evaristo Uriburu, Argentina ambassador to London from 1927 to 1931, and Adrian Escobar, former ambassador to Madrid and Rio De Janeiro. Both were considered pro-democratic.

Nazis Fished For Bases

SALINAS, Ecuador — (AP) The Germans, Japanese and Italians tried to secure fishing bases on Ecuador's strategically located Galapagos islands before the United States established its naval base there, it has been revealed by Major Jose Jativa Zambrano.

Major Jativa, former governor of the islands, said that on several occasions he was offered large sums by Axis agents for permission to establish accommodations for fishermen on some of the unpopulated islands. He said the Germans approached him as early at 1933 and that Axis representatives continued to work until shortly before the Ecuadorian government leased the Galapagos and Salinas base sites to the United States.

RATE REDUCTION RESCINDED

LA PLATA, Argentina, Sept. 16.—(AP) The national interventor today suspended the Sept. 3 decree which ordered a 25 per cent reduction in electric rates charged by American and Foreign Power company subsidiaries and other utilities in the Buenos Aires province.

The interventor said an investigation of rate structures must precede any reduction of rates.

ColdWaveDamagesCoffeeCrop

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 16 (AP).—Dispatches from Sao Paulo reported damage to coffee crops today as a severe cold wave, accompanied by snow that reached a depth of more than a foot in some places, gripped that area. Temperatures as low as 26 degree Fahrenheit were reported in the states of Sao Paulo, Rio Grande do Sul and Parana.

Guatemala Total $2,000,000

GUATEMALA CITY, Sept. 16 (AP).—The Guatemalan government has purchased $1,000,000 in United States war bonds and the Central Bank of Guatemala has bought $1,000,000 more to aid in the war effort of the sister republic, it was announced tonight.

Mexico City, Sept. 16 (AP)—Thousands of Mexican troops, including tank units, marched today in an Independence Day parade which Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Chief of Staff, said was a "splendid showing" of armed force.

General Marshall, a guest of the Government for the celebration, reviewed the parade from the central balcony of the Presidential Palace beside President Avila Camacho and Gen. Manuel Benitez, special Ambassador of Cuba for the festivity.

"I was greatly impressed by the parade, especially by the splendid marching of the conscrips with only a few months' training," General Marshall said.

British Attack a German Convoy

British motor torpedo boats repeatedly attacked a German convoy in the waters off Norway's west coast early Wednesday, a German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press in New York said yesterday. The broadcast said the speedboats were driven off in a smoke screen by violent fire from the escort.

SWITZERLAND CIRCLED, FEARS NAZI INVASION

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP) The Swiss Schwarzenburg radio said today that German "encirclement" as a result of the Nazis' occupation of Italy had cut Switzerland off from all commerce with the outside world and added that occupation by Axis forces must be foreseen as a possibility.

The broadcast, recorded by the Office of War Information, said the little Alpine country "has summoned a considerable number of troops to defend herself. It is reasonable to suppose that such a state of things can not last forever if she forestalls the plans of the Axis. But, as a democracy, she feels that without the consent of the people, occupation can only be temporary."

BBC To Give Yanks World Series News

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Company announced tonight that arrangements had been completed for it to broadcast to American soldiers, sailors and marines in every theater of war the highlights of each World Series baseball game just a few minutes after its completion.

A summary of each game, the highlights of the play, and interviews with some of the players are planned for each program, the company said.

NAVY BATTLE REPORTED IN SOLOMONS BY JAPS

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP) The Tokyo radio said tonight that an air and sea battle was in progress in the waters between New Guinea and Kolombangara island in the Solomons.

The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said that "the Imperial command reports that the naval forces of Japan are gradually getting the upper hand against superior anti-Axis forces."

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The Nazi effort to halt or long delay Allied invasion of the Italian mainland via the Salerno bridgehead appears to have failed.

A hasty retreat of German forces confronting Lt. Gen. Mark Clark's 5th army on the south and central sectors is strongly indicated since the Nazis are threatened by the western spearhead of the British 8th army, surging up the coastal road from Cape Scalea.

With his bridgehead secure, General Clark shifted at once from the defensive to the offensive yesterday in the dangerous center section of his line south of Mount Eboli. As was to be expected, his attack was aimed up the level lands between the Sele and Calore rivers, suitable for tank action. That demonstrates that he has been heavily reinforced not only with men, but with heavy tanks and mobile guns to outmatch the Nazi armor hurled against his original landing forces.

A forward lunge of a few miles up the Sele river valley by the 5th army would place it astride primary road and rail routes which are vitally needed by Nazi forces in the big coastal hump south of the lower bridgehead anchor at Agropoli. It would also turn the inshore flank of Mount Eboli, the key to the tactical situation on Clark's central front, and free his whole 30-mile bridgehead position for further advances north and east.

General Clark said yesterday that "in a matter of hours" the presence of the British 8th army would be felt by the enemy. This indicates that its advance patrol might already have reached Lagonergro, within a day's march of a possible junction with the 5th army column pushing up the Sele valley

It is the danger of being trapped between converging 5th and 8th army columns that confronts the Nazi commander. Having failed to smash or disrupt the Salerno bridgehead, he is gravely threatened with loss of the whole left wing of his force deployed about the Salerno-Agrocoli bridgehead unless he pulls it back east and north in time.

In retrospect, the desperate Nazi attempt to halt the 5th army incursion or pin it to its beach landings begins to look more like delaying action than a real effort to throw the Anglo-American forces back into the sea.

Not more than five Nazi divisions have been identified as engaged. The implication is that they were assigned to fight a delaying rear-guard battle while a main Nazi defense line across the Italian peninsula farther north was being organized and manned and while scattered Nazi troops retreating before the British in the south made good their escape.

Just where that potential Nazi first defense line may be in Italy, aside from the fact that it ought to lie well south of Rome to secure the good Italian airfields in the Rome area, is a matter of conjecture. The narrowest portion of the Italian boot is above Naples. That must be important to the Germans in view of their urgent necessity to conserve manpower.

Any Nazi defense front in Italy south of the Po, however, would be vulnerable from the air. From bases in southern Italy and from the island of Corsica, available for Allied occupation at any moment, there is no point in northern Italy that would not be under close-range air bombardment. That also must enter into Nazi defense dispositions.

STIMSON SEES HARD STRUGGLE

Says Chances of Success Justified Salerno Risk.

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The position of Allied troops in the battle of Salerno is serious, Secretary of War Stimson said today, but added that the Allied commanders were confident.

Describing the struggle south of Naples as one of the most critical battles of the Mediterranean campaign, Mr. Stimson said that reinforcements and additional supplies were reaching the Allied forces, now reported to have consolidated their beach head and to be making progress.

"There was never any thought of evacuation," the Secretary declared emphatically.

So far, he said, the forces on both sides have been about evenly matched numerically. The Germans have the advantage of interior communication lines, enabling them to bring up reinforcements and supplies more quickly than the Allies, and also have probably a preponderance of tanks and heavy equipment, he said.

On the other hand the American and British forces under Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark have definite air superiority, though they are somewhat handicapped because the planes have to fly a considerable distance. This is a distinct asset in their ability to employ naval gunfire from Allied warships against enemy positions in the hills around the beach head, Mr. Stimson said.

Expected Heavy Opposition.

The heavy opposition encountered in the Salerno area was expected, he asserted, and constituted a risk undertaken deliberately because the prospects of success warranted it.

Farther to the south, he said, the British and Canadian troops under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery have seized virtually all of southern Italy and are advancing northward at an extraordinary rate which may shortly bring them into position to influence the battle at Salerno.

"We have always expected a hard fight for the northern portion of Italy, and we are likely to get it," Mr. Stimson said.

Hs described the situation in this way:

Allied losses at Salerno have been heavy, but so have the enemy's. Under the impetus of the initial landings, Gen. Clark's troops pushed several miles inland against stiff opposition along a beachhead about 25 miles long. After reeling back from the first shock, the Germans regrouped their forces and counter-attacked, and for a time some of the Allied troops were pushed back.

The heaviest German attacks appear to have been made against the British portion of the line, but at least one American division has met a strong enemy thrust.

Discussing other aspects of the war, Mr. Stimson reported:

Allies Progress Elsewhere.

The surrender of the Italian fleet makes it possible for the Allies to reduce their naval strength in the Mediterranean.

Air operations out of England in the past week have been less spectacular than usual, but several important attacks have been carried out.

On the Russian front, from the Gulf of Finland to the Sea of Azov the Red Army is steadily driving the Germans westward. There are indications that the Germans may try to establish a defense line in Russia to permit them to withdraw troops to western Europe to meet the Allied invasion threats.

In the south and southwest Pacific, the news continues to be good, with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces, having taken Salamaua, now advancing toward Lae after having taken Salamaua. Several thousand Japanese are now surrounded at Lae and their destruction is in prospect.

In Burma, China and the North Pacific, air raids continue against the enemy. The one on the Japanese base in the Kurile Islands sank or damaged several enemy ships, and is considered a success although American losses were relatively heavy.

Germans and must realize that once Germany is liquidated the Allies can turn their full attention to the Pacific. And the Germans, this group argues, undoubtedly are pressing the Japanese for a second front against the Russians.

U. S. Flyers Down 358 Japs.

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—American flyers shot down 358 Japanese planes in thirty-seven days and virtually eliminated enemy air opposition prior to the final capture of Munda air field in the Solomons on August 7, the Navy reported today. The Japanese losses included 259 fighter planes, sixty twin-engined bomb-

Jap and Red Clash Reported

Belief in Washington Is That Germany Is Pressing Tokio for Second Front.

SEP 16 1943

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Speculation about a Japanese attack on Soviet Russia revived here today with unconfirmed reports from Chungking that a border clash—the first reported in some time—has occurred along the Mongolian frontier.

The Chungking report said that the incident occurred north of Pailingmiao, a Japanese-controlled Inner Mongolian Desert settlement below the border of Outer Mongolio, which is an autonimous republic dominated by Soviet Russia.

Pailingmiao is a strategic base position for the Japanese if they should be planning a lightning drive across the Gobi desert through Ulan Bator, the Outer Mongolian capital, to cut the trans-Siberian line in the vicinity of Lake Baikal.

For the past several years this region of contact between the Japanese and Soviets has been relatively quiet, while incidents occurred frequently along other sections of the 3,000-mile-long frontier.

Conjecture among experts on Asiatic affairs here is by no means unanimous.

One group holds that the Japanese will not attack, having enough on their hands already with the growing power of the Allies in the Pacific and East Asia. Another contends that while the Japanese well may be concerned about this, they are nevertheless in this war with the ers, twenty-three dive bombers and sixteen float planes. These, the Navy said, accounted for all except twenty or thirty of the enemy planes in the Solomons area.

The destruction was wrought by Army, Navy and Marine flyers and the Navy reported that Navy and Marine Corps planes made up about two-thirds of the American forces.

The American losses were seventy-one fighters and twenty-two bombers.

The heaviest blow was struck in the first two days of the action when 125 Japanese planes were knocked out of the skies, compared with a loss of twenty-five American craft. "So crippling was this first blow to the Japanese forces," the Navy reported, "that they subsequently avoided large-scale attacks on American formations and attempted only harassing actions."

HULL IS CONFIDENT CHINA WILL STAND

State Secretary Says More

Weapons Will Go to Oriental Ally.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(AP) Secretary of State Cordell Hull tonight expressed confidence that as more weapons become available to China, the Japanese will be swept from Chinese soil.

In a statement commemorating the anniversary of the Mukden incident of September 18, 1931, Mr. Hull said that in many quarters this date was regarded as the beginning of the present life and death struggle throughout the world.

"China's struggle has been and is our struggle—the struggle of the peace-seeking nations against the forces of aggression."

Mr. Hull recounted how the Japanese occupied Manchuria and attacked Shanghai. Despite the Chinese desire to avoid a general conflict the Japanese refused a peaceful settlement and in July, 1937 renewed their attack upon China by engaging Chinese troops near Marco Polo bridge west of Peiping.

Following that attack Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek declared that if the limit of endurance had been reached "we can not do otherwise than resist."

The Chinese people, Mr. Hull said, have stood staunchly behind their armies, and under circumstances of great economic privation and physical hardship, have continued bravely to oppose the enemy.

"Large Japanese armies have been engaged and contained in north, central and south China, and their casualties and expenditures of materials have been great.

"They have won battles and they have lost battles but they have since 1938 made in China no substantial net gains. x x x

"To their repeated offers of a compromise peace, the Chinese have consistently refused to listen.

"Long having refused, against odds to be conquered, China has made, is making, and will continue to make important contribution toward the common cause of victory over aggression and of establishing conditions of peace, freedom and security through cooperative association and action on the part of the United Nations and united peoples," Mr. Hull concluded.

Free Yugoslavia Sends Messages To New York

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—A Free Yugoslavia radio station has been sending dispatches to Press Wireless, Inc., of New York, it was disclosed today with the filing of tariff schedules with the Federal Communications Commission.

Press wireless filed schedules covering delivery of dispatches to New York, Washington and Los Angeles. The communication apparently is only one way as no schedules were filed for transmissions to Yugoslavia.

After filing of the schedules, the State Department confirmed that the Yugoslav station is operated by forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovich.

SHOES TO BE PURCHASED FOR FOREIGN RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP) The Treasury's procurement division, asserting it needs "large quantities" of shoes to meet demands of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, announced today it would purchase slow-moving stocks in lots of any quantity.

All must be rationed types and within specified size ranges, the announcement said, adding that dealers "should keep in mind that the prices to be asked must be in accord with relief standards."

The department said it would prefer to buy from current inventories in order to lessen the drain on future production needed by American civilians.

WAC DATES IN ALGERIA

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Even in Algeria the Wacs never lack for dates.

So reports Sergt. Louise Warren, of 1095 Summit avenue, Jersey City, just returned from duty at Allied Headquarters in North Africa. She commented that sometimes the rush of soldiers "gets a little overpowering, and you're glad to have a quiet evening at home."

Lodged in an ancient convent, the Wacs found the absence of plumbing the principal hardship.

A former legal stenographer who speaks French, her first job was in the headquarters liaison section dealing with the French officials.

HELMETS IN PLUMBING

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—In Algeria helmets are a major part of military plumbing, says Technical Sergt. Louise Warren of 1095 Summit avenue, Jersey City, N. J., just back from duty at Allied headquarteres in North Africa.

It was the helmet, she said, that was used as a pail to carry water for washing, and the helmet was carried, too, to the barracks for taking baths. Helmets were a major part of the plumbing until "some of the boys were good enough" to build showers for the Wacs.

In Africa she was secretary to Major-Gen. E. S. Hughes, deputy theater commander, after having first been in the headquarters liaison section dealing with French officials.

RENEGOTIATION ACT HELD UN-AMERICAN

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The United States Chamber of Commerce told the House Ways and Means Committee today that the renegotiation law for recapture of excess profits in war contracts is dangerous and un-American and cannot be justified.

E. C. Alvord, head of the Chamber's Federal Finance Committee, testified: "The power of taxation is the only acceptable power granted to the Congress by which profits in the possession of a citizen can be taken for the use of his Government.

"If the Congress determines that our existing tax laws are inadequate to prevent in every case the retention of excessive profits," he said, "then the tax laws should be amended.

"If appropriate amendments to existing tax laws are adopted, they should become effective as of April 28, 1942; and every war contractor or sub-contractor should have the option to pay the additional taxes thus imposed upon his 1942 profits or to remain subject to renegotiation."

Prisoners Of War Help Relieve Lack Of Labor

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Many Axis prisoners in this country are being used to relieve manpower shortages, the War Department reported today, announcing that 110,000 of the approximately 141,000 captives are at work on farms and elsewhere.

The department said the war prisoners have helped relieve labor shortages in many States.

All prisoners, except officers, may be required to work on projects having no direct relation to war operations under the terms of the Geneva convention. They receive 80 cents a day, the money being credited to them.

All employers of war prisoners other than the army itself pay the United States the same amount of money for any job as they would pay free labor. This money is not received by the prisoners but is turned over to the Treasury.

War Expenditures Put At $124,000,000,000

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The United States has spent $124,000,000,000 for war purposes since the start of the defense program July 1, 1940, the War Production Board reported today. The total includes expenditures to September 1.

Expenditures in August were $7,529,000,000, a twelve per cent. increase over July, but two per cent. under the outlay in the peak months of June.

WPB said the daily rate of expenditure for war purposes in August was $289,600,000, based on the twenty-six days in the month on which checks were cleared by the Treasury. The figures cover checks cleared by the Treasury and payable from war appropriations, plus net outlays of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries.

Soldiers Prefer Money Orders

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Send servicemen abroad postoffice money orders rather than checks drawn on banks in the United States, the American Red Cross advised today, because soldiers overseas cannot cash the checks.

MESSAGE AWAITED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(AP) Congress expects a special message from President Roosevel tomorrow on the "progress of the war." Senator Barkley (D., Ky.), majority leader of the Senate, has said the message will contain no legislative recommendations.

months of this year, and there are only about 775,000 non-fathers available for the draft during that period, Major-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey told Congress today.

The deficiency of 446,000, Gen. Hershey testified before the Senate Military Committe, apparently must be met from the pool of 5,586,000 married men of military age with children

The chief of selective service appeared before the committee to give these statistics after high

Army and Navy officials had voiced a stern "no" in response to the question whether Congress should act to postpone or cancel the planned induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers beginning October 1.

Gen. Hershey stated that the October 1 draft order was issued because "we no longer had the assurance in the mar power pool there remained sufficient men to meet our calls" for September, October, November and December, without taking fathers.

The 3,412,000 men in class 4-F are being "constantly reworked," he told the committe, but he said the possibility of recovering many physically fit men from this category was slight unless the Army and Navy lowered present physical standards.

Neither did he believe, he said, that any great number could be obtained from the 1,715,000 deferred farmers or the 1,508,000 deferred because of their industrial occupations, without doing "great damage" to the war effort.

Gen. Hershey Tells Senators Deficiency in Non-fathers Is Now 446,000.

ough consideration to occupational departments for those making a substantial contribution to the war effort.

During the hearing Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.), author of a bill to postpone induction of pre-Parl Harbor fathers until after January 1, called for a congressional investigation of what he said was "wastage" of labor in West Coast and other war industries. He was joined in this request by Senator Holman (R.-Ore.), who told the committee that one report by an investigator for the Truman war investigating committee had "been buried."

Senator Holman stated that Senator Truman (D.-Mo.), chairman of the latter committee, sent an investigator to a Pacific Coast plant after he told him of a timekeeper's complaint that men were clocking in every morning and being paid without performing any service.

"When the timekeeper reported to the management, he told me he was threatened with dismissal because he would not falsify records," Senator Holman said.

"A Mr. Robinson made an investigation for Senator Truman and later Senator Truman told me the situation was 'worse than you reported it to be.' That report is buried.

"I want those facts to be brought before this committee," Gen. Hershey told Senator Wheeler there were 1,183,000 men in Class 2-B, in which are placed men in the 18-38 age group working for shipyards, airplane factories and other war plants, and promised to break down this group into bachelors, childless married men and fathers.

"This is a class which ought to be checked over thoroughly," Senator Wheeler told Chairman Reynolds. "The Government gets rooked by the high costs and at the same time they are going to take fathers and leave unessential men on the pay rolls." He said he went through some West Coast air plants two years ago and saw "young men falling all over each other," and that the manager of one told him the average age of his employees was 24.

Gen. Hershey said the selective service was pushing the withdrawal of young men as rapidly as possible, adding "we have tried to get an orderly withdrawal," notwithstanding administrative difficulties.

Points to Other Difficulties.

"You are going to run up against a lot more difficulties when you start taking fathers in Portland and San Francisco while single men are in those factories," Senator Wheeler commented.

Gen. Hershey said his service had control over not more than 5 per cent of the 1,183,000 in class B since as an operational agency it had to follow War Manpower Commission regulations on deferments.

The Navy needs to draft 533,000 men to meet its man-power requirements during the last four months of this year, Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel, told the committee.

This means that selective service will be called on to furnish upward of a million men by December 31, since Army spokesmen testified yesterday that inductions will vary from 145,000 to 175,000 a month for the rest of 1943 to build up an army of 7,700,000 men.

Joining these high War Department officials in opposing proposed legislation to postpone or cancel plans for drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers after October 1, Admiral Jacobs disclosed that on August 1 the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard had 2,353,209 male officers and men on active duty, plus 39,868 female personnel.

He placed the requirements on December 31, 1943, at 2,935,284 males and 74,297 females, for a total of 3,009,581, and listed the following needs for male personnel from September through December:

September 138,618, October 147,196, November 125,274 and December 121,274, or a total of 532,362.

"If the Navy is to be expected to carry out its mission in this effort, and if ships and aircraft now under construction are to be manned, it is necessary that these personnel be procured according to schedule," Admiral Jacobs said.

He reported that on Aug. 1, this year, 27 per cent of the Navy personnel was married (116,480 officers and 347,265 enlisted men) and of that group, 35 per cent were fathers (40,768 officers and 120,848 enlisted men.)

As to 17-year-olds.

In response to a question he stated that a lowering of the draft age from 18 to 17 would "increase the percentage of rejections considerably."

Chairman Reynolds tossed this new angle into the second day of the hearings. Asserting that "some have advocated" the induction of youths of 17 in preference to taking pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, he said his question was intended solely to obtain Admiral Jacobs's views.

would like to have Admiral Jacobs' views.

Admiral Jacobs replied that the percentage of rejections among selectees would increase considerably if the draft age were lowered. While the Navy takes some 17-year-old volunteers, he said, it rejects many because of their immaturity.

Receive Service Statistics

From Admiral Jacobs and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, the Senate committee received statistics to back up earlier testimony of Army and Navy officials that fathers must be drafted if the armed services are to reach manpower goals.

Gen. Hershey testified that the Army and Navy have asked for 1,221,000 more men during the last four months of this year. He said there are only about 775,000 non-fathers available for the draft, leaving a deficiency of 446,000 which must be met by inducting men with children.

Admiral Jacobs said the Navy, Marine corps and Coast Guard had 2,343,209 male officers and men on active duty Aug. 1 and would need 532,362 additional by Jan. 1.

"If the Navy is to be expected to carry out its mission in this effort, and if ships and aircraft now under construction are to be manned, it is necessary that these personnel be procured according to schedule," he added.

Senator Wheeler asked Gen. Hershey how many men were in class 2B — the draft classification for men of military age who work in shipyards, aircraft factories and other war plants.

Told there were 1,183,000, Senator Wheeler said "this is a class which ought to be checked over thoroughly." He saw young men "falling all over each other," he added, when he visited west coast airplane factories two years ago.

Gen. Hershey said Selective Service is seeking the withdrawal of deferment for young men, but that it has to be done in an orderly way as replacements became available on essential war work.

"We have tried," he said "to take single men first, single men with collateral dependents second, married men without children third, and fathers last."

Delay in Draft of Fathers Gains Support in Senate

SEP 17 1943

Wheeler Suggests Investigation of 'Labor Hoarding' in War Plants.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (AP) A proposal that the general draft of fathers be deferred pending a congressional investigation of "labor hoarding" by war plants was advanced with bi-partisan backing today at hearings on the Wheeler bill.

Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.), sponsor of the bill to forbid induction of fathers, suggested it and promptly got support from Senator Holman (R.-Ore.). Both contended that workmen, including single men eligible for the draft, are being employed in unnecessary numbers by some war plants. Senator Holman said a report on the subject by an investigator for the Senate's Truman committee had "been buried."

Chairman Truman (D.-Mo.) of the Special War Investigating committee denied, however, that the report had been pigeon-holed.

Sent Investigator to Shipyard

"We sent an investigator to an Oregon shipyard about which he (Holman) had complained," Senator Truman told reporters. "I let Senator Holman see the investigator's report which is part of an overall investigation into labor and management in war construction.

"The committee has not completed its investigation."

The question of drafting 17-year-olds, rather than fathers, also was raised but quickly passed over. Chairman Reynolds (D.-N. C.) of the Senate Military committee brought it up when Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, naval personnel chief, was in the witness chair. Senator Reynolds said he was not advocating this step himself, but that some persons had and he

REPORT CONTINUES LEHMAN MAY QUIT

Washington, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Speculation if former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York would remain long as director of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations continued today with both Mr. Lehman's office and the State Department declining comment on published reports of friction between them. When Mr. Lehman was named director of the OFRRO last year, it was widely assumed that he would wield an authority similar to Herbert Hoover's in the last war and would operate more or less independently as administrator of all American relief operations during and perhaps after war.

Recently, however, President Roosevelt authorized Secretary of State Hull to co-ordinate and bring under State Department control all civilian agencies of the Government whose activities deal with foreign relations. This provoked speculation if the former Governor would consent to remain as head of the OFRRO under such an arrangement.

Later, with the invasion of Sicily by Allied troops, it developed that relief in liberated areas was to be largely an Army affair under the control of the AMG (Allied Military Government) at least for some time after Allied occupation. This seemed further to restrict Mr. Lehman's sphere of activity and gave rise to new speculation.

FULBRIGHT'S BILL RUNS INTO A SNAG

Action May Be Blocked Unless Committee Permits Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP) Bi-partisan plans to rush the Fulbright resolution for post-war international collaboration through the House Monday ran into a snag today at a private pow-wow of the House minority's high command.

The executive session was told, those attending it said, that a plan of strategy has been drafted to block House action, at least temporarily, unless the Foreign Affairs committee agrees to open the resolution to amendments from the floor.

Rep. Cole (R-NY) wants to tack on a rider to the resolution to inform the world that no executive secret agreement made between this country and other nations will be binding the United States unless made under authority granted by Congress.

He said a "good many will object, including myself" to the no-amendment procedure prescribed by the Foreign Affairs committee.

"And," he added, "I wouldn't think the majority would attempt to force the resolution through when harmony is so important to it."

Meanwhile, a caucus of Republican senators gave informal approval today to their party's Mackinac island, Mich., statement of domestic and foreign policy in what was described by Minority Leader McNary (Ore) as an "entirely harmonious session."

While Senator McNary said he considered that the group had given a general indorsement of the Mackinac declarations, Senator Ball (R-Minn) said he looked upon the procedure as litle more than a report of what had been accomplished by the party's Post-War Advisory Committee of 49.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) told reporters he was satisfied the party had "done a good job" in its Mackinac statement favoring "responsible participation" by the United States in a cooperative organization of foreign nations to prevent future aggression.

F. D. R., M'Arthur Stick Chins Out, Rayburn Notes

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Both President Roosevelt and Gen. Douglas MacArthur seem to stick their chins out, House Speaker Rayburn said today, but he hastened to explain he was referring to busts of the men.

Rayburn's comment came during his press conference when a reporter noticed statues of the two leaders on the mantel back of the Speaker's desk.

Asked if there was any significance in his having the two busts together, Rayburn said no, except that both men are doing a fine job in their respective fields.

WAR INDUSTRIES DEMAND RESERVES FOR POST-WAR ERA

Aircraft Firms Fear Doom if Government Takes Away Profits.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (AP) Some of the nation's top flight airplane, submarine and machine tool manufacturers warned today they would be wiped out when peace comes unless permitted to set aside profits for the future.

"You can't be master of the air with a bankrupt industry," Ralph S. Damon, vice-president of American Airlines, told the House Ways and Means committee at hearings on the war contract renegotiation act. He referred to the race for commercial air supremacy expected after the war.

Sees Doom of Aviation

"By present tax and renegotiation policies we are legislating the aircraft industry out of existence," said Mr. Damon, former president of Republic Aviation corporation which produces the Thunderbolt.

Mr. Damon recommended more than a dozen changes in the renegotiation act by which the five major government agencies purchasing for war recapture profits by re-writing contracts. His two principal recommendations, however, were that Congress eliminate the recapture provisions of the present statute and allow reserves for the post-war era.

Similarly, L. Y. Spear, president of Electric Boat company, New London, Conn., manufacturer of submarines and the famous P-T boat, argued that the government would find itself in trouble in the event of another war unless it made provision now for firms like his to continue in business when the nation stops buying war ships.

His company would have no other business to fall back on, Mr. Spear warned, and needed reserves from its present profits with which to tide it over the lean years following cessation of hostilities.

Mr. Spear said he did not advocate repeal of the renegotiation act, as E. C. Alvord, spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce, had done before him.

"This is the only way I know to cut down excessive profits," which he favored, Mr. Spear said.

Reports on Profits

Mr. Spear said his company made approximately $17,000,000 profit in 1942 before taxes and before renegotiation. By re-writing the contract, the Navy re-captured about $10,000,000 of this, leaving a profit after taxes of $2,940,341, Mr. Spear said.

Mr. Damon, who represented Aviation corporation, Bell Aircraft, Brewster Aeronautical, Curtiss-Wright, Fairchild Engine, Glenn Martin, and Republic Aviation corporations, testified that despite the enormous production, Harvard business school figures showed the aviation industry was making a profit of 2.7 per cent of its sales.

Thorvald S. Ross, president of the Rivett Lathe & Grinder Co., Boston, said the war-essential machine tool business faced an immediate death with the end of the war unless provision were made to permit reserves.

Admitting his company's profits of 8.9 per cent in 1942 before renegotiation might appear high, Mr. Rogs said actually the firm was $40,000 worse off at the end of the year than at the beginning.

Ship to Bear Morrow's Name

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP).—The merchant vessel Dwight W. Morrow, named in honor of the late lawyer, banker, diplomat and Senator from New Jersey, will be launched Sunday from the St. Johns River Ship Building Company ways at Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Morrow was elected Senator in 1930 and died in 1931. Previously, he had served as ambassador to Mexico and as a United States delegate to the London naval arms limitation conference in 1930.

LOAN DRIVE PASSES HALF-WAY MARK, HARD WORK AHEAD

National Total Is $7,679,000,000—Radio to Aid in Campaign.

SEP 17 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (AP) The $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan passed the half way mark tonight with an additional $2,620,000,000 in bond sales sending the total to $7,679,000,000.

National Director Ted Gamble, however, termed the first half "the easiest part of the task," and added that "from now on it will mean a beating of the bushes to reach the tremendous goal of $15,000,000,000."

"We can point with pride to what we have already accomplished, but it is not as significant in terms of performance as in dollar volume," Mr. Gamble declared.

Meanwhile, the Treasury announced plans for special radio emphasis on the drive, with each of the four major networks devoting an entire day's program to the sale of war bonds.

The department also said that Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential nominee, would make his debut as a radio actor Sunday night in a drama "I Pledge America" to be heard at 6:30 p.m. over the Blue network.

The Mutual broadcasting system will inaugurate the full-day broadcast series Saturday, turning over all time from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. to the Third War Loan. The Blue network will act similarly for all Sunday programs from 8 a.m. until 1 a.m. Monday will be similarly devoted to bond sales.

The Columbia Broadcasting system will use the same hours Tuesday and the National Broadcasting company will devote Sunday, September 26, to bond sales. In addition, independent stations have agreed to make Thursday, September 23, their war bond day.

Radio, stage and screen stars will appear on the special programs, and each station will install additional telephone lines to permit listeners to call in and buy bonds from the performers.

Rep. Curley Indicted by Jury In Contract Broker Racket

Former NLRB Member Also Among Six Held on Mail Fraud Charge.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP) Rep, James M. Curley, former Democratic mayor of Boston and governor of Massachusetts, and Donald Wakefield Smith, onetime member of the National Labor Relations board, were indicted today on charges of mail fraud in operating what the Justice department called a "war contracts brokerage racket."

The department said the indictment, returned by a Federal grand jury here, accuses them and four others of having "falsely and fraudulently represented themselves as being an experienced and competent firm of consulting engineers with special facilities and qualifications for securing war contracts from the government" on a fee basis.

21 Counts in Indictments

There are 21 counts in the indictment and the maximum possible penalties upon conviction are 102 years in prison and $30,000 in fines.

Rep. Curley, who will be 69 in November, is a member of the Democratic National committee and has been prominent in political wars since 1900. Elected to two terms in Congress, he later served three terms as mayor of Boston and was governor in 1935-37. He was elected to the House last November after a four-year absence from political office.

He is known for his oratory, aggressive campaigning and ability in political organization.

Named in the indictment with Rep. Curley and Smith are these others, who the department said were active with them in Engineers' Group, Inc.:

Marshall J. Fitzgerald of Chicago, secretary and director.

Defendant in Prison

James G. Fuller, formerly of Washington but now serving a five-year penitentiary term for sending fraudulent securities through the mails, executive vice president and director.

James Barton Underwood, formerly of Washington and now said to be on leave in this country from his post as group captain in the Greek airforce at Cairo, Egypt, president and director for the first two months of 1942.

Bertram Hall, of Dallas, Texas, vice president and director.

The justice department said the firm was organized about June, 1941, and that Rep. Curley served as president until Dec. 29, 1941. It listed Smith, a Pittsburgh and Washington lawyer, as treasurer, vice president, assistant secretary and director.

Evidence in the case was assembled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation after an "intensive investigation extending over a period of several months," the department said.

Had No Experience

It quoted the indictment as charging that the defendants had little or no experience of the sort claimed, and that they "could not and did not produce any of the services for which they were paid." Acceptance or retainer fees of as much as $9,000 is charged, along with entrance into contracts calling for commissions of as much as eight per cent on all war contracts secured, it added.

Each of defendants, the department continued, are said in the indictment to have taken "an active part in the operations x x x and large sums were spent on entertainment, travel and hotel bills for the purpose of establishing an impressive 'front'."

The first 20 counts deal with charges of individual mailings of letters and brochures "in furtherance of the scheme to defraud" and the 21st charges a conspiracy "to commit the frauds."

Among specific statements listed by the department as having been made to clients and prospective clients "with the knowledge that they were false and fraudulent.":

"That the members of Engineers' Group, Inc., had personally planned and supervised over $100,000,000 worth of construction during the past 20 years, whereas they had supervised little if any construction work at any time;

SEP 17 1943

"That the firm was in a position to secure bank credit of as much as $1,000,000 for working capital, whereas it had no assets whatever and no banking facilities which would enable it to borrow any substantial sum of money;

"That Engineers' Group, Inc., held FHA construction awards totaling $4,000,000 in Rhode Island, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, whereas it had received no construction awards of any kind;

"That members of Engineers' Group, Inc., had influence with the FHA and had been designated its agents in the Washington area, whereas it had no such influence and had not been designated by FHA in any official capacity whatever."

GREAT EXPANSION OF AIRLINES ASKED BY RICKENBACKER

Flier Urges Industry to Stake All Earnings on Post-War Program.

NEW YORK, Spt. 16—(AP) American industry was urged by Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker today to stake all the cash it can raise on a post-war program which he said would be "a living monument to the merit and soundness of the American way of life."

The World war I ace, testifying before the Civil Aeronautics board, said that Eastern Airlines, of which he is president and general manager, would be willing to "declare a moratorium on earnings or dividends for a period of three years after the war is over, by investing not only our present cash reserve, but all the millions we can borrow, in a sound and sane program." Such a program he recommended to "all American industry."

Seven File Applications

Speaking on the applications of seven air lines for permission to fly the commercial New York-Boston route, Capt. Rickenbacker declared that "what we do now must not be with a grasshopper perspective."

"The public has a right to expect big things of the air transport industry, based on billions of expenditures which are nothing more than taxes to all of us," he said.

He said such a program would afford men now in the armed services an opportunity of "finding honest employment in their chosen art and at an honest living wage." He explained:

"The Army and Navy have already trained approximately 3,000,000 of the finest young men in this country as pilots, mechanics, navigators and radio operators. The productive capacity of the aircraft manufacturers has been multiplied a hundred-fold in recent years, and aeronautical engineering recently has made almost unbelievable advances x x x.

"The airline executives and regulatory authorities are now challenged to take the lead in one of the greatest social and industrial programs in the history of this country. x x x

"We must think and plan in terms of giving to all portions of this country and to the average people as well as the financially well-to-do, the fruits and benefits of aeronautical developments which are now within our reach."

Capt. Rickenbacker said Eastern Airlines had applied for permission to extend its service between New York and Boston because that would be good business and because the company thought the service was needed. American Airlines now provides the only service on the route.

Whether or not smaller companies were given permission to operate over the route, Capt. Rickenbacker said, a company able to provide Boston connections to large trunkline air service to other parts of the country should be allowed to do so. He added:

"The Boston metropolitan area is the fourth largest and most important in this country and there can be no justification for allowing it to be a marginal airline community, solely dependent upon a shuttle stem air route operated by a single company.

"Boston needs more, better and more diversified local service connecting it with the numerous important cities in the Boston-New York area. But, more important than that, Boston and the great industrial centers between Boston and New York are entitled to multiple trunk-line services direct to and from all parts of the country."

SAYS WE WANT NO TERRITORY

Ickes Thinks United Nations May Require Strategic Areas, However

SEP 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 16—Secretary Ickes, reiterating that the United States had no territorial ambitions, said tonight that the United Nations in the post-war period "may require certain strategic areas for airplanes and ships" to police nations which might attempt another conflict.

In an address at Carnegie Hall commemorating the one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the Mexican Declaration of Independence, Ickes said:

"I need not tell you that the United States has no territorial ambitions in this hemisphere, nor any interest even in territory in any part of the world, for and on account of itself.

May Require Strategic Areas

"In my personal opinion, it may be that when the United Nations have put an end to the cruel and wanton blood-letting . . . the United Nations, pursuant to their announced policy of keeping the peace after they shall have established it, may require certain strategic areas for airplanes and ships, the possession of which, I think, may be necessary to police those, who in the absence of any compulsion to refrain from war, might choose another occasion to murder and rape and destroy."

Commenting that the United States was "now happy" in the knowledge that relations between this nation and Mexico had never been "closer or more cordial," Ickes said that continued close cooperation would result in future benefits to both.

Cites Petroleum Program

He predicted that "an extensive post-war petroleum program in Mexico" would grow from the recommendations of a United States commission which studied, on the invitation of the Mexican Government, the subject of the rehabilitation and development of Mexican petroleum resources.

"The mission made certain recommendations regarding additional refinery facilities in Mexico," he said, "including one for the manufacture of 100-octane aviation gasoline."

The Interior Secretary praised Mexico's record of hemispheric solidarity in its anti-Axis action before and during the present conflict.

TANKER LOSSES BEING REPLACED

New Ships Have Greater Capacity, Greater Speed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP) John A. Brown, president of Socony Vacuum Oil company, Inc., said today that not only had lost transportation facilities been made up, but the industry was "prepared to bring into this eastern area an average volume of petroleum products close to the peak shipments prior to the war."

In an address to members of the Empire State Petroleum association, Mr. Brown said the United States rapidly was "developing the greatest tanker fleet in history."

"Because these new tankers have greater capacity and greater speed than the older tankers," Mr. Brown said, "the total annual carrying capacity of the ships delivered by the end of this year will probably equal the entire American tanker fleet of some 400 tankers in the pre-war period."

Mr. Brown said submarine warfare caused the loss of the equivalent of 95 per cent of transportation facilities in 1942, and movement to the Atlantic seaboard virtually had ceased. Those losses will be made up in the closing quarters of 1943, he said.

Mr. Brown said that more petroleum products could not be made available to the public because a large percentage was going to the armed services. He added that the percentage would be even greater in 1944.

Rabbi Brickner To Set Out To Visit Troops

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, of Cleveland, will leave shortly to visit Jewish troops and chaplains in service overseas in the various theaters of operation, Frank L. Weil, president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, announced today.

Describing the trip as similar to those taken by Archbishop Francis J. Spellman for the Catholic Church and the late Bishop Adna W. Leonard for the Protestants, Weil said Dr. Brickner's mission was authorized by the War Department with the approval of President Roosevelt.

WIVES OF GENERALS WORK IN WAR PLANT

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP) The wives of Brigadier Generals Caleb V. Haynes and Herbert D. Gibson have been working in war plants on Long Island while their husbands were off to war, the Sperry corporation said today.

The company said Mrs. Haynes, the former Margery Ann McLeod of Berkeley, Calif., was a junior draftsman at its Garden City plant, and Mrs. Gibson an accountant.

Gen. Haynes has been directing American airmen in Burma and Gen. Gibson is attached to the Hawaiian command.

SPIES HALT TRIAL WITH GUILTY PLEAS

Two Admit Espionage Charge, Will Be Sentenced Sept. 21.

SEP 17 1943

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP) Ernest Frederick Lehmitz, 57, and Erwin Harry de Spretter, 52, former Staten Island air raid wardens, pleaded guilty today in the midst of their trial on espionage charges in Federal court.

The pleas were made shortly after the prosecution had rested its case.

After admitting a conspiracy to violate the wartime espionage act, they were asked by Judge Mortimer W. Byers whether they realized the full penalty that might be imposed by their pleas—prison sentences of up to 30 years or death. Both replied in the affirmative.

The court set Sept. 21 for sentencing.

Government witnesses at the trial testified Lehmitz transmitted to Germany by invisible ink writings on apparently innocuous letters, information on ship sailings, convoy movements and other military information. The letters, to "friends," reached the Axis by way of Spain and Portugal, an FBI agent said.

DeSpretter, a consulting engineer, was charged with obtaining a book of aviation information, published by the Brewster Aircraft corporation, and turning it over to Lehmitz. For this, according to a signed statement by Lehmitz, he received $100. Lehmitz said in the statement he had received information from DeSpretter for espionage purposes "about a dozen times."

'PRAISE THE LORD' PHRASE IS FORGY'S

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The Navy made it official today and named a 35-year-old chaplain from nearby Haddonfield, N. J., as the man who first used the phrase "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition" during the attack on Pearl Harbor. The chaplain, Lieut.-Commander Howell E. Forgy, was on his first visit home in three years and the Fourth Naval District took the occasion to say formally that "the Navy Department officially confirms for the first time" that the phrase was Forgy's. Its authorship has been widely disputed.

Chaplain Forgy, who once studied at the Colorado School of Mines, was asked if he'd also used any miners' language during the attack.

"I don't remember," he said, "but any one at Pearl Harbor that day might have cussed a little."

Bishop Darlington's Son Killed

COLUMBIA, Ky., Sept. 16 (AP)—Bishop U. V. W. Darlington of Huntington, W. Va., opened the annual Louisville conference of the Methodist Church today by announcing that the War Department had just told him that his son had been killed in action in the Middle East theatre of war. On Aug. 12 Bishop Darlington was told that his son, First Lieut. Julian Darlington, was missing in action.

Father In Sicily, Baby Is Killed In Plane Crash

Norton, Va., Sept. 16 (AP)—A light passenger plane crashed and burned on a fog-topped mountain near the Pardee colliery today killing the pilot and a 6-week-old baby whose father is with the army in Sicily.

Ralph Barry, Saginaw, Mich., pilot, and the child, Thomas E. Welsh 3d, were dead in the burning wreckage when rescuers reached them. The baby's mother, Mrs. Thomas E. Welsh, Jr., was thrown clear when the plane struck. Her injuries were reported as not serious.

The Bombing Olympics Award Pickle Barrel to Championship Air Crew

SEP 17 1943

By ALBURN WEST

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 16 (AP) "A shack," shouts the announcer, as excited as when he once yelled "touchdown." The crowd cheers, then quiets down; eyes lift from the smoking target to watch that "hot" bombardier from San Angelo start his run.

A "shack", in bombing parlance is a bull's eye, and in the southwest's new sport—the bombing olympics—a "shack" is more desired than a touchdown in football and many times more rare.

"The fundamental idea behind the bombing Olympics are natural idea of competition to build confidence and ability," says the Army air force. "Its purpose is to stimulate and intensify a more accurate bombing technique."

Teams from eight southwestern bombardier schools meet every two or three weeks in these bombing Olympics originated by Gen. H. H. Arnold, air force chieftain. They're a welcome innovation to southwest sports fans, now without minor league baseball and looking forward to a slim gridiron season.

But it's an accident—so far as the army is concerned—that the bombing Olympics are a natural as a spectator sport. At Kirtland Field here recently, an estimated 12,000 fans watched the four-hour show. They sat in bleachers, camp chairs, on boxes and rocks and even stood along the target area, yelling like indians for the home team.

To many, the sight of the trim twin-ingined trainer making the run on the target, dropped the bomb and disappearing in the deep haze, may be a make-believe raid on Tokyo. But there's a real attraction about a bombardier, and he's the star of the bombing Olympics.

The team—bombardier, photographer and pilot—combined to make a winner and they are awarded the "pickle-barrel championshop." But the bombardier gets a silver trophy and the title: "All-American bombardier."

Powder and Sand

The teams fly in At-11S, the twin-engine trainers used in the schools. A four-foot long bomb containing 80 pounds of sand and three pounds of black powder is used.

A pickle-barrel topping a 30-foot high cone-shaped structure sitting in the middle of a 500 foot marked area is the target. The team that puts the mast bombs closest to the pickle-barrel is the winner although scores are figured by a secret, complicated system from photographs taken from each plane as the bomb is dropped.

In the five contests so far the pickle-barrel has escaped a direct hit, but the expectation of seeing an "egg" plop into the barrel from 1,000, 6,000 or 10,000 feet, keeps the crowd on edge.

A shack ar a bull's eye is counted when the bomb hits the cone-shaped base holding the pickle-barrel, and that's plenty of excitement. Twice during the show here, shacks were scored, and spectators along the mile-long target area were shouting:

"Give that boy a block-buster over Berlin....over Tokyo."

It's doubtful whether the bombing olympics will become a post-war counter-part of aviation's early-day flying cricus. For one thing, you have to come to the southwest to see these shows. That's because the army ariforce, finding that what chambers of commerce said about unfailing clear skies and millions of acres of flat land for targets, was true, centered its bombardier schools in the southwest as part of the AAF training command now headed by Maj. Gen. Barton K. Yount. These schools at Childress, Midland, Big Spring, and San Angelo, Texas, Roswell, Deming and Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Victorville, Calif.

JAPS WARNED OF INVASION PLAN

San Francisco, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The Japanese, who once planned to dictate peace terms to the United States in the White House, can take notice that the United States also has some invasion plans.

Lieut.-Gen. John L. Dewitt remarked yesterday that Japan's threat to West Coast safety will not disappear until we have landed in northern Japan and MacArthur has reached the Philippines."

Gen. Dewitt, who has been transferred to Washington to head the Army and Navy staff college, also announced that the Western Defense Command and the Fourth Army, which he has headed, have now been made separate commands.

Hero's Widow Christens Sub Tender Gilmore

Mare Island, Cal., Sept. 16 (AP)—Bearing the name of a naval commander from New Orleans, the submarine tender U. S. S. Gilmore was launched today.

She was named for Commander Howard W. Gilmore, whose last order to "take her down," as he lay badly wounded on the deck of a submarine, exemplified the heroism for which he was awarded posthumously the Congressional Medal of Honor. He gave the order, to save his ship and its crew, when a Japanese gunboat approached his craft last February 7.

The commander's widow christened the ship.

LONDON, SEPT 16-(AP)-A JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST BY THE TOKYO RADIO AND RECORDED HERE BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE PASSENGER LINER YAMATO MARU, CARRYING 1,095 PASSENGERS AND CREW, WAS SUNK BY A SUBMARINE WHICH IN TURN WAS DESTROYED BY JAPANESE WARSHIPS ON SEPT.13 BETWEEN JAPAN AND FORMOSA.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT 1,064 PERSONS WERE RESCUED FROM THE LINER BY JAPANESE VESSELS IN THE VICINITY OF THE ATTACK.

(THE OWI SAID THE JAPANESE DOMEI AGENCY, IN A BROADCAST REPORTING THE SAME INCIDENT, DESCRIBED THE SHIP AS THE 9,657-TON NIPPON YUSEN LINER YAMOTO MARU, AND SAID IT WAS TORPEDOED BY AN ALLIED SUBMARINE AT 1:30 A.M. ON SEPT.13, IN THE EASTERN CHINA SEA.

LONDON, SEPT.16-(AP)-THE ALLIED MENACE TO THE GERMANS' BALKAN FLANK WAS SLOWLY RISING TONIGHT BEHIND THE PRESENT FIGHTING ARENA IN ITALY, ALTHOUGH IT WAS YET A DISTANT MENACE AND WAS CONFINED FOR THE TIME BEING MAINLY TO THE PROGRESSIVE SNIPPING OFF OF NAZI COMMUNICATIONS.

THE DAY BROUGHT WORD THAT ALLIED FORCES HAD THRUST INTO THE AEGEAN SEA TO OCCUPY THREE ISLANDS IN A CHAIN LYING OFF TURKEY AND GREECE--SAMOS, COS AND LEROS--AT THE SAME TIME THAT YUGOSLAV PATRIOTS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE SEIZED ABOUT 25 MILES OF ADRIATIC COASTLINE, INCLUDING THE PORT OF SUSAK.

SEP 17 1943

MADRID DISPATCHES SAID CONCURRENTLY THAT CROAT GUERRILLAS UNDER THE COMMAND OF ALLIED OFFICERS HAD CUT FOUR PRINCIPAL GERMAN-HELD RAILWAYS RUNNING OUT FROM NORTHERN YUGOSLAVIA TO HUNGARY, RUMANIA AND ITALY.

THIS QUIET, STEADY PROCESS OF ATTRITION MOVED IRRESISTIBLY UNDER THE SURFACE OF THE MAIN CAMPAIGN. ITS SIGNIFICANCE LAY IN THE FUTURE.

GREEKS IN LONDON, IMPATIENTLY WAITING FOR THE TIME WHEN RESISTANCE CAN COME OUT FROM UNDERGROUND AND BURST ACROSS THE FACE OF THE BALKANS, DECLARED THEY HAD NOT RECEIVED FOR FOUR DAYS PAST THE USUAL DIRECT

REPORTS OF GUERRILLA ACTIVITY. THEY SUGGESTED THIS INDICATED THE WELL-DISCIPLINED PARTISANS WERE WITHHOLDING ACTION IN EXPECTATION OF A SIGNAL TO STRIKE.

THEY SAID THEY HAD PRECISE INFORMATION THAT THE GERMANS WERE TAKING TROOPS OUT OF RUMANIA THROUGH BULGARIA TOWARD THE AEGEAN, AND THAT BULGARIAN TROOPS WERE BEING SPREAD WESTWARD TO SUPPORT GERMAN TROOPS OCCUPYING ALBANIA.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE BRITISH NINTH ARMY, REPORTED FROM NEUTRAL SOURCES YESTERDAY TO HAVE LEFT ITS BASE IN SYRIA, STILL WAS CLOTHED IN MYSTERY.

SEP 17 1943

THE IMMENSE FUTURE IMPORTANCE OF THE BALKANS IN THE WAR WAS PORTENDED BY TWO RUSSIAN ACTIONS WHICH STRONGLY INDICATED THAT PREMIER MARSHAL JOSEPH STALIN HAD BECOME NEWLY INTERESTED IN THE AREA:

FIRST WAS THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT'S DECISION TO ALLOW ITS CHURCH TT APPOINT A PATRIARCH--A LONG STEP TOWARD RESTORING ITS OLD POSITION AND ONE CERTAINLY POPULAR IN THE BALKANS GENERALLY.

SECOND WAS A SHARP ADMONITION TO BULGARIA IN AN ARTICLE PUBLISHED IN PRAVDA, WHICH SAID THAT THE DEATH OF KING BORIS MADE BULGARIA'S FUTURE COURSE IN THE WAR OF GREAT INTEREST AND POINTED TO RUSSIA'S AID TO BULGARIA IN THE PAST.

A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, SEPT. 16-(AP)-AFTER MANY MISSIONS AS A "SITTING PIGEON" FLYING FORTRESS PILOT LT. ARVID DAHL OF 604 20TH AVENUE, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., WAS A HAPPY MAN TODAY -- HE WENT ON A MASS RAID TO NANTES AND SHOT DOWN A MESSERSCHMITT-109.

"THEY CAME IN EIGHT ABREAST FROM THE TAIL LIKE A BUNCH OF WILD-EYED HEINIES OUT FOR BLOOD AND I JUST COULDN'T MISS," HE SAID. "THIS GUY'S ENGINE EXPLODED AND HE WENT DOWN FAST.

"YOU KNOW, WE BOMBER PILOTS JUST SIT UP THERE AND TAKE IT WITHOUT A GUN TO SHOOT, SO IT WAS A REAL SATISFACTION FOR ME TO GET A GUN IN MY HAND AND TAKE A CRACK AT THOSE BIRDS."

DAHL FLEW AS OBSERVER-GUNNER IN A FORMATION'S LEAD SHIP, PILOTED BY LT.-COL. ROBERT S. KITTEL, 26-YEAR OLD GROUP LEADER FROM COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., WHO SAID IT HAD LOOKED AS THOUGH THE GERMANS HAD HIT THE FORMATION WITH NEW ROCKET GUNS THAT RESEMBLED "SOFT BALLS COMING AT YOU."

"IT WAS A ROUGH MISSION," KITTLE SAID, "BUT THEY COULDN'T KEEP US FROM HITTING THE TARGET."

TECH. SGT. MICHAEL ARNOOTH, 26 LORENTZO STREET, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., WHO WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS TWO DAYS AGO FOR GALLANTRY DURING A MISSION LAST WEEK WHEN HIS PLACE MADE A FORCED LANDING IN THE CHANNEL, CLAIMED HIS 10TH ENEMY FIGHTER -- ONE OF THE EIGHT WHICH CAME IN FROM THE REAR OF THE FORMATION.

ARNOSTH, TAILGUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "TONDELAYO 11," COMMENTED: "THIS JERRY WAS THE THIRD FROM THE LEFT IN THE FORMATION COMING IN WING-TIP TO WING-TIP, AND I GAVE HIM 30 TO 40 ROUNDS AT [redacted] 300 YARDS. IT STARTED A BIG FIRE ON THE LEFT SIDE OF HIS FUSELAGE AND I SAW HIM GO DOWN."

SEP 17 1943

THE PLANES PILOT, LT. BOHN FOWLES, 2426 IRVING SOUTH, MINNEAPOLIS, SAID ONE FOCKE WULF 190 ALMOST RAMMED HIS SHIP AS IT ROARED THROUGH THE FORMATION -- BUT THE GERMAN NEVER MADE IT. [redacted] A GUNNER IN ANOTHER SHIP HIT HIM AND HE CRASHED.

LT. ROBERT L. HEJNY, PINE CITY, MINN., BOMBARDIER, SAID "IT LOOKED LIKE WE DID A GOOD JOB ON THE TARGET. THERE WAS A LOT OF MEAT DOWN THERE AND IT STOOD OUT LIKE A SORE THUMB."

LT. ELMER S. BENDIMER, 178 OCEAN AVENUE, FREEPORT, N.Y., NAVIGATOR, SAID "I'M SURE WE [redacted] COULDN'T HAVE MISSED IT."

ONE GERMAN FIGHTER PLUNGED BETWEEN THE LEAD SQUADRON AND THE FORTRESS "POLLY," PASSING WITHIN FOUR FEET OF THE NOSE, ACCORDING TO LT. LAVERNE DINGWELL, NAVIGATOR ON THE FORTRESS "WHEATBRIDGE," (A SUBURB OF DENVER, COLO.) SAID DINGWELL: [redacted] "OUR TAIL GUNNER KNOCKED OFF THAT FIGHTER'S TAIL AND HE WENT DOWN."

THE GUNNER WHO SCORED THAT VICTORY WAS STAFF SGT. DONALD E. JOHNSON OF MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, MICH. IT WAS HIS SECOND.

"THE SHIP WE WERE AFTER STARTED TO MOVE FROM THE DOCK AS WE APPROACHED," SAID STAFF SGT. MARSHALL FISHER OF FORT BENTON, MONT., BALL TURRET GUNNER. "BUT I'M SURE WE HIT HIM."

"THERE WERE SEVERAL OTHER SHIPS THERE AND SMOKE POURED FROM THE AREA AS WE LEFT," FISHER ADDED.

SEP 17 1943

"THERE WAS A LOT OF [redacted] FIGHTER OPPOSITION, BUT IT LOOKED LIKE WE DID A GOOD JOB," DECLARED ROBERT RICHEL, 1618 BAYVIEW AVENUE, HILLSIDE, N.J.

SGT. EDWARD M. TAYLOR, WILLIAMSTON, N.C., WAISTGUNNER, HAD A FRAYED COAT TO SHOW. HE SAID A PIECE OF FLAK PENETRATED TWO THICKNESSES OF [redacted] HIS CLOTHING AND SHOT OUT HIS OXYGEN SYSTEM. "THE TARGET WAS A MESS WHEN WE GOT THROUGH," SAID LT.

JAMES CUDWORTH, 809 HARRINGTON STREET, GREENSBORO, N.C., BOMBARDIER, WHO WAS ACTING SQUADRON BOMBARDIER. "WE GOT TWO ATTACKS ON THE NOSE FROM THE FIGHTERS AND THE FLAK TORE A HOLE IN OUR STABILIZER."

THEY BLEW UP FUEL AND AMMUNITION DUMPS IN WHAT WAS DESCRIBED AS ANOTHER HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL JOB OF PRECISION BOMBING.

IT WAS THE 30TH MISSION FOR THE MEDIUMS IN LESS THAN TWO MONTHS OF OPERATION IN THIS THEATER AND THEIR THIRD VISIT TO MERVILLE IN A SYSTEMATIC CAMPAIGN TO KNOCK OUT GERMAN AIRFORCE FIGHTER FACILITIES IN WESTERN EUROPE.

MADRID, SEPT 16-(AP)-GERMAN FORCES IN ITALY, ENGAGED IN THEIR FIRST GREAT DEFENSIVE BATTLE AGAINST AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS ON THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT, WERE REPORTED TODAY TO BE HAVING SERIOUS DIFFICULTY IN MAINTAINING RAILWAY COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE REST OF EUROPE.

OF THE FIVE MAIN RAILWAY LINES LINKING ITALY WITH THE CONTINENT TWO WERE SAID TO BE ENTIRELY (1) CLOSED, TWO (2+3) FREQUENTLY BLASTED BY SABOTAGE AND THE OTHER (4-5) THREATENED BY YUGOSLAV GUERRILLAS.

REPORTS FROM FRANCE DECLARED THE GERMANS STILL WERE UNABLE TO USE THE MODANE-MT.CENIS LINE BETWEEN ITALY AND SOUTHERN FRANCE DUE TO ARMED RESISTANCE BY ITALIAN TROOPS. FRENCH PATRIOT UNITS IN THE SAVOIE ALSO WERE SAID TO BE DOING THEIR BIT WITH SABOTAGE TO KEEP THE LINE CLOSED.

CROAT GUERRILLAS, ACCORDING TO ADVICES FROM THE BALKANS, HAVE CUT FOUR MAIN RAILWAYS FANNING OUT FROM LJUBLJANA IN WHAT FORMERLY WAS NORTHERN YUGOSLAVIA. TWO OF THESE LEAD INTO ITALY--ONE THROUGH SAN PIETRO TO TRIESTE AND THE OTHER ALONG THE SAVA RIVER AND THEN SOUTH TO GORIZA.

I SAW FARMERS PLOUGHING THEIR FIELDS WITH SHELLS WHISTLING OVERHEAD AND EVEN A TINY TOT PLAYING IN THE ROADWAY LOOKING UPWARD AT THE DOGFIGHTS OVERHEAD. ONE THING THE WAR HAS GIVEN THEM BOTH IS A FEAR AND RESPECT FOR THE AMERICAN BOMBER. ALMOST EVERYBODY IS WORRIED WHETHER HE MIGHT BE BOMBED BY AN AMERICAN PLANE BECAUSE THEY ARE SO CLOSE TO THE GERMAN LINES.

I FOUND THAT EVEN IN NO MAN'S LAND THE AMERICAN DOLLAR IS STILL AS GOOD AS GOLD AND WAS INTERCHANGEABLE ON FIXED RATES OF 100 LIRE TO ONE DOLLAR.

BUT THE REAL STANDARD THERE ISN'T GOLD DOLLARS, POUNDS NOR LIRE BUT AMERICAN CIGARETTES. ONE PACKAGE OF CIGARETTES IS EQUAL TO SIX EGGS OR ONE GLASS OF CHIANTI OR A BUSHEL OF GRAPES. ONE CHICKEN COSTS A WHOLE CARTON OF CIGARETTES.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT.15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A HANDFUL OF HUMAN MOUNTAIN GOATS WHO PRIDE THEMSELVES ON BEING THE "FASTEST MOVING OUTFIT IN THE WHOLE AMERICAN ARMY" ARE TAKING A WELL EARNED REST TODAY AFTER SIX DAYS AND NIGHTS OF CONTINUAL PATROLLING OF THE MOUNTAIN AREA OVERLOOKING THE SALERNO BEACHHEAD.

THEY COVERED AN AVERAGE OF 20 MILES DAILY OVER PRECIPITOUS AND LARGELY ROADLESS TERRAIN. THE ASSIGNMENT OF THESE FEW SOLDIERS BEGAN A FEW HOURS AFTER THE AMERICANS CAME ASHORE A WEEK AGO.

THE ORDERS WERE TO SCALE THE STEEP MOUNTAIN SQUARELY IN FRONT OF THE MAIN AMERICAN LANDING POINT, KEEP THE WHOLE AREA UNDER CONSTANT OBSERVATION, KNOCK OUT ANY GERMAN ADVANCE ELEMENTS AND GIVE A QUICK ALARM IN CASE OF AN ENEMY ATTACK IN STRENGTH.

THE PATROL WENT OUT EQUIPPED ONLY WITH SUCH RATIONS AND AMMUNITION AS THEY COULD CARRY. THEY STAYED ON THE JOB UNTIL A FULL ARTILLERY UNIT RELIEVED THEM.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE GERMANS RETIRED TO HIGH GROUND AFTER YESTERDAY'S SEVERE MAULING AT THE HANDS OF THE FIFTH ARMY AND HAVE ADOPTED WHAT IS DESCRIBED AS A "DEFENSIVE ATTITUDE."

BUT IT IS A HIGHLY AGGRESSIVE DEFENSE. THEY ARE NOT WAITING FOR AMERICAN AND BRITISH UNITS TO COME AFTER THEM. ON THE CONTRARY, OPERATING FROM HIGH GROUND, THEY THRUST TANK COLUMNS AND ARMORED GROUPS DOWN ONTO THE PLAIN EVERY DAY AND NIGHT LOOKING FOR SOFT SPOTS. WHEN THEY FIND ONE THEY HIT IT HARD.

IT WAS ONE OF THESE ATTACKS THAT CARRIED THEM CLEAR DOWN INTO THE

1943

TRIANGLE FORMED BY THE JUNCTION OF THE CALORE AND SELE RIVERS ON MONDAY. AMERICAN COMBAT FORCES, WITH TERRIFIC AIR SUPPORT AND NAVAL AS WELL AS LAND ARTILLERY AID, PUSHED THEM BACK TO THEIR ORIGINAL POSITIONS THE NEXT DAY, TUESDAY.

AT THIS MOMENT THE BATTLE APPEARS TO BE DEADLOCKED. (THIS WAS WRITTEN BEFORE THE NEW ALLIED OFFENSIVE WAS ANNOUNCED.) ALTAVILLA AND ALBANELLA AND THE HIGH GROUND NEARBY HAVE BEEN GAINED AND LOST SEVERAL TIMES. HAVING RETAKEN THE HEIGHTS IN BOTH THESE SECTORS THE GERMANS HOLD POWERFUL DEFENSIVE POSITIONS, THE CAPTURE OF WHICH IS GOING TO BE A MAJOR OPERATION.

SEP 17 1943

AT THE SAME TIME THE FIFTH ARMY COMMAND IS FULLY CONFIDENT THE ENEMY CANNOT SMASH THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD.

WHETHER THE GERMANS WILL ATTEMPT THIS, IN VIEW OF THE FACT IT WOULD MEAN COMMITTING THEIR WHOLE FORCE WHILE THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY DAILY DRAWS CLOSER, SEEMS DOUBTFUL.

THE OBJECTIVE, APPARENTLY, IS TO KEEP THE FIFTH ARMY BOTTLED UP IN THIS AREA AS LONG AS POSSIBLE. WHEN THE FIFTH AND EIGHTH ARMIES JOIN, THEIR STRENGTH UNDOUBTEDLY WILL BE TOO GREAT FOR THE GERMANS TO HOLD EVEN THEIR HIGHLY FAVORABLE POSITIONS IN THE HILLS.

THEN THE GERMANS ARE EXPECTED TO BEGIN A SLOW, BITTERLY FOUGHT RETREAT.

AS MATTERS STAND, HOWEVER, THE ENEMY IS HOLDING A TIGHT RING AROUND THE BEACH HEAD.

SEP 17 1943

WE ARE ON A FLAT PLAIN, VIRTUALLY WITHOUT COVER OR ANY POSSIBILITY OF MAKING LARGE-SCALE TROOP MOVEMENTS WITHOUT THEIR BEING SPOTTED.

THE GERMANS IN THE HILLS ARE WELL DUG-IN IN THE CUP-SHAPED REGION. HOWEVER, THEY ARE GETTING A MERCILESS BATTERING FROM ALLIED AIR FORCES, AND THAT, PLUS ARTILLERY, SEEMS TO BE THE DOMINANT FACTOR OF THE BATTLE SO FAR.

THE AIR IS CONSTANTLY VIBRATING WITH THE SOUND OF BOMBER GROUPS GOING NORTHEASTWARD TO GERMAN POSITIONS AROUND THE TOWNS. A FEW MINUTES LATER YOU FEEL, RATHER THAN HEAR, SOMETHING RESEMBLING AN EARTHQUAKE AS THE HEAVY BOMBS CASCADE EARTHWARD.

THE BOMBERS ARE POUNDING NOT ONLY THE ENEMY POSITIONS BUT ALSO HIS SUPPLY ROUTES AND IT IS A TERRIFYING SPECTACLE EVEN WHEN IT IS YOUR OWN PLANES DOING THE BOMBING.

NAVAL ARTILLERY TAKES UP AT NIGHT WHERE THE BOMBERS LEAVE OFF.

I WATCHED THE BOMBARDMENT LAST NIGHT FROM THE HILLS AND SAW CLUSTERS OF FLARES LIKE ENORMOUS BLAZING CHANDELIERS FLOAT EARTHWARD OVER THE GERMAN POSITIONS. THEN FROM SOMEWHERE AT SEA THERE WAS A DEEP BOOM AND SOUNDS LIKE AN EXPRESS TRAIN RUMBLING OVER A BRIDGE AS THE SHELLS WHISTLED INTO THE VERY SPOT MARKED BY THE FLARES. IT IS HARD TO SEE HOW ANYTHING COULD LIVE THROUGH SUCH ACCURACY. BUT THE GERMANS SEEM TO BE DOING IT.

THEY SAT ON THE STEPS AROUND THIS OBSERVER. AN OLD WOMAN CARRIED IN WOOD TO FEED A COOKING STOVE IN A WING OF THE CHURCH. A BROWN LEGHORN HEN CONVOYED A BROOD OF WHITE CHICKS ACROSS THE CHURCH YARD AND LED THEM THROUGH A HOLE IN A STONE WALL.

AT THE FOOT OF THE MOUNTAIN SPUR THERE WAS A POND WHERE TWO AMERICAN ARMY PURIFICATION UNITS WERE PUMPING WATER AND FILLING XXX WATER TANKS TO CARRY IT TO THE UNITS. BEYOND STRETCHED THE FLAT PLAIN WHICH BORDERS THE GULF OF SALERNO. COWS, HORSES AND SHEEP GRAZED PEACEFULLY IN THE GREEN FIELDS. WHITE DUSTY ROADS CUT THE PLAIN. THEY WERE HEAVILY POPULATED WITH WAR VEHICLES. TRUCK CONVOYS MOVED ALONG WITH SUPPLIES. A COLUMN OF TANK

MOVED TOWARD THE FRONT LINE, EACH SENDING OUT A PLUME OF DUST BEHIND IT. JEEP

WITH THEIR HELMETED AND GOGGLED OCCUPANTS BUZZED IN AND OUT AMONG THE HEAVIER TRAFFIC.

IN ONE FIELD THERE WAS A HOSPITAL UNIT WITH ITS BIG DRAB TENTS

SURROUNDED BY BIG RED CROSSES PAINTED ON WHITE CLOTH AND PEGGED OUT ON THE

GRASSY TURF. IN ANOTHER FIELD SOLDIERS, STRIPPED TO THE WAIST, TOILED IN THE

SUN DIGGING GRAVES. POCKMARKING THE AREA WERE HOLES INHABITED BY ANTI-AIR-

CRAFT GUNS. ARTILLERY HAD HID ITSELF BENEATH THE TREES. AN OCCASIONAL RED

TILED ROOFED FARMHOUSE STOOD OUT AGAINST THE FIELDS.

BEYOND WERE MORE FIELDS AND MORE ROADS WITH HEAVY AMPHIBIOUS TRUCKS AND ALL OTHER TYPES OF VEHICLES MOVING OVER THEM.

THEN CAME THE BELT OF GRASSY SAND DUNES THROUGH WHICH ASSAULT TROOPS HAD

FOUGHT THEIR WAY A FEW DAYS AGO. THEN CAME THE BEACH ITSELF WITH ITS TANGLE

1943

OF INVASION CRAFT AND THE HUSTLING ACTIVITY OF CONTINUED UNLOADING BARELY DISCERNABLE AT THAT DISTANCE.

SMALL BOATS MOVED BACK AND FORTHTO THE BEACH WITH A STREAM OF SUPPLIES FOR THE TROOPS ASHORE.

FINALLY THE SHIPS OF THE GREAT INVASION FLEET STOOD IN AN XXXXXXX IRREGULAR LINE PARALLELING THE BEACH. THEIR BARRAGE XXXXXXX BALLOONS RODE LAZILY ABOVE THEM WITH BRIGHT ITALIAN SUNSHINE GLINTING ON THEIR SILVERY SIDES.

TO THE NORTH THE VIEW WAS BLURRED BY THE HAZE OF BATTLE WHICH OVERHUNG THIS SECTOR. THE POUNDING OF GUNS COULD BE HEARD CONTINUOUSLY. IN THE DISTANCE COLUMNS OF SMOKE ROSE FROM A BURNING BUILDING AND SHELL BURSTS. OCCASIONALLY THE MOUNTAIN ON WHICH THE CHURCH STOOD SHUDDERED AS FLIGHTS OF AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS UNLOADED THEIR BOMBS ON OBJECTIVES BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES. THE RETURNING FLIGHTS DRONED BACK HIGH IN THE BRIGHT BLUE SKY.

SEP 17 1943

ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES PATROLLED UP AND DOWN THE AREA, FROM THE MOUNTAIN WE LOOKEDDOWN UPON THEM AS X SMALL GROUPS MOVED OVER THE PLAIN LIKE FLIGHTS OF PIGEONS.

AT ONE POINT FOUR MESSERSCHMIDTS DASHED ACROSS THE PLAIN. AS THEY PASSED THE GREEN FIELDS CAME TO LIFE. ACK-ACK GUNS BARKED FROM HOLES AND TREE CLUMPS. SOLDIERS COULD BE SEEN ONLY BRIEFLY AS THEY DIVED INTO THEIR FOXHOLES. VEHICLES HALTED QUICKLY AND THEIR OCCUPANTS SCRAMBLED INTO ROAD-SIDE DITCHES OR CONVENIENT SPLIT-TRENCHES. THE MESSERSCHMIDTS CLIMBED AND PASSED LOW OVER THE MOUNTAIN JUST BEHIND THE CHURCH. THE ITALIAN WOMEN HERDED THE CHILDREN INSIDE.

AFTER A TIME THIS CORRESPONDENT LEFT THE CHURCH AND HEADED BY JEEP FOR A CLOSER VIEW OF THE LAND BATTLE.

AMERICAN AND GERMAN TROOPS WERE FIGHTING FOR POSSESSION OF A TOWN HIGH ON THE SLOPE OF A MOUNTAIN. AMERICAN TANKS CREPT ACROSS THE VALLEY JUST BENEATH THE X HILL ON WHICH THIS CORRESPONDENT WAS WATCHING. AMERICAN ARTILLERY BOOMED FROM A NEARBY WOODS AND THE SHELLS WHISTLED TO-

1943

WARD THE ENEMY POSITIONS. AS THEY LANDED PUFFS OF SMOKE MUSHROOMED INTO A SILHOUETTE ALONG THE MOUNTAIN TOP. CLOUDS OF DUST MINGLED WITH SHELL SMOKE.

ALONG MORE DISTANT ROADS WERE DUST CLOUDS AND SHELL BURSTS WHERE OTHER BATTLES WERE TAKING PLACE AS THE GERMAN TANKS IN GROUPS OF TEN OR SO FINGERED THEIR WAY TO ARD AMERICAN POSITIONS.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. ~~8~~ 14--(DELAYED)---

AS THE FIRST WEEK OF THE FIFTH ARMY'S CAMPAIGN APPROACHES ITS CLOSE, IT IS ASSUMING SOMETHING OF THE RESEMBLANCE TO THE CLOSING PHASE OF THE TUNISIAN FIGHTING.

IN BOTH CASES, THE ALLIES POSSESSES GREAT SUPERIORITY IN AIR AND SEA FORCES. IN BOTH CASES, THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES HAVE SOUGHT TO PRESS EASTWARD IN THE NORTHERN PORTION OF THE BATTLE AREA WHILE IN THE SOUTHERN AREA, A POWERFUL BRITISH ARMY (MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY IN BOTH CASES, BY THE WAY) HAS SOUGHT TO PRESS THE ENEMY STEADILY NORTHWARD.

THE ENEMY COMMANDER'S JOB IN TUNISIA WAS LARGELY THAT OF HOLDING OFF BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES IN THE NORTH BY DETERMINED OFFENSIVE MEANS WHICH INCLUDED BOLD AND LOCALLY SUCCESSFUL COUNTERATTACKS SKILLFULLY ~~READER~~ MASSED AGAINST POINTS WHERE HE THOUGHT THE ALLIED LINE MIGHT BE WEAK. OUR CLEAR DEFEAT AT KASSERINE PASS WAS A PAINFUL EXAMPLE. BY THUS HOLDING OUR NORTHERN FORCES AWAY FROM HIS VITAL TRANSPORTATION ROUTES ON THE FAR SIDE OF TUNISIA, THE ENEMY HOPED TO BE ABLE TO EXTRICATE HIS TROOPS FROM SOUTH TUNISIA AND SHUTTLE THEM ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN TO SAFETY IN ITALY.

WHAT PREVENTED HIM WAS THE SMASHING OF HIS LINE OF SUPPLIES BY OUR SEA AND AIR FORCES, PLUS THE FINAL GATHERING IN NORTH TUNISIA OF SUFFICIENT ALLIED FORCES TO SMASH THROUGH THE CONFUSED AND WEARY GERMAN DEFENDERS IN THAT SECTION. THE PRESENT ITALIAN CAMPAIGN HAS STRIKING RESEMBLANCES IN SEVERAL RESPECTS.

THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES THIS TIME UNDER LT. GEN.

1943

MARK W. CLARK, AGAIN OCCUPY A MODERATELY LONG FRONT IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PART OF THE PRESENT COMBINED ITALIAN THEATER, WHICH CAN BE THOUGHT OF AS RUNNING SOUTHWARD FROM NAPLES TO THE ITALIAN BOOT HEEL. THE VETERAN BRITISH FORCES, UNDER MONTGOMERY AGAIN AT THE SOUTHERN END ARE PUSHING VIGOROUSLY NORTHWARD

HERE, AS IN TUNISIA, THE ENEMY HAS THE ADVANTAGE OF INTERIOR LINES, SO HE NOT ONLY CAN MOVE TROOPS [redacted] FROM ONE FRONT TO ANOTHER MORE EASILY AND QUICKLY THAN WE, BUT CAN DO SO WITHOUT OUR KNOWLEDGE.

SEP 17 1943

IT IS TRUE THAT WE HAVE HAMPERED HIM BY AIR AND SEA FORCES BOMBING HIS ROADS AND RAILS, BUT THIS MUST USUALLY BE REGARDED AS A TEMPORARY IMPEDIMENT RATHER THAN PERMANENT DESTRUCTION. AT LEAST, HE [redacted] IS NO WORSE OFF IN THIS RESPECT THAN OUR OWN FIFTH ARMY, STILL PINNED TO A PAINFULLY NARROW BEACH[redacted] AREA WHERE THE MAIN TRANSPORT ROUTES FREQUENTLY ARE UNDER ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE. HE ALSO HAS A GREAT ADVANTAGE OF LARGE EXISTING SUPPLY DUMPS BUILT UP OVER A LONG PERIOD AND REPLACEABLE OVER LAND ROUTES, HARASSED THOUGH THEY MAY BE.

WE, ON THE OTHER HAND, MUST TRANSPORT ALL SUPPLIES BY SEA AND OVER BEACHES WHERE WE ARE STILL FAR FROM SECURE FROM ENEMY BOMBING.

HE ALSO HAS THE ADVANTAGE OF UPPER LEVELS WHICH PROVIDE SUPERIOR OBSERVATION POINTS AND WELL-EMPLACED DEFENSES DESIGNED FOR THE VERY PURPOSE OF RESISTING INVASION AND CAREFULLY CONSTRUCTED ON A PERMANENT BASIS. IT IS NOT IRRELEVANT TO REMARK THAT NAZI TROOPS REMAIN THE BEST TRAINED AND ARE THE FIERCEST FIGHTERS ANYONE WISHES TO MEET, WITH PROFESSIONAL LEADERSHIP EXTRAORDINARILY ADEPT IN DEFENSE AND DELAYING ACTIONS INTERSPERSED WITH BOLD COUNTER-ASSAULTS WHEN LEAST EXPECTED.

WE FOUND HIM A [redacted] RESOURCEFUL DEFENSIVE FIGHTER DURING LATE IN 1918 EVEN WHEN HIS DEFEAT WAS IMMINENT. HE REMAINED JUST AS STUBBORN IN DESERT FIGHTING OF NORTH AFRICA AND IN THE LATE PHASES OF THE SICILIAN DEFENSIVE.

SEP 17 1943

THERE IS EVERY INDICATION THAT HE WILL BE JUST AS STUBBORN

1943

30.24- 8505

HERE. CERTAINLY WE HAVE HAD PLENTY OF DIFFICULTY IN PUSHING AWAY FROM THE BEACHES TOWARD HIGHER LAND WHICH WE GREATLY NEED, AND CERTAINLY HE HASLATELY SUCCEEDED TEMPORARILY IN SLAPPING US BACK FROM CERTAIN POSITIONS. THIS, TOO, IS STRIKINGLY LIKE OUR EARLY TUNISIAN EXPERIENCE.

SEP 17 1943

WE HAVE HAD TO SPREAD OUR BEACH AREA TO GAIN MORE LANDING PLACES AND GREATER SECURITY AND IT IS MATHEMATICALLY CLEAR THAT THE WIDER OUR FRONT THE SHALLOWER OUR DEPTH OF DEFENSE WILL BE UNTIL SUCH TIME AS REINFORCEMENTS ARE AVAILABLE. NO ONE DOUBTS OUR ULTIMATE ABILITY TO PUSH THROUGH, BUT THERE IS THE SURMISE THAT THE LONGER THE ENEMY CAN HOLD US CLOSELY PINNED TO OUR PRESENT FRONT, JUST AS IN NORTH TUNISIA, THE CLOSER HE WILL COME TO HIS OBJECTIVE -- NOT TO SEEK A HOPELESS VICTORY HERE, BUT SOLELY TO DELAY OUR ADVANCE UNTIL HE CAN EXTRICATE THE MAXIMUM NUMBER OF HIS TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT FROM THE PRESENT ITALIAN TRAP.

OUR AMPHIBIAN OPERATION IS NECESSARILY AT THE SLOWEST STAGE RIGHT NOW, BUT THERE IS NO QUESTION THAT OUR SUPPLIES ARE POURING IN SATISFACTORILY. EVENTUALLY, THE ENEMY'S CHANCES TO RETREAT MAY BE REDUCED, NOT ONLY BY ALLIED FIFTH AND BRITISH AND CANADIAN EIGHTH ARMY ATTACKS, BUT BY HALF-HEARTED ITALIAN OBSTRUCTIVE ACTIONS ALONG THE NORTHERN ROADS. THUS FAR THERE IS NO VISIBLE EVIDENCE OF IT, NOR ANY EVIDENCE OF ANY LESSENED GERMAN SPIRIT OR CAPACITY AS A RESULT OF DEFECTION BY OUR ITALIAN ALLY.

THE NAZI REMAINS A DESPERATELY DANGEROUS FOE, NOW FIGHTING A LONE BATTLE IN ITALY BETTER, IF ANYTHING, THAN BEFORE HIS ALLY'S CAPITULATION.

WITH THE U.S. INVASION FLEET, SEPT. 10-(DELAYED)-A RED DISC PULSATED IN THE DARKNESS AHEAD.

"THAT IS VESUVIUS," SAID AN OFFICER NEXT TO ME. WE DIDN'T KNOW FOR SURE, BUT WE WATCHED THE FLASHES OF LIGHTNING IN THE SKIES NORTH OF THE GLOW AS ALLIED NAVAL GUNS POUNDED THE SHORE.

"I THOUGHT THEY (THE ITALIANS) SURRENDERED TONIGHT," SAID A VOICE FROM BEHIND.

"IT'S TIME FOR OUR LANDING CRAFT AND WE CAN'T TAKE ANY CHANCES

WITH THE GERMANS THERE," ANSWERED ANOTHER VOICE.

AT 4:30 A.M., A VERY (CAP V) FLARE ROSE HIGH ABOVE THE SHORE DIRECTLY AHEAD OF OUR SHIP AND FAR AWAY CAME THE SOUND OF NAVAL GUNFIRE.

"OUR FIRST OUTFIT LANDED OKAY," SOMEONE CALLED, AND OUR SHIP'S RADIO CONFIRMED THE REPORT THAT THIS ONE BEACH HAD BEEN TAKEN.

BUT THERE WAS OPPOSITION FROM OTHER BEACHES. AND AFTER SUNRISE A FRANTIC VOICE FROM A BEACH CALLED OVER THE RADIO:

"THE BEACHES ARE BEING SNIPED ON; TANKS ARE CLOSING IN BACK OF OUR MEN THERE! GIVE US FIRE SUPPORT, FOR GOD'S SAKE, PLEASE!"

WE HAVE BEEN HIT. THE SHIP'S SIREN WAS WAILED. THE "GET READY TO BEACH" PASSWORD HAS BEEN PASSED ALONG TO THE MEN.

"GET READY TO BEACH!" YELLED LT. HARMON BEACKLEY OF HOLDENVILLE, OKLA., COMMANDER OF A COMPANY OF TIRED DOUGHBOYS AS THEY POURED FROM THE SHIP'S HOLDS AND ROSE FROM ITS DECKS, BLINKING INTO THE MORNING SUNLIGHT.

"WE'RE GOING ASHORE, WE'RE GOING ASHORE," WERE THE WORDS RUNNING ALONG THE SHIP'S SIDES AND DOWN INTO ITS HOLDS.

"I'M GLAD TO GET OUT OF THE NAVY AND INTO THE ARMY AGAIN," SAID SGT. JIGGS BLACKBURN OF CUSHING, OKLA., AS HE STRUGGLED INTO HIS PACK.

OUR LANDING CRAFT HAD ALREADY TACKED ITSELF INTO LINE WITH THE OTHER LITTLE SHIPS AND TORE FOR SHORE, THE MEN ANXIOUSLY SCANNING THE CLEAR SKIES FOR ENEMY PLANES WHICH HAD BEEN DROPPING FLARES AND BOMBS ALL THE PREVIOUS NIGHT.

M OUR BOAT STOPPED SUDDENLY. THE LANDING PLANKS SLID DOWN AND THE FIRST PLATOON LED BY LT. BILLARD FORD OF MARTSINVILLE, VA., PLOPPED INTO THE WATER TO THEIR TINGLING KNEES AND SPLASHED ON TO DRY SAND.

ACK-ACK FROM THE SHIPS SUDDENLY CLATTERED NOISILY AND WE DASHED INTO THE DUNES AND SPRAWLED AS TWO FOCKE-WULFS WHINED OUT OF THE SUN, DROPPED BOMBS NEAR THE VESSELS AND SCOOTED AWAY.

"WELCOME TO ITALY!" SCREAMED THE DOUGHBOYS AFTER THEM.

SIX MEN WERE INJURED BY THOSE BOMBS, BUT THE MEN ROSE TO THEIR FEET AND TRAMPED INLAND TO BATTLE.

MAIORI, ITALY, SEPT. 14 -(DELAYED)- AFTER OUSTING MUSSOLINI AND HIS FASCIST REGIME AND BREAKING AWAY FROM THE AXIS, THE ITALIANS IN ALLIED-HELD TERRITORY IN ITALY SEEM TODAY TO BE UNCERTAIN AS TO WHAT SORT OF GOVERNMENT THEY WANT.

THE ITALIANS HAVE REFRAINED FROM ANY OUTBURSTS OF THEIR FEELINGS.

TAKE THIS TYPICAL TOWN OF MAIORI, WITH SEVERAL THOUSAND INHABITANTS DOING A PROSPEROUS BUSINESS ALREADY WITH BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS.

MUSSOLINI'S SLOGANS HAVE BEEN EFFACED WITH DAUBS OF BLACK TAR OR PAINT, BUT NOTHING HAS BEEN PLACED IN THEIR STEAD. THE ITALIAN'S POLITICAL ATTITUDE IS NEGATIVE. EVERYBODY RUNS DOWN FASCISM, MUSSOLINI AND COUNT CIANO AND FOR THE MOST PART IS NON-COMMITTAL ABOUT SUCH MEN AS COUNT SFORZA, ANTI-FASCIST LEADER.

THEY SEEM ONLY TO WANT THE CONFLICT TO END. IT SEEMS TO ME THE ITALIANS' APATHY TO THE NEW KIND OF GOVERNMENT THAT IS TO BE SET UP

IS PRESENTLY ALMOST AS GREAT AS THEIR APATHY REGARDING THE MUSSOLINI REGIME, WHICH THEY PERMITTED TO RULE THEM DESPITE THE FACT THAT 90 PER CENT OF THE POPULATION WAS AGAINST IT.

REPEATEDLY, I ASKED ITALIAN PEOPLE WHAT SORT OF GOVERNMENT THEY WANT NOW THAT MUSSOLINI IS GONE AND THEY IMMEDIATELY CHANGE THE CONVERSATION, OR, IF ACTUALLY FORCED INTO AN ANSWER, WILL SAY, "OH, A GOVERNMENT SOMETHING LIKE THE UNITED STATES OR ENGLAND."

TO DATE I HAVE SEEN NO TRENDS TOWARD ANY PARTICULAR LEADERS.

VALLO DELLA LUCANIA, ITALY, SEPT 14-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE HARD LUCK KID FROM CALIFORNIA LOOKED OUT OF HIS HOSPITAL WINDOW EXPECTING TO SEE GERMAN ARMOURED CARS SWEEP BY AGAIN.

"TEDESCI," (GERMANS) MURMURED IDLING ITALIANS ALONG THE STREET.

LT.STANLEY STUBER OF 1231 EAST BROADWAY, GLENDALE, CALIF., HAD HEARD THAT WORD OFTEN SINCE HE BAILED OUT OF A BURNING LIGHTNING SEPT. 10 WHILE COVERING THE BATTLE OF SALERNO PLAIN.

THE ITALIAN ORDERLY POKED HIS HEAD INTO THE ROOM AND CAST HIM A REASSURING GLANCE, HOLDINGHIS FINGER TO HIS LIPS.

THANKS TO ITALIAN FRIENDS, THE YOUNG LIEUTENANT HAD NOT BEEN BOTHERED YET BY GERMAN PATROLS, BUT THERE WAS NO TELLING WHEN THEY MIGHT SEIZE HIM.

HE STARED AT THE STREET, GRITTED HIS TEETH AND WAITED.

STUBER'S LUCK TURNED HALF SOUR ON AUG. 10 WHEN HE WAS ON A STRAFING MISSION OVER THE TOE OF ITALY. GROUND GUNS DAMAGED HIS PLANE BUT HE LIMPED BACK ACROSS MESSINA STRAITS AND BARELY MADE IT TO THE AIRFIELD, WHERE HE CRASH LANDED.

EXACTLY ONE MONTH LATER HE WAS TRYING TO PROTECT AMERICAN TROOPS FIGHTING ON THE BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF NAPLES WHEN A NAZI MESSERSCHMITT JUMPED HIM FROM ABOVE.

FLAMES WERE LICKING OVER THE COCKPIT WHEN HE PARACHUTED OUT. HE LANDED, WITH PAINFUL INJURIES, ON A FARM OUTSIDE THE BATTLE ZONE BUT INSIDE THE AREA UNDER GERMAN CONTROL.

ITALIAN PEASANTS CARED FOR HIM AND NOTIFIED THE CHIEF OF THE CARABINIERI AT CALLO DELLA LUCANIA. THE LATTER SENT AN ITALIAN AMBULANCE WHICH MOVED STUBER TO THE HOSPITAL IN THE LITTLE HIGHLAND TOWN THROUGH WHICH GERMAN SCOUTS PASSED TWICE DAILY.

THE ITALIAN HOSPITAL STAFF AND FRIENDLY CIVILIANS DELUGED THE AMERICAN YOUTH WITH CIGARETTES AND CANDY. SCARCE LUXURIES WERE HEAPED ON THE TABLE AT HIS BEDSIDE AND FRESH BASKETS OF FRUIT APPEARED EACH MORNING.

ONE GERMAN OFFICER DEMANDED THAT STUBER BE TURNED OVER TO HIM BUT THE CHIEF OF CARABINIERI OBJECTED SO STRENUOUSLY THAT FURTHER DISCUSSION WAS POSTPONED WHEN AMERICAN PATROLS SOUTH OF THE SALERNO BEACH HEAD CAME WITHIN 12 MILES OF VALLO DELLA LUCANIA.

TODAY, STUBER'S THIRD DAY IN THE HOSPITAL, DOCTORS TOLD HIM HE WAS PRACTICALLY AS GOOD AS NEW BUT THE WHOLE STAFF ADVISED HIM TO STAY ON TEMPORARILY INSTEAD OF RUNNING THE RISK OF CAPTURE BY THE GERMANS.

THREE NAZI ARMOURED CARS ROLLED BY HIS WINDOW IN THE MORNING AND WHEN HE HEARD THE CRY BY THE TOWNSFOLK OF "TEDESCI" THIS AFTERNOON IT WAS OBVIOUS WHAT TO EXPECT.

BUT THE POPULACE OF VALLO HAD JUMPED TO AN ERRONEOUS CONCLUSION.

THEY WERE NOT GERMAN BUT BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY VEHICLES THAT

1943

CAME TO THE HOSPITAL ENTRANCE. OUT PILED A PARTY OF WAR CORRESPONDENTS WHO HAD BEEN INFORMED BY THE CARABINIERI OF THE PRESENCE OF AN ALLIED AIRMAN.

"GLAD TO SEE YOU," STUBER SAID.

WITH GEN.EISENHOWER'S ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, SEPT 16--THE TIDE OF BITTER FIGHTING AT SALERNO HAS SWUNG SUFFICIENTLY IN OUR FAVOR TO WARRANT "RESTRAINED OPTIMISM" IT WAS STATED AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS TODAY.

THE GERMAN BREAKTHROUGH ALONG THE SELE RIVER, WHICH AT ONE POINT TWO DAYS AGO PENETRATED WITHIN THREE MILES OF THE BEACH, HAS BEEN REPULSED AND OUR LINE STRAIGHTENED. IT IS FELT THAT THIS DRIVE, WHICH ALMOST SPLIT OUR SOUTHERN AND NORTHERN FORCES, WAS THE MAJOR COUNTERATTACK THE GERMANS WILL BE ABLE TO STAGE AND THAT FROM NOW ON OUR STRENGTH WILL BE BUILT UP SUFFICIENTLY TO INSURE HOLDING OUR POSITIONS AND ADVANCING TO HIGH GROUND STILL COMMANDED BY THE ENEMY.

A GREAT DEAL MORE FIGHTING IS EXPECTED BEFORE OUR POSITIONS ARE ENTIRELY SECURE, BUT IT IS FELT THE DANGER POINT HAS BEEN PASSED IN AN OPERATION WHICH OUR COMMAND KNEW FROM THE BEGINNING WAS EXTREMELY RISKY BUT IN WHICH POSSIBLE GAINS MADE THE RISKS AND LOSSES WORTHWHILE.

THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IS MEETING ALMOST NO OPPOSITION AND IS ADVANCING SO FAST THAT THE GERMANS ATTACKING OUR BEACHHEAD POSITIONS MUST BEGIN TO CONSIDER A WITHDRAWAL OR FACE THE THREAT OF BEING SURROUNDED.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC-(DELAYED)-MARINE SERGEANT JOHN ROTHSCHILD, 30, OF NEW YORK CITY, HAS TOLD HOW HE AND A MARINE BUDDY HELPED TO LIQUIDATE 100 J APANESE DURING A VIOLENT NIGHT FIGHT NEAR MUNDA, NEW GUINEA WHILE AMERICAN FORCES WERE TAKING THAT BASE THIS SUMMER.

TWO

HIS BUDDY WAS KILLED IN THE ACTION.

THE MARINES AND TWO SOLDIERS HAD VOLUNTEERED TO MAN MACHINEGUNS GUARDING

AN ARMY-HELD RIDGE. THREE COLUMNS OF ABOUT 150 CRACK JAPANESE JUNGLE

TROOPS ATTACKED AND MOST OF THEM WERE ANNIHILATED.

SEP 17 1943

THE TWO GUNS PROBABLY DID N O T ACCOUNT FOR ALL OF THE 100 DEAD JAPS

FOR THE OUTPOST LINE ON THE RIDGE JOINED IN THE FIRE. BUT THERE WAS LITTLE DOUBT THAT THE GUNNERS PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN THE VICTORY.

SGT. ROTHSCHILD, 333 E. 43RD ST., NEW YORK, TEAMED WITH ONE OF THE SOLDIERS AND HIS FRIEND WITH THE OTHER IN SEPARATE EMPLACEMENTS.

"ABOUT AN HOUR AFTER WE DUG IN," SAID ROTHSCHILD, "WE SAW A COLUMN OF

JAPS MOVING TOWARD US ON THE TRAIL. THEIR BAYONETS GLISTENED IN THE MOONLIGHT.

"WE GAVE THEM A BURST AND THE LEADER WENT DOWN. THE OTHERS SCATTERED.

1943

THEY RE-ORGANIZED AND TRIED AGAIN, BUT WE JUST KEPT ELIMINATING THEM UNTIL THEY GAVE IT UP.

"HALF AN HOUR LATER, ANOTHER COLUMN CAME IN FROM THE SAME DIRECTION. WE LET THEM GET CLOSE, OPENED UP AND DISPERSED THEM.

"ALL WAS QUIET FOR SEVERAL MINUTES.

"THEN A JAP DIVED INTO OUR EMPLACEMENT. THE SOLDIER STUCK BY THE GUN AND I WENT FOR THE JAP.

"I SHOT HIM ONCE AND THEN BEAT HIM OVER THE HEAD WITH THE BUTT OF MY RIFLE. I DON'T REMEMBER HOW LONG THE FIGHT LASTED, BUT ANYHOW HE WAS ELIMINATED.

"A THIRD COLUMN TRIED TO SNEAK UP THE TRAIL. WE LET THEM COME WITHIN 10 YARDS AND THEN MOWED THEM DOWN.

"WHAT JAPS WERE LEFT FORMED SOME KIND OF A LINE AND TRIED TO FILTER PAST US, BUT THE INFANTRY ON THE LINE--WHICH I REALIZED FOR THE FIRST TIME ALSO WAS FIRING--STOPPED THEM COLD.

"IN THE MORNING, I DISCOVERED MY BUDDY HAD BEEN KILLED. I'M N O T SURE WHAT HAPPENED TO THE TWO SOLDIERS. I CAN'T REMEMBER VERY CLEARLY."

WITH AMERICAN UNIT NEAR SALAMAUA, SEPT 15-(DELAYED)(AP)-TWO AMPHIBIOUS ENGINEERS RECEIVED THE SILVER STAR FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION IN THE FIRST AMERICAN DECORATION CEREMONY IN THE NEWLY CAPTURED SALAMAUA AREA.

COL.BENJAMIN FOWLKES,JR., OF SELMA, ALA., COMMANDING OFFICER, AWARDED THE MEDALS BEFORE ASSEMBLED TROOPS ON THE BEACH UNDER COCONUT PALMS WHERE THE JAPANESE FOUGHT A LOSING BATTLE ONLY A FEW HOURS BEFORE. THE AWARDS WENT TO T.SGT ERIK HELLESKOV, 30, OF SAN FRANCISCO, AND TECHNICIAN 5TH GRADE JOE ANGERER, 27, OF GRANDMOUND, IOWA.

HELLESKOV AND ANGERER WERE MEMBERS OF A CREW OF A LANDING BARGE WHICH WAS HIT BY JAPANESE SHELLS AT TAMBU BAY, SIX MILES SOUTH OF SALAMAUA, AFTER DARK ON AUGUS 20. ONE MAN WAS KILLED, ANOTHER WAS INJURED AND THE BOAT WAS BADLY DAMAGED.

HELLESKOV AND ANGERER CARRIED THE VICTIMS TO A MEDICAL UNIT, THEN TOOK THE BARGE 12 MILES SOUTH AND BEACHED IT AT NASSAU BAY. THE BARGE, WHICH BY THEN WAS SHIPPING WATER BADLY, WAS REPAIRED SUFFICIENTLY TO BE TAKEN TO ANOTHER BASE TO BE REFITTED FOR ACTION.

"THESE MEN COULD HAVE RUN FOR COVER AND LEFT THE DAMAGED BARGE TO BE DESTROYED BY THE JAPS' SHELLFIRE," SAID COLONEL FOWLKES. "BUT THEY RISKED THEIR LIVES FAR BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY TO REMOVE THEIR CRAFT TO SAFETY."

THERE WAS MUCH EVIDENCE THAT THE JAPANESE HAD WOMEN AT SALAMAUA. DUGOUTS ON THE PENINSULA CONTAINED COMPACTS, PERFUMES, JEWELRY, AND GREAT QUANTITIES OF CONTRACEPTIVES.

DOWN THE BAY FIVE MILES AT DOT INLET OUR FORCES FOUND A NUMBER OF WOMEN'S DRESSES AND FINE DISHES IN A NEATLY-SWEPT HOUSE.

PVT. THEODORE CALIENDO, 6211 FORT HAMILTON PARKWAY, BROOKLYN, N.Y., AMONG THE FIRST TROOPS TO LAND, APPROPRIATED A BICYCLE FOR HIMSELF. PFC ARNOLD RUTIN, 201 BAY 23RD ST., BROOKLYN, CLAIMED A PORTABLE PHONOGRAPH WITH A HALF DOZEN TINNY-SOUNDING JAPANESE RECORDS.

CPL. ROBERT RODMAN, 393 18TH ST., BROOKLYN, FOUND FIVE CHEAP TENNIS RACKETS MADE IN TOKYO. CPL. FRED REYNOLDS, 17 WEST CENTRAL BLVD., PALISADE PARK, N.J., SAID HE FOUND MARIJUANA CIGARETTES AND OPIUM PIPES. HE ALSO CAME ACROSS A SUPPLY OF SAKI WHICH HE DECLINED TO SAMPLE.

SEP 17 1943

OTHERS FOUND BEAUTIFUL MEDALS, COINS, MAGAZINES, BANNERS, SWORDS, WHITE GLOVES, MONOGRAMMED SILKSHIRTS EVIDENTLY FROM THE PHILIPPINES, AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES.

MAJOR WORTH FULBRIGHT, LAWTON, OKLA., AND 1ST LT. ROBERT L.WEIL, 2 E 86TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, WERE AMONG THE FIRST SOUVENIR HUNTERS. MEANWHILE, STAFF SGT. RALPH SEATON, FORMERLY WITH A MORTUARY IN SACRAMENTO, CALIF., AND HIS ASSISTANT, PFC ANDREW CLENYIK, 4249 BLAIR AVE., ST. LOUIS, MO., WENT ABOUT THE GLOOMY BUSINESS OF GRAVE REGISTRATION. SALAMAUA, NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE AUSTRALIAN FLAG, LOWERED WHEN THE JAPANESE INVADED SALAMAUA OVER A YEAR AND A HALF AGO, WAS RAISED OVER THE RUINED TOWN TODAY.

AN AUSTRALIAN MISSIONARY WHO RESCUED THE FLAG JUST BEFORE INVASION FORCES ARRIVED IN JANUARY, 1942, PRODUCED IT TODAY AND IT WAS RAISED WITH CEREMONY IN THE PRESENCE OF AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN TROOPS.

ALLIED FORCES PITCHED TENTS ALONG SALAMAUA ISTHMUS THROUGHOUT THE AREA WITHOUT FEAR OF ENEMY RAIDS. MANY TROOPS DINED OFF NEWLY-CAPTURED CHINAWARE AND DRANK FRESH, PURE WATER FILTERED THROUGH NEW JAPANESE PUMP INSTALLATIONS.

HOT COFFEE AND DOUGHNUTS WERE SERVED TO ALLIED TROOPS WHICH LANDED FROM BARGES AT SALAMAUA TODAY A FEW HOURS AFTER OTHER UNITS, COMING ACROSS COUNTRY FROM MOUNT TAMBU, HAD OCCUPIED HE AREA.

JOHN TAYLOR, A RED CROSS WORKER, AND AN ARMY COOK HAD ATTEMPTED TO BRING COFFEE AND 80 DOZEN DOUGHNUTS ASHORE WHILE THE TROOPS WERE ADVANCING ON SALAMAUA. THEY LOST THE COFFEE IN THE SURF BUT SAVED THE DOUGHNUTS BY HOLDING THEM OVER THEIR HEADS.

THEN THEY STOOD BESIDE A JUNGLE PATH AND HANDED TWO DOUGHNUTS TO EACH SOLDIER THAT PASSED.

THE COFFEE CAME FROM A RED CROSS TENT PREVIOUSLY SET UP BY TAYLOR, WHO IS FROM GRAMERCY PARK,N.Y., AND LEO SCHWARTZ, OF WASHINGTON, D.C., ANOTHER RED CROSS WORKER.

HIS BUDDIES, SGT.KENNETH ROBERTSON OF PORTLAND, ORE., AND PFC ALEXANDER BRADSHAW, CORVALLIS, ORE., COMPOSED A FORWARD PATROL FROM A BATTALION OF THE 162ND INFANTRY REGIMENT.

"WE SWAM THE FRANCISCO RIVER ABOUT DAYBREAK ON THE MORNING OF SEPTEMBER 12 AND CROSSED THE AIRSTRIP," SAID DANIEL. "WE SAW AN AUSTRALIAN PATROL COMING DOWN FROM THE WEST FROM THE CHINATOWN AREA WHERE THEY HAD SPENT THE NIGHT.

"THE AUSSIES PASSED US WHILE WE WERE LOOKING AT THE FIRST WRECKED BUILDING ON THE ISTHMUS, BUT WE PASSED THEM AT THE NEXT OUSE. WE DEFINITELY WERE THE FIRST ALLIED SOLDIERS ON THE ISTHMUS."

DANIEL SAID HE HAD KILLED 15 JAPANESE AND WOUNDED 15. HE SHOT TWO SNIPERS OUT OF THE TREES AND THE REST ON THE GROUND. ON HIS BIGGEST DAY HE SAID HE HAD KILLED 10 AND WTUNDED 10.

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES WEST OF LAE, NEW GUINEA, SEPT.15--(DELAYED)-(AP)-AUSTRALIAN PROGRESS DOWN THE BROAD MARKHAM RIVER VALLEY TO STRIKE AT THE KEY JAPANESE BASE OF LAE IS PROCEEDING AT SUCH A CLIP IT IS EXTREMELY DIFFICULT TO KEEP UP WITH THE DASH, ESPECIALLY SINCE THE NEED FOR MOVING AMMUNITION AND OTHER SUPPLIES PLACES TRANSPORT AT A PREMIUM.

AFTER AN 11-MILE HIKE BY DAYLIGHT YESTERDAY FOLLOWED BY A MOONLIGHT RIDE BY JEEP, BEGINNING AT MIDNIGHT, CORRESPONDENTS ARRIVED AT WHAT HAD BEEN AUSTRALIAN FORWARD HEADQUARTERS. THEY FOUND HEADQUARTERS ALREADY PREPARED TO PUSH ON.

THIS DISPATCH IS BEING WRITTEN ON A JUNGLE HILLSIDE OVERLOOKING HEATH'S PLANTATION, ONE OF SEVERAL POSITIONS WHERE THE ENEMY HAD BEEN EXPECTED TO MAKE A STIFF STAND ONLY TO WITHDRAW IN THE FACE OF ALLIED PRESSURE.

(GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE TODAY SAID ALLIED WESTERN FORCES CAPTURED THE CENTERS OF RESISTANCE AT HEATH'S AND VERNON'S PLANTATIONS AND WERE PUSHING DOWN THE VALLEY TOWARD LAE.)

NOT FAR BEHIND US AN AUSTRALIAN 25-POUNDER BATTERY OPENS UP INTERMITTENTLY WITH SHATTERING BLASTS. FROM THE MOUTH OF THE VALLEY COME BURSTING ACK-ACK EXPLOSIONS. ALLIED BOMBERS APPARENTLY ARE PLASTERING LAE ITSELF, ABOUT SEVEN MILES DOWN THE TRACK FROM HERE.

ALLIED ARTILLERY HAS BEEN DOING A NOTABLE JOB. LAST NIGHT CONCENTRATED FIRE WAS DIRECTED ON BARGE TRAFFIC REPORTED IN THE LOWER REACHES OF THE MARKHAM RIVER. AFTER PUTTING AN END TO BARGE MOVEMENTS, FIRING WAS RESUMED ON JAPANESE GROUND POSITIONS.

THE ONRUSHING AUSSIES, DELAYED ONLY BRIEFLY AT POINTS WHERE THEY HAD EXPECTED BITTER STRUGGLES, HAVE RECOVERED QUANTITIES OF JAPANESE EQUIPMENT INCLUDING SUCH ITEMS AS HEAVY MACHINE GUNS STILL IN FACTORY GREASE-PACKING, AND THREE 37 MM DUAL-PURPOSE CANNON WITH AMPLE AMMUNITION.

SEP 17 1943

AMERICAN TROOPS ALSO FIGURE IN THE PICTURE. PARATROOPS UNDER THEIR SENIOR OFFICER, LT. COL. JOHN TOLSON OF NEWBERN, N.C., MOVED INTO A FORWARD POSITION TODAY.

THE SOUND OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT THIS MORNING AS WELL AS SOME COUNTER BATTERY FIRE LAST NIGHT INDICATES THAT THE JAPANESE AT LAE STILL ARE STICKING TO THEIR GUNS IN WHAT WAS ONCE THE MOST IMPORTANT BASE FOR THEIR NEW GUINEA CAMPAIGN.

THE SUCCESS OF THE CURRENT VENTURE IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY RELIES

30. 24 - 8517

LARGELY ON TWO AMERICAN CONTRIBUTIONS, ALTHOUGH AUSTRALIANS ARE DOING ALMOST ALL OF THE ACTUAL GROUND FIGHTING. THOSE CONTRIBUTIONS ARE THE AMERICAN-FLOWN C-47 TRANSPORT PLANES WHICH POUR INTO NADZAB AIRDROME EACH CLEAR DAY AND THE AUSTRALIAN-DRIVEN AMERICAN JEEPS WHICH HAUL UNBELIEVABLE LOADS OVER WHAT STARTS AS A BROAD, FAIRLY SMOOTH, SANDY ROAD. AS THE TRAIL APPROACHES THE FIRING LINE IT BOGS DOWN DEEPER AND DEEPER IN MUD.

AMONG AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY AND PIONEER UNITS, COMPARABLE TO U.S. COMBAT ENGINEERS, WHICH PUSHED TOWARD LAE THERE ALREADY HAVE BEEN A NUMBER OF GALLANT INDIVIDUAL EXPLOITS.

ONE OF THESE WAS EXECUTED BY A NERVOUS, SALLOW FACED LITTLE PRIVATE, ONLY FIVE FEET SIX INCHES TALL WHO WAS LIVING IN COUNTY KERRY, IRELAND, BEFORE THE WAR. TWO DAYS AGO HIS PLATOON WAS PINNED DOWN BY A NETTLESOME JAPANESE MACHINE GUN POST WHICH KILLED FIVE AND WOUNDED THREE MORE OF HIS COMRADES.

THE 33-YEAR-OLD DIGGER FIRST RUSHED DOWN A SLOPE TO PITCH TWO GRENADES FROM WITHIN 30 YARDS OF THE POST. THEN FINDING THE GUN STILL WAS NOT SILENCED HE MADE ANOTHER RUSH, FIRING A BERN GUN FROM HIS HIP. THIS FINISHED THE ENEMY.

AS IF THAT WERE NOT ENOUGH, THE LITTLE IRISH PRIVATE THEN REQUESTED PERMISSION TO GO FORWARD AGAIN TO HAUL HIS WOUNDED SECTION LEADER TO SAFETY. IT WAS GENERALLY CONCEDED THAT HIS EXPLOIT MADE IT POSSIBLE TO OUTFLANK THE JAPANESE AND PUSH THEM OUT OF A BRIDGE POSITION LEADING TO HEATH'S PLANTATION, AN ENEMY STRONGPOINT.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, AUG.23-(BY MAIL)-(AP)-WITH FOUR NATIVE BOYS AS GUIDES, A PARTY OF MEN FROM THE FIFTH AIR FORCE WENT EXPLORING IN THE JUNGLE TO THE POINT MARKING THE FURTHERMOST ADVANCE OF THE JAPANESE IN NEW GUINEA DURING SEPTEMBER, 1942.

THE PURPOSE OF THEIR TRIP WAS TO RECRUIT A CREW OF NATIVE LABORERS AT A REMOTE VILLAGE. MOST OF THE DISTANCE WAS COVERED IN A WEAPONS CARRIER, WITH SECOND LIEUT. THOMAS B.WOOD, 495 MERRITT AVENUE, OAKLAND, CALIF., PILOTING THE MACHINE THROUGH FIELDS OF KUNAI 12 FEET HIGH.

AT ONE POINT WOOD DROVE ALONE ACROSS A SWIFT, ROCKY STREAM. UPON REACHING THE OTHER SIDE IT WAS DISCOVERED THAT HIS RIGHT WHEELS HAD COME WITHIN A FEW INCHES OF A 20-FOOT DROP. AT ANOTHER POINT THE MACHINE CROSSED A DEEP STREAM UPON A NATIVE BRIDGE CONSISTING OF TWO LOGS.

SEVERAL TIMES THE CAR BECAME STUCK IN MUD. ONCE IT WAS PULLED OUT BY 20 NATIVES USING A ROPE MADE OF VINES.

"AT THE VILLAGE, WE WERE GREETED BY AN ATTRACTIVE YOUNG NATIVE WOMAN, THE VILLAGE SCHOOLTEACHER, WHO SPOKE FAULTLESS ENGLISH," SAID LIEUT. WOOD.

"THE NATIVES BROUGHT OUT FOOD, AND LOANED ME A FRESHLY LAUNDERED PAIR OF TROUSERS TO REPLACE MY WET ONES. THEY PUT ON A DANCE FOR US, AND THAT NIGHT THEY LET US SLEEP IN THEIR GRASS-ROOF CHAPEL. WE EVEN HAD SNOW-WHITE PILLOWS, SOMETHING WE DON'T HAVE AT OUR CAMP."

BEFORE THEIR DEPARTURE NEXT MORNING, THE AMERICANS WERE PRESENTED WITH CARVED WALKING STICKS, AND SGT. SAMUEL R.BAYNE OF 5725 CHERRY STREET, KANSAS CITY, MO., RECEIVED A SPECIAL GIFT--A LIVE ROOSTER.

THE TRAVELERS WERE MEMBERS OF THE FAMOUS "HEADHUNTER" SQUADRON, A PIONEER FIGHTER UNIT IN NEW GUINEA. OTHERS IN THE GROUP, IN ADDITION TO LIEUT. WOOD AND SGT. BAYNE, WERE STAFF SGT. ONE OF THE FINEST SERVICES FUEHRER HITLER COULD RENDER THE ALLIES IS HIS REVIVAL OF THE FALLEN AND DISHONORED FASCIST REGIME UNDER THE CONTROL--OR SO THE NAZIS SAY--OF ITS OLD MASTER, MUSSOLINI.

THE UNITED NATIONS HAD CARRIED OUT THEIR AIM OF SMASHING FASCISM. THE COLLAPSE OF THE INCOMPETENT AND CORRUPT GOVERNMENT EXPOSED THE FASCIST RULE TO THE WORLD FOR EXACTLY WHAT IT WAS--A DICTATORSHIP OF GANGSTERS WHO NOT ONLY WAGED COWARDLY WAR ON SMALL AND HELPLESS COUNTRIES, AND AGAINST THEIR GRIEVOUSLY WOUNDED NEIGHBOR, BUT MADE THEMSELVES AND THEIR MISTRESSES VASTLY RICH BY PLUNDERING THEIR OWN PEOPLE.

THE VAST MAJORITY OF ITALIANS, WHILE HEART-BROKEN OVER THE STRAITS TO WHICH THEIR COUNTRY HAS BEEN REDUCED BY MUSSOLINI'S WICKEDNESS AND STUPIDITY, NEVERTHELESS HAVE BEEN REJOICING THAT THEY FINALLY HAVE BEEN RID OF THIS NASTY OLD MAN WHO PERSONIFIES THE "SOFT UNDERBELLY OF EUROPE." NO PRICE IS TOO GREAT TO PURCHASE FREEDOM FROM SUCH A TYRANT.

NOW ALONG COMES THE ARCH GANGSTER OF THEM ALL AND SETS UP A LITTLE PUPPET GOVERNMENT IN THE NAME OF FASCISM. HE TRIES TO GIVE IT LIFE BY ANNOUNCING THAT MUSSOLINI HIMSELF IS THE QUISLING OF THIS REVIVAL--A STATEMENT WHICH CERTAINLY REQUIRES OCULAR PROOF BEFORE THE WORLD WILL ACCEPT IT AS TRUTH. AT THIS WRITING THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE EX-DICTATOR IS A GREAT MYSTERY, AND IT'S EVEN RUMORED THAT HE'S DEAD. IF HE IS, THE DEVIL HAS A NEW PAL.

ANYWAY, DEAD OR HALF ALIVE IN HIS TERROR, THE DUCE'S USEFULNESS IS ABOUT THE SAME. THIS PUPPET "GOVERNMENT," WHICH IS A STAGE-PLAY AFFAIR, WILL DRAG OUT ITS BRIEF EXISTENCE, TO PROVIDE A FURTHER STRIKING DEMONSTRATION OF THE FOLLY OF MUSSOLINI'S FASCIST FANCIES. IT WILL CLINCH THE ARGUMENT FOR THE OVERTHROW OF FASCISM AND NAZIISM AND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF DEMOCRACIES IN THEIR STEAD.

WHY IS HITLER THUS EXHIBITING FASCISM IN ITS NAKEDNESS AND SO TAKING THE CHANCE OF WEAKENING HIS OWN DICTATORSHIP? WELL, THERE ARE SEVERAL REASONS, ALL OF THEM UNDERSTANDABLE. IN THE FIRST PLACE HE IS, OF COURSE, PLAYING FOR TIME, AND SO IS TRYING TO FOOL THE WORLD FOR A BRIEF PERIOD INTO THE IDEA THAT FASCISM REALLY ISN'T DEAD AT ALL BUT IS STILL A POTENT INFLUENCE AND A TOWER OF STRENGTH TO THE AXIS.

THE ALL HIGHEST IS PARTICULARLY ANXIOUS TO CONVEY THIS IMPRESSION TO THE BALKANS. HE IS TRYING FRANTICALLY TO PREVENT FURTHER DISAFFECTION AMONG HIS BALKAN SATELLITES, WHOSE ALLEGIANCE TO THE AXIS HAS BEEN DUE IN CONSIDERABLE MEASURE TO ITALIAN INFLUENCE. HE ALSO WANTS TO REASSURE HIS HOME FRONT THAT ALL IS STILL WELL IN THE AXIS CAMP. AND HE FIGURES THAT HIS RUSE MAY PROVIDE SOME DISCOURAGEMENT FOR ALLIED

PEOPLES.

IT IS A STUNT WHICH THE NAZI DICTATOR SCARCELY WOULD TRY UNDER NORMAL CIRCUMSTANCES. HOWEVER, HE IS FIGHTING WITH HIS BACK TO THE WALL TO SAVE HIS OWN POSITION. HE CAN'T HAVE THE SLIGHTEST EXPECTATION OF PUTTING FASCISM BACK ON ITS FEET PERMANENTLY, OR OF PREVENTING THE ALLIED CONQUEST OF ITALY.

STILL, HE IS GAMBLING THAT HE MAY CREATE A DELAY, AND HESITATION IN THE ENEMY CAMP, WHICH MAY ENABLE HIM TO DISCOVER SOME FRESH RAY OF HOPE. HIS POSITION HAS BECOME SO GRAVE THAT IN UNDERTAKING THIS DRAMATIC PROPAGANDA HE REALLY HAS LITTLE TO LOSE AND EVERYTHING TO GAIN.

TIME IS HITLER'S ALLY RIGHT NOW. ALREADY THE AUTUMN RAINS HAVE BEGUN IN RUSSIA, AND THIS MAY GIVE HIS DESPERATE ARMIES A RESPITE FROM THE DISASTROUS HAMMERING THEY ARE GETTING FROM THE RED FORCES. EVERY PASSING DAY LESSENS THE DANGER OF AN ALLIED INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE, BECAUSE OF WEATHER CONDITIONS. EACH HOUR THAT HE CAN HANG ON ENABLES HIM TO REPAIR BROKEN FENCES.

LOOKING AT THE MATTER FROM THAT LIGHT, HITLER'S SCHEME IS A SMART ONE.

Americans Regain Ground in Salerno Area —Berlin Reports Allied Convoy on Way to Battle.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—The Fifth Army of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark and the British Eighth Army fused their fronts with establishment of contact between patrols following an amazing northward march of nearly 200 miles from the Italian toe by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's veterans, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The Eighth Army also made contact with British forces beating up the Italian east coast from Taranto, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced. All three of the Allied beachheads on the west, south and east thereby were welded into a single front.

The contact between Gen. Montgomery's speeding warriors and Gen. Clark's American and British troops, who for eight days had fought the greatest engagement of the Mediterranean war in order to maintain their west coast foothold, was made somewhere in or near the southern end of the Salerno bridgehead.

Linking of the two armies broke the enemy's ring of steel around Gen. Clark's Tommies and Doughboys and appeared to have ended the critical period of the battle fought against four or more German armored divisions on the blood-stained beaches.

[A Berlin broadcast by the International Information Bureau admitted that the Fifth and Eighth armies had made contact and said that three Allied convoys totaling sixty ships were now steaming for Salerno.]

[The Reuters correspondent with the Fifth Army said that enemy troop movements indicated the Germans were beginning to withdraw from the front facing the southern part of the bridgehead.]

Announcement of the contact was made by Allied headquarters shortly after a communique had told of Gen. Montgomery's capture of Vallo Della Lucania, only sixteen miles from Agropoli, at the southern end of the twenty-seven-mile front held by the Fifth Army.

At the same time, Gen. Clark's army struck out from its hard-won shoreline and recaptured the mountain village of Albanella, ten miles inland, smashed three German counter-attacks and flattened out several German salients that had been driven into Allied positions.

[An Algiers broadcast by NBC said that Montecorvino, eight and a half miles inland and eleven miles east of Salerno at the northern end of the bridgehead, also was captured in the repulse of one of the German attacks.

[London dispatches said seizure of Montecorvino would be a significant Allied victory as the town is understood to be the site of one of the best airfields along the whole lower stretch of Italian west coast.

[A British broadcast from Algiers, recorded by CBS, said that the Fifth and Eighth Army patrols met about half way between Agropoli and Vallo Della Lucania, or less than ten miles from the beachhead.]

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said the Germans' efforts to reduce the Allied bridgehead "have weakened considerably," that air and naval support of the land fighters continued to be heavy and effective, and repeated Gen. Clark's declaration of yesterday that the Salerno position was now firmly established.

A headquarters spokesman, summarizing the two-weeks campaign that began with Gen. Montgomery's landing on the Italian toe September 3, said the Allies now have occupied three provinces of southern Italy, grabbed the three valuable ports of Taranto, Brindisi and Bari, and gained possession of a large number of excellent air bases, particularly in Apulia province where there are paved runways on which the heaviest bombers can operate at all times.

Hold Mountain Bulge.

Although the thrusts up the east coast to Bari and the landing on the west coast at Salerno have established a firm grip as high as the ankle of the Italian boot, the Germans apparently still held a mountain bulge in the center of the peninsula.

British troops from Taranto remained in contact with the Germans at Gioja del Colle, midway between Taranto and Bari, where units of the First German Parachute Division have been reported.

Today's communique announced a series of continued heavy bombings of road and transport targets by both the northwest African and Middle East air forces, striking both day and night, at Potenza in the middle of the Appenines range. These blows, indicating that the Germans still were in that locality, were aimed at targets about fifty-five miles north of the Gulf of Taranto.

There was no information yet as to whether the junction of the Fifth and Eighth armies had compelled the Nazis to withdraw northward from the vicinity of Agropoli, at the southern end of the Fifth Army's foothold.

[The German communique, recorded by the Associated Press from Berlin broadcasts, said that Allied parachute troop attacks had been made in the German rear, but declared these troops were wiped out while declaring that "the enemy landing head at Salerno was still further compressed," the Germans admitted that the Allies had thrown fresh forces ashore and that Allied resistance near Eboli had considerably stiffened.]

Germans Need Crack Troops.

In a final desperate attempt at splitting Gen. Clark's army before the Eighth Army's arrival, the Germans threw crack assault troops and tanks into three furious attacks yesterday.

One was against the town of Salerno and two others were in the vicinity of Montecorvino. In knocking back these attacks, the Allies took a substantial number of prisoners, including a battalion commander at Montecorvino.

Five enemy tanks were knocked out at the latter place, also.

As a result of the attacks Gen. Clark's troops seized high ground south of the Calore River from which German guns had commanded southern portions of the bridgehead.

A message from the battle front said: "We are beating off everything the Germans are able to put in. The morale and fighting spirit of Fifth Army troops could not be better. It has been tough going, but we are over the hump and things are going our way."

Terming Gen. Clark's now successful landing as "most significant," an Allied headquarters spokesman said that it proved "we can land a big army and strike hard in a defended area in the Fortress of Europe. With German troops in close proximity who knew we were coming, the Fifth Army landed and fought under conditions which the Germans always said would enable them to resist any invasion of the mainland—conditions upon which they based their superman claims."

Helped Eighth Army.

The spokesman said that the Fifth Army's landing and the sturdy fight in the face of heavy German armored forces compelled the Germans to withdraw from the southern provinces and enabled the Eighth Army to advance without resistance.

"The Eighth Army's advance of 200 miles in two weeks has been made possible by the Fifth Army," it was stated. "Without the landing the Germans would have made a strong line somewhere south of Salerno and attempted to hold on until winter and certainly would have made an advance from the south much slower."

At the moment when the Germans two days ago were claiming in radio announcements that the Fifth Army was being evacuated, it was pointed out, the Allies were beginning to launch the first of a really large series of offensive counter-attacks.

Air Power Lacking.

With the weakening of German resistance in the Salerno area, the German Air Force also was less in evidence. Allied bombers and fighters over the battle area and rear zones reported only slight ground fire, and were able to destroy only one German plane while losing only two.

Not a single German fighter was encountered yesterday by Allied bombers, and German air attacks were limited to sneak raids.

With the German drive to wipe out the bridgehead finally smashed, the big bombers of Major-Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic air force turned their attention to road and rail communications north of Naples.

Caserta, Benevento, Capua and Isernia, Migano and Formia all were bombed in that area.

[The United Nations radio at Algiers said in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press in London that Allied fighters now are taking off for the battle of Salerno from a captured airfield not far from the scene. It was not identified.]

Associated Press correspondent Daniel De Luce, who reached Fifth Army headquarters two days ago after a daring 100-mile trip through No Man's Land in advance of the Eighth, reported the Germans had thrown few obstructions in the path of Montgomery's veterans.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy commander in chief, stepped ashore in the Salerno area Wednesday, possibly to be on hand to take personal command of the over-all operations in Italy when the Fifth and Eighth armies become one united force.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 17.—(AP) The American Fifth army, winner of the violent battle for Salerno, joined today with the British Eighth army after the latter's epic 200-mile conquest of the Italian toe and shattered the last hopes of the weakened Germans for establishing a defense line in that area.

Indications were that the Germans already were being pulled away from the southern end of the Salerno front to avoid being caught from behind by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's onrushing Britons.

Firmly holding the initiative, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army battered 10 miles inland to capture the elevated village of Albanella. The Allies also seized other heights south of the Calore river, commanding the coastal flats on which much of the past week's bloody fighting raged.

Airfield Captured

(Radio Algiers said the Allies had taken Montecorvino and its excellent airfield, 8 1-2 miles inland and 11 miles east of Salerno.)

All Allied holdings in southern, eastern and western Italy were welded into a single front. The Eighth army not only joined the Fifth below the cemented Salerno beachheads, but established contact with other British forces beating up eastern Italy's Adriatic coast from Taranto beyond Bari.

The German air force almost vanished from southern Italian skies. The preponderance of Allied air power was turned in smashing a week of violent combat on and near the beaches. Naval support continued excellent.

Nazi Resistance Weakens

The possibility that further Nazi withdrawals northward were in progress was seen in the announcement of weakened resistance to the Fifth army's enlargement of its foothold onto high ground, and in the fact that the main body of the Eighth army was advancing to an area where it could jeopardize enemy forces anywhere south of the Sele river.

Gen. Clark and Gen. Montgomery established contact in or near the southern end of the Salerno bridgehead, which extends to Agropoli. The last announced town to fall to the Eighth army was Vallo Della Lucania, 16 miles from Agropoli.

The absence of German planes for the second day and the weakened fire from anti-aircraft batteries were viewed as significant. German ground fire usually is intensive over any area the Germans intend to hold. Pilots encountered little flak yesterday anywhere near the front.

(The German communique said that Allied parachute troops had been wiped out behind their lines, that Allied resistance had stiffened considerable since strong reinforcements landed and that "the enemy landing head at Salerno was still further compressed." The Nazis asserted they had isolated U. S. groups in the Eboli area, capturing prisoners and materiel.

(Subsequent broadcasts admitted the Fifth and Eighth armies had joined; that Gen. Montgomery had poured a division and a half into American positions; and that 60 ships were heading for Salerno.)

Three entire provinces in southern Italy were in Allied hands. Three important ports of Taranto, Bari and Brindisi were captured. A large number of excellent bases with paved runways, particularly in Apulia province along the Adriatic, were taken. Capable of handling the heaviest bombers, the fields brought the restive Balkans and such targets as the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania, closer to Allied bombsights.

One Front in Italy

The newly-fused single front in southern Italy was like a crescent with its ends anchored at Salerno, 20 miles south of Naples on the Mediterranean, and Bari, almost directly east of Naples on the Adriatic. The convex center of the line was in the lower Apennines around Gioia, where British patrols were probing 30 miles north of Taranto, late an Italian naval base.

The Allies controlled all southern Italy's shoreline on the Ionian sea, about 200 miles of west coast bathed by the Mediterranean and about 145 miles of the Adriatic north to Bari. The Germans apparently clung temporarily to the mountainous center.

The contact at Gioia appeared to be with rear guard screens of a German parachute division. The enemy was believed to lack strength to resist a determined Allied drive in the center.

The crushing air blows north of Naples suggested that the battle for that port was in its first stage, and that the Allies might be attempting to block escape routes of the five German divisions around Salerno, or at least to prevent reinforcements.)

Major Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic air force concentrated on half a dozen targets and this shifting of bomb weight attested to the improved position of the Fifth army.

Naples Area Raided

Flying Fortresses laid a pattern of bombs on the Caserta area north of Naples, hitting roads and a bridge. They also blanketed the Benevento area, 40 miles northeast of Naples. Capua to the north attracted Mitchell bombers, which pounded the railway system, bridges and docks. Other Mitchells bombed a railway and road junction at Isernia, 55 miles north of Naples. Twenty miles northwest of the port, Marauder bombers attacked a highway at Mignano. Marauders also pounded a road junction at Formia, northwest of Naples.

Other planes of the tactical airforce strongly supported troops fighting at Salerno, with Allied fighters maintaining constant patrol. Four enemy planes were destroyed yesterday and two Allied craft were lost.

A military spokesman paid high tribute to Allied engineers. In addition to bearing part of the Fifth army's active fighting assignments, they lifted mines to open the way for attacks and maintained beach facilities for bringing in essential reinforcements and supplies. All their work was done despite heavy enemy shellfire and frequent raids by Nazi planes.

It was disclosed officially that United States Rangers were part of Gen. Clark's initial landing force and that they held one vital sector at the northern end of the brideghead.

Jack Rice, Associated Press photographer who accompanied the Rangers, said they landed at a little town in the northern sector at 3:30 a. m. on Sept. 9.

"The town lies up a narrow and deep valley through which the men moved in darkness," Rice said. "Several miles up from the town our leading unit commanded by Major William E. Martin surprised a German armored scout car and put it out of action with a single shot from a bazooka. A bit farther on, the same unit captured a German reconnaissance car with eight soldiers."

The Rangers were veterans of some of the most spectacular fighting in Tunisia and Sicily.

might against communications north of Naples, casting a high explosive barrage around that great Italian port which Gen. Clark calls his next objective.

Powerful Reinforcements Let Fifth Army Swing to Offensive.

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press War Correspondent
Representing the Combined American Press

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 16.—(Delayed)—The German army began a slow, orderly and fighting retreat today from the ground opposite the main American bridgehead.

The enemy's rearguard has both tank and artillery support. This means that the American advance will be slow and against serious opposition.

The German is fighting like a wounded animal—and he has been seriously wounded—that is dangerous if you get too close.

Situation Changes Overnight

The Americans definitely are on the offensive now. The situation changed magically almost overnight. Our strength has been built up, with the arrival of reinforcements, both men and materiiel, to the point where the Fifth army could go over to the attack, and attacks have been the order of the day ever since.

The imminent arrival of the British Eighth army leaves the Germans no choice but to withdraw. They are using every man and every piece of equipment with consummate skill, getting the most out of everything.

Our advance now is rolling but, barring the unlikely possibility of the Germans making some grave tactical blunder, there is small chance of a sudden break-through.

The troops are anxious to have another crack at the enemy. They are going to get more support of all types this time and are determined to hold the ground, once for all.

Their spirit is magnificent. Here is an example: While we were on a ridge, German 88 mm guns opened up a bombardment. During the firing one of the soldiers turned to his mates nearby and said in the best unprintable language "—let's go get those yellow—instead of staying here." He was Pfc Billy Pruitt of Mingus, Tex., and he expressed the sentiments of the whole group.

That is the attitude of the American boys.

Americans Plunge Ahead and Take 150 Prisoners in One Sector, a Record Bag

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

Distributed by The Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 17—For the second consecutive day Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army today continued its offensive, regaining all ground lost during four days of enemy counter-attacks, and advancing.

The Fifth Army has taken or retaken three important towns. The Americans in one sector took a total of 150 German prisoners, the largest single bag to date, and also knocked out six half-tracks and five tanks. British units with the Fifth Army in another sector drove two miles into fresh territory.

The rapid advance of the British Eighth Army has brought that force into threatening positions against the enemy in and around the Salerno sector, with the result that the armies of General Clark and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery may become part of a single war machine headed for Naples, Rome and cities to the north.

The Americans during the past twenty-four hours threw back the Germans, following their two counter-attacks of Wednesday night, to wrest the initiative and rush forward.

Reinforcements, which arrived in large numbers, are already giving the Fifth Army fresh forces all along the line. Advances in the last twenty-four hours resulted in the taking of a series of ridges, knobs and dominating areas southeast of Salerno.

Elements of five German divisions have been identified at the front by the Fifth Army—namely the Herman Goering, the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-ninth Motorized Divisions.

In two of the recaptured towns I was told by townsfolk with whom I talked that the Germans on leaving warned them against the Americans, who "were coming with troops of wild Indians, wearing feathers and daubed with war paint."

The Italians, who had been subjected to fascist propaganda so many years, weren't frightened by this bugaboo. They had seen Indians in American movies and an old Italian woman in Albanella told me: "I always wanted to see a real Indian. Are you sure there aren't any?"

Fifth, Eighth Army Joining Turns Battle Tide in Italy

Success of Eisenhower Strategy Perils Nazi Divisions.

By WILLIAM WHITE

LONDON, Sept. 17—(AP) The juncture of the British Eighth Army and the American Fifth Army at the lower end of the Salerno bridgehead overturned the whole battle position in Italy tonight.

It cast four or five Nazi divisions into peril and raised doubt that Hitler would be able to offer anything better than a delaying action against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's forces anywhere below the Po line in northern Italy.

At the moment the first sweaty patrols from the Eighth Army met their comrades of the Fifth, the German command lost a great gamble, for much had been spent for the Salerno position, where for a time the whole Allied plan was in danger.

Germans Face Hard Choice

Now the Germans were confronted with a hard choice: Whether to try to defend the approaches to Naples—an essential communications point for all southern Italy—against Gen. Mark W. Clark's frontal lunges and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's sweeps at their flank and rear, or to attempt to retreat at once to the north against the very strong threat to them of two brilliant Allied armies, Allied air superiority and utter Allied control of the sea.

Either alternative could have been behind the Nazi movements, which some field correspondents interpreted as the beginning of a Nazi withdrawal from the southern end of the Salerno line.

Had Gen. Clark and his Fifth Army gone under, the entire initial phase of the campaign for Italy would have been lost to the Allies.

Clark's victory and the victory represented by Gen. Montgomery's arrival at the end of a 200-mile forced march meant the loss to the Nazis of that initial phase as well as the loss of one of the most favorable positions they possibly could have picked for a stand anywhere in southern Italy.

It remained true, however, that German positions in the north, by every indication, are far stronger than they ever were in the south, and that our communications line will lengthen up the peninsula.

Factors in Victory

The victory at Salerno was brought about principally by these factors:

First of all the unexcelled valor of Clark's troops in throwing in one of the hardest landing operations in all history and making it stick in the face of the terrible power of German artillery in the dominating hills.

Second, the tremendous bombardments by the Allied fleets, which in some cases even helped break up German tank attacks.

Third, the great rise in power and effectiveness of Allied air attacks after a shortage of fighter cover in the early part of the campaign.

Fourth, the plan itself—Gen. Eisenhower's plan—which recognized the dangers of sending Clark's army into such an easily defended area but accepted these dangers, nevertheless, to bring about one of the most difficult amalgamations of armies ever undertaken.

Fifth, the wearing away of the enemy's supplies through our counter-action and through his prodigal expenditures during six days of unbroken attack.

London, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that one of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army motorized divisions had been landed near Salerno Wednesday night to reinforce the American Fifth Army.

Convoys Are Reported

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Nazi propagandists who declared earlier in the week that Allied forces were evacuating the Salerno area in Italy reversed their field today, admitting that the British Eighth Army had made contact with the American Fifth Army and reporting that three Allied convoys totaling sixty ships were steaming for Salerno.

The International Information Bureau, German propaganda agency, asserted in a Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press that both American and British forces in the Salerno beachhead "have received reinforcements from the Eighth Army."

It added that "among other" Eighth Army units that had arrived at Salerno was a tank brigade. It claimed that "the Thirty-sixth American Division must be considered almost entirely wiped out" but conceded that the Allies in the last forty-eight hours "considerably widened" the southern part of the bridgehead through new landings.

"It may be estimated," said a Berlin broadcast by the German news agency DNB, "that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's tank formations and motorized units landed on the American bridgehead at a fighting potential of about one and a half divisions. We may also presume that American reinforcements will continually be brought up by sea."

"We may safely conclude," said the international information bureau, "that the enemy fears no sacrifice and will pay any price to hold his position.

"In the Palermo harbor a concentration of ninety steamers with a total tonnage of 400,000 has been observed. This goes to prove that further troop transports are intended for the assistance of the invasion troops."

DNB said General Montgomery brought up reinforcements "across the sea" to aid the Americans south of Eboli and observed that "the situation in that sector must be considered stationary."

In the northern part of the bridgehead the agency conceded an "obstinate" Allied defense of the "outmost toughness and the support of heavy navy artillery."

The Americans south of the River Sele, the broadcast continued, are among those receiving reinforcements. Here, it acknowledged, the Allies are preparing a heavy offensive action "to widen the beachhead with the help of new landings."

Greater Attacks on Europe Are Promised by Roosevelt

Nazi Allies Hoping for Peace, President Tells Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) President Roosevelt, broadly sketching an optimistic picture of the war's outlook, told Congress today that Rumania, Hungary, Finland are thirsting for peace and that "definite times and places" have been chosen for tremendous new blows—including additional invasions of Europe—against Germany and Japan.

Yet he warned that "we are still a long, long way from ultimate victory in any major theater of the war."

Tremendous Task Ahead

"In all history," he said, "there has never been a task so tremendous as that which we now face. We can do it—and we will do it—but we must plan and work and fight with every ounce of intelligence and energy and courage that we possess."

In a 6,000-word message to the legislators, Mr. Roosevelt also made these major pronouncements:

1. The Pacific islands mandated to Japan by the League of Nations will be taken from her and also the territories which she stole from China.

2. "When Hitler and the Nazis go out, the Prussian military clique must go with them. The war-breeding gang of militarists must be rooted out of Germany—and out of Japan—if we are to have any real assurance of future peace."

3. We seek cooperation with other nations "toward the end that world aggression be ended and that fair international relationships be established on a permanent basis."

"The policy of the good neighbor has shown such success in the hemisphere of the Americas," he added, "that its extension to the whole world seems to be the logical next step."

Indirectly, the President replied, too, to a question frequently asked in this country: Whether the Soviets may not be ready to quit the war once the Nazis are driven back to the German border.

Reds to Invade Germany

He said the Russian offensive is rolling on "toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself."

The message, one of the longest Mr. Roosevelt has sent Congress, fell roughly into four major divisions: A review of the military and strategic situation, the pronouncements on international political matters, a discussion of the home front, and, briefly, a few recommendations.

Among the latter were moves "for the greater economic protection of our returning men and women in the armed forces—and for greater educational opportunities for them."

"And for all our citizens," he said, "we should provide a further measure of social security in order to protect them against certain continuing hazards of life."

Studies of these things and also of problems of demobilization should be made now, he said, so that the nation will not be caught unprepared when the war ends.

Promises More Measures

He will send them further messages from time to time, he told the legislators, on these and other subjects.

General approval was sounded on Capitol Hill for his message today, but there was some Republican criticism that it did not deal specifically enough with home front problems and some expressions of dissatisfaction with his references to post-war policy.

In discussing the military situation, Mr. Roosevelt pictured Hitler as definitely penned up with the Allies poised to strike heavier and heavier blows.

"The Congress and the American people can rest assured that the landing on Italy is not the only landing we have in mind," he said "That landing was planned at Casablanca. At Quebec, the leaders and the military staffs of Great Britain and the United States made specific and precise plans to bring to bear further blows of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan — with definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere."

Hitler boasted that his fortress was impregnable, Mr. Roosevelt recalled, but neglected to provide it with a roof—and Allied bombs are raining down on his vital industries. He added:

"He also left various other vulnerable spots in the wall of the so-called fortress—which we shall point out to him in due time."

The President said "we have reliable information that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria."

"We hope that in these nations the spirit of revolt against Nazi dominance which commenced in Italy will burst into flame and become a consuming fire."

Entire Conflict One War

Mr. Roosevelt said it is a mistake to think of the conflict as several wars—"It is all one war, and it must be governed by one basic strategy." In that connection, he made these observations:

The Anglo-American forces drew off German air power and pinned down German troops and so contributed substantially to the Russian offensive.

Freeing of the Mediterranean will enable the Allies to regain control of the East Indian ocean, undertake an offensive in Burma, and make possible the closing of the "one serious gap in the lines of our globe-girdling seapower," between northwest Australia and Ceylon.

All the operations in the Pacific are interrelated, and even now the Japanese are hard-pressed to maintain their extended lines. Pressure against them will be increased everywhere "until we are ready to strike at the heart of Japan itself."

"We face, in the Orient, a long and difficult fight," he said, "we must be prepared for heavy losses in winning that fight. The power of Japan will not collapse until it has been literally pounded into the dust. It would be the utmost folly for us to try to pretend otherwise."

As for developments at home, Mr. Roosevelt said mistakes had been made but that fair-minded citizens would realize that "the job that has been done in converting peacetime America to a wartime basis has been a great job and a successful one."

He recited the many problems involved in the huge war effort at home, commented that they could not have been handled without some disputes among officials, and remarked:

"Obviously, we never could have produced and shipped as much as we have, we could not now be in the position we now occupy in the Mediterranean, in Italy or in the southwest Pacific or on the Atlantic convoy routes or in the air over Germany and France, if conditions in Washington and throughout the nation were as confused and chaotic as some people try to paint them."

EXECUTIVE REVIEWS WAR AND PRODUCTION EFFORT

Says Prussian Military Clique Must Go With Hitler And The Nazis—Heavy Casualties In Italian Fighting Noted

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 17—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the progress of the war follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

During the two months' recess of the Congress many important events have occurred at the war fronts and at home. You return at a time major battles in Europe and in Asia are beginning to be joined. In recent months the main tides of conflict have been running our way—but we could not and cannot be content merely to drift with this favorable tide.

You know from the news of the past few days that every military operation entails a legitimate military risk and that occasionally we have checks to our plans—checks which necessarily involve severe losses of men and materials.

Casualties Are Heavy

The Allied forces are now engaged in a very hard battle south of Naples. Casualties are heavy. The desperation with which the Germans are fighting reveals that they are well aware of the consequences to them of our occupation of Italy.

The Congress and the American people can rest assured that the landing on Italy is not the only landing we have in mind. That landing was planned at Casablanca.

At Quebec the leaders and the military staffs of Great Britain and the United States made specific and precise plans to bring to bear further blows of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan—with definite times and places for other landings on the Continent of Europe and elsewhere.

On the tenth of July a carefully-prepared expedition landed in Sicily. In spite of heavy German opposition it cleared this large and heavily fortified island in thirty-eight days.

Sicily Losses Given

British, Canadian and American losses in killed, wounded and missing in the Sicilian campaign were 31,158, of which the American forces lost 7,445. The casualties among the Italians and Germans were approximately 165,000, including 132,000 prisoners.

The unmistakably sincere welcome given to the Allied troops by the Italian people has proved conclusively that even in a country which had lived for a generation under a complete dictatorship—with all of its propaganda, censorship and suppression of free speech and discussion—the love of liberty was unconquerable.

It has also proved conclusively that this war was not waged by the people of Italy on their own choice. All of Mussolini's propaganda machine could not make them love Hitler or hate us. The less said about the feelings toward Mussolini, the better.

Expects Equal Jubilation

I believe that equal jubilation and enthusiasm will be shown by the people of the other nations now under the German heel when Nazi Gauleiters and native Quis-lings are removed through force or flight.

1943

How different was this invading army of the Allies from the German forces that had come into Sicily, ostensibly to "protect it." Food, clothing, cattle, medicines, household goods had been systematically stolen from the people of Sicily, and sent north to the "master race" in Germany.

Sicily, like other parts of Italy and like the other satellite and conquered nations, had been bled white by the Nazi and Fascist Governments. Growers of crops were permitted to retain only a small fraction of their own produce for themselves and their families.

Process Of Restoration

With the Allied armies, however, went a carefully planned organization, trained and equipped to give physical care to the local population—food, clothing, medicine.

This new organization is also now in the process of restoring to the people of Sicily freedoms which, for many years, had been denied to them. I am confident that, within a year, Sicily will be once more self-supporting—and, in addition to that, once more self-respecting.

From Sicily the advance of the Allied armies has continued to the mainland. On the third day of September they landed on the toe of the Italian peninsula. These were the first Allied troops to invade the continent of Europe in order to liberate the conquered and oppressed countries.

History will always remember this day as the beginning of the answer to the prayer of the millions of liberty-loving human beings not only in these conquered lands, but all over the world.

"Startled The World"

On July 25—two weeks after our first landings in Sicily—political events in Italy startled the world.

Mussolini, the incubus of Italy for a generation, the man who is more responsible for all of the sorrows of Italy than anyone, except possibly Hitler himself, was forced out of office and stripped of his power as a result of his own dismal faiures, his wanton brutalities and the overwhelming demand of the Italian people.

This was the first break in Axis leadership—to be followed, we are determined, by other and similar encouraging downfalls.

But there is one thing I want to make perfectly clear: When Hitler and the Nazis go out, the Prussian military clique must go with them. The war-breeding gangs of militarists must be rooted out of Germany—and out of Japan—if we are to have any real assurance of future peace.

Surrender Talks Begun

Early last month, the relentless application of overwhelming Allied power—particularly air and sea power—convinced the leaders of Italy that it could not continue an active part in the war. Conversations were begun by them with us. These conversations were carried on with the utmost secrecy. Therefore, much as I wished to do so, I could not communicate the facts of the case to the Congress, or the press, or to those who repeatedly expressed dismay or indignation at our apparent course in Italy.

These negotiations turned out to be a complete surprise to nearly everyone, not only to the Axis, but to the Italian people themselves.

Similar Situations Seen

I am sure that the Congress realizes that there are many situations in this war—and there will be many more to come—in which it is impossible for me to make any announcement or even to give any indication of the policy which we are following. And I ask the American people, as well as the Congress, to bear with me and with our chiefs of staff. It is difficult to remain silent when unjustified attack and criticism come from those who are not in a position to have all the facts.

But the people and the Congress can be sure that the policy which we follow is an expression of the basic democratic traditions and ideals of this republic. We shall not be able to claim that we have gained total victory in this war if any vestige of Fascism in any of its malignant forms is permitted to survive in the world.

Delay In Announcement

The armistice with Italy was signed on September 3 in Sicily, but it could not be put into effect until September 8, when we were ready to make landings in force in the Naples area. We had planned these landings some time before and we were determined to go through with them, armistice or no armistice.

Italian leaders appealed to their army and navy to end hostilities against us. Italian soldiers, though disorganized and ill-supplied, have been fighting the Germans in many regions. In conformity with the terms of unconditional surrender, the Italian fleet has come over to our side; and it can be a powerful weapon in striking at the Nazi enemies of the Italian people.

When Hitler was forced to the conclusion that his offensive was broken, and he must go on the defensive, he started boasting that he had converted Europe into an impregnable fortress. But he neglected to provide that fortress with a roof. He also left various other vulnerable spots in the wall of the so-called fortress which we shall point out to him in due time.

Fortress Bombarded

The British and American air forces have been bombing the roofless fortress with ever-increasing effectiveness. It is now our purpose to establish bases within bombing range of southern and eastern Germany, and to bring devastating war home to these places by day and by night as it has already been brought to western Germany.

When Britain was being subjected to mass bombing in 1940 and 1941—when the British people, including King and Prime Minister, were proving that Britain "could take it"—the strategists of the Royal Air Force and of our own Army Air Forces were not idle. They were studying the mistakes that Goering and his staff of Nazi terrorists were making. Those were fatal mistakes, as it turned out.

Today, we and the British are not making those mistakes. We are not bombing tenements for the sheer sadistic pleasure of killing, as the Nazis did. We are striking devastating blows at carefully selected, clearly identified strategic objectives — factories, shipyards, munition dumps, transportation facilities, which make it possible for the Nazis to wage war. And we are hitting these military targets and blowing them to bits.

German power can still do us great injury. But that evil power is being destroyed, surely, inexorably, day by day, and if Hitler does not know it by now, then the last trace of sanity has departed from that distorted mind.

Losses Must Be Made Up

We must remember that in any great air attack the British and Americans lose a fairly high proportion of planes, and that these losses must be made up quickly so that the weight of the bombing shall not decrease for a day in the future. In fact, a high rate of increase must be maintained according to plan—and that means constant stepping-up of our production here at home.

In the remarkable raid on the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania we lost fifty-three of our heavy bombers and more than 500 of our finest men are missing. This may seem like disastrously high loss, unless you figure it against the damage done to the enemy's war power. I am certain that the German or the Japanese high commands would cheerfully sacrifice tens of thousands of men to do the same amount of damage to us, if they could. Those gallant and brilliant young Americans who raided Ploesti won a smashing victory which, I believe, will contribute materially to the shortening of the war and thus save countless lives.

More Raids Coming

We shall continue to make such raids all over the territory of Germany and the satellite countries. With Italy in our hands, the distances we have to travel will be far less and the risks proportionately reduced.

We have reliable information that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria. We hope that in these nations the spirit of revolt against Nazi dominance which commenced in Italy will burst into flame and become a consuming fire.

"Thrilled By Russians"

Every American is thrilled by the sledge-hammer blows delivered against the Nazi aggressors by the Russian armies. This summer there has been no successful German advance against the Russians, as in 1941 and 1942. The shoe today is on the other foot—and is pinching very hard. Instead, the Russians have forced the greatest military reversal since Napoleon's retreat in 1812.

The recapture of Kharkov, Stalino and other strongholds by the Russians, the opening of the Ukraine and the Donets basin and the freeing of millions of valuable acres and hundreds of inhabited places hearten the whole world as the Russian campaign moves toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself.

It is certain that the campaign in North Africa, the occupation of Sicily, the fighting in Italy and the compelling of large numbers of German planes to go into combat in the skies over Holland, Belgium and France by reason of our air attacks, have given important help to the Russian armies along their advancing front Leningrad to the Black Sea. We know, too, that we are contributing to that advance by making Germany keep many divisions in the Balkans, in southern France and along the English Channel. I like to think that these words constitute an understatement.

All Theaters Linked

Similarly, the events in the Mediterranean have a direct bearing upon the war against Japan.

When the American and British expeditionary forces first landed in North Africa last November, some people believed that we were neglecting our obligations to prosecute the war vigorously in the Pacific. Such people continually make the mistake of trying to divide the war into several watertight compartments—the western European front—the Russian front—the Burma front—the New Guinea and Solomons front, and so forth—as though all of these fronts were separate and unrelated to each other. You even hear talk of the "air war" as opposed to the "land war" or the "sea war."

Actually, we cannot think of this as several wars. It is all one war, and it must be governed by one basic strategy.

FEB 17 1943

Aids Striking Japan

The freeing of the Mediterranean, which we started last fall, will lead directly to the resumption of our complete control of the waters of the eastern Indian Ocean and the Bay of Bengal. Thus, we shall be enabled to strike the Japanese on another of their highly vulnerable flanks.

As long as Italy remained in the war as our enemy—as long as the Italian fleet remained in being as a threat—a substantial part of British naval strength had to be kept locked up in the Mediterranean. Now that formidable strength is freed to proceed eastward to join in the ever-increasing attack upon the Japanese. It has not been sufficiently emphasized that the freeing of the Mediterranean is a great asset to the war in the Far East.

To Close New Gap

There has been one serious gap in the lines of our globe-girdling sea power. That is the gap between Northwest Australia and Ceylon. That gap can now be closed as a result of victory in the Mediterranean.

We face, in the Orient, a long and difficult fight. We must be prepared for heavy losses in winning that fight. The power of Japan will not collapse until it has been literally pounded into the dust. It would be the utmost folly for us to try to pretend otherwise.

Even so, if the future is tough for us, think what it is for General Tojo and his murderous gang. They may look to the north, to the south, to the east or to the west. They can see closing in on them, from all directions, the forces of retribution under the Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, General MacArthur, Admiral Nimitz and Admiral Lord Mountbatten.

Pacific Campaign

The forces operating against Japan in the various Pacific theaters are just as much interrelated and dependent on each other as are the forces pounding against Germany in Europe.

With the new threats that we offer from the Aleutians, Japan cannot afford to devote as large a proportion of her forces to hold the lines in other areas.

Such actions as the taking of Attu and Kiska do not just happen. They are the results of careful and complete planning which was going on quietly while some of our critics were so perturbed that they had reached the verge of tears over what they called the threatened invasion of Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. It was difficult for them to realize that the carefully prepared and crucial tests in the Coral Sea and at Midway and in the Solomons rendered the Japanese toe-hold in the Aleutians untenable.

Jap Lines Threatened

Japan has been hard put to it to maintain her extended lines. She had to withdraw her garrison from Kiska in the face of the oncoming American-Canadian forces because she could not maintain a steady stream of adequate reinforcements and supplies to the Aleutians.

In the Solomon Islands, with heavy fighting, we have gained so many island air bases that the threat to Australia and New Zealand across the Coral Sea has been practically dissipated. In fact, it is safe to say that our position in that area has become a threat on our part against the Japanese in the seas that lie north of the Solomons and north of New Guinea.

New Bases Acquired

American, Australian, New Zealand and Dutch forces in a magnificient campaign in New Guinea and the Solomons have destroyed much Japanese strength and have gained for us new bases from which to launch new offensive operations.

After a long period of defensive strategy in Burma, we are determined to take the offensive there. I am also glad to report to you that we are getting more supplies and military help to China. Almost every day word comes that a new air battle has destroyed two and three times more Japanese planes in China and Burma than we ourselves have lost. That process will continue until we are ready to strike right at the heart of Japan itself.

To Lose Mandates

It goes almost without saying that when Japan surrenders the United Nations will never again let her have authority over the islands which were mandated to her by the League of Nations. Japan obviously is not to be trusted. And the same thing holds good in the case of the vast territories which Japan has stolen from China, starting long before this war began.

Since the beginning of our entrance into the war, nearly two years ago, the United Nations have continuously reduced enemy strength by a process of attrition. That means, cold-bloodedly, placing the ever-increasing resources of the Allies into deadly competition with the ever-decreasing resources of the Axis. It means the training and use of the Allied manpower—which is greater than the Axis. It means the use of our superior facilities and ability to make more munitions, and above all aircraft, more quickly than our enemies can do.

Superiority In Arms

For example, the Allies today on the European front have a definite superiority in almost all weapons of war on any and every point of the encircling line—more guns, more tanks, more planes, more trucks, more transports, more supply ships and more warships.

In the Pacific, we have taken a steady toll of Japanese war planes and a steady toll of Japanese ships—merchant ships and naval vessels. The odds are all in our favor—for we grow in strength and they cannot even replace all their losses. It might be called a simple mathematical progression.

However, unless we keep up and increase the tempo of our present rate of production, this greater strength in planes and guns, tanks and ships can all be lost.

Our great production program started during the darkest days of 1940. With the magnificent contribution made by American industry and American labor, it is approaching full production. Britain has already attained full production. Today, the British Empire and the United States, together, are turning out so much of every essential of war that we have definite superiority over Germany and Japan which is growing with every succeeding minute. But we have no minutes to lose.

Realization of the distances we must cover brings to mind problems that every American should realize—problems of transporting from our shores to the actual fighting areas the weapons and munitions of war which we make. Burma and China can be reached only with extraordinary difficulty. Two years ago, most of the planes we sent had to be knocked down, crated, put on board ship, transported, then uncrated and put together again in India, and from there sent up to the fighting front.

Flown Over Mountains

In the case of China, they had to be flown over enormous mountains. Even after they were safely delivered there, the planes had to be kept supplied with ground crews, tools, oil, gasoline and even spare parts. Since the Japs cut the Burma Road, all these supplies have to be flown over hundreds of miles to bases which had to be built in China.

The same slow process was also the rule in the Southwest Pacific.

With the present increased range of airplanes and the establishment of additional bases, we are now flying more of them under their own power than before, but all the things that go to supply them—the gasoline, the tools, the spare parts—still have to be taken by ship to the fighting fronts all over the world. Practically every soldier and all his weapons and equipment have to go by ship. And every time a new forward move develops the whole outfit has to go by ship.

Distance To Go

I wonder how many people realize what it means to carry on the war across the Atlantic and the Pacific and through the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean, along lines of supply attacked by submarines and dive bombers at many points.

The combined operation of the British and Americans last November against Morocco and Algeria was in point of numbers the largest military movement over the longest number of miles to landings under fire that history has recorded anywhere.

"Combat Loaded"

The ships for such an amphibious operation cannot be loaded in the ordinary way, to be unloaded alongside a comfortable safe wharf. Most of the ships must be "combat loaded" in such a way that the troops go ashore first and are immediately followed in the proper order by guns and ammunition, tanks, trucks and food, medical equipment and all the supplies of a modern army. Preparations must be made to conduct these landings under enemy fire, and on beaches instead of at docks. People who have seen or planned this kind of operation even over short distances do not speak glibly about landing great expeditions on a few days' notice or on all the beaches of Europe at the same time.

The members of the Congress have undoubtedly had an opportunity to see at firsthand in their own home districts some of our war factories and plants and shipyards throughout the United States which are now working at full blast turning out the greatest amount of war production in the history of the world.

SEP 18 1943

Increase Resumed

In June and July we were worried by a reduction in the rate of increase in production. Great as our production had been we could not afford to level off. We had to continue the upward curve and not pause on any plateaus.

I am happy to report that the increase was resumed in August. In this month of September it is even better.

For example, during the two months of the recess of the Congress our factories produced approximately 15,000 planes. There was an especially important increase in the production of heavy bombers in August. I cannot reveal the exact figures on this. They would give the enemy needed information—but no comfort. However, the total airplane production is still not good enough. We seek not only to come up to the schedule but to surpass it.

During those same two months American shipyards put into commission 3,200,000 tons of large merchant ships—a total of 281 ships, almost five ships a day.

Even as the actual fighting engagements in which our troops take part increase in number, it is becoming more and more evident that this is essentially a great war of production. The best way to avoid heavy casualty lists is to provide our troops with the best equipment possible—and plenty of it.

We have come a great way since this Congress first met in January of this year. But I state only a blunt fact when I tell the Congress that we are still a long, long way from ultimate victory in any major theater of the war.

Lists Needs

First: Despite our substantial victories in the Mediterranean, we face a hard and costly fight up through Italy—and a major job of organizing our positions before we can take advantage of them.

Second: From bases in the British Isles we must be sure that we have assembled the strength to strike not just in one direction, but in many directions—by land and sea and in the air—with overwhelming forces and equipment.

Third—Although our Russian allies have made a magnificent counter-offensive, and are driving our common enemies back day by day, the Russian armies still have far to go before they get into Germany itself.

As To Japan

Fourth—The Japanese hold firmly established positions on an enormous front from the Kuriles through the mandated islands to the Solomons and through the Netherlands East Indies to Malaysia and Burma and China. To break through this defensive ring we must hit them and hit them hard, not merely at one point but at many points, and we must keep on hitting them.

In all history, there has never been a task so tremendous as that which we now face. We can do it—and we will do it—but we must plan and work and fight with every ounce of intelligence and energy and courage that we possess.

Hits Overconfidence

The Congress has reconvened at a time when we are in the midst of the Third War Loan drive seeking to raise a sum unparalleled in history—fifteen billion dollars. This is a dramatic example of the scale on which this war still has to be fought, and presents some idea of how difficult and costly the responsible leaders of this Government believe the war will be.

Nothing we can do will be more costly than to adopt the attitude that the war has been won—or nearly won. That would mean a letdown in the great tempo of production which we have reached, and would mean that our men who are now fighting all over the world will not have that overwhelming superiority of power which has dealt so much death and destruction to the enemy and at the same time has saved so many American lives.

Cites Direct Effect

That is why I have always maintained that there is no such separate entity as the "home front." Every day lost in turning out an airplane or a ship at home will have its direct effect upon the men now battling up the leg of Italy or in the jungles of the Southwest Pacific or in the clouds over China.

There have been complaints from some sources about the way this production and other domestic activities have been carried on. Some of these complaints, of course, are justified. On the other hand, some of them come from selfish people who merely do not like to give up some of their pleasures, or a part of their butter or meat or milk.

Job Is Successful

Fair-minded citizens, however, will realize that, although mistakes have been made, the job that has been done in converting peacetime America to a wartime basis has been a great job and a successful one, of which all our people have good reason to be proud.

It would be nothing short of a miracle if this unprecedented job of transforming a peace-loving, unprepared industrial America into a fighting and production machine had been accomplished without some mistakes being made and some being given cause for complaint.

The Congress is well aware of the magnitude of the undertaking, and of the many gigantic problems involved. For the Congress has been actively involved in helping to work out the solutions to these unprecedented problems.

Few Facts Cited

A few facts will show how vast an enterprise this war has been—and how we are constantly increasing the tempo of our production.

The total amount spent on the war from May, 1940, to date is $128,123,000,000. The bill is now running at the rate of $250,000,000 per day.

Up to September 1, 1943, among the more important items produced and delivered since the armament program started in May, 1940, are the following:

Airplanes	123,000
Airplane engines	349,000
Tanks	53,000
Artillery weapons	93,000
Small arms (rifles, carbines, machine guns, etc.)	9,500,000
Small-arms ammunition (rounds)	25,942,000,000
Trucks	1,233,000

In most instances more than half of the above total delivered to date was produced during the first eight months of 1943:

Airplanes	52,000
Tanks	23,000
Artillery weapons	40,600
Small arms (rifles, carbines, machine guns, etc.)	4,638,000
Small-arms ammunition (rounds)	13,339,000,000

The number of fighting ships and auxiliaries of all kinds completed since May, 1940, is 2,380 and 13,000 landing vessels.

In the two and a half years between January 1, 1941, and July 1, 1943, the power plants built for installation in navy vessels had a horsepower equal to all the horsepower of all hydroelectric plants in the United States in January, 1941.

The completions of navy ships during the last six months were equal to completions in the entire year of 1942.

We have cut down the time required to build submarines by almost 50 per cent.

The anti-aircraft and double-purpose guns produced by the navy since the defense program started in May, 1940, if fired altogether, would throw 4,600 tons of projectiles per minute against the enemy.

Under-Water Ordnance

The output of under-water ordnance (torpedoes, mines and depth charges) during the first half of 1943 was equal to the total production of 1942.

During the month of August, 1943, we produced almost as many torpedoes as during all of World War I.

Anyone who has had to build a single factory, tool it up, get the necessary help, set up an assembly line, produce and ship the product will have some idea of what that amount of production has meant.

We have had to raise and equip armed forces approaching ten million men. Simultaneously, in spite of this drain on our manpower, we have had to find millions more men and millions of women to operate our war factories, arsenals, shipyards, essential civilian industries—and the farms and mines of America.

There have been the problems of increasing greatly the output of our natural resources—not only for our own army and navy and for our civilians at home but also for our allies and our own forces all over the world.

Since the outbreak of war in Europe, we have increased our output of petroleum by 66 per cent. We have stepped up our bituminous coal production by 40 per cent.; chemicals by 300 per cent.; iron ore by 125 per cent.; hydroelectric power by 79 per cent., and steel by 106 per cent.

Big Food Problem

There were the problems of raising and distributing more food than ever before in our history—for our armed services, for our own people, and to help feed our allies.

There was the formidable problem of establishing a rationing system of the necessities of life which would be fair to all of our people.

There was the difficulty of keeping prices from skyrocketing and fighting off the serious specter of inflation.

There was the problem of transporting millions of men and hundreds of millions of tons of weapons and supplies all over our own country and also to all corners of the world. This necessitated the largest railroad and shipping operations in all history.

Other Problems Listed

There were the problems involved in our vast purchases in foreign countries; in our control of foreign funds, located in this country; in our custody of alien property; in our occupation of liberated areas. There were new problems of communications, of censorship, of war information.

There was the problem of maintaining proper management-labor relations; of fair treatment and just compensation to our millions of war workers; of avoiding strikes; of preventing the exploitation of workers or natural resources by those who would seek to become war profiteers and war millionaires.

There were the problems of civilian defense, of lend-lease, of subcontracting war contracts to smaller businesses, of building up stockpiles of strategic material whose normal sources have been seized by the enemy—such as rubber and tin.

There was the problem of providing housing for millions of new war workers all over the country.

And touching all of these, there was the great problem of raising the money to pay for all of them.

Errors Admitted

No sincere, sensible person doubts that in such an unprecedented, breath-taking enterprise errors of honest judgment were bound to creep in, and that occasional disputes among conscientious officials were bound to occur. And if anyone thinks that we, working under our democratic system, have made major mistakes in this war, he should take a look at some of the blunders made by our enemies in these so-called "efficient" dictatorships.

Even sincere, sensible people sometimes fail to compare the handfuls of errors or disputes on the one hand, with the billions of instances where the agencies of government in cooperation with each other have moved with the precision of a smoothly working machine.

Fair-Minded, He Says

Some people, when a doughnut is placed before them, claim they can see only the hole in it. Sometimes this is an example of sheer individual pessimism; but sometimes it is caused by motives not consonant with war-winning ideals.

The American people as a whole, however, are fair-minded. They have learned to distinguish between the sensational and the factual. They know that there is no so-called "news" when things run right. They know, for example, that a few newspapers and columnists and radio commentators can make controversy create "news" which is eagerly sought by Axis propagandists in their evil work.

Obviously, we never could have produced and shipped as much as we have, we could not now be in the position we now occupy in the Mediterranean, in Italy or in the Southwest Pacific, or on the Atlantic convoy routes or in the air over Germany and France, if conditions in Washington and throughout the nation were as confused and choatic as some people try to paint them.

Amazingly Good Job

We know that in any large private industrial plant doing a thousandth part of what their Government in Washington is doing there are also occasional mistakes and arguments. But this is not a good comparison. It is like comparing a motor boat with a battleship.

What I have said is not in any way an apology—it is an assertion and a boast that the American people and their government are doing an amazingly good job in carrying out a vast program which two years ago was said to be impossible of fulfillment. Luckily the American people have a sense of proportion—and a memory.

As General Marshall has said, in his biennial report, "The development of the powerful army of today . . . has been dependent upon vast appropriations and the strong support of the Congress, and the cooperation of numerous Government agencies."

Social Security Proposal

I urge all Americans to read General Marshall's fine, soldierly record of the achievements of our army throughout two of the most tremendous years in our history. This is a record which Americans will never forget.

As the war grows tougher and as new problems constantly arise in our domestic economy, changes in methods and changes in legislation may become necessary.

We should move for the greater economic protection of our returning men and women in the armed forces—and for greater educational opportunities for them. And for all our citizens we should provide a further measure of social security in order to protect them against certain continuing hazards of life.

All these things, as well as eventual demobilization, should be studied now and much of the neecssary legislation should be enacted. I do not mean that this statement should be regarded in any way as an intimation that we are approaching the end of the war. Such an intimation could not be based either on fact or on reason. But when the war ends, we do not want to be caught again without planning or legislation, such as occurred at the end of the last war.

On all these, and on other subjects, I expect to communicate with this Congress from time to time.

Cooperation Sought

In this critical period in the history of our country and of the world, we seek cooperation between the executive and the legislative branches of the Government to furnish our citizens with the security of the standard of living to which their resources and their skills in management and labor entitle them in all matters which concern this nation's welfare, present and future—and the first of such matters, obviously, is the winning of this war.

Finally, as the war progresses, we seek a national cooperation with other nations toward the end that world aggression be ended and that fair international relationships be established on a permanent basis. The policy of the good neighbor has shown such success in the hemisphere of the Americas that its extension to the whole world seems to be the logical next step. In that way we can begin to keep faith with our sons and daughters who are fighting for freedom and justice and security at home and abroad.

President Gives Four Reasons Why Victory Is Still a Long Way Off

SEP 18 1943

Washington, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt gave four main reasons today why "we are still a long, long way from ultimate victory":

"First: Despite our substantial victories in the Mediterranean, we face a hard and costly fight up through Italy—and a major job of organizing our positions before we can take advantage of them.

"Second: From bases in the British Isles we must be sure that we have assembled the strength to strike not just in one direction but in many directions—by land and sea and in the air—with overwhelming forces and equipment.

"Third: Although our Russian allies have made a magnificent counter-offensive, and are driving our common enemies back day by day, the Russian armies still have far to go before they get into Germany itself.

"Fourth: The Japanese hold firmly established positions on an enormous front from the Kuriles through the mandated islands to the Solomons and through the Netherlands East Indies to Malayasia and Burma and China. To break through this defensive ring we must hit them and hit them hard not merely at one point but at many points, and we must keep on hitting them."

Roosevelt's Message Pleases British Press

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Sept. 18—Plainly pleased with President Roosevelt's message to Congress yesterday, the British press in front-page headlines today emphasized the President's declaration that new invasion places and times had been set at the Quebec parleys.

Editorials described the message as "stirring."

The Yorkshire Post said it "sounds exactly the note needed at this moment in the war. Nothing in the President's review is more arresting that the emphasis he places upon the importance of the devastating blows from the air which—as he says—are being aimed at carefully selected, clearly identified, strategic objectives. Mr. Roosevelt reminds Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels that the Fuehrer has neglected to provide the European stronghold with a roof."

Said the Daily Express, of London:

"Let us bestow words of high praise upon a President who has led the American people through a valley of shadow. Indeed he has led the whole world.

"His wisdom, foresight, knowledge of war and understanding of the problems that confront him combine to exalt him to a position of one of the great personages of history. Mr. Roosevelt's production figures by their importance override all else in his review. They will give confidence and inspiration to the forces of all countries engaged in the extermination of military cliques in Berlin and Tokyo."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, Sept. 18—(AP) Japan's main New Guinea coastal base of Lae has been captured by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces just 12 days after they unleashed a powerhouse drive on it, and the few enemy soldiers who escaped death are heading straight into a trap laid for them in high mountains to the north.

Climaxing victory over a northeastern New Guinea army of the enemy, once estimated to total 20,000, veteran Australian jungle troops swept into the air base at 11 a. m. Thursday after the last defenses in the bomb-wrecked town were levelled by four and two-engined bombers.

Serious Blow to Japs

"The Lae victory, accomplished in the face of superior forces available to the enemy, represents a serious blow to him," General MacArthur said in a special field headquarters statement after the capture was first announced in today's communique.

"With God's help, we are making our way back."

The "way back" leads toward the Philippines where the heroic general of Bataan and Corregidor has vowed he shall return.

The Japanese, who had relied on pillbox and trench defenses on outskirt plantations—defenses which were left in ruins by a series of powerful air attacks—offered only slight resistance at the end, the survivors hurrying to brush and hills.

Sensing just such a move, the encircling Allied forces had built blockades across the only useable trails above Lae. Some of these posts are manned by American paratroops.

Town in Ruins

Troops entering Lae, once designated as the new capital of New Guinea's mandated territory, found it a shambles. There were only a few Japanese alive in the ruins and these were slain.

In the morning hours Thursday before it fell, Liberators and Mitchells dumped 43 tons of bombs on the remaining points of resistance. Wednesday and Thursday more than 100,000 rounds of machinegun fire were directed at the enemy by raiding planes.

A spokesman for General MacArthur said the campaign for Lae really began last January and purposely was directed at Salamaua, 18 miles to the southeast, fooling the enemy into thinking the main drive would be made there. The Japanese fell for it by moving in force down to Salamaua, paving the way for the Sept. 4-5 maneuver.

The capture of Lae, constituting one of the biggest victories to be scored against the Japanese who had held it since Jan. 25, 1942, was achieved by a pincers movement sprung Sept. 4, by Australians landing above it from the sea and American and Australian paratroopers landing behind it Sept. 5.

Enemy Remnants Flee

Remnants of the Japanese garrison which managed to escape annihilation in the final stages of the bitter struggle are being pursued into nearby jungles where their destruction is certain, headquarters said.

Lae's garrison, trapped not only by the pincers forces east and west but also by forces which moved up from the south after capturing Salamaua, was forced to fight it out.

The Fifth Air force, which provided cover throughout the siege, made a final destructive raid which obliterated enemy installations.

The seizure of Lae, which has two airdromes, and Salamaua which has one as well as a good sea anchorage, gave the Allies virtual control of the Huon gulf and affords General MacArthur a springboard from which to strike at still more important enemy bases, including the stronghold of Rabaul, on nearby New Britain.

"Lae is in our hands," today's communique said.

"Our continuous air bombardments over the past weeks reduced it to shambles. Our troops have now overwhelmed all remaining resistance.

"At the end, scattered elements of the enemy attempted to break out to the north where we have blocked jungle trails leading to mountainous ridges rising to heights of nearly 14,000 feet. The destruction of these remnants is certain.

Main Japanese Base

"Lae, with its airfields, has been the enemy's main base on the coast of New Guinea since its capture early in 1942. Coordinating with the final drive of our ground forces, our heavy and medium bombers struck the inner ring of enemy installations with 43 tons of bombs and more than 30,000 rounds of machine gun fire. All remnants of the enemy installations in the target area were completely destroyed."

The fall of Lae was accomplished with a swiftness which contrasted with other campaigns in the southwest's jungle theater of war.

Today's communique reported a continued stepup of action in the Solomons.

Sixteen Japanese fighters have been downed in an American raid on the Buin-Faisi sector on southern Bougainville.

Nearly 100 enemy fighters intercepted the Bougainville bombers.

Adjacent to American-won New Georgia, the Japanese have contested occupation of Arundel island, which poses a menace to the enemy's garrison at Vila, Kolombangara. They have reinforced their forces on Arundel.

On New Georgia, the Munda airfield, captured Aug. 5, has been raided by 60 Japanese planes whose bombs caused minor damage and casualties.

The large scale air actions in the Solomons brought that war theater more into prominence than it has been since the Munda airfield was captured. Yesterday's communique had told of more than 200 planes—an imposing total for that sector—raiding the Buin-Faisi sector.

Today's communique said the new raid on Bougainville was made by "bombers in all categories." They made both day and night attacks, starting fires at the Ballale (on Shortland island just below Bougainville) Kahili and Kara airdromes. In the fight with the big formations of enemy interceptors, three American fighters are missing.

Lae Is Tottering.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Reports from the fighting front indicate Lae is tottering and its fall is imminent.

While Allied airmen marked up another amazing aerial victory over the Japanese—with forty-eight and probably fifty-nine enemy fighters destroyed out of an attacking force of sixty to seventy—strong Allied ground forces were reported converging on the New Guinea base for the kill.

Australian forces moving in from the east have taken Malahang wharfage, just outside the airdrome and the town itself. A western force has occupied Edwards plantation, not far from the town, and troops are coming up fast from captured Salamaua.

The desperate enemy at Lae probably has taken the worse beating of any Nipponese force in this war.

Drop 66 Tons of Bombs.

The brilliant aerial victory came during a raid by Liberators with a fighter escort on the Japanese base at Wewak, New Guinea. Against the overwhelming toll of Japanese planes destroyed, every Liberator returned and only one fighter was lost.

Bombers shot down more enemy planes than did their escorting fighters in this latest blow at heavily battered Wewak. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said that they downed thirty-nine, probably forty-nine. The fighters accounted for nine definite and one probable.

But the bombers wreaked still more damage. In fifteen minutes they concentrated sixty-six tons of bombs on the Wewak and Boram airdromes. Direct hits destroyed ten grounded bombers and started many fires among numerous other parked aircraft.

Pilots who fatally tagged one enemy fighter apiece included Capt. James Wilson, Glen Allen, Miss., and Lieut. Don McGee of Staten Island, N. Y.

SUPPLY LINES RAIDED BY RAF

British Based Planes Attack Modane, French Border Town Near Tunnel

SEP 18 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 17—From air bases in Britain, Allied armies invading Italy have received important support—attacks by long-range RAF bombers on two main transport channels by which Germany feeds reinforcements and supplies into Italy.

Reuters reported aid-raid warnings sounded tonight in western Switzerland, indicating that Allied bombers again might be on their way to bomb targets in northern Italy or southwestern Germany.

Following up the September 6 raid on Munich, railway funnel from Germany to the Brenner Pass, an RAF force of heavy bombers last night blasted the French border town of Modane at the northern end of the Mont Cenis tunnel through the Alps and astride the main Rome-Paris [illegible]ad.

Simultaneously, a second RAF force of night raiders disrupted a secondary transport system into Italy by bombing the Antheor viaduct near Straphael on the Mediterranean coast.

500 Miles Away

Modane lies about 500 miles from English bases and it is about the same distance to newly gained Allied air bases in Sicily. While there was no official indicat[illegible] of the bombers continued on to Sicily, the raid, in the light of the September 1 southern-based attack on the rail network south of the Brenner Pass, underscored the increased interlocking of the Allied "pincer" aerial operations.

Crewmen winging to Modane saw fires still burning at the former Dunlop rubber works at Mont Lucon, France, which was hit the night before.

Reconnaissance photographs showed today that all twenty-six of the major buildings at the plant had been hit and twelve had been destroyed, obliterating one of the Nazis' main remaining sources of tires since the American bombings of rubber factories at Huls and Hannover.

Second Straight On Berlin

Berlin suffered its second raid in two nights from RAF Mosquitos last night, while Allied Intruders ranged far over France, Belgium and Holland, attacking five Nazi airfields, trains and shipping.

Four bombers were missing from the night's offensive.

The assaults carried into the third straight day the new Allied around-the-clock offensive during which more than thirty targets have been blasted.

The RAF's double attack on transport channels into Italy came only a few hours after American Flying Fortresses returned from raids on Nantes, La Pallice, Cognac and La Rochelle, all on the west coast of France, where submarine pens, port facilities, shipping and Nazi airfields were blasted.

The Fortresses flew as far as 1,600 miles round trip to bomb their scattered targets, the longest daylight bombing mission ever staged in this theater.

R. A. F. UNITS BLAST FRENCH RAILWAYS AT ITALIAN BORDER

SEP 18 1943

Nazi Reinforcement Route Is Heavily Bombed—Berlin Hit Again.

London, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—A large force of British bombers swept from English bases deep into southeastern France last night, to make a concentrated attack on enemy railway stations at Modane, on the Italian frontier, it was announced today. While Mosquito bombers again raided Berlin, the big Lancasters, striking directly at the enemy efforts to rush reinforcements into the Italian battlegrounds, also made a low-level attack on the Antheor Viaduct, near St. Raphael, on the French Riviera route.

At Modane, a French frontier town near the opening of the Mont Cenis tunnel, a heavy and concentrated attack was made on the freight yards, the Air Ministry announced, adding: "First reports indicate both attacks were effective."

Four bombers were reported missing.

The announcement did not elaborate on the Berlin attack, but it was evidently another of the nerve-jangling jabs of which the speedy Mosquitoes are past masters. They had also struck at Berlin on the previous night.

Few Routes Open.

In smashing at the Modane area, the Royal Air Force probably disrupted traffic through one of the few remaining railroad channels through the Alps over which the Germans can funnel reinforcements into Italy. The big Alpine Cenis tunnel, around which Germans and Italians have been reported fighting, is thirty miles northwest of Turin on the route to Lyons and Paris.

Two other major lines, through the Gothard and Simplon tunnels, are closed to military traffic because they pass through neutral Switzerland. Thus the only unbombed route to Italy from the west is a secondary line along the Mediterranean coast, and this has been reported extensively sabotaged.

The Bri[illegible]ks carried the new round-the-clock bombing spurt into its third day. They came immediately after Flying Fortresses of the Eighth United States Air Force had made one of the heaviest daylight assaults of the war against port installations, docks and airports in the Bay of Biscay area.

The Fortresses, blasting port facilities and the airfield at Nantes, U-boat pens at La Pallice and airfields at Cognac and La Rochelle, flew 1,600 miles to and from their remote objectives—the longest daylight bombing mission ever staged in this theater of operations. At the same time American Marauders and R. A. F. Mitchells attacked airfields at Beaumont-le-Roger and Tricqueville, freight yards at Serqueux and a power station near Rouen.

Swarms of German fighters were encountered in all these operations. The Fortresses destroyed twenty-seven of the attacking planes while American Thunderbolts escorting the great bombers accounted for two more, a communique said. On the Marauder-Mitchell sweep over Beaumont-le-Roger enemy interceptors also showed fight, but they were driven off after losing six of their number, making the day's total bag thirty-five enemy planes.

Thirteen heavy bombers and three fighters were lost by the Allies, the official bulletin said.

In attacking the Bay of Biscay area, the Fortresses inaugurated a new strategy to avoid the heavy anti-aircraft and fighter defenses set up by the Germans throughout France. Instead of flying straight overland to their furthest objectives at Cognac, a distance of about 350 miles, they made a wide, curving sweep out over the Atlantic to approach the targets by surprise from the sea. This mission was not completed until long after dark, and even as the Americans were coming into their bases, the R. A. F. night bombers were on their way out.

Reds Seize Bryansk, Advance in Ukraine

LONG

Victories Reported by Russians All Along 600-Mile Front.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 18.—(AP) Soviet troops stormed the high west bank of the Desna river to capture the central Russian fortress of Bryansk and its sister city Bezhitsa yesterday, while far to the south Ukrainian columns captured Ossipenko and smashed to within 35 miles of the Dnieper river, Moscow announced early today.

A day of crashing successes along a 600-mile front was topped by the long-sought victory at Bryansk as the Germans fell back in sector after sector in a virtual race for the Dnieper.

Hundreds of Villages Freed

Hundreds of hamlets and villages fell as the Russians swept toward Melitopol and Zaparozhe from points 35 miles to the east, moved along two railroads from Chaplino and Lozavaya to outflank Pavlograd, closed in on Krasnograd, and spread out between Nezhin and Priluki on the road to Kiev, only 55 miles from their grasp.

The Soviet offensive, only a little more than two months old, moved with such speed and power that President Roosevelt told the American Congress in his message yesterday that "the Russian campaign moves toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself." The President said the Russians had inflicted on the Germans "the greatest military reversal since Napoleon's retreat in 1812."

Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the capture of Bryansk, junction for six major Russian railways, in a special order of the day and the Soviet communique gave many details of additional actions that shattered German resistance all along the front.

At Bryansk many prisoners and large quantities of war materials were taken, said the communique broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Thousand Germans Slain

In the Zaparozhe and Melitopol areas German counterattacks were hurled back and the enemy sent into retreat. A thousand Germans were killed, a large enemy mechanized column routed and war material and prisoners captured.

Toward Pavolograd, last base before Dnieperopetrovsk, the Russians created havoc among the Germans, the bulletin disclosed.

"In an effort to entrench themselves on advantageous lines, the Germans are launching violent counterattacks," the communique said. "However all attempts of the Hitlerites to hold on whatever lines they occupy are unsuccessful. Under the blows of our tankmen, infantry and artillerymen the enemy is forced to abandon one position after another and at the same time is sustaining heavy losses in manpower and equipment."

The important push toward Kiev appeared to be reaching a crescendo as over 130 towns and villages were captured, 2,000 Germans killed and 53 locomotives and many railroad cars captured and a great pile of seized Nazi stores and materiel.

A Swedish newspaper dispatch, reported by the Russian news agency, Tass, said German civilians who had been shipped into the territory now were streaming back through Kiev on a return evacuation to Silesia and Saxony. The report said 43,000 Germans had passed through Kiev in a week.

40 Miles from White Russia

The capture of Bryansk, heralded in Moscow by the roar of 20 salvoes from 120 guns, brought the Russians to within 70 miles of White Russia, rich Russian farm land held by the Nazis more than two years. Bryansk itself had been in German hands since Oct. 13, 1941.

The victory constituted the third break in the Desna river line, now virtually useless for German defense, after early Soviet columns forced it to the south at Novgorod Severski and before Chernigov.

Gen. M. M. Popov's armies took Bryansk and nearby Bezhitsa, also called Ordzhonikidzegrad, an automobile manufacturing center, after several days of fierce fighting through swamps, forests and on hills around the city.

The final blow came with simultaneous smashes from the east and the north, Stalin said, in calling Bryansk "an important strongpoint of German defenses."

A few hours earlier the German High command had officially announced the evacuation of Bryansk, three days after a German news agency prematurely said the Nazis had fallen back from the city. The Russians cautiously announced their advances toward the city until its capture today.

It was a major milestone in the Soviet advance that has cracked German lines from before Smolensk to the Sea of Azov, 600 miles to the south.

Reds Announce Fall of Bryansk

Great Triumph Is Revealed Long After Nazis Told of German Evacuation.

SEP 18 1943

London, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—The Russians today announced the capture of Bryansk in a major victory for the Russian arms. Long a vital German base, seventy miles from the border of White Russia, Bryansk is the junction point of six railroads.

A triumphant Order of the Day from Premier Stalin hailed the victory, which ranks with the capture of Kharkov and Stalino to the south. The order was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here shortly after the German High Command had officially announced that German troops had evacuated the city 210 miles southwest of Moscow. Thus the Russians had plunged back into a vital German defense bastion in northern Russia which had been in enemy hands since October, 1941.

The Russians also captured the town of Bezhitsa, or Ordzhonikidzegrad, about fifteen miles northwest of Bryansk on the railroad to Smolensk.

Close In on Krasnograd.

Meanwhile today a Reuters dispatch from Moscow declared that three Russian armies, surging westward through the southern Ukraine, are closing in on Krasnograd, Nazi bastion and rail junction in the Kharkov-Dnieperpetrovsk railway.

Other Red Army columns, having scored four impressive victories yesterday were plunging forward on many sectors of the 600-mile battlefront, intent on throwing the Germans back across the formidable Dnieper River barrier before the heavy autumn rains render large scale military operations impossible.

A DNB broadcast from Berlin today admitted that the Germans had lost Novorossisk, the Russian Black Sea naval base in the Caucasus.

A triumphant Moscow communique, heralded by two special orders of the day signed by Premier Joseph Stalin and a salute of twenty-four salvos from 124 guns in the Russian capital, recorded the gains on four widely separated sectors which apparently doomed the entire system of Nazi defense and communication lines east of the Dnieper. They were:

1. Capture of the great Black Sea port of Novorossisk, an important naval base and springboard for an assault upon the German held Crimea.

Seize Novgorod Severski.

2. Seizure of Novgorod Severski, ninety miles southwest of Bryansk and bastion of the German eastern wall guarding White Russia.

3. Capture of strategic Lozovaya, cutting the Kharkov-Crimea railway, northern land artery for German forces in the Crimea, which placed Russian troops only thirty-five miles from the Dnieper River bend.

4. Storming of Nosovka, southwest of Nezhin, and fifty-five miles from the great middle Dnieper German base of Kiev.

GUERRILLAS STORM GATES OF FIUME, DRIVE UP COAST

Sharp Fighting Is Reported Near Sarajevo; Nazis Oppose Fiercely.

LONDON, Sept. 17—(AP) Yugoslav partisan forces were today reported storming the gates of Fiume, important Italian city on the Adriatic sea, while other guerrilla forces 160 miles to the southeast widened their beachhead around the Dalmatian seaport of Split, capture of which was announced in the name of the Yugoslav army of liberation yesterday.

Today's announcement said the guerrillas had pushed 10 miles up the Dalmatian coast to occupy Trogir.

The Yugoslav partisans held Susak, just across the bridge from Fiume which the Serbs occupied briefly in 1918. More forces were said to be pouring toward the front through Bakar, taken early this week during the drive toward the coast.

Heavy Fighting Reported

In eastern Bosnia, the capture of the town of Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, was also reported. Heavy fighting was reported around Ogulin, north of Split, and Klin.

As thousands of Yugoslav patriots went on the march and the whole Balkan "back door" to Adolf Hitler's European fortress trembled, a German overseas broadcast was recorded by Reuters as saying an Italian General Amico, commander in southern Dalmatia, had been shot by the Fascists.

The Germans, striking back furiously at the guerrilla forces, were said by the Yugoslav Information bureau here to be using dive-bombers in terrific attacks on Split and the adjoining town of Solin, also occupied by the patriots.

Archbishop Protests

The bombings brought protests from Croat Archbishop Klement Bonifacci who said the Yugoslav troops had pushed on through Split and only women and children were now left as targets for the bombers.

A German broadcast said that 60 German soldiers had disarmed 20,000 Italians in an unidentified Adriatic port and captured five Italian vessels which sought to escape to the Allies.

The Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said one of the intercepted vessels, a destroyer, contained the personal luggage of Prince Ferdinand, Duke of Genoa and second cousin of King Vittorio Emanuele. The whereabouts of the Duke, identified as commander in chief of the Italian Navy in the Adriatic sea, was not mentioned.

The Germans said that the Nazi soldiers entered the port at dusk in two motor torpedo boats, the Italians thinking at first they were English.

Dispatches from Switzerland said the Germans had ordered Italians in Como province tonight to surrender all weapons and other military equipment within 24 hours under penalty of death.

Fierce Activity

Meanwhile, the British radio in broadcasts recorded by C.B.S. and N.B.C. told of fierce underground and guerrilla activity by Italians against their unpopular German invaders.

Guerrillas were reported operating in the rear of the Salerno lines where the Germans are fighting the American Fifth army. Proclamations calling for "resistance at all cost" were issued by the United Anti-Fascist front and armed Italian railway men were said to be ambushing German convoys and sabotaging rail lines.

KNOX IN LONDON FOR 10-DAY VISIT

SEP 18 1943

London, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Navy Secretary Frank Knox, in England for a ten-day inspection trip, warned today that the main battle against Japan is still to come but added that "it may seem significant that our Navy hasn't seen a Japanese aircraft carrier in the last four months."

"Apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet," he told a press conference.

Mr. Knox said that he could not imagine a happier day than this in the light of Italian developments.

"It is a joy to see how thoroughly we (British and Americans) have learned to work together," he said.

The Secretary of the Navy arrived in Britain by plane, accompanied by Capt. Leland P. Lovett, chief of the Navy Public Relations Department.

Mr. Knox said that he would inspect American naval activities here, acquaint himself with the needs for the immediate future and seek a closer touch with the British allies but added that he had no other mission.

During questioning, he repeated a previous assertion that although German U-boats had not yet been defeated, "we have given them a good shellacking."

"They'll be back and we'll be ready for them when they come," he said. "They probably will be with us until the end of the war and may be preparing a fresh assault now."

Knox Says Biggest Battle With Japs Is Yet To Come

London, Sept. 17 (AP)—Declaring "it may seem significant that our navy hasn't seen a Japanese aircraft carrier in the last four months," United States Secretary of Navy Knox told a press conference today that the biggest battle against Japan was yet to come.

Arriving in England for a ten-day inspection trip, Knox, who was accompanied by Capt. Leland P. Lovette, navy public relations chief, said of the Japanese:

"Apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet."

He expressed pleasure at the way the Americans and British were cooperating in the war effort and said he could imagine no happier day than this in the light of developments in Italy.

New Nazi Destroyer Sunk In Nantes Raid

STURDEVANT

London, Sept. 17 (AP)—United States Flying Fortresses in Thursday's attacks on Nantes and La Pallice sank a new Nazi destroyer and scored possible hits on three large enemy vessels and a number of harbor craft, photographs made during the operations showed tonight.

The pictures, taken from rear planes in the attacking formations, showed that the warship, apparently recently completed or very near completion, was sinking in Nantes harbor after American bombs struck is squarely.

The possible hits were registered on two big merchant vessels and several harbor boats in addition to the main damage to shipbuilding and repair yards, docks, warehouses and railroad yards. Raging fires also were started in large coal bunkers.

Aside from the main target in the La Pallice raid, submarine pens and locks were covered with concentrated bomb bursts and a large ship in a near-by basin and two drydocks also were possibly hit. Smoke from the bursting explosives obscured the details in the photographs, however.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio likened the damage caused by the raid as comparable to that done by the RAF's four big raids on Hamburg.

"The center of Nantes has been completely wiped out and the city is without gas, electricity and water," the broadcast said. Between the Palace Royale and the Place du Commerce nothing was left standing. It is estimated 1,500 buildings were completely destroyed."

Nazis Claim 8 Italian Ships

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—A German broadcast declared today that German motor torpedo boats operating in the Adriatic overtook a small Italian fleet, capturing four steamers and sinking a torpedo boat, two minesweepers and a patrol boat. One of the captured ships was the 4,800-ton transport Leopardi, which was carrying 1,000 Italian soldiers on its first voyage, the broadcast said.

London, Saturday, Sept. 18 (AP)—The French Equatorial Africa radio at Brazzaville said last night in a broadcast recorded by Reuters that Allied Commando troops had landed on the Italian island of Rhodes in the eastern Mediterranean.

"Groups of Italian soldiers are taking part in the fight there against German forces," the broadcast added.

Report Italy May Join Allies

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoted reports from Switzerland today as saying that negotiations now are proceeding in Palermo, Sicily, for Italy's eventual declaration of war upon Germany and her acceptance as an Allied power. The report was wholly without confirmation from any Allied source.

Dutch Nazis Warn Of Reprisals For 'Mad Dog' Killings

London, Sept. 17 (AP)—An Aneta report tonight said Dutch Nazis have threatened to start a new reign of terror in occupied Holland in retaliation for a series of "mad-dog" slayings of Nazi officials by Netherlands patriots.

Aneta said the National Socialist newspaper, Net Nationale Dagblad, declared in an editorial that "during recent weeks horrible murders have taken place, with many of our comrades among the police shot like mad dogs on the street in broad daylight."

The newspaper warned, the report said, that if the attacks continued "the Netherlands National Socialist revolutionary spirit will speak clearly—terror can only be broken by terror."

5 Million Ration Coupons Stolen

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—The theft of 5,000,000 clothing ration coupons from an Army storehouse in southwest London was reported today by the Board of Trade, which said the theft threatened to upset Britain's clothing rationing scheme. The stolen coupons, the board explained, represented rations for 250,000 people. They were intended for men discharged from the armed forces, but could be used by any one.

Canterbury Stresses Unity

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury said today that the Archbishop of York, on his present visit to Moscow, would express sympathy and admiration for "the church and people of Russia in the great trial through which they are passing." He added that a letter of greeting from himself and the Archbishop of York, which the latter is bearing for Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow, also cited "the unity of our two churches (the Church of England and the Russian Orthodox Church) in the service of our Lord."

1,000 Victory Ships Next Year Planned By U. S.

SEP 18 1943

London, Sept. 17 (AP)—Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, of the United States Maritime Commission, said today the building of Liberty ships will be tapered off in favor of launching 1,000 faster Victory ships by the end of 1944, with an eye toward post-war maritime trade.

Vickery described the new Victory ship as capable of 16 to 17½ knots as against the Liberty ships' speed of 11 knots.

Gunner Gets Double Award

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—An unusual, simultaneous award of the Distinguished Flying Cross and Oak Leaf cluster—equivalent to two D. F. C.'s—was made today to Staff Sergeant Donald W. Crossley, twenty-five years old, of Wellsburg, W. Va. The highest scoring aerial gunner in the European theater of operations, Sergeant Crossley shot down eleven German planes in twenty heavy bomber raids. He already held an Air Medal and three clusters for the raids.

Noel Coward's 'Nasty' Song Sets All London On Its Ear

His Idolaters And Critics Alike Outraged By "Don't Let's Be Beastly To The Germans"

SEP 18 1943

By RUSSELL LANDSTORM

[Associated Press Correspondent]

London, Sept. 17—Noel Coward has set the nation by the ears with a new song called "Don't Let's Be Beastly to the Germans."

It is cynical, sarcastic and controversial; therefore, it is perfect Coward. And being perfect Coward, a lot of people are offended, although some consider it brilliant.

Heretofore, there has been at least some part of his cult devotedly championing him and his works to the end, but his new song has shocked and outraged most of the torchbearers as well as those to whom the name of the master long has been anathema.

Think They're Being Laughed At

The trouble is that all of them, the idolaters and the scoffers alike, think that they are being laughed at.

Sentimentalists and humanitarians are as infuriated as the Vansittart crowd, which believes that the German people themselves share with their leaders responsibility for the war.

Left-wingers and Rightists, service men and women and civilians, writers and your ordinary radio listener have given the debonair playwright-composer-singer-et al. such a tongue-lashing that he may be just as well pleased he's in the Middle East under auspices of the British Ministry of Information.

Then The Fuss Began

Coward wrote the song in a weekend respite from his job of supervising the filming of his play, "This Happy Breed." He tried out his piece at a private stage party with uproarious consequences. Then the author went on the air with it, and the fuss began.

The sobriety and the studied moderation of the BBC got a jolt when Coward, in his best satirical manner, counseled in crooning accents, "don't let's be beastly to the Germans when our victory is ultimately won." Listeners gaped when they heard the musical invective which included such epithets as "swine" and "rats" and use of the word "Hun," which the BBC seldom will permit in its news broadcasts.

The Concluding Stanza

The song concluded with this verse, which is quoted by permission of the publishers, Chappell & Co.:

Don't let's be beastly to the Germans,
For you can't deprive a gangster of his gun.
Though they've been a little naughty to the Czechs and Polies and Dutch,
I don't suppose those countries really mind it very much.
Let's be free with them and share the BBC with them,
We mustn't prevent them basking in the sun.
Let's soften their defeat again and build their bloody fleet again,
But don't let's be beastly to the Hun.

The distraught BBC quickly issued a disclaimer of responsibility for the song's expressed sentiments.

Argument Waxes Bitter

People argued about the song in saloons, hotel lobbies, and in their homes. They got their disputes into print, writing letters to newspapers. One such correspondent, a member of the WAAFs, declared "we are bitterly disgusted and ashamed at Noel Coward's song. Do you think the British people will tolerate this . . . ?"

Tom Harrison, radio critic of the Observer, London Sunday newspaper, called the song 'clever and witty, but nasty, too, a reductio ad absurdum of the theme that all Germans adore war and that those of us who distrust a peace of vengeance are crazy folk wanting to Let them feel they're swell again, And bomb us all to hell again.

Anyhow, it is a good guess that the quarreling will not have subsided by the time Coward returns from Africa, where he has been entertaining troops in camps, hospitals and bases.

Assigned To Colonial Mission In Washington

London, Saturday, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Colonial Office announced today that J. S. MacPherson, chief secretary of the Colonial Office in Palestine, had been named to succeed Sir John Huggins as head of the British Colonies Supply Mission in Washington.

MacPherson also will be a member of the British-American Caribbean mission.

Three Jerseymen Aboard.

An American Bomber Station in England, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Nazi fighter opposition was fast, tough and plentiful yesterday when American bombers roared down on Nantes, but the enemy target was hit hard.

Staff Sergt. Fred Weiser of 15 Stecher street, Newark, N. J., said: "One fighter came in so close I could have reached out and grabbed him, but we blasted the hell out of the target." He is a ball turret gunner on a Fortress.

Said Technical Sergt. Lloyd Fisk of 605 Orange street, Cranford, N. J., an engineer: "There was terrific smoke going up hundreds of feet and I'm sure we hit the target on the nose."

"There was a lot of fighter opposition, but it looked like we did a good job," declared Robert Richel of 1618 Bayview avenue, Hillside, N. J.

Tell of Nazi Warning to Danes

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17 (AP).—Danish refugees reaching here said yesterday that Germany has informed the Danes they must reestablish a parliamentary government by Sept. 20 or their country will be made a Nazi protectorate.

Canadian Movement Reported

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 17 (AP)—Berlin military commentators told Swedish correspondents today that a Canadian division had been moved by sea from Calabria, on the Italian toe, to strengthen the Salerno bridgehead and had been landed at Paestum and Castellabate, on the southern side of the gulf.

Ten Crewmen from Fortress Spend Day on Raft Near France

AT A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 17.—(AP) Ten crewmen of the Flying Fortress, "Kathy Jane," were forced down in the channel and spent 19 1-2 hours in wave-tossed dinghies too close to the Nazi-held French shore to fire signal flares before being rescued, it was disclosed today.

The "Kathy Jane" was over France returning from a raid on Stuttgart when one of the engines quit.

Sgt. George E. Pratt, waist gunner, Belmont, Mass., destroyed a JU-88. Sgt. John C. Thomas, Detroit, Mich., opened up on a ME-100 as it was attacking another straggling fortress. The Messerschmitt burst into flames and in the fall barely missed the B-17 it had tried to down.

Another enemy fighter was probably destroyed by S-Sgt. Russell Barnes, Birmingham, Ala., top turret gunner. T-Sgt. Russell L. Sparks, Atlanta, Ga., was credited with another probable.

At the French coast, two other engines of the Fort sputtered out.

The pilot, Lt. Norman S. Rothschild, Philadelphia, Pa., nursed the plane as far from the French coast as possible and then let it down on the rough water.

The inflated life raft broke its fastenings, but the bombardier, 2nd Lt. Edward M. Preisner, Chicopee Falls, Mass., and Pratt, Sparks and Barnes swam after and recovered it.

From noon until early morning, the men heard bombers going overhead, saw the anti-aircraft fire, heard the bombs and listened to German "E" boats.

About daybreak, they were sighted by two Spitfires which sent out a British air-sea rescue boat.

Nazis Change Tune.

Stockholm, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—German military circles acknowledged today that Allied forces in the Salerno area in Italy have regained the initiative, the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today.

The atmosphere of optimism which prevailed in the German capital Tuesday and Wednesday has given place to growing concern, the correspondent said.

Nazis Withdraw 20,000 Troops From Norway

Stockholm, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Norwegian legation here said in a statement today that 20,000 German troops had been withdrawn from Norway in recent weeks.

It added, however, that some 180,000 Nazi soldiers still were guarding the coasts of Norway against a possible Allied invasion in those regions.

Arrests in Hungary Reported

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17 (AP)—A Budapest dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper "Dagens Nyheter" reported today that many arrests had been made in Hungary following the distribution of leaflets urging workers to agitate for peace.

PEACE OR WAR ISSUE FACED BY HUNGARY

Decision Vital To Nation Said To Have Become Burning Actuality

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Sept. 17—As Allied forces drove forward in Italy, restless Hungary, subjected to increased pressure from Berlin while striving to check home Government opposition, today faced vital military and political decisions.

A Budapest dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lausanne said activity in Hungarian political and parliamentary circles had become intense, but added that there was "no serious confirmation of a Government crisis."

[President Roosevelt in his message to Congress today declared "we have reliable information that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria."]

Interim Ministry Looked For

The Lausanne dispatch said the time was not opportune for the organization of a ministry under Count Stefan Bethlen, former Premier about whom much has been said lately, but that it was believed more likely that the "transition cabinet" would be headed by a less-marked personality.

The article said military decisions vital to Hungary had become a "burning actuality" and that secret moves could cause important changes.

There has been a strong attempt to curb a growing tendency for withdrawing from the war and yesterday Propaganda Minister Antal declared that those arguing in favor of the country's capitulation were "betraying the interests and security of the country," it was reported.

Peace Leaders Arrested

At the same time, it was said, official announcements told of further arrests of leaders of the "peace party" because of a "pacifist attitude and spreading alarming announcements."

A dispatch by the Magyar Tavirati Iroda, semi-official Hungarian news agency, said the Propaganda Minister had declared a decisive moment was at hand for the nation and had added:

"Naturally, like all the people of the world, Hungarians desire peace. But there is peace—and there is peace. There is a peace equivalent to the death and dismemberment of the nation, as in the case of 1918. . . . There is also a peace that assures the dignity and liberty of the nation—this peace is desired in Hungary."

Decision Due Soon

A Budapest dispatch to La Suisse de Geneve said "the profound impression on public opinion by events in Italy is far from calming," and declared that the Hungarian Cabinet "remains confused."

This dispatch said that despite the German-Japanese decree on the validity of the tripartite pact, of which Hungary is a signer, Hungary interpreted the agreement by its text, which says the withdrawal of any partner—and Italy has withdrawn—voids the agreement.

[BBC said in a broadcast recorded by CBS in New York that "important decisions by the Kallay Government are expected at any hour. . . . Official Hungarian circles maintain that Italy's withdrawal from the tripartite alliance releases other signatories from their obligation."]

La Suisse said there was no doubt that Hungary's allies wanted Hungary to send fresh troops to the battle lines and that "important conversations" on the subject were in progress. The article said Germany's energetic action in Italy had induced responsible Hungarians to proceed "more prudently."

Requisitioning Workers.

Berne, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Nazi authorities have begun requisitioning Italian workmen, adding their former allies to the long list of countries from which the Reich is gathering slave labor.

Heads of German labor camps have been instructed to prepare to receive "great numbers" of Italian farm workers, a dispatch to Geneva's La Suisse said, adding that it had been "confirmed" that Fritz Sauckel, Nazi high commissioner for labor employment, had been charged with requisitioning Italian peasants.

Italian men from 18 to 40 whose jobs were eliminated through the bombing of North Italian industrial cities were reported in border dispatches to have been rounded up by the Germans. Other reports said the Nazis were seizing all persons unable to show adequate identification and hustling them off to undisclosed destinations.

Printed notices have appeared in occupied Turin warning that work must be resumed and asking the population to "reflect on the terrible trials to which families of workers will be subjected if work is not resumed."

A Vienna dispatch said that Italians who voluntarily go to the Germans will receive favored treatment and that their families will be helped. German factory workers have been ordered into Northern Italy to work Italian factories should they be closed through strikes or sabotage, the dispatches added.

Invoking an August decree of the Badoglio Government militarizing factory workers, the Germans have warned that the workers may be "considered soldiers and treated, should the case arise, as prisoners of war," the dispatches also declared.

Nazi Propaganda In Tailspin

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 17 (AP). The Allied success at Salerno tonight turned Nazi propaganda into a tailspin from predictions of certain victory to admissions that the battle for Italy is uncertain and that "it will be difficult to drive out the Allied troops."

Germany had counted heavily upon victory at Salerno, definitely announced two days ago, to help counteract the effects of Italy's surrender in the Balkans and at home, dispatches to Der Bund said. Berlin had built up Salerno as a great Allied disaster and especially a big defeat for the Americans in their first great battle on continental soil.

When the Americans turned the tide and advanced, the Nazi propagandists found an alibi in "intervention by the British fleet."

New York today by CBS, the German-controlled Vichy radio, quoting the Swiss newspaper Die Tat, declared that Benito Mussolini and Roberto Farinacci, former Fascist Minister of State, are now at Cremona, Italy, which has become the provisional seat of the Fascist government, and that the Italian papers Popolo d'Italia and Regima Fascista have resumed publication.]

Seize Allied Captives in Italy

Nazis Go After Prisoners Badoglio Freed—Draft Italians for German Army.

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—The German authorities were reported today to be rounding up all Allied prisoners released in Italy after the capitulation of the Pietro Badoglio government, and to have ordered all Italian troops to report for duty in the German Army.

The order giving Italian soldiers until 6 P. M. (Italian time) today to present themselves to the Germans was said to have been issued in the area of Como, about twenty-five miles north of Milan.

A similar order was believed to have been issued throughout the German-occupied portion of Italy.

Meanwhile today advices from Italy said that the chaos in Rome was so great that all churches except St. Peter's had been closed because of the plundering. Pope Pius XII was reported to have conferred with the Papal Secretary of State, Cardinal Maglione, regarding the situation.

The Milan Corriere della Sera said church authorities had appealed to Field Marshal Albert Kesselring to order his soldiers to refrain from looting churches.

Reports reaching the Swiss frontier said Nazi troopers were plucking gold earrings from women and taking gold watches from men. The German military commander at Turin published a proclamation today, La Stampa said, telling the people that German soldiers were not authorized to requisition rings, watches or other precious articles from civilians.

REPORTERS MEET JERSEY SOLDIER

Fifth Army Headquarters in Italy, Sept. 15 (Delayed) (A. P.).—When Associated Press War Correspondent Daniel De Luce and other newspaper men completed a 100-mile dash by jeep through No Man's Land to make the first contact between the American Fifth and the British Eighth armies, they were greeted by a New Jersey man.

As the correspondents approached the American lines after hours of dodging Nazi patrols, they found their way blocked by a green-colored half truck, from which was leaning Private John Dowling of 132 Bostwick avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

The helmeted private glared at the men in the Jeep, and beside him was a vicious 50-caliber machine gun, its muzle dead on the newspaper men.

Convinced that he was seeing Americans and British where only Axis troops were believed to be, Dowling grinned and said, "Another foot and I would have given you one hell of a burst."

Houses in Salerno ...ped Allied Bombs

Not a Window Left in Italian City, Now Rubble Heap

By William Stoneman

From the combined American press
Distributed by The Associated Press

SALERNO, Italy, Sept. 17.—Once beautiful Salerno is little more than a rubble heap. You can't find a half-dozen houses in the center of the town that aren't heavily damaged. No house has its windows, a grim token of the effectiveness of the Allied aerial onslaught which caught the city a week before we landed here.

What is left of the population seems to be in the bread line, waiting for American food. We walked for a block through the hot streets without passing any one.

Salerno, incidentally, has been in the hands of the British since it was first taken. There have been countless rumors to the contrary, which, like most of the rumors we have heard in these parts, are pure nonsense.

New Delhi, Sept. 17 (AP)—American fighters and bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force have bombed an important enemy supply base in the Hukawng Valley of northern Burma, an air communique said today, estimating at least twenty buildings were destroyed.

The communique explained that the target was a Japanese forward supply base which also served as a transhipment point for waterborne traffic in the area.

Mitchell bombers destroyed a number of locomotives and cars and did much damage during the two days to railroad yards and railways.

GEN. STILWELL'S EYES ARE ON HOME

New Delhi, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Congratulating the soldier newspaper, the CBI, Roundup, on completing its first year of publication, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell wished the editor continued success today, but added: "I won't say 'many happy returns of the day', because we are all going home long before then."

The Roundup is edited by Major Fred Eldridge of Los Angeles.

Chinese Troops in India Undergo Rigorous Training

Young Men Moved from Homeland to Prepare for Drive on Japs.

SEP 18 1943

By PRESTON GROVER

NEW DELHI, Sept. 17.—(AP) The disclosure that Chinese troops have been transported from China to India to be trained by American officers has lifted the veil on one of the most daring enterprises in this theater of operations.

Regiment after regiment of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's troops were transported from China, stripped of every ounce of equipment and wearing only thin dungarees so that a greater number could be brought over in a hurry.

Joined Troops from Burma

Once in India, they joined troops who were evacuated from Burma 18 months ago, and together they have been given the most intensive training possible.

I visited the training center in eastern India and saw them being given the works, from how to crawl on their stomachs over open ground to how to operate the most modern American artillery and radio apparatus.

Part of them already have had their first skirmishes with the enemy. The latest was reported in yesterday's communique, disclosing that they had inflicted substantial casualties on a force of 200 Japanese in northern Burma.

The Americans are training not only men but officers. It was a ticklish job in the beginning for the Americans to convince the Chinese they still had something to learn after four years of actual warfare.

Officers Teach Recruits

I saw American officers in freshly-pressed uniforms dive headlong into the dust and gravel to show the Chinese how it should be done.

On an earlier trip to China, I saw the first processes of getting the Chinese ready for the training. They were carefully chosen both from a physical and mental standpoint. As far as possible, only completely fit men were picked.

All were vaccinated and inoculated against various fevers and plagues. Some were recruited from country districts far in the interior of China and had never seen an automobile, a truck, modern artillery or an airplane. Yet they showed no signs of nervousness at the prospect of being transported 1,000 miles from their own homeland.

Plenty of Good Food

Once arrived in India, they were given full uniforms and put on strengthening rations which put as much as 20 pounds per man on whole companies.

The soldiers swung into the training readily. The officers were at first reluctant to risk "losing face" by being taught by foreigners, but they slowly changed their attitude when they saw what organized training methods could accomplish.

Interpreters were used freely, but actual demonstration by the American instructors, from corporals to colonels, was found to be the fastest method of getting results.

One of the hardest problems of communications was encountered because the Chinese language cannot be telegraphed by any ordinary code or phonetically.

Lacking the time to teach 100 Chinese operators to speak English, the Americans devised a system of teaching them to recognize the English alphabet in the Morse system. They also taught them to receive messages one English letter at a time by the same system.

The number of Chinese trained is not permitted to be disclosed for military reasons, but it will be enough to make its weight felt when they take over a sector of the attack which ultimately will be launched to open Burma to Allied forces.

Russian Church Gives Blessing To Soviet Rule

SEP 19 1943

Appeals to Christians All Over World to Defend Faith Against Fascism

MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Russian Orthodox Church published today a message of blessing to the Soviet government and an appeal to Christians throughout the world to unite in the defense of their faith against Fascism.

The message, signed by the Congress of Bishops, was published in the first issue of the new church newspaper, "Journal of the Moscow Patriarchate," and was reprinted by the Soviet government organ "Izvestia." The Metropolitan of Moscow, Sergei, whom the Congress elected Patriarch, headed the list of nineteen signatories.

The appeal expressed the hope that "at this favorable moment, when our beloved Russian Army is victoriously driving away the enemy from our beloved borders and has drawn upon itself the main forces of the enemy, the so long awaited second front, through the intensive efforts of Christians in all Allied countries, is finally being created which will bring nearer victory and peace to the people."

Japs Shift New Planes To Solomon Airfields

HIPPLE

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, Saturday, Sept. 18.—(AP) A steady flow of plane reinforcements has made the Japanese as strong or stronger in the central and northern Solomons than they were two weeks ago, despite their heavy losses during our air campaign, a Navy spokesman said today.

He said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down to the big island naval base of Truk, thence to Rabaul, New Britain and on to the Bougainville island air bases.

The airfields in Bougainville, at the northeastern end of the Solomons group, have not been made inoperative by American raids, although they have been hit regularly and heavily.

The enemy still manages to take off planes from the airdrome at Kahili, on the southern tip of the island, and at Ballale, and he is also using a new field at Kara, seven miles northeast of Kahili.

LAE WAS HOP-OFF POINT FOR AMELIA EARHART

SEP 19 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, Sept. 18—(AP) Lae, New Guinea, whose capture by the Allies was announced today, is the place where Amelia Earhart took off in her globe-girdling airplane July 1, 1937, never to be seen again.

Carl Jacobsen, a plantation owner near Lae before the Japanese drove him from his home, remembers America's famed aviatrix well. Jacobsen said the radio station at Lae was in contact with her ship for more than 1,000 miles at which time she reported bad weather. Then the radio operator lost contact.

Jacobsen now is on his way back to Lae to see what, if anything, is left of his place.

Coffee, Doughnuts Beat Troops to Salamaua

SEP 19 1943

WITH ALLIED TROOPS AT SALAMAUA, New Guinea, Sept. 15 (Delayed) (AP).—Soldiers call it "The Salamaua Salvation Army," and it's been doing a roaring business.

Somehow John Taylor, of Gramercy Park, New York City, and Leo Schwartz, of Washington, Red Cross workers, managed to get onto the Salamaua Isthmus ahead of the main body of American troops. They pitched their tent beside a huge shell crater on the beach and started hawking their coffee and doughnuts—as the amazed Americans piled off their landing boats.

NEW CALEDONIA GOVERNOR

Christian Laigret Replaces Henri Montchamp in Post

NOUMEA, New Caledonia, Sept. 17 (AP)—Christian Laigret, former administrator of French African Cameroons and a long-time de Gaullist, has been appointed Governor of New Caledonia and dependencies, French authorities announced today.

M. Laigret also was named director of the civilian cabinet of the high commissioner for French possession in the Pacific. Former Governor Henri Montchamp left recetly for active military service in Africa.

Both appointments were made by the Commissioner of Colonies in Algiers on orders of the National Committee of Liberation. M. Laigret was administrator of Cameroons at the time of the fall of France. He arrived here on the eve of the third anniversary of the bloodless revolution when New Caledonia came under the Fighting French banner.

Moderation Plea Made By Argentine Press

Montevideo, Uruguay, Sept. 17 (AP). Argentine newspapermen, aroused over stern measures taken by the Government of Gen. Pedro P. Ramirez to restrict the freedom of the Argentine press, have appealed to Alberto Gilbert, Minister of the Interior, for a policy of moderation, it was learned today.

In a letter to General Gilbert, the Argentine Newspapermen's Association noted the forecasts of some Argentine officials that a decree would be issued regulating the press and expressed the hope that such restrictive measures would not be taken.

Battle For Press Freedom

Argentine Liberals view the letter as another chapter in the battle for press freedom which they regard as essential.

They point out that the repressive measures imposed by the recently ousted regime of Dr. Francisco N. Castillo to shelter his neutrality policy from the criticism of the overwhelmingly pro-democratic press served to retard the "evolution" of Argentine public opinion toward the democratic position.

It was this opinion that former Foreign Minister Segundo R. Storni told United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull would be strengthened if the United States would extend lend-lease aid to Argentina.

Storni resigned under fire when Secretary Hull refused his request.

Regarded As Uphill Battle

The federation's letter called Gilbert's attention to the fact that newspapers had been closed, seized and threatened throughout Argentina "for news or comments which in no way affect the domestic order or compromise the neutrality." It included a list of thirty-two newspapers affected.

Newspapermen who have just returned here from Buenos Aires believe, however, that the Argentine press is fighting an uphill battle. They said that within the last two days the Government press office had warned the press that the Government would not tolerate the publication of news, comments or even photographs which might compromise the Argentine neutrality.

The same day the letter was presented, they said, the Nationalist daily Cabildo attacked the Liberal press which it called "vassals of international Jewish banks."

Exchange Liner Stops At Rio For Japanese

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Swedish liner Gripsholm, chartered by the United States Government for exchange of Japanese and American nationals, arrived here today to pick up eighty-nine Japanese citizens.

Brazilian Foreign Office officials will direct embarkation of the Japanese, working in conjunction with the Spanish Embassy, which is representing Japanese interests in this country.

U. S. And Brazil Renew Two More Accords

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 17 (AP)—United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery announced today that Brazil and the United States had signed two more accords for the purchase of mica and rock crystals by the United States.

The accords constitute a renewal of those which expired last May 14 and will remain in effect until that date next year, assuring Brazilian miners a constant market for the two minerals.

The mica accord stipulates that the United States will buy until next May 14 all strategic quantities of this mineral produced in Brazil, independent of whatever development in the war there may be.

Marshall Reviews Mexicans

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17 (AP).—General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, stood beside President Manuel Avila Camacho on a balcony of the National Palace yesterday to review a parade of Mexico's armed forces, staged as part of this country's Independence Day celebration. Mexican conscripts and commando troops appeared for the first time in the military demonstration.

MUSSOLINI TO SPEAK, ROME RADIO PROMISES

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—(AP) A promise that Benito Mussolini, whom the Germans say they have liberated but have never produced, will "soon let his voice be heard" was coupled tonight on the Nazi-controlled Rome radio with an attack upon King Vittorio Emmanuele.

Allessandro Pavolini, secretary of the German-sponsored "republican fascist party" headed by Mussolini, denounced recent actions of the King and Marshal Pietro Badoglio as "monstrous" and "treacherous" and gave the definition of the new party and its aims:

"There will be a new start. The pact between the King and the people is bilateral. And if the King fails it, each of us is relieved from his oath. Fascism, which is being reborn around the person of the Duce, can be nothing but republicanism. A republic does not only mean a constitutional form replacing another. It means a regime that destroys bridges with the past."

The broadcast was reported by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Nazi forces already reeling backward in Russia and in Italy are under direct warning from President Roosevelt that they have felt only a foretaste of what is in store for them and their Japanese and Balkan accomplices.

"Precise plans" were shaped at Quebec, the President told a reconvened Congress, for other blows "of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan. "Definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere," have been set, he added.

The news from Italy and Russia underscored that pledge. With the junction of the American 5th and British 8th armies at the south end of the Salerno bridgehead, the campaign in Italy ceased to be an affair of the landing beaches. It became a full-scale drive northward up the Italian boot.

There can be no doubt that Nazi divisions rushed to the Salerno front to halt or delay the seaborne 5th army incursion are now backtracking over inadequate and bomb-blasted roads to escape entrapment.

The first grim phase of the battle of Italy is over in a smashing Allied victory. The speed with which the first spearhead of the three-pronged British advance from the south reached the Salerno theater clearly indicates that the Nazi High Command was taken by surprise. It has been outguessed as well as outfought thus far in Italy as it was in Sicily.

It is in Russia, however, that the most ominous developments for the Germans — developments directly traceable to the Allied invasion of the Italian mainland and the Italian capitulation—are clearly visible. Despite the Russians' insistence that the Allied effort still is short of full second-front effect, the signs are plain that it is the shifting of German reserves from the east to the Balkans and Italy that has opened the way for the tremendous Red army thrust in the center that has reached almost to the environs of Kiev.

Red spearheads are along the east bank of the Desna river just above its confluence with the Dnieper at Kiev. They are knocking at the same door to Kiev through which the Germans lunged in a surprise drive down the Desna to take the city and unhinge the whole southern Russian defense front two years ago.

The explanation appears to be that German divisions from that front in the Dnieper loop must have been pulled out to be rushed to Italy and the Balkans. They were the closest for quick transportation to the tottering south wall of the European fortress.

Russian discovery of Nazi weakness in the Dnieper loop was prompt. Red forces have carved a westward bulge into German lines between Nazi "evacuated" Bryansk and Russian captured Losovaya more than 300 miles wide and more than 200 miles deep.

It is threatening northward the last westward escape route from the Bryansk salient for the enemy, the Bryansk-Gomel railroad and highway system to the Dnieper. Berlin's reiterated announcement of the surrender of Bryansk indicates that a desperate race to the refuge of the west bank of the Dnieper is on in that sector.

Southward the Kiev bulge threatens at any moment to sweep down upon the Dnieper crossings in rear of retreating Nazi forces still east of the river and in the Crimea. There are the makings of a stupendous military disaster for the foe in Russia. Only the start of the fall rains seemingly could avert it.

3 U. S. NAVY CRAFT SUNK

Destroyer And Tug In Mediterranean And Tug In South Pacific Lost

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 17—The navy announced tonight the loss of a destroyer and a tug in the Mediterranean sea and a tug in the South Pacific during the past week.

The destroyer, the U. S. S. Rowan, went down as a result of an underwater explosion in Italian waters Saturday.

The tug Nauset was sunk by enemy action in the Mediterranean on September 9, the day of the Allied landing at Salerno.

Tug Sunk In Pacific

In the South Pacific, the tug Navajo was sunk after an underwater explosion on Sunday.

Next of kin of all casualties aboard the Mauset have been notified, and the next of kin of casualties aboard the Rowan and the Navajo will be notified as soon as possible, the navy said.

The fate of the commander of the Rowan, Commander Robert Stephens Ford, West Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., was not reported.

Launched In 1938

The 1,500-ton Rowan, which had a normal complement of 172, was launched in 1938 and commissioned in 1939.

The commander of the Nauset was Lieut. Joseph Orleck, USN, whose wife, Gertha C. Orleck, lives at Norfolk, Va. He was reported missing.

The Nauset, 1,450 tons, was a new ship commissioned last March. Her normal complement was approximately 60.

The navy had no immediate information on the commander of the Navajo. This ship, the same size as the Nauset, was launched in 1939 and commissioned in 1940.

Chile Foreign Minister In

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Joaquin Fernandez, Foreign Minister of Chile, arrived at National Airport today. While in the United States, Mr. Fernandez is scheduled to confer with Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and other high officials on economic matters concerning the two countries. He goes to Canada on Sept. 27, taking with him the Chilean Congress' ratification of a commercial treaty negotiated with the Dominion in 1941

In Contact With U. S.

Washington, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Isolated by German invasion armies for two years, the ingenuous fighting patriots of Yugoslavia have established direct radio contact with the United States.

The first messages from the guerrilla-operated station tell of great excitement in the Balkans over the Allied drive into neighboring Italy.

Equipment for the radio setup may have been parachuted into the Yugoslav hills by Allied planes, Yugoslav embassy officials hinted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Laborite, of New York, declared today that activities of the American Hungarian Federation "have had a disruptive influence" on what he described as loyal Hungarian-American organizations, and requested that Attorney General Francis Biddle make "a full and prompt investigation."

3 Jersey Soldiers Find Adventure on 3 Fronts

Army Tells of Air Force Men's Exploits on Land, in Air

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Adventures of three New Jersey men with the Army Air Forces on as many different continents were described by the War Department today.

Second Lieutenant Joseph W. Dukens, of Burlington, was the bombardier aboard a Flying Fortress which, with two of its four engines knocked out over Kassel, shot down two Focke-Wulf 190's, dropped its bombs and returned to its base in England. With a third Focke-Wulf on the Fortress's tail, Lieutenant Dukens got his bombs away. The flight instruments went out, but the pilot got the ship home and crash-landed in a cow pasture.

Staff Sergeant John Fricker, of 369 Insley Street, Perth Amboy, mess sergeant for a squadron in North Africa, hired an Arab war orphan who became the outfit's mascot, and even went along when the group moved to a new station.

Staff Sergeant William C. Nichaus, of 15 Thurston Avenue, Trenton, was one of two gunners credited with shooting down two Japanese Zeros during a bombing attack over Paramushiru and Shimushu Islands, 1,200 miles northeast of Tokio.

Captive Flyer Wins Air Medal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Staff Sergeant Charles D. Hill jr., of the Army Air Forces, now a prisoner of war in Germany, has been awarded in absentia the Air Medal with one oak leaf cluster. The War Department announced today that Brigadier General Robert W. Harper, Assistant Chief of the Air Staff for Training, made the presentation to Mr. Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Hill, of Baltimore. The award was "for five bomber combat missions over enemy-occupied continental Europe.

WHEELER ADMITS POSSIBLE DEFEAT

Washington, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Senator Wheeler(D.Mont.) conceded today that his bill to defer the drafting of pre-war fathers might be defeated in the Senate, but contended that such action would be a blow at the morale of the people and a defeat for the nation's children.

Senator Reynolds (D.-N. C.), chairman of the Military Committee which is holding hearings on the bill, told Mr. Wheeler he deserved "plaudits' for bringing out facts, whether the measure passed or not.

Senator Wheeler asserted again that some war industries are hoarding man power with employees "falling over one another," while Col. Lewis Sanders of the War Manpower Commission denied that there are any cost-plus-percentage war contracts which would make overstaffing profitable. Col. Sanders told the committee such contracts, widely used in the first world war, now are illegal.

Senator Downey (D.-Cal.) took exception to testimony by Col. Sanders that "lend-lease does not increase the drain on our man power." The Californian declared lend-lease contributions to other nations required the services of 6,000,000 Americans. Col. Sanders countered that if we didn't provide the aid, "we would have to put more troops in the field and take heavier losses."

U. S. ARMS OUTPUT NEARING CAPACITY

SEP 18 1943

7,500 Planes Produced Monthly, Ships Built at Rate of Five a Day.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) The United States is approaching full capacity war production and is now turning out planes at the rate of 7,500 a month or 90,000 a year and merchant ships at the rate of almost five a day.

These figures were disclosed by President Roosevelt today in his special message to Congress in which he asserted that the British empire and the United States are now producing so much of every essential of war that "we have definite superiority over Germany and Japan which is growing with every succeeding minute."

Not Yet Up to Schedule

"But we have no minutes to lose," he warned. He called for greater plane output, saying it is still not up to schedule.

"The best way to avoid heavy casualty lists," he declared, "is to provide our troops with the best equipment possible—and plenty of it."

The production rate of increase dropped in June and July and caused some worry, he said, but picked up in August and this month "it is even better."

He said approximately 15,000 planes, with an important increase in production of heavy bombers in August, and 281 merchant ships aggregating 3,200,000 tons, were produced during the two months Congress was in recess.

Original Goal Reduced

The President's original goal for plane output this year was 125,000. This was pared down twice until the figure dropped below 100,000, so the present rate of 7,500 a month is approaching the new goal. Although the number of planes was reduced from the original goal, the emphasis has switched to larger and more effective long-range bombers and fighters.

An idea of the size of America's war output since its armament program began in May, 1940, was given in a table showing the following items produced and delivered up to Sept. 1, 1943:

Fighting ships and auxiliaries 2,380; landing vessels 13,000; plane engines 349,000; tanks 53,000; artillery weapons 93,000; small arms, 9,500,000; small arms ammunition 25,942,000,000 rounds, and trucks 1,233,000.

The President said the time for building submarines had been cut by almost 50 per cent, that during August, 1943, we produced almost as many torpedoes as during all of World War I, and that since the outbreak of war in Europe this country has increased its petroleum output by 66 per cent, bituminous coal 40 per cent, chemicals 300 per cent, iron ore 125 per cent, hydroelectric power 79 per cent, and steel 106 per cent.

F.D.R. CHIDES CRITICS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(AP) President Roosevelt, conceding there have been errors in handling the war program, today compared critics who dwell on them to persons who can see only the hole when looking at a doughnut.

"Sometimes," he said in his message to Congress, "this is an example of sheer individual pessimism; but sometimes it is caused by motives not consonant with war-winning ideas."

MANPOWER PLAN ON PACIFIC COAST DEVISED BY BARUCH

Only Alternative Is Drafting of Workers, Report to Byrnes Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) Congress learned today that the labor budgeting plan put into effect on the west coast was presented to the White House by Bernard M. Baruch with the declaration that it was the only alternative to the drafting of workers.

Mr. Baruch's report, made originally to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, was placed in The Congressional Record by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.). The senator had demanded a copy after some of Mr. Baruch's conclusions were disclosed a week ago by Mr. Byrnes' office.

The publication of the text also disclosed that Mr. Baruch was sharply critical of what he called the failure of government agencies to work as a team to solve manpower problems.

Agency Battles Must End

"The time must end," he said, "when agencies spend their energies battling to build up empires of power. It is time to reassert the fact that there is one Federal government—speaking with one voice —not a 'centimouth.'"

The West Coast labor plan was approved by Mr. Byrnes' office two weeks ago and became effective

1943

Sept. 15.

Briefly, it establishes a priority on labor as well as a priority on materials, with manufacturers being required to draw their workers from a pool established by a local priorities committee. Government agencies would be represented on this committee, which would be headed by a local citizen of high standing.

Mr. Baruch said that while this plan was aimed primarily to meet serious labor shortage conditions on the Pacific coast, it "is likely to afford a pattern that can be applied in other communities."

In urging its immediate application, Mr. Baruch said that action could not be "delayed in searching for perfection, or until new legislation, such as the national service act, can be obtained."

Plan Includes Drastic Controls

He acknowledged that the plan involved "more drastic controls than any yet introduced in any community" since manufacturers would have to give up their right to hire as many workers as they pleased and workers would be limited in their choice of jobs.

"But the only alternative to some plan of this sort is a national service act for the drafting of labor, which carries with it tremendous implications and would take time to get," Mr. Baruch said, adding: "Plane production cannot wait."

The Boeing aircraft plant in Seattle, he said, "fell behind schedule 40 Flying Fortresses a month because of insufficient labor.

Mr. Baruch complained that there are entirely too many agencies "studying" problems of manpower, housing, transportation, labor turnover and the care of children of working mothers.

"No more 'studies' are needed," he said. "What must be done is known. Action alone remains necessary."

At Seattle a Boeing aircraft company spokesman, who asked to remain unnamed, said:

"The picture is not quite complete as Mr. Baruch phrases it. Our production has not declined by 40 planes. We reached a production peak in May and have been maintaining it.

"The schedule given us by the government, however, has been accelerated from month to month, and we simply have not had the manpower to match it."

FEW U. S. EMPLOYES DEFERRED IN DRAFT

112,399 Men of Service Age Hold Government Jobs, Senate Committee Told.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) A Selective Service official said today that the induction of Federal employes deferred from the draft solely by reason of their employment would furnish hardly "a drop in the bucket," compared with total military manpower needs.

Lt. Col. Francis V. Keesling, Jr., Selective Service's legislative liaison officer, furnished the Senate Military committee an estimate that only 112,399 Federal employes between the ages of 18 and 37 were so deferred, as of Aug. 15.

Employed in War Agencies

All but 15,741 of those, he said, were employed by the War and Navy departments, or in such war-connected agencies as Civil Aeronautics, the Panama Canal, War Shipping administration or the Maritime commission.

The committee, which is holding supplemental hearings on the Wheeler bill to defer pre-Pearl Harbor fathers from the draft, recessed until Monday when it is to hear from Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York and possibly from Bernard M. Baruch, war mobilization adviser.

Commenting on the government job figures he gave the Military committee, Col. Keesling said he thought the number of occupational deferments among Federal employes would prove "very surprising to many people."

"Some statements have been made about a million males employed in civilian capacities by the government," he said. "The public, however, generally overlooks the fact that many of these men have been deferred for other than occupational reasons."

Many of them, he said, are over 38, and others have been deferred up to now because of their family status.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), author of the father-deferment bill which is expected to come to a vote in the Senate next week, conceded the possibility of its defeat. But this, he said, would be a blow at the morale of Americans and the children of the nation.

RENEGOTIATION ACT WILL FACE REVISION

Amendment Proposed to Exempt Contracts Below $500,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — (AP) Counsel for the House Naval Affairs committee predicted today that Congress would amend the renegotiation law to exempt war contracts below $500,000 and permit contractors civil redress, but would not repeal the statute.

At a conference sponsored by New York university, Robert E. Kline, Jr., explained that he was expressing only his personal opinions.

Widespread attacks on the law, intended to allow the government to recapture excessive war profits, had been carried out frequently, he said.

"I think that both the public and Congress are aware of the selfish interest behind this repeal movement," he asserted. "I think that both are alert to the necessity of preserving this kind of a safeguard against the unnecessary and profligate expenditure of public funds, and x x x I do feel certain that the law will not be repealed."

Exemption of contracts totaling less than $500,000 a year, Mr. Kline said, would reduce the work of renegotiation agencies materially, and speed work on larger ones.

While the law does not provide for an appeal, Mr. Kline said most legal authorities agreed that relief could be sought in a civil suit. To remove any doubt, however, a provision for court appeal would be written into the act, he predicted.

Plane Industry Asks Easing of War Profit Law

West Coast Manufacturers Say 'Survival' Requires Renegotiation Revision

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Francis A. Callery, representing west coast aircraft manufacturers, told the House Ways and Means Committee today survival of the aircraft industry required modification of the war contract renegotiation law to allow reserves for post-war transition.

He proposed that the statute also be revised to provide renegotiation on net earnings after taxes instead of before taxes.

Mr. Callery, vice-president of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation, told the committee he appeared also in behalf of the Douglas, Lockheed, North American, Northrup, Ryan and Vega companies.

Peace-time contraction of business and industry is as much a part of the cost of war as the cost of war-time expansion, he said, adding:

"The aircraft industry is not asking for rewards, but is asking for survival. It will do its best no matter what the net earnings are. But we would all rest a lot easier if we knew where our first few months' pay rolls were coming from after the war—and so would the hundreds of thousands of men and women who are earning their living helping us make airplanes."

Meanwhile, counsel for the House Naval Affairs Committee predicted today that Congress would amend the renegotiation law to exempt war contracts below $500,000 and permit contractors civil redress, but would not repeal the statute.

At a conference sponsored by New York University Robert E. Kline jr., counsel for the committee, explained that he was expressing only his personal opinions. Widespread attacks on the law, intended to allow the government to recapture excessive war profits, had been carried out frequently, he said.

"I think that both the public and Congress are aware of the selfish interest behind this repeal movement," he asserted. "I think that both are alert to the necessity of preserving this kind of a safeguard against the unnecessary and profligate expenditure of public funds, and . . . I do feel certain that the law will not be repealed."

Exemption of contracts totaling less than $500,000 a year, Mr. Kline said, would reduce the work of renegotiation agencies materially, and speed work on larger ones.

While the law does not provide for an appeal, Mr. Kline said most legal authorities agreed that relief could be sought in a civil suit. To remove any doubt, however, a provision for court appeal would be written into the act, he predicted.

PLANE INSIGNIA CHANGED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) The border inclosing the insignia for all American military airplanes henceforth will be blue instead of red because the latter device looks too much like the Japanese insignia at a quick glance, the War department announced today.

BILL TO ABOLISH OWI IS OFFERED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(AP) Rep. Barry (D-N.Y.) today introduced a bill to abolish the Office of War Information and transfer its functions to the Department of State.

In announcing last spring his intention to introduce the bill, Rep. Barry accused the OWI of "irresponsible utterances" and said it appeared to contain Communists more interested in propagandizing their own doctrines than in winning the war.

Campaigns in South Pacific Tougher Than World War I

By J. NORMAN LODGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP) Any veteran of World War One making his debut in this one, either on the European or south Pacific front, would get the shock of his life. And then he'd most likely return to his grandchildren with a revised estimate of the hardships he went through.

Without doubt the toughest sector of the war of 1918 was the Meuse-Argonne. It was a pushover. Any one of the "minor" campaigns of the south Pacific was tougher, both in ground conditions and in fire power thrown up by the enemy.

While we had about everything we needed in World War One, there being less obstacles to overcome to transport materiel, in the south Pacific, after 20 months at war, we are only now beginning to get a reserve of supplies.

Hard to Get Supplies

Distance, shipping and the fact that most of the war effort to date has been directed toward Europe has made the south Pacific the step-child of the entire war area. Even the southwest Pacific is better off, for that sector is almost entirely supplied by Australia and New Zealand.

Until quite recently everything for the south Pacific has had to come from our own west coast. Now, with a surplus of frozen meat available from Australia, some of it is being diverted to the south Pacific. Both Australia and New Zealand have favorable trade balances under Lend-Lease, the only two countries of the British commonwealth in such position.

In the early days of the Guadalcanal campaign there were times when we didn't have enough high octane fuel to put fighter planes in the air. There, too, were times we we were down to six serviceable planes. It got so bad on one occasion that gasoline was being siphoned from transport planes for use in fighting craft.

Supplies Mount Up

Then, with the Japs chased off Guadalcanal, supplies began to mount up. Reserve rations dump were established, and materiel dispersed so that one bombing raid would not knock out our supplies in one fell swoop.

The planning for the New Georgia campaign was done with all the mistakes made on Guadalcanal taken into consideration. Hence, when we moved on Rendova, May 30, we had enough material along to maintain the combat units for weeks to come.

But new mistakes cropped up. The unloading was done quickly so that the cargo vessels could get out of the area before dark. As a result most of the food, most of the ammunition and practically all of the medical supplies were simply dumped on the beach, prey to the first bombing raid the Nips decided to send over.

And over they did come, with disastrous results for us. But as a result of the mistakes made on Rendova, with a loss of much of the carefully planned for supplies, the same mistakes were not made when we visited Vella Lavella.

There, as the ships were unloaded, the materiel was dispersed as it was unloaded. One ton under this tree, a ton under that tree, vehicles scattered over a wide area and the fuel for bull dozers, gasoline for high compression motors and spare parts were distributed over the entire beach head.

Raids Do Little Damage

Repeated bombing raids, with the exception of their nuisance value, failed to damage much materiel, thus aiding our troops and our navy in that less trips were necessary to replenish ruined supplies, releasing cargo carriers for other much needed work.

Troop dispersal on Rendova was badly managed, too, with many casualties resulting when the raids began. Tents were set up with guy ropes criss-crossing, so close were they grouped. When the terrific raid of July 2 was over we had too many casualties—casualties we wouldn't have had with proper dispersal.

As a result, the Vella Lavella dispersal of troops was excellently carried out and the casualty lists were much smaller.

That, of course, is learning the hard way, but at least we learn.

1943

3024-8535

For instance, green troops lacking any combat experience, in addition to being "trigger happy", firing at the least movement in the jungles, also must learn that emergency ratios are for a specific purpose. Too many of them have carelessly thrown away their "C" rations, relying on "D" ration to sustain them.

The "D" ration is an energized slab of hard chocolate. It has a very definite place in the rationing scheme of things. It is light in weight and easy to carry. But it must be eaten over a space of time. It is not something to munch on for the sake of munching.

Eaten too fast, it has bad effects. And a repeated diet of it can cause two reactions—dysentery or constipation. The men have learned that—the hard way—and their information on the subject will be passed on, by word of mouth, to replacements.

You can tell the seasoned jungle fighter as against the neophyte by watching eating habits. The veteran will be opening a can of "C" ration, the rookie will be munching his "D" ration chocolate.

Logistics Rules War

War is changing in respect to supplying combat troops too. Logistics were never mentioned in World War One. In this war every campaign, every movement of troops and every evacuation of wounded and sick is predicated on logistics—the amount of supplies necessary to properly feed, arm, and move a certain number of troops with a minimum of waste.

For every man we place in the front line we require six men in the service command to maintain him. And for every man in the service command we require an additional six in various other branches of the services—Navy, merchant marine and executive, to make it possible for the first six to support the one fighting man.

And, with distances up to half way around the world to be negotiated, stress must be placed on such arithmetical equations.

War has progressed in such measure over the past 20 years it no longer is a rule of thumb, hit or miss affair. It now is slide rule.

After every separate campaign—after Guadalcanal, New Guinea, Vella Lavella, statistics were broken down to find where six cargo bottoms could be used to carry the same amount of supplies that required seven on the previous movement.

If that one bottom is saved it is one less target for a bomber, it is one additional bottom that can be utilized in transporting other materiel that had to remain at base.

We have learned much since Pearl Harbor. We have learned that war, like a woman's mind, is constantly changing. But:

We have learned.

HERO'S MOTHER GETS HIS MEDAL OF HONOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—(AP) Surrounded by high naval officials and before rigid lines of blue jackets, Mrs. Maria Powers of New York city received today the nation's military honor—the Congressional Medal of Honor, conferred posthumously upon her son a year ago by President Roosevelt.

Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, read the President's citation telling of the exploits of 29-year-old Lieut. John James Powers "above and beyond the call of duty" during three days of action in the battle of Coral sea in May, 1942.

The Navy flier sank or damaged four Japanese ships by divebombing. The last ship he sank was an aircraft carrier.

The morning of his last take-off he was quoted in the citation as saying: "Remember the folks back home are counting on us. I am going to get a hit if I have to lay it on their flight deck."

UNION PRESIDENT LOSES DEFERMENT, FACES INDUCTION

C.I.O. Group to Fight Move to Draft Joseph Curran.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP) A New York city Selective Service Appeals board today ordered Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union (C.I.O.), placed in class 1-A, revoking his deferment as a seaman, but the N.M.U. announced it would continue to fight for his deferment.

The action followed an appeal by Col. Arthur V. McDermott, city Selective Service director, who said the board voted 4 to 1 that Curran was not entitled to the 2-A classification, "inasmuch as Curran was not regularly engaged as a seaman." Col. McDermott's office said revocation of the 2-A classification was tantamount to placing the union chieftain in the 1-A classification.

Col. McDermott added that the board held that Curran's present trip abroad for what the union said was a survey of maritime conditions overseas, "was primarily in his capacity of a union official." The director added:

No Replacement Sought

"The board further ruled that there was no evidence in the record to prove that the union had made any effort to find a replacement for Curran as president of the union.

"The appeals board suggested that the local board might reopen the case if it desired, and permit Curran to submit additional evidence, but that in such case Oct. 15 would be a reasonable time limit for Curran to present himself to the local board."

The announcement that the N.M.U. would continue to fight "all the way" for Curran's deferment came from Howard McKenzie, union vice president.

Later the N.M.U. issued a statement saying that Curran was doing war work by making certain that "seamen keep 'em sailing" and asked: "With the exception of the Commander-in-Chief and his military aides, who in the United States is engaged in more important work?"

Curran, who will be 38 years old next March, was placed in 2-A last Aug. 31 on grounds that he was "absolutely essential" to the operation of his union, and therefore to war production. Col. McDermott appealed to Appeals Board 4 to nullify the action of Local Board 18 in granting the deferment.

D.A.V. OPENS SESSION

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP) The Disabled American Veterans began its 22nd annual national convention today by focussing its attention on the rehabilitation of wounded service men after World War II.

National Commander William J. Dodd, of Jersey City, N. J., told the convention plans should be made now to provide adequate hospitalization, rehabilitation and vocational training for a vast number of disabled veterans after this war—"a far greater number than there were in the last war."

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Federal administrator of Veterans' affairs, told the delegates the government was making contracts already for educational, agricultural and industrial establishments to teach disabled service men how to earn a living.

DR. POLING TO VISIT WAR AREAS AGAIN

Boston, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union, will leave soon on his third mission to the war areas, it was announced today at the union's Boston headquarters.

Dr. Poling, who is pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, editor-in-chief of the Christian Herald, New York, and a major in the Chaplain's Reserve, will visit Egypt, India, China, Australia and other combat areas. He plans to confer with religious leaders abroad with a view to establishing spiritual solidarity among all faiths in the post-war years.

During preparation for this latest mission, Dr. Poling received a letter from President Roosevelt, in which the President said in part:

"The statement of the Christian conference on war and peace is at once Christian and realistic. 'Win the war and win the chance to build a better world.'

"That declaration faces squarely the fact that there can be no chance to win the peace and to build the better world until the war is won and the evil might of dictators is broken.

"On your present mission to China, India and Australia you will have perhaps an unequaled opportunity to make clear to religious leaders of all faiths the fundamental truth, which is, I believe, the conviction of the overwhelming majority of your fellow Americans."

Bricker Urges Foreign Policy Of Free Action

Opposes One-Party Peace; He Is 'Not Ready Yet to Announce' 44 Candidacy'

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17 (AP).—This country's foreign policy should be based upon the necessity for preservation of our national identity and freedom of action, Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio declared here today in observance of Constitution Day.

In an address over a national radio hookup before the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, he also urged caution in the final drafting of peace treaties at the war's end.

"No man is wise enough now to state with exactitude what this nation's obligations to others may be at the conclusion of the war, or how they may best be carried out," he said.

"Our foreign policy should be based upon the absolute necessity for the preservation of our identity as a nation and on our traditional freedom of action at all times."

Governor Bricker recommended this this country's peace negotiations be conducted by a bi-partisan delegation representing various departments of government and sectional life.

"Never again," he said, "should our peace negotiations be directed by those from only one political party, from any one department of government or any one section of our national life.

"We do not want a one-man or a one-party peace. If we believe in collaboration among the nations, we must put it in practice among Americans."

This country's position in the creation of world stability should be made known "beyond the shadow of a doubt" lest distrust and hatred arise from encouraging hopes or making promises that cannot be fulfilled, he said adding: "If we do not know our own minds, we shall exhibit before the world a picture of vacillation and opportunism. "Double talk and double dealing are not in the great traditions of American diplomacy."

Governor Bricker said in an interview that he is "not ready yet to announce my candidacy" for the Republican nomination for President. "I will make an announcement in due time," he added.

Allied Educators Urged To Teach World Morals

Lindeman Stresses 'Principles of the Great Religions'

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va., Sept. 17 (AP).—A proposal that schools and universities in the post-war world emphasize teaching "the principles of the great world religions" as a means of promoting greater international understanding was offered today to a group of educators representing thirty of the United Nations.

The plan was presented by Dr. Eduard C. Lindeman, of the New York School of Social Work at Columbia University, as a possible adjunct to a twelve-point program presented last night to an international education assembly and designed to develop "world citizenship" after the war.

"Laying all stress on technology, science and economics is not going to solve the world's troubles," declared Dr. Lindeman in a paper prepared for a conference session. "The Germans are probably the most scientific people in the world, but they touched off the world conflict on the philosophy that might makes right.

"Far too many educators throughout the world have avoided the moral question."

BLAST DESTROYS SEVERAL HANGARS AT AIRCRAFT BASE

Ammunition in Transit Explodes, Wrecking Buildings in Wide Area.

NAVY MEN VICTIMS

Force of Explosion Felt in City Twenty Miles Away.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 17.—(AP) A mighty blast attributed to the explosion of ammunition in transit killed 24 persons and injured some 250 others today at the Norfolk naval air station in Norfolk's worst disaster since the Italian dirigible Roma crashed in 1922 with a loss of 34 lives.

It was learned unofficially that a vast majority of the dead and injured were Navy men. Official casualty lists were expected soon after the Navy had notified the victims' next of kin. No Connecticut men were on the list of dead.

Blast Felt 20 Miles Away

The mighty explosion, felt in Norfolk points as far as 20 miles away, badly damaged several hangars at the station and hurled framework and timbers hundreds of yards. Windows were smashed and pictures fell from the walls in a 10-mile area. Smoke and flame billowed over the area.

Norfolk police said they were informed depth charges of the type carried by the Navy's anti-submarine patrol bombers had exploded. Other reports from civilian sources said a gasoline truck became ignited from the exploding ammunition.

Oscar Valignette, 33, Ticonderoga, N. Y., field representative of an aircraft company, who was on the third floor of the air station administration building, said he was looking out of a window when the explosion occurred.

Huge Sheet of Flame

"I saw a huge sheet of flame and a column of smoke before I even heard the explosion," Mr. Valignette reported. "It seemed to come from a hangar about a quarter mile from the administration building. Then I felt an indescribable concussion, and the whole window caved in on me like a blanket of glass. Several of those near me were cut but none seriously." Mr. Valignette suffered shock and scalp lacerations.

One civilian reported that the explosion ripped a rough trench 40 feet long by six feet deep in the thick concrete of a runway, evidently the spot at which the ammunition exploded.

Dispensary Damaged

The same source said the air station dispensary was damaged and that several patients already there suffered cuts from smashed windows. He added that several planes were destroyed and a number of others were damaged, parked automobiles were wrecked, two barracks buildings were demolished, a storage building flattened and a big hangar damaged considerably by the flames which followed the blast.

The electric light system over the entire naval operating base was knocked out. Electric clocks were stopped at 11:01 a. m.

Rear Admiral H. F. Leary, U.S.N., commandant of the Fifth Naval district, said naval authorities were informed by witnesses that they believed the explosion originated in ammunition in transit.

A board of investigation, consisting of Captains L. P. Treadwell, C. C. West, and J. R. Tague, and Lieutenant Brooks, judge advocate, was appointed shortly after the explosion and started immediately to probe the cause of the blast.

Hospitals in Norfolk and Portsmouth dispatched all available ambulances to the scene. Air station trucks were pressed into service before the arrival of the ambulances.

The blast knocked in the steel sides of a building near the damaged hangar. Air station personnel worked frantically to remove equipment from this structure before being driven back by flames.

Will Build Huge Airships

AKRON, Ohio, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company will resume peace-time manufacture of dirigibles and is already working on designs for airships of 10,000,000 cubic feet—larger than any previously built—Paul W. Litchfield, chairman of the board, reported today. The new dirigible, Mr. Litchfield told an audience of aviation writers, will play an important role in transportation of passengers and freight in overseas commerce.

Builds New Type of Fighter

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17 (AP).—Major Merle Armitage, of the Army Air Forces, announced today that the recently opened bomber plant at Cleveland's municipal airport will begin production on a new type of fighter plane. The plant, operated by the Fisher Body division of the General Motors Corporation, will continue to manufacture assemblies for bombers, but they will be shipped elsewhere for final assembly, Major Armitage said.

Eight Indicted As Nazi Spies In Detroit Case

4 Men, 4 Women Named, Including 'Countess'; All Are Now in Custody

DETROIT, Sept. 17 (AP).—A Federal Grand Jury named four women and four men today on charges of conspiring under the war-time espionage act to supply to the German government information regarding defense and war moves of the United States.

Conviction of the offense charged could result in the death penalty or up to thirty years' imprisonment.

A few hours before the grand jury reported its indictment to Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here arrested Carl John Wilhelm Leonhardt and Walter Joseph Abt, two of those indicted. Both pleaded guilty late today and were held under $25,000 bond each.

Four of the others had already been detained under $50,000 bonds on Presidential warrants, and two have been in custody as dangerous enemy aliens. Their arraignment is planned for next week. The six were arrested on Aug. 24.

The eight indicted and activity attributed to them by Federal authorities are:

Miss Grace Buchanan-Dineen, self-styled "countess" and central figure in the group; recruited by the Nazis in Hungary for spy work, she entered the United States late in 1941, and after the F. B. I. began its investigation of her activities she operated under their surveillance, clearing information through the F. B. I., Army and Navy Intelligence Services before forwarding it to her Nazi superiors.

Stimson and Patterson Face Contempt Action

Cited Over Seizure of Warehouse Despite Court Ban

SEATTLE, Sept. 17 (AP).—Federal Judge John C. Bowen ordered Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War; Robert P. Patterson, under secretary, and two Seattle aids today to show cause here on Monday why they should not be held in contempt of court. The case involves the seizure by the Army of a waterfront warehouse.

Norman M. Littell, assistant United States Attorney General, was in court as the order was read. The Secretary and Under Secretary need not appear in person.

"I am glad the court has taken the position that the matter be disposed of expeditiously as the whole question of storage space is vital to the war effort," Mr. Littell told the court. "The government will state its position fully on Monday."

Later, Mr. Littell told a reporter he believed there was no pending Federal court case which affects the war effort more vitally.

"It squarely raises the question as to the power of the war agencies to enter into possession of property under the war purposes act of March 27, 1942," he said.

The contempt petition, filed on behalf of the Merchants' Ttransfer & Storage Company, charges that the Army took forcible possession of a warehouse here in disregard of Judge Bowen's ruling that no compelling need had been shown. The petition asks the return of the warehouse to the transfer company.

Sherman B. Green, chief of the Seattle office of the War Department Division of Engineers, and Major S. N. Tidemon Jr., who commanded the forces which took over the property, were the others named in Judge Bowen's order.

LONDON, SEPT 17-(AP)-A.V.ALEXANDER, FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, DISCLOSED LAST NIGHT THAT LATE IN 1941 THE BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET HAD ONLY THREE CRUISERS LEFT TO MEET THE ITALIAN NAVY HAD IT DARED TO SEEK BATTLE.

ALEXANDER MADE HIS DISCLOSURE IN A BROADCAST TO THE NATION IN WHICH HE DESCRIBED THE SURRENDER OF THE ITALIAN FLEET--MOST OF WHICH NOW IS IN BRITISH HANDS--AS ONE OF THE GREAT TURNING POINTS OF THE WAR.

REVIEWING THE SITUATION IN 1941, HE SAID:

"THE CRISIS IN OUR MISFORTUNES WAS REACHED IN NOVEMBER AND DECEMBER. ON NOV.14 THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER ARK ROYAL WAS TORPEDOED AND SUNK. ON NOV.20 THE CRUISER SYDNEY WAS SUNK, ON NOV.24 THE CRUISER DUNEDIN AND ON NOV.25 THE BATTLESHIP BARHAM.

"SHORTLY AFTERWARD THE BATTLESHIP QUEEN ELIZABETH AND VALIANT WERE SEVERELY DAMAGED AND THE CRUISERS NEPTUNE AND GALATEA WERE SUNK X X X

"IN THE MEDITERRANEAN (AFTER THOSE LOSSES) WE HAD THREE CRUISERS, YET OUR MEN CARRIED ON, WORKING WONDERS X X X

"FORTUNATELY THE ENEMY DID NOT KNOW OUR PRECARIOUS POSITION AND FOR VITAL MONTHS WE MANAGED TO CONCEAL THE DAMAGE TO THE QUEEN ELIZABETH AND THE VALIANT AND THE SINKING OF THE BARHAM."

ALEXANDER LISTED THE JAPANESE ATTACK ON THE UNITED STATES FLEET AT PEARL HARBOR AND THE SINKING OF THE REPULSE AND THE PRINCE OF WALES AS ADDED BLOWS TO THE ALMOST PITIFUL PLIGHT OF THE BRITISH NAVY LATE IN 1941.

AFTER TELLING OF THE SINKING OF THE ARK ROYAL, THE SYDNEY AND THE DUNEDIN, ALEXANDER SAID:

"THEN CAME THE TREACHEROUS ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR WHICH TEMPORARILY CRIPPLED THE AMERICAN PACIFIC FLEET AND WAS FOLLOWED ALMOST IMMEDIATELY BY THE SINKING OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AND THE REPULSE."

London, Sept. 17-(AP)-The Italian navy, now almost entirely in control of the allies, wound up three years of war a crushed and beaten sea power -- a bare skeleton of the strength Mussolini counted on to keep the Mediterranean Italy's "mare nostrum."

Only in battleships did the Italians fare well, on the face of the best available London figures, and that probably was because they turned and ran so many times during 1941-42 when the British were sending Mussolini's ships to the bottom like deflated ducks.

Starting the war with nine battleships, the Italians lost one in 1940 and another in 1941 and the Germans sank one last week after Italy's surrender. One is unseaworthy and the allies hold five.

Casualties were heaviest in cruisers, destroyers and submarines, where the Italians lost up to 75 per cent. They jumped into the war with about 35 cruisers, 100 destroyers and 125 submarines.

The allies now hold at least nine cruisers, 27 destroyers and 25 submarines and possibly [redacted] others.

Best figures here show these Italian losses in previous years:

1940 -- one cruiser, four destroyers and six submarines.

1941 -- ten cruicers, 20 destroyers and 12 submarines.

1942 -- eight cruisers, 35 destroyers and 30 submarines.

This would leave two cruisers, 14 destroyers and 52 submarines unaccounted for but the majority of them left floating may be at scattered ports where Italian vessels have been reported without specific identification.

One report said 17 Italian ships of various sizes had reached the Turkish port of Marmaris.

1943

Another report said five additional ships had reached a nearby port but neither of these [illegible] assertions was confirmed by allied sources.

SEP 18 1943

The Italian battleships now in allied hands are the Italia, [illegible] Vittorio Veneto, Caio Duilio, Andrea Doria and Guilio Cesare, The Roma, of 35,000 [illegible] tons and one of the Italians' newest and finest, was sent to the bottom by [illegible] German bombs and the Imperio is unseaworthy.

The Italia and Vittorio Veneto, together with four Italian cruisers and four destroyers, arrived at Alexandria [illegible] from Malta yesterday under British escort.

Other units of the surrendered fleet presumably remained [illegible] in the safety of the British harbor at Malta to which they fled.

In addition, these other Italian ships have been reported in allied hands:

" STOCKHOLM, SEPT 17-(AP)-PEACE SENTIMENT IN FINLAND WAS GIVEN A STRONG BOOST TODAY THROUGH AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY PREMIER EDWIN LINKOMIES IDENTIFYING HIMSELF AS THE ANONYMOUS SPOKESMAN WHO WAS QUOTED AS SAYING SEPT.11 THAT HIS COUNTRY WISHED TO WITHDRAW FROM THE WAR.

AT THAT TIME, LINKOMIES DECLARED FINLAND REGRETTED BEING AT WAR WITH ENGLAND AND DESIRED PEACE WITH RUSSIA IF SHE COULD BE ASSURED OF HER PRE-1939 INDEPENDENCE AND TERRITORIAL STATUS.

THE FINNS ALREADY HAVE MADE INFORMAL PEACE OVERTURES THROUGH THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION OF A DIRECT APPROACH TO RUSSIA, WHICH HAS INSISTED THAT FINLAND TAKE THE FIRST STEP.

WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 17--THERE IS ALWAYS A CERTAIN SATISFACTION IN MEETING AN OLD ENEMY AND SOCKING HIM AGAIN AND THE REGIMENT TO WHICH I AM ATTACHED IS HAVING THAT PLEASURE RIGHT NOW.

SEP 18 1943

THEY ONLY DISCOVERED IT YESTERDAY EVENING AFTER SOME CLEVER PATROL WORK.

ONE OF OUR BATTALION COMMANDERS SENT OUT WHAT HE CALLS HIS PRIVATE RANGERS--A GROUP OF 30-ODD SOLDIERS AND NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS WHO DO NOTHING BUT PATROL WORK OF A SORT OF PARTISAN NATURE.

YESTERDAY, THE DIVISIONAL GENERAL SENT DOWN WORD HE WANTED A GERMAN PRISONER OR TWO IN ORDER TO GET THE PROPER IDENTIFICATION OF THE UNIT

WORKING INSIDE THAT ANNOYING SALIENT THE ENEMY DROVE INTO US THE NIGHT BEFORE LAST BETWEEN TWO RIVERS.

SEP 18 1943

THERE SEEMED TO BE SOME NEW MEN IN THERE.

THE BATTALION COMMANDER PROMPTLY PICKED TWO OF HIS "RANGERS" AND TOLD THEM TO GO TO IT.

THEY CREPT DOWN TO THE RIVER AND PARTLY SWAM AND PARTLY FORDED IT WITH THEIR RIFLES HELD HIGH ABOVE THEIR HEADS. THEN THEY MOVED CAUTIOUSLY FORWARD UNTIL THEY COULD SEE THE GERMAN POSITIONS AND WAITED.

THEY KNEW THAT SOONER OR LATER THE ENEMY WOULD SEND A PATROL OUT AND THEN THEY WOULD POUNCE ON IT.

THAT'S WHAT HAPPENED. TWO GERMAN SOLDIERS CAME FORWARD CARELESSLY, THINKING THEIR MISSION WAS JUST BEGINNING AND THEY WERE INDEED POUNCED UPON. ONE MADE A BREAK FOR SAFETY AND WAS WOUNDED, BUT THE OTHER YIELDED GRACEFULLY AND BEFORE HE KNEW WHAT WAS HAPPENING TO HIM WAS HUSTLED WITH A GUN POKING INTO HIS BACK TO THE RIVER BANK AND THENCE SOLICITOUSLY ACROSS. THEY WEREN'T GOING TO LET HIM DROWN.

THEN CAME THE INTERROGATION AND, LO AND BEHOLD, JERRY WAS FROM A REGIMENT OF THE 29TH DIVISION WHICH THIS OUTFIT HAD DRIVEN FROM A PLACE THEY CALLED "BLOODY RIDGE" DURING THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN IN THE HOTTEST BATTLE THEY HAD HAD.

IT IS A WELL-KNOWN AXIOM IN THE BOXING RING THAT WHEN YOU'VE BEATEN A MAN ONCE, YOU'RE AT AN ADVANTAGE IF YOU MEET HIM AGAIN. THAT GOES FOR WAR, TOO. THIS REGIMENT IS GLAD IT HAS MET THE 29TH DIVISION AGAIN.

(IN THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH, DATED SEPT. 16, MATTHEWS DESCRIBED THE GERMAN SALIENT.)

THAT MUCH-FOUGHT-OVER TERRAIN BETWEEN THE SELE AND CALORE RIVERS IS GRIM, FORBIDDING TERRITORY. DEAD BODIES STILL LIE AROUND BROKEN TREES. ITS FEW SCATTERED BUILDINGS ARE MERE SHELLS. THE CONSTANT MORTAR AND ARTILLERY FIRE POURING INTO US GAVE IT ALL A BALEFUL LIFE.

IT IS DARK AND SHADOWY WITH TREES ALONG THE BANKS OF BOTH RIVERS, THE RUGGED TERRAIN IN BETWEEN COVERED WITH HIGH TOBACCO PLANTS AND VEGETABLES.

THAT'S WHERE THE GERMANS DROVE THEIR WEDGE YESTERDAY. IT'S WHERE THEY'VE KEPT HAMMERING AND WHERE THERE WILL ALWAYS BE DANGER UNTIL WE GET THOSE HEIGHTS FROM WHICH THEY LOOK DOWN OUR THROATS.

THAT TERRAIN IS OURS NOW AND SOLIDLY HELD.

"WE DIDN'T WAKE THEM," SAID CAMPBELL. "WE JUST TIPTOED AWAY."

THE TWO LOST DOUGHBOYS WERE FRIGHTENED WHEN THEY CROSSED TANK TRACKS IN THE OPEN FIELDS, HEARD GERMAN VOICES IN THE DARKNESS, SAW A NEARBY TOWN STILL FLAMING INTO THE SKIES AFTER AN ALLIED BOMBING THAT DAY. COMING ACROSS A TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION WIRE, THEY FOLLOWED IT AND ALMOST STUMBLED BACK INTO THE GERMAN COMMAND POST.

"I FROZE IN MY TRACKS AND THE COLD SWEAT STARTED POURING OUT," SAID CAMPBELL. "BUT WE WALKED AWAY WITHOUT BEING SEEN."

A GERMAN LIGHTED A CIGARETTE FOUR FEET AWAY IN THE DARKNESS BUT THEY RESTRAINED THE URGE TO RUN, AND WALKED ON. REACHING SOME FOXHOLES WITH ABANDONED AMERICAN EQUIPMENT, THEY FELT THEY MUST BE CLOSE TO THEIR OWN LINES, BUT WHEN MCGOVERN STOOPED TO PICK UP AN OPEN RATION CAN A GERMAN ROSE TO A SITTING POSITION AND STRETCHED AND THEY DROPPED THE CAN IMMEDIATELY. IT WAS PACKED WITH SAUSAGES AND SAUERKRAUT.

SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT, WHILE FOLLOWING A ROAD THEY CAME ACROSS A GERMAN MACHINEGUNNER, AWAKE, AND FELT THAT ALL WAS LOST.

"WE ARE AMERICANS," SAID MCGOVERN, "BUT THE GERMAN SAID NOTHING.

"LET'S BE FRIENDLY," SAID CAMPBELL AND OFFERED THE GERMAN A PACKAGE OF CIGARETTES.

"ITALIENISH?" ASKED THE GERMAN.

"NO, AMERICAN," ANSWERED MCGOVERN, AND THEY CALMLY STARTED ACROSS THE OPEN FIELD. FOR SOME CURIOUS REASON THE GERMAN ONLY SCRATCHED HIS HEAD AND LET THEM PROCEED. SEVERAL HUNDRED YARDS LATER THEY WERE CHALLENGED BY AN AMERICAN SENTRY AND BOTH FELL UPON THE SENTRY'S NECK.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE PATH ENDED IN A PILE OF ROCKS ABOUT A QUARTER OF A MILE BELOW THE TOPMOST PEAK OF THE MOUNTAIN. NOT EVEN THE JEEP COULD GO ANY FURTHER, AND A JEEP CAN GO ALMOST ANYWHERE.

THE SERGEANT GOT OUT AND SQUINTED UP TOWARD THE TOP. HE DREW HIS CARBINE FROM THE HOLSTER ON THE SIDE OF THE JEEP AND PUT A COUPLE OF EXTRA CLIPS OF AMMUNITION IN HIS POCKET. THEN HE SAID TO THE DRIVER:

"IF I'M NOT BACK BY DARK YOU GO ON DOWN THE HILL, BUT WAIT AS LONG AS YOU CAN."

WE WATCHED HIM UNTIL HE DISAPPEARED AROUND A SHOULDER OF ROCK COVERED WITH SCRUB PINE.

1943

"HE'S GOT GUTS," SAID THE DRIVER. "I'D HATE TO HAVE TO DO WHAT HE'S DOING."

FOUR SOLDIERS ARE MISSING SOMEWHERE UP THERE. THEY WENT UP TO ESTABLISH A LOOKOUT POST AND THEN THEY SIMPLY DISAPPEARED. NO SIGN HAD COME FROM THEM FOR TWO DAYS. THE SERGEANT, RICHARD STANSELL OF LITTLEFIELD, TEXAS, HAD COME UP TO FIND THEM.

"THEY PROBABLY GOT THE SNAFOO FROM A GERMAN PATROL," SAID THE DRIVER. "THESE HILLS ARE FULL OF GERMANS. PARTICULARLY SNIPERS. A SNIPER COULD KNOCK HIM OFF SO QUICK HE'D NEVER KNOW WHAT HIM. HE'S SRE GOT GUTS."

SEP 18 1943

THE SUN DROPPED BELOW THE HORIZON AND THE PLAIN FAR BELOW WAS BLOODY RED. THE ARTILLERY WAS STILL HAMMERING AND SLAMMING HOME SOMEWHERE DOWN BENEATH THE HAZE.

"THAT'S BAD ENOUGH," SAID THE DRIVER, "BUT WHAT HE'S DOING IS WORSE. THOSE GUYS CAN SEE WHAT IS AHEAD OF THEM, BUT HE CAN'T SEE A THING. A JERRY COULD POP UP RIGHT IN FRONT OF HIM BEFORE HE KNEW IT."

SEP 18 1943

THE SHADOWS LENGTHENED ACROSS THE PLAIN AND CREPT SLOWLY UP THE SLOPES OF THE MOUNTAINS. POOLS OF DARKNESS WERE FORMING BENEATH EVERY CLUMP OF PINE AND IN THE POCKETS OF ROCK.

"THE THING IS, THE DRIVER SAID, "HE WOULDN'T REALLY HAVE TO STICK HIS NECK OUT LIKE THIS. HE COULD COME UP JUST THIS FAR AND LOOK AROUND RIGHT FROM HERE AND THEN SAY HE COULDN'T FIND THOSE GUYS. AND NOBODY WOULD EVER KNOW ANY DIFFERENT. I'D SURE BE TEMPTED TO DO JUST THAT IF IT WAS ME."

THE HILLS WERE DEATHLY STILL. A BIRD CALLED MOURNFULLY IN THE FADING LIGHT. AN HOUR PASSED. THEN THE SERGEANT CAME BACK. HIS BROWN SHIRT WAS BLOTCHED AND STAINED WITH SWEAT AND HIS FACE WAS DRIPPING. HE WAS BREATHING HARD.

"NOT A SIGN OF THEM," HE SAID, "NOT A SINGLE SOLITARY SIGN."

HE POURED A CANTEEN OF WATER OVER HIS HEAD AND LET IT RUN DOWN HIS CHEEK AND ARMS AND INTO HIS PANTS. THEN HE SAT DOWN AND LIT A CIGARETTE.

"THERE'S JUST ONE OTHER THING, JIM," HE SAID TO THE DRIVER. YOU SEE THAT POINT OVER THERE. THEY MIGHT HAVE GONE OVER THERE."

"SURE, I SEE IT," SAID THE SOLDIER.

"WELL, HOW ABOUT YOU TAKING A LOOK OVER THERE. YOU GOT MAYBE HALF AN HOUR OF LIGHT LEFT AND YOU OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO MAKE IT," SAID THE SRGEANT. "I'M PLUMB TIRED OUT OR I'D GO MYSELF."

"SURE," SAID THE DRIVER.

HE TOOK HIS RIFLE AND MADE SURE IT WAS LOADED. THEN HE BEGAN CLIMBING.

"HE'S A GOOD GUY," SAID THE SERGEANT. "HE ISN'T SCARED TO GO ANYWHERE."

ABOARD A RECONNAISSANCE PLANE OVER ENEMY LINES IN ITALY, SEPT. 16 -(DELAYED)-LONG COLUMNS OF ENEMY TANKS, SELF-PROPELLED ARTILLERY AND TROOP CARRIERS, POUNDED FROM THE AIR, RETREATED NORTHWARD TOWARD AVELLINO FROM THE SALERNO AREA TODAY.

THE RETREATING GERMANS SPLIT IN TWO COLUMNS AT AVELLINO, TOWARD

1943

NAPLES AND BENEVENTO.

HUNDREDS OF INFANTRY ENGAGEMENTS OCCURRED BETWEEN ALLIED TROOPS AND DUG-IN ENEMY POCKETS COVERING THE RETREAT.

ARTILLERY AND NAVAL FIRE WAS PIN-POINTED TO RIP UP THE MORE TENACIOUS NAZIS AS OUR STRONG PATROLS SLICED FORWARD TO CLEAN OUT THE REARGUARD POCKETS.

SEP 18 1943

THAT WAS THE PICTURE I GOT IN A 45-MINUTE RIDE OVER THE BATTLE ARENA AS THE BRITISH-AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY UNDER LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK WIPED OUT THE NAZI WEDGE WHICH HAD THREATENED TO SPLIT THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD, AND GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S MEN BEGAN POURING INTO THE FIFTH ARMY SECTOR IN A PRELUDE TO THE SMASHES WHICH WILL DRIVE THE NAZIS AND FASCISTS OUT OF ITALY.

DIVISION CHAPLAIN, WILBUR KING OF KANSAS CITY, MO., DROVE ME TO THE LANDING FIELD AND WISHED ME WELL ON THE "DANGEROUS SNOOP." AFTER LT. COL.RUSSELL FUNK OF OKLAHOMA CITY, AND MAJ.M.E.BURSON OF CHICKASHA, OKLA., HAD APPROVED THE RIDE WITH THE USUAL WARNING, "SURE YOU WANT TO GO? YOU MIGHT GET SHOT AT. ALL OF OUR MISSIONS HAVE BEEN SHOT AT SO FAR."

SECOND LT.CHARLES KESSMEIER OF NEWARK, O., VOLUNTEERED TO PILOT ME AND ACT AS GUIDE. WE TOOK OFF, AND GAINED ALTITUDE OVER THE BATTLE ARENA WHICH LOOKED LIKE A HUGE SAUCER WITH THE GERMANS HOLDING THE UPPER LIP AND WITH THE BEACHLINE JAMMED WITH SCORES OF ALLIED SHIPS OF ALL SIZES DISGORGING MEN, MUNITIONS, TANKS, TRUCKS AND SUPPLIES.

OUR LITTLE AIRCRAFT DROPPED TO HEDGEHOPPING LEVEL AS KESSMEIER EXPLAINED, "IN THE STATES ONE WOULD LOSE HIS LICENSE FOR THIS, BUT IN WAR ONE MUST DO THINGS OPPOSITE TO NORMAL."

AS WE SWOOPED UPWARD SIX ENEMY PLANES ZOOMED PAST TOWARD THE BEACH. ONE ENEMY BOMB HIT A SMALL SHIP, BUT THE GUILTY PLANE WENT CRASHING INTO THE SEA. FIVE OF OUR WARHAWKS ON A LEVEL ABOVE WENT AFTER THE OTHER FIVE. EVERY ONE OF THE INTRUDERS WAS SHOT DOWN.

WE WENT OVER ENEMY TERRITORY ALONG THE SELE RIVER BANK AND COULD DISTINGUISH SMALL ROUND BLACK MARKS WHERE THE ENEMY WAS DUG IN.

WE DROPPED CLOSER AND SAW MACHINEGUN PITS WITH THREE OR FOUR NAZIS INSIDE EACH. NO ONE FIRED AT US. FATHER UP BETWEEN THE SELE AND CALORE RIVERS I SAW FIVE SMOULDERING TANKS--PART OF THE 15 DESTROYED YESTERDAY, AND STILL FARTHER ALONG I SAW A LONG COLUMN OF GERMAN TANKS, ARTILLERY AND TROOP CARRIERS SPEEDING NORTHWARD WITH ARTILLERY FIRE LANDING OVER THEM.

TURNING BACK I SAW A SUCCESSION OF ARTILLERY SHELLS LANDING AMONG THE ENEMY MACHINEGUN NESTS.

"GET YOUR EARPHONES ON, WE'LL CRUISE AROUND A BIT," KESSMEIER SAID, SWINGING BACK.

LT.HILSTON KILCOLLINS OF PRESQUE ISLE, ME., WAS ON THE AIR DIRECTING THE ARTILLERY FIRE.

HE ASKED FOR A CONCENTRATION ON THE RED BARN, EXPLAINING THAT 20 GERMANS HAD GONE IN THERE TO HIDE. IN A MATTER OF SECONDS A BATTALION CONCENTRATION SCORED A DIRECT HIT, SMASHING THE ENEMY HIDEOUT.

KILCOLLINS, WHO GOT THE SILVER STAR FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION IN SICILY, COMMENTED A MOMENT LATER, "GOT 'EM ALL BUT TWO. THEY'RE RUNNING LIKE RATS."

TWO MINUTES LATER ONE NAZI WAS OBSERVED GOING INTO A SQUARE WHITE BUILDING WHICH THE GERMANS SEEMED DETERMINED TO HOLD. OTHERS JOINED HIM, AND GRADUALLY A GROUP OF ABOUT 40 HAD ENTERED. WHEN NO ONE ELSE

1943

APPEARED TO BE JOINING THE PARTY, ANOTHER BATTALION CONCENTRATION LANDED ON THE STRUCTURE, RAZING IT. ONLY SEVEN OF THE 40 GOT OUT, SCRAMBLING FOR COVER WHILE OUR MACHINEGUNNERS THREW UP SPURTS OF DUST AT THEIR HEELS.

ON LANDING, MAJ.HENRY FORD OF GRANITE, OKLA., AND CAPT.LEROY MILLER OF PERRY, OKLA., CONGRATULATED ME.

"COME OFTEN, COME AS OFTEN AS YOU PLEASE," THEY SAID. "YOU MUST BE LUCKY. THIS IS THE ONLY MISSION WHICH DIDN'T DRAW ENEMY FIRE."

THIS WAS TRUE, BUT WHILE CAPT.J.FRANCIS KNEBEL OF TERRE HAUTE, IND., DROVE ME BACK TO CENSORSHIP HEADQUARTERS WE DREW PLENTY OF ENEMY ARTILLERY. ONE SHELL BURST WITHIN 30 FEET AND A FRAGMENT CUT RIGHT THROUGH MY SHIRT AT THE SHOULDER BUT DID NOT EVEN SCRATCH THE SKIN. JUST LUCK.

SEP 18 1943

VALLO DELLA LUCANIA, ITALY, SEPT 14-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE HARD LUCK KID FROM CALIFORNIA LOOKED OUT OF HIS HOSPITAL WINDOW EXPECTING TO SEE GERMAN ARMOURED CARS SWEEP BY AGAIN.

"TEDESCI," (GERMANS) MURMURED IDLING ITALIANS ALONG THE STREET.

LT.STANLEY STUBER OF 1231 EAST BROADWAY, GLENDALE, CALIF., HAD HEARD THAT WORD OFTEN SINCE HE BAILED OUT OF A BURNING LIGHTNING SEPT. 10 WHILE COVERING THE BATTLE OF SALERNO PLAIN.

THE ITALIAN ORDERLY POKED HIS HEAD INTO THE ROOM AND CAST HIM A REASSURING GLANCE, HOLDINGHIS FINGER TO HIS LIPS.

THANKS TO ITALIAN FRIENDS, THE YOUNG LIEUTENANT HAD NOT BEEN BOTHERED YET BY GERMAN PATROLS, BUT THERE WAS NO TELLING WHEN THEY MIGHT SEIZE HIM.

30-24-8549

HE STARED AT THE STREET, GRITTED HIS TEETH AND WAITED.

STUBER'S LUCK TURNED HALF SOUR ON AUG. 10 WHEN HE WAS ON A STRAFING MISSION OVER THE TOE OF ITALY. GROUND GUNS DAMAGED HIS PLANE BUT HE LIMPED BACK ACROSS MESSINA STRAITS AND BARELY MADE IT TO THE AIRFIELD, WHERE HE CRASH LANDED.

EXACTLY ONE MONTH LATER HE WAS TRYING TO PROTECT AMERICAN TROOPS FIGHTING ON THE BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF NAPLES WHEN A NAZI MESSERSCHMITT JUMPED HIM FROM ABOVE.

FLAMES WERE LICKING OVER THE COCKPIT WHEN HE PARACHUTED OUT. HE LANDED, WITH PAINFUL INJURIES, ON A FARM OUTSIDE THE BATTLE ZONE BUT INSIDE THE AREA UNDER GERMAN CONTROL.

ITALIAN PEASANTS CARED FOR HIM AND NOTIFIED THE CHIEF OF THE CARABINIERI AT CALLO DELLA LUCANIA. THE LATTER SENT AN ITALIAN AMBULANCE WHICH MOVED STUBER TO THE HOSPITAL IN THE LITTLE HIGHLAND TOWN THROUGH WHICH GERMAN SCOUTS PASSED TWICE DAILY.

THE ITALIAN HOSPITAL STAFF AND FRIENDLY CIVILIANS DELUGED THE AMERICAN YOUTH WITH CIGARETTES AND CANDY. SCARCE LUXURIES WERE HEAPED ON THE TABLE AT HIS BEDSIDE AND FRESH BASKETS OF FRUIT APPEARED EACH MORNING.

ONE GERMAN OFFICER DEMANDED THAT STUBER BE TURNED OVER TO HIM BUT THE CHIEF OF CARABINIERI OBJECTED SO STRENUOUSLY THAT FURTHER DISCUSSION WAS POSTPONED WHEN AMERICAN PATROLS SOUTH OF THE SALERNO BEACH HEAD CAME WITHIN 12 MILES OF VALLO DELLA LUCANIA.

TODAY, STUBER'S THIRD DAY IN THE HOSPITAL, DOCTORS TOLD HIM HE WAS PRACTICALLY AS GOOD AS NEW BUT THE WHOLE STAFF ADVISED HIM TO STAY ON TEMPORARILY INSTEAD OF RUNNING THE RISK OF CAPTURE BY THE GERMANS.

1943

THREE NAZI ARMOURED CARS ROLLED BY HIS WINDOW IN THE MORNING AND WHEN HE HEARD THE CRY BY THE TOWNSFOLK OF "TEDESCI" THIS AFTERNOON IT WAS OBVIOUS WHAT TO EXPECT.

BUT THE POPULACE OF VALLO HAD JUMPED TO AN ERRONEOUS CONCLUSION.

THEY WERE NOT GERMAN BUT BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY VEHICLES THAT CAME TO THE HOSPITAL ENTRANCE. OUT PILED A PARTY OF WAR CORRESPONDENTS WHO HAD BEEN INFORMED BY THE CARABINIERI OF THE PRESENCE OF AN ALLIED AIRMAN.

"GLAD TO SEE YOU," STUBER SAID.

ADD ALLIED H-Q N-AFRICA (NORGAARD) XXX FORCE

THE IMPORTANT HIGHWAY JUNCTION OF POTENZA, USED BY GERMAN TROOPS MOVING INTO THE BATTLE AREA, WAS KEPT UNDER NIGHT AND DAY AIR ATTACK.

THE MIDDLE EAST AIR FORCE, WHICH CONCENTRATED ON TARGETS THERE TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY WHILE THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN FORCES WERE THROWING THEIR FULL STRENGTH DIRECTLY UPON THE EMBATTLED ENEMY AT SALERNO, RETURNED AGAIN BOTH YESTERDAY AND THE NIGHT BEFORE.

AMERICAN LIBERATORS COVERED THE TARGET AREA WITH BOMBS YESTERDAY, ENCOUNTERING NO AIR OPPOSITION. BRITISH LIBERATORS AND HALIFAXES HIT SUPPLY DUMPS IN THE AREA DURING THE PREVIOUS NIGHT IN A RAID COINCIDING WITH ONE CARRIED OUT BY MEDIUM BOMBERS OF THE AFRICAN FORCE.

THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR COMMAND ALSO SENT MEDIUM BOMBERS AGAINST ENEMY TRANSPORTS IN THE AULETTA DISTRICT WEDNESDAY NIGHT WHILE YESTERDAY HEAVY AND MEDIUM BOMBERS RANGED OVER HIGHWAYS, RAILWAY BRIDGES AND OTHER POINTS AROUND NAPLES AND SALERNO. NO ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE ENCOUNTERED.

THE MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS, FIGHTER BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS POUNDED TROOP CONCENTRATIONS AND TRANSPORT AGAIN ON THE SMOKING, FLAMING BATTLEGROUND. THE ENEMY AIRFIELD AT CISTERNA LITTORIA WAS ATTACKED BY LIGHT BOMBERS LAST NIGHT.

ONE ENEMY AIRCRAFT WAS KNOCKED DOWN DURING THE PERIOD AND TWO ALLIED PLANES WERE LISTED AS MISSING.

GEN.CLARK DECLARED YESTERDAY THAT THE FIFTH AND EIGHTH ARMIES WOULD MEET "IN A MATTER OF HOURS" AS HIS FORCES WENT INTO THEIR FIRST REAL OFFENSIVE SINCE THE ORIGINAL LANDINGS NINE DAYS AGO.

A STATE OF EXPECTANT MYSTERY VEILED THE OPERATIONS OF THE THIRD ALLIED FORCE IN ITALY--THE BRITISH WHO SLICED OFF THE HEEL IN THE TARANTO AREA AND WHO THEN STRUCK UP TO BARI, A LOGICAL JUMPING OFF PLACE TO SMASH ACROSS THE ADRIATIC INTO THE BALKANS OR TO TURN WESTWARD ACROSS THE PENINSULA AND SQUEEZE THE GERMANS AT SALERNO FROM THE REAR.

THE EIGHTH ARMY WAS REPORTED OFFICIALLY YESTERDAY TO HAVE PASSED THROUGH THE COAST VILLAGE OF SCALEA, SOME 50 AIRLINE MILES BELOW THE SALERNO BATTLEGROUND, AND THERE APPEARED LITTLE TO DELAY ITS RAPID PROGRESS.

(THE ALGIERS RADIO SAID LAST NIGHT THAT SOME DETACHMENTS ALREADY HAD REACHED SAPRI, JUST 18 1/2 MILES FROM CLARK'S LOWER ANCHOR.)

THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY AND ATTACHED BRITISH ELEMENTS, IN STRENGTH EQUAL TO THE YANKS, SURGED OUT OF THE LOWLAND FOXHOLES YESTERDAY AT DAWN TO STRIKE AT THE NAZI FORCES WHO EARLIER IN THE WEEK HAD FORCED BACK THE INVADERS.

BY DAY'S END, THE CHARGING ALLIED FORCES HAD WON BACK MOST, IF NOT ALL, OF THE TERRITORY LOST IN THE GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS, BUT

3024-8551

FIRST REPORTS ARRIVING FROM THE FRONT WERE NOT CLEAR AS TO THE EXACT DEPTH OF THE PENETRATION.

AS THE ALLIED TROOPS, HEAVILY STRENGTHENED BY REINFORCEMENTS POURING IN DURING THE PREVIOUS 48 HOURS, MOVED OUT TO ATTACK IN WHAT A MILITARY SPOKESMAN CALLED THEIR "FIRST SERIOUS OFFENSIVE," THE ENEMY ALREADY HAD UNDERGONE A MIGHTY HAMMERING BY AIR AND FROM THE SEA.

THROUGHOUT WEDNESDAY, THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR ARM, ABLY ABETTED BY HEAVY BOMBERS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST, FILLED THE SKIES OVER THE PULSING BATTLEFIELD AND DUMPED UPON THE ENEMY THE GREATEST CONCENTRATION OF EXPLOSIVES YET DELIVERED IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER.

FLYING VIRTUALLY WITHOUT OPPOSITION FROM THE GERMAN AIRFORCE AND COMPLETING TWO DAYS OF OPERATIONS WITH THE LOSS OF FOUR PLANES, FOUR-ENGINED, MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS, FIGHTER-BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS TEAMED UP TO DELIVER A BOMBLOAD FAR GREATER THAN THAT WHICH FORCED THE ISLAND OF PANTELLERIA INTO SUBJECTION.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, THE HILLS ECHOED WITH THE ROAR OF NAVAL GUNS OFFSHORE HURTLING A STREAM OF DESTRUCTIVE SHELLS UPON ENEMY POSITIONS.

GENERAL CLARK, IN A PRESS CONFERENCE WITH ALLIED CORRESPONDENTS, SAID THE GERMANS HAD BEEN ENTRENCHING THEMSELVES ON THE SALERNO BEACHES FOR TWO WEEKS BEFORE THE ALLIED FORCES LANDED "BUT EVEN SO WE SMASHED THROUGH THEM TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE."

THE AMAZING TWO-DAY, 100-MILE TRIP THROUGH ENEMY TERRITORY BY WHICH DANIEL DE LUCE AND EIGHT BRITISH WAR CORRESPONDENTS, ESCORTED BY TWO BRITISH CAPTAINS, MADE THE FIRST CONTACT BETWEEN THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AND THE AMERICAN FIFTH WAS AN OUTSTANDING REPORTORIAL ACHIEVEMENT OF THE WAR.

THE PARTY, RIDING IN A JEEP, A TRUCK AND TWO STAFF CARS, LEFT MONTGOMERY'S FORCES FAR DOWN THE COAST.

"IT WAS A FANTASTIC DRIVE," THE AMERICAN REPORTER WROTE. "FOR MORE THAN 100 MILES WE RODE ALONG THE SHORES OF THE TYRRHENIAN SEA X X X ALL THE TIME ON THE WATCH FOR THE ENEMY, BUT SEEING NONE.

"WE REAPED SCORES OF HYSTERICAL WELCOMES FROM SETTLEMENTS ALONG THE ROUTE."

ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS, ITALIANS WARNED THE CORRESPONDENTS OF THE PRESENCE OF GERMANS IN THE VICINITY AND THE NAZIS WERE SUCCESSFULLY AVOIDED.

IN THE 100 MILES THE ONLY DEMOLITIONS THE PARTY DISCOVERED "WERE AN AMMUNITION DUMP AND A RAILWAY BRIDGE THE GERMANS HAD BLOWN UP."

EVIDENCE OF THE CLOSE KNIT UNITY PREVAILING IN THE ALLIED FORCES WERE GIVEN IN RICE'S REPORT THAT THE RANGERS WERE HAPPY TO FIND ON EMBARKATION THAT THEY WERE ASSIGNED TO THE SAME BRITISH TROOP CARRIER WHICH HAD LANDED THEM IN SICILY.

FLYING FORTRESSES LED THE ATTACK NORTH OF NAPLES WHILE THE TACTICAL AIRFORCE BLASTED GERMAN POSITIONS AROUND THE SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD.

THE PILOT OF A B-25 MITCHELL, LT. JOHN W.WHITE, WESTMORELAND, NASHVILLE, TENN., DECLARED, "THERE WERE PLENTY OF ENEMY VEHICLES DOWN THERE AND OUR BOMBS MUST HAVE GOT PLENTY OF THEM BESIDES CLUTTERING THE ROAD, NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE ENTRANCES TO THE TOWN."

DESCRIBING THE FLYING FORTRESSES' ATTACK IN THE BENEVENTO AREA, SGT. KENNETH L.LONG, 301 LINCOLN WAY, DIXON, ILL., A TAIL GUNNER, SAID, "I COULD SEE TWO TRAINS APPROACHING THE BRIDGE. OUR BOMBS HEADED RIGHT FOR THE TARGET AND FROM WHAT I COULD SEE OF THE BOMBING, THOSE TWO TRAINS DID NOT CROSS THE BRIDGE AND PROBABLY WILL NOT FOR QUITE A WHILE."

SECOND LT. ROY L.ATHERTON, PEARL, ILL., BOMBARDIER, DECLARED, "IT WAS HARD FOR ME TO SIGHT THE TARGET BECAUSE OF THE DUST RISING AROUND THE BRIDGE FROM THE BOMBINGS OF THE PREVIOUS GROUPS. I CORRECTED BY SIGHTING TO HIT THE PART THAT ESCAPED PREVIOUS DAMAGE AND I SAW MY BOMBS HIT RIGHT ON THE CENTER."

THE SMASHING WEWAK VICTORY WON THE ALLIED AIRMEN HIGH PRAISE FROM GENERAL MACARTHUR.

"ALTHOUGH ALMOST INVARIABLY OUTNUMBERED, THE FIFTH AIR FORCE IN MOMENTS OF CRISIS HAS NEVER FAILED ME," HE SAID.

"SWIFT AND SURE IN ATTACK, TENACIOUS AND DETERMINED IN DEFENSE, IT HAS PROVED ITSELF THE IDEAL WEAPON OF WAR. ITS DEADLY EFFICIENCY HAS NEVER BEEN SURPASSED."

IN THE SOLOMONS, ESCORTED BOMBERS FROM ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S COMMAND STRUCK REPEATEDLY AT AIRDROMES IN THE BUIN AREA. MORE THAN 200 PLANES PARTICIPATED IN THE ATTACKS, WHICH WERE DESCRIBED AS SUCCESSFUL.

THE HUNT FOR ENEMY SHIPPING CONTINUED. BOMBERS ATTACKED 35 TO 40 BARGES ALONG THE NEW GUINEA COAST, SINKING 15 AND DESTROYING OR DAMAGING THE OTHERS. THREE JAPANESE CARGO SHIPS WERE BOMBED AND STRAFED IN BUKA PASSAGE. ANOTHER SHIP, A 1500-TON FREIGHTER, RECEIVED A DIRECT HIT WITH A 500-POUND BOMB AND WAS LEFT STATIONARY AND LISTING.

TO OCCUPY THE JAPANESE BASE AT LAE, NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 16 WAS THE FINE SPIRIT OF COMRADESHIP BETWEEN THE MAIN BODY OF AUSTRALIANS AND AMERICAN PARATROOPERS.

WHENEVER AN AMERICAN APPEARED AMONG THE AUSSIES HE WAS GREETED WARMLY AND GIVEN TEA OR WHATEVER THE "DIGGERS" HAD TO SPARE.

WHEN ONE PARATROOP UNIT WAS MOVED BACK FROM THE FORWARD AREA, ITS MEMBERS TURNED OVER THEIR CIGARET SUPPLY TO THE AUSTRALIANS. WHEN THE AMERICANS WERE ORDERED BACK TO THEIR ORIGINAL POSITION A FEW DAYS LATER, THE AUSSIES RETURNED THE SMOKES, MAKING UP FOR WHAT THEY HAD USED OUT OF THEIR MEAGER STOCKS.

THE DIGGERS WERE AMUSED AND DELIGHTED AT THE AMERICANS' EAGERNESS TO GET A CRACK AT THE ENEMY. THEY WERE AS PLEASED AS ANYBODY WHEN THEY HEARD THE PARATROOPERS FINALLY HAD MADE CONTACT WITH A JAPANESE UNIT SEEKING TO ESCAPE FROM LAE.

OLEN CLEMENTS, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WHO ACCOMPANIED A LANDING FORCE WHICH WON A BEACHHEAD EAST OF LAE AND DROVE ON THE ENEMY BASE FROM THAT DIRECTION, SIMILARLY NOTED FRIENDLINESS BETWEEN THE AUSSIE TROOPS AND THE AMERICAN PERSONNEL MANNING THE LANDING CRAFT.

THE AUSTRALIANS ON THE MARKHAM APPROACH EVEN WERE HAPPY TO SEE TWO AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS -- FRANK P.SMITH OF THE CHICAGO TIMES AND YOURS TRULY. REPEATEDLY THEY CALLED OUT FRIENDLY WARNINGS TO US TO CHANGE OUR HEADGEAR, SINCE SMITH WAS WEARING AN AMERICAN HELMET WHICH SOMEWHAT RESEMBLES THE JAPANESE AND I WAS WEARING A MECHANIC'S CAP, WHICH IS NOT UNLIKE THE ENEMY'S FIELD CAP.

THEY MADE A POINT OF CALLING OUT GREETINGS IN WHAT THEY CONSIDERED AMERICAN PHRASEOLOGY. INSTEAD OF USING THEIR OWN TERMS SUCH AS "DIGGER" OR "MATEY," THEY WOULD SAY CHUM, PAL OR YANK.
AS A MATTER OF FACT THEY OFTEN KEPT US GOING BY SUPPLYING INVIGORATING CUPS OF TEA OUT OF THEIR EVER-PRESENT BILLY-CANS.

new york, sept. 17 - (ap) - the new york times said tonight in a london dispatch that russia had proposed that the conference of foreign secretaries of the united states, great britain and the soviet union be held in moscow in october.

the dispatch said that although british and american officials had urged that foreign commissar vyacheslaff molotov come to london, half way between moscow and washington, for the conference, SOVIET VICE COMMISSAR IVAN MAISKY HAD REPRESENTED MOLOTOV'S ARGUMENT THAT HE WOULD BE IN A BETTER position to take action on questions facing the conference if he were in moscow, where he could confer constantly with premier joseph stalin./

in arguing that london be made the conference site, the british and americans were represented as saying that the air journey to moscow would be difficult for secretary of state cordell hull, and that his physicians were hesitant about giving their consent for so long a trip. it was conceded, however, the times said, that this consideration would not be allowed to stand in the way of the conference.

THE PAST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS HAVE PRODUCED THREE NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENTS FOR ALLIED ARMS.

FIRST IN AMERICAN HEARTS MUST COME THE GOOD NEWS THAT THE GALLANT AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS ON THE BLOODY BEACHES OF SALERNO NOT ONLY HAVE MADE SECURE THEIR BRIDGEHEAD BUT HAVE SEIZED THE INITIATIVE AND ARE ON THE OFFENSIVE. OUR BOYS HAVE WEATHERED THE INITIAL STAGE OF A NASTY GERMAN STORM.

SECOND, AND MORE IMPORTANT MILITARILY, IS THE UNEMOTIONAL WORD FROM MOSCOW THAT THE RED ARMY HAS BROKEN THE GERMAN LINE IN THE VITALLY STRATEGIC SECTOR EAST OF THE KIEV-ZAPOROZHE LINE OF THE DNIEPER RIVER. THAT VASTLY INCREASES THE GRAVITY OF THE HITLERITE POSITION.

THIRD WE HAVE THE RUSSIAN RECAPTURE OF THEIR BIG BLACK SEA NAVAL

BASE OF NOVOROSSISK WHICH IS, SO TO SPEAK, THE HINGE OF THE NARROW GATEWAY THE NAZIS HAVE BEEN HOLDING AT THE KUBAN PENINSULA ENTRANCE TO THE CAUCASUS. THIS JEOPARDIZES THE WHOLE GERMAN POSITION AT THE LAST REMAINING VANTAGE GROUND FROM WHICH THEY COULD GLIMPSE THE LAKES OF GOLDEN OIL FOR LACK OF WHICH THEY ARE IN DIRE STRAITS.

THIS IS THE NINTH DAY OF THE BATTLE OF SALERNO AND, WHILE HEAVY FIGHTING CONTINUES, IT GOES ALL RIGHT. THOUSANDS OF REINFORCEMENTS ARE BEING POURED INTO OUR RANKS. WHILE THE GERMANS HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF THEIR FORTIFIED POSITIONS ON THE HEIGHTS OVERLOOKING THE OPEN BEACHES, ALLIED WARSHIPS CONTROL THE SEA AND ALLIED WARPLANES DOMINATE THE AIR.

THE NAZI DEFENSES ARE BEING MERCILESSLY BLASTED WITH BOTH BOMBS AND BIG NAVAL SHELLS. THE ALLIES ARE EMPLOYING THE GREATEST CONCENTRATION OF AIRPOWER SEEN IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

AND ELEMENTS OF GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S VETERAN BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY HAVE ALMOST REACHED THE SALERNO BATTLEFIELD IN THE RACE FROM THE SOUTH. THE GERMANS ARE THREATENED WITH BEING CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO FORCES.

BY THE WAY, IF THE READER WILL EXCUSE AN INTERPOLATION WHILE WE ARE ON THE SUBJECT OF ITALY, THERE ARE A COUPLE OF QUESTIONS I WISH SOMEBODY WOULD ANSWER FOR ME.

IS IT NECESSARY, IN ORDER TO SELL BONDS AND KEEP THE AMERICAN PUBLIC FROM "THIS FOOLISH, CHILDISH OVEROPTIMISM," TO MAKE SUCH DEPRESSING SPEECHES AS OUR USUALLY SMILING FRIEND THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MADE WEDNESDAY ABOUT THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN? DOES THE MAN-IN-THE-STREET REALLY HAVE TO BE TREATED AS A PSYCHOLOGICAL GUINEA PIG, SO THAT HE WON'T BECOME COMPLACENT, OR IS HE IN FACT A PRETTY SOLID AND UNDERSTANDING CITIZEN? WHY DOES MR. MORGENTHAU HA TO TALK ABOUT "WHEN AND IF WE CONQUER ITALY"--WHY THE "IF"?

WHY IS THIS "THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR, SO FAR AS THE UNITED STATES IS CONCERNED", WHEN HEARTS AND BACKS HAVE BEEN BROKEN FOR ALMOST TWO YEARS WITHOUT A WHIMPER TO MEET COLOSSAL DEMANDS? AFTER ALL, WHO IS THERE WHO DOESN'T REALIZE THAT WE HAVE TREMENDOUS SACRIFICES AHEAD OF US, BOTH ON THE BATTLE FIELDS AND ON THE HOME FRONT?

A113

THE NAZIS LIKED PART OF MR. MORGENTHAU'S SPEECH SO MUCH THAT THEY USED IT FOR PROPAGANDA TO BUCK UP THEIR OWN PEOPLE. IT SURELY CAN'T BE GOOD FOR BOTH NAZIS AND YANKEES--OR IS IT?

BUT TO GET BACK TO OUR MUTTONS, THE GERMANS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT ARE FACED WITH TWO MOMENTOUS PROBLEMS: (1) WHETHER THEY CAN PULL BACK THEIR LONG, UNWIELDY, BADLY MAULED LINE TO THE DEFENSES OF THE DNIEPER RIVER AND THERE REESTABLISH THEMSELVES; (2) WHETHER THEY CAN OVERCOME THE GRAVE DANGER OF BEING CUT OFF IN THE CRIMEA, AS THE RESULT OF THE FALL OF NOVOROSSISK AND THE STEADILY INCREASING THREAT TO THEIR RIGHT FLANK NEAR THE NORTHERN ENTRANCE TO THE CRIMEAN PENINSULA.

THE INDICATIONS NOW ARE THAT THE NAZIS' HOPE OF STANDING OFF FURTHER DISASTROUS REVERSES MUST LIE IN THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE AUTUMN RAINS, WHICH ALREADY HAVE BEGUN, WILL SLOW THE RUSSIANS DOWN UNTIL COLD WEATHER ARRIVES TO FREEZE THE GROUND. THE MUD IS A TERRIBLE IMPEDIMENT DURING THE RAINY SEASON.

Allies Seize Isles Commanding Naples Gulf; 5th Army Drives 5-Mile Wedge Into Nazi Line

SEP 18 1943

TWO ARMIES POISED FOR DRIVE ON CITY

Battle of Salerno Bridgehead Is Virtually Ended With Germans in Retreat—Fight for Italy in New Phase.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—Allied naval forces have seized two islands within sixteen miles of Naples—Ischia and Procida—completely flanking the great seaport with an island lock on the west to open a new phase of the battle for Italy.

The battle for the Salerno bridgehead has virtually ended, with the Germans retreating from the south end and the Allies spearing inland eleven miles.

In a special communique, Allied Headquarters announced that the large island of Ischia—Apes' Island—sixteen miles southwest of Naples had been taken on Thursday, one day after the small, neighboring island of Procida to the east had fallen into the hands of the Allies on Wednesday. Procida lies twelve miles southwest of Naples and only two miles from the north peninsula skirting the bay. Its capture brought the Allies virtually within sight of the metropolis.

Ponza, an island sixty-five miles west of Naples, also was seized on that same day.

Ischia has an area of about twenty-six miles, and is only seven miles from the nearest mainland coast.

The new conquests completed the Allied flanking of the bay, since Capri, off the south peninsula, had been previously captured.

"The British Eighth Army now has joined the American Fifth Army, and they are virtually acting as one army," and are in a position for a drive on Naples, a headquarters officer declared today. And his point was emphasized in a dispatch from an Associated Press correspondent who said that the tenth day after the Allied landing on the Gulf of Salerno coast found the Fifth Army preparing an offensive today against a strong, aggressive, and exceedingly well directed German army.

Foe Determined to Fight.

The Germans are obviously determined to fight for every inch of Italy, this correspondent said, but the American High Command is thoroughly satisfied with the results of these ten days. The Gulf of Salerno from Agropoli to Salerno has been firmly secured and the high ground overlooking the plain is now largely in our hands.

The junction of the Eighth and Fifth armies bent the narrow German line into a crescent in front of Naples, but difficult mountains there, and the scarcity of real roads makes that a strong defensive position for the enemy, the correspondent continued, adding that the terrain so heavily favors the defensive that this may counter-balance the Allied superiority in numbers. Where we have complete superiority is in the air and artillery, the correspondent declared.

Allied Headquarters indicated that while there still was heavy fighting near Salerno, the bridgehead itself was rapidly expanding into one solid front as the Germans swung their southern flank northward toward central Italy to avoid being caught in pincers between the Eighth and Fifth armies.

Germans Claim Elba.

German headquarters announced meanwhile that Nazi troops had occupied the island of Elba, thirty-two miles east of Corsica and eight miles from the jutting Italian west coast, and that the island garrison of 7,000 Italian troops had surrendered to them. Elba, the scene of Napoleon's first exile, is about 120 miles northwest of Rome.

The Allied spearhead driving into the crumbling German flank in the extreme southern Salerno bridgehead captured the town of Roccadaspide, eleven miles inland from the coast, Allied Headquarters announced.

The initiative was fully in the hands of the Allies in this bitterly fought bridgehead, with more reinforcements being poured in, and Allied air and sea might beating at the Nazis, and the familiar pattern of the Allied attack was seen again as the Northwest African Air Forces started pounding Nazis airfields south of Rome.

Allies Gain Mainland Air Bases.

For the first time, Allied planes now are operating from airfields on the Italian mainland, it was announced, an indication that ground troops were getting elbow room in the Salerno area. Up to now the Allied fighters had had to fly all the way from Sicily.

The capture of Roccadaspide indicated that the Germans were abandoning their mountain positions from which their 88-millimeter guns had pounded the beachhead. The Nazis were still fighting desperately north of Salerno, however, and were holding the mountain passes leading down into the southside of the Bay of Naples. Their next great stand will undoubtedly be in defense of that bomb-wrecked seaport.

There are at least six German divisions in the area, although those engaged against the Fifth Army unquestionably were heavily battered.

The Eighth Army veterans, led by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery on their historic 200-mile dash up from the Calabrian toe, have now effected a full junction with the Fifth Army, the Allied communique declared, adding: "Allied troops now have the initiative on the Fifth Army front."

Expect Fight South of Rome.

The British force which landed at Taranto, the Fifth Allied Corps, remained comparatively inactive, except for its strengthening of contact with the British just north of the instep of the boot. Reports from that sector said that the retreating Germans were taking Italian hostages to insure good conduct by civilians in the villages the Nazis hold.

German troops, particularly the First German Parachute Division, are still in the area just north of Bari, on the east coast, but must now withdraw or face the danger of being cut off.

For three days Allied planes have been virtually unmolested in striking as far north as Rome, and now with perfect weather, a successful German retreat from the Salerno sector is going to be extremely difficult.

It is hard to believe that the German air force is as weak in battle as has been thus far indicated, and possibly Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring is saving his air strength in the north until the Allies meet his main defense line. That line is not yet apparent, but probably it will be just south of Rome.

Middle East Air Force Active.

The Northwest African Air Force was not alone in carrying on the war in the air.

The far-ranging American Liberators based in the Middle East again ranged across the Mediterranean into the battleground of Italy and bombed freight yards and road and rail junctions at Pescara on the eastern side of the peninsula.

Hits were scored on bridges over the Pescara River, a Cairo announcement said, and road and rail junctions were put out of action. One hit started a large oil fire.

Potenza, important enemy communications just back Salerno battleground, was b once more on Thursday t this time by British Libera and Halifaxes from the Mid East.

NAVY ACTION THREATENS PORT'S FLANK

Combined U. S. And British Armies Press Toward Next Objective

Fifth Army Drive Captures Roccadaspide, Eleven Miles Inland

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 18—Allied naval units have opened a new phase in the battle for Italy by seizing three more islands commanding the immediate sea approaches to the great port of Naples, headquarters announced today as Allied ground troops emerged victorious in the bloody fighting at Salerno.

A special communique disclosed the occupation of Ischia, sixteen miles southwest of Naples, only a few hours after the regular war bulletin from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the seizure of the two other islands off the northern spur of the Bay of Naples.

Procida 2 Miles Off Shore

Ischia was taken Thursday, one day after the occupation of Ponza, sixty-five miles west of Naples, and of Procida, twelve miles southwest of Naples and only two miles from the northern land arm of the bay.

Allied forces previously had occupied the Island of Capri, on the southern side of the bay.

Ischia, largest of the four, has an area of about twenty-six square miles and is only seven miles from the nearest mainland coast.

[Berlin broadcast an announcement that the Germans had occupied the island of Elba, Napoleon's first home in exile, thirty-two miles east of Corsica and eight miles from the Italian coast. Seven thousand Italian troops were said by the Nazis to have surrendered there.]

Battle Won By Courage

Allied armies emerged victors in the battle of Salerno—first great engagement with Hitler's legions for the command of Europe—because of an abundance of grim courage on the part of American and British infantrymen and overwhelming air and sea superiority.

The American Fifth and British Eighth armies merged in the final stages of the strategic victory which enlarged the Salerno bridgehead into a full fighting front.

German troops, who tried futilely for seven days to hammer the American and British forces into the sea, had retreated in the south, where the Allies smashed inland eleven miles, but still clung savagely to the gateway to Naples in the north.

The victory of Salerno belongs to he battle-grimed infantrymen un-ler Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark who ought for seven days without rest nd who refused to be budged from heir foxholes on the beaches by Nazi might and who died rather han give up an inch.

The infantry made the victory ossible. Air power, which pulver-zed Nazi communications and ront-line positions, and sea power, vhich poured a tide of reserves on he beaches, won it.

Because of this combination, General Eisenhower has two great armies surging through the breach n Hitler's European fortress, with a third in reserve.

Within 10 Minutes' Flight

These are some of the fruits of the week's savage fighting:

Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz' north-west African air forces have fighter fields within ten minutes' flight of Naples.

At least five German divisions have been badly mauled, sapping strength which the Germany army can ill afford to lose.

Hundreds of square miles of southern Italy now are in Allied hands and will serve as the base for the drive north.

The next big German stand certainly will be before Naples. The capture of Naples would give the Allies one of the best and largest seaports in Italy, through which thousands of tons of supplies could be funnelled.

Air Lack Spells Defeat

Every indication that the Germans mean to defend each foot of ground in Italy could be seen in the tactics of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring, but their tremendous weakness in the air makes their defeat inevitable.

Four-engined Flying Fortresses and medium Mitchells and Marauders struck again at German air power yesterday, destroying scores of enemy fighters and bombers on the ground in surprise attacks on airfields near Rome, but encountered no opposition in the air.

It was disclosed officially that American Warhawks and RAF Spitfires now are operating from mainland bases established after the landing of the Fifth Army at Salerno.

Batter Grounded Planes

Flying Fortresses hit two airdromes at Giampino and dumped hundreds of bombs on a group of Focke-Wulf long-range bombers. Twin-engined Mitchells and Marauders, attacking the Practica di Mare field, caused heavy destruction among more than one hundred grounded planes, including more than twenty Dornier bombers.

American Liberators from the Middle East again joined in the aerial offensive with a daylight attack on the rail junction and freight yards at Pescara, on the east coast across from Rome.

Night-flying Wellingtons of the RAF and RCAF continued the assault after dark, bombing airfields at Cerveteri and Furbara, north of Rome.

Report Hostages Taken

British troops which landed at Taranto remained comparatively inactive, meanwhile, except for the strengthening of contact with other British forces just north of the instep of the Italian boot. There were reports from that sector that the retreating Germans were taking Italian hostages to ensure good conduct on the part of civiliants in villages held by the Nazis.

[The Berlin radio asserted that German naval forces had occupied an "Italian Adriatic port of importance," seized seven steamers and numerous warships and freighters and disarmed 4,000 Italian troops.]

In the Naples area the Allies are certain to encounter more and more Nazi troops as they plunge northward. The battle for Italy already is widening from a bridgehead to a full-fledged front, with hundreds of thousands of soldiers involved.

The size of the front depends only on Hitler's determination to resist and the speed with which the Allies can throw new divisions into the fray.

SEP 19 1943

First Airfield Taken Over

An RAF announcement said the first airfield in the Salerno area to be taken over by the Allies, at Montecorvino to the southeast, was covered with "burned-out tanks, overturned trucks, twisted guns and new graves."

More than forty Axis aircraft were found on the field, mostly German. The first RAF Spitfire put down on the field only a few minutes after the last German machine-gun commanding it was put out of action.

SOME ITALIAN FLIERS FLED TO JOIN ALLIES

Most Are Said to Have Arrived in Antiquated Planes

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18 (AP)—Some Italian Air Force pilots flying a variety of planes, mostly antiquated, managed to evade the Germans and reach Allied airfields in Sicily and North Africa, it was disclosed today.

At one Sicilian landing ground twelve airmen, some bedecked with medals, poured out of one bomber arriving at dusk. Smiling broadly, they handed over their revolvers and posed for photographs. A pair of small Italian boys rushed out to the Savoia-Marchetti bomber and gave a little cheer.

Near another airfield, soldiers watched an old biplane going through an elaborate pattern of aerial acrobatics. Then a Fiat CR-42 fighter landed and a tall young air force lieutenant who escaped from the vicinity of Milan stepped out and announced in broken English:

"Signor, me verry good pilot. Come fight for you."

He told of anti-German demonstrations at Milan and other parts of Northern Italy and said many Italian pilots were eager to join the fight against the Nazis because "the Italian people feel it was Germany that first invaded Italy."

Then he proposed seriously that he swap his old fighter for a Spitfire and go to work with the Royal Air Force.

Other Italians in a Savoia-Marchetti 79 bomber flew close to Allied fleet units but were saved from destruction by carrier-based fighters when the gunner quickly hung out a white flag from his turret.

One Italian pilot-instructor from Northern Italy arrived in Sicily with a plane crammed full of his pupils.

All the Italians are bringing strange cargoes, including bicycles and in one case a puppy.

5th Army Girds for Offensive

By Relman Morin

For the combined American press

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 18 (AP).—The end of the tenth full day since the Allied landing on the coast of the Gulf of Salerno found the 5th Army preparing an offensive today against a strong, aggressive and exceedingly well directed German army.

The Germans obviously are determined to fight for every inch of Italy. The salient fact emerging from these ten days of heavy fighting is that the Germans won't pull out without a struggle. As in Sicily, the mountain terrain here greatly favors the defensive.

Yank Air Service Troops Back British Line On Salerno Beach

Told To Fire At Will, For "Only Ones Who Can Come Back Now Are Germans Or Cowards"

SEP 19 1943

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

South of Salerno, Italy, Sept. 13 (Delayed)—Don't let anyone tell you the American Air Force service forces don't come under shellfire. They are taking their chances right along with the regular combat troops in this pocket of the Mediterranean invasion, and their guns are ready for a front-line stand at any time.

After landing on beaches where heavy British guns were belting steadily at the German defenders, a unit of the Northwest African Air Service Command, with which I came ashore, had to take a bivouac area only a few hundred yards from the sea. After organizing the task of running bombs, food, fuel and other supplies to newly-taken Allied airfields still within the range of enemy fire, they crawl into bed like so many worn-out animals.

Sleep Through Cannonading

Some were so weary they did not bother to put up tarps or set up mosquito bars. They just wrapped themselves in a blanket or two and dropped off to sleep with the wet earth of Italy as a pillow.

Even the cannonading of British artillery batteries in front and on one side of us failed to keep them awake. But as the moon rose, the orange flames from the battering twenty-five-pounders tore the night with incessant frequency. The Germans were launching another heavy counter-attack!

In the distance—and it wasn't very much of a distance—you could hear the biting crack of their tank guns. The British batteries rolled back a continuous current of shells which poured into the darkness with an earaching intensity of sound. Each explosion was like a box on the ear remembered from school days.

Indestructible British Dignity

Sometime before midnight a dispatch rider rode up on his bike and gave a message to the British major commanding an engineering unit bivouacked in a plowed field adjoining us. The major came over to tell us the news. He walked almost leisurely because no news could make a British army major lose his dignity by hurrying.

"Things are a bit sticky," he said. "It looks like Jerry may break through our right flank position and if he does he'll have a straight show across this flat country to us. His infantry is out in front and we'll have to put what we can in his way. What can you give us to help?"

"Every man here," said Major Edmond A. Cobb, who learned how to be cool in tight spots as a football star at Cornell.

Quickly Pool Resources

The British major thought that was fine and the two officers quickly pooled their resources. In ditches at each end of the field they placed machine guns and manned them. Then British engineers and American airfield service workers, teaming together, strung a series of barbed wire barriers across the field. It was neatly and quickly done, as if these boys, most of whom never had pulled a trigger in anger, had been in combat every day.

The time now had come to deploy the troops across the field. They were quiet and intense. There was no more horseplay and they were ready for business. Lining up his men Capt. Roy Pearce, company commander, of Columbia, S. C., told them:

"I know you men are not used to combat, but the time has come when everybody is a front-line soldier. I want you to show the Germans you are the best damned soldiers they ever came up against anywhere. Now get ready to give them hell."

A Sting In His Drawl

That slim young captain had all the born militancy of the South, the cradle of American arms. There was a sting in his drawl and the fervor in his voice straightened every figure listening to him like a statue in the moonlight.

"Lieutenant Brookes, take your men along that line," he said briskly. Lieut. William P. Brookes, of Oklahoma City, swiftly led a platoon into position and his men knelt in the moist black ditch with rifles and tommy-guns in their hands.

Lieutenant Volden, move your men over there and string them out," said Captain Pearce. Lieut. John E. Volden, of Morris, Minn., soon had his men in place, and so did Lieut. Woodrow W. Weems, of Wenonah, N. J., leader of a third platoon.

Either "Germans Or Cowards"

"Tell your men to feel free to fire at anything that comes across that field," the British major said. "Our men up ahead have been given orders to stand or die and the only ones who can come back across that field now are Germans or cowards."

For more than an hour the thin lines of men lay with eyes glued on the black earth ahead. Then a second messenger arrived from headquarters. The British major came across with welcome news.

"The situation has been rehabilitated," he said. "You can draw in your men."

They put away their guns then relieved and at the same time a bit disappointed.

2 U. S. Soldiers Hike 10 Miles in Nazi Territory

Mistaken for Italians, They Offer German Cigarette; He Lets Them Walk Away

Distributed by The Associated Press

WITH THE AMERICAN 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 15 (Delayed).—Private Albert Campbell, of Maplewood, N. J., was back behind the American lines today after hiking ten miles through enemy tank and machine-gun positions and passing the time of day with a German machine-gunner on duty.

Badly shaken, Private Campbell wandered back into the Allied lines at 4 a. m. today with Private William McGovern, of New York.

Private Campbell told the story for the two:

"We were manning a road block, covering our battalion command post Monday, when a runner from the battalion dashed up and said: 'Boys, the Germans are at our command post. We need all of you back there.' We had started back when things began to happen.

SEP 19 1943

Sent Into Nazi Territory

"Mortar fire fell around us and we coul hear the German machine guns opening up. Then we got a confusing order which sent us into German territory while the rest of the battalion retired to the rear.

"We finally reached the Sele River and waded across. The German tanks were patrolling the area, so we hid out that night. A patrol we sent out came back and said we were surrounded, so we hid out all the next day. We lost all our rations crossing the river, so could only drink water from the river."

He said the platoon suffered mass jitters Tuesday night, after their area had been shelled most of that day by the Germans. They did not know whether the Germans would ever be pushed back, and were getting hungrier.

Private McGovern picked up the story: "Campbell and I figured we had a 1,000-to-1 chance of getting out of the trap and that night we took off about 9 o'clock."

They started cross-country in the direction of the American artillery fire, he said, and almost stepped into a machine-gun nest with five slumbering Germans.

Offer German Cigarettes

Said Private Campbell: "We didn't wake them, we just tiptoed away." Later, they said, they heard German voices in the darkness, saw tank tracks in the fields and followed a telephone wire until they almost stumbled back into the German command post.

"I froze in my tracks and the cold sweat started pouring out," said Private Campbell. "But we walked away without being seen."

Then a German four feet away lighted a cigarette but they held back an urge to flee. They reached some fox holes and started to pick up a ration can when a German rose from one of the holes and stretched.

They came across a German machine-gunner shortly after midnight, and feeling all was lost, Private McGovern told the Nazi: "We are Americans." The Nazi said nothing.

Private Campbell offered the German a package of cigarettes and said: "Let's be friendly."

"Italienisch?" the German asked.

"No, American," the New Yorker answered, and he and the New Jersey man began to walk across an open field. No machine-gun fire followed them; the gunner only sat and scratched his head.

A few hundred yards away the two Americans ran into an American sentry.

Jersey Medico In Salerno Force

WITH ALLIED AMPHIBIOUS FORCES IN ITALY, Sept. 11 (Delayed) (AP).—When American troops landed north of the gulf of Salerno in the main landing of the Yankee invasion, Lt. H. Vinton Coes, Jr., of 18 Braemore rd., Upper Montlair, N. J., was flotilla medical officer among the amphibious command.

Included in the naval pharmacist mates who worked around the clock on casualties was Henry Waresk of 43 Long st., Jersey City, N. J.

TWO PATROLS TAKE ITALIAN HILL TOWN

By REYNOLDS PACKARD.

Representing the Combined American Press

Albanella, Italy, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This hilltop town of over 5,000 population which dominates the area for miles around was taken yesterday evening by two tough fighting patrols belonging to Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army.

The city fell after exactly two hours battling on the knobs and ridges around the city. The two heavy patrols which carried out the pincer movement were led by Capt. Charles W. Duncan of Chapel Hill, N. C., and First Lieut. Francis Gutterman of Elkhart, Ind. Capt. Duncan came in through the ridges and valleys to join Lieut. Gutterman who came over the main highway to Albanella itself.

Just before the junction was made two American soldiers from one patrol were surprised in the town by two German tanks and were whisked off as prisoners, according to the townspeople with whom I talked today.

The retreating Germans also were plastered from the air and by land artillery and suffered heavy casualties as they tried to slip away behind the mountains of the Altavilla area.

Despite the fact hat Albanella has been the scene of much heavy patrol fighting this town suffered little damage. Two houses were blown up by the Germans, just before they abandoned the town yesterday, in an effort to slow up Allied progress.

Nazis Blast Salerno Ships

Allied Sailors Call the Gulf 'Bombers Alley' as a Result of Repeated Attacks.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

Aboard a United States Warship in the Gulf of Salerno, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This bombers' alley is a red-hot spot on the world's battlefronts—a ship-filled, smoke-hazed stretch of water through which the Fifth Army is being funneled onto the mainland of Italy.

On the maps it's the Gulf of Salerno, but to American sailors it is Bombers' Alley, the lane down which the enemy roars through blistering anti-aircraft fire to hit at the ships pouring men, guns and tanks onto the invasion beaches.

Seven days after the first assault troops swarmed over the beaches to establish a bridgehead on Italian soil, the enemy is still blasting from the skies at our ships with hit and run attacks by small forces slipping through the Allied fighter protection.

Five and six times each day the ships' loudspeaker crackles with the general quarters alarm. Sailors boil up from the lower decks to their battle stations. Portholes and hatches are closed and the gunners point their weapons at the sky waiting for the attack.

Planes Dive Out of Sun.

Then the ship is tense with expectancy. Shipboard life freezes into hard resistance. Small boats scurry away from the large ships.

One moment there is the calm inaction of peace, the next the lid is blown off with a gush of anti-aircraft from hundreds of guns as enemy planes come within range, usually diving out of a bright sun.

That's when your stomach turns into a hard knot and you crouch involuntarily, watching to see if a bomb is dropping your way, while the smaller ack-ack guns hammer away and the larger guns cause the ship to shudder.

Our crew is supremely confident that we are riding a lucky ship.

"They cannot do anything to our ship," declared Harry Murphy, of 2533 Church avenue, Brooklyn. "She's got a charmed life."

At least a dozen bombs have dropped within 100 yards of the ship, and one came so close it lifted the stern out of the water, but no harm was done.

Nazis Dropped Green Flares.

With Allied Naval Forces in the Gulf of Salerno, Sept. 17 (Delayed). — (A. P.). — German flyers raiding Allied beaches and shipping in this area last night used bright green flares, something like the daylight lamps in a tailor shop, apparently designed to cut through fog and smoke.

The German bombs were ineffective, however, and five Focke-Wulfs were reported downed in the eerie scene punctuated by heavy anti-aircraft fire of red, white and green tracers.

Three Messerschmitts were shot down today and this cruiser was widely missed by a large bomb dropped by a Junkers 88.

5th and 8th Armies Joined by Undramatic Exchange of 'Hellos'

By JOHN O'REILLY,

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 17 (Delayed).—The first patrols of the British 8th Army advancing from the south and the Allied 5th Army met late yesterday on a stretch of mountain road in beautiful country somewhere between Paestum and Sapri.

The meeting was jovial but undramatic.

This correspondent accompanie a 5th Army patrol which set ou with orders to travel south unt they met patrols of the 8th.

Our patrol was led by Lt. R. Bales of Elk City, Okla.

The meeting was a sudden thing

Met While Rounding Bend.

The three jeeps of the America patrol were moving along a go dirt road. The soldiers sat wi machineguns, tommy guns a rifles ready.

The jeeps were rounding a be when sudednly two British armor cars came around the curve at fast pace.

The patrols had come upon ea other so suddenly that they pass each other before the drivers cou stoy the vehicles.

As the lead jeep passed the le armored car, Lt. Bales called out: "Hello."

A dusty head projecting from the turret of the armored car yelled back: "Hello."

The dusty head belonged to Sergt. Martin Butler of Naas, County Kildare, Eire.

Everybody jumped out, introduced themselves somewhat formally and shook hands.

In a thick Irish brogue, Sergt. Butler gave news of the 8th Army and Lt. Bales told him of the 5th Army's fighting.

"I think this calls for a little wine produced in this beautiful land," Sergt. Butler said.

Thereupon, he produced a bottle of red wine and the representatives of the two armies had a drink.

The ceremony was watched by two barefooted Italians who were driving a herd of goats and sheep along the road.

Before the American patrol started back, an old Italian who spoke English and who had worked in a copper smelter in Montana, had his family prepare us a meal of tomatoes, cheese, bread, grapes and watermelon.

Badoglio Reported Safe Behind Allied Lines

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 18 (AP)—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported today to be safely behind Allied battle lines in Italy.

Clark Lee, war correspondent representing the combined American press, said in a dispatch from an advanced Allied command post that "Badoglio succeeded in fleeing through the German lines around Rome and now is said to be in Italy behind our lines."

Purported Mussolini Speech Calls Italians Back To Fight

Broadcast Tells Of "Rescue," Denounces King And Lists Aims Of New Fascist Party

[By the Associated Press]

SEP 19 1943

London, Sept. 18—A voice purporting to be that of Benito Mussolini, the fallen founder of Fascism, tonight heaped denunciation upon King Vittorio Emanuele, called for the "elimination of Fascist traitors," and bade Italians take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

In a fifteen-minute radio speech from an undisclosed place the speaker, represented as the ex-Duce liberated by the Germans, told a story of that rescue which he said would "become legendary."

He also outlined this four-point program for "loyal" Italians:

1. Take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

2. Reorganize at once the armed forces and militia.

3. Eliminate traitors, particularly those who went over to the enemy.

4. Make an end to plutocratic methods and establish social and Fascist order.

Most listeners here who had heard Mussolini speak before said they believed the voice was actually that of the fallen Italian Premier, whom the Germans have announced as the head of the Nazi-sponsored "Republican Fascist party."

"Knowing the armistice terms, I had not the least doubt as to Article 12 of these terms * * * I was a hostage. In the night preceding Sept. 12, I said the enemy would not get hold of me alive.

"The clear mountain air held a mood of expectation. It was about 2 P. M. when I saw the first parachutist coming down, who was followed by others resolved to break any resistance. My guards realized that and did not fire.

"Everything happened within five minutes. The liberation—the enterprise was an example of the organization and resolution of the Germans which will live in history—will in the future become legendary."

That, he said, ended "the chapter that might be called 'My Personal Drama.'"

Italy's "Terrible Tragedy"

But all this, he continued, was "nothing compared with the terrible tragedy which the democratic Government inflicted on the Italian nation on July 25. * * * The measures that were taken hinted at a program aimed at destroying the work of twenty years and at extinguishing twenty years of glory.

After castigating "those who today run down the party" as the "same idlers who at the beginning of our march tried to sabotage social progress," the speaker turned to the responsibility of the King.

"He feels himself detected," the broadcaster said, "but he did not resign as a majority of Italians had expected. He must be held directly responsible. It was his dynasty which, during all periods of the war that had been declared by him, was the center of defeatism and of anti-German propaganda. He adopted all the speculations of the enemy.

"I am convinced the House of Savoy prepared and carried out the coup d'état, together with Badoglio as an accomplice."

From this ruin of "Italy in chaos and despair * * * war developing on our own territory * * * our empire thrown away * * * the royal navy given to the British," he then sought to rally Italians.

He was sure, he said, that Italians would recognize his voice—"the voice that called often to you in difficult times and celebrated with you the most beautiful days of the fatherland." He hesitated for some time before appearing, he said, because "I needed some little time of retirement before again appearing in public."

Il Duce Completely Discredited And Very Sick, Italians Say

By CLARK LEE,

Representing the Combined American Press. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA, Sept. 18.—Benito Mussolini is a very sick man, completely discredited in the eyes of the Italians, it was stated today by Italians, who at the same time revealed the complete story of the former Italian dictator's overthrow and arrest.

"Mussolini is more of a liability than an asset. Even the Fascists renounced him," said Italians who have reached North Africa. "The Germans are welcome to him, but we doubt if he will be of much use to them."

Gestapo and German military and diplomatic officials have been led on a wild goose chase in their efforts to locate Mussolini since he was arrested in the streets of Rome on the evening of July 25 and forced, despite his protests, into an ambulance with frosted glass windows in which he was spirited to a safe hiding place.

Mussolini was made fairly comfortable in his place of captivity, but during the first few days his reactions were said to have been violent at times. Gradually, however, he began to adjust himself to the situation and his emotional outbursts became fewer, although his attitude never became one of philosophical resignation.

Wrote Defense of Fascism.

The former Duce asked for writing materials and spent most of his time writing a long defense of Fascism and his own actions.

Mussolini, suffering from stomach trouble, is very thin and drawn.

(The German radio in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press said Berlin newspapers today were publishing a photograph of Mussolini, described as showing him after his liberation by the Germans. The picture was said to show a smiling Duce surrounded by German SS men and parachute troops.

(The Nazi-controlled Rome radio said last night in a broadcast recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service that Mussolini, who has not made any public statements since his arrest and subsequent liberation, would "soon let his voice be heard.")

Some days after Mussolini's arrest his girl friend was taken into custody at the luxurious villa he had given her since he began keeping her about a year ago. She was released after a few hours following a search of the villa for documents and questioning.

As soon as the Germans recovered from the shock of Mussolini's disappearance, the Italian refugees said, the Nazis began a frantic hunt, using threats, wiles and bribery in an unsuccessful effort to find him. Hitler himself even took a hand in the chase.

Emissary Sent by Hitler.

The Fuehrer sent a high-ranking officer to Rome with a book and a message for Mussolini. The book was by Nietzsche and carried an inscription praising Mussolini for having followed Nietzche's philosophy to "live dangerously."

Hitler's emissary insisted to officials of the Badoglio government that he had to see Mussolini personally and that Hitler so demanded. The Italians temporized, apologized and said they were sorry, that it was impossible as they themselves did not know his whereabouts but if the Germans cared to leave the book and message they would try to make delivery.

At the time, the Germans were greatly confused by the developments in Italy. Their reinforcements had not yet been brought in and they hesitated to apply too much pressure. So Hitler's envoy departed without carrying out his mission.

The Germans were so worried they even distrusted their own diplomatic personnel in Rome and hurriedly replaced Embassy officers with others who had no contact with the Italians.

Costly Mistake by Nazis.

As it turned out this was a costly mistake since the new Germans were lacking pipe lines into Italian high quarters and on orders from Berlin were not fraternizing with the Italians and so failed to get information when armistice negotiations opened and were completely in the dark about the Badoglio government's plans.

1943

As soon as feasible Badoglio's government opened armistice negotiations which were successfully concluded September 3 with the signing by Gen. Guiseppe Castellano whose interpreter, Franco Montanari, was a graduate of Harvard in 1927 and whose American mother lives with a brother and sister at Stowe, Vt. Montanari is former Italian Consul at Honolulu.

The situation in Italy today is that Italy is an occupied country, partly by the Germans and partly by the Allies. There is no civil government, as far as is known, behind the German lines. We recognize Marshal Badoglio as the head of the government fully competent to carry out negotiations which are now in progress for the economic, financial and political phases of the armistice.

Badoglio succeeded in fleeing through the German lines around Rome and now is said to be in Italy behind Allied lines.

Elba Captured From Italians, Nazis Claim

SEP 19 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—German headquarters asserted today that Nazi troops had occupied the island of Elba, Napoleon's place of exile, between Italy and Corsica.

Elba, about 120 miles northwest of Rome, is within eight miles of the jutting Italian coastline, and 32 miles east of Northern Corsica.

The Italian garrison of 7,000 men on Elba "capitulated unconditionally and was disarmed," said the German communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—British headquarters in the Middle East called on Italians on the island of Rhodes today to "rise at once and overthrow the Germans by any and every means in your power."

The message on the Cairo radio warned the Italians that the Germans wanted to take them off the island—largest in the Dodecanese group in the Eastern Mediterranean—so they could be sent to Germany "to work like slaves" in the Reich war industries.

The Free French Radio at Brazzaville, equatorial Africa, said last night that British Commandos had landed on Rhodes and added that Italian troops there are aiding in the fight against the Nazis. This report has not been officially confirmed.

Mussolini Speech as Broadcast by Germans

SEP 19 1943

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP).—A partial text of what was described as a broadcast by Benito Mussolini, as rebroadcast in English tonight by D. N. B., the German official news agency, and recorded by The Associated Press, follows:

Black Shirts! Italians: After lengthy silence you hear my voice again. I am sure you will recognize it. The voice that called often to you in difficult times and which celebrated with you the most beautiful days of the fatherland.

I hesitated for some time before appearing before you. I needed some little time of retirement before again appearing in public. After my isolation it was necessary for me to again make contact with the world.

The radio does not permit long speeches. I will not deal with events, but will begin with happenings of July 25.

The most incredible of all the adventures in my very adventurous life happened. My conversation with the King lasted twenty minutes or even less. It was impossible to arrive at an understanding, since he had already taken his decision. The outbreak of the crisis was impending. It had happened before in war and in peace that a minister had to resign, that a general was killed. It had, however, never been learned that a man who had served his King absolutely loyally for more than twenty years was arrested on the steps of the King's private house, was forced to enter a Red Cross car—under the pretext of wanting to rescue him from a conspiracy—and was taken from one barracks to another at great speed.

Thought Protection Unsafe

I was under the impression that this protection was actually unsafe. This impression became stronger still when I was taken from Rome to Ponza, and my suspicion became a certainty when I was taken from Ponza to the Island of La Maddalena (off Sardinia), and from there to Gran Sasso, according to a plan which provided for my being handed over to the enemy.

Although cut off from the world, I had a sure feeling that the Fuehrer would look after my person as a brother more than as a comrade. Later on the Fuehrer sent me a wonderful edition of Nietzsche's work.

Knowing the armistice terms I had not the least doubt as to Article 12 of these terms. A high official had told me that I was a hostage. In the night preceding Sept. 12, I said the enemy would not get hold of me alive. The clear mountain air held a mood of expectation. It was about 2 p. m. when I saw the first parachutist coming down, followed by others, who were resolved to break any resistance. My guards realized that and did not fire.

Everything happened within five minutes. The liberation enterprise was an example of the organization and resolution of the Germans which will live in history. It will in the future become legendary.

End of "My Personal Drama"

This ends the chapter which might be called: My Personal Drama.

It is nothing compared with the terrible tragedy which the democratic (Badoglio) government inflicted on the Italian nation on July 25.

The measures, however, which were taken after July 25 hinted at a program which was aimed at destroying the work of twenty years and at extinguishing twenty years of glory in order to eliminate the recollection of the creation of an empire and of a rank such as the fatherland had never had before.

Today, in view of the ruins of the war which is continuing, one should like to search for the possibility of finding some form of compromise and justification for him who will be responsible for the continuing chain of errors.

Blames House of Savoy

Those who today run down the party are the same idlers who at the beginning of our march tried to sabotage social progress and to minimize the national and imperial success.

While we are accepting full responsibility, let us examine the others and begin with the responsibility of the King.

He feels himself detected, but he did not resign as a majority of Italians had expected. He must be held directly responsible. It was his dynasty which, during all periods of the war that had been declared by him, was the center of defeatism and of anti-German propaganda. He was careful and yet sometimes careless.

He adopted all the speculations of the enemy.

The heir to the throne (Crown Prince Humbert) took over command of the army in the south, but never put in an appearance on the battlefield.

I am convinced the House of Savoy prepared and carried out the coup d'etat, together with Marshal Pietro Badoglio as an accomplice and all of the cowardly generals and in connection with some treacherous members of the Fascist party. There can be no doubt that immediately after my arrest he (Badoglio) was authorized to negotiate an armistice and that the negotiations had been entered upon even previous to my arrest between the House of Savoy and Britain.

Therefore he shamefully betrayed Germany. Even after having signed the armistice, he denied that such negotiations were progressing.

Twenty years ago I prevented the breakdown of this dynasty, which now has established a new government in accordance with an old statute of 1848—at the point of the bayonet and under a state of siege.

As regards the terms of the armistice, which should have been generous, they were the hardest imaginable. The King did not object to these terms nor did he object to my being handed over to the enemy. Anxious about his crown, he brought chaos, shame and misery over Italy.

Tells of Humiliations

The misdeeds of the House of Savoy are known in all continents, from East Asia to America. Enemies even who have forced this shameful capitulation on us do not hide their contempt for us. Even Britain—which no one, not even the Fuehrer, thought of attacking—is at war in accordance with Churchill's promise given to Poland. For these reasons it may happen now that any Italian, even in his private affairs, will arouse the suspicion of others.

After having lost honor, we have lost also all of those countries which we secured during this war, possessions in the Adriatic, in the Ionian and Aegean Seas, in south France, and in the Balkans.

The army has been humbled and left in the lurch and disbanded. It was disarmed by its own ally. This humiliation had to be borne by soldiers who bravely fought on many battlefields on the side of their German allies.

Lists His Demands

The Royal Italian Navy which was created during those twenty years was handed over at Malta.

The air force only was able to preserve considerable parts of its material, but, practically speaking, it is no longer of use.

The unity of the Italian people, however, has not been lost. If the monarchy does not come up to its historic duties it loses justification for its existence. The basic tendencies in Italy always have been more republican than monarchist. Up to the period of the Italian union it was the republic which fought against Italian monarchies which generally were foreign monarchies.

The state which we wish to establish anew shall be national and social, in the best sense of the word—a Fascist state as it was at its beginning.

Expecting that our movement will be irresistible, we demand as follows:

First, take up arms again at the side of Germany, Japan and our other allies. Blood only can extinguish such a shameful page from the history of our fatherland.

Second, immediate reconstruction of the army, which will gather around the militia. He only can be victorious who carries arms and fights for his faith.

Third, elimination of the traitors, especially those who on July 25 at 9:30 o'clock went over to the new government and thereby to the enemy.

Calls Upon Blackshirts

Fourth, elimination of the plutocracy and establishment of a social basis on which the state may be erected, supported by the work of its citizens.

Blackshirts, and you loyal adherents in the whole of Italy, I call to you to work again and to take up arms!

If the enemy is pleased about the capitulation of Italy, it does not mean that he has secured victory. All the less because our allies, Germany and Japan, will fight up to final victory and never think of capitulation.

Black Shirts! Re-form your battalions which have performed such herioc deeds. Young Fascists! Join those divisions which heroicly fought at Bir el Gobi (Libya).

Airmen, you who impeded enemy attacks on our cities, take up your places again beside your German comrades to make the enemy action on our cities difficult and without effect.

You, Fascist women, assume again the moral and material support for our people.

Peasants, workmen and artisans, the future state will be your state. You must defend it. Our courage, our faith and our will shall give Italy a new future, a place near the sun. Long live Italy! Long live the new Fascist Republican party!

2 YANKS SLIP INTO ROME TO SEE BADOGLIO

Gen. Taylor, Col. Gardiner Enter City In Uniform Under Nazis' Eyes

Get Vital Information For Eisenhower On Eve Of Salerno Landing

SEP 19 1943

By CLARK LEE

[American War Correspondent]

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With Gen. Dwight Eisenhower at an Advanced Allied Command Post, Sept. 17 (Delayed)—It was disclosed today that two high-ranking American officers made a daring visit to Rome under the eyes of the Germans only a few hours before our invasion of Salerno, and returned safely after conferring with Marshal Pietro Badoglio and Italian military commanders.

The two officers went into the Italian capital wearing American army uniforms, minus caps, and spent twenty hours in the most important military discussions. Most of the time they traveled in a car, frequently passing within a few feet of German soldiers.

The exact nature of their mission was not disclosed.

Obtained Vital Information

They obtained vital information which has affected the whole course of events since the Italian armistice announcement.

The officers, who voluntarily carried out their dangerous assignment in the full knowledge that discovery would have meant certain execution by the Germans were Brig. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, a 42-year-old West Point graduate, formerly of Kansas City, and Col. William Tudor Gardiner, 53, a former Governor of Maine.

They left Palermo, Sicily, in a British P-T boat and made rendezvous at sea with an Italian corvette, on which they were greeted by an Italian admiral who landed them one evening last week south of Rome.

[A dispatch from David Brown, representing the combined British press, gave the time of the meeting in Rome as concurrent with announcement September 8 of the Italian armistice.]

It was agreed that, to divert suspicion from onlookers, they would be treated as if they were American airmen picked up from a wrecked plane in the Mediterranean. On their arrival at Gaeta they hurried down the gangplank into a waiting Navy limousine while groups of Italian sailors at the docks watched interestedly.

Driving a few miles into the country, the car turned into a tree-lined lane and stopped sharply. A few feet ahead was another car with frosted glass windows. General Taylor, Colonel Gardiner and the escorting officer quickly climbed into the second car.

During the two-hour drive to Rome, General Taylor spotted only four German soldiers, but noted many signs pointing off the main roads to German establishments.

Just before nightfall, they reached Rome and were driven into the courtyard of a building where comfortable quarters had been prepared.

The Italians had planned a leisurely schedule for the Americans, but the latter insisted on seeing the Italian generals immediately. The Americans also insisted on seeing Marshal Badoglio at once. The Italians at first said that it would be impossible to disturb the Marshal after midnight, since he had already been asleep several hours, but they finally yielded to the Americans' insistence and telephoned Marshal Badoglio's aide, who made an appointment.

Cautiously, the Italian officers scouted outside the building and reported the coast clear. No German soldiers or automobiles were in sight. General Taylor and Colonel Gardiner ducked quickly into the limousine. They were wearing trench coats with fatigue caps stuck in their pockets.

With lights dimmed, the car crept through Rome's blacked out streets for a quarter-mile, when suddenly a sentry challenged. The car halted and the sentry walked over and flashed a light into the back seat of the car. The Italian general, feigning a casualness that certainly he did not feel, produced credentials that satisfied the sentry and he allowed them to proceed.

This was repeated seven or eight times en route to Marshal Badoglio's home. General Taylor and Colonel Gardiner were too concerned about reaching Marshal Badoglio to be worried over their personal safety. The Italians, however, were highly nervous, fearing that discovery would mean that they would be executed as well as the Americans, who had no illusions that their uniforms could save them from death if they fell into German hands.

Marshal Badoglio, in civilian clothes, received the Americans in the study of his ornate villa. The marshal, whose personal situation was highly dangerous because of the armistice plans, looked very tired and old.

A brief and pointed conversation followed. At the end, Marshal Badoglio took General Taylor's hand and, with tears in his eyes, said: "I swear on my honor and my fifty-five years as a soldier my loyalty to the Allied cause."

General Taylor and Colonel Gardiner were driven back to their quarters again, but were stopped frequently en route by Italian sentries. General Taylor then hurriedly wrote a message to send by previously arranged radio communications. He and Colonel Gardiner settled down to await further instructions from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Italians gave them filet mignon and the Americans spent a day dozing occasionally in their room, with drawn blinds, until 3 P. M., when they were told to hurry back to General Eisenhower's headquarters. Passage by plane had already been arranged.

Colonel Taylor suggested that an Italian general return with them. An interpreter accompanied him.

A car drove into the courtyard and General Taylor and Colonel Gardiner and the Italian general quickly stepped inside from the portico. The view through the windshield was limited, but the Americans were able to see the railroad tracks. They had been heavily damaged by bombs and the car was forced to take several detours.

Rome's streets appeared busy with what General Taylor described as "normal wartime traffic." Trolleys and buses were moving, as well as some private cars.

Just before they turned into the Centocello airport their car passed a squad of German infantry marching along the road—so close, General Taylor told me, "that I could have reached out the window and tapped them on the shoulder—needless to say I didn't."

Driving swiftly past the hangars, they proceeded to the middle of the field, where a tri-motored Savoia-Marchetti bomber was waiting, its motors already warmed up. At exactly 5 P. M. the plane taxied to the end of the runway and took off, heading out over the sea.

The plane flew high and only once en route was another aircraft spotted in the sky. It was an American fighter that zoomed close, looked over the Italian plane, but pulled away without firing a shot, the pilot obviously having been informed that the plane was on a special mission.

Anti-aircraft batteries had been similarly advised and the plane landed safely at a North African airfield after a two-hour trip from Rome.

Ex-Duce's Face Thin and Drawn, Italians Reveal

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP).—Benito Mussolini, brought back to the Axis radio tonight, was described in some dispatches from North Africa as thin-faced and haggard as a result of the physical and mental strain he underwent between his imprisonment by the Italians and his "liberation" by the Germans.

Fighting in Rhodes Continues.

Ankara, Sept. 17 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Fighting between German and Italian troops for the possession of the island of Rhodes is still going on and German naval and marine forces are being moved into the eastern Mediterranean against Allied units which are reported to have occupied the islands of Kos, Samos and Leros.

There was no official confirmation of Allied landings on the three inner Dodecanese and Ægean islands and Allied military officials in Turkey are putting pressure on British and American correspondents to prevent publication of reports on any campaign while it is in progress.

An Allied attack on Leros and Samos, which would have to run the gantlet of the outer defenses of Crete and Rhodes, may mean that the defense circle is broken. If they are able to maintain their footholds they would be in a position to launch a two-sided attack against the outer crust of the island group.

It was reported they were released after a military police inquiry under the direction of the French Committee of National Liberation.

Germans Claim Captures

German broadcasts recorded by The Associated Press said that German naval forces had occupied an "Italian Adriatic port of importance," seized seven steamers and numerous warships and freighters and disarmed 4,000 Italian troops, while other forces had occupied the island of Elba, Napoleon's first home in exile, thirty-two miles east of Corsica and eight miles from the Italian coast. Seven thousand Italian troops were said to have surrendered there.

TARGETS IN FRANCE HIT HARD

Flyers Shuttle Over Channel in New Assaults on Foe's Continental Fortress.

London, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—R. A. F. Mosquito bombers blasted Berlin for the third successive night last night and this morning great formations of Allied bombers droned across the southeast coast toward Dieppe to carry the new round-the-clock aerial offensive into its fourth day.

The daylight formations were preceded by thick formations of Allied fighters streaming out across the channel.

American Marauders and their Spitfire escorts, which returned across the channel just before noon, attacked a Nazi airfield at Beauvaistille in northern France, it was announced.

Last night's attack, which kept residents of the German capital crouching in air raid shelters for the third successive night, was referred to by the Berlin radio as a nuisance raid. The broadcast said the bombers struck in both northern and southern Germany.

Other Mosquitos, accompanied by Whirlwinds, kept up the concentrated Allied attack on German transport by shooting up locomotives in Brittany.

No Planes Lost in Night Raids.

The Air Ministry announced that no planes were missing from the night assaults.

The Berlin radio also issued a report, viewed here as extremely questionable, that American Flying Fortresses had destroyed the homes of 10,000 persons during Thursday's daylight raid on Nazi shipping in the French port of Nantes. It added that a part of the population of Modane, the southern French Alpine tunnel terminus bombed by the R. A. F. Thursday night, had been evacuated to nearby towns.

Nazi shipping was hard hit in the raid by American Flying Fortresses on Nantes and La Pallice, France, photographs taken during the latter part of the raid on Thursday disclosed last night.

A new German destroyer apparently just completed or nearly completed was sunk and possible hits were scored on three other large ships, the photos showed.

The American bombers concentrated on the harbor and submarine base installations, but the German-controlled Paris radio said the damage extended well into the city of Nantes itself and declared that the center of the city was "completely wiped out."

The broadcast said that in three-quarters of an hour 300 bombs transferred the city into a heap of ruins.

The German news agency DNB in a Berlin broadcast last night recorded by the Associated Press, spoke of "renewed terror raids" on Le Creusot, armament center in France, and at La Rochelle on the west coast, where the Nazis have a large airfield. The broadcast did not specify whether the raids took place last night or previously, and it was possible that it referred to the raids by American Fortresses on La Rochelle Thursday.

U. S. DEVELOPS NEW BOMBER

Short-Range Craft With Heavy Load Useful When Northern Italy Falls

SEP 19 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 18—The United States Army Air Force is developing new short-range bombers capable of carrying a great weight of explosives to hasten the defeat of Germany, it was learned here today.

Up to now bomber development has been centered on long-range giants. It has been disclosed that super-Flying Fortresses and super-Liberators capable of flying the Atlantic round-trip without refueling are in production, and these will be especially needed in the Pacific.

When Italy Is Conquered

But the expected conquest of northern Italy—just across the Alps from Germany—has put a premium on planes capable of carrying bigger loads of destruction for comparatively short distances. A large force of these planes is being prepared.

Details of the new bomb-carrier cannot be divulged, but it is sufficient to point out that many types of planes, even fighters, can be converted into short-range bombers by changing part of their load from gasoline to bombs.

The new development was underscored by President Roosevelt's statement yesterday that "our purpose is to establish bases within bombing range of southern and eastern Germany . . . with Italy in our hands the distances we have to travel will be far less and the risks proportionately reduced."

Will Halve Distances

The distance to many critical targets both in Germany and France will be cut as much as half, increasing the potential bomb load proportionately.

On September 6 British-based Fortresses had to fly some 500 miles to bomb Stuttgart. From northern Italy Stuttgart is only 250 miles. Munich, which the RAF hit the same night, is even a shorter haul.

Other industrial centers such as Strasbourg and Lyon will be brought equally closer. From northern Italy the former Austrian capital of Vienna is only 400 miles.

Shorter trips also will permit better fighter escort, which in turn means that speed, now resorted to for protection, may be sacrificed in favor of bigger bomb loads.

One possibility in this connection is that the Marauder two-engined bomber, whose bomb load has been limited to about one ton in its raids from Britain, could carry double that amount of explosives if it were able to sacrifice some of its speed.

The Marauders today gave the Germans' Beauvais-Lille airbase in France its fourth battering within a month to carry the newest aerial assault on the continent through its fourth straight day.

RAF Mosquitos last night bombed Berlin for the third successive night, and other Mosquitos and Whirlwinds swooped over Brittany to shoot up a number of trains—all without loss.

Mitchell medium bombers of the Royal Dutch naval air service struck at railroad yards in Rouen, between Paris and Le Havre. Allied Spitfires escorted the raiders and engaged in supporting sweeps, destroying one Nazi fighter. One Spitfire was missing but its pilot was reported safe.

Italian King's Son-In-Law Reported In Switzerland

London, Sept. 18 (AP)—Count Gregorio Calvi di Bergolo, son-in-law of King Vittorio Emanuele III, has arrived in Switzerland, the Swiss radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by the British Ministry of Information.

(On September 11, the Germans, in claiming to have consolidated their positions in Rome and upper Italy, said that Count Calvi di Bergolo had been named Italian commander of Rome with a single division of Italian troops placed at his disposal to maintain order.)

Striking British Miners Returning To Coal Pits

Nottingham, Eng., Sept. 18 (AP)—Half of 15,000 coal miners, who struck in protest against the jailing of an 18-year-old boy who refused to work underground, were back at work today and the mines are expected to be operating normally by Monday.

The boy, after serving a week of a month's sentence, was released when he agreed to go into the coal pit if found physically fit.

People Reported Fighting Back And Ripping Up Communications

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 18—Disorder and misery on a scale not seen since the fall of France were reported in Italy tonight as the Germans sought to kick their beaten allies back to an unwelcome partnership with them.

But the Italians were fighting back—in increasing numbers it appeared. They were reported ripping up German communications between northern and central Italy at a time when the German command most urgently needed them. At some points in the north they were said to be standing against the Nazis and shooting it out.

Variety Of Accounts

No food had been received for days in Rome, one report said. No normal activity was resumed in the city for more than a week after it had gone under Nazi "protection," the report said, adding that the Germans are being compelled to bring in still more troops.

The Vatican was declared ringed about and virtually cut off from the outer world by Nazi troops. Pope Pius XII was reported in Stockholm dispatches to have strongly protested his status as a virtual prisoner as well as the treatment of the people in general.

The same dispatches reported that the Holy Father had refused twice to see the German commander, Field Marshal General Albert von Kesselring, insisting that the Germans must first evacuate Rome and thus make good Hitler's promise that his soldiers would remain outside the city. The German news agency DNB claimed, however, that Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Secretary of State, had received the German Ambassador.

Tell Of Nazi-Italian Fighting

Savage fighting between German and Italian troops along the Brenner Pass railroad line, the means of entry and exit from it for the Nazis, and at Turin and other parts of the upper peninsula, including the Genoa region, was reported.

Turin-Milan industrial regions were said to be in semi-paralysis, with anti-Fascist workers refusing to go to their jobs.

All northern Italy was declared short of food, with the Germans confiscating what is at hand and making no effort to provide for civilians, a job which in any case would be difficult because of the increasing strain on German communications and their destruction by Italian patriots.

Leaflets Urge Sabotage

Leaflets are being distributed to the Italans urging them to sabotage and fight the Nazis.

Violent fighting between Italian and German troops was reported in the Cuneo area, where remnants of the Italian Fourth Army from France were said to have been reorganized under the command of an Italian captain. Nests of resistance were also reported in the Trentino and some localities of Alto Veneto.

A dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Libera Stampa, of Lugano, said the German reign of terror was emphasized in north Italy partly because the Nazis were able to spare only a few soldiers for that area.

The dispatch added that Fascist militia had reappeared in Milan, firing on the population at the least provocation.

Serb Patriots Menace Fiume

Russian Guerrilla Leaders Reported to Have Arrived in Yugoslavia to Fight Nazis.

London, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—German forces in the western Balkans were reported taking strong measures today to smash Yugoslav partisan troops making a large-scale bid for liberation along the Adriatic from the seaport city of Split, now in patriot hands, to the Italian city of Fiume, 160 miles to the northwest.

Guerrillas were said to be concentrated in large numbers at Susak, just across the bridge from Fiume. Heavy fighting was reported in progress at Ogulin, north of Split, and at Knin, with the patriot forces struggling to expand their territory in Dalmatia.

Around Split the conflict had reached such proportions, the Yuogoslav Ministry of Information said, that the Nazis were using dive bombers in an attempt to dislodge the partisans from the seaport and the adjacent city of Solin.

[The Stockholm Aftontidningen said in an article reported to the Office of War Information that Russian guerrilla officers have arrived in Yugoslavia to assist in operations there and that they were accompanied by [illegible] officers who were to [illegible] ordination" with British [illegible] manders.

[The article added that the Allies have succeeded in uniting Gen. Draja Mikhailovich and Gen. Josip Tito, leaders of rival guerrilla forces, on tactical questions.

[A Berlin broadcast heard by the United States Foreign Broadcasting Intelligence Service admitted that the Albanians are anti-German, and said that Nazi troops had occupied "all strategically important installations and key points.]

In addition to the growing menace of the partisans, the Germans were taking no chances that soldiers of their former ally, Italy, might enter the liberation campaign on the side of the Yugoslavs. A German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Nazi troops had disarmed 20,000 Italians in an unidentified Adriatic port.
